Valley View Speed Baffles Muenster; Eagles Win 32 to 6

President Truman and Senator Taft tell us we are going to have more rationing, and as things stand now we can have our choice between the voluntary and the enforced variety.

Lots of economists, politicians and big shots of various sorts are getting worried about the critical shortage of commodities. We're going to be strained feeding Europeans and ourselves on this year's short crop. Whether we like it or not, we'll have to stretch the supply.

Since that conclusion is inevitable the thing to do is face the facts and make up our minds to do willingly what we'll otherwise be forced to do.

After our war-time experience with rationing we are quite generally convinced that we want no more of it. We don't like the bother of fumbling tickets. We don't like the expense of maintaining the system. We don't like the idea of bureaucrats telling us what we can or can't do. What's more we aren't entirely convinced that regimentation is more effective in the long run.

To favor compulsory rationing is to admit loss of confidence in the American public's willingness to meet an emergency in the proper spirit. The vast majority of us still have a conscience. We also have a sense of personal pride and patriotism that prompts us to make a few sacrifices for the sake of our own nation and humanity in general. And if we should ever feel inclined to weaken, the mere thought of another tussle with enforced rationing should bring us back to our senses.

The subject also has a psychological angle well worth considering. Voluntary rationing has an element of honor to it. Nine out of ten people will respond to a request when they would do their best to evade a regulation. It's human nature. We're proud of ourselves for doing something worth while on our own, but we resent being ordered to do the same thing.

All we ask of the big boys in Washington is to tell us how we can help. If they'll lay the cards on the table, recommending what should be bought sparingly and what can be bought in normal quantities, they will find the public pretty generally falling in line. Average people like to measure up to whatever confidence is placed in them. But the same people will make an equal effort to defeat restraint.

Another approach to the food shortage problem is suggested by a report last week that this country wastes 25 per cent of its food. All the way along the line — through harvesting, storing, shipping, merchandising and finally in preparation — we piddle away tremendous quantities which, with out a bit of sacrifice on our part, would be sufficient to sustain Europe through its crisis. Just an effort to reduce this careless loss would go far toward relieving the food shortage.

Incidentally, one form of food waste we seldom consider is the American habit of over-eating. Millions of starving people could live on the excess rations which do nothing but put a strain on our digestive system.

As most of us are aware, practically every week of the year is set aside to commemorate something. This week, October 1-8, happens to be National Newspaper Week, which is quite generally regarded as a fitting occasion for newspapers to toot their own horns. With that in mind we're temporarily turning the column over to Kay Kyser who offers the following salute:

Hey chillun, pay attention! Class is now in session and this is your Old Professor telling you it's about time you paid tribute to one of America's greatest institutions — your newspaper!

This is National Newspaper Week and that's no "Comedy of Errors". In fact, it's time we all agreed nothing's more fun than a newspaper. Feeling very scholarly at the moment, I'd say that as the immediate reflection of a community's taste and opinion, your local newspaper is the crystallization of public thought and feeling. Not only that, but you can swat flies with a newspaper and what's better for lining bureau drawers?

Being a high class student myself, ever since I rocked Rocky Mount by winning the zine-plated yo-yo for being best orator in the drum and bugle, chowder and peanut racing corps. I remember when Shakespeare referred to the seven ages of men. Now we can do that through newspapers. First a baby (Continued on page 10)

Muenster's Hornets did not have a chance when they met the Valley View Eagles last Thursday night under the Valley View high school lights. Uncorking a fast running and aerial game the green clad boys marked up one tally after another until the final count of 32 to 6.

The Eagles looked good at everything they tried. Their heavy forward wall provided plenty of freedom for the light-weight fleet-footed backfield to execute a large variety of devastating plays and was equally effective in smearing Hornet plays before they were well started.

McCollum and Baker sparked the Eagle assault with beautiful exhibitions of broken field and end running and aerial sharpshooting. Gremminger was outstanding for the Hornets with a steady performance at running, passing and kicking, however, with other odds stacked against him, he was not able to match his opponents in results.

Gremminger started the game with a bang when on the second play he broke through center and romped 75 yards for Muenster's only mark.

