

Sullivant Is Unopposed For County Judge

I want to take this means of expressing my gratitude to the citizens of Cooke county for allowing me to run unopposed for County Judge of Cooke county. The compliments and the confidence which you have bestowed upon me are received with a deep appreciation and a sincere desire that I may be able to measure up to the high standards that should characterize every public official.

I realize that a county judge cannot please everyone. It will be necessary to say "no" in lots of instances and thereby incur the ill-will of those who ask special favors. An economic administration is impossible until the county judge and the commissioners can learn to say "no".

I think the word service is one of the biggest words in the English language. It is indeed consoling to know that you are being of some service to your fellow man. It is the greatest avenue of progress and the only honorable one.

I do not know all of the answers to the problems that confront a county judge. I do not expect ever to learn all the answers, but as the problems arise, I shall give them my best thought in trying to figure them out. In so doing, I solicit the counsel and advice of the old and the young alike. Without your cooperation and your advice, I cannot succeed as your county judge. Therefore, I trust that you will give freely of your advice to the end that we may make Cooke county a better county in which to live and rear our children.

Again I want to say that you have honored me far beyond my just deserts and I shall endeavor to repay you with honest and efficient service. It is my purpose to conduct myself, and the public trust which you have so graciously tendered me, in such a manner that you will not have reason to regret your actions in supporting me for county judge of the Banner County of the Lone Star State.

CARROLL F. SULLIVANT.

AAA MAKES RAPID PROGRESS ADJUSTING LOSSES FROM HAIL

Rapid progress is being made in the adjustment of crop losses suffered by Cooke county farmers who insured their 1940 wheat under the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation program, according to J. T. Biffle, Jr., chairman of the county AAA committee. Adjustments have been made on 3 farms, and indemnity payments have already been received by 2 of these wheat growers. Adjustment work thus far has been confined to total or "substantially total" losses, where the crop was entirely destroyed or so badly damaged that there was no chance of it producing a yield that would justify harvesting. Mr. Biffle said. Where total or "substantially total" losses have been determined, farmers have the use of the land for other crops. Altogether, 114.8 acres of insured wheat land in the county have been released for other uses, the chairman reported.

GOSSETT RETURNS TO CAPITAL CONFIDENT OF SWEEPING VICTORY

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22. Congressman Ed Gossett, of Texas, returned to Washington this morning for the reconvening of Congress following its recess for the Democratic National Convention. Mr. Gossett spent the week of the recess at home in the interest of his campaign for reelection to a second term. He reports a cordial reception by the folks at home and expressed confidence that he would be reelected by a majority of at least 10,000 votes.

All Southern members of Congress who have stayed on the job during this period of crisis have thus far been returned by substantial votes. Mr. Gossett expressed confidence that his having to remain in Washington during the last week of his campaign would make no difference with the folks back home, many of whom have written to commend him for staying on the job.

FATHER OF C. F. MARTIN BURIED AT GAINESVILLE

J. C. Martin, father of C. F. Martin of this city, died at his home in Bryson on July 14 and was buried in Fairview cemetery, Gainesville, on Wednesday of last week. A number of friends from this city attended the services.

Mr. Martin was 72 years old and a native of Illinois. His wife preceded him in death only two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Herman and daughters, Misses Mary and Helen, and sons, Ernest and Leon, of Abilene spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday here as guests of the Joe Fisher, Sr., family.

NAZI STRATEGY FOR BLITZ ON ENGLAND

NEW YORK.—This pictorial layout gives you an idea of the probable attack strategy the Nazis will employ in the long-threatened Blitzkrieg on England if Britain fails to respond favorably to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "peace or perish" warning. The attack will be by air and sea following a long-range bombardment by big guns based on the French coast across the channel. Germany's vaunted Stuka bombers are expected to dispose of the resistance to a German landing of troops which would be ferried across the channel in Diesel-powered barges. The Nazis may have a few surprises that no one outside of Germany knows about. The traditionally reticent British may also have a trick or two. Anyway, informed circles in Berlin and Rome state positively that the Blitz will take place in a matter of days.

DEMO VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE, RELAXES

STATE DEPUTY WILL MEET WITH KNIGHTS HERE ON AUGUST 20

State Deputy F. J. Kline of Austin will be master of ceremonies at a joint installation of officers for K of C councils of this district August 9 in the local council's hall, District Deputy Herbert Meurer disclosed this week.

On the suggestion of the district deputy the councils had previously agreed to meet in Muenster for installation ceremonies and a district meeting of council officers. At that time it seemed probable the meeting would be held on a Sunday to avoid conflict with rush season duties of many members. Learning that the state deputy would be here on August 9, Herbert Meurer set that date as the district meeting date.

Muenster Has Large Representation At Windthorst Meeting

The 42nd annual convention of the Catholic State League of Texas got under way Tuesday at Windthorst. Dozens of Muenster citizens left early Tuesday to attend the three-day convalescence, and a larger number was present on Wednesday for "Catholic Day."

The names of all Muensterites attending the session were not learned but the following reported that they were in attendance: Rev. Father Frowin, Victor Hartman, John Bayer, Frank Hess, Mrs. J. B. Wilde, Mrs. Peter Bindel, Mrs. John Eberhart, Earl Swingler, Ray Wilde, Miss Irene Fleitman, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Voth.

