

It remains to be seen whether a wise precedent was established last week by Federal Judge Lemley of Arkansas when he ordered, in response to a petition by the Little Rock school board, to delay integration for two and a half years at Central High School. His purpose was to put a stop to the tensions and incidents caused by integration.

There can be little doubt that the turmoil at Central High during the past year has largely nullified the scholastic efforts of both white and colored students, or that it would continue if the integration were continued. So the judge's order now appears as a distinct service to students of both races. They have an opportunity to turn their attentions back to their studies, from which they were so rudely diverted. During that time it is hoped both sides will cool down.

On the other hand the judge's decision may cause other trouble. There is a chance that this case will be adopted as a precedent in many other Southern schools which might otherwise have followed their integration orders in an orderly manner. We can assume there will be more petitions, some heard sympathetically by the Federal Judges . . . unless the Supreme Court nullifies Judge Lemley's order.

The mere fact that all this tension still continues bears testimony to the folly of the original integration order. This thing is wrong primarily because it is compulsory, and secondly because it is employed as a means of forcibly mixing the races more than as a means of giving equal opportunity to the races. Little Rock itself illustrates this point. Facilities in the colored school there are described as at least equal to Central High's, and the students did not gain in opportunity when they were transferred. Other examples are found in the East, where students were transferred out of solid white and solid colored districts for the sole purpose of mixing them.

We hear many generous and charitable opinions about what our attitude should be to the minority race. And we find many institutions which follow those principles with complete success. The fact to bear in mind, however, is that their policy is voluntary. Furthermore its motive is to help the minority race, not just to force it on the other.

There are many cases of equal generosity and charity by white people to colored people of the South. But they are modified by generations of custom and tradition which forbid mingling of the two races. It is any wonder that people are angered when told that they must integrate? This, after all, is a big demand. Southern whites do not begrudge the Negroes their rightful opportunities but they balk when NAACP smart alecs sneeringly say they have to associate with the Negroes.

People who accuse Southerners of unfairness or an un-Christian attitude ought to consider the elements in the integration issue. Despite pious claims about equal opportunity, the NAACP leaders too often reveal their real objective by demanding racial mingling when opportunity is not an issue.

The most evident test of the merit of integration is its endorsement by the Communist party. Communist affiliations of top ranking NAACP members also point to the real nature of the movement.

Testimony before the Joint Legislative Committee of Louisiana last year revealed that 10 members of the NAACP board of directors have participated in a total of 40 Communist front activities. A more recent investigation by the Florida Legislature revealed a much greater number of NAACP leaders involved in Communist front activity. Besides, there's the obvious fact that the turmoil caused by integration fits perfectly with the communist objective of causing all manner of strife in this country.

An abundance of evidence shows that integration is not even helping the Negro. It is only using him to carry out communism's diabolical work. Big shots in Washington ought to take a good look at this mess. Is it serving Christ or anti-Christ?

Something different in Texas political strategy is that Republican primary scheduled in Dal-

Frequent Showers Cause Standstill In Farm Activity

Frequent rains during the past week have kept farm work at a standstill and leave the crop picture practically unchanged.

Grain harvesting is still some 80 per cent finished, as it was ten days ago. Starting with 1.44 in. then the community has had additional moisture so often that farmers did not have a chance to return to their fields. A few got started again Tuesday, then were put out of business again by Wednesday morning's .17 in. shower.

Five measurements during the past seven days added to 1.56. Combined with earlier rainfall this brings the month's total to 3.60 and the year's total to 21.52 inches.

In other respects also the crop picture is unchanged. Growing vegetation, with ample moisture, is currently in good shape and unharvested grain so far has not been hurt by the delay.

Along with the showers, and almost simultaneous with the arrival of Summer, the community received a very pleasant interlude of cool Fall weather. In contrast to high nineties and hundreds just before, the temperature dropped to the seventies and eighties. The chill brought by Wednesday's shower was probably a record breaker for summers here. Mercury dropped to the low sixties and people got out their coats and jackets.

