

Consolidation Plan Meets Opposition

Linn Almost Evenly Divided On Issue

Petitions for Van Slyke-Hays, Muenster-Bailey Mergers Also Delayed

What will happen in current efforts to consolidate the Bailey and Linn school districts with Muenster is still open to anybody's guess. Petitions taken to both of the districts a week ago are each a few names short of having the required number of signatures. In either case a majority of the qualified voters would be necessary. Similar petitions circulated here have the required number of signatures but will not be submitted to the county judge unless and until the Bailey and Linn petitions are completed.

Another proposed consolidation in this vicinity seems to be facing similar opposition, according to a report from the county court early this week before had not at that time been submitted with the required number of endorsements from Hays and Van Slyke.

Arthur Hellman, circulating the petition at Linn, found enthusiastic support among those whose children now attend the Muenster parochial school. All of them are interested in eliminating present taxes and securing a transportation system. The opposing group prefers holding the district together in spite of tax, maintaining its lower grades and transferring advanced students to other schools. Some concern was expressed about the possible removal of the school house, which serves also as a community meeting house, and the possibility that the Muenster school would begin a building program and impose even higher taxes than now prevail. Because of all the conflicting opinions, Hellman said, the election ought to be postponed long enough to permit thorough and cool consideration.

Al Fleitman is more optimistic about the success of the petition he is circulating in the Bailey district. Because of bad roads during the rainy days he saw only a limited number of voters and met no opposition whatever.

No reports have reached here as to the cause of the delay at Hays and Van Slyke.

C. K. WALSH WARNS KNIGHTS AGAINST SUBVERSIVE FORCES

C. K. Walsh of Wichita Falls, making his final appearance here Sunday as state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, urged members of the sixty district to observe these troubled times with a strong fidelity to God and country and a continued cooperation with state and supreme councils of the order.

Mr. Walsh was replaced as state deputy by F. J. Kinne of Austin at an election held during the recent K of C convention. The change becomes effective July 1.

He appeared here at the special invitation of Father Francis Zimmerer, Muenster grand knight. His subject was "Catholic Action." Other counsels represented at the meeting were Gainesville, Sherman and Pilot Point.

Reading from a prepared script the state deputy briefly reviewed activities during his four years in office and thanked the district for its fine cooperation. Then he called attention to subversive elements that loom today as ominous threats to both the church and the nation.

For the Knights of Columbus, he said, the best form of combat is Catholic Action—"to know your religion and live it from day to day," which, he explained, implies the observance of virtues that make men better Christians and better citizens, and also a cooperation with local and superior councils in their activities in behalf of church and state.

A supplementary part of his address concerned recent agitations by a religious sect under the leadership of Judge Rutherford. Walsh read newspaper accounts of the sect's activity in several cities and read from the sect's official publication passages that are antagonistic to Christian religions and American government.

"That organization's chief enemy is being directed toward the overthrow of the Catholic Church, and its principal opposition has come from the church," the speaker said, "but federal authorities have begun investigating, and may soon begin a series of prosecutions. In the meantime a layman's best defense is to live in such a way as to discredit all the organization's fanatical charges."

John Temple was confined to his home during the weekend with a recurrence of sciatic rheumatism.

HITLER'S FLAME-THROWING TANKS

Flame-throwing tanks Hitler is reported to have been using in the German drive across northern France to the Channel ports may be the new secret weapon so often mentioned by the Nazis.

Van Zandt Is Speaker At Graduation

Senator Olan Van Zandt of Tioga was the principal speaker here Wednesday night when graduates of the Muenster High School held commencement exercises at the parish hall.

The program was simple and impressive on a stage adorned with a profusion of flowers. Members of the Senior class, each attended by a child carrying a diploma, the Junior class, and graduates of the grade department marched up the center aisle to the stage while Virginia Renfro played the processional at the piano, after which the group sang "God Bless America."

Each of the three high school graduates had a part in the ceremony, Bernice Kathman giving the Salutatory address, Margaret Martin a class prophecy and Leonard Knabe, the valedictory. Virgil Lee Welch, principal, introduced the speaker and I. A. Schoech, chairman of the school board presented diplomas. Prior to the recessional, Billie Geneva Robinson sang the farewell solo and was accompanied in the chorus by the other pupils.

Those receiving the grade department diplomas were Herman Eberhart and J. D. Harmon.

Speaking on Citizenship and Democracy, Senator Van Zandt stressed the need of education in developing alert, responsible citizens, and especially emphasized the importance of building sound character to guarantee proper use of the knowledge acquired. His text was the famous quotation of the pioneer Texan, Mirabeau B. Lamar, "The cultivated mind guided by virtue is the guardian genius of democracy and the only safeguard free men require." He emphasized the quotation by repeating it several times during his address.

Education and virtue, he assured, contribute toward good citizenship in that they give the answers to this or any nation's most important problems, the prevention of crime and preservation of a harmonious form of government.

CROP PROSPECT IS GOOD AFTER SERIES OF HEAVY SHOWERS

A clear sky Wednesday offered some hope that the series of rains during the previous week had finally spent themselves and would permit farmers to resume field activity. Row crops of all kinds are badly in need of cultivation and many grain crops will be ready for binders by the end of this week.

Farmers generally are of the opinion that the excessive moisture will not cause serious losses provided favorable weather prevails for the next few weeks. Except in the hallowed area, only a small percentage of grain is down.

Optimism is rising somewhat in the hallowed area also. At the outer edges of the storm's path there seems to be enough grain to justify harvesting. Very few lost all of their crop.