Earl and Dolores Lehnerz, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Weinzapfel, Thomas and Miss Juanita Weinzapfel, Miss Olivia Stock, Mrs. William Walterscheid, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hellman, William and Miss Anna Hellman, Wilmer and Miss Dorothy Mae Luke, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walterscheid, John Felderhoff, Mr. and Mrs. Al Walterscheid, Miss Irene Walterscheid, Lawrence Wimmer, Mrs. Wm. Gehrig and daughter, Emma Lou, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fisher, Earl Fisher, Justin Hess, Melnard Hesse and Leo Henschel and Mrs. T. Gremmlinger.

PARENTS URGED TO KEEP CHILDREN AWAY FROM SEWER PROJECT

"Keep children away from the sewer construction job" is the urgent plea made by Resident Engineer E. K. Whitaker to all parents of Muenster.

"Lately more than before, we are encountering a great deal of trouble with children, some of them too small to know the meaning of danger, and some old enough but too inquisitive."

While the men are working in rock and blasting is necessary they can easily be hurt. Or they can be hurt falling into the deep, rocky ditches. Another reason to keep them away, he added, is that they are too inclined to throw rocks back into the ditch. That has caused some broken pipe and it always causes extra work, hence extra expense to the city.

Steps Off Power Pole 15 Feet Above Ground, Gets Severe Bruises

R. L. McNelly, maintenance man for the Cooke County Electric Cooperative was badly bruised Monday night in a fifteen foot fall from a power line pole. He returned Thursday from a Gainesville hospital "stiff and sore, but otherwise OK."

A turkey was responsible for the injury. It had flown to the top of the pole and electrocuted itself, blowing out a fuse. Mac took care of the trouble and in coming back down the pole underestimated his distance from the ground. He "kicked-away" in the usual manner and landed on his back fifteen feet below. He got back to his service truck unassisted but when he reached the hospital he was too stiff and sore to get out. His companion at the time was Ervin Neuman, a brother-in-law on a short visit here from Los Angeles.

McNelly's injury is his first in thirteen years as a lineman and the first on the local co-op's record during more than a year and a half of construction and maintenance work.

Final Appeal Before Election Presented By Candidates

CANDIDATES HAVE NO SPEAKING BUT PLENTY POLITICKING

As host to the county's candidates for public office Tuesday night, Muenster ran into confusion because of too many plans. In spite of an embarrassing situation the evening turned out quite successful.

Originally the political hopefuls had been invited to a community social gathering and dance at the K of C hall. Later some citizens, believing the candidates would appreciate a chance to speak, arranged to have an address system in the ball park. Then the report circulated that the regular stump speeches, similar to those of previous years would be given.

About 8 o'clock the candidates and an audience of several hundred gathered at the ball park. But the would-be speakers discovered there was no master of ceremonies nor a definite program, they were told to just help themselves. None of the candidates wanted to speak first, some did not wish to keep the crowd from the social affair, some did not care to speak at all. In the end nothing was said.

In the meantime, however, candidates were mingling with the crowd and soliciting votes. One by one the cars pulled away, most of them going to the K of C hall, and the candidates were doing likewise. The scene gradually changed but the politicking, minus speeches, went on without interruption.

NEW ROAD BECOMES BOG-HOLE AFTER 2 INCH RAIN SUNDAY

People who live south of town had the unpleasant experience Sunday of detouring four miles in order to avoid less than three hundred yards of mud on the new WPA road south of town. Traffic had been taken off the old gravel road for several days and directed over the new road bed which consisted to a great extent of loose fill-in dirt. After the two-inch rain early Sunday morning the road was practically impassable. A few got through but more got stuck.

After being off duty Monday the regular crew was back Tuesday preparing the road bed for the gravel surface. With just a few more days they will be able to apply all the gravel and make the road passable for any weather. Neither will future rains during the construction period interfere with traffic, because the remainder of the new road does not cross the present road.

Fill-in work for the approach to the large bridge has been completed and much of the fill-in for the deep ravine is also finished. The road itself is more than half completed but there will still be considerable delay awaiting material for the two bridges.

CONVENTION OF GOP IN COOKE COUNTY TO BE HELD AUGUST 3

The Republican County Convention of Cooke county, will be held at the county court room in Gainesville, at 2:30 p. m., on Saturday, August 3, 1940.

This convention will be composed of delegates and alternates elected from each precinct of this county. These will be named in precinct conventions to be held Saturday, July 27, 1940, in each precinct.

The precinct conventions will be open to all qualified voters, regardless of previous political affiliation, who believe in the principles of the Republican party, and will support in good faith the nominees of its state convention. The various precinct chairmen will post notices of the places where these conventions are to be held.

The county convention of August 3rd will send two (2) delegates and the same number of alternates to the Republican State Convention to be held in Beaumont, August 13th, at which time a full state ticket will be nominated, a platform adopted, and a Republican State Chairman and 62 members of the Republican State Executive Committee will be elected.

RAIN CAUSES MORE DELAY TO THRESHING BUT AIDS CORN CROP

Delayed again by a rain early Sunday several threshing rigs were forced to add two more days to their already extended season. Possibly one or two will have to work into next week. About half the machines had finished their seasons last week.

