By Janet Felderhoff

The only local entity holding an election on Saturday, May 9 was the Muenster ISD Board of Trustees. Places 5, 6, and 7 were up for election. There were 494 voters who decided the election by casting their ballots.

Place 5, now held by Jim Endres who chose not to seek another term, had two candidates Richard Dangelmayr and Douglas Hermes. Dangelmayr won the place with 277 votes to the 208 cast for Hermes.

Place 6 also had two candidates, incumbent Ronnie Felderhoff and Kimberly Walterscheid. Hess unseated Felderhoff with 317 votes to his 177.

Place 7 incumbent Steve Trubenbach was unopposed and had 433 votes.

New Board members were sworn in at the regular meeting on Wednesday, May 13. The Board elected new officers at that time.

There were 13 applicants for the position and it was not known how long the interview process would take.

Applicants are Charles Woolfolk, Whitten Williams, John Beck, Vincent Rippey, Scott Davis, and Dorthy Lewis, all of Gainesville, Mike Corcoran and Greg Bohl of Muenster, John Roane, Jason Brinkley, Danny Alexander, and Royce Martin of Valley View, and Sheila Cox of Collinsville.

As of Tuesday, there was one less name on the list as Royce Martin withdrew his application.

Judge Freeman's resignation gave his last day as May 29 and Commissioners hope to have his replacement selected prior to that time.

Keep Muenster Beautiful gains City support for new sign

By Janet Felderhoff

In the future, there will be no signs allowed on the IMAC (formerly AMPI) lot at Main Street and Highway 82, except those placed with permission in a permanent sign holder.

At the City Council meeting held Monday, May 4, Keep Muenster Beautiful (KMB) representative Gary Fisher presented the organization's idea and requested permission to erect the unit. They requested a permit to build a sign designed using rock columns and iron fencing similar to those used at the Muenster Park. Sign faces up to two feet high by eight feet long will fit onto the iron fencing between columns. The Council unanimously approved the request.

According to Fisher, "The overall height of the columns and fencing will be only slightly taller than the sign face so as to not block the mural. There will be three actual sign faces. One facing Hwy 82, another at an angle, and one facing Main. When no sign faces are present, the fencing will form an attractive addition to the lot."

Constructing the sign is the final phase of KMB's beautification project begun in 2007 while Elaine Schilling was president of the organization. The lot is the private property of IMAC and the beautification project was done with permission of the landowners.

City Administrator Stan Endres noted that signs placed along Hwy. 82 are illegal since TXDOT does not allow signs in the State right-of-way. Muenster requires that permits be acquired to place signs on private property in the City limits, and TXDOT only allows specific signs under very specific rules.

Fisher noted that the organizations that currently use the lot for publicity will be contacted and the process explained for reserving and placing a sign. No fee will be charged, but signs will have to conform to size and professional detail. More details will be released when the sign's base is completed, he said.

It is expected that the project will be completed either this fall or early spring of 2010.

Also approved was a request by Nortex Communications to close for a few hours a portion of First and Second Streets between Oak and Walnut Streets during the business' centennial celebration on June 12 and 13.

In his City Administrator's report, Endres told the Council that the new lawn mower approved at the previous meeting has been purchased for about $7,000.

John McComsey and his canine traveling companion, Britt, spent two nights at the Muenster Livestock Auction grounds. He decided to wait out the rain and fog that made traveling in a mule-drawn wagon unsafe. McComsey is on a journey to Phoenix, Arizona, and hopes to raise money for his niece who has MS. ## McComsey rolls through states with wagon and mule team

By Janet Felderhoff

John McComsey spends his days guiding his mules down the highway as he treks by wagon on a 1600 plus mile journey. "I think this is the best way to see America," remarked the traveler. "I am going slow enough to see what she has to offer. The world is going too fast and people don't have time to see what is around them."

The now retired jack of all times, began the journey on April 1 from his home in Henry, Tennessee. His destination is Phoenix, Arizona, where his sister Bev and her family live. The trip will wind through Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona, and is expected to take between 80 to 120 days.

"I hope to average 20 miles each day. Drive for five or six days and rest one or two. The weather has a lot to do with this and the mules," speculated McComsey.

McComsey spent two and a half years planning this excursion. He bought the mules, a pair of Percheron draft mules three years ago and named them Jack and Mack. He trained them to pull the wagon.

Brit, a four-year-old Blue Heeler, is McComsey's sole companion this trip.

It isn't McComsey's first journey by mule pulled wagon. His first trip was from Boaz to Montgomery, Alabama. The 165 mile journey took eight days. "I learned a lot very quick," he recalls. "That was a great ride and I was hooked and I have gone on that ride several times since then."

McComsey noted that there are several reasons that he is traveling to Phoenix. The one closest to his heart is his niece Demelsa, the daughter of his sister Bev and her husband Roger. Demelsa was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis (MS) in June 2006. She is now 26 and her condition has deteriorated to the point that she has trouble with her balance.

"It is rather difficult for her to even walk across the room unassisted," he said.

Before beginning his trip, McComsey contacted the MS Foundation in Tennessee to see if they would sponsor his ride and he would donate all proceeds to the foundation. They decided that the trip had too many safety concerns and so he was turned down.

Determined to make the trip anyway, McComsey pledged all proceeds to Bev and Roger to ensure that Demelsa's future needs would be satisfied.

