

FHA Girls Treat Dads at Banquet

Future Homemakers of America of Muenster High had their annual "Date With Dad" Monday night. It was a buffet supper in the school cafeteria. The meal featured fried chicken and decorations carried out the Valentine theme. Special guests were board members, the faculty and the chapter sweetheart Butch Hudspeth.

Kathleen Pagel, FHA president, emceed the program. Judy Cain offered grace and Carolyn Cain extended welcome. Her dad R. P. Cain gave the response.

Theme of the evening's entertainment was "Teen-Agers" a program prepared by the girls. In a reading, Kathleen Pagel took the guests back into the past describing fashions and telling of dances from 1900 to the present time.

Six of the chapter members appeared in a dance routine doing several popular numbers. The dancing group included Margie Flusche, Judy Cain, Margie Reiter, Monica Fette and Theresa Fisher.

Delores Reiter gave a recitation on "Dad Isn't What He Used To Be," Monica Fette read a poem that brought out that only a hardy creature could play the role of dad, and the mistress of ceremonies called on Superintendent H. H. Homsley to give a brief set of rules, as a dad and director of school life, on "the kind of daughters you want us to be."

Each girl introduced her dad and asked him to say a few words. Each dad responded with much the same words about being pleased with his daughter and wishing he could keep her at this particular age a while longer.

Board members and the faculty were introduced and Chapter Sweetheart Butch Hudspeth was presented. About 50 persons were present.

The girls planned the meal and did all the preparation. Last minute details and serving were done by member mothers Mmes. Dick Cain, Emmet Fette, Jerome Pagel, B. J. Sicking and John Wieler, assisted by Mrs. H. H. Homsley, chapter adviser, and Mrs. Willie Walterscheid.

How Valuable . . .

is local newspaper advertising to local business people?

Here's what the American Bankers Magazine, a publication which represents a traditionally conservative and practical profession, has to say on the subject:

"No business man or woman in any town should allow a newspaper to go to press without his or her name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.

"A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town . . . it's the best possible town advertiser. The man or woman who does not advertise does an injustice to himself or herself and definitely to the town."

It pays to advertise consistently in

It was a celebration honoring Mr. Fuhrman who observed his 72nd birthday on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Capacious of St. Benedict, joined by their daughter of Dallas, and his brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. Ed Capacious of Saint Jo, Iowa, visited in the Fuhrman home. Since the family was all together the Iowans saw everybody at once. The Fuhrman and Capacious families were neighbors in Iowa.

Attending their father's birthday observance were Bill Fuhrman of Fort Worth, the Robert Pultes and children of Gainesville, the Robert Bayers and children, the Gilbert Endres and daughter and the Alvin Fuhrmans. Jerry Fuhrman of Austin, the only one not present, sent greetings.

After a visit here the Iowans went to Lindsay to visit Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Fuhrman. From Dallas they will go to Florida for the winter. They have relatives there.

Silver Anniversary Observance Held by The Leo Henscheids

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Henscheid observed their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary with an informal get-together of relatives and friends in their home in the evening. Those attending presented the honor couple a shower of gifts in keeping with the occasion.

After card games and visiting Mrs. Henscheid and daughter Carol served refreshments. The couple's two other children, Jerry of Austin and Mrs. Damien Hellman of Lubbock, who were unable to be here sent congratulations and gifts.

STRIKES

At the risk of being considered antagonistic to labor unions, which definitely I am not, it seems to me that labor unions should seriously consider entirely abolishing their "strike" weapon.

Labor unions were born, passed through their babyhood and adolescence, became full grown, because public opinion was behind them in their struggle to win for their members fair pay and good working conditions. That same public opinion can bring about their undoing, if through too frequent and all too-often unwarranted strikes, they incense the public to demand legislation that would make strikes illegal.

The general public is patient and long suffering, but there is a limit to its fortitude. Each strike that discommodates the general public tends to make it look with less and less favor on the entire structure of labor unionism.

In its October 8, 1957 issue, the Toronto "Globe and Mail," editorially stated the case briefly and well, as follows:

"What most people think in the end determines the matter. Each prolonged strike, with its accompanying hardships and bitterness, hastens the day when public opinion will demand of legislators that the strike weapon be abolished; or at least that its use be sharply restricted. Public opinion will demand this not because it is against higher wages or shorter hours or unionization; but because it has too often seen, and felt, the destructive consequences of using a sledge hammer to crack a nut."

OUR "CAN-DO" IS SLIPPING

Chairman Lyndon Johnson of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, who is not the alarmist, arr-waving type, believes with the rest of this group that all of us (in and out of the armed services and the defense plants) have got to work harder if this nation is not to sink to the level of a second class power and subservience to Russia. He has remarked with laconic eloquence—

"But Keep Out Of My Back Yard!"

in respect to missiles—that we have the "know-how," but are short on "can-do."