Though untimely for threshing, Sunday's rain is considered a great help to corn crops. Well past the roasting ear stage now, the corn is beginning to mature and has a splendid chance to do well unless it is handicapped by excessive heat.

HEADS NEW OFFICE

John D. M. Hamilton, former chairman and now executive director of the Republican National Committee, shown as he returned to Chicago from Washington last week to head the new offices at 120 S. La-Salle St., from which the Wendell L. Wilkie Republican campaign for the presidency will radiate. Mr. Hamilton and part of the headquarters staff are scheduled to move into these offices, comprising 40,000 square feet, this week after which the Wilkie campaign machinery will start rolling.

PROBABLE DATE FOR NEXT SOIL ELECTION WILL BE OCTOBER 19

The next soil conservation election for this area will probably be held on October 19, according to a statement from County Agent Albert Brient this week. Brient said one member of the state soil conservation committee had advised him this project was receiving some favorable consideration and that October 19 would likely be the voting day, but has not to date received an official communication confirming the report.

As soon as he receives the state board's official statement Brient intends to organize a campaign to make the district better acquainted with the aims and methods of a soil conservation project. The previous attempt to set up a district was defeated because people did not know enough about it, he said. This time they will have more opportunity to learn what it is all about.

The proposed district includes all of Cooke county and those parts of Montague and Grayson not already included in other projects.

PLANE FOR TRAINING OR FOR RENT WILL BE AVAILABLE HERE

Muenster's first home owned airplane, the first to be stationed here for more than a brief visit, is expected to arrive about August 20. Bernard Schumacher, owner, placed his order a week ago.

The machine is a small trainer's plane with two seats and double controls. Schumacher said it is known as a Porterfield 65.

Schumacher is buying the plane as a business investment and expects to get his principal revenue from students in training and flyers who rent it a few hours at a time. He also intends to take up passengers.

For several months instructions and passenger flying will be under the direction of a specially hired pilot. Though he has been flying for some time Schumacher does not have a sufficient number of solo hours to secure a commercial license.

Between fifteen and twenty students from Muenster and Gainesville are expected to begin training when the plane arrives.

Serious Foot Infection Caused By Centipede

Returning from Windthorst last weekend, Father Francis Zimmerer disclosed that Miss Rose Koelzer, former resident here, was slowly recovering from a severe foot infection resulting from a centipede's sting several days before. It is believed the insect—or worm or reptile or whatever it is—dug in and injected poison with every one of its many legs. Her foot was swollen to at least twice its normal size.

Messages Are Brief Summary Of Formal Announcements

This week, on the eve of Cooke county's most important election, the Enterprise presents a series of final brief statements from candidates whose announcements it previously published. These statements are meant to serve as condensed announcements for the convenience of voters.

District Judge:

In presenting my candidacy for reelection to the office of District Judge I want to thank you for past favors. I have tried to repay you with honest and faithful service. In discharging the duties of this office I have had no purpose except to mete out equal and exact justice to all, without fear or favor.

I have not a word to say against my opponents. I believe I have made a good record during the time I was in office and it is on this record that I ask for reelection. Your support will be appreciated.

BEN W. BOYD.

My associates during my service as County Judge will tell you, if you ask, that I have made a most energetic and capable officer. I have been friendly and helpful when called upon.

If you re-elect the present District Judge he will have served sixteen years at the end of another term.

I have shown my ability and capacity as County Judge; I will be a faithful and dependable District Judge if you elect me. If you promote me to District Judge I will be grateful, and I will serve you well.

RAY WINDER.

Since it has been impossible for me to see each of you in person and solicit your vote, I want to take this method of saying that I will deeply appreciate your vote on Saturday which should you honor me by nominating me as your next District Judge, I will conduct the affairs of that office under my oath to the best of my ability, should I be elected in November.

JOHN W. CULP.

State Representative:

I wish to re-emphasize the fact that I am opposing a sales tax. But when I say I favor a natural resource tax, I do not mean that I believe the oil industry should be burdened with new taxes. If oil is to be taxed anew then the whole system of taxation on oil must be changed in order that taxation will not bear too heavily on that industry.

I promise to keep the people informed of what is going on during legislative sessions through a weekly news letter.

GENE F. ROBERTSON.

Let me thank you for your hospitality and encouragement. My sincerest wish is that such thrift, energy, economy and hopefulness as your community practices may become the policy of our state government. I am for rigid economy, careful budgeting and cautious spending. I am for a Social Security Program that meets the needs of our agricultural people. I am against the sales tax. I am for a natural resource tax. If you send me to Austin I shall work for the interest of all Cooke county.

MRS. J. M. WILFONG.

I take this means to ask you for your vote and influence Saturday if you feel that I am qualified and can give you a fair and honorable representation in the Legislature. It has been impossible to see each one of you so consider this a personal solicitation of your vote. Everyone is entitled to a chance to do something at some time in his life and it is now that I am asking for that opportunity. The next Legislature is sure to have many important matters before it—I would like to represent you in that Legislature.

County Attorney:

I am grateful to the people of Cooke county for electing me to the office of County Attorney at the last election, and I am trying to show my gratitude by giving the people an economical and capable administration of that office. If my services have been satisfactory, I would like to serve again.

JOHN ATCHISON.