NEWS OF SICK AND INJURED

Father Martin Fischer is "doing fine," recovering normally from illness that sent him to St. Joseph's Hospital in Fort Worth June 16. He'll be hospitalized a week or ten days more. That was the report Wednesday when Father Harold Heiman of Fort Worth visited here with Father Christopher. Father Harold visited Father Martin before coming to Muenster.

Paul Tempel spent the weekend here with his family and returned to Veterans Hospital in McKinney Monday for continued treatment. He is to have some skin grafting on his left arm in the near future.

Mrs. Lena Bernauer has been dismissed from Gainesville Sanitarium and is convalescing at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Dennis, North Highway 77, Gainesville.

Herbert Hundt of Dallas had a narrow escape from electrocution last week while helping install an electrical appliance. Wires that were supposed to be dead were very much alive and Herbert was unable to turn loose. A companion helped out by yanking his step ladder away and allowing him to fall some five feet to the ground. Mrs. Hundt and the children told about it while visiting with her parents, the Bill Beckers, last Sunday.

N. Miller Suspends Business to Move Into New Building

A shutdown of more than a month begins Saturday at Nick Miller's. The time will be used moving cleaning and pressing and shoe repairing equipment to their recently completed 20x60 new building and to remodel the present location for use exclusively as a funeral home.

Preparing for these changes, the Millers urge all customers to come in and get their clothes on or before Saturday.

The first step in the series of changes is to move cleaning and pressing and shoe repairing equipment. As soon as it is out of the way carpenters will start remodeling to convert all of the 50x60 building into a funeral home. Meanwhile Nick Miller will be installing and repairing equipment in the smaller building some 50 feet north.

Principal changes at the funeral home consist of converting the present casket room to serve as an additional room in the drawing-room chapel. Joined with an accordion door, the rooms will usually be used together. However, in case of simultaneous services each can be used separately. The two rooms will be furnished with 100 folding chairs equipped with kneelers.

The south part of the building, now housing cleaning and pressing and shoe repair equipment, will be partitioned for a reception room at the front and a casket room at the east end.

New Sidewalk in Cemetery Finished

Installation of a new sidewalk in Sacred Heart Cemetery, the Garden Club's big project for this year was completed Wednesday. Leading from the main gate some 275 feet to the crucifixion group, it replaces the broken sidewalk which had served the community for about forty years.

Like the other it is 8 feet wide, but it differs in all other respects. It is thicker . . . an average of 5 inches . . . is reinforced, and the mixture was made from washed gravel. It should be good for centuries.

Bayer Brothers contracted the entire job . . . removing the old sidewalk and building the new one . . . for $841. The garden club has paid for half of it and expects to finish paying after its November collection.

Death Sunday in a hospital followed a long illness. He was a retired employee of the General Services Administration and a veteran of World War II.

Court of Honor is Slated Sunday for Local Boy Scouts

Eighteen boys will receive Scout badges and their mothers will receive duplicate miniatures in the impressive ritual. Scoutmaster Nick Miller and Father Christopher Paladino are in charge of the program.

This is the first court of honor for the new Scout troop.

Local Farmers Join State and Nation In Favoring Quota

By the very slim majority of 13 to 10 wheat farmers of this community joined those of the state and nation in favoring federal marketing quotas on the 1959 wheat crop. Cooke County's vote favored it 100-62.

The approval here was much less enthusiastic however than that in the rest of the state. Balloting was light and the supporting vote was less than the two thirds majority needed to pass the measure. A report from College Station Saturday discloses that 89.2 percent of the voting wheat farmers in this state favored the referendum.

The result of the nation wide approval, as explained by Secretary M. Ferguson of the state ASC committee, is that the 1959 wheat program will include acreage allotments, marketing quotas (with penalties of about $1.10 a bushel on excess wheat) and price supports at a minimum national average of $1.81 per bushel, which is 75 percent of parity.

If voters had not approved, the 1959 program would have no marketing quotas or penalties but allotments would remain in effect as a means of determining eligibility for price support. And price support would drop to 50 per cent of parity, about 1.20 per bushel.