Row crops are reported to be recovering satisfactorily even through the hardest hit path. Corn that was badly stripped is putting on new leaves, and, with all the moisture that fell since, has a chance to develop into a fair crop. Most rain that fell since the storm early last week was slow enough to penetrate well. The moisture condition is now ideal.

SEWER BONDS AVAILABLE

Bonds issued by the city to raise funds for installing the sewer system are now on hand at the Muenster State Bank, Mayor Ben Seyler stated Wednesday. He urges that every person interested in buying the bonds inquire about details at the bank as soon as possible.

The bonds are available in $500 and $1,000 denominations and carry an interest of 4 1/2 per cent payable semi-annually.

TO RESCUE STRANDED AMERICANS

NEW YORK.—Clearly marked as a neutral vessel the liner President Roosevelt sailed from New York the end of last week, bound for Galway, Ireland, to bring back American citizens stranded in the war zone. The ship can accommodate about 1,000 passengers. All belligerent governments have been notified that the ship will proceed to Ireland to repatriate Americans and that the ship will be fully identified, lighted at night, unarmed, carry no cargo and will travel without convoy.

Boys, Girls' Softball Teams of Pilot Point Will Play Here Sunday

If the weather is OK Muenster softballers will meet Pilot Point here Sunday afternoon in a doubleheader program, Walter Becker, captain, revealed this week. One will be a boys' game, the other a girls' game, and both are expected to revive a keen rivalry that developed during several contests last year. Muenster led in that series but enters this season somewhat handicapped by the loss of several old regulars. No word has been received concerning this year's strength on the Pilot Point team.

The usual schedule of eight games this week has been interrupted by frequent rains. The last played was that with Nocona last Friday night in which the local boys won easily 18 to 6 and brought their average up to 5.00. Two nights before they bested Mallard to break the losing streak in their previous three games. Their season's score to date is four wins and four losses.

No official league nor official schedule has been released but teams now participating in a series of games under the local floodlights are Muenster, Mallard, Caps Corner, Bulcher, Dennis, and a team from Bowie.

Census Report Forms Available For Those Who Were Overlooked

A final opportunity for persons overlooked in the recent official census enumeration was offered here this week by Cliff Deaton of Wichita Falls, member of the census bureau of the Department of Commerce.

It is not likely that a large number was missed, he said, but the federal government is anxious to have its record correct, and therefore appeals to everyone to make sure his name has been listed.

He left census blanks at the Muenster State Bank and the Enterprise. Persons not found by the regular enumerator are asked to fill out one of those forms at the earliest possible date.

Deaton disclosed that four names have been added to Muenster's list since the census, bringing the official total up to 599.

MUENSTERITES FINISH COMMERCIAL COURSES

Miss Marjorie Pazel and Wilmer Luke of this city were among students graduating from St. Mary's School in Gainesville Sunday evening when commencement exercises were held at the church. They received diplomas for completing commercial courses.

Muensterites attending the exercises were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Luke, Harold and Miss Dorothy Mae Luke, Mrs. Carra Pazel and son, Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Pazel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hess, Misses Anselma Pazel, Harriet Schoech and Myrtle Frisak.

5 BOWLING TEAMS ORGANIZE, TO DRAW UP LEAGUE SCHEDULE

With five teams already organized and more of them apparently ready to organize in the near future, bowling definitely takes the leading place in Muenster's sport limelight. There have been two contests to date and the next is scheduled for this Thursday night.

Last week the FMA squeezed out 1411 to 1345 in a three game series with Herr Motor Company. Tuesday night it lost 1725 to 1493 to the Case Eagles of Gainesville. In Thursday's game the Warple-Spinner Teamites, another team that has just organized and issued challenge to the HCl Carriers consisting of C. M. and Frank Walterscheid and other members of their concrete and brick laying crew.

According to present plans the alleys will be reserved two or three nights a week for league play. Other nights it is open to anyone.

While enthusiasm is strong the only difficulty at the alley is waiting for a chance to play. Ever since it was opened three weeks ago men have been standing in line every night.

Knights Hear Report On State Convention

A comprehensive report by Father Francis Zimmerer and proceedings of the K of C convention at Corpus Christi featured a regular meeting of the Muenster Knights of Columbus Wednesday. His report was supplemented by brief reports from Herbert Meurer and J. M. Weinzapfel.

A proposal to put finishing touches on the recently installed bowling alley received unanimous approval from the council. In the near future, probably next week, the alley will be temporarily closed while it is sanded and shined and the balls dressed down to remove blisters.

In closing the meeting Father Francis urged an especially large attendance next week for the annual election of council officers.

Annual Production of Milk in Texas Would Fill Lake Dallas

COLLEGE STATION.—Enough milk to fill Lake Dallas—513,000,000 gallons—was produced on Texas farms in 1939. While this seems like a large amount, W. V. Maddox, dairy manufacturing specialist for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, says that if all Texas' 6,122,000 people drank 91 gallons of milk during the year as recommended in the Texas Food Standard, production would have to be increased by nearly 50,000,000 gallons.

$123.16 Donated In Red Cross War Relief Fund Drive

Community's Quota Had Been Set At $75

Local Purse Far Surpasses Proportional Share In County's $1,000 Quota

Muenster far surpassed its quota in the current Red Cross drive for war relief funds. On completing her tour over the community, Mrs. G. H. Hellman, solicitor, reported Tuesday that the total purse collected is $123.16.

County Red Cross Chairman F. X. Schad and his assistant, Phil Teague, were enthusiastic over the generous manner of Muenster's response to the district's call. When told that Cooke county's quota in the 10 million dollar national drive was $1,000, they expressed the hope that Muenster would give about $75 as it did in the annual Red Cross membership drive last fall. Considering this community's small percentage of the county's population $75 was regarded as well over its proportional share.