From then on the Eagles left no doubt that they had the game under control. Receiving the kick they made two short gains on end sweeps then passed to McCollum who ran 40 yards to the goal.

McCollum scored again a short time later on an end run. Attempts for extra points were good after each of the first two touchdowns.

A 30 yard pass across the line gave the Eagles their third touchdown just before the half ended 20 to 6.

The third period went scoreless as Muenster braced and shared in a see-saw performance in the center of the field.

In the final quarter the Eagles cashed in twice on the Hornets' misfortunes. Baker intercepted a pass on the 45 and made a sweeping dash around the right to the open field and another touchdown. Shortly thereafter Muenster's fumble set the stage for the final goal line dash.

Notes On Soil Conservation

Six farm plans have been completed in Tony Trubenbach's group, three miles southeast of Muenster. Individual coordinated farm conservation plans were made with Tony Trubenbach Sr., Martin Trubenbach, F.J. Hacker, Alois Trubenbach, Joe Fette, and Henry Fette during the past week. Martin Trubenbach is applying 200 lbs. phosphate per acre and plans to sow approximately 10 acres of hairy vetch. Joe Fette is preparing a waterway to sod to Bermuda grass for pasture and terrace outlets. Alois Trubenbach is applying phosphate to Spring seeded alfalfa and has a stand on six additional acres of Fall sown alfalfa in bottom land. Frank Hacker plans to sod 15 acres of Bermuda grass for pasture and terrace outlets.

Alfred Bayer, two miles northwest of Muenster, sodded three terrace outlets and a pasture strip to Bermuda grass for pasture & terrace outlets. Bayer Bros. also constructed an eight foot drill type phosphate distributor mounted on rubber at an approximate cost of $60.00. Several other cooperators have made phosphate distributors since.

Most cooperators in Katy Conservation Group already have excellent stands of vetch and rye up. Redman Brothers, W.E. Scott, operator of the Lovett farm, and Meador Brothers, have vetch and rye up to good stands.

J.W. Fleitman, cooperator three miles east of Muenster, is constructing several terraces in the field next to the Rock Station. Mr. Fleitman is using farm equipment and the "island method" of terrace construction.

Ben Voth, cooperator four miles southwest of Muenster, in the Meinrad Hesse Conservation Group, is constructing new terraces.

Joe Fisher, two miles southeast of Muenster, repaired two farm pond dams and spillways during the past week.

Capt. and Mrs. Christopher Fette and son arrived Saturday from Langley Field, Va., to visit relatives and friends here while he is on a 60 day leave.

TWO "FAIR" QUEENS are shown here in front of mammoth Petroleum Building at the State Fair of Texas, at Dallas. Pretty Joyce Mitchell in cowgirl costume looks over the 187-acre grounds of the "world's biggest state fair" which an expected two million Southwesterners will visit between October 4 and 19. In background is huge statue symbolic of France, which at one time governed Texas.

New Mosaics Staff Seeking to Repeat Last Year's Honors

The Sacred Heart Mosaics, student publication of the parochial high school, got off on its second year of publication this week as the editorial staff started preparing copy for the first edition, which is scheduled to be out about mid-October.

According to Sister Patricia, faculty adviser, the students have set out to win more honors such as those which rewarded the efforts of last year's staff.

The National Catholic Press Association last year awarded the Mosaics its first place honor. The Quill and Scroll awarded it second place honors in a contest open to all school papers in the United States and Canada. The Texas Interscholastic Press Association was generous in its praise but could not consider Mosaics in its contest because it requires at least six publications for eligibility. Mosaics had only four last year.

To meet such qualifications the staff plans to make its editions smaller and more frequent this year. Instead of occasional 6 or 8 page paper it will have six 4 page papers.

The Mosaics staff is headed by Evelyn Vogel as editor, Monte Hellman as assistant editor and Doris Hellman as secretary.

Public School Boys And Girls Resume 4-H Work

County Agent B.T. Haws met with boys of the public school Monday morning to re-organize the 4-H Club for the year. Nineteen boys signed up for membership and elected officers as follows: Maynard Williams, president; Harold Reeves, secretary; Douglas Robison, reporter.