McComsey's wagon has head lights, running lights, and a rear turn signal unit, and a strobe light on top for safety. He replaced all wheel cylinders, master cylinders, and brake shoes hoping this will eliminate any brake problems. The wagon has a metal top and vinyl side covers with clear vinyl on front and sides. It has a 125 amp alternator and it runs off the rear wheel. He carries 60 gallons of water. The bathroom is equipped with a 12 volt DC water pump and an instant water heater for the marble based shower and a 24" vanity. He also pulls a utility trailer for hay, grain, and miscellaneous items.

McComsey traveled through Gainesville and Lindsay on Sunday. He spent the night in Muenster at the local sale barn where his mules had shelter from the wet, cool weather.

Several local people donated grain and hay for his team and some treated McComsey to food and beverage.

To learn more about McComsey and his journey, visit his web site twomilesandawagon.com. He posts a journal with stories of his travel adventures and the folks he meets along the way.

Friends of Muenster Lake to be organized by Water District

By Janet Felderhoff

With a new lake comes many tasks that need attention. In an effort to make Muenster Lake a safe, appealing place to visit, the Muenster Water District has decided to initiate the forming of an organization Friends of Muenster Lake. It will be a group of volunteers who are willing to do needed chores around the Lake that might include mending fences, picking up trash, painting, or clearing floating logs that washed into the Lake during heavy rains.

Anyone interested in being a member is asked to contact City Hall or any of the Water District Board members. Board members are Milton Knauf, Dwayne Rohmer, Henry Weinzapfel, and Nick Walterscheid.

At the May 4 regular meeting, the Board voted to offer three acres of land acquired for the purpose of putting in an access county road to the Bayer property. The total acreage purchased was not needed and the excess is now offered for sale by bid. The property is located off of County Roads 426 and 467. The strip of land is on the east side of CR 467. Bids will be opened at a special meeting set for Monday, June 1 at 8 a.m.

It was also voted to take bids from anyone wishing to cut and bale about 70 acres of grass on Lake property. That does not include mowing the dam, which is cut by a contractor. Those bids must be submitted before May 29.

The NRCS has agreed to provide engineering and construction inspection for the proposed boat ramp. Texas Parks and Wildlife will pay for 75% of the cost of constructing the boat ramp. Muenster Water District is responsible for the remaining 25%.

Construction will not begin until the fall to protect the fish population. According to Rohmer, the Lake will have to be drained to allow construction. This would deprive the fish of needed oxygen during summer months. He anticipates that the Lake will be drained around Nov. 15. He indicated that the water level may be dropped as much as 20 feet. The Lake's surface could shrink from 300 acres to a little over 100 acres during the construction.

A request to offer scuba lessons at Muenster Lake was discussed, but deferred. According to Board member Dwayne Rohmer, it will be considered again when there

ONE MILE - ONE HERO ONE COUNTRY

Raising funds and awareness one mile at a time

Inspired by the sacrifices of military men and women in Iraq and Afghanistan, an Austin-based 501 (c) 3 organization, OPERATION HONOR OUR HEROES, was formed to assist wounded warriors and veterans and their families. Beginning on May 17, a team of runners will carry the mission of the organization forward in a journey across the state of Texas in honor of those who have served in Operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom, running one mile for every one of the Texas fallen.

The Lone Star Trail of Heroes: Run Across Texas will begin on Armed Forces Day, May 17, at the Panhandle War Memorial in Amarillo, and will cover nearly 500 miles before finishing in Austin on Memorial Day, May 25. Runners will journey from Amarillo, south to Lubbock, then head east, turning south along I-35 designated as the Purple Heart Trail. Cities along the route include Amarillo, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Gainesville, Denton, Fort Worth, Hillsboro, Abbott, West, Waco, Temple, Belton, Killeen, Salado, Georgetown, Round Rock, and Austin.

Every mile of the journey will be marked with a United States flag, photo, and biographical card to honor each fallen service member. These dedication markers, made by students and

Appraisal notices for tax year 2009 are in the mail to area property owners

If your property value has increased in the last year, you should soon receive a notice of your 2009 appraised value from the Cooke County Appraisal District. About 12,500 notices were mailed on May 8. Your city, county, school district, and other local taxing units will use the appraisal district's value to set your 2009 property taxes.

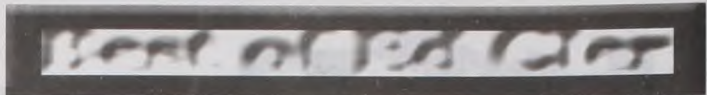

State law requires county appraisal districts to notify property owners about changes in their property's value. The notice also contains important information about the property's location, its ownership, and property tax exemptions that have been applied to the property. It may include an estimate of 2009 taxes by local taxing units. Property owners who disagree with the appraised value of their property, the exemptions, or any other action by the appraisal district, have the right to appeal to the Cooke County Appraisal Review Board (ARB). The ARB is an independent panel of citizens responsible for hearing and settling property owner protests. The notice of appraised value includes instructions on how and when to file a protest and a protest form. The deadline for filing a protest with the ARB is June 1 or 30 days after the appraisal district mailed you a notice of appraised value, whichever is later.

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs' publication, Texas Property Taxpayer's Remedies, explains in detail how to protest your property appraisal, what issues the ARB can consider, and what to expect during a protest hearing. The publication also discusses the option of taking your case to court or entering into binding arbitration if you are dissatisfied with the outcome of your ARB hearing.