The Johnson recipe against national decline is "to work as though there will never be a tomorrow and everything must be done tonight."

The Senator is saying, in effect, what GE Vice President Lemuel R. Boulware has been telling business and industrial groups in a series of talks across the nation. But Mr. Boulware, who was vice president of the War Production Board in World War II and ought to know, goes even farther. We have been dogging it to the point, he says, where national production could be stepped up 20 percent with "the same facilities and personnel, without any evil speed-up or anyone going home any more tired than now."

"We don't have to choose between butter and missiles," declares Mr. Boulware, "to finance our stepped-up defense program. We can have both. We can have the sky full of our sputniks with our dogs in them. We can still live 20 percent better."

But it's time to forget that irresponsible admonition: "Take it easy." Those should be fighting words to all of us, especially in view of the hard fact that the productivity of labor has been going down for the past 18 months — when it should rise three percent a year merely through improved tools and increased know-how. During the past year it has slipped five points.

Taking the hitch in our belts that Mr. B. urges is a painless prescription. It would boost our $400 billion economy by $80 billion more — the grand total that is being spent by Government!

If we accept such advice, we CAN have missiles and butter, we CAN turn the cold war tide — and without going deeper into debt. But we CAN'T "Take it easy." The very words are subversive.

Dorothy Thompson looks at education: "Most American parents do not want their children to be educated. They want them to be trained for a specific function. They despise 'useless' knowledge. So our high schools are forced to teach everything under the sun, typing, home economics, mechanics, parent-hood, and many other things that young people once learned at home, in specialized schools, or as apprentices. But a real educational institution is not a job factory . . ."

Average U. S. Family Is Only 3 Months Ahead of Disaster

CHICAGO — The average American family is only three months from bankruptcy, two experts have agreed.

The experts are Helen White, executive secretary of the National Thrift Committee, and Jack Olson, vice president in charge of the disability department of the Combined Insurance Company of America, Chicago.

Their comments, were based on a recent survey — conducted by leading insurance companies — on the financial standing of middle class American families. The survey showed, they said, that the average family is just 90 days from disaster, financially-speaking.

Only a few families accumulate a financial cushion to carry them beyond this point if the breadwinner loses his job or is incapacitated by illness.

Criticizes Practice
 The survey showed, Miss White and Olson said, that the pay-day-to-pay-day form of financial existence is taking a psychological and sociological toll. It creates marital strains between husband and wife, plus anxiety and tension among children.

"The results of the survey represent up-to-date proof that many families have little or no reserve to tide themselves over an emergency that suddenly cuts off current earnings," said Miss White.

"In many instances, the family's paycheck undergoes a lateral pass the minute it is picked up at the payroll office. The check is cashed or deposited in a checking account — but the money must immediately be paid out to cover bills and demands for the family's current subsistence."

Olson said many families "have a financial sword of damocles hanging over them."

"How can they ever achieve peace of mind or family tranquility under situations like this?" he asked.

Even with the continuing inflation, Miss White and Olson agreed, there are concrete steps families may take in order to ward off catastrophe.

Miss White emphasized the need for sound personal money-management — based on a practical budget and recognition of the fact that "outgo must never exceed income."

The perfect example of minority rule is a baby in the house.

THE BASIS OF BROTHERHOOD

By Bishop Fulton J. Sheen

ONE OF THE greatest paradoxes of our times is that while mankind has drawn closer and closer mechanically, it has grown further and further apart spiritually. Radio, telephone, television and many other things have pulled men together spatially, but at a moment when men have lost all common ideals and purposes.

The explanation is simple: We have lost the unifying bond of the spiritual. A scientist can bring together in his laboratory every chemical constituent of the human body, but he cannot make a man. What these chemicals are without a soul, that our civilization is without God. The wildest fallacy of modern times lies in the attempt to create a brotherhood of man without the Fatherhood of God.

AS A NATION we give much in foreign aid each year. Individually we are constantly being exhorted to think of others, to aid others with our money, our time, and our strength. But we will not grow any closer to the people we help unless someone explains why we should help our neighbor.

Is it because he is of the same nation, the same class, the same race that we are? Should we help him because we will receive something in return? None of these reasons are sufficient.

ONLY A SPIRITUAL explanation will satisfy us. Only when we recognize the dignity of human nature itself—created by a loving God and destined for an ineffable union of love with Him—will we find an adequate basis for loving one another.

Besides this, we must love our neighbor because the Son of God died for him, and because the Son of God has commanded us: "Love one another, as I have loved you." As the spokes of a wheel are united because they all center in the hub, so we can be united only in our center who is God.

