

Long Illness Of A. Wimmer Ended Friday

Was 88-years-old, Bedfast
For 3 years; Funeral
Service Held Sunday

Andrew Wimmer, 88, a resident of Muenster for the past 5 years, died at the home of his son, John Wimmer, Friday evening shortly after six o'clock. He had been bedfast for nearly three years.

Funeral services were conducted from Sacred Heart church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the pastor, Rev. Frowin Koerd, officiating. Burial was in the Muenster cemetery under the direction of Nick Miller. Pallbearers were Richard, Joe, Tony and Johnny Wimmer. Father Frowin also officiated at a requiem high mass for the deceased on Wednesday morning.

Mr. Wimmer is survived by three sons, John of Muenster, with whom he made his home; George of Wichita Falls and Alois of Phoenix, Ariz., one nephew, C. J. Wimmer of Muenster; 15 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Wimmer was a native of Schimfhansen, Germany, where he was born in November, 1852. He came to the United States in 1890 and his wife died shortly afterwards. He later re-married and his second wife passed away about 10 years ago.

Among out-of-town relatives at the funeral were George Wimmer and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bowling of Wichita Falls; Mr. and Mrs. William Schroeder and son, Frank, of Windthorst; Joe Rauschuber, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rauschuber, Mrs. Upmore, Mrs. Lena Arend, and son, Fred, and Al Moosburger, all of Lindsay.

FMA Members Hear Annual Report And Re-elect Directors

Members of the Farmers Marketing Association in their annual general meeting at the Parish Hall Tuesday re-elected their three retiring committeemen, Barney Voth, J. B. Klement and Victor Hartman. The personnel of officers also remains unchanged with C. J. Wimmer as president and Victor Hartman as secretary. William Becker, not a member of the executive board, was re-elected vice-president. Board members holding unexpired terms are Henry Wiesman, Emil Vogel, Albert Henschel and C. J. Wimmer.

The annual report read by Plant Manager Rudy Hellman showed an increase in both membership and business volume during the past year. Membership grew from 193 to 225. However the members' volume in the total year's business dropped off slightly from 62 per cent to 59.4 per cent.

Figures quoted by Hellman showed that the organization's leading activity, manufacture of cheese, again reached well over the million pound volume and surpassed last year's record by more than 40,000 pounds. It was 1,171,166 pounds as compared to 1,128,761, but still far below the 1938 figure of 1,368,597. To enable that production, Hellman added, the plant's milk patrons had to produce about 12 million pounds of milk. Butter fat contained in that milk was almost a half million pounds.

The produce department also enjoyed a large volume. It handled 99,877 dozens of eggs and 93,839 pounds of poultry exclusive of turkeys which are handled in special projects for Thanksgiving and Christmas markets. This year's turkey volume reached a new record of more than 12 regulation car loads, the total weight of dressed turkeys being about 220,000 pounds.

The gross volume at the FMA store was slightly more than $60,000.

Seventeen persons are on the regular FMA payroll, twelve in the cheese factory and five in the store.

REGULAR SCHEDULE RESUMED THIS WEEK BY BOWLING LEAGUE

Ten pin addicts of this community have a fresh start on another schedule consisting of the same teams that organized a league in late November but discontinued in favor of numerous conflicting activities during December.

The Farmers took the lead Monday night by winning two out of a three game series with the Red Chain "Nuggets." The next night the Phone company tied for the lead by setting back the Cheese Plant team by the same margin. Another match this week will be that of the Weasels and Well Diggers Thursday night.

Regular league nights are Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. The regular starting time is 7:00 p. m. This schedule differs from that recently ended in that each team meets each other two times instead of once, and that team teams, the Nuggets and Well Diggers, were organized to fill vacancies left by Lindsay and Herr Motor Co. The Phone Company, Cheese Plant, Farmers and Weasels have practically the same teams as before.

Miss Florentine Arend of Lindsay spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. Emmet Fette.

