

What's fishy in Muenster?

By Janet Felderhoff

Local residents are concerned about the hundreds of dead fish in the creek that winds through Muenster City Park. Many complain of the smell. Others don't find the odor very offensive, but wonder what impression will be left on visitors during Germanfest weekend.

What caused the death of this large number of fish? According to City Administrator Stan Endres, the fish washed out of Muenster Lake when the sluice gate was opened in mid February. It was not closed before a snow storm hit and a decision was made by members of the Muenster Lake Board to not close it. The sluice gate was opened to lower the water level sufficiently to allow building of a boat ramp.

Endres said that there hasn't been any rain recently. The water level is dropping in the creek and there isn't sufficient oxygen to keep all of the fish trapped there alive. He said fish kills like this are not uncommon.

On Friday, Endres checked on the situation and said that there really wasn't a bad smell then. He noted that at that time there were more dead fish near the bridge on Ash Street than in the Park.

As of Tuesday, neither the City nor the Chamber of Commerce had any plans to do anything about the dead fish. Endres said that nature will take care of it.

There were also rumors that the City had dumped sewage or something in the creek that caused the fish kill. Endres said there was no truth to that story.

County Commissioners said on Monday that there had been calls to their office from people concerned about all the dead fish in the creek at Muenster. Those callers were advised to call the City or Water Board members.

Do you have a solution? Are you willing to volunteer time to drag the dead fish from the water? It may be worthwhile to those who have an interest in Germanfest to find a way to get the fish removed from the Park before the crowds arrive.

Will it be a fishy Germanfest this year? Time will tell the rest of the story.

35th Annual Germanfest expected to draw large crowds

By Janet Felderhoff

One of the most talked about attractions of Germanfest this year is country music artist Mark Chesnutt who will perform at the festival on Saturday night at 10 p.m. on the MSB Stage. Chesnutt has been recording since the late 1980s and has numerous number one hit singles and at least three certified RIAA platinum albums and one certified gold album.

"We're expecting a big crowd on Saturday because we're already inundated with telephone calls," remarked Muenster Chamber of Commerce Director John Broyles. "People are wanting to make sure that the $10 entry fee for Saturday covers the concert."

Chesnutt fans may catch an interview with the singer/songwriter this week or next on one of the radio stations promoting Germanfest, said Broyles. He will also be featured in the Muenster Enterprise next week.

"The biggest thing seems to be the Barbeque Cook-Off," said Broyles. "The Barbeque Cook-Off is going to rival one of the largest sanctioned barbeque cook-offs in the State of Texas this year. Pre-entry registration right now is at about 55. Last year at this time, it was 20 or 30. So just based on those preliminary numbers, it looks like there's going to be a big turnout. If we have 100 or more, it will make us the second largest barbeque cook-off in the State of Texas. The largest one I think is 150 entries."

New to Germanfest this year is a booth by Rumpy's. Also, several choices of Ger-manfest tee-shirts designed by a local artist Anne Flusche will be available.

For children and the young at heart, there will again be the usual festive entertainment including Side Street Circus, Track and Friends, a balloon art. Also the rock climbing wall, Kiwanis carnival rides.

Tanze Halle entertainers include Alpenfest, Valina Polka, Alpenmusikantin, and The Polka Kings.

Other MSB Stage entertainment includes Hard Night's Day, Willy Kickit, Rayla Ray, Ben Smith, Shayne Wimmer and the Bois D'Arcs, Marion Deaton "A Tribute to Willie Nelson" and the Smooth Willie Show Band, and Bill Hogan and the Texas Bone Yard.

The 35th Annual Fun Run takes place on Sunday at noon. It features 5K and 15K runs. On Saturday, bicycle riders may choose their course from those offered in the 30th Annual Metric Century Bicycle Rally which begins to roll at 11 a.m.