THE WORLD is one because it was made by one Lord and is governed by Him. Unity of men can be established not on the basis of class or race, which divides us, but only on the basis of religion.

We must recognize God as our creator and fulfill our duties both to God and to our fellow creatures. Our love of God is inseparable from our love of neighbor. As St. John said: "If anyone says, 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar. For how can he who does not love his brother, whom he sees, love God, whom he does not see?"

THERE WILL NEVER be any true brotherhood until we all learn to pray, "Our Father, Who art in heaven . . ."

PRICED OUT OF THE MARKET

A leading newspaper recently carried two important stories side by side on the front page. One was headlined: "Labor to seek higher wages, shorter week." The other headline read: "November jobless highest since 1949."

This puts one in mind of the irresistible force and the immovable object.

Labor can press for higher wages and shorter work-weeks, and very likely it can get them. But labor can't make people buy the goods and services that keep the labor force employed.

A worker, like a product, can be priced out of the market. There is plenty of evidence that this is beginning to happen now.

Fluoridation of Public Water Gets AMA Endorsement

Dallas — The recent American Medical Association endorsement of fluoridation of public water supplies to help reduce tooth decay should encourage many more Texas communities to utilize this practical and effective public health measure, according to the David Graham Hall Foundation of Dallas.

"The A.M.A. first endorsed fluoridation in 1951 and strongly re-affirmed its approval in December of 1957 after exhaustive research and study," it was pointed out by Dr. Earle Williams, Dallas dental surgeon who is a member of the Professional Council of the Hall Foundation.

"Adjusting the fluoride content of drinking water to one part fluoride per one million parts of water has proved to be a simple, safe, inexpensive and effective way to reduce dental decay by more than 50 per cent," Dr. Williams said. "Fluoride is a natural substance found to some degree in all drinking water and in many foods. It helps to build tooth enamel, just as calcium and phosphorus do."

A total of 230 Texas cities and towns already get their drinking water from sources with a natural concentration of at least one part per million of fluorides, according to analyses made by the Texas State Department of Health.

Some of these communities such as Alice, Center, Deport, Dickinson, Iraan, McKinney, Midlothian, Pampa and Sugar-

Locally the program can be seen over KRLD-TV at 10:15 p.m. on Monday. Filmed in cooperation with the San Antonio Zoo, the feature shows poisonous snakes including the diamond-back rattler, the copperhead, and the water moccasin. In addition, there are pictures of non-poisonous snakes including the Mexican ringed milk snake, the indigo or blue bull snake, the Sonora king, and the garter snake.

land are fortunate enough to have water with just about the right natural proportion of fluorides. In addition, ten Texas cities are adding fluorides to their water supplies in the proper proportion. These are Breckenridge, Corpus Christi, Paris, Port Arthur, Temple, Marshall, Graham, Gonzales, Muenster and Wellington.

"On the strength of the latest endorsement by the American Medical Association, it is hoped that officials of those Texas communities which are not blessed with naturally fluoridated water will now proceed to investigate the benefits of a proper fluoridation program," Dr. Williams said.

Fluoridation has also been endorsed by such organizations as the American Dental Association, Texas State Board of Health, American Public Health Association, the American Nurses Association, American Hospital Association and the U. S. Public Health Service.

Soil Conservation Chairman Reviews 1957 Achievements

By Rush Freeman

At the beginning of a new unspoiled year, it might be well to take a backward glance to see what was accomplished last year by farmers and ranchers in cooperation with the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation District's program of soil, water and plant conservation.

In the overall picture of progress, landowners cooperating with the local district's program did a good job of applying soil and water conserving practices to their lands last year in spite of some record making weather conditions. Last year was one of the wettest years on record, following about seven years of below normal moisture, and most landowners were caught with their plans down. They had not planned on the sudden switch in moisture conditions, and most of the conservation practices that were put on the land had to be done between rains.

REALLY LOADED — In Spain, elbow-bending can be a strenuous affair. This expert displays the proper way to drink from a "porron," or glass wine jug, at a roadside cafe near Barcelona. The giant container, which weighs 50 pounds when full, must be held at arm's length. The wine is caught as it squirts from the slender spout. The proprietor offers free drinks to anyone strong enough to handle a full load.

229 more landowners in the district signed agreements to cooperate with the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation District's program to save the soil. The Soil Conservation Service assists the district program by furnishing trained technicians to work with the landowners in planning and applying conservation practices.