Other parts of the county are likewise making a splendid showing in this drive, Mr. Schad stated. Public response, which was very discouraging during the first week when donors were expected to bring their

ENTERS CONTEST

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Vivacious, petite, blue-eyed, and brown haired airline Stewardess Margaret Mellon will compete for the title of "Miss American Aviation" at the 10th Annual Air Carnival, Birmingham, June 1 and 2. Attractiveness, poise, charm, personality and intelligence are points of consideration. No professional models can compete for the 1940 title.

TUESDAY CEREMONY UNITES RAY VOGEL, THERESA STOFFELS

Solemn and impressive church services Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock united Miss Theresa Stoffels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Stoffels, and Ray Vogel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Vogel. Rev. Frowin Koerd, pastor of Sacred Heart church, performed the ceremony and officiated at the nuptial high mass.

Anthony Luke, church organist, gave the wedding processional as the bride party entered the church. "Missa Exultet" a liturgical mass by Franz Witt, was beautifully sung by parochial high school boys and girls with their instructor, Sister Leonarda, at the pipe organ. Immediately after the mass Sacramental Benediction was given.

The bride was attractive in a floor-length frock of white satin. It featured a high collar with a sweet heart neckline edged with lace, long fitted sleeves and crystal buttons down the back to the waist. Her full length veil of illusion was edged with lace and was held in place with a garland of valley lilies. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of white carnations and fern. She wore as her only ornaments, a gold chain and cross, gifts from the bridegroom.

Miss Lucille Cler, a cousin of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of white organza over pink taffeta. It was made with a bouffant skirt and was girded at the natural waist-line with a sash of pink satin. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations and her accessories were of white.

Albert Stoffels, brother of the bride, was best man for Mr. Vogel. Following the church rites, members of the bride party were guests at a wedding breakfast in the bride's home. The bride's table was decorated in the traditional nuptial theme of all white and was centered with a three tiered, decorated cake.

At noon dinner was served to a large number of relatives and close friends and during the afternoon an informal reception honored the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Vogel are at home on the Lena Kleiss farm, three miles southwest of Muenster. Both are popular young people of this community where they were born and reared. He is employed by E. A. Felker, road commissioner of Precinct three.

STUDENTS COME HOME FOR SUMMER HOLIDAYS

Local young people who attended school away from home during the past term are beginning to return for the summer holidays. Misses Dorothy Mae Luke, Mary Elizabeth Endres and Dora Weinzapfel returned from Jonesboro, Ark., during the weekend. Robert Weinzapfel of San Antonio arrived home Monday and Miss Lorena Fisher of Fort Worth returned Tuesday.

Ray Voth of Atchison, Kansas, the first to return, is here since last Friday. Miss Rita Voth, also of Atchison, will be home next week. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Voth, will drive there to accompany her to Muenster.

PAROCHIAL EIGHTH GRADE PUPILS GET DIPLOMAS SUNDAY

Graduation exercises for eighth grade pupils of Sacred Heart school were held in the parish hall Sunday evening. A pleasing program, given in connection with the commencement exercises, was under the direction of Sister Lucy, teacher of the class.

The program opened with a musical selection by the school orchestra which was followed with a song by the graduates. Frank Hennigan, class president, gave the salutatory address, and a play in 7 scenes, entitled "Round the Clock with Claire," was then presented.

After the drama, Father Frowin awarded prizes for proficiency at holy mass and at school to 106 children. Of these 14 were at mass every day during the term. The minimum number of mass attendances to qualify for a prize is 113. Each child received a medal of St. Benedict on a chain. In addition, the 14 perfect attendance pupils were decorated with corsages of gold flowers.

Wilfred Walterscheid acknowledged the gifts, in behalf of the prom graduates, after which Urban Rohmer gave a brief story of Saint Benedict and his medal and the stage ensemble sang a song.

A speech in connection with the presentation of the class gift was made by Leo Felderhoff, and Rosalie Henschel recited the acceptance lines. This year's request to the school is a pictorial encyclopedia, entitled, "Compton's Library," in 10 volumes.

Alma Marie Luke delivered the valedictory address after which Father Frowin presented diplomas to 9 boys and 14 girls who have completed eight years of grammar school. Imelda Felderhoff was the last to receive her diploma and as it was handed to her she was presented also with a lovely statuette as a reward for making the highest scholastic average and for excellent conduct. The compliment came as a complete surprise to the recipient.

The program was brought to a close with the graduates' class song. The stage setting was beautiful with flowers and lights and the girl graduates wore white frocks.

The play given during the evening was an unusual production dramatizing a day in the life of a girl. Written by Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J., and entitled "Around the Clock," it depicted the leading character's activities from rising until retiring while a guardian angel recorded all her good deeds and a devil recorded her faults. It took place on a double stage, the characters occupying one side and the two spirits occupying the other.

Members of the cast were Juanita Weinzapfel, Geneva Gremminger, Johnny Anne Seyler, Imelda Felderhoff, Mary Anne Felderhoff, Alma Marie Luke, Mary Anne Felter, Clara Henschel, Werner Henschel, Della Rose Endres, Helen Henschel, Gladys Wilde and Dorothy Mae Yosten.

After presenting diplomas Father Frowin spoke briefly congratulating the graduates and praising the mothers for their efforts in sending the children in time for mass. He concluded by saying that as long as there are good mothers there will be good citizens and good future generations.

CHAPTER XIII

"But Aunt Olympia—would he do that?" Adele stammered. And her face was so white and anguished, her wide eyes had turned to such midnight darkness, that Aunt Olympia's heart went out to her.

"It's his job, my dear, and a job's a job."