Get your taste buds ready because the usual German food and festival fare will be prepared and ready to tempt you throughout the weekend. Pick from juicy sausages, sauerkraut, tater twisters, strudels, funnel cakes, and more. Quench your thirst after dancing, climbing, running, or riding with German or American beer, lemonade, or sodas.

Craft booths will be filled with an assortment of items to take home as souvenirs or just because they are just what you've been looking for and hadn't found.

The week of April 11-17 was declared National Library Week in Cooke County by Judge John Roane. It is also National Volunteer Week. Above, Muenster Public Library volunteers Terri Barrett and Jay Patel return books to the shelves.

County Commissioners recognize CASA's work with area children

By Janet Felderhoff

Cooke County Commissioners Court took time Monday, April 12 to acknowledge a group of volunteers whose purpose it is to speak for the best interests of abused and neglected children who are involved in the juvenile courts. Many CASA volunteers attended the meeting.

County Judge John Roane read a proclamation from the Court declaring April as Child Abuse Awareness Month. It said in part, "More than 78 children in the Cooke County area suffer from some form of abuse or neglect each year. ... Cooke County community members are encouraged to join together to raise awareness for those children fallen victim to abuse and neglect throughout the County, to give a chance for a safe and positive future."

For more local information, please see CASA story on page 4.

Precinct #2 Commissioner Steve Key reported that his precinct has 59 subdivisions and there are problems in most of them including drainage problems and deteriorating roads. He requested that the Court consider appointing a committee to study the current subdivision regulations set up by the County and consider adding or making changes that would be beneficial to the County and residents. This will be addressed at a future meeting.

Precinct #3 Commissioner Al Smith expressed concern over the heavy truck on county roads in his precinct. He asked that some of the Court meet with the County Sheriff seeking a way to control the speed and disregard for weights and limits regulations. He noted that there is a problem with communication and a bilingual officer might help. Taking down speed limit signs posted on county roads and weight limit signs posted on bridges was noted to have been traced back to some truck drivers. It was agreed to seek a solution to this growing problem.

Work in restoration of the interior of the County Courthouse is expected to start very soon. The completion date is set for July 29, 2011.

The week of April 11-17 was declared National Library Week. Judge Roane read the proclamation, which said in part, "our nation's school, academic, public, and special libraries make a difference in the lives of millions of Americans today, more than ever. ... Libraries are part of the American Dream - places for opportunity, education, self-help, and lifelong learning ... library use is up nationwide ... discover a world of knowledge ... We encourage all residents to visit our libraries this week to take advantage of the wonderful library resources available and thank their librarians and library workers for making information accessible to all who walk through the library's doors. Join the circle of knowledge at your library."

Per Local Government Code 130.908, Commissioners Court set spending limits on the two elected officials who will not return to their position in Jan. 2011. Steve Key was not re-elected and District Clerk Pat Payne did not seek re-election. Limits set on their spending were not to exceed their budget

KMB event bags area trash

Keep Muenster Beautiful (KMB) held its annual "Don't Mess with Texas" trash-off on April 10. Eighty members of KMB and the community gathered at City Park for a group photo and safety briefing before going out to gather litter along our highways and waterways. Gary Fisher also gave a brief talk on how to compost using Starbucks coffee grounds. Everyone present received a free

"KMB litter free" tee shirt. The shirts were a donation to KMB from the North Texas Dental Specialists.

The group collected 87 bags of trash. The Boy Scouts and the North Town Partners (NTP) collected litter last week for this event as they had conflicts with the date. The Boy Scouts collected 68 bags of trash, and NTP's bags were added to the total count.

Muenster State Bank provided a hot dog luncheon for all the workers. Door prizes were provided by The Center Restaurant, Dollar General Store, First State Bank, Keep Muenster Beautiful, Kountry Korner, Muenster Chamber Of Commerce, Romher's Restaurant, Sonic, and Starbucks.