Texas Property Taxpayer's Remedies is available from the Cooke County Appraisal District, 201 North Dixon, Gainesville, TX. The publication is also available on the HYPERLINK "http://www.window.state.tx.us" state Comptroller's Web site at www.window.state.tx.us or by calling the Comptroller's Property Tax Assistance Division at (800) 252-9121.

June 11, 1993

During the years when Fr. Frowin held sway over the religious parts of our lives in Muenster, things were considerably different than now, especially in the '20s.

In those times, a lot of us can remember the hot days of summer, and the cold in the winter. None of us had ever heard of air conditioning, so in the summer the only cooling was what little wind came through the open windows, and then we were expected to wear coats in church.

To top all this, Mass in the Latin language, and a lot of the old timers of that day joined with the good pastor in using German prayers, and the long sermons were also in that language. Needless to say, many of the youngsters of the time no longer, or possibly never, could understand it, and consequently sat through many of the sermons taking note of any distractions that came along.

Many of the farmers worked long hours in the fields through the summer, and after came to church Sundays, tired, and it wasn't long before heads, here and there, were nodding as the sermon droned on.

We kids would look on, and sometimes wonder if the head would tilt backward, or fall forward, as sleep completely overtook one particular young man whose mouth was agape, as his nose pointed toward the ceiling. About that time, we were also watching several yellow-jackets fitting about, going from one person to another, when one wasp seemed to take quite an interest in the young man's open mouth. It circled the gaping hole once or twice, hovered a bit, and then descended into the open maw for a moment, then reappeared and went on its way.

Unable to keep our faces straight, nor to completely muffle the laughter, we soon found ourselves the object of a pair of glaring eyes, and some words we did not understand. But somehow we got the message that it was time to straighten up and fly right.

Olivetan Benedictines celebrate canonization of founder St. Bernard

It was a joyous day Sunday, April 26 for the Benedictine sisters of Holy Angels Convent in Jonesboro, Arkansas. The founder of the Olivetan congregation of the Benedictine Order, Bernard Tolomei, was officially canonized by Pope Benedict XVI during a ceremony in St. Peter's Square. For many years, the Catholic church recognized Bernard as blessed. He could not be officially recognized as a saint until a pope approved a miracle. Pope Benedict XVI approved this necessary miracle.

A press release from Holy Angels said, "St. Bernard's saintliness was firmly rooted in following Christ's commands to love God and neighbor. Born into a wealthy Siense family, he shunned a legal career to live in monastic solitude with a few companions at Monte Oliveto. When the black plague struck his native city in 1340, he and his brothers left the monastery to care for the sick - resulting in Bernard's and half of his community dying of the disease."

St. Bernard was born in 1272 and named Giovanni Tolomei. He took the name Bernardo when he became a monk. He died in 1348.

Prior to the canonization, the Vatican observed three days of prayer. The sisters of Holy Angels Convent also held a special holy hour of prayer over those three days. On Sunday, there was a special Mass in honor of St. Bernard. It was followed by a celebratory meal. That evening, the sisters were treated to a movie and pizza party.

For the sisters of Holy Angels, St. Bernard inspired the opening of a hospital, which they named after him. St. Bernard Hospital was founded on July 5, 1900 under the combined efforts of Fr. Eugene Weibel, Dr. C.M. Lutterloh, J.F. Mason, and the Olivetan Benedictine sisters. It was opened after the town had gone through smallpox and malaria fever epidemics.

The sisters were taking a risk since they still owed $4,000 for their convent. Despite the debt, the sisters decided to follow the spirit of charity of their founder and establish the hospital in Jonesboro.

Sr. Henrietta Hockle has written the history of her order, the hospital, and other matters of interest. She taught at Sacred Heart School for a number of years, and was welcomed by many of her former students at a book signing hosted by the Muenster Historical Commission several years ago.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Angela Claire Proto of Enfield, Connecticut and Noah Gerhart Hess of Muenster have been announced by their parents Frank and Jacqueline Proto of Enfield and Doyle and Debbie Hess of Muenster. The wedding is set for Saturday, June 6, 2009 at 2 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church in Muenster with Father Ken Robinson officiating. Maid of honor will be Maria Proto, sister of the bride. Serving as best man will be Luke Endres, cousin of the groom. Miss Proto is a 2002 graduate of Enfield High School. She earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in "East Asian Languages and Culture" and Linguistics from Indiana University in 2005. She currently teaches Spanish at Sacred Heart Catholic School in Muenster. Mr. Hess graduated from Sacred Heart High in 2004 and earned his Associate degree in Computer Information Systems at North Central Texas College in 2008. He currently works at Gamestop and does independent computer repair. The couple will reside in Muenster after their marriage.

Hartmans hold 23rd annual family campout!

Not even torrential rain or the "swine flu" can put a damper on the Hartman Family's Annual "Pastures" Golf Tournament. There are always a couple of golfers, who could compete in the Masters Tournament, if they really wanted to enter; and then there are those who would make some pretty mean "caddies!" Nevertheless, the tournament was a big success with a lot of "boogies," a few "birdies," but unfortunately not a single "hole in one!" The family's most prolific athlete this year was Dan Bezner. Dan was "Closest to the Pin" in the "Pastures," and then he always dominates the "Horseshoe Tournament," (which will appear later in this article). Taking home the coveted "green" jackets this year were: Doug Hartman, and Dana and Trent Bloedel; however, they won the championship by default, as the real champions, Uncle John Yosten, Uncle Gene Hartman, and Bobby and Kenny Hartman were disqualified because they failed to sign their score card properly. Their claim that they were given a pen with invisible ink just didn't stand up with the judges.