FFA Chapter Meets June 30 to Finish Planning for Trip

Future Farmers of Muenster High will have a call meeting next Monday, June 30, Chapter Adviser Glenn Hellman has announced. The session will be held in the school auditorium and will begin at 8 p.m. It's an important meeting because final plans will be made for the chapter's summer trip. Members are urged to attend and prospective members, next term's freshmen at both local schools, are invited to be present.

At an earlier meeting this month the group mapped plans for the educational tour and set the time for July 6 to 12. High spots on the trip will include a visit to Carlsbad Caverns, sight-seeing through Colorado with a stop-over at Colorado Springs and return by way of Amarillo and Hereford to inspect land irrigation. Going, they'll make stops to inspect different types of soil. They'll travel by bus and sleep out but won't do their own cooking. Stops for meals in restaurants will take less time and be less tiring than a cookout three times a day for about 25 boys, the number planning to go.

Billy Otto and Kenny Klement have been elected delegates to represent the chapter at the state convention in San Antonio July 16-18. Doug Hellman and Donnie Trubenbach are their alternates.

Band-Ag Building At Public School Starts Next Week

A contract for immediate construction of a new vocational agriculture building at Muenster High School was approved Monday night in a special meeting of the school board.

Community Lumber Company is the builder at a contracted price of $31,211.49. Work will begin as soon as the old frame building now in use is cleared away. Bids for purchase and removal of the old structure will be accepted by the school board until 5 p.m. Monday.

The new building measuring 31x161 will be an addition to the northeast part of the present building, joining so that the north wall of the gym and the east wall of the shop will be common to both buildings. Also figured in the project is a porch and sidewalk eight feet wide connecting the front of the addition to the main building.

Matching the main building as closely as possible, it will have bricks of identical color on the west side and tile on the north and east sides. The roof will be flat.

Original plans to provide space for the band in the new addition have been changed. The band will be assigned to the former mechanical drawing room and shop office and drawing classes will go to the new building.

The rooms of the addition and their approximate dimensions were revealed as follows. Drawing room and office for industrial arts classes, 30x30; lumber and supplies storeroom, 30x10; agriculture class room, 30x30; wash room and office, 30x10; agriculture shop class, 30x75.

Parish to Sponsor July 4th Benefit

Emphasis will be on social rather than financial goals next Friday when the Sacred Heart Parish sponsors its annual Fourth of July observance.

With a special drive for church funds completed only a few weeks ago, Father Christopher told his picnic committee that the big purpose this time is to arrange a pleasant get-together for the parish.

Though money making is the secondary purpose it has not been overlooked. Funds realized will go into a special prepaid insurance fund, which enables the parish to save substantially on its insurance expense.

Principal features of the celebration are the dinner beginning at 11:30; a picnic with games, eats and drinks for young and old; and a dance at night. All events will be held at the parish hall.

Lorraine Sicking Willie J. Matthews Say Nuptial Vows

In Sacred Heart Church at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Lorraine Sicking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sicking, became the bride of Willie Joe Matthews of Sulphur Springs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Matthews of Sherman.

Father Christopher officiated at the nuptial high mass and double ring ceremony. Pink and white carnations adorned the altar.

Mrs. Norbert Walterscheid, soloist, presented selections before and after the service and Anthony Luke, organist, and the church choir furnished the mass music.

For her wedding, Lorraine wore a waltz length dress of white French Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over a ruffled nylon net underskirt over bridal satin. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a boat neckline and long pointed sleeves. A tiara of seed pearls and iridescents secured her shoulder length veil and she carried white carnations atop a bride's prayerbook, a gift from the groom. Her father gave her in marriage.

Betty Jean Sicking was her sister's maid of honor in a waltz length shrimp pink bouffant of crystalline and Pat Horn was bridesmaid for her cousin wearing a green dress of identical design. Scoop necklines with stand-up collars were features of the moulded bodices and pleated inserts were set into the full gored skirts. Matching headpieces and short white gloves completed their costumes and they carried nosegays of white carnations.

Jimmy Lang and Alvin Vrla of Sherman, friends of the groom, were his attendants and Jimmy Sicking, brother of the bride and Pat Connor of Durant, cousin of the groom, were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Sicking wore a light blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Matthews, mother of the groom, wore a tan dress and white accessories. Both had white carnation corsages as did Mrs. Ben Sicking, the bride's grandmother.