"Don't Mess with Texas" trash-off is a partnership event between the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) and Keep Texas Beautiful (KTB) that brings community groups together from across the State to cleanup highways and their communities on one designated day each year. The "Don't Mess with Texas" trash-off is the largest one-day statewide cleanup in the United States. This event has been educating Texans about litter prevention since 1986, and TxDOT's Adopt-a-Highway program began in 1985. So they are celebrating 25 years of keeping the State litter free.

On April 17 at 9 a.m., KMB members will meet at KMB park to plant flowers in the town's planter boxes. Spring Planting Day and Don't Mess with Texas Trash-off help beautify Muenster and prepare the community for Germanfest guests. All community residents are invited to come help.

Wildflowers topic of annual CDA luncheon

In what is becoming an annual tradition, the Catholic Daughters of America (CDA) are again sponsoring an elegant luncheon catered by Debbie Schoppa of Sacred Heart Parish. This year's event, featuring the native wildflowers of this area, will take place, appropriately, on "May Day," Saturday, May 1.

The first CDA Spring Luncheon was held in 2007, replacing the annual garage sale, the organization's only fund-raising project. It proved to be highly successful; and the group made the decision to make it a yearly affair, giving women of the community an opportunity to dress in their finest spring outfits and enjoy camaraderie in a refined setting.

This year's speaker will be Lisa Bellows, chairman of the Science Department at North Central Texas College (NCTC) and director of the 600 acre nature preserve Thompson Foundation near Forestburg. She will give a power-point presentation, including photos of native plant life and the importance of its management.

Lisa and her husband reside in Gainesville and have a son who attends Texas A&M. Along with her responsibilities at NCTC and the Thompson Foundation, she also owns and operates her family farm north of Bulcher.

The 2010 luncheon is scheduled for 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the home of Chuck and June Bartush, 690 N. FM 373 in Muenster. Seating is by reservation only and is limited. Contact Della Walterscheid at 759-4457 or Cristel Vogel at 759-4600 for more information.

Home Hospice offers Dinner and a Movie

Home Hospice presents Dinner and a Movie on Monday, April 26 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Muenster State Bank in Gainesville. Join Jolene Senek, LBSW, bereavement coordinator at Home Hospice, for dinner and to watch and discuss the movie My Girl. This movie relates to grief and loss, and the discussion will compare fiction to reality. "This is a unique combination of fellowship and exploration of the paths that grief may take for any one of us," said Sherry Little, executive director. "To see grief portrayed in a movie and then discuss how that portrayal does or does not relate to one's own experience is beneficial to many who have experienced a loss," she remarked.

There is no fee to attend the event, but you must RSVP so that Home Hospice may adequately prepare for the event. Please RSVP by April 20 by calling 940-665-9891 or by emailing HYPERLINK "mailto:jolene.senek@homehospice.org" jolene.senek@homehospice.org.

April highlights child abuse prevention, awareness efforts

Each year, CASA of North Texas, sets up a display on the Courthouse lawn indicating the number of Cooke County children who have been taken into foster care because of abuse or neglect. Photos are taken and other activities take place with the goal of bringing awareness of the problem of child abuse and the need for prevention. These efforts are made to bring light to sobering statistics.

Each day in America, more than four children die as a result of child abuse in the home. But for Texans, the news gets even worse. In the years 2001-2008, the State of Texas led the nation in child deaths. On average, more than 200 Texas children die as a result of child abuse or neglect each year. In 2009, the number was greater, 288. (This is the number of children whose death certificates substantiate child abuse or neglect.) Locally, child abuse or neglect has led to the deaths of at least three children since 2001.

Research indicates that the actual number of child deaths attributable to this cause could be as much as twice this high as they are not documented on death certificates. Of children who die at the hands of an abusive or neglectful parent or caretaker, 78% are younger than four years of age. Homicide is the leading cause of injury deaths among infants under one year of age in the United States. Sadly, the perpetrator is a parent or stepparent more than 75% of the time in these cases.