Although the "Snipe Hunt" had to be canceled due to high water, Little Misses Tori and Cooper Hartman, daughters of Doug and Tonyah Hartman, still spotted one running across the campsite, and they were jumping up and down and squealing with delight! The poor Snipe almost died of fright! A new category this year was "Best Invention!" This new award was presented to Vickie and Doug Fleitman for their invention of a "Golf Caddy Machine." Vickie could get several feet from the machine, and she would holler and tell it she needed a "putter," and BOOM a putter flew out of the bag and into her hands. Then she would tell it she needed a golf ball, and a golf ball would shoot out of the bag into her hands. They just might be waiting on the doorsteps of the U.S. Patent Office on Monday morning. It was a pretty clever and useful gadget, to say the least!

As in years past, Dan Bezner and his partner, who just happened to be Brian Tompkins this year, won the "Horseshoe Tournament!" Every year Vickie and Doug Fleitman, and Uncle John Yosten and Dan Bezner host this tournament. There's always a lot of conniving and (shhhhhh) cheating to try to be the one to stand opposite of Dan and be his partner for this game, but Vickie runs a pretty tight ship, and she won't allow any of this to take place. She draws for everyone's positions in the tournament; thus, there's always one very lucky guy or gal for this event! Then all the other contestants stand around and ask, "Oh, why not me, Lord?" Better luck next year, guys! You might try writing your name on 134 slips of paper, and sneaking them into Vickie's hat next year!

Margaret Doubrava, youngest daughter of Carol Hartman and the late Willard Hartman, won the "Best Dip Contest" with her delectable "Artichoke Dip!" It was quite different, and it was "bowl licking good!" Margaret was thrilled to receive one of Grandmother Hartman's aprons, as her trophy, to be used in her kitchen, until the next campout. This special apron adds the key ingredient to all of Margaret's dishes - LOVE!

"Grandmother's Bean Guessing Game" was won in the adult division this year by Mike Fedor, who was only three (3) beans off with his guess, and then not to be outdone by the adults, Meredith Tompkins guessed within five (5) to win "Grandmother's Bean Guessing Game" in the child's division. Wow! Good job, guys!

The "Annual Fishing Tournament" had to be scrapped this year due to extremely muddy water, but the participants still were able to compete for trophies, as Clay Hogan, grandson of Della and Harvey Schmitt, won the trophy for the "Biggest Fish Caught" when he caught a turtle. Michael Fleitman, another grandson of Della and Harvey's, got a trophy for entering the contest, and he finally ended up catching a fish with his hands!

A "Super Return to Glory" was achieved in the "Marble Shooting Contest" when the champion, who has reigned for more years than anyone else, was able to clear the ring and reclaim his crown! Uncle Alvin Hartman was completely "unstoppable!" However, he and his trusted "shooter" were challenged this year by Luke Tompkins, grandson of Edna Tompkins and the late Keith Tompkins, and Koby Hogan, grandson of Della and Harvey Schmitt, and Keith Bezner, grandson of Pat and John Yosten. These little guys really gave Uncle Alvin a "roll" for the championship! His brother, Gene Hartman, said his own performance was greatly hindered this year because someone got his Notre Dame Shooter, which had allowed him to defeat the reigning champion in past years! It sounds like someone just might be a little "green" with envy. Shhhhhhh, please don't anyone tell him, but our goldfish just love the nice big green marble in their bowl!

Uncle Harvey's "Hay Rides" were enjoyed by both young and old; however, Uncle Gene just can't be restrained from constantly hollering, "Uncle Harvey, slow this baby down!" Due to the muddy roads, "Uncle Alvin's Trips to the Farm" were sadly postponed, until a later date.

Each year the whole Hartman clan enjoys gathering around the campfire for music provided by the Tompkins brothers. There are a lot of random selections, and there are many, many requests made, as well. Grandmother Hartman always requested two songs: "Put Another Log on the Fire," and "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain!" These two songs are sung many, many times at each campout, because we know they are both listening from Heaven afar, as they make us aware of it by the twinkling of a star!

There were 134 family members and four (4) guests at the Campout this year. The Walter Wolf family (Georgia Hartman) planned the Mass, and they did a great job with several of their grandchildren doing the readings and the petitions. One of their daughters-in-law, Ashli Wolf, joined the Tompkins brothers, Jim and Brian, sons of Edna Tompkins and the late Keith Tompkins, in providing the music for the Mass. Their lovely voices filled the air with song, as the birds flew through the willows, and the wind blew softly through the trees! As always, the Mass to honor the loving memory of Grandmother and Grandpa Hartman, and all the others who have gone on to prepare a place for us, was the highlight of the reunion!

Our family is blessed to have a historian, Mark Tompkins, who keeps up with our many blessings and changes, and he types out a revised list for all of us each year. This is a tremendous task, as just a day before the campout, our newest addition to the family, Little Miss Ava Hillis was born making Kenny and Rhonda Hartman grandparents, and Alvin and Joanie Hartman great grandparents. We had two other additions to our family, as Clayton Bezner, grandson of Pat and John Yosten, will be a year old next month. Also, Sharon and Mike Fedor are grandparents, and Edna Tompkins is great grandmother to Chase Ames. Congratulations to all of you, and "welcome" to our family little ones!