A reception and buffet supper for about 150 guests honored the newlyweds in the parish hall. Janice Klement presided at the bride's book. A dance in the VFW Hall concluded festivities.

When Mr. and Mrs. Matthews left on their wedding trip she was wearing a blue chemise with white accessories. They will make their home at 927 Gilmer Street in Sulphur Springs where he is parts manager for Sulphur Springs Farm Store. He was graduated from Sherman High school in 1955. Lorraine was graduated from Muenster High in 1957 and had been employed as a secretary in Fort Worth.

Out of Town Guests

Among out of town guests at the wedding in addition to those from Cooke County were Theresa and Catherine Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Matthews and daughter Anna Catherine, William Houser, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brooks and daughter Vickie Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Estall Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cave and daughter Sharon, all of Sherman.

Andy Yosten and Mrs. Ernest Young and daughter Barbara of Fort Worth; Mrs. Anna Lang and Jim Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vrla, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Faber and daughter Janet, all of Dorchester; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Connor and Pat Connor of Durant, Okla.; Mary Ann and Richard Blazek of Southmayd; and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Yosten of Purcell, Okla.

Gift Party Given For Caroline Hesse

Caroline Hesse, bride-elect of Harold Neu of Lindsay, was the honoree at a miscellaneous gift shower Friday night at the home of Mrs. Nick Yosten with Mrs. Leo Hesse, Mrs. Norbert Koesler, Jane Hesse, Evelyn Haverkamp, Mrs. Werner Cler and Mrs. Werner Yosten sharing hostess duties.

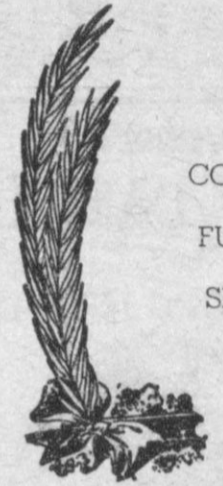

Thirty guests enjoyed the lawn party with paper and pencil games and refreshments of frosted lime punch and angel cake. Caroline received a white carnation corsage from the hostesses.

An arrangement of garden flowers centered the gift table and Marcie Neu and Evelyn Haverkamp helped the honoree open the shower gifts.

Guests were present from Muenster, Lindsay and Gainesville.

Caroline's wedding will take place Saturday in Sacred Heart church at 9 a.m.

The American Way

HOW TO KILL ENTERPRISE — AND FREEDOM

By John T. Flynn

Several months ago Nikita Khrushchev, the communist dictator of Russia, made a remark to our ambassador, Khrushchev, of course, likes his little joke—usually at our expense—and maybe he was pulling the ambassador's leg. Then again, maybe he wasn't. He told our envoy that Russia was going to re-educate the United States to communism.

Now I can hear a lot of very smart Americans give that statement a big horse laugh. In fact, I heard a successful businessman say at the time that Khrushchev was talking through his hat—that the American people could never be educated to accept communism. That, of course, stemmed from a misunderstanding of what communism is. Communism is nothing more nor less than socialism—or rather, perhaps we should say, the ultimate end of socialism. And here in the United States—almost without our knowing it—our "liberals" and left-wingers have already done a pretty good job of "re-educating" us to socialism. It seems to me that when we hand over to the politicians in Washington each year close to eighty billion dollars of our income—to be spent as they see fit—we are already a long way down the road to complete control of our economic and political life by the federal bureaucrats. You can call that by any name you choose, but essentially it's socialism.

Of course, we haven't traveled quite as far down this wretched road as the British, but if we don't change our course, we'll catch up with them before long. Even a so-called "conservative" government in Britain has been able to do little—and hasn't tried very hard—to pull Britain out of the morass of socialistic measures into which she plunged following the end of the war. Here's a recent instance, for which I am indebted to the British weekly publication Time & Tide.

There's a young man in a small town in England who, somehow or other, got the notion that he was still operating in a free-enterprise economy. He had a horse and cart which he used for hauling furniture. He built up a nice little business for himself—so nice, in fact, that he decided to expand and buy a truck. But when England went socialist some years ago, the government took over the trucking business and nationalized it. That means the trucking business must operate under rules and regulations promulgated by the government. So this ambitious young man, before he could operate a truck in his furniture-hauling business, had to get permission from a government bureau.