In 2009, the Department of Family and Protective Services (formerly known as CPS), received 252,594 allegations of child abuse. Of these allegations, 40,126 were confirmed and 9,037 were removed from the care of their parents. Locally, 78 children were in the custody of the State due to abuse and/or neglect last year. These children suffered from sexual abuse, physical and emotional abuse, and/or neglect of their basic needs of life (food, clothing, shelter, and supervision).

The causes of child abuse and neglect are varied. Most often, an abuser is an individual whose coping abilities are outweighed by stress of the moment. All too often, an abuser has drug and/or alcohol dependency issues. Family violence is also a factor. Frequently, mental health issues are also at work in the family of an abused child. Generational patterns of abuse and lack of a support system for the family also play a part in the lives of abusers and their children.

By now, you may be asking yourself "what can I do?" First, pay attention to children around you, in your neighborhood, at church, your children's friends. Signs of child abuse and neglect are as follows: unexplained burns, bites, bruises, broken bones or black eyes, fading bruises or other marks noticeable after an absence from school, a child who seems frightened of parents or protests or cries when it is time to go home, a child who shrinks at the approach of adults or who reports that he or she is being abused. Signs of neglect are: frequent absences from school, a child begging or stealing money or food, a child who lacks medical or dental care, immunization or glasses, a child who is consistently dirty or who has severe body odor, lacks sufficient clothing for the weather, or who abuses drugs or alcohol or who states that there is no one at home to provide care.

Indicators of problems with parents or caretakers are: failure to adequately explain a child's injuries, consistently describing a child as "evil" or in some other negative way, using harsh discipline with the child, and having a history of abuse as a child. Consider the possibility of neglect when a parent or other adult caregiver appears to be indifferent to the child, seems apathetic or depressed, behaves irrationally or in a bizarre manner, or is abusing alcohol or other drugs.

If you see a problem, don't ignore it, hoping it will go away. (Nine out of 10 Americans regard child abuse as a serious problem, yet only one in three reported abuse when confronted with an actual situation.) If you suspect abuse or neglect, REPORT IT! The child abuse hotline number for the State of Texas is 1-800-252-5400. The names of reporters are kept confidential. Reporters may do so anonymously as well.

Secondly, if you are a parent who is struggling, get help. Talk to a friend, a pastor or priest, or teacher. The National Child Abuse Hotline lends support to parents as they navigate the sometimes difficult times of parenting. The number is 1-800-4-A-CHILD. Professional help is available on this line 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year.

Another way to help with the problem of abuse and neglect is to get involved with Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA). CASA advocates are average citizens who, after undergoing 30 hours of training and in depth background checks, are sworn in by the District Court to advocate for the best interests of abused children within the foster care and legal systems. They investigate child abuse cases assigned to them by the Court, monitor the progress of the parents and the condition of the children, and report their findings back to the Court. They have no reason to "be there," except the best interests of the children. If you are interested, please contact the CASA office at 665-2244 or visit the agency's website at www.casant.org.

The Department of Family and Protective Services also needs volunteers and donations in a number of areas. If you are interested, please contact the local CPS office at 668-7761. Abigail's Arms is another organization that helps families in cases of sexual abuse and domestic violence. This agency, too, needs volunteers and donation. If interested, contact their office at 665-2873. CASA of North Texas is a Cooke County United Way agency.

SHCS 4th Grade presents good Catholic characteristics

A prayer service on Holy Thursday, April 1 at 8 a.m. was led by members of the Sacred Heart Catholic School 4th Grade. It centered around the theme Catholic Character Themes: Community, Compassion, Discipleship, Reverence, Solidarity, Stewardship.

MacKenzie Mason greeted the congregation and invited them to reflect on the characteristics of good Catholics. She explained that as a Catholic School, it is important that they always demonstrate what makes a good faith witness, what makes them important for society, and what makes them important to the Catholic community. Harper Crisp explained that they would cover values that reflect faith through commitment to the worshiping community, to family relationships, and civic responsibility.

