From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

We Got to the Fish Fry After All

That community fish fry was sure a great success. There were plenty of appetizing extras, and Will Dudley did a right wonderful job of frying the fish—soft and flaky inside—brown and crisp around the edges.

But we didn't get to go. The missus was tired after working in the yard, and we just didn't want to leave her.

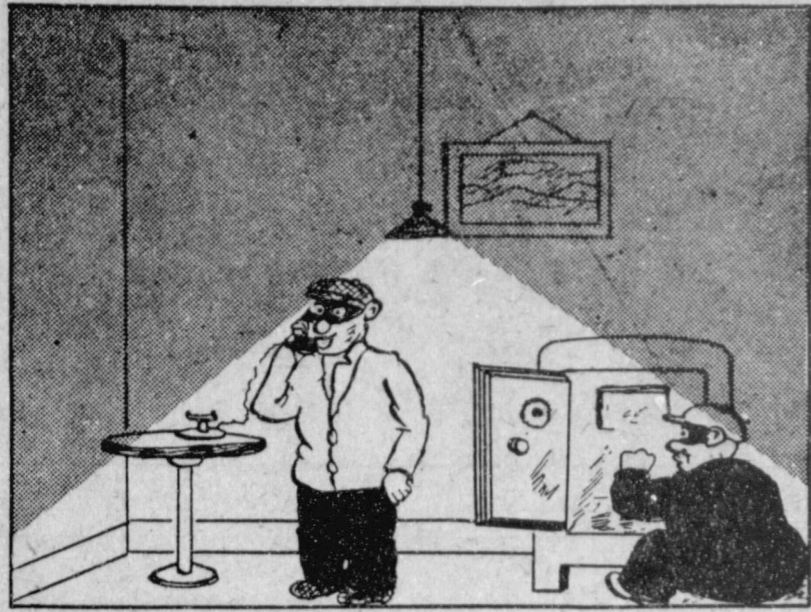

Then how did we know the fish was so good? Because the folks didn't forget us. They sent Skippy Henderson over with two steaming covered plates of fish, and a pitcher of cool, sparkling beer. And we finished them off in front of our own fire.

From where I sit, that's one of the things that makes our town so nice a place to live in: a spirit of share and share alike. That plate of fish and glass of beer weren't just great eating, they were symbols of the thoughtfulness that makes for better living!

Washington News Letter

By Congressman Ed Gossett

Washington, D.C., April 4 — The House is in virtual recess from now until Wednesday since many members wished to return home for Easter.

Among bills passed in the House this week was the so-called First Deficiency Appropriation Bill. Included in this bill were two items involving controversial programs, to-wit—the School Lunch Program and the Crop Insurance Program. Six million dollars was appropriated to make up a deficit in the school lunch program until June 30. The bill carried $20 million to make up a deficit in the crop insurance program. Most of this money will go to cotton farmers in Texas in settlement of last year's contracts. Most members of Congress think it impossible to work out a sound crop insurance program. The present crop insurance program is sure to be drastically changed and probably discontinued altogether. Under existing law, the responsibility for the school lunch program will gradually be shifted entirely to the States.

While one cannot always believe everything he reads or hears I was distressed this week to see a report from Manila saying that military supplies stored there in the amount of $623 million had been looted and stolen until only $100 million remained. In 1944 I offered an amendment which was written into the Surplus Property Act which made the destruction of surplus property unlawful. Thereafter we began to receive numerous reports of the destruction of much good equipment, particularly in the overseas theaters. Numerous officers of the Army and Navy were summoned before our committee and all of them denied that any such destruction had taken place or was taking place. The Committee then insisted that overseas surpluses be either sold or brought back. This the services promised to do and displayed specific orders to that effect. Captain Lydell Hart, an eminent British military critic, once said, "The only thing harder than getting a new idea into the military mind is getting an old idea out." He might have added, "or to get a military mind to admit fault or error."

In the so-called Philippine Rehabilitation Act of 1946, passed in the last Congress, we appropriated $400 million for the payment of compensation to Philippine residents for war losses. In addition to this, we authorized an outright gift to the Philippine government of $100 million in surplus property then located in the Philippines.

Now it appears that neither the armed services, nor the War Assets Administration, nor the Philippine Rehabilitation Administration, are complying with the Acts or the intent of Congress, but instead have permitted the loss to thieves of most of our surpluses now in the Philippine Islands. Perhaps we should give the rest of this stuff to the Philippine government and call our account settled. Furthermore, American officers who have made money out of this situation should be sent to the penitentiary for long terms, and I shall so demand.