Hilda appeared in the door. "It's Mr. Hardesty, looking like the wrath of God and if he didn't sleep in those clothes then I'm no laundress."

Adele started swiftly for the side door.

"Don't go, my dear," said the Senator gently. "It's always good politics to hear both sides."

Adele turned obediently and went to the window and stood with her back to the room, to the door Len Hardesty would enter, staring out into the garden with eyes that said nothing. Helen and Limpy stood up, rigid, white of face, as Len Hardesty came in. Aunt Olympia poured herself a cup of coffee. The Senator patted his lips with a napkin, though he had eaten nothing.

"Hello, Len," he said. "Bring some hot coffee, Hilda. Sit down, Len."

"The wrath of God" well described him. He was pale. He had not shaved. His eyes were black and dark-circled. He glanced just once at Adele's slim back silhouetted against the windows.

"Well, there's the devil to pay now," he said dejectedly.

"Well, pay him!" said Olympia crisply. "You've got your fingers on his purse-strings, haven't you?"

"Oh, I'm paying and don't think I'm not," he said doggedly. "Senator, I—I give you my word, I never anticipated this."

"Was it a nightmare?" asked Aunt Olympia.

"Oh, I know I should have realized I was stirring up a hornet's nest, but we've been in such a damned hole over the whole mess—I just thought it would be one more jack-in-the-box from the bag of tricks."

"You wrote that speech, Len Hardesty, and don't you deny it."

"I don't deny it. And that's all I do. I thought maybe it would stir up a little local fuss and maybe entice a few rabidly Americanistic partisans, and God knows we need them. I thought it would shut the Senator up on subversive activities, which the Governor doesn't know a tinker's damn about."

"If that's all you did, how about these papers?" demanded Aunt Olympia.

"The dirty skunk! d'Allotti, I mean. It suddenly dawned on him that if he could drag you into it, Senator, you'd get him out to clear your own skirts. Use your pull with the administration. He called the newsman after I left. A pal down there tipped me off and I flew back down. I've worked like a devil on it but I couldn't stop it."

"You'd better have a drink, Len," said the Senator kindly. "You look all in. Ring, Ollie."

"Scotch and soda," he said briefly. "You'd better have ham and eggs. Bring him some food, Hilda. After all, we can't starve snakes into it, very doorstep. Give us a bad press."

"It's not irreparable, even yet, Senator," said Len Hardesty. "Now if you had a good publicity man—like me, for instance—"

"He's on his way out here, now," said the Senator. "Cece, too. We phoned him."

"He'll work out the details. And if he's good enough, he can even make capital of it. Of course, he'll get you a nation-wide hook-up to answer the charges. He will not let you make any statements until you have spoken straight to the nation. He will have you start off by saying that from the beginning of time it has been the practice of cowards and curs to hide behind the skirts of a woman—preferably, a young and pretty woman."

"Now, in the second place, after holding him up to public scorn for trying to ease out behind a petticoat, you will adroitly mention that his purpose is to get you to use your influence to get him out of the jam."

"Get him out! I'd get him into the electric chair, if I could!"

"Work that in, in your own suave and diplomatic language. You will bring out that he was received at all the best houses in Washington, and if you meet a man at the home of the President or a cabinet member, you cannot very well ask if he is a spy. You'll use your record—which is okay, for I've been combing it myself. Of course, you can prove that Helen didn't show him any papers because you never took any home with you and they were locked up. This really should make a sort of martyr out of you and win you any number of votes. You know voters."

"But how about me?" asked Helen faintly. "What does it do to me, Len?"

Len looked at her. Helen looked more anguished, Aunt Olympia thought, than she had at the funeral so long ago.

"It's a tough break, Helen," he said. "You've just got to keep your head up and take it on the chin. He's using you as a cover-up and everybody will know it. You didn't tell him anything, and stick to it. You merely met him."

"She couldn't tell him anything confidential," said the Senator stoutly. "For I never told her anything. Most of it was so technical I didn't really understand it myself. I just believe we ought to have strong defense; and anything they said was for better defense, I was in favor of."

"Helen," said Len, diffidently, "do you mind—telling us about—the map you gave him?"

"Map! I never gave him a map!" "She couldn't! I haven't got a map myself."

"He says you gave him a map of our national defenses."

"She never had a map!" "He couldn't possibly mean that relief map of the United States, could he?—Don't you remember, Uncle Lancy? I asked you about it. He brought the map to show how vulnerable we are and I asked you."

"Was it your map, Helen?"

"Was it your map, Helen?" "No, he brought it. He marked all our vulnerable points with a red pencil. And I asked you, Uncle Lancy, and you said the Mexican border was defended, and the Atlantic seaboard had strings of defenses all across the country and that all the shipbuilding places were fortified, and Boston and Manhattan and Washington. Don't you remember? I marked them with a blue pencil."

"And you gave him the map?" "No. After we had it marked, he rolled it up to take along and I said

"Have you got it?" "Yes. It's up in my desk."

"Will you get it?" "Yes. Of course."

"Aunt Olympia turned to Limpy. "Do you feel better, darling? Do you want an aspirin?"

"No. I just want a good sharp stiletto with a poisoned point. Helen is so—good—"

"Sow the wind and reap the whirlwind," said Len moodily. "That's what I did."

"Well, experience is a good thing," said the Senator sympathetically. "I know I've learned a lot that way."

"Here is the map," said Helen. "See, Uncle Lancy? Gabriel drew the blue lines to show where we are vulnerable. I didn't know anything about it myself and you told me about defending the shipyards and the cities and the harbors—"

The Senator examined the map with two pairs of glasses. "Dear me, Helen, you did a very bad job of it," he said reprovingly. "You must have those forts 200 miles off. And those submarine bases—tch, tch, tch, tch."