Now there was already a trucking concern which operated in this young man's town. It was a government-socialized concern. And it objected strenuously to the government granting him a license to run his truck. It frankly stated its reason for objecting. It said the young man was "too enterprising"—that he "is a person who will work round the clock, and would be a threat to our business if he were granted this license. In five years he might replace us in this town."

One of the oddest—indeed, the most terrifying—aspect of this story is that the big trucking company started its own career in exactly the same way the young man did—with a horse and cart. But that was when Britain was still operating under a free-enterprise economy. Now the big trucking company is run by the government—and can't stand a little competition from an enterprising young man. Needless to say, he did not get his license. In a socialized society, he had committed the unforgivable sin of working too hard.

Now we can dismiss this incident airily and say—Oh, but such a thing could never happen in America. Couldn't it? Don't be too sure. We have already had a good many years of "liberal"-leftist-socialist-communist propaganda to teach us—including even many businessmen—to turn to the government in Washington—the Great White Father—for the solution of all our problems. In the process, far too many of us have come to ignore the natural laws of self-reliance, self-respect, independence, enterprise and integrity, without which men cannot remain free. The president of one of the country's largest advertising agencies put it very neatly not long ago. He said the United States is going through "the age of the half-done-job." And he spelled out what he meant: "The land from coast to coast is enjoying a stampede away from responsibility. It is populated with laundry men who won't iron shirts, with waiters who won't serve, with carpenters who will come around someday maybe, with executives whose mind is on the golf course, with teachers who demand a single salary schedule so that achievement cannot be rewarded, with students who take cinch courses . . ."

If we keep on down this road much longer, Mr. Khrushchev won't have to bother "re-educating us to communism."

It begins to appear that the idea of a worried industrialist—backed by $10,000 of his firm's money, an inspired teacher and a cooperative school administration—has cracked the wall of mediocrity that "modern" educational theories have reared between teen-age Americans and the zest for conquest that drove their forebears.

A year's experiment at Neville High School in Monroe, La., has come to a close. Thirty volunteer students, qualified by a grueling exam, have successfully completed an extra tough course—two hours a day, five days a week of college level chemistry—and without benefit of additional credits. During the school year, their example has made them campus heroes and heroines (not grinds or squares), has upgraded classes throughout the whole school and given them a popularity above even the football players!

All of the group are going on to college, all but five plan careers in science. "I've only had one problem from the whole program," says the principal, "the universities are fighting over these kids."

The man who sparked what may be the greatest scientific breakthrough yet, is Robert H. Evans, vice president and general manager of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation's Forest Products division, whose headquarters is in West Monroe. It was his idea to set up an advanced chemistry course in the Neville High School as a one-year experiment and to get the finest man available to teach it. Mr. Evans found the man he wanted—and got him. This is Lon H. Colburn, 61, and recently retired after 33 years at Pittsburg's Allderice High School. Here, his inspired leadership of his students—of whom no less than 300 have become scientists—won for him the tenth honorary degree presented by the Carnegie Institute of Technology in its 56 years. This is the man who says: "There is no such thing as an indifferent student—there is only indifferent teaching."

Mr. Evans' firm put up $10,000 for Mr. Colburn's salary, and within weeks of the new teacher's arrival at Neville, the Monroe school system gave him $4,000 for new laboratory equipment, virtually the first expenditure of the sort in 20 years. Next year, classes in advanced physics will be added, and four schools, rather than one, will benefit by the "Monroe Plan." The search for a physics teacher approaching Mr. Colburn's stature, to be established in the West Monroe High School, is now under way. The Monroe Plan has provided not only a blue print for effective collaboration of industry and school people at the local level but proves some points that most of us have long suspected—that fancy buildings do not make a school, that our educational need is not Federal largesse (and dictation) but better teachers and more imagination and that today's youth is as ready as yesterday's to accept a worthy challenge. And, certainly, the Monroe Plan is a challenge to every US community that wants to give the youngsters who have brains a chance to amount to something.