You are going to hire by your votes at the election, July 27th, a County Attorney, to represent you for the next two years. In doing that, naturally, and as a business proposition you will want to get the man best qualified to make you a good County Attorney. I shall greatly ap-

W.D. McFarlane Has Recommendation Of His Neighbors

The following address delivered recently over radio station KWFT, by a Graham woman, Mrs. R. T. Walker, reveals what W. D. McFarlane's neighbors think of him, as they urge his election to Congress from the 13th district.

J. J. Gallaher, of Graham, and members of the Board of Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce had previously made a radio appeal for Mr. McFarlane.

Mrs. Walker's message June 24 for McFarlane over KWFT, was as follows:

"I have known Mr. McFarlane for several years and appreciate this opportunity of speaking in his behalf.

"Realizing that we of Graham have the advantage of knowing Mr. McFarlane in his casual, every-day, community life, I would like to give you a clear, concise, and true word picture of McFarlane as I know him in Graham.

"We see him first in his home life, the father of five children. When I think of the McFarlane family, I keep recalling a Sunday morning at our church several months ago. The minister had asked if there were those who would like to become members of the church. Down the aisle walked a girl fifteen, a boy ten, and two small girls. They were followed by a man—a man whose face reflected the strong emotion he felt that morning. He stood there beside his four motherless children, who had come forward to join the church. He was giving them his moral support in the most important decision they will ever make. This man was W. D. McFarlane. I assure you they were an inspiration to our church that morning. Now, you know and I know that a man must possess sterling qualities to inspire his children toward the highest in life.

"Then, we know him as a loyal member of the Board of Stewards of our church, we see him as a teacher in our Sunday school, and again as a public spirited townsman who is always ready and willing to help in whatever way possible.

"We in Graham observe and appreciate the many fine accomplishments secured for Graham and Young county, as well as in the 13th District while Mr. McFarlane represented us in Congress.

"We appreciate our splendid post-office, our water works and street improvements, our public schools and gymnasium buildings. He was particularly anxious for the success of the schools and our public school at Graham. After we had been turned down on our PWA application for our high school, Mr. McFarlane appealed to the President, and soon thereafter, our school building application was approved. We now have one of the finest high schools in Texas. The needs of the schools of the entire district had his unstinted attention!

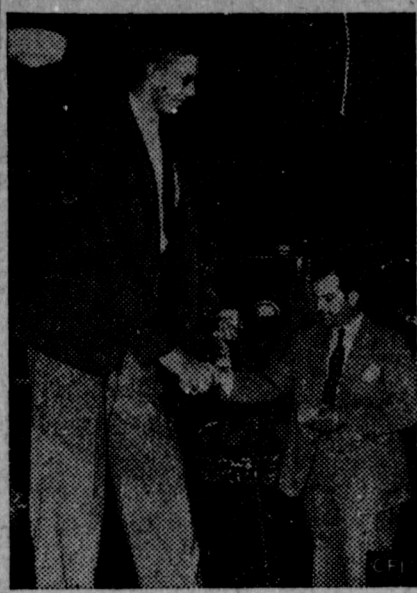

"The women of our city and district have always found Mr. McFarlane attentive to their requests and needs, and children were his special care. I would say to the women of this district, you have no better or efficient champion of your cause than W. D. McFarlane.

"We know that Mr. McFarlane has always been the friend of the farmers, the laborers, the livestock and oil men of this section, and know that he always voted for their interests.

"This hour in America calls for men of courage, men of faith, men of action, but, most of all, men of experience. You will recall that our president's new appointees have been men of experience at this critical time.

"We, McFarlane's home people,

Robert Wadlow of Alton, Ill., tallest man in medical history, died Monday of an infection from a foot injury on July 4. He was 22 years old, 8 feet 10.3 inches tall and weighed 491 pounds. He is shown here as he recently accepted a Masonic ring, size 25, from a St. Louis jewelry firm.

Llano county today due to the thoughtfulness of a train conductor, H. M. Hamilton, it is reported to the State Game Department. Mr. Hamilton stopped the Southern Pacific train running from Austin to Llano recently when a deer was seen entangled in a fence along the right-of-way of the railroad. The crew liberated the doe, which was not badly injured.

Train crews apparently often assist wildlife. Last year it was reported in Texas a freight crew forced tramps to sweep out grain cars at a spot where turkeys congregate. Up in Montana a general order has gone out to all train crews to refrain from tramping around in the grass where a mallard hen had courage enough to build her nest within ten feet of the Great Northern tracks. Enginemen are ordered not to blow down boilers or open overflows in the vicinity of the nest.

? How Much Is An Ad Worth?

The business man doesn't know and neither do we. Very seldom is it possible to point out definitely just how much is realized through a certain ad.

But one thing is definite.

People know that advertisers are the ones who really pay for their papers, and they appreciate it.

Advertising is worth the price in the Good Will it creates.

OUR OWN FAULT

Martin Dies of the committee investigating un-American activities has expressed his belief that fifth columnists are better organized in this country than they were in Belgium before its fall. His opinion comes from the cock-sure arrogance of suspects he has questioned, men who boasted that this nation would be wrecked by internal strife at a time when it is challenged by external enemies.