NO PERIOD OF GRACE GRANTED IN '40 TAX; CITY TREASURY LOW

No period of grace will be granted this year to persons tardy in paying their city taxes, the city council decreed in its regular meeting Monday night. The deadline, as usual, is February 1.

Faced with exceptionally heavy expenses during the sewer installation period, the city treasury needs to be reinforced with tax money, according to City Secretary Ray Hellman.

Under the circumstances aldermen did not favor permitting any unnecessary delay in collections. Taxes not paid by February 1 will be subject to a penalty.

Father Luke Hess, O. S. B., remembered here by many of the older citizens, died at Subiaco, Ark., on Jan. 2. Father Frowin advised after receiving the message. Burial took place at the abbey cemetery Sunday. Father Luke was in charge of Sacred Heart parish for several months in 1938 when Father Bernard Zell, then pastor here, was vacationing in Europe.

WIDE DISTRIBUTION OF STOCK, REFINERY'S PRESENT OBJECTIVE

Developments in the reorganization and reopening of the Muenster refinery are slowly but definitely taking shape, and the chances are it will be in operation in the next few weeks, according to J. M. Weinzapfel, a director of the business.

At the present time, he said, the most important detail remaining is to complete the financing. After the plant had been secured for $15,000 purchasers agreed to create an operating fund of at least $10,000 by selling stock. To date, however, the organization has not been actively selling. Absorbed in other details, it merely accepted money as it came in. Now that other things are under control the plan is to go out looking for investments.

Directors are not in any special hurry, Weinzapfel said. They are concerned more with starting on a firm basis with ownership—and interest—spread over a larger number of producers, business men and farmers and a working capital adequate to the heavy initial demands of bonds, minor repairs, and other opening expenses.

Reasons for giving local people the first opportunities is that the community will profit from keeping profits at home, and the business will prosper more if it has a larger number of local supporters.

BURGLARS TAKE CASH AND GUN AT JIMMY'S; NO STOCK MISSED

A .22 calibre pistol valued at $25 and about $18 in cash was the net haul for a burglar, or burglars, who broke into Jimmy's Service Station Saturday night. Entrance was gained through the west window by taking off a screen and breaking the glass.

Only small change left in the cash drawer was taken. Other receipts of the day had previously been removed for safe keeping. None of the small saleable items in the place were disturbed.

This is the second time burglars visited the place. On August 12, 1939, thieves broke into the bank and carried away cash and merchandise valued at $350.

Al Flusche of Decatur was here for a visit with relatives Sunday.

No Aluminum For REA Lines Planes Get It

The national defense program's influence on this area was noted for the first time this week when the Cooke County Electric Cooperative Association suspended work on its line extension project because of the delay necessary in securing aluminum conductor.

A message received Monday by J. H. Flood, manager, stated that aluminum conductor will not be available for at least 26 weeks. Considering the volume of aluminum used in national defense, Flood had little hope of receiving the material even at that time.

Negotiations are now in progress to get official approval on amended specifications using a conductor of copper coated steel wires twisted into a cable. That formerly used was a cable of aluminum wires with a heavy steel wire core.

Engineering changes will probably be necessary as a result of change in conductor, Flood said. The copper and steel wire will permit a longer span, hence the co-op has the alternative of spending for unnecessary poles on about 55 miles already staked, or spending for a re-staking job. The latter will probably be cheaper, he estimated.

The co-op directors would not consider delaying the project until aluminum was available. Signed up customers are waiting for current and the directors are anxious to serve them as soon as possible. Flood believes there is a chance of resuming work early next week.

Herman Dangelmayr's Eye OK After Serious Injury

Favorable developments during the past week assure Herman Dangelmayr that he will not only save his injured left eye but has a fair chance to recover without any damage whatever to his vision. "They say it will be as good as ever," he cheerfully stated Monday, a week, almost to the hour, since it had been punctured by a fencing staple.

In an operation following the accident the doctor successfully injected a substitute for the substance which had been lost from the white part of the eye. By the end of the week Dangelmayr had recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital.