He said Catholic schools are part of the parish faith community where students can learn and grow as followers of Jesus. Jesus is the heart of the community. It is where students can learn to see and love Jesus in their study, prayer, in each other, and everyone.

Thomas Hennigan explained compassion. He said a compassionate person feels another person's pain and opens their heart to that person's needs.

Roy Endres told that discipleship is following Jesus and striving to live His Gospel.

Julian Hesse spoke on reverence. He said that it is a kind of holy respect. We have reverence for God and all that is holy. He said that we treat creation with reverence because it is charged with God's holy Presence. Reverence fuels our work against bullying, poverty, injustice, and our care for the environment.

Samantha Muller explained that solidarity is standing together with a person or group of persons who are suffering. We belong to each other as a community and if one member suffers, all are suffering. She said that in solidarity we bear one another's burdens and defend one another's dignity as children of God.

Sam Hesse spoke on stewardship which is about caring for the gifts God has entrusted to us. He said we are called to be good stewards of our talents, of our bodies, our souls, our communities, and of God's creation. He said people who practice stewardship recognize God as the origin of life, the giver of freedom, and the source of all they have and are and will be.

Sophia Jones gave the introduction which explained

Music, dance experience enhances MISD Spanish class curriculum

Muenster ISD Spanish II/III students attended an exciting and wonderful learning experience on March 31 at the Lakewood Theater in Dallas. The students participated in a "Learning on Stage" presentation. The performance was tailored to enrich and enhance the Spanish class students' curriculum in foreign languages and social studies through the excitement of music and dance.

The students attended a 70 minute program enjoying the Latin Rhythms ensemble. Their musical expertise enhanced the students' understanding of Latin America through the exciting, popular, and diverse musical traditions of the region. The performance took the students through various Latin American countries starting with Mexico, then Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Vera Cruz, and many others.

As the students enjoyed the musical rhythms of each country, they shared in dance experience with many other students from the Metroplex. All united in dance - learning, practicing, and sharing different dance steps to different music from different regions.

Muenster Lady Hornets take District Golf Championship

The Lady Hornets pulled the "upset of the year" Monday at Webb Hill Country Club golf course in Wolfe City. Defending Champion Bland just missed a trip to the State tournament in 2009, led by a pair of Seniors. But I still felt they would have been the team to beat in 2010," quoted Coach Dan Hamric.

Bland finished in fourth place (497) behind Campbell (494) and Lindsay (490). The girls from Muenster posted a season best round of 456 to claim the win.

The team was led by Sophomore Andi Hess who posted a 106 in spite of going nine over par on her last two holes. "It was like watching John Daly taking his famous 11 on a par 3. The ball just wouldn't go in the hole!" added Coach Hamric. Andi's 106 was third best in a field of 24 girls. Other Lady Hornets scoring were Payton Sanders 113, Hannah Weger 116, Chloe Schneider 121, Paige Herr 135, and Miranda Pangel 141.

The win qualifies the team for the Regional Tournament at Piney Woods Country Club in Nacogdoches this coming Monday and Tuesday. The second place Lindsay girls will also advance.

In boys action, the Hornets struggled early on with lots of water and sand but finished with a respectable 390 which was good enough for sixth place in a field of 14 teams.

Blake Grewing, who just missed a trip to Regionals in tennis, fell just short again as he fired an eighth place finish with a score of 86, in a field of 74 boys. Other team members were Freshman Sean Chism 98, Dalton Koelzer 100, Blake Voth 106, and Landon Presnall 108. Cole McAden, back from what was thought to be a season ending surgery on his hand, got clearance from his surgeon to play. But with only two days to practice, couldn't get his game back and settled for a 121.

Ahead of Muenster in the place standings were Lindsay 351, Blue Ridge 355, Trenton 361, Bland 362, and Lindsay 'B' 387.