As the committee's reports become hotter we wonder more and more why our nation continues to postpone its corrective measures. At times we are even a little worried lest the spies and traitors will actually have the opportunity to accomplish their purpose. Some accounts of their activities are alarming. Nevertheless we remain hopeful that proper authorities have the situation in hand and will conduct a purge if and when it is needed.

While despising the fifth columnists for their contemptible treachery and while hoping fervently that the menace of their presence will be removed, few of us ever stop to realize that we Americans are, to a very great extent responsible for the tremendous growth of foreign isms which originated and support the fifth column.

Our ridiculous application of our principle of freedom was one fault. National leaders in various fields have insisted that radical instructors have a right to teach, radical orators have a right to speak and radical organizers have a right to gather groups for any purpose. America turned a deaf ear to the warning that traitors were using freedom in their plot to destroy freedom. We have been inexcusably negligent in the matter of protecting our rights.

We have failed even more pitifully in living up to the standards of our constitution. There never was a higher set of ideals than that of our original set of national documents. And the world will never develop a better system of justice, equality and freedom. Our trouble is that we were the first traitors. We failed to live up to the standards of our constitution, hence we had too little of those essential virtues in actual practice.

It is impossible and needless to enumerate the many evils that beset us. They are evident in almost every phase of human relations. That is the reason that many Americans, and many aliens who might have become good Americans, were ready to listen to self seeking agents of foreign powers. They saw and felt starvation in the midst of plenty. They became aware of graft, racketeering, moral laxity, political crookedness and many other outrages to their idealistic opinions of what America should be. They were disappointed and, like drowning men, snatched at the straw offered by foreign isms.

Many of the misguided disciples of false doctrine are not so much to blame. Being gullible they are anxious to believe wonderful tales about other lands, and living under our system of adulterated Americanism they cannot fail to see many undesirable conditions.

Actually, America's most effective weapon against fifth columnists or any outside threat is a sincere adoption of justice, equality and liberty by the bulk of our citizenship. When Americanism begins to mean in practice what it does in theory, we can cease worrying about the trouble caused by dissatisfied factions. There will be no more dissatisfaction.

A more profound answer to the whole problem is religion. The American system can not work except through application of Christ's injunction: "Love thy God above all things and love thy neighbor as thyself."

When people have regard for one another a democracy can maintain order. When they become self centered and treacherous only a ruthless iron hand can maintain order. By our actions we have encouraged the fifth column and can possibly bring down upon ourselves the curse of dictatorship.

ONE-MAN DOMINATION

As some of the Democrats expressed it last week on the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term as president, "A new chapter in history was written at the Democratic convention." It certainly is a new chapter, one which many Americans are disposed to consider with regret rather than pride.

Those at the convention may have had their party's interests at heart in selecting the one dynamic personality who seemed best fitted to defeat the Republican presidential choice, but they had little regard for a tradition which, since the time of Washington, was accepted as a characteristic of our democracy.

Americans have always held the theory that an administration extending longer than two terms stands the risk of establishing one-man domination, therefore is a threat to democratic fundamentals. Regardless of the president's great ability and his possible success as a Democratic standard bearer, the decision was unworthy of a democratic convention. Inviting one man to dominate is not in harmony with our standards of representative government.

The president even dominated the convention. By declining to accept the nomination until he knew who would be chosen as a running mate he exerted a powerful influence in favor of the man known to be his first choice.

Considering those angles, one is little surprised by reports of Democratic leaders bolting the party. To them the whole combination of circumstances indicates a trend in the wrong direction. Instead of checking power arbitrarily seized during the past eight years, the New Deal and its champion are obviously trying to increase their power.

Conservative party members held on with a hope of checking the tide, but have come to realize they can no longer do it within the party. Now their only hope of restoring sound government is in the opposition party.

Even if the president's administration had been beyond reproach, there still would be insufficient justification for his nomination. "No man is indispensable" is an old saying the Democrats should have remembered. Other able men could have been found in their ranks.

But the action was more disappointing in that the success of the New Deal is questionable. The enormous distribution of public funds is an alarming advance toward socialism. The arbitrary administration of many bureaus, the supreme court affairs and influence exerted on the legislature all have the earmarks of dictatorship.

President Roosevelt has often said that foreign isms and dictatorships must be kept out of America. Unfortunately that appeal strikes back at him. He is the nearest to a dictator and his administration is the nearest to a socialistic regime this country has ever known. The Democratic convention should have realized as much. Let us hope the public will realize as much in November.

What Others Say

WHO IS THERE TO JUDGE HIM—

There is something new under the sun every day! If you don't believe it, witness the business man in a certain West Texas town who was convicted of a criminal offense and sentenced to a prison term. After his sentence was affirmed and after he had been allowed a few days to get ready for beginning his servitude to society, this man uses a quarter-page ad in his hometown paper to say good-by to "friends, competitors, enemies, professional politicians and perjurers."

While disclaiming any desire for charity for himself, his wife or his children, yet he says he "will appreciate any business you can bring their way," referring to the fact his wife will continue to operate the store while he is in confinement.

To his friends, he says: "It is my wish in this farewell message that all of us will so construct our lives that if we are not privileged to meet again in this place, we can enjoy the pleasures of friendship in that sunlit valley beyond the vale of tears that marks Journey's End."