Billy Nell Cole, 8, Dies After Brief Illness

Billy Nell Cole, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Cole, died at a Gainesville sanitarium Monday afternoon at 1:45, following an illness of influenza.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Baptist church of Saint Joe, with Rev. Paul Thompson, officiating, assisted by Rev. John Nathall. Burial was in Park cemetery under the direction of George J. Carroll and Son funeral home of Gainesville. Pallbearers were Joe Parker, Henry Branham, S. Lawson, Sr., and A. H. Drake of Dallas.

Little Billy was a student in the second grade at the public school. Classes were dismissed for the funeral and pupils and teachers attended the services in a body. A number of other local people also attended.

Surviving are the parents, a twin sister, Betty, and a brother, J. L., grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leppard, St. Joe, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cole, Muenster; a great-grandmother, Mrs. Georgia Leppard, St. Joe, and a great-grandfather, J. W. Kerbo, Healdton, Okla.

Many To Fill First Income Tax Returns

Many a Muenster person who has never filled out an income tax report is headed for a new—and exhilarating—experience within the next few weeks. For 1941 is the year in which the drastic changes in the Revenue Act of 1940 become effective.

National estimates are that the number of income tax returns will increase by 70 per cent. Revenues likewise will increase by a substantial percentage.

Basic revisions were noted in a bulletin just issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau at Washington.

Most vital change in the income tax laws is that which reduced the exemption for single persons to $800, for married persons to $2,000. The old levels were $1,000 and $2,500. The credit for children or other dependents remains at $400 per dependent.

Another revision is a requirement that returns must be based on gross income, NOT net income. This means that all single persons with a gross income of $800 or more, and all married persons living together with a combined gross income of $2,000 or more, MUST file returns even though it develops that, by reason of allowable deductions, no tax is due.

Last year if a man's net income was sufficiently low, after legal deductions were made, even though his gross income was above the $1,000 or $2,000 level then in force he did not have to file a return.

Last year, also, a man running his own individual business did not have to file a return if that business had a gross income of less than $5,000 a year.

Now, however, he must file a return if his business grosses more than $2,000 a year—although in such a case allowable deductions probably will exempt him from tax.

Every person will be held liable for compliance with the new provisions regarding gross income, federal officials have warned.

Gossett Answered Every Vote, Every Roll Call of Historic 76th Congress

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.—Representative Ed Gossett did not miss a record vote during the historic third session of the 76th Congress. This session of Congress convened on January 2, 1940 and continued until noon on January 3, 1941. This session set an all time record for length, being rivaled only by the 2nd Session of the 65th Congress, which began in 1917 and continued for 354 days.

Representative Ed Gossett was one of the eight members to serve on as many as six committees of the House during this session and was one of a very few members of Congress to answer every roll call and to vote on every question.

John Schilling is spending several days of this week in Pilot Point with relatives.

With connections available to 90 per cent of the city's homes and business houses and with 78 per cent of the actual work completed, Muenster's sewer project was shut down Saturday when WPA funds were exhausted. However, the system is now ready for use as far as it is completed.

E. K. Whitaker, resident engineer, stated Tuesday that 5,201 feet of the total 22,506 remain to be installed through less than settled parts of town. The disposal plant is complete.

An application for an additional appropriation of $14,000 for WPA labor has been filed with the Dallas WPA office. Before it was submitted the supervisor at Dallas had assured that it would receive approval. Official approval through the usual channels is expected within six weeks.

The city is cooperating with the county health unit in drawing up regulations regarding the sewer. Those recommended by the State Health Department will probably be observed. The principal provision, now under consideration by the city council, is that persons within 200 feet of the line will be expected to connect or build an approved type pit toilet—unless they happen to have efficient private septic tanks. The monthly charge for service has not been definitely decided.

Frank Hoedbeck has been named in charge of the system, taking care of the disposal plant, issuing connection permits and inspecting the connections.

SEVENTH SEASON AT HATCHERY OPENS WITH RECORD INITIAL SET

Opening its seventh season Monday the Muenster Hatchery made a start on what is hoped to be its largest season with its largest initial setting, 3,800 eggs. Manager Felix Becker is confident that, with the present rate of early orders, every chick will be sold on the first hatching date.