"I didn't try to be accurate," said Helen. "I didn't know enough, in the first place. We weren't being technical about it. But when he was criticizing our unpreparedness, I just boastfully drew red lines around every city I could think of."

"Is anything of secret nature indicated on this map?" asked Len.

"Lord, no," said the Senator with unwonted profanity. "There's not only nothing secret; there's nothing right. I'm afraid I didn't make myself very clear, Helen."

"Yes, you did, Uncle Lancy; but you weren't trying to be explicit and I didn't think it made any difference whether I put the red marks north or south, or even if I missed the town entirely; we were laughing; it was just a joke—then" she added, pathetically.

"You can give photostatic copies of this map to the press," suggested Len Hardesty. "Not till after your speech. That's the highlight. And rest assured, the nation'll be on the air, from White House down to white wings. . . . It's more easily reproducible for you than for me," he said with another glance at Adele's silhouette before the window. "Well, I'll be getting along, Senator. I'm sorry. We're reduced to snatching at straws; I thought this was a straw and snatched at it; I didn't realize it was tied to dynamite."

The Senator held out his hand. "Good-by, Len. It was a bad break. You look thin. Doesn't Brother Wilkie see that you get three squares a day?"

"You look terrible," said Aunt Olympia cheerfully.

"You're a couple of swell sports," he said moodily. "You've ruined the whole campaign for me. Remember how I used to love campaigns. Not any more!"

It seemed to Aunt Olympia that she had been called upon that day to endure more than could reasonably be expected even of a President's wife. But the day was not over. She had no more than seen them all comfortably relaxed and settled down when Dave Cooper arrived with Cecil Dodd. Dave looked disconcerted, almost disheveled. Before he could say a word, Cecil Dodd crossed debonairly to Limpy's chair, smiling, and said:

"Hello, Limpy! I brought you a present!"

Aunt Olympia's backbone stiffened starchyly.

"A present for me, Cece? How nice!" said Limpy.

"Limpy's too young to be receiving presents," interrupted Aunt Olympia. "She's not of age yet."

"She's not too young to be receiving this," said Cecil Dodd. "This is a political present. Any Slopshire-for-Senator fan can receive political presents. Look, Limpy. It's a little Slopshire pin. I had it made to order."

"Let me see that pin!" said Olympia angrily. "What does it say on there? That doesn't look like Vote-for-Slopshire to me!"

"Oh, there wasn't room for all that!" explained Cecil Dodd. "I had to cut it down to Slopshire, or it wouldn't go on And I didn't think enamel would look good on platinum, so I just had it engraved."

"Look at this, Del," said Olympia. "If those are diamonds around the edge of it, Limpy can't have it till I pry them out."

"Aw, Uncle Lancy!" wailed Limpy.

The Senator put on his glasses. "They don't look like diamonds to me," he said firmly.

"They're brilliants," said Cecil hastily.

"Certainly," said the Senator. "I could see that. And if they are diamonds, they're only chip diamonds. Cece says they're brilliants."

"Well, what's a diamond but a brilliant?" demanded Aunt Olympia. "Rhinestones are brilliants," said Adele helpfully.

"Sure. Brilliant rhinestones!" corroborated Cecil Dodd.

"Del Slopshire—"

"Uncle-Lancy!" from Limpy. "I feel very much honored to have little Limpy flashing through the campaign in a Slopshire pin," said the Senator determinedly.

"Sure! Let me pin it on your shoulder, Limpy!"

Before the rapt eyes of the rest of the family, the outraged ones of Aunt Olympia, with Limpy smiling pleased approval, Cecil Dodd deftly attached the tiny pin to the shoulder of her frock and smiled down into her face.

"Lord, it's been lonesome," he said devoutly. "I thought we'd never get back."

"Lonesome!" boomed Aunt Olympia irritably. "Lonesome in the thick of a political campaign? Lonesome while the Senator is being accused of high treason and likely to be knifed at the polls if not strung from a gibbet? Of all times and places to be lonesome, that beats anything I ever heard!"

"I hope you didn't have a good time while I was gone," said Cecil. Limpy was slightly disconcerted. "A good time? Oh—I can't remember exactly what we did. . . . I know we had a lot of trouble. . . . No, we didn't have a good time at all, Cece."

"Put him to work," said Olympia, waving the Senator to take him away. "And if he's got money to go around buying platinum pins and—brilliants—we can cut down on our expenses by reducing his salary."

The Senator had no trouble taking care of the spy challenge. There was no one, either Democrat or Republican, who could seriously push the charge, for Gabriel d'Allotti had been received everywhere. The Senator did not stop with citing his record, virtually from the cradle to the trailer of '38, with documentary evidence to support his claims. He went further. He demanded a complete, inquisitorial investigation of the entire case, and wrote the Department of Justice offering himself to be a witness, along with every other member of his household from Hilda up.

America Builds FOR BETTER, EASIER LIVING

THE ALL-GAS HOME IS PREFERRED!

A survey of 76,900 new homes built in natural gas territory last year in America reveals that 92 per cent reported the use of natural gas for cooking; 95 per cent used natural gas for water heating; 88 per cent used natural gas for house heating, and 11 per cent reported the installation of new gas refrigerators.

This is magnificent evidence that today's gas household appliances are far superior in performance, smarter in appearance and more economical to operate.

Let this evidence guide you with your own building or modernizing for a home that provides easier, better living.

INTERNAL DEFENSE

While our nation is arming to the teeth to repel possible attacks from without, what is it doing to repel attacks from within? In the light of many recent developments that problem is fully as important as the stupendous defense program now receiving official consideration.