To his competitors: "I have enjoyed the game and hope that you feel as kindly toward me as I do toward you. I have won when I could, and I hope that I have lost like a good sport when you won."

To his enemies: "I only wish that we could have been friends! Too often slight misunderstandings will cause bad feelings. Understanding would translate enemies into friends."

To the professional politicians: "Being childless, therefore heartless, not much can be said. I will let the 'people's friend,' W. Lee 'O tell it to you."

To the perjurers: "(Who can see anything at a distance on the darkest night and see through brick walls and around corners.) May the good Lord forgive you. And may He bring that same forgiveness into my heart so that when we face the Golden Bar of Justice in the next world, where an all-wise and understanding Judge permits no perjury, we can enter in and spend eternity in the cloistered sanctuary of His love."

If that is not something new under the sun, what is? A business man uses his advertising space in his paper to send parting greetings to one and all after he has been sentenced, justly or unjustly, to the prison walls.

Who is there to judge him?

Confetti

By CON FETTE

Hitler's blitzkrieg has been referred to as a "scourge of God" imposed as a punishment for the sins of Europe. Perhaps it would be more correct to say "scourge of man." Bringing the Almighty into this picture is hardly necessary, for the whole sorry mess is a direct result of human failings. God had nothing to do with it. He merely accommodated Europe by keeping out and permitting them to drive their hate and selfishness and moral laxity to the inevitable conclusion.

The one who checks the records will find that such is the case. Terms that ended the world war were retaliatory rather than just. Conditions which fostered Hitler's phenomenal rise to power were principally those imposed by France and Britain. None but a desperate suffering nation would tolerate the burdens imposed by Hitler.

Then again domestic life in France and Britain were far from ideal. People claimed to be Christian and democratic but were more inclined to greed and class privileges. Their dealings with other nations must have been rather shabby too, for apparently other nations of Europe would trust them no more than the aggressor.

As for Hitler and his cohorts, they've got it coming too. They will see a day of reckoning for any outrages against human dignity or justice.

And in the end some good will come of the whole shameful mess. Some people at least will profit from their suffering and invite God back into their lives. Nations as well as individuals are like that. When everything is going nicely they are inclined to follow the path of least resistance and forget all about God. But when trouble comes they start praying.

All of which applies also to us Americans. We are guilty of a multitude of sins which could easily lead to a major calamity like war or revolution or serious economical problems. If we do not come to our senses in time we will, like the Europeans, be brought to our senses with a sudden painful jolt.

We have heard America described as a land of milk and honey—and that means plenty of both. Our own Lone Star state, which leads in the production of honey, has a total of 234,053 beehives on 34,105 farms and produces 4,726,362 pounds of honey.

As regards milk, Texas does not lead in production but it is somewhere up near the lead, hence contributes a considerable portion of the nation's annual production of 51 billion quarts—enough milk to make a river 3,000 miles long, 40 feet wide and two and a half feet deep.

That's quite a stream all right, one that makes this tiny little brook leading out of Muenster seem rather insignificant. However, when a person starts thinking about this little brook he realizes it carries quite a volume. The annual production handled by the cheese plant here is about 6 million quarts.

That stream of milk is entitled to a great deal of credit for this community's continued prosperity. In terms of cold cash it means about $175,000 a year to about 400 customers; the average milk producer of Muenster has a chore-time income of almost $450 a year. As an addition to other farm income that is a substantial sum. Even in poor years it is enough to carry a family over. Dozens around here pay their grocery bills with milk checks. A few make more as an average on milk than they make on their crops.

Muenster's milk situation is one of the things F.H.A. men can regard as a favorable point in their investigation of conditions here. They have already decided that they could safely invest $2,500 in a house, but have been wondering lately whether they cannot raise the ante a few hundred. Naturally their decision will be determined by their opinion of Muenster's future. They want to play safe. If a house has to be repossessed they want to be sure it can be sold without a loss. This investment would be safe in a progressive town but risky in a poorer town.

When an investigator was here several days ago he heard expressions of confidence which almost by themselves would justify a more generous credit rating with F.H.A. Muenster people are sold on their town; he learned that first of all. And when they start bragging, here are some of the points they will emphasize:

The town is supported principally by thrifty German farmers who diversify crops and give a great deal of attention to dairy, livestock and poultry enterprises. Because the community is substantial the town is certain to be substantial.

Muenster's oil comes from small shallow wells giving a low, steady production instead of boom hysteria. It is a substantial, consistent business worth thousands every month in production, royalties, leases and wages.

Two industries, the cheese factory and the refinery are supported by the community's milk and oil.

Muenster has gone far in its cooperative ventures having made a success of a telephone system, two mutual insurance groups, a marketing association for farmers and a rural electric system. The savings and earnings of all these enterprises totals into the thousands each year.

The town is advancing as shown by a population increase of 30 per cent in the past decade and especially by the addition of five new business houses and a dozen new homes during the past year. Besides, it has reached the full status of a modern city with the installation of a sewer system—now under way; gas, electricity, municipal water and adequate fire protection have been here for several years.

The financial stability and credit reputation of Muenster are far above the average. Few if any business men here are denied open accounts with wholesalers, and they have a good record too with the tax collectors. The local parish, which makes up most of the community, accomplished the almost unbelievable in paying off the greater part of their $115,000 parochial school during the depth of the depression. They have been paying their way, all of them. Muenster has no men listed on any relief roll.