Last year there were over 60,000 acres planted to soil improving and soil protecting legume cover crops, such as clovers, vetch, guar and peas. The practice of leaving crop residue on or near the soil surface as a protective mulch was applied on over 100,000 acres. In the program to improve the production of the grasslands a system of deferred grazing in which the grass is allowed long periods of rest was applied on 48,524 acres of native grass. Proper stocking rates, better grazing distribution and grazing management to leave one-half of each year's growth of grass on the soil for protection, and improvement was practiced on 53,839 acres of grassland.

Seventy-six miles of terraces were completed last year to bring the total to 2,905 miles of terracing that has been built on farms in the district. Farming the land with the terraces or on the contour is being practiced on 90,045 acres.

Another 180 ponds to provide additional livestock water were built last year. A total of 507 ponds were stocked with fish in 1957 from fish hatcheries.

There were 112 grassed waterways planted last spring for safe outlets for terrace water and 8,088 acres were seeded or sodded to grass for better grazing and soil protection.

All of these practices have been planned and applied to the land in 1957 by landowners who have a desire to protect and improve their soil. Each practice is used to prevent soil and water loss by slowing down run-off and getting as much water into the soil as possible, to keep a protective cover over the soil as much as possible, and to build up the fertility and water holding capacity of the soil so that it will produce better crops. It is the use of each acre of land within its capabilities and the treatment of each acre of land in accordance with its needs for protection and improvement.

The land owners of this district have taken another big step forward in protecting and improving their lands. There is still a lot to be done. May 1958 bring even more progress toward the goal of protecting and improving the soil, so that this and other generations may continue to live without the fear of not having enough to eat.

The number of psychiatrists practicing in the U. S. jumped 57 per cent in the years 1950 to 1956.

MHS Teams Split With Valley View And Lose to Sanger
The long awaited victory for Muenster High girls finally arrived Tuesday night as they squeezed out a well earned 45-37 decision over Valley View.

Other games of the week were repetitions of the old sad story, however. Muenster boys lost 40-31 to Valley View Tuesday night and both teams were swamped by Sanger last Friday. Playing Valley View on the local court the girls overcame an 11-8 first quarter deficit for a 20-20 tie at intermission. During the next period they pulled ahead 33-29, then extended their margin 4 more points for the final lead of 45-37. Jean Wieler was the hot shot of the game with 24. Carolyn Cain hit 9 and Mary Dennis 8.

A bad second quarter was the downfall of the boys in their tussle with the Eagles. After trailing 11-10 in the first period they fell back for a half-time count of 22-14. The rest of the game was about even and Muenster was behind 40-31 at the finish. Leading Hornet scorers were Hamric 8, Harris 7, Wolf 6 and Fisher 6.

At Sanger Friday night both games were one sided. In each case the home team took an early lead and gained steadily until the end. Muenster girls lost 50-29 and the boys lost 58-34. Top scorers for Muenster were Carolyn Cain 16 and Jean Wieler 13 in the first game and Harris 13 and Hamric 8 in the second game.

Tuesday night's games marked the close of the first half of the 37-B basketball season. In the boys' division Alvord and Sanger are tied for the lead with one loss each. Saint Jo girls lead their division with a perfect record. Muenster teams are in the cellar of both divisions.

On the local court Tuesday night Sacred Heart took a 10-4 first quarter lead but Sanger's comeback in the second cut the halftime lead to 18-16. The half continued the hot pace with Sacred Heart holding a 2 point third quarter lead and the 6 point final lead. Dorothy Zimmerer had a good night for 24 points and Loretta Magee was next with 10.

At Waco the Tigers encountered a power house. First and second stringers easily ran up a big lead and third stringers entertained their visitors with an even game the rest of the way.

Muenster Pee Wees Win One, Lose Two

Juniors of the Muenster Public School broke into the win column again Monday with a snappy 20-15 decision over the Seventh Graders of Gainesville Junior High.

In the other two games of the past week, a twin bill at Callisburg, Muenster girls were nosed out 20-18 in the final two minutes and the boys lost by a more decisive count of 36-24.

Scorers in the girls' game were Golden, Kaderli and Dern with 8, 6 and 4 respectively. McElreath led in both boys' games, hitting 19 at Callisburg and 11 in the Gainesville game.

not overlook the one from Bishop Fulton Sheen a few days ago. He says that communism will be as dead as Naziism and Fascism within the next twenty years . . . that it will be destroyed by its own corruption and its long suffering subjects will restore dignity and law.

While Khrushchev rattles his missiles and sputniks it is comforting to think how much good sense the bishop's prediction contains. It isn't conceivable that the thousands of brilliant scientists of Russia fail to see who and what are the real enemies of mankind. Nor is it conceivable that such men will go on indefinitely in fear and submission. Sooner or later they will get their chance.

Our main concern in the meantime is to hope that all this will come in time to prevent the big show-down predicted by the Reds.
