Microbrewery snags City Council's approval

Janet Felderhoff News Editor

A public hearing at Monday's regular City Council meeting drew no negative comments on the requested Specific Use Permit for a proposed microbrewery. Since a microbrewery is not listed in the City's Zoning Ordinance as an approved business, approval was required before it could be set up.

Stefan and Charity Windham, who requested the permit, attended the meeting. Windham seeks the Specific Use Permit for 100 N. Main which is the old Klement Ford building.

The operation in Krum has a small tasting room and Windham plans to have a larger tasting room for tour days and events in the Muenster location. There are no plans by Windham to sell food as that would require a different type of license. He can serve food, but not charge for it. He has considered allowing local vendors to sell food there during special events. He said in Krum, food trucks would set up and sell food.

City Administrator Stan Endres asked about how much water Windham anticipated using. He said, "Generally, they say that you use anywhere from two to three times the amount of water as what you are brewing. That's just in the cleaning process and such. There are ways to cut down on that."

SHCS readies to embark on 2014-15 academic year

Janet Felderhoff News Editor

Students, parents, and others have been busy all summer working to make improvements to the Sacred Heart Catholic School (SHCS) facility. The days of summer vacation are drawing to a close and a new year of academics is about pect of our program. Three to begin. Classes begin on mornings a week, we start Wednesday, Aug. 13.

With renovations to Sacred Heart Church not quite finished, opening Mass for the 2014-15 school year will take place in the Sacred Heart Community Center. A few of the changes at church are new pews, repaired and polished floors, a top to bottom cleaning, and new doors, west entry.

Their goal is, "Launching college students into lifelong Catholic missions." Brad explained, "What that means is going and meeting students where they are at on campus throughout all of the different areas that they might be in, different clubs, different situations, different groups that they hang out in. We show them first that we can relate to them, we can hang out with them, and we get to know them and build them up in friendship. Through that friendship we invite them into a deeper relationship with Christ. It is a really cool deal where they see you living a different way. According to Brad, they build students up, not on a temporary "God high" as some retreats do for a short time, but build them up in their Catholic faith and their Apologetic knowledge, prayer knowledge, and show them different practical ways that they can use it.

Brad will be at the University of Connecticut in Storrs. He left this week to be there when college begins this month. He will participate in FOCUS for two years and hopes that time will be spent at the University of Con-

Brad said that they meet once a week for an hour where they teach about various things such as what the Church teaches about certain topics, different forms of prayer, etc. Other times during the week, they might just hang out with them. On weekends, they do things like go to a movie as a group, go to a ball game, go out for dinner or drinks, anything a college student might do.

It is a statistic that 70% of students who go off to college get off track from their faith and many do not come

FOCUS was founded by

Curtis Martin who was a Protestant. Brad remarked, "At college, he kind of fell away from his Protestant faith before he came back. What brought him back was a Protestant group on campus that invited him to hang out and go do things that they liked to do for fun. It wasn't even talking about their faith at first. But, he gradually learned that they were a Protestant evangelization group. He started diving into his faith again and gradually he became very grounded in his faith. He was reading the Bible, going Chief Barr warned, "We have seen an increase in the number of telephone scams in the area once again. I talked to four different people who they've target just this past week. Thankfully, everyone who notified the police department saw through the scam before any money or information was given over. The stories used by the scammers varied widely. There were some gaps. Jesus was like, 'Take My body and drink My blood. But he wasn't really doing that. He wondered what's the difference. He searched and eventually read himself, through studying the scripture, into his Catholic faith. He is 100% behind the Catholic Church.' Martin realized that colleges were a place that Catholics went to school, but had nothing to support their faith unless they found a very specific community at the Catholic center. "At the big schools, the Catholic centers are not always on fire, remarked Brad. "They are struggling. The college culture and what they are telling you is very different from what the Catholic church is teaching you to do. So, he decided to do something about it and started forming the basics of what FO-CUS is. Since, FOCUS has been growing and growing. According to Brad, he did not know about FOCUS before their missionaries invited him in. It is when the Brad to take a further step in his faith that things changed for him. "I took ownership of my faith through that process," he shared. "I realized the importance of it. I don't know if it would have happened on my own. It would have taken a lot longer for me to do that. I didn't know where to turn. I didn't have a mentor to help me with that. It was all about work and getting good grades, and increasing my standing in my profession. My faith was totally up to me. For the guys and girls across the country, this provides them with someone to turn to. That's really what got me hooked is that it wasn't just another club, it was a way to improve my life, and improve my life in my faith because that had

"I found that a really awesome opportunity for me to learn about the body and sports medicine was to go through that program to become an athletic trainer and then go off to med school. I still love sports medicine. It is my degree. It is my profession, but I found that my passion lies in doing research specifically for sudden cardiac death." Brad planned to go to the University of Connecticut for grad school. All was set in motion for him to do this, but he had a year off. He needed a job and returned to University of Texas to work doing athletic training with the football team. While there, he again became involved with FOCUS.