Our family campout would not be such a big success each year, if it were not for all the many people who perform various "labors of love" to get everything ready. There are just too many to mention names, but you all know who you are, from those of you who mow, to those of you who built a new latrine, and those who set up all the trash cans, we truly "thank you" from the bottoms of our hearts man!

As we all pull out the gate with our happy "little campers," our dirty clothes and dishes, and most importantly, all of the "Precious Memories" we have built, our prayer is that all of you will be blessed with happiness and joy throughout the year! Happy trails to you, until we meet again! Sincerely, The Hartman Family

College and Career Corner - Are you an ethical teen?

By Rose Rennekamp

A recent poll sponsored by Junior Achievement shows an alarming disconnect in teenage ethics and behavior. Just more than 50% see their parents as role models. Almost half of the respondents thought lying to their parents is fine. While 80% of teenagers believe they would behave ethically in the workforce, 38% said it's fine to break the rules at school to succeed in life. Just a quarter of the teenagers said they would report unethical behavior in the workplace.

Where do you fit into those statistics?

Studying and preparing in school is much like holding down a job. Both require study, meeting deadlines, and working well with others. A report card is like a performance review. The sooner you realize you alone are responsible for your work, the better prepared you'll be to enter college and the workforce.

We all know the parents who "help" their children with elaborate school projects. Their children are the ones who arrive at the science fair with a 1/16th scale version of the entire solar system. But how will your parent's involvement help you succeed on your own?

Think about this same situation in your classroom. Imagine a student who is unable to finish projects on deadline, who constantly needs assistance and help, or who cuts corners or cheats to succeed. Is that the kind of person you would want to work with in the future? Would you hire that kind of person?

Now imagine the same type of scenario in the health field. A friend of mine is a nursing instructor at a private college. Some of her students just don't work hard. Some expect extra time to complete projects. Others claim they don't have to learn how to calibrate medicine dosages; after all, machines do that nowadays. Do you want your healthcare in the hands of someone who was a lazy student, yet still graduated?

Your parents, guardians and counselors must be strong role models for you. And that means they often take the road less traveled, risking being labeled "strict." Actions truly do speak louder than words. When it comes to school, your parents can outline your academic expectations and hold you accountable. Know that cheating is never an option. Whether you get an A+ or a C-, if you've given it your all, you've succeeded.

The next time your parents want to jump in and do something for you, remember that short-term fixes provide only short-term solutions. After all, you represent the next generation. If you're equipped with a strong moral compass, you'll be part of a strong workforce into the future.

Hess speaks to SHCS students on Civil War

History students at Sacred Heart Catholic School were delighted when Muenster native Rodney Hess gave presentations on the Civil War. Dressed in a period uniform as a colonel from the South, Hess explained what a soldier would need to go into battle and then what would be required to survive the war. He displayed authentic Civil War weapons and ammunition as well as food rations, a pocket Bible used by the North and South, and even a "housewife" which was the term then used for a sewing kit carried by each soldier to repair his tattered uniform.

The presentations came to an exciting conclusion with the firing of Hess's cannon. Students were chosen to give the traditional orders of "I have the piece," and then, "fire!"

School sports: which are most, least dangerous?

With all due respect to former chess club nerds or literary magazine editors who never suited up for any sporting events in high school, many consider athletics one of the best ways for young people to develop traits such as discipline, self esteem, and the ability to work with others.

And although high-profile success stories such as Ray Charles, Woody Allen, and Bill Gates prove a jock background is far from crucial, more than 7 million American boys and girls a year participate in school-based athletics.

As these student athletes compete, emotions clash inside moms and dads who are both intensely proud of their kids and concerned for their safety. Injuries do happen, some with lifelong consequences. Parents, even those who accept the built-in risks of athletics, naturally want the lowdown on which sports are most and least risky, and what kinds of injuries are common to each.

This article will provide basic information of likely interest to parents of aspiring young athletes.

The Most Dangerous Sports: Football and Cheerleading

A recent article in the American Journal of Sports Medicine reported a finding that will surprise almost no one: More high school boys were injured by football than any other sport. Roughly 4.3 of every 1,000 "football exposures" (games or practices in which an individual player participated) resulted in injury.

Wrestling was the next most dangerous sport for boys (2.5 injuries per 1,000 practices or matches), followed by soccer (2.43). Basketball, volleyball, baseball, and softball all had injury rates of fewer than 2 per 1,000 exposures.

FYI to parents of young footballers: The riskiest positions to play are running back and linebacker. More injuries were sustained on running plays than passing plays. Running plays also led to the majority of concussions and season-ending injuries.

The study cited by the Journal article listed soccer as the most dangerous sport for girls (2.36 injuries per 1,000 exposures), closely followed by basketball (2.01), and very low injury rates for most other surveyed sports. Interestingly, while female basketball players had overall injury rates only slightly higher than boys, they were almost four times as likely as boys to suffer anterior cruciate ligament knee injuries.

The data from this survey are useful as far as they go, but they leave out a category of serious athletic activity that involves more than 95,000 girls each year: cheerleading.

It's a major omission because, judging from a recent annual report from the National Center for Catastrophic Sports Injury Research, cheerleading may be, on a minute-for-minute basis, the riskiest athletic activity of all for high school girls. Perhaps even more than the ultra-maniac exertions of their football-playing classmates.