Mr. Haws outlined the projects open to the boys and discussed the 4-H Day and tickets and ribbons were given to the club president for the local members.

Girls of the public school also met Monday to reorganize the 4-H Club. Plans for the year's work were discussed and officers elected. Emphasis is to be placed on bedroom and yard improvement this year the group decided.

Officers are Mary Jo Williams, president; Allene Moore, vice-president; Mary Alice Hollars, secretary-treasurer; Dorothy Sickling, reporter. A bedroom demonstrator and a yard demonstrator are to be chosen in the near future.

Robert Mitchell, conservationist of the local work unit, presented an interesting lecture to students of the agricultural class at the public school Monday. His talk covered soil conservation in general and later the pupils wrote essays containing information derived from his lecture.

36000 WATTS AWAIT FLICK OF SWITCH ON HORNET GRID FIELD

Thirty-six thousand watts are ready to blaze at the flick of a switch on the Hornet football field. Installation of the lighting system was completed Monday night when the thirty-two 1,500 watt bulbs were put up and turned on for the first time.

The result was more than satisfactory, according to Father John Walbe, business manager of the team. In his opinion the lights are not only very bright but also properly focused to give all possible illumination to the field.

All that remains now to get the field ready for use is erecting goal posts. That work was started Wednesday and will probably be complete before the end of the week.

For the balance of this season the boys seem destined to play in dust or mud. Sod plowed up during the summer did not get enough rain to bring back a natural turf. Bermuda will be planted next spring.

Hornets Will Meet St. Xavier Academy Here Sunday Night

Prospects are good for the Hornets to score their first victory when they meet St. Xavier's Academy of Denison on the local field Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. Though nothing is known here about the Denison team's record to date, local fans will recall that the Hornets won by several touchdowns in a practice game during the spring training season.

Because of that practice, however, the Hornets are likely to encounter tougher opposition than they did in the spring. Denison went in for serious training then and it has the advantage of longer training periods this fall.

Priming for the game, the Hornets are putting in regular periods of stiff work-outs all this week.

Biggest State Fair All Set To Welcome Two Million Visitors

DALLAS, TEXAS.— Things are popping aplenty at the State Fair of Texas as the 62-year-old state-wide institution, "the world's biggest state fair", gets set to swing open its gates Saturday for the annual 16-day run. Two million visitors are expected between Oct. 4 and 19, to top the record breaking 1946 attendance of 1,639,986.

"In every way it will be the greatest State Fair ever held," promises General Manager W. H. Hitzelberger. "Exhibits, livestock and agriculture shows, big new features, and the nation's finest entertainment are the best ever seen in the Southwest."

From all sections of the Texas Empire will come elaborate agricultural displays to grace the mammoth Agricultural Building. The Livestock Show will be outstanding, the most representative ever seen at the Fair. The Junior Livestock Show, in its second year, will be five times as large as it was in 1946.

Texas' and the nation's biggest industrial concerns are ready to parade before State Fair visitors many postwar products not off the assembly lines last year.

The Home Show, Food Show, Electrical Show & Petroleum Show will be outstanding. In the Implements Show many new farm machines will make their debuts including a new baler that turns out round bales and a miracle corn picker capable of harvesting 20 acres a day.

The famed Bikini Goats, survivors of atomic bombings of the Pacific, will be part of a big Health Show.

More than $1,500,000 worth of great works of art, on loan from New York's Metropolitan Museum, will be seen in the Museum of Fine Arts. Among noted masterpieces will be "The Horse Fair" by Rosa Bonheur and "Portrait of an Admiral" by Rembrandt.

The Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission is bringing a mammoth exhibit of all types of fish and wild life known in the Southwest.

Entertainment headliners will be the Broadway hit, "Annie Get Your Gun," starring Mary Martin; the White Horse Revue and Hippodrome Show; Ice Cycles of 1947, big football games in the Cotton Bowl, and scores of thrill rides and shows on the million dollar Midway.