At that time, Brad was asked to interview with FO-CUS to be a missionary. He told them no because he had the rest of his life planned out. Something kept tugging at Brad to go and interview and be open to what God had in store for his life.

Brad had to ask off to do the interview and was venting to his mentor. "He noticed that I was worried about my professional life or my faith life, that I could not have them both," recalled Brad. His mentor told him, of the things that you have or haven't done. It's made up one of the regional directors was talking to them about King David and how he was an ultimate man. Even though he sinned and had failures, he was always looking towards God and repented the right way. Because he was a man of God, that led God to blessing King David with a legacy. He then spoke about what kind of legacy they were supposed to have as men in this world. Brad felt that was his sign to do FOCUS since he had asked God what kind of legacy He wanted for him.

Then, Brad called the people in Connecticut to inform them that he could not do the residency. He feared that he would lose everything he had worked for. Instead, he was told that when he knew where FOCUS would send him they would try to get him connected with them somehow where he could do research and keep his name

Those who wish to help can call Brad and he will talk to them about this mission. This can be done by calling him at (940) 768-9898 or emailing him at brad.endres@focus.org. Donations must go through FOCUS before going to Brad so he would talk to them about how to do this. Those who just want to send in a check can send it to FOCUS, Fellowship of Catholic Universitv Students, P.O. Box 18710. Golden CO 80402-9809. On the check memo, they should list Brad's missionary ID 44557 and his name.

"Anybody with a student at campus knows there's a lot of pressure. If they feel called to help out the young people in this country on campus, this is a great way to do it," stated Brad.

Brad added there is something that he wants the local community to hear. He said, This community of Muenster and the kind of environment that Muenster's built for itself is awesome, but there are a lot of people who don't have that. There are a lot of college campuses that don't have that. If people like this environment and they want the world to become more like the good parts of Muenster, how are they going to do that? This is a very good way to do that. Muenster is very Catholic and very God centered. Muenster should be proud of that and should be happy about that. There are always ways that we can spread that and try to change the world a bit." Brad shared a statement about what FOCUS is about: FOCUS's goal is to invite college students into a growing relationship with Jesus Christ and His church inspiring and equipping them for a lifetime of Christ centered evangelization, discipleship, and friendship in which they lead others to do the same.

NCTC Chemistry professor wrapping up 50-year career

Darin Allred $NCTC\ Public\ Relations$

A big change will be coming to the North Central Texas College Science department beginning this fall. For the first time in 37 years, Dr. Ron Bost will not be teaching Chemistry.

After a 50-year teaching career including the past 37 years at NCTC, Dr. Bost has decided to retire.

He will be returning to his hometown of Lawton, OK., a place where he actually began his teaching career as a junior high school Science teacher in 1964.

"I've enjoyed every bit of it," Dr. Bost said of his time at NCTC. "It's been a wonmember the people that I've worked with and the students. You remember them forever."

The College will host a reception for Dr. Bost from 2 to 4 p.m., on Thursday, Aug. The reception will be held in the Little Theater on the NCTC Gainesville campus. The public is invited to

Many who attend the reception will no doubt be former students who appreciate the way Bost could make a complicated subject like Chemistry relatable to students of all ages.

"Dr. Bost will surely be big shoes to fill," former student Deborah Wilson said. "His teaching style and humor are hard to come by. Teachers such as he are a rarity."

"He genuinely cares about his students and that's what makes him a great teacher,' former student Haley Colwell added.

The Centennial monuments, one at right, have a renewed look after extensive clean up. They stood at the Weaver Street entrance of Leonard Park in Gainesville before I-35 cut through the Park.

Many things have changed in the past 50 years of his teaching career, but when it comes to NCTC, one thing stands out to Dr. Bost.

"Growth," he said. "When I came, we had a total of about 1,400 students. We taught in Lewisville a little bit but that was about it. Now we have expanded into Corinth and Flower Mound and Bowie and Graham. Even (the Gainesville campus) has grown from about 1,400 to around 2,400 or something like that."

Now as he moves into retirement, will Dr. Bost miss being in the classroom?