Even though many more girls play — and are injured in — team sports such as basketball and soccer, the report noted that high school cheerleading accounted for almost two-thirds (65.1%) of all "catastrophic" sports injuries suffered by high school girls over the past 25 years.

Between 1982 and 2007, 103 American girls suffered 103 fatal, disabling, or other very serious injuries. Sixty-seven of these deaths resulted from cheerleading, followed by gymnastics (9) and track (7).

Center director Frederick O.

Mueller, Ph.D., explained that cheerleading has become more dangerous in recent years, due largely to the increase in "gymnastic-type stunts."

Catastrophic injuries to male cheerleaders are less common, partly because fewer boys than girls participate each year (only about 2,150 in recent years), and partly because the stunts they perform are different.

The Center's study was independent of the one reported in the Journal of Sports Medicine, so it didn't calculate cheerleading injuries on a per-1,000-exposures basis. Nor did it provide a cumulative statistic incorporating all cheerleading injuries, serious and minor. However, its raw figures do make a powerful case that the types of injuries suffered by cheerleaders often are more serious than those seen in, for example, soccer.

Take a Deep Breath...

Despite these eye-opening statistics, parents shouldn't feel compelled to bar their children from athletic participation — even in higher risk activities such as football or cheerleading. The National Athletic Trainers' Association website (www.nata.org/consumer/injuryinfo/minimizingrisks.htm) offers a wealth of advice to help parents, coaches, school administrators, and trainers reduce injury risk. Just a few of the dozens of topics covered include nutrition, training approaches, medical emergency response plans, and safer playing techniques.

Parents of aspiring cheerleaders also may wish to speak with their schools' cheerleading instructors to find out what kinds of techniques they like to teach.

These steps won't eliminate the inherent hazards of athletic competition, but they should go a long way toward helping parents function more as fans than worrywarts.

Region IIIA Track Meet this weekend

The Muenster Hornets and Lady Hornets will finally get to continue their track season after a two week "swine flu" delay. The meet originally scheduled for May 1 and 2 in Nacogdoches was rescheduled for May 15 and 16 at Palestine ISD.

Alex York will be the first from Muenster to compete as the pole vault begins Friday at noon. Demi Koelzer (long jump) along with Jeremy Lutkenhaus and Taylor Klement (shot put) start at 1 p.m.

Leaha Smith will be the first to pace the track with the running final of the 3200m at 3 p.m. Preliminary races start at 3:30 p.m. with the girls 400m relay team of Delana Sicking, Michelle Henscheid, Jackie Klement, and Sam Endres. Emily Hellman will attempt to make the finals in the 800m, Eric Hellman in the 110m hurdles, and Demi Koelzer in the 100m dash.

Saturday's action begins at 9 a.m. to finish the field events. Michelle Henscheid will compete in the triple jump. Henscheid will also take part in the high jump along with Shaina Felderhoff. Taylor Klement, Jeremy Lutkenhaus, and Matt Flusche will all be at the discus ring.

Final running events begin at 1 p.m. for those qualifying. At 2:40, Emily Hellman and Leaha Smith will take to the track for the 1600m run final.

The State Track and Field Meet is scheduled for June 5 and 6 in Austin.

Texas Parks and Wildlife looking for dove leases

Attention landowners: Looking for some extra money and got a weedy field not in production or being rested this fall?

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Public Dove Hunting Program is not only an opportunity for hunters, but it is also an opportunity for landowners to make some extra money by leasing the hunting rights for dove and other small game to TPWD.

"We are looking for properties that are at least 50 or more acres where hunting is legal, with access, food, water and cover to attract dove," said Kelly Edmiston with TPWD's public hunting program. "Ideal sites have a good food source such as grain crops; sunflowers, croton (goat weeds), water, or that have become recently fallowed."

Additionally, each tract must have a public access point where hunters can park their vehicles, from which they will walk to the hunting area.

Temporary signs will clearly identify property boundaries. Game wardens and other departmental staff will monitor the units to ensure compliance with all regulations. Edmiston said most entrance points are designated for parking to protect the private property and reserve the maximum acreage for actual hunting activities.

This is a short-termed lease usually for 45 to 60 days in length - the equivalent of the first split of the dove season. Not everyone with a hunting license is allowed legal access to these short-term lease lands. Only those hunters who purchase the $48 Annual Public Hunting Permit (approximately 31,000 are sold annually statewide) from TPWD are allowed to hunt and only at times the area is open to hunting under the terms of the contract.

Price per acre is dependent on size, habitat, game species, and hunt dates included. Location is also very important. They would like to find areas that are along the corridors of interstates 35, 45, 10, and 20 within about 100 miles of major urban areas.

More information about this program, locating your local wildlife biologist or game warden can be found by visiting: http://www.tpwd.state.tx.us/landwater/land/private/hunt/small\_game/ or calling Wildlife Information at 512/389-4505.

HEAD TO RAY ROBERTS LAKE FOR FREE FISHING

Parents looking to save a few dollars by vacationing closer to home this summer might consider taking their youngsters to a nearby Texas state park, where they can try their luck at hooking a fish or two without worrying about needing a fishing license to do so. And, if you're looking for how-to instruction and structured activities for your young angler, or simply want to brush up on your own fishing skills, more than a dozen state parks this summer are hosting special family fishing events.

One of this year's participating parks is Ray Roberts Lake State Park in north Texas, which has already held a couple of family fishing events and has two "Fish On!" events set for May 16 at the Isle Du Bois unit (9 a.m.-1 p.m.) and June 13 (8 a.m.-noon) at the Johnson Branch unit.