RHEUMATIC FEVER IS MOST DEADLY DISEASE IN 10-14 AGE GROUP

Austin, — Rheumatic heart disease is now the first cause of death among children aged 10 to 14, and is second only to tuberculosis at ages 15 to 25. Despite the importance of this disease its epidemiology is not completely established. No vaccine such as those that prevent typhoid, diphtheria, smallpox, and whooping cough has yet been developed for its prevention or control. We do know, however, some of the danger signals and with the physician's accurate diagnosis some of the damaging results of the diseases may be prevented.

Exposure to frequent chilling, damp or overcrowded living quarters, a poor diet, an attack of scarlet fever, a bad cold or other infection caused by certain streptococcus germs are likely to be predisposing factors in the appearance of rheumatic fever.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, points out that in general the danger signals of rheumatic fever are pain and swelling in the joints of the knees, ankles, elbows, or wrists. The pain usually is felt in one of these centers and spreads to the other. Oftentimes a child will get irritable and cross without any visible signs of a good reason for this attitude; he may cry easily or develop habits of nervousness. A physician should be consulted at once in such a situation, for these symptoms may be the beginning of rheumatic fever.

According to Dr. Cox the best safeguards against this disease are to have each child examined at least once a year by a physician, to have the right kind of food and plenty of rest. When the disease is suspected of being present, a doctor should be consulted at once, and if he prescribes complete bed rest, his advice should be implicitly followed.

Mrs. Ed Wolf of Garland visited here Monday with Mrs. Carra Pagel.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stoffels had as guests Sunday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sandmann of Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ramsey visited in Saint Jo Tuesday with his father, V.M. Ramsey who is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sam Sparkman.

EUGENIA LUKE AND
C. J. RUCKER UNITED IN FORT WORTH RITE

Miss Eugenia Luke of Fort Worth, formerly of Muenster, became the bride of C.J. Rucker of Fort Worth in a pretty ceremony performed Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in Saint Alice church, Fort Worth, with the Rev. Langerhorst performing the ring ceremony and officiating at the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of John Luke of Fort Worth and Mr. Rucker is the son of Mrs. Annie Rucker of Weatherford.

White chrysanthemums adorned the altar before which the vows were exchanged and Nolan Havens, organist, played "Oh, Perfect Love" preceding the ceremony. He presented Lohengrin's Wedding March for the processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recessional. Schubert's Ave Maria was given as a vocal solo by Lou Marcello.

The bride wore a becoming two-piece suit of aqua wool with brown accessories and a white orchid corsage. Her only jewelry was "something old", a cameo necklace, that belonged to her mother, and she carried a white prayer book.

Miss Elfreda Luke of Muenster, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor wearing a dusty pink suit with brown accessories and a gardenia corsage. Russell Johnson of Fort Worth was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception honored the couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson. The refreshment table was laid with a white lace cloth and held a three-tiered wedding cake and crystal punch service and white tapers in crystal holders. White roses and chrysanthemums were used in decorating.

Attending from Muenster were Messrs. and Mmes. Ben and Joe Luke, W.H. Endres, Paul Endres, Anthony Luke and Urban Endres, Alphonse and Miss Theresia Luke, Gilbert and Miss Dolly Endres.

These were also guests at a buffet dinner at 5 o'clock Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Luke.

A crystal and a linen shower were among pre-nuptial courtesies honoring the bride and a rehearsal dinner was given Saturday night at the home of the groom's mother in Weatherford. Guests were the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Luke, Vincent and Edwin Luke, Miss Elfreda Luke, Miss Faye Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson and son, Jim.

MUST PAY $605,000

San Francisco. — Moses Goldman, 56, prominent Petaluma, Calif., merchant and civic leader, was assessed $605,000 for failing to file income-tax returns for 20 years.

Treasury agents called it "the most unusual case in history of the department."

Goldman was ordered held for sentencing after pleading guilty to evading payment of $135,135 in taxes for the last two years.

The treasury department then assessed Goldman $605,000 in back taxes and penalties for failure to file returns since 1927, and seized his $268,000 bank account in part payment.

Goldman's attorneys protested, saying that in effect Goldman had "worked his entire life for the government" and was now bankrupt.