"I will I'm sure," he said. "Back in Lawton is Cameron University and I will probably try and teach one class there as an adjunct if they use me. I won't miss the daily grind, but I will miss the classroom and I will miss the kids. And of course I will miss the people across the hall. I will really miss the people I work with. It's been a long time."

"Chemistry is the study of matter, but I prefer to see it as the study of change."

Krahl Sullivan, an assistant attorney general for the Child Support Division's Pflugerville office, was named Assistant Attorney General of the Year for the 42-county region based in Austin. Gamble was selected Assistant Attorney General of the Year for the Child Support Division's main office in Austin.

First Assistant Attorney General Daniel Hodge presented the award to Krahl Sullivan and Gamble on Tuesday, July 29 at the statewide assistant attorney general conference in Austin.

"Through hard work and dedication, both Sara Krahl Sullivan and Deterrean Gamble have helped improve the lives of thousands of young Texans and their families," Attorney General Abbott said. "We are grateful to Sara and Deterrean for their commitment to Texas children and her service to

Public invited to Farewell Reception for Dr. Mike Linder

North Central Texas Chorale will host a Farewell Reception for Dr. Mike Linder on Tuesday Aug. 12 at 7 p.m. The event will be held in the gathering room on the lower floor of Butterfield Stage Players which is located at 201 S. Denton Street in Gainesville. Dr. Linder will be moving from this area to Lubbock.

Dr. Linder has been associated with the Chorale since 1991. The Chorale cordially invites the public to help thank him for the many years of service as their director and his influence on the musical arts in ways demonstrates a good work ethic and high ethical standards.

"Sara Krahl Sullivan is an outstanding attorney," said Senior Regional Attorney Rolando Ramirez. "She has an excellent team mentality and work ethic and never shies away from a challenge. In addition, Sara never fails to impress our judiciary and external partners with her trial and negotiation skills. She has earned the respect and admiration of her fellow attorneys, non-lawyer staff, and management."

The Attorney General's Child Support Division offers an array of services to help families, including locating absent parents, establishing paternity for children born to unmarried parents, establishing, enforcing, and modifying child and medical support orders; collecting and distributing child support

Walmart accepting donations of school supplies

Cooke County United Way and Walmart have partnered to STUFF THE BUS. This is a school supply drive benefiting the children of Cooke County. From July 30 to Aug. 11, a school bus will be parked outside the Gainesville Walmart store to remind people that it is time to donate to STUFF THE SCHOOL BUS. However, the collection will take place inside Walmart.

United Way will pick up the daily collections and count out the supplies collected. According to United Way Executive Director Angie Hare, "The majority of the supplies will go to the Boys & Girls Club back-to-school program (parents must register thru Boys & Girls Club - see their agency for more information) as well as providing supplies to Sacred Heart Outreach, etc.'

"In order to facilitate letting people in and out of the school office, a new camera was installed at the main entrance installed in the school secretary Mary Bayer's office. We are waiting for a buzzer to come in. What that will do is allow her to see who is at the front door and to buzz them in without having to leave her desk. She was constantly getting up and down. We are very thankful to the Parish, Fr. Ken for providing that. He came in one day and observed that this was a problem and instructed us to go ahead and fix it." House Bill 5 went into affect this year for the incoming freshman class. Dr. Rondon explained that all students at Sacred Heart are placed in the distinguished achievement program unless they are medically incapable of completing it. Those are placed in other programs, he said. "With House Bill 5, we've just moved all of our freshmen into the distinguished level of achievement program which is a comparable program," said Principal Rondon. "The changes that we've seen from House Bill 5 really haven't impacted our curriculum a great deal. The only thing that it has done is that it has forced us to rethink how we are going to offer some of the different tracks during the junior and senior year of high school, but those won't really go into affect until another year or as Dean of Students. Dr. Rondon remarked, am very grateful to everyone in the community who is supporting our Catholic school ministry. This includes all members of our Parish and all of the local businesses here in Muenster and Cooke County. They've been very generous in making a Catholic education possible for the children in our area and the families that we serve. I am especially grateful to the parents who make the sacrifice to send their children to a Catholic school. I know that during these times in particular, where the cost of everything is going up and our salaries seem to be staying the same, that it represents a true sacrifice to send children to Catholic school.

Elementary Muenster announces "Howdy Night"

On Wednesday, Aug. 20, Muenster Elementary will be hosting "Howdy Night" for ALL grades (PK-6) at 6 p.m. in the MISD Cafetorium. At this time, the teachers will go over their classroom expectations and hand out other useful information for the 2014-15 school year. After the assembly is over, parents and students are free to go to their child's classroom to put away school supplies. Students in grades 1-6 will receive their locker assignment, be able to cover books, and get their locker ready for the first day of school. This is also a good time to turn in "updated" shot records

Please keep in mind that students enrolling for the first time at MISD must have a copy of their social security card, birth certificate, and shot record on file before the first day of school.