In his opinion this year is due to ring up a new record for the institution. Each year has seen an expansion in volume until last year's interruption by unusual conditions which reduced the average number of chicks per patron. The hatchery had, however, served its largest number of patrons. This year it expects to continue its territorial expansion and hopes to return to a larger volume per customer.

As in previous years the hatchery will offer chicks in all the popular breeds and will assist patrons who prefer custom hatching. From his wide acquaintance with flocks of this area Becker is able to help people locate eggs of all breeds if they do not happen to have their own.

Setting days continue on Mondays and Thursdays. Persons who bring in eggs for custom hatching are especially urged to keep those dates in mind.

BANK STOCKHOLDERS WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY

The annual stockholders' meeting and election of directors of the Muenster State Bank will be held next Tuesday at 2 p. m. J. W. Meurer, president announced this week.

As authorized in a previous meeting of directors the bank again paid its usual 5 per cent dividend to stockholders in spite of unusually heavy expenditures during construction of its new building the past year.

1940 brought an increase of about 7 per cent in the bank's deposits, an increase about equal to most other banks of this area, according to Cashier J. M. Weinzapfel.

Church Committee To Resume Drive For Funds

Though chances of starting on a new church building this year are very remote, members of the church finance committee will be making the rounds in the near future to get all possible donations, especially those pledged for the first of this year.

In a meeting Sunday the committee decided to continue working steadily and gradually build up the fund to a figure that will be acceptable to ecclesiastical authorities of the diocese.

TOLERANCE

Described by a local business man as one of the finest radio programs he has ever heard was a recent presentation of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. It presents Protestant, Catholic and Jew in a friendly discussion of religious views, each expressing the sincerity of his own belief and giving his companions credit for being equally sincere. It was a plea for mutual tolerance between sects.

If every person in America could absorb the spirit manifested in those programs, we could be enjoying complete religious harmony as it was intended in our constitution instead of the distrust and bickering we encounter so often.

Too few of us try to understand that a person need not be correct to be sincere. Inevitably some people have to be wrong when there are a number of conflicting opinions. That is plain logic. But at the same time it is possible for each person among all those conflicting opinions to think he is right. That is the important thing. He is serving his God according to the best of his knowledge, and we may reasonably assume that, right or wrong, his God is giving him credit for a good intention.

It is natural for every creed to think every other creed is in error. They cannot think otherwise as long as they believe themselves to be correct. Priests, ministers and rabbis often find occasion to mention it to their flocks, and they are supposed to. The difficulty is that too few of them take the trouble to explain that other religions are based upon different versions of dogma and revelation and that other members deserve credit at least for thinking and doing what they think is right.

The same applies to political and economic theories. Not all people adhere to the same set of basic principles and not all minds work the same way. To call names and break friendships over a political campaign is foolish. The other person is entitled to his opinion.

Today we have another form of intolerance breaking out. It has reference to attitudes on foreign affairs. President Roosevelt has been named a war monger because he favors repealing our neutrality in favor of Great Britain. Others have been called traitors and Hitlerites because they oppose the president's proposal. Either opinion has the support of powerful arguments, either course may be better for the nation, and doubtless each faction is sincere in the belief that its course is the better. Under the circumstances harsh accusations are not fair.

We Americans are proud of our freedom of religion and freedom of speech. We know they are marks of Christianity and democracy. At the same time let us try to remember that freedom presupposes tolerance. From the fact that a person is free to embrace one creed or political theory he must admit the next person has an equal right to accept another creed or political theory. Let's be true to the ideals we profess and exercise the Christian, democratic trait of tolerance.

INVENTORY TIME

This is the time of the year when most business men take their annual inventories. Going through their entire stock of merchandise they determine just what items are on hand and estimate the total value. The task is long and tedious, but every progressive merchant believes it is well worth the time spent.

An inventory's first value is to provide a final reckoning on the past year's business. The growth or decrease in bank balance doesn't tell the complete story. The several hundred dollar growth or decrease of stock has to be considered also.