In addition to the tax penalties, Goldman faces a one-year prison term and $10,000 fine on each of the two counts.

GOVERNMENT

The government of the United States consists of a grand total of 633 men and women, elected by popular vote (435 Congressional Representatives, 96 Senators, one President and one Vice-President). Into the hands of this small group we place the power, among other things, to tax us, to regulate us, to keep us at peace or plunge us into war.

The great fault of all governments is that they ever seek to increase their power. Seizing on emergencies as pretexts (sometimes justifiable, more often not) they add bureau after bureau and put more and more people on the public payroll. The bad thing about this procedure is that when the emergency (real or fictitious) has passed and there definitely is no need to continue these bureaus, governments do not close them up. All history shows that once having seized any new power, a government clings tenaciously to it.

This is not strange. It simply is a manifestation of human nature asserting itself. In the first place, politicians thrive on power—in the second, those who have been added to the public payroll protest vehemently if any attempt or threat of attempt is made to take them off. This creates a vicious circle of politicians afraid of losing votes by releasing government employees and those employees demanding they be retained as millstones around the necks of the taxpayers.

The money governments spend comes not only from the income tax payers but from all the people. No one escapes the heavy hand of the government collector. He lurks behind every shop counter and gasoline pump. This gives the politicians power and with it they are able to perpetuate themselves in office. There was a time here in America when power was obtained by individuals and groups through the organization of money. That is not true today. Money now is just as much out of fashion as the bustle and power comes through political position.

Americans mistrusted the money power formerly vested in tens of thousands of individuals. Today far greater power is delegated to but 633 individuals. We have greater reason to distrust this craving for political power because it is more dangerous than the former craving for money power.

This appetite for power on the part of government is progressive—becomes more and more voracious. The more it gets, the more it wants. Those in power, already having taken over many private functions, demand that more enterprises be put into their hands to run. Each additional activity mulcted from private enterprise and taken over by government, gives government just so much added power. This in itself is bad enough but it also is expensive—it heaps additional burdens on every American who is not on the public payroll, because it is those outside of government who must give of their earnings to maintain those inside.

That government is best which rules the least, keeps the number of employees on its payroll at a minimum and pares its other expenditures to the bone. It naturally follows that such a government, except in times of war, does not have to levy backbreaking taxes. Up to a few years ago, that was the kind of government we had here in America. We don't have such a government now.

During the first session of the 80th Congress an honest attempt was made to take government off the backs of the American people. Some progress was made in spite of White House interference. Let's hope in its second session the 80th Congress will continue the good work and meet with a greater degree of success.

DON HEROLD SAYS: I LIKE AMERICA'S ENTERPRISE SYSTEM

There are a few basic reasons why I believe in the American system of encouraged enterprise.

First, I'd like the right to work harder and longer and think harder and learn more and produce more than the average, and I don't want to put my earnings in a communistic pot and divide share-and-share alike with any loafers or take-it-easy folks.

Second, I want to save money, and I believe I should have the chance to invest my savings where they can go to work to help produce something that the world needs—and to give jobs to others—and earn me a small profit which will help take care of me during rainy days and my old age.

Third, I want to be free. I don't want anybody to tell me what to think, how to vote, when to work or what to do. I want the right to howl my head off when I don't like any politician or anything else.

ALLIGATOR EGGS

Some folks don't seem to be interested in what the Administration is trying to do to stop the Red Tide of Communistic aggression. They remind me of the story of the two drunks whose dialogue went like this:

"Ever hear how alligators propagate the species?"

"Not interested. I ain't no alligator."

"Well, anyhow I'm tellin' you. Mamma 'Gator lays a million eggs, covers 'em up with sand and leaves 'em to hatch."

"Tol' ya' I'm not interested."

"Next day Papa 'Gator comes long, digs up them eggs and breaks half a million of 'em. And next day he comes back and digs up the rest and breaks all of 'em but three little eggs which he covers up and leaves to hatch."

"So what? Why should I be interested?"

"Well, you drunk so-and-so, you better get interested, cause if it wasn't for Papa 'Gator, you and me would be standing waist deep in alligators now."