TSCRA supports the Red River Private Property Protection Act

ern Cattle Raisers Association (TSCRA) announced their support of H.R. 4979, the Red River Private Property Protection Act, authored by Rep. Mac Thornberry (TX-13). The legislation provides legal certainty for landowners along the Red River.

TSCRA submitted a letter of support for the record at a U.S. House Natural Resources Committee, Subcommittee on Public Lands and Environmental Regulation legislative hearing. "TSCRA strongly supports

Private Property Protection to move forward with this Act," said TSCRA President legislation. We must make Pete Bonds. "This legislation certain this issue is resolved would save landowners legal expenses regarding property they have owned for years along the Red River. TSCRA opposes any federal control or management of land on the Texas side of the Red River and is concerned that such control will take away the long held and legally established private property rights of Texas landowners. TSCRA is pleased H.R. 4979 was discussed in a hearing,

The Texas and Southwest- H.R. 4979, the Red River and we urge the committee and Texas landowners are provided with the certainty they deserve."

TSCRA supports H.R. 4979 because it directs the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to relinquish and transfer quit claim deeds to landowners who can prove ownership through official state and county records. Additionally, it prevents the BLM from including any privately owned acres in a Resource Management Plan.

Remember to file Farm Bill conservation certification AD-1026

Farmers are reminded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to file conservation certification mandated through the 2014 Farm Bill. The Highly Erodible Land Conservation and Wetland Conservation Certification (AD-1026) is required to be eligible for premium support paid under the federal crop insurance program.

Many FSA and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) programs require farmers file an AD-1026 form. Many farmers may already have the form on file. but if not, farmers must file by June 1, 2015.

The AD-1026 form was recently revised by the FSA and is available at USDA Service Centers and online at www. fsa.usda.gov.

The number of farms in the U.S. fell slightly from 2012 to 2013, as did the amount of land in farms.

The average farm size is 435 acres, but the large number of small farmers skews the number. The data shows 85% of the farms have sales of less than $250,000, but bigger farms account for almost 60% of the acres in the major agricultural states.

Pray El Niño pays Texas a visit

I read recently that climatologists are predicting a 70% chance for El Niño to develop this year in the Pacific Ocean. I hope they are wrong. What we need is a 100% chance. El Niño is the warming of the central and eastern Pacific

Oceans. It alters the jet stream flow across the United States and helps bring wetter-than-normal weather to Texas. Farmers and ranchers have been praying for a major weather-maker for many years. Despite a recent wet spell that has greened up the country considerably, most of Texas is still suffering from the same drought that we've been battling since the last El Niño episode in 2009-10. Texas agriculture has lost billions of dollars because of the dry weather. We need a drought-buster to fill soil profiles and replenish the aquifers used for irrigation. Sadly, it's not just agriculture that is affected. Municipal water supplies for many Texas cities and towns are literally drying up. Currently, the state's surface reservoirs stand at only 64% full. The Highland Lakes reservoirs in Central from running out of water. Without water, growth stops, industry flees, and Texas residents lose homes and jobs.

Texas are only a third full. The situation is dire in some parts of Texas. Wichita Falls, for example, is weeks away

Luckily, voters had the foresight last year to vote for Proposition 6, which will address the long-term water needs of the state. However, until that funding is directed to the most critical projects on the drawing board, Texas needs some short-term relief.

We can look toward the Gulf of Mexico for a hurricane or tropical storm, but climatologists say chances are not good for storms to develop. And nobody wants the destruction that those storms could bring.

Better we have an event like El Niño. Although it doesn't guarantee abundant rainfall, it looks like the best shot we have. Promising signs point toward a wet fall. All Texans have a stake in this. Let's join together and pray El Niño

Study finds crossbreds beef up profits in Texas

Brahman and British crossbred cattle add significant value to South Texas breeding stock, according to a study conducted by the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service. Those cattle also performed best in terms of sale price.

According to AgriLife Today, the study examined the effects of Brahman influence and managerial and market factors on prices paid for breeding cattle in South Texas, which is important for ranchers looking to purchase new females as cowherds begin to build back following the drought.

Data was collected in April at the Tri-County Commercial Female Sale in Beeville, where a special sale featured 123 lots. Coat color, frame size, condition, Brahman influence, physiological stage, polled, price per head, and weight were recorded.

The results are available in a publication at the AgriLife Extension Bookstore.