I am just in receipt of clippings from the Daily Texan, published at the University of Texas, reporting that 200 students in that school have formed a chapter of the NAACP - National Association for the Advancement of Colored people. This is further evidence of how easy it is to sow the seeds of dissention and radicalism in the minds of youth, especially college youth. The NAACP is well infiltrated by Communists. Instead of serving the cause of the negro, this association is now hurting the cause of the negro. Its true character is revealed by the activities of the negro, Marion Sweatt, who has been seeking to enter the University Law School. When the Texas legislature recently created a separate negro university law school with a faculty and opened it for admission, Marion Sweatt did not appear. He and the NAACP are still insisting on the right of himself and other negroes to enter the main University. Their program is to stir up strife and discord. There are many organizations in our colleges of today that cooperate with such programs.

A sage once said, "If a boy is not a socialist at 19 something is wrong with his heart; if he is a socialist at 40 there is something wrong with his head." But even at 19 most boys should have more judgment than some of these college students seem to display.

EXPERTS RECOMMEND GREEN PASTURES FOR MORE POULTRY PROFIT
 Green pastures for poultry? Yes, says Ted Martin, poultry husbandman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. While chickens and turkeys are not ordinarily put in a class with grazing animals, explains Martin, test have shown that when they get the chance, poultry will get as much as 20 per cent of their feed requirement from green feed. Since feed can generally be produced more economically in the form of pasture than in any other way, cutting down feed costs is reason enough to provide pasture for poultry. But Martin says there are other advantages to be had from growing green poultry feed.

All poultrymen agree that there is no question about the value of Vitamin A in the feed of all classes of poultry, Martin says, and fresh green feed is probably the most dependable and economical source of Vitamin A. Barley, oats, sudan grass, and similar crops can be grown for year-round grazing in nearly all parts of Texas. These pastures will need mowing often, however, to keep the plants from becoming hard and woody.
 There is a precaution to take in grazing poultry, too. Martin explains that too much green feed in the ration of laying hens may cause discolored yolks and watery whites in eggs. But if the birds are started gradually on the green feed, and offered more each day, no harm will result. Martin says poultrymen may begin by turning birds on pasture for 30 minutes to an hour before roosting time, and lengthen the period each day until they stay on pasture all afternoon.

Early Diagnosis Urged As Most Effective Way To Check Cancer Spread
 The cancer death rate could be greatly reduced merely by facing facts and applying existing knowledge of the dreaded disease, Dr. William F. Mengert declared.
 Dr. Mengert, a staff member of Southwestern Medical College and Parkland Hospital, made his observation in connection with National Cancer Month, which will extend through April in accordance with an act of Congress.

The importance of early diagnosis in cancer cannot be over-emphasized — more than three-fourths of all cancer is curable in the early stages, he said. It is a local disease at first, but as time passes it spreads and becomes progressively dangerous, and will inevitably cause death if unchecked.
 "We see very few early cancers at Parkland," he said. "And when a patient waits until he's dying of cancer, medical science frankly can't do much about it."
 These, he said are the danger signals of cancer, the warnings to seek an immediate physical examination:
 1. Sores which fail to heal within two weeks.
 2. Irregular bleeding from a natural body cavity.
 3. A lump anywhere in the body, especially in breast or abdomen or on a bone.
 4. Persistent enlargement of a skin blemish, especially blue or brown moles.
 5. Almost any unexplained chronic disorder, including stomach disturbances.
 These are not proof of cancer,

he emphasized, but warnings to seek competent advice.
 These are only three accepted methods of treatment today, Dr. Mengert observed: Surgical removal, X-ray treatment or use of radium.

Worker Poll Reveals Open Shop Preference
 Washington — In a statement filed with the House Labor Committee, the National Association of Manufacturers last week said: "You have had a parade of labor spokesmen testify that labor laws should be left exactly as they are. These spokesmen speak only for themselves."
 "They say that if you prohibit the closed shop, you will destroy organized labor. In a poll of manual workers announced on Jan. 20, 1947, the Gallup poll presents these results: 11% of the workers said they prefer the closed shop, 23% said they prefer the union shop — and 56% of the workers favor the open shop in which union membership is entirely voluntary."

MOOS OF THE MOMENT

BY UNCLE BOB

of the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

Feed Pastures
 Now for More
 Milk Profits

I've been thinking so much about pastures lately I'm beginning to wonder if maybe I'm getting to the age when I'm about due to be turned out to pasture myself.