Even though the census shows our population at a mere 600, we who know this town believe that F.H.A. could look far and wide and never find a better credit risk. It could, with a great degree of safety, give this town an unlimited allowance because few if any will assume greater obligations than they can pay. F.H.A. need not worry about selling any homes here. Chances are ten to one they would never have to repossess one.

She went upstairs at once and as she had expected found the girls up in bed again.

"The publicity's come and are going to work all night with coffee and whisky. Would you feel more sleepy if you saw them?"

"Oh, no, Hilda!"

"Oh, please Hilda! Don't let us see them!"

"Can't they go someplace else and work?" moaned Adele. "Do they have to work here?"

"It's usual," said Hilda. "Until they get fired. Have they been fired?" she asked hopefully.

"No, worse luck, they haven't." "Oh, let them work if they want to," said Helen reasonably. "They won't bother us. Just keep them away from us, Hilda!"

Limpy was in abyssal depths of contrition for her childish outburst. "I can't imagine what made me do it!" she moaned again and again. "I never dreamed of doing such a thing! Why, oh, why didn't you stop me? If only Aunt Olympia had been there to give me her shut-upping look! It's because I was out of sight, that's what drove me to it! do anything in the world for Uncle Lancy for he's a swell guy, just as I said."

"I thought you did fine, Limpy," said Adele consolingly. "I was proud of you. I couldn't think of a thing to say myself. I could only shout, 'Me too!'"

Hilda entered with the tray. "Since everybody's eating, I brought some along up with me." "Oh, we can't eat, Hilda!" said Helen. "Food would choke us," said Adele.

"We're heartbroken, Hilda," said Limpy, more confidentially. "I don't suppose we'll ever eat again as long as we live."

The girls were young. When Hilda had gone they nibbled the sandwiches, tentatively, out of politeness at first, and then with relish. By two o'clock they had become philosophical about the whole thing. "It was their idea, making us campaign," said Adele. "If we boomeranged on them, they can't blame us."

"And it was certainly they who wished that snake-in-the-grass, Len Hardesty, on us," added Limpy. "We'd never have dreamed of meeting such a worm in Iowa."

"Maybe this will be a good lesson for Brick," Helen decided. "If he ever finds out about it," she added hopefully. And then, "Of course I shall tell him the whole thing myself as soon as I see him. I wish I could tell him now. Maybe he would withdraw before it is too late."

When Hilda came to take the tray they were showing signs of drowsy resignation.

"We're going to sleep now. Will you raise the window and put out the lights, Hilda?"

Hilda raised the window a scant half-inch, turned out the lights and left the room.

Limpy, who had been most passionate, was asleep almost immediately. Adele closed her eyes but, being saddest, did not sleep at all.

At three-thirty Helen got up softly and slipped down the hall to the Senator's study, closed the door behind her and spent half an hour at the telephone. Coming out, she tipped halfway downstairs and listened. From the closed door of the library she could hear the faint click of typewriters, still at work. Hilda was sound asleep, sitting bolt upright in a kitchen chair.

Helen went back to the room and switched on the lights. She closed the windows, lowered the blinds.

"Girls!" she said in a soft, brisk voice. "Wake up! I want you! Adele, wake up! Limpy!"

Adele sat up at once, looking more wan-eyed, more forlorn than ever. Limpy, mumbling protest, finally turned over and opened one eye. Helen's first words brought her upright, wide awake.

"Girls! Get up! Help me! I'm going home!"

"Going home!"

"This is our home!"

"We have no home!"

"There's nobody to—go home to!"

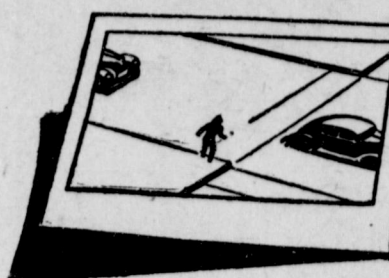

"This is not my home. Iowa's my home and that's where I'm going." Helen was quite calm, very businesslike. She no longer looked tired. "I am not going to stay here and face those horrible reporters tomorrow. I just can't do it. They've been making speeches all summer about exercising the sacred franchise. Well, I'm going to exercise mine. I may get there in time to save Brick before it's too late."

Limpy bounded out of bed. "When do we start?" she asked.

Helen laughed. "You're not starting at all. You're staying here, both of you."

THE PEDESTRIANS' PRIMER

No. 4—Be Sure the Way is Clear

WAIT UNTIL a closely approaching car has passed, or until the driver has given you the right of way, before you start to cross. A car traveling at 30 miles an hour moves 27 feet while you are taking a single step. Be cautious; you'll live longer.

Travelers Safety Service

"Aw, Helen!"

"Now don't try to pull that on me, you little fox. I'm not as weak-minded as Uncle Lancy. . . I know what I'm doing. My mind is made up. Adele has to stay here until she patches things up with Len. And you have to stay, Limpy, to comfort Uncle Lancy and Aunt Olympia. After all, Limpy, they like you even better than the U. S. Senate. I'm going alone and I'm going to fly. There's a plane taking off at six o'clock and I'm going to catch it. I've already phoned for a cab to stand outside the hedge and wait for me. It will cost about fifty dollars. Have you any money?"