New technology, old ideas solve Texas water, resource problems

By Gene Hall
Texas Farm Bureau

Compared to recent history, it's been a relatively wet winter in Texas, with hopes that timely spring rainfall will continue to boost crops and refill lakes, ponds, and reservoirs. These were all but dried up in the devastating drought of 2008 and 2009. Despite this year's reprieve from Mother Nature, the safest thing is to anticipate that Texas water will continue to be short most of the time and in many places.

Harvesting rainfall as human drinking water is an ancient practice taking on new life in water deficient areas of Texas. Harvesting rainfall for drinking water demonstrates in a compelling way how ideas as old as history itself, combined with new technologies and old fashioned American ingenuity, can go a long way toward solving some of our perpetually troubling resource problems. Water is only one of them. Capturing that gift of the Almighty—precious rainfall—to alleviate shortages has an almost poetic connotation to it.

Texas has made major strides in capturing the wind for electrical power, as Texas pioneers used it to bring water up from below parched range.

The wide-ranging, sometimes intense sunlight of Texas can be an energy bonanza when the technology catches up to it. Already, solar panels in home applications are paying off.

None of this is to say that we should abandon our traditional sources of energy. Fossil fuels—hopefully free from the regulatory insanity of cap and trade—are in our future for many decades to come. We should look for it, and drill for it anywhere we can, in an environmentally responsible way. This of course, we now have the technology to do. We must also forge ahead in developing bio-fuels, which will help alleviate our thirst for foreign oil and will benefit consumers, agriculture, and rural Texas.

A mix of the old and new, responding to market forces is happening here in Texas—in response to resource crisis. That's why, when you come right down to it, Texas' greatest resource is—Texans.

TDA market recap

For the week ending April 10, feeder cattle prices at Texas auctions were mostly $1 to $5 higher per hundred-weight with some sales to $10 higher. Higher fed cattle prices and continued good demand for cattle for summer grazing contributed to the increase.

As for futures markets, feeder cattle, finished cattle, wheat, corn, and lumber were higher while cotton was lower. Little to no rainfall was reported across the state last week, allowing spring planting to progress, but also expanding the areas reporting short topsoil moisture conditions.

Corn planting was 48% and 35% of the acreage has emerged, both well behind the normal pace. Grain sorghum planting was 48% complete and planting of rice, soybeans, and other spring crops was also active, but behind the normal pace. Winter wheat was 6% headed with most of the acreage reported in good to fair condition. Pastures and livestock were in mostly fair to good condition.

Lower sorghum acreage predicted

The National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) released 2010 prospective planting reports for sorghum. The report suggests growers will plant 6.36 million bushels per acre, down 4% from last year.

According to reported numbers, the crop will increase in Colorado, Louisiana, and South Dakota, but decrease in Nebraska and Texas. This number, as always, is subject to change throughout the spring planting period as growers' intentions change based on weather and other factors.

County Agent's Report

Volunteers are essential

This coming week, April 18-24, will be National Volunteer Week. "Celebrating People in Action". This week is about inspiring, recognizing, and encouraging people to seek out imaginative ways to engage in their communities. Volunteers are a huge help to any community and to any program. If you are a volunteer, thank you for your efforts! If you work with volunteers, make sure you pause to appreciate their service this coming week.

Volunteers are one of the Texas AgriLife Extension Service's most valuable assets. They make a big difference by what they help the agency accomplish: reach more people in Texas; ensure that programs are relevant; deliver Extension education; and interpret the value of Extension to others.

In Cooke County, Texas AgriLife Extension relies heavily on volunteers to help spread knowledge and accomplish community service. An estimation of volunteer involvement coordinated through the County Extension office places the value of service provided by these very important individuals at $557,563.50. This equates to 654 active volunteers contributing 27,534 hours of service to the community and uses the after-tax hourly wage rate designated by the state for 2009, which was $20.25 per hour.