Personally I'm interested in how many Communistic eggs Papa Truman can bust, and Wallace would be a good egg to start on. (Kingsville Record)

A Virginia editor suggested to a bride that the best way to protect her wedding ring is to dip it in dishwasher three times a day.

GLASS SPINNERS HAVE SPIDERS BESTED AT MAKING FINE FIBERS

As continually finer glass fibers are developed new uses are appearing, until now a whole new field of applications has opened. National Patent Council reveals.

Extremely fine glass fiber materials were used for heat and sound insulation in B-29's. Now the tiny fibers have been reduced to only five 100,000ths of an inch in diameter — invisible to the naked eye. They have been applied to manufacture of outdoor clothing, upholstery material and similar items.

Quilted garments interlined with batts of this material have already been placed on the market. The combination of thermal insulation and light weight makes the material promising for linings in comforters, sleeping bags, children's snow suits and similar garments.

Glass fibers contain no organic protein and thus do not cause allergies, such as asthma. Pillows and mattresses filled with the superfine fibers will probably find a market among those who cannot sleep on down or feathers. The inorganic filler is resistant to rot from fungi or from the elements. Glass fiber may be used to fill cushions for marine use, where it will have the advantage of buoyancy.

Somewhat larger glass fibers are broken into short lengths of up to one and a half inches for reinforcing special papers, plastics and paints. In all of the applications, the fire-resistance of the glass base, because of its mineral nature, is an important advantage.

Moulded automobile fender of glass fiber and plastics will be a replacement part for models no longer being made because the dies are not available. Experts say it will be lighter than steel fenders, will not dent or crumple and can be produced at lower cost.

PORTRAIT IN GLASS

This photograph is printed in— not on—a new glass, which through prescribed use of ultraviolet light and heat, can receive permanent colored prints with three-dimensional effect, according to National Patent Council. Photographic reproductions in this newly patented glass have an ageless quality. They will not fade. Sensitive only to ultraviolet light, the glass does not have to be handled with the care required of photographic paper. There is no "grain" in the design.

"I got it from playing my favorite game," he explained. You know I like to call people up in the small hours of the morning and ask 'Guess who?'

"Yes," someone prompted. "Well," concluded the Broadway character, "this morning someone guessed who."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

"It's Living That Counts"

I stole the title of this column from a magazine article that said a whole lot better than I can what farm and country life can mean.

We talk about farm profits, production, research, and mechanical improvements... but isn't it true, what we really value is the life country living offers us?... the chance to be close to our families and neighbors... children sharing in the chores... working with our own hands at a worthwhile job.

And country pleasures are simple: good talk at day's end, and a glass of mellow beer with friends... the companionship of man and wife, unruined by distractions of the city... the mutual tolerance of one another's tastes—in choosing a friend, or a glass of beer, or a candidate for Governor.

Mind, I'm all for material improvements. But from where I sit, the real goodness of our country life is that spirit of tolerance, moderation, and good fellowship.

LO! THE POOR INDIAN

Have you ever visited a western Indian reservation and seen how the "noble redman" spends his days? He squats in the dusty doorway of his pueblo, flea-bitten dogs and dirty children swarming around him, and waits expectantly for the gullible tourist to hand him a half dollar for the privilege of snapping his picture. The kids are on the alert for their handout too. They've been taught to hop around in a circle, uttering miniature war whoops, while papa beats a tom-tom.

Papa Hiawatha wears a cheap, plaid cotton blanket tied around his hips for local color. The story goes that government officials have cut out the seat of his pants in order to make him wear the blanket — else why would anyone want to take his picture, and how could he come by an occasional four bits? Indians are poor too, and they like their beer and cigarettes.

Everything Free; Why Work? It is said an eastern "go-getter" spied one of these "braves" loafing in the sun, and his Rotarian spirit rebelled at such display of do-nothingness. "Chief," remonstrated the go-getter, "why don't you get yourself a job?" "Why?" grunted the chief. "Well, you could earn a lot of money — maybe thirty or forty dollars a week." "Why?" grunted the chief. "Oh, if you worked and saved your money, you'd soon have a bank account. Wouldn't you like that?" "Why?" grunted the chief. "For gosh sakes!" shouted the exasperated go-getter, "with a big bank account you could retire and then you wouldn't have to work any more. . . ." "Not working now," the Indian pointed out.