We've been talking about pastures for the past few months, with the idea of planning for better pastures this year. And now that April's here, we can stop planning and start doing.

Any dairyman in the sections which went through a long, hot, dry spell last summer doesn't have to be reminded that some good, supplementary, drought resisting pastures would have put money in his pocket in 1946. And if you were in a more favored, rainy section last summer, maybe you won't be so lucky this year.

April is an excellent time to get fertilizer on your native pasture, to build more feed value in it and to prolong its grazing life. Since fertilizer is not at all plentiful, I hope you won't waste any of your own supply.

Some of the grasses or legumes, which may be needed to build up your native pasture, can be seeded in the spring so I suggest you talk to your county agent and see if a bit of seeding won't add something new to your pasture mix which the cows will appreciate.

And another word about Sudan grass. It's still tops on the list of quick-growing, high grade supplementary crops which will lift you out of that summer milk slump. A half acre per cow will do the job. If you have such a good grass season that you don't need Sudan for grazing, it makes mighty fine silage for winter use.

cover. In case you don't get this fine dairy publication regularly, drop a note to Uncle Bob at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago 90, Illinois, and I'll send one without charge.

You'll be particularly interested in a silage article in the March-April issue. Silage is playing a more important part in the good dairyman's well-rounded feed program and there are some valuable tips on silage in this article.

That's only one of several interesting subjects, so write for your copy now.

One of the good points about producing milk at less cost of production is that it not only increases profits, it frees more cash to help out a quality program. And a quality program insures against loss of milk, bringing still more money to cuddle up to your bank balance.

The long range dairy picture looks favorable. Quality dairy products should hold on good demand; population is increasing steadily. The opportunity is here, therefore, for a dairy farmer to get himself squared away to do the kind of a job in years to come which will pay off in profits.

Spring of 1947 sees more of the things available that you've wanted. Milking pails, cans, strainers, and similar material are in better supply in most places now. You can discard the old ones that have earned their keep through many months of service, replace them with new ones that will be much easier to keep clean.

There is more lumber, and better quality lumber, showing up here and there so you may be able to plan now for improvements in buildings or setting up new buildings of one type or another.

Building a milk house is a mighty long stride on the road to top quality milk. The milking parlor type of barn has gained rapidly in the South and Southwest in recent years. Your county agent will have a plan for you to look at, or you can get one from your extension service at the state college.

All in all, it seems to me that there is no better time than now in 1947 to start on permanent improvements in a dairy set-up. The result will be high quality milk which brings good consumer demand which brings good earnings to the farmers.

Yep, April's here and my usual spring urge to get out and wallow in some good green grass is beginning to grow. Green grass in mid-summer means greenbacks in your pocket so I hope you'll take the time to get your pasture program started now.

car last Thanksgiving. Ed's willing to make even a better deal. He'll give the clips for the satisfaction of knowing who the thief is — and the opportunity of taking a hard swing at his kisser.

This column is grateful to Earnest Hayley of the Saint Jo Tribune for clearing up the problem raised here several weeks ago about comparative Red Cross quotas in Cooke and Montague counties.

Sez Hayley: Now we know the answer to your question of why the Montague county's Red Cross quota was so much smaller than Cooke county's. Montague county, we understand, did not have to raise money for local use and the entire donation goes to the National Red Cross, because this county has ample funds in the local treasury. On the other hand Cooke county retains a percent of the 1947 contributions for use in the local field since the 1946 funds are exhausted. Montague was raising money for a single purpose, whereas Cooke county was soliciting funds for a dual purpose.

An item that isn't news anymore — because practically every person who would listen has already heard it from some member of the VFW bowling team — is the hot score of 1748 the veterans chalked up in their final tournament game a couple of weeks ago. But here it is just the same, for whatever satisfaction it will give the fellows, and to prove that more than one club can get recognition for a good score.

The VFW bowlers did not pass up their opportunity to do a bit of friendly ribbing on this deal. However, we can't blame them for suspecting a case of sour grapes. There is something off color about crediting one's own team with a good score and failing to credit another team with a better score.

A Bank and A Farm

Have Much In Common

Here are a few of the ways in which a bank and a farm resemble each other:

1. They are both business enterprises; each is typical of the "American Way."
2. Both require initiative, planning and hard work to achieve success
3. Both pay taxes and contribute to local growth and progress.
4. Both have deep local roots; the success of each is important to the other and the prosperity of both is vital to the entire community.

We have a close bond of friendship and mutual interest with the farmers in this area. If we can help you in any way, let us know.