At various times in history counterfeiting has been punishable by death.

Extension Service Has Suggestions on Cooking With Foil

College Station — For a camping trip, a picnic, or a meal in the backyard, food cooked in aluminum foil is delicious and easy to do. You can bake and serve in the foil and save on dish washing.

Vegetables, meats and fruits can be "pressure cooked" in their own juices this way, with only a bit of seasoning, shortening, butter or bacon added for flavor and moisture.

For best results, extension foods and nutrition specialists offer these suggestions.

Wrap carefully — piece of foil should be large enough to allow for drug store wrap. Place food in center. Add butter or fat and seasonings. Fold edges until tight on food. Double the layer around the food by repeating the process with another piece of foil.

Place package directly on a bed of hot coals. Never use a flaming fire (except when using a reflector oven).

Cooking time will vary with type of firewood, wind strength and other factors. Recipes can give only approximate time. Turn food package at approximately half its cooking time.

Serve contents directly from the wrap, doing away with a dish or plate.

Details on foil cookery are given in the bulletin on "FOOD FOR CAMP." Get a copy from your local county extension agent's office.

Agriculture Gains Through Research

by John C. White
Last summer, Nikita Khrushchev told Americans via a television interview that Communism would eventually win its contest with Capitalism.

The Russian leader was not threatening a hot war. Instead, he based his prediction on the claim that the Soviet Union would in five years outstrip the United States in the per-capita production of meat, milk, and butter plus other agricultural products.

In a word, he was reminding us that a nation is only as strong as its agriculture. But while Russia still appears to have an edge in "Sputniks," that nation is far behind us in farming methods — yet is determined to catch up.

Fortunately, we are not lagging in our scientific achievements in agriculture. The Russians will have quite a way to go if they catch us because our own progress in farming has been phenomenal. In 1939, when World War II broke out in Europe, American Farmers produced a 2½-billion bushel corn crop on 88 million acres. Last year, they produced 32 per cent more corn on 17 per cent less land. Since 1939, the national wheat crop has risen from 740 to 940 million bushels, but harvested acres have gone down from 52½ to 43½ million. Compared with 1939, farmers last year reduced cotton acreage by 45 percent, and still produced 95 percent as much cotton.

The story is the same with livestock. In 1956, dairymen had nearly 3 million fewer cows than in 1940, but each cow produced two-thirds of a ton more milk. For every two eggs a hen laid in 1940, her descendant is laying about three today. Nearly 100 million cattle and horses grazed the same acreage that in 1940 supported only 83 million head.

A pig crop of 90 million in 1956 compares with only 80 million produced on the same farm in 1940.

All told, our farmers today are producing 40 percent more from about the same acreage they had in 1939.

Figures on manpower required to do the job also are significant. In World War I, our farm commodities were produced by 13½ million workers; in World War II by 10½ million, and today by only 7½ million.

The efforts of our agricultural scientists underlie much of this spectacular gain. Their research has practically changed the face of American agriculture. But in the long run, it was the American farmer, himself, who completed the job.

Insurance Company Has $30 Million Day

On June 9 field men throughout the national organization of the Franklin Life Insurance Company, Springfield, Illinois, set an all-time high record of sales produced in one 24-hour period according to a report received this week by Emmet Fette, local agent.

Reports telephoned and telegraphed in by Regional Managers and General Agents throughout the following day totaled an unprecedented $30,478,000. The occasion was a 24-hour campaign of maximum effort as a birthday tribute to Senior Vice President J. V. Whaley.

The highest previous one-day record established by Franklin agents was in January 1957 when they produced a maximum of $27,000,000.

It's poor business to spend money for time and fertilizer and then lose most of it by plowing and planting up and down hill.

Ornery Side-winder

Out in West Texas, a cowboy rushed out of a saloon, made a running broad jump and landed on his sittin'-spot in the middle of the street. "Hurt yourself?" asked a bystander. "Reckon I'll live," bellowed the cowboy, dusting himself off, "but I'd sure like to get my hands on the cussed varmit who moved my horse."