We have Hitler's own word that America is on his "want-list," also that America will be taken from within. That is old stuff. We heard it long before things actually started popping in Europe but disregarded it as a fantastic scheme that "could not happen here."

Nevertheless we are faced by the grim fact that it has happened elsewhere and is happening here today. The world knows today how the Norwegian invasion was simplified through "Trojan-horse" activity.

And now England is quaking in its boots for fear of near paralysis in its defense system when the German war machine starts jumping across the channel.

We face the same situation over here. Last week three foreign agents attempted to work openly in a South Texas town. Given the bum's rush by a group of infuriated citizens, they brazenly boasted that their organization is operating in every county of every state.

Martin Dies, Chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities, does not ignore the boasts of fifth-column power. Neither does he ignore reports that Nazi groups below the border are well organized.

America needs more G-Men or secret service men to do the kind of work the Gestapo does for Hitler. Give the enemies of this land the same kind of treatment that plotters receive from dictator nations.

Besides the G-Men we have use for an army of plain clothes soldiers sworn to defend this country against all fifth column activity. Every patriotic man and woman in America ought to volunteer for such service, keep alert to any subversive developments and report every case to proper authorities.

We must remember that Hitler has been remarkably accurate in his predictions to date. That puts a more significant meaning in his threat to take America through internal strife. It should serve as a warning that we must give up our typical American complacency and actually declare war on those agents who are now preparing to strike at us.

BE CHRISTIANS AND AMERICANS

Considering the borers from within, one can hardly overlook a sect of religious fanatics—or should they be called anti-religious fanatics?—who during the past several years have been lusting for the overthrow of all organized government and religion.

The sect, known as Judge Rutherford's Witnesses of Jehovah, is especially notorious for its attacks on the Catholic church, however, it leaves no doubt that it is also opposed to the other Christian religions and to democracy. It came up for special attention the past weekend when papers told of near riots in three Texas cities resulting from street sales of subversive literature.

Citizens resented the gospel of hate and became much more indignant when the fanatics expressed their contempt for the American flag and all it represents. In each case they were protected from public fury by officers. Paradoxical as it seems, our laws are so fair as to protect even those who seek to overthrow our nation.

There have been hints that Judge Rutherford and his fanatics may have to deal with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. No more worthy nor appropriate work could be taken up by the FBI. Rutherford, opposing religious freedom and advocating treason, is definitely a public enemy, more dangerous than our most vicious gangsters.

Of course this is not strictly a G-Man job. They are supposed to step in for actual arrests and prosecutions, but in the meantime every Christian and every American must become a defender of his creed and nationality. Thoughtful people must have the common sense to overlook our current bickering on religious, economic and political issues and realize that the principles by which we live are the most nearly perfect to be found in any land.

Whatever troubles are found in America today are caused by human failings, not by creeds nor constitution. If every American citizen respected the dictates of his religion and the constitution this land would be a Utopia. The subversive elements with their bigotry and treason could not get even a feeble foothold. But as it is there are millions who have received shabby treatment at the hands of men who profess to be good Christians and model citizens.

The first and most important step toward defending Christianity and Americanism is to live as Christians and Americans. Treason and hatred can never flourish among satisfied people.

What Others Say

TEMPLES OF BUSINESS

In twenty-eight words, Calvin Coolidge gave us the great American business ideal! He said: "The man who builds a factory builds a temple; the man who works there worships there; and to each is due not scorn and blame but reverence and praise."

The factories of America, with their millions of workers, their whirling machines and flashing wheels, do more than create products—they manufacture joy, health, education, freedom.

From these temples, American workmen receive in wages, measured by purchasing power, five times as much as the Italian, nearly three times as much as the German, and twice as much as the Englishman.

Because of these temples this is God's country!—Menard News.

A STORY IN SILVER

We don't see many silver dollars any more. They used to have a good comforting touch to the palm of the hand and a pocketful of silver was a fine thing to have.

The other day, though, a Midwestern company brought silver dollars back into circulation for a brief day of glory. It paid its whole payroll in silver dollars, in order to watch the way the industrial payroll circulated all through the community.

The results were enlightening for all concerned. As silver dollars passed across store counters, from hand and pocketbook to pocketbook, the community gained an entirely new conception of the important part that the industrial dollar plays in bringing prosperity and general well-being into a town where a factory is located.

Whether the plant's wages are paid in silver or paper money, the money circulates widely and does a lot of good. And when the example of a single town is repeated and multiplied all over the country, a new concept arises and a basic truth is emphasized: In the community or the nation as a whole, when industry prospers everyone prospers!—Gainesville Register.

"As yet there is nothing to worry about regarding civil and religious liberties in America. The people will see to that. But the preservation of private enterprise is essential. All of us live by that. Private enterprise is not only a matter of big industrial plants nor of little industrial plants. . . . Every man with a job lives by private enterprise unless he is working for the government, and the government itself lives by private enterprise—supported by taxation of private enterprise."—Shelby (N. C.) Star.

Confetti

By OON FETTE

In his Vignettes column of the Star-Telegram Otto Bordenkircher gives this department credit for enriching our language. Says he: "We are indebted to Confetti of the Muenster Enterprise for the correct term describing the filthy, spying tactics that precede the Nazi blitzkrieg. It's Luegenkrieg—The War of Lies."

You must have guessed on that one, Otto. Confetti isn't entitled to any credit for it. But you've got an idea there, it is a good word. Confetti wishes he had said it.

There's no mistake, though, about what follows here. Confetti is indebted to Vignette for this idea:

"We believe that to get full and exact justice, all chicken thieves should be tried before juries of farm women who have had experience raising chickens, nursing them through chickhood, fighting off preying rats and skunks. As a precaution it might be well for the judge to explain to such a jury that the law does not permit a death penalty for stealing chickens."