Key groups that provide the service that help to extend the effectiveness of Texas AgriLife Extension Service in Cooke County include: 107 4-H Direct Adult Volunteers; 127 4-H Direct Youth Volunteers; 2 4-H Livestock Mentors; 40 4-H Coalition and Task Force Members; 19 Ag or Natural Resource Committee Members; 5 Ag or Natural Resource Program Area Task Force Members; 15 Community or Economic Development Committee Members; 6 Family or Consumer Science Program Area Committee Members; 10 Family or Consumer Science Program Area Task Force Members; 171 Indirect Volunteers; 15 Leadership Advisory Board Members; 19 Master Gardeners; 42 Random/Episodic Volunteers; and 3 Result Demonstration Cooperators.

These are the numbers and the results of the volunteers that work with Texas AgriLife Extension Service. Throughout the county, there are thousands more people working with schools, churches, municipalities, and special interest to make this community a better place. These volunteers, which very likely includes you, are an irreplaceable asset.

Match cow size to forage resources

Commercial cow-calf operators must become more cost-efficient to maintain or improve profit margins, making matching animals to forage resources more important than ever.

Land, fertilizer, feed, fuel, and labor costs continue to increase relative to the value of carcass beef and weaned calves, reminds David Lalman, Oklahoma State University professor of animal science.

"One logical solution is to select and breed cattle that are productive in a given environment while requiring minimal labor and supplemental feed inputs," he said.

Planned crossbreeding systems have been shown to increase lifetime kilogram of calf weight weaned by 25% compared to purebred cows. Nevertheless, breed association registration records suggest that the use of planned crossbreeding systems in the United States has declined in recent years.

"Industry trends suggest that standard genetic prediction tools such as Expected Progeny Differences (EPD) and selection indexes have been embraced by producers, leading to substantial change in the past 15 to 20 years," Lalman said.

For example, the genetic trend for weaning and yearling growth, marbling, and rib eye area EPDs have increased dramatically in each of the five breeds of cattle with the greatest number of registrations in the United States. Concurrently, the genetic trend for birth weight and mature cow size appears to have stabilized.

"While many of the genetic changes likely represent positive trends in commercial cow-calf enterprise profitability, some trends require closer scrutiny by academic and industry leaders," Lalman said. "As an example, the genetic trend for increased milk yield continues at an alarming rate in several popular breeds."

Lalman classifies the trend as 'remarkable' given the increased requirements for maintenance energy, production energy, crude protein and forage dry matter intake associated with increased milk yield.

"Within breed adjustment factors for maintenance energy requirements associated with increased milk yield are needed," he said. "Recent research suggests that in some environments, forage quality limits expression of full genetic potential for milk yield. This scenario should lead to no improvement in calf weaning weight while cow maintenance costs continue to increase."

Lalman believes continued selection for increased muscling and increased growth also should be scrutinized for their potential effect on beef cow efficiency. Considering the extremely large-framed cattle that were around in the late 1980s, cows are large and heavy today but not extreme in frame size.

"Still, there are individual producers who have not kept as close an eye on cow size as they should have been," Lalman said. "To expect large, heavy milking cows to be in moderate body condition at calving and maintain condition through breeding, they must receive more feed than small lighter-milking cows."

As a practical matter, reduced stocking rates will be necessary on improved pastures if lower amounts of fertilizer are applied. A larger mature cow size also affects the principle of percent of body weight needed for heifers to reach puberty.

For a cow that eventually will weigh 1,000 pounds, the target weight for the heifer would be 650 pounds. For a cow that eventually will weigh 1,250 pounds, the target weight would be 812 pounds going into the heifer's first breeding season, if the producer is to promote a high cycling and pregnancy rate.

Additional cow-calf management tips are available through OSU's Division of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources at <http://cowcalfcorner.okstate.edu/> on the Internet.