As a matter of fact no one ever saw a reservation Indian work, and for good reason. His minimum requirements of food, shelter and clothing have been given him for years by the government, and he has not all incentive to acquire anything more. He and all his fellows live exactly alike, and it isn't a high standard of living. The pueblo is a communal dwelling which houses about a hundred families, and you climb outside ladders to get to your unit if it happens to be on an upper level. Indian squaws wash their cloths in a common stream that flows through the reservation, and EIGHT-AT-A-TIME—Believed to be the only one of its kind outside the large automobile factories, this powerful, specially-built machine re-bores eight cylinders at once in the complicated operation of Ed Maher's Motor Rebuilding Division at Dallas. they cook in the fireplace or in an outdoor adobe oven. It's all quite picturesque, but not very convenient or sanitary. Maybe we should be glad the Indians don't know anything about washing machines and refrigerators, since we taxpayers are footing their bills.

No Thanks, We Have One

Generations of this sort of planned "social security" have made the American Indian a dependent, a public charge. It isn't his fault if he's lazy and indifferent. Only when an unusually ambitious young Indian occasionally breaks loose from his traditions and attends an outside school does he amount to anything. It is said if he ever returns to the reservation for any length of time he slips back into the old life, and easily forgets modern civilization.

There are a good many people in this country today who are urging upon us some such plan of government-owned and government-distributed wealth. We are told we'll all have an equal standard of living. They don't go into details of what that standard will be. So far we have been smart enough, thank heaven, to tell them we just ain't buying any. (Serval Inklings)

"Russia does not want war," he said. "She has no production, no food. Her big army is maintained chiefly to keep order within the country."

Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star, the Phoenix, Ariz., Gazette and other newspapers and owner of a radio chain in Indiana, was interviewed on his return to New York after a tour of 20 foreign countries.

His wife, Nina, associate editor of his newspapers, accompanied him on the 10-week tour. They talked to scores of government officials in major foreign capitals. "Russia," Pulliam said, "must be contained behind the iron curtain."

He urged support of the Marshall plan as the "cheapest way out" and said the alternative is "chaos."

The publisher said the Communists "missed the boat" in France, Greece and Italy and their strength is "on the decline."

46 Texas Counties Enjoy Unfair Advantage Through Tax Exemption Privilege

During the campaign involving the so-called College Building amendment, on which people of the State voted Aug. 22, frequent references were made to one disgraceful tax condition in Texas.

It was brought out during the campaign that there are 46 counties in Texas which are exempt from the payment of state taxes.

The practice of exempting some counties from such taxation started after the Galveston flood in 1900. To help that area in its recovery from one of the worst catastrophes in American history, the Legislature agreed to waive state taxes from Galveston County. It was a splendid gesture and no one opposed it.

But like many splendid things, it has been abused scandalously. County after county — including the largest and richest — for one reason or another have asked similar treatment. Sometimes the pleas have had merit and sometimes they haven't. Usually, such applications have not relied upon merit for approval. They reliance has been the most contemptible sort of political horse trading.

As a result other counties in the state have been forced to absorb the additional load of the 46 in the tax exempt class. Heaven knows how many eventually will get a free tax ride, but several such applications invariably await the attention of each Legislature.

If the legislators wanted to render a real service to Texas, they would submit a constitutional amendment forbidding this sort of business. It is one amendment which almost certainly would draw a large outpouring of voters and probably would be approved overwhelmingly. — The San Angelo Standard-Times.

RATTLESNAKE WHISKY HAS COMPLEX RECIPE

New York. — During a raid in Chinatown, federal maroon agents seized a bottle of a beverage called "Rattlesnake Whisky," popular with the Chinese as a restorer of strength. The recipe: Place one live rattlesnake in a large jar; add rice wine, dried toads, soy beans, sliced deer antlers and a handful of dried sea horses; keep six months before drinking — and then drink it at your own risk.