Perhaps that idea would apply quite well to any other thievery charge. Whenever a man is brought up for theft select a jury from men who have had experience with thieves. Once those fellows are convinced that a defendant is guilty they would slap a penalty on him that would really make him regret his taking ways. After which, it may be assumed, there would be a noticeable decrease in losses by theft.

A thief occupies about the lowest strata of human society. Respectable people take it for granted that a person must work in order to accumulate money or goods, and they resent being robbed of the fruits of their labors. The harder they worked for their prize the more they despise the one who took it from them.

Primitive civilization suggests how fundamentally mankind hates a crook. Among some savages the penalty for stealing is death. In our own pioneer history hanging was the accepted penalty for horsetealing whereas murder might be passed unchallenged if there seemed to be a fair fight.

Reader's Digest this month tells of a farmer's warning to thieves. It is this sign: "Anyone found prowling around my place at night will be found there the next morning."

Someone in New York tells us that automobiles in that city's downtown traffic average six miles an hour, whereas the horses and carriages of yesteryear used to average eleven and a half. There's a point in favor of the fellows who like to brag about the good old days, the horse and buggy days.

There are lots of other points pro and con that make a splendid argument on the subject. In Dobbin's time, for instance, the roads were rough or muddy—or both. There were few telephones or bath tubs, no picture shows, no radios or home refrigerators. There were few hospitals, and getting a doctor in case you were sick was a real problem. If you happened to have appendicitis the chances were a hundred to one against you.

On the other hand there were no "easy" payments, few foreclosures or bank failures and very little unemployment. Most things were cheaper and liver was free at the butcher shop. And best of all, there were no traffic accidents, no dictators, no isms, no blitzkriegs, no gangsters.

The argument sums up at about six one way and a half dozen the other. Thirty years ago a trip to town was worth planning in advance and a drive to the county seat was an event. We do those things on a moment's notice today but are not impressed by them. We used to get all excited about home talent plays, medicine shows and chautauquas. Today we see the best talent in the country perform on the screen and don't enjoy it any more, perhaps not so much, as our grandparents enjoyed the melodramas. The old timers had little opportunity to go places and do things, but at least they were't bored like our contemporaries are with the present day social whirl.

Modern Medical science is saving more lives while modern traffic is killing more. Means of enjoying life are more numerous and therefore give less intensive enjoyment. There used to be a lot more work to do but people didn't bother because they took it for granted. It all boils down to getting as much enjoyment as possible out of prevailing opportunities. And human nature hasn't changed although conditions have.

It's an endless argument without a solution. You may think more of the good old days. But that doesn't mean anything. The next fellow is just as correct in preferring the good new days.

LOOK DOLLAR BILL IN THE EYE

WASHINGTON.—The secret service has begun a five-year campaign to teach Americans to know their money—which means how to tell counterfeit from the real thing.

"There was a time," said Chief Frank J. Wilson, "when our people were losing $1,000,000 a year. This has been reduced to about $300,000. When the campaign is completed we hope the loss will be practically nothing."

The campaign will be carried into the schools and theaters by a movie, which features for the first time a real picture of real money.

There are lots of ways to tell a counterfeit bill, it seems, but one of the best is to study the face of the man on the money.

If Hamilton's right eye-brow is askew—the bill's a phony. If George Washington's jaw is too lantern-like, the bill is no good.

If Abraham Lincoln's beard is not trimmed just right, you had better call the police.

Look at their collars, their ties, their hair—the real bills have fine, clear-cut work. The counterfeiters don't.

The flaws come in the little details—like the details of the faces and flourishes or curves in Secretary Morgenthau's signature.

Evening Program of Flower Show Presents Old Wedding Gowns And Novelty Hats

The evening program of the Flower Show last week attracted about 400 people to the parish hall where a wedding gown parade and novelty hat contest headlined the evening's entertainment.

The program opened with a short talk by Mrs. T. S. Myrick, general chairman of the flower show, who expressed thanks and appreciation on behalf of the club for assistance and cooperation given during the show and in staging the program.

Mrs. Olivia Stock, chairman of the wedding gown parade and program, was master of ceremonies during the evening.

The first number on the program was a vocal selection given by Misses Laura Lee and Gladys Wilde who sang, "Have You Ever Been to Texas in the Spring?" the official song of the Texas Federation of Garden Clubs. They were accompanied by Miss Alma Marie Luke at the piano.

Miss Billy Gene Roberson sang, "I Love You Truly," preceding the wedding gown parade. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Elfreda Luke.

Mrs. John Fuhrbach provided musical accompaniment for the parade, playing appropriate piano selections softly while the models walked across the stage. The stage was appropriate to the occasion. It was banked with greenery, and tapers burned in tall bronze holders. Cut and pot flowers and floor lamps further enhanced the setting. Twenty three gowns were shown during the parade.

The first gown depicted the fashions of 65 years ago. It was the dress that the late Mrs. Ben Lutkenhaus was married in at Ohio in 1875. It was modeled by her granddaughter, Miss Regina Lutkenhaus.

Mrs. Joseph Hofbauer's dress, 51-years-old, was modeled by her daughter, Mrs. Andy Hofbauer. Mrs. Nick Miller wore the dress her mother, Mrs. Louise Wies, was married in 48 years ago, and Mrs. W. P. Hellman, wearing Mrs. J. W. Meurer's wedding dress, showed how the well dressed bride of 42 years ago was attired.