At the Ray Roberts Lake fishing events, children learn the basics of fishing from park rangers and volunteers, and can try their luck at landing a fish, some for the very first time. Last year, Vaughan says, an 11-year-old participant caught a Junior Angler-record bluegill. The Ray Roberts Lake Rotary Club will serve free hot dogs and sponsor drawings for door prizes. Fishing tackle and bait will be provided or participants can bring their own.

Lady Knights team prepares for Area

With UIL and rain delays, the Lindsay Lady Knights finally got in a warm-up game before the Area playoff contest. As District Champions, Lindsay got a first round bye on the playoff bracket. A practice game was played last week against 2A Tom Bean, with the Lady Knights coming up short 5-4 against the Lady Cats.

Coach Robin Hess noted that a costly error in the top of the 6th scored 2 runs, putting the Lady Cats in the lead. The Lady Knights committed 7 errors.

"This was a good warm-up game for us," Coach Hess added. "The girls played hard and I am proud of their effort."

Getting home were Alyx Ethington, Rane Morrison (for Katie Dieter), Taylor Atkins, and Beverly Knabe. Natalie Rose got 9 pop outs, Bethani Eberhart 3 assists, and single hits by Rose Hermes and Lucinda Krahl. Ethington was the starting pitcher, facing 16 bat-

Cattle theft bill passes Legislature

The Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association (TSCRA) applauded the Texas Legislature May 12 for their final approval of a bill to increase the penalty for livestock theft in Texas. SB 1163, introduced by Senator Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) and Representative Lois Kolkhorst (R-Brenham), unanimously passed the House, and is now on its way to the Governor where it will be signed into law or vetoed.

"Texas is the number one cattle producing state in the nation, but the penalty for cattle theft in Texas is more lenient than the neighboring states of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Louisiana," said TSCRA President Dave Scott, Richmond.

"Cattle theft in Texas has more than doubled during the past year. To protect this $15 billion a year industry, Texas needs a stricter penalty. SB 1163 does that by increasing the penalty for cattle theft from a state jail felony to a third degree felony," Scott continued.

In 2007, 2,400 head of cattle were reported stolen to the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association. In 2008, that number jumped to 6,404. Under current law, theft of less than 10 head of cattle, horses, or exotic wildlife is a state jail felony.

Prior to 1993, livestock theft was classified as a third degree felony. In 1993, the Texas Legislature created the State Jail Felony category, also known as a fourth degree felony. Livestock theft has risen since the law was changed in 1993, largely due to the number of repeat offenders who are let out on state jail felony probation.

Board to help wildfire risks

As severe drought conditions continue to scorch pasture lands and deplete water supplies across Texas, the Prescribed Burning Board, established within the Texas Department of Agriculture, recently created new licensing categories that allow more individuals to become licensed as certified prescribed burn managers. This action will in turn increase the number of prescribed burns and ultimately help reduce the threat of wildfires.

With the Board's recent action, applicants can apply to become a commercial certified prescribed burn manager (CCPBM) or a private certified prescribed burn manager (PCPBM). The latter is a newly created category that is more economically feasible for individual landowners who are only focused on managing their own property. The new license allows the private permit holder to burn only his land or that of his employer.

Individuals seeking private certification must meet the same experience and training requirements as those who are commercially certified. However, this new category allows individuals to submit their existing insurance policies for consideration to satisfy insurance requirements.

"Prescribed burns are the best tools to prevent wildfires," Ag Commissioner Staples said. "These changes will allow landowners to better manage land across the state and, at the same time, help reduce the risk of potential wildfires, which risk the lives of our citizens and damage communities, crops, livestock, and wildlife. An added bonus is the improved habitat conditions for wildlife."

Ag briefs

75.7 million acres of soybeans were planted in the U.S. in 2008. 74.6 were harvested, averaging 39.6 bushels per acre. 2.9 billion bushels were harvested and sold for an average price of $9.25 per bushel.

Five things that can make a soil sample test false: sample in compacted soil, failure to adjust sample to growing field size, not knowing field's production history, sample from uneven fertilizer spread, and using a "cheap" test.

TDA market recap

For the week ending May 9, feeder cattle price trends at Texas auctions were mixed, with most locations steady to $5 higher per hundredweight and some steady to $2 lower.

Fed cattle prices were lower following a drop in beef values.

Corn and wheat were higher because of concerns about planting progress in the Midwest, with added support from higher crude oil prices.

As for futures markets, feeder cattle, finished cattle, cotton, wheat, and corn ended the week higher, while lumber was lower. Some locations in East Texas recorded up to six inches of rain last week, but most other areas reported little to no rainfall.

Winter wheat is showing evidence of freeze damage and the dry growing season as the crop remains in mostly very poor to poor condition. Harvest is underway in South Texas.

Corn is being planted on the High Plains and is tasseling in South Texas. 80% of the state's corn acreage is planted, compared to 89% on average by this date. Recent rains have improved pastures in many areas, but many remain in poor to very poor condition.

Want to know how close the lightning is?

Use your watch and time the interval between the flash of lightning and the sound of thunder. Thunder travels about a mile every five seconds (or roughly 1,000 feet per second). If it takes 10 seconds for the sound to reach you after a flash, the storm is two miles away. If the interval becomes shorter, the storm is drawing closer.