More important than estimating profits and losses is planning a more profitable course for the coming year. Invariably the merchant finds he has more of some items and fewer of others than he thought. The information will help him place the next order more correctly. He will find soiled, freak colored, old style or off size items that do not sell and send them to the bargain counter. The inventory suggests dozens of money making or money saving ideas that otherwise escape a man's notice.

In business life an inventory pays dividends. And the same applies to personal affairs. What a stock of merchandise is to a store, personality—including habits, disposition, ability and industry—is to the individual. Just as some items mean profits and some losses to a business, so also some characteristics are conducive to individual success whereas others are detrimental.

How about habits, for instance? Eating or drinking to excess, careless exposure to weather, driving recklessly, gossiping or using vulgar language, or dozens of other traits which cause offense to others or harm to one's self. They are burdens to personality. They need to be replaced by characteristics that help and not hinder success.

It is hard to over-emphasize the value of a pleasant and fair disposition. That fact becomes self evident when we think of grippers and chisellers. They don't convey happiness to themselves or anybody else. If they only knew how much the sour attitude costs them in values that count!

Ability and industry are like the best items on a merchant's shelf. There is always a demand for them. And the wise man improves himself in both respects just as a wise merchant increases his stock of the proven items.

It's a good idea to take stock of one's qualifications and determine the best way of getting a maximum return from them. Everybody can achieve more, can enjoy greater health and happiness, by estimating the real value of his personality and formulating new policies accordingly.

If Eugene Lyons knows what he's talking about the civilized world might as well quit hoping that Hitler and Stalin will come to grips. It's nothing but a show staged for the benefit of democracies, says Lyons, and the sooner Uncle Sam and John Bull get wise the better for both of them.

The two dictators are pals, Lyons believes, in spite of all the wishful thinking about their eventual conflict, in spite of each one's original ambition to dominate Europe and the world. The reason given is that Stalin and his political clique have a better chance of ruling the Russian roost if Hitler dominates than if the democracies win.

As a man who spent several years in the USSR—Lyons went to Russia as a confirmed Red but returned to write his noted expose "Assignment in Utopia," which was definitely unfavorable to everything Communistic—he sees the Stalin regime merely as a big political racket in which the big boss is due to fall unless he can depend on outside cooperation. If England wins he would not last long because a democracy would not endorse his methods. So his best chance is to string along with Hitler and have a better chance of holding his own in Russia if and when Hitler wins. He couldn't expect to make his kind of a bargain with anyone except a man like Hitler.

Joseph's reason for playing second fiddle is obvious to Lyons. The whole gigantic Red plan, world revolution, new order and all that, has bogged down and Stalin knows it. If he did not know it before, he discovered it in the Finnish campaign. With all his boasted power the only way he could win was to smother the little country with Russian corpses and broken down equipment.

So the idea in a nutshell is that Stalin is thinking about his own neck and he's doing Adolf's chores as the best means of saving it. His would not be worth much to the Axis cause hence he does not get into the battle. He serves on the diplomatic front pretending to be on the verge of breaking relations in order to trick America and England into granting favors and shipping arms, being as inefficient as it is, merchandise which Russia can re-route to Germany's back door. Lyons seems to think it is more than a coincidence that every pretended fuss thus far has resulted in notable advantages for Germany.

There is a great deal of logic in the viewpoint, enough to discredit much of the wishful thinking of us who hoped for a clash between the dictators. We had found a good deal of consolation in the thought that the conflict would probably pull the two brutes together thereby saving civilization the unpleasant job of liquidating them both. Now we wonder more than ever. We still cannot forget that Stalin is treacherous. Even though Hitler is his own kind and possibly would leave him at the head of his racket we cannot but think he would turn in a minute if he believed Hitler will lose.

And after all has been considered the only thing we can do is guess—which itself is rather fascinating in view of the way things are popping over there. As for this column's guess: Stalin and Hitler are both due to tumble off their high horses. We could not hope to guess at the chain of events. And we are not worried. We leave our share of that to the fellows in Washington.