A bridal gown of 1906, belonging to Mrs. Joe Swirczynski, was modeled by her daughter, Miss Catherine Swirczynski, and the fashion of 1907 was displayed by Miss Florentine Trubebach, who wore the gown her mother, Mrs. Frank Trubebach, was married in. Both young ladies also wore their coiffures in the fashions of those days.

The next frock to be exhibited was unusual in that it was a golden wedding dress. It was 30 years old and was worn by the late Mrs. Robert Swirczynski when she and Mr. Swirczynski observed 50 years of wedded life. It was modeled by Miss Bernice Miller, and was complete in every detail, featuring also the tiny feathered hat and the tall laced shoes.

The dress Mrs. Joe Lehnertz was married in 25 years ago was modeled by her niece, Miss Agnes Fette, and Miss Mary Rohmer wore the dress her aunt, Mrs. Joe Streng, was married in in 1916. Miss Alma Marie Luke, wearing her mother's, Mrs. Joe Luke's gown, portrayed the style of 1920. The shoes of that day were also noted.

What the bride of 1921 wore was shown by Mrs. Rosa Driver as she modeled the gown worn by the late Mrs. J. C. Trachta. Mrs. Frank Bayer, a bride of 1928, displayed the fashions of 12 years ago by modeling her own wedding dress.

Three gowns of 1929 were shown. Mrs. Rudy Hellman and Mrs. Al Walterscheid wore their own frocks and Mrs. Clem Hofbauer's nuptial gown was modeled by Miss Juanita Weinzapfel.

Mrs. J. W. Fisher's wedding dress of 10 years ago was displayed by Miss Elfreda Luke, and Miss Dorothy Pette modeled the gown Mrs. John Fuhrbach wore at her wedding in 1931. She carried an arm loupette of lilies. Mrs. Herbert Meurer, a bride of 1931, wore her own wedding frock. It was complete with hat and gloves. Fashions of 1933 were shown when Mrs. L. P. Horton paraded in the gown worn by Mrs. Harold Walterscheid at her wedding.

When Mrs. C. J. Kaiser was married in 1938 she wore a pink lace gown and a large picture hat. They were modeled during the evening by Mrs. Arnold Friske, a bride of 1938, wearing her own dress and veil, depicted the bride of two years ago. Likewise, Mrs. Stan Yosten modeled her own wedding attire of two years ago. The styles of 1939 were shown by Miss Armella Yosten as she wore the gown of Mrs. Ar-

'41 Texas License Plates Will Be Black and Gold

AUSTIN, Texas, May 23. — The State Highway Commission has announced that the order for 1941 license plates has been placed with the State Prison System which manufactures the plates according to specifications prepared by the Highway Department.

Passenger car plates will be black with numerals of gold. Truck and other series of plates will be the reverse, gold with numerals of black. These color combinations were selected because of high visibility and proven durability.

The manufacture and distribution of three and a half million plates is a job of considerable magnitude, requiring careful preparation and constant inspection.

Weather Clearer: Motorists Are Urged to Use Caution

Roads dry; weather clear. Motorists are advised to drive with extreme care and caution while these dangerous conditions prevail.

If you were to read this report in the paper you would surely believe somebody was joking, but statistics indicate the advice is sound.

More than 86 per cent of all fatal motor vehicle accidents in 1939 occurred when the weather was clear. Only 1.3 per cent happened when it was snowing, 2.2 per cent during fog, and 9.8 per cent when it was raining. Contrary to popular belief, the vast majority of fatalities occurred when the road surface was dry, rather than when rain, snow or ice covered the pavements.

These pertinent facts are revealed in a booklet "Smash Hits of the Year" just published by The Travelers Insurance Company as the tenth in its annual series of analytical bulletins issued in the interest of safety on the streets and highways.

The figures indicate that clear weather and dry roads encourage speeding and carelessness, the booklet asserts. Slippery streets bring on a bumper crop of broken bumpers and other minor mishaps, but fatalities and serious injuries are comparatively infrequent.

William Fleitman was an honor guest at a party given in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fleitman, at Muenster Sunday. The other honoree was his sister, Miss Irene Fleitman. Both observe their birthdays on May 26. The party was a family reunion and was attended by all members of the family.

A large number of Lindsay citizens attended graduation exercises for the pupils of St. Mary's school at Gainesville Sunday evening. Miss Elsie Mae Fuhrmann was among the high school graduates. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fuhrmann. After the exercises Elsie Mae was a guest at a party given by Miss Helen Hutton for the graduates.

The feast of Corpus Christi was, as usual, observed with special church services here Sunday. The Lindsay band led the traditional procession, society banners were carried and numerous small girls scattered flowers before the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Father Conrad officiated at the services.

Three Lindsay young ladies who graduated from high school this term were honored with scholarships to distant colleges. Miss Clara Hundt received one to Our Lady of Victory College, Fort Worth; Miss Catherine Bengfort to Our Lady of the Lake College, San Antonio; Miss Anne Bengfort to Draughon's Business College, Dallas.

IT HAS BEEN SAID OF PROCRASTINATION

Procrastination says, "The next advantage we will take thoroughly." —Shakespeare.

Tomorrow is the day when idlers work, and fools reform, and mortal men lay hold of heaven.—Anon.

By the street of "by and by" one comes to the house of "never." —Cervantes.

When a fool has made up his mind, the market has gone by. —Spanish proverb.

The man who procrastinates struggles with ruin.—Hesoid.

To be always intending to live a new life, but never to find time to set about it: this is as if a man should put off eating and drinking and sleeping from one day and night to another, till he is starved and destroyed.—Tillotson.

Use the present moment aright. Each hour comes with some little fagot of God's will fastened upon its back.—F. W. Faber.

It is one of the delusions that the present hour is not the critical decisive hour. Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year.—Carlyle.