COUNTY AGENT REPORT

WAYNE BECKER
COOKE COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE

Pecan nut casebearer

Pecan producers are always interested in the migration of the most economically devastating pecan pest, the pecan nut casebearer. This moth lays eggs on the pecan nutlet. Once hatched, the larvae burrow into the nutlet which will lead to loss of production.

May 4, pecan nut casebearers were trapped in Gainesville. Recommendations are for orchard managers to begin scouting the orchard for casebearer eggs seven to 10 days after the first pecan nut casebearer moths are captured in the pheromone traps. Trap catches cannot be used to predict the threat of damage by casebearer larvae or the need to apply an insecticide. For this reason, you need to scout nutlets closely for eggs and nut entry.

Use the sampling plan described at: <http://pecankernel.tamu.edu/> to determine if an infestation is damaging enough to justify an insecticide application.

Ants in the home

In nature, ants are generally considered to be beneficial insects. But when they invade a home, ants can be a nuisance. To rid your home of ants, you must eliminate the colonies or nests. Some treatments, such as insecticides sprayed on ant trails, kill only a few foraging worker ants. They do not eliminate colonies.

Foraging ants may return to nests indoors or outdoors. You may see the workers entering and leaving the house using "highways" such as the edges of buildings, borders around landscape beds, wires, fences, hoses, and plumbing systems. If possible, follow them to their outdoor nests. Unfortunately, you won't be able to see most indoor nests because they are in wall voids or underneath slabs. But knowing the ants are nesting only indoors will keep you from making unnecessary and ineffective outdoor treatments. These observations take time, but they are worth the effort because you will know how to treat the ants effectively.

Indiscriminately spraying insecticide on foraging ants or around your home will do little good.

To locate the nest, look for ants entering holes, going under rocks or lumber, look around the foundation of the house, or in nearby trees. Once you have found the nest, treat it with an approved insecticide spray.

If you can't find a nest, use a commercial bait designed for ants, or make your own. Commercial baits often come in plastic stations. Be sure to keep the stations clean and handle them only after washing your hands. Ants are repelled by many odors, including tobacco and some cleaning products. If one type of station does not seem to attract ants, try another kind. Different kinds of ants prefer different kinds of foods. Once the ants begin to feed, do not disturb or spray them. These ants are carrying toxic food back to the nest.

A simple homemade bait can be prepared using boric acid, by mixing one teaspoon of boric acid with one cup of food, such as jelly or peanut butter (adding more reduces effectiveness). Remember that although boric acid is not dangerous to handle, it can be toxic if eaten. Keep it clearly labeled and away from food containers to avoid accidents.

New phorid fly species turns red imported fire ants into 'zombies'

Zombie fire ants may not sound like a cool thing, but wait a minute, said a Texas AgriLife Extension Service expert. On April 29, on the grounds of the Texas AgriLife Research and Extension Center at Overton in East Texas, Dr. Scott Ludwig released fire ants infected with a new type of phorid fly, a minuscule parasite that only preys on red imported fire ants.

The infected ants will soon exhibit some very bizarre behavior, he said.

"First they become zombies, their movements under the control of the parasite. Then their heads fall off and the parasite emerges," said Ludwig, AgriLife Extension integrated pest management specialist.

Previously released phorid flies only preyed on ants in disturbed mounds. In contrast, the species, Pseudacteon obtusus, that Ludwig released in April is attracted to foraging red imported fire ants and not-disturbed mounds. Which is even better, he said, as attacks of ants are not dependent upon the mounds being disturbed. The "zombified" fire ant is made to wander about 55 yards away from the mound to die.

"The parasite does this so it can complete development without being detected and attacked by the fire ant colony," Ludwig said. "By making their hosts wander away, the parasite is insuring its survival."

As with the new species, the previously released phorid fly species in Texas only attacks red imported fire ants. They inject their eggs into their bodies. In response, fire ants withdraw to their underground nests and reduce their foraging range, he said.

Once established, it was hoped that earlier releases of phorid flies would spread beyond the original release sites, and there has been evidence that they have. "Pseudacteon tricuspis was first released near Austin in 1995. From 2003 to 2006, it spread over 10,000 square miles," Ludwig said. "The second species, P. curvatus, was established 2004 and is beginning its spread."

The parasite isn't attracted to native ant species, he emphasized.

"We're hoping the new parasite will reduce the foraging of fire ants, and thereby allow our native ants to regain some footing," he said.

The release was part of the Texas Imported Fire Ant Research and Management Project.

"The project was initiated in 1997 as a result of the Texas Legislature funding an exceptional item requested by Texas AgriLife Research," Ludwig said. "The project's goals are the management of imported fire ant to below economic levels on agricultural lands and to eliminate the imported fire ant as a nuisance or health threat in urban environments."

The phorid flies infesting the fire ants Ludwig released were raised by Dr. Lawrence Gilbert, director of the Brackenridge Field Laboratory at the University of Texas at Austin.

"UT researchers have taken the lead on phorid fly research in the state," Ludwig said.

More information on the project and fire ant research can be found at <http://web.biosci.utexas.edu/fireant/index.html> or <http://fireants.tamu.edu/>.

The new species was previously released in 2007 only in South Texas, where it was established but did not spread. "It may not have spread because of the drought," he said.

Ludwig's release was the first in East Texas. In 2010, he plans to set out traps baited with live red imported fire ants to determine if and how rapidly the phorid fly has spread.

Earlier data suggests they can spread 25 miles a year through wind-assisted dispersion," he said.