Signs
For over a year a man had eaten in a small restaurant whose sign read, "Mary's Home Cooking," but never once had he seen Mary. Finally his curiosity got the better of him and he said to the waitress, "I've been having lunch here for a long time and Mary is never around. Where is she?" "She's just where the sign says she is," the waitress answered, "home cooking."

NO MOOS IS GOOD NEWS

Cows — that is, range cows from the Wild West and the South who ultimately furnish us with nourishment — do not enjoy travelling. It makes them nervous. In fact it often makes them sick, no matter how carefully they are tended. And it regularly scares the pounds off of them — about eight percent of body weight!

But now, the discontented owners can take heart. The US Food and Drug Administration says the cows can have a tranquilizer while travelling, and has cleared Trilafon (which was first made for people) for injection before shipment from the range, and after arrival at the feed lot. As a result, reduction in shrinkage is saving cattle raisers, buyers and feed lot operators from six to eight dollars per animal! It is estimated that if all animals shipped were given this treatment, the industry would save over one billion pounds of beef a year and the annual $100 million dollar losses in cattle production would be cut to a fraction of this figure.

In addition to soothing the cows on their journey, Trilafon is reducing the incidence of shipping fever — which costs the industry something over $25 million dollars a year — and of pneumonia and other diseases that also take their toll.

On arrival at the feed lot, another injection enables the animals to adjust quickly to the feed and the strange, new surroundings. With their minds at ease, they think about their stomachs and go to work getting fat — instead of fretting for days over whether they are going to like it here. It is this adjustment, incidentally, that feed lot operators consider their biggest and costliest headache. And many graduate veterinarians, who administer the drug, consider it the most potent tranquilizer available for use in animal medicine.

Undoubtedly this new regimen is nice for the cows — and will be extended rapidly to include all that leave home and mother to make the cattle raiser's fortune. It is nice for the feed lot operator, too, having his new boarders coming in bright-eyed and hungry. And it should, in due course, be nice for the rest of us as well — in terms of tenderer, juicier, more flavorful filets and hamburger and hot-dogs!

Tranquelize the cow, the saying is, and you tenderize the steak — Nature's way!

Cotton culture is thought to have originated in India about 1500 B.C.

Gasoline Tax Costs Texans a Million Bucks in 32 Hours

The 35th birthday of the Texas gasoline tax passed Saturday, June 14, with spinning pump meters rolling up state and federal tax revenues at the rate of $1 million every 32 hours, Charles W. Alcorn, president of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association pointed out.

Texas motorists began paying the tax at the rate of one cent a gallon on June 14, 1923. The rate has since risen to 5 cents a gallon for the state, plus 3 cents federal tax. Texas highway users are paying some $273.6 million annually in the state-federal gasoline levy. The state portion will be about $171.8 million this year.

"The 8-cent per gallon tax is equal to about 66 per cent of the basic price which refiners receive for regular grade gasoline, according to recent price quotations," Alcorn said.

Nationally the total "take" of the federal gasoline tax is now more than $1.5 billion a year, and of all gasoline taxes, more than $4.5 billion a year.

Confetti - - - las this year. Grover Cantrell, a labor official and self-styled "Stevenson Republican," is on the ticket opposing Congressman Bruce Alger. A squabble as to whether his name should be allowed on the ticket has been decided in Cantrell's favor by the state Supreme Court.

So Big D conservatives are faced with a dilemma. Come primary time, will they vote Democratic, in support of conservatives on the state and local tickets, or will they vote Republican to assure Alger a place on the general election ticket?

The motive behind all this is obvious. Liberals are trying to divert opponents away from the Democratic primary otherwise to make them pay dearly for voting there. But the political sword happens to have two edges. If liberals go to the Republican primary to favor Cantrell they can't vote for their favorites in the Democratic primary.

All of which points to lots of inter party espionage in the next few weeks. Each faction will be straining to determine the voting trend on the other side. If, for instance, Cantrell is a smoke screen to be abandoned on election day, conservatives will want to know so they can give more attention to the Democratic ticket. But if they discover that Cantrell is strong they may prefer to vote Republican and protect Alger. The same applies the other way. Liberals can make their votes more effective if they have an idea how conservatives will vote.