POETRY

The following poem was written by Evelyn Wiesman, during our recent study of poetry. Since the Feast of the Epiphany was celebrated on Monday of this week, we give it a fitting place in our column.

On that first Holy Christmas night
Above all, shone one star so bright,
To guide the wise men from afar
Who placed their trust in one lone star.

The wise men rode through many a night,
And followed that one shining light
Until one day they found the stall
And Christ was honored by them all.

EXAMS

CLASSES RESUMED

Classes were again resumed on Monday, after a two weeks' rest from school duties. On the whole, every one seemed glad to get back to the routine of school work, although there was a small percentage of pupils missing because of illness.

WALTER KLEMENT AND ELEANOR HENSCHIED UNITED TUESDAY A.M.

A pretty church wedding was solemnized here Tuesday morning at 8:30 when vows were exchanged by Miss Eleanor Henschied and Walter Klement. The bride is the daughter of William and the late Anna Henschied, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Klement.

Rev. Frowin Koerd, pastor, officiated at the ceremony and at the nuptial high mass. Anthony Luke, organist, and members of Sacred Heart church choir rendered music for the services.

The bride was lovely in a floor-length model of white satin, fashioned with a high heart shaped neckline, leg-o'-mutton sleeves that ended in points at the wrist and were ornamented with self covered buttons, a moulded bodice and very full skirt. Her veil of illusion, that extended into a short train, was held in place with a wreath of valley lilies and she carried an arm bouquet of white lilies. As a bit of sentiment, she wore as her only ornaments, a handsome gold cross and chain that was worn by her mother at her wedding twenty-six years ago. She also carried a dainty white lace handkerchief that her mother carried at her wedding.

Miss Clara Henschied, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a frock of turquoise blue chiffon made with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt, square neck and short puffed sleeves. Inserts of lace decorated the neck, sleeves and skirt. Her hat was a tiny halo model of blue ribbon and flowers and was worn with a blue shoulder-length veil. A shoulder corsage of pink blossoms completed her costume.

Roman Klement, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Immediately following the rites, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father for members of the bridal party. During the day an informal reception honored the couple and dinner was served to seventy-five guests, relatives of the couple.

The bride's table carried out her colors of white and blue and was centered with a heart-shaped cake bearing a miniature bridal figurine and lilies of the valley. The cake was placed on a crystal stand that is the property of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Theodore Wiesman, and was a gift to her at her wedding 49 years ago. Candles in crystal holders flanked the centerpiece, and crystal and white china was used as the service.

After the day's festivity Mr. and Mrs. Klement departed on a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. When they return they will make their home on a farm 10 miles northeast of the city. For traveling Mrs. Klement wore a soldier blue frock with black accessories.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Klement are natives of Muenster and are popular in the young society set. Mrs. Klement was the duchess to represent Muenster at the annual Community Circus Roundup at Gainesville last year.

Benefits of Filing Child's Birth Record are Many, Doctor Says

"Establishing a birth record for a child soon after birth is essential in this day and time," Dr. Houston H. Terry, director of the Cooke County Health Unit, revealed as he pointed to its many benefits in future years.

"One needs a birth certificate for entrance to school, automobile license, right to vote, right to marry, right to enter civil service, military service, for the settlement of pensions, and for social security benefits to the blind, helpless and the aged," he continued.

Eight county registrars and one local registrar has been designated by Dr. W. A. Davis, of the bureau of vital statistics, Austin, to record the births in their communities in Cooke county.

Under the state law, it is a requirement that each birth be registered within five days of the date. In Cooke county, the original record is filed with the county health unit and a duplicate with the county clerk.

Complete List Is Reported
A complete list as reported by the various registrars is sent each month to the state bureau of vital statistics.

After a proper registration form is filled out by the physician or parents of the child, a notification of birth registration is issued to the parents of the child.

County Judge Ray Winder and Auditor R. A. McElrath are in charge of birth registration for the county. Muenster registrar is P. J. Rollman.