The girls ran for their purses and dumped the contents on Helen's bed. "It isn't enough; but the company will take a check for my fare. Do you mind if I draw on the insurance money?"

"Helen, don't be silly!"

"Whose money is it, anyhow?"

"I'll keep account of all I spend. Tomorrow—but not early, girls! Let them rest as long as they can—tomorrow, you must breeze in and tell them the speeches made such an impression on me that I flew out to vote. You'd better do the talking, Limpy, they like you best. And Adele can back you up. I'll take only a traveling bag—"

"You will not! You'll take all your pretty clothes and look like a million dollars!"

"Iowa's going to expect to see something, after your year in Washington!"

"Take your wind-up costume to vote in! That'll be something to take a picture of!"

The girls, too excited yet to feel the sadness of it, fell to packing Helen's suitcases and helping her dress. And at five o'clock when Limpy on the lookout reported that a cab had stopped near the gate behind the high hedge, Helen kissed them fondly, took a suitcase in each hand and slipped quietly down the stairs. The girls cried a little, for this was their first separation. "The beginning of our united end," Limpy said, tearfully.

Adele and Limpy hung out the window in the foggy dawn of the gray morning and watched Helen walking down the flagstone path, carrying her bags. At the gate, she turned and waved to them, and threw a kiss. Then she went resolutely on and disappeared from their view. The girls waited in the window, waving their hands, until they heard the motor hum away. Then they went to bed together, their arms around each other, crying—laughing a little, too—and finally fell asleep.

Wakening about seven-thirty they rang at once and Hilda appeared with a promptness almost miraculous. Adele and Limpy were still together in one bed, propped up on pillows, looking no longer wan, but cheerful and bright-eyed, even excited. Hilda, who had brought coffee for three, made no comment on Helen's absence. She seemed almost cheerful at that morning, a four cheerfulness under close control.

"She thought Helen was in the bath," Adele said when she had gone. "That's a good thing. We don't want her spilling the beans till the time comes."

Regularly at thirty-minute intervals, after that, Hilda appeared to ask if they wanted anything or felt a chill. Usually she brought something for them on a small tray, fruit, hot biscuits, or cold milk. Occasionally she brought a message.

"Mr. Hardesty says tell you he feels the same and more so," she told Adele.

Tears came to Adele's eyes and she tried in vain to harden her heart.

"Mr. Dodd is awake from a sleep on the davenport and they're at work again and two boys answering the telephone and he says if you feel nervous he'll challenge somebody."

"I don't feel at all nervous," said Limpy. "But if I see anybody I'm going to be very nervous, so keep everybody off."

"Another time: 'There's a lot of more cameramen would like your pictures.'"

"You tell them the campaign's over and we're never going to have any more pictures taken as long as we live, so help us," said Adele.

"They got reporters down there I ain't never even seen before," continued Hilda. "They say will you please answer a few questions?"

"Tell them no, we will not answer anybody anything."

"We don't have to see any more reporters," said Adele. "Aunt Olympia said so! You tell them we're in bed and we're going to stay in bed."

John W. Culp FOR District Judge

Has never before held nor been a candidate for a County, District, or State office. Has practiced law continuously for the past 31 years.

Both of his opponents have held public office for many years. B. W. Boyd served as Denton County Attorney 4 years and has been District Judge 12 years. Ray Winder has held public office 10 years of the 16 he has been in Cooke county.

and we've got campaign cramps." "You just let us know when Uncle Lancy and Aunt Olympia have had their coffee and got calmed down and leave it to us! This is the holy Sabbath and we're spending it in bed."

Aunt Olympia too had slept, but brokenly. Whenever she wakened she repressed the wish to look in on the girls—repressed it for the Senator's sake, for Lord knew he needed rest. After all, the girls were young; their very youth would bring them back on the rebound from this frightful catastrophe. But it was a bitter pill for the Senator and would require not only plenty of aspirin, whisky and quinine, but rest as well. So Aunt Olympia lay rigidly in her bed and waited for him to awaken.

Olympia was sick at heart. The Senator would be a good sport about the mess, she knew that. But it would cut! It would cut like the very Old Nick! A man like Senator Slopsire eating humble pie at the hand of a louse like Brother Wilkie. "You'd think we'd done enough for him," she mused wretchedly, "listening to all those poor sermons so many years and making a governor out of him! And contributing, too! Always contributing! First to the collection plate and then to the campaign fund! There's no justice! If only I hadn't ordered that Victory Cake!"

Wendell L. Willkie ---The Miracle Man

The nomination of Wendell Willkie as the Republican presidential candidate signified a triumph of aggressive public sentiment over machine politics. And, on top of that, it was a political miracle.

Mr. Willkie has never held public office. Six or seven years ago he was virtually unknown, save in a limited industrial circle. Up to a year or so ago the public at large knew little or nothing about him. A few months before the convention, some of the leading columnists began writing about him, observing that he would make a model candidate but that, unfortunately, his complete lack of influential political backing made his nomination virtually impossible. Major newspapers editorially expressed similar views. Mr. Willkie was, in other words, the darkest of dark horses, in a field filled with political luminaries long in the public eye. Apparently Mr. Willkie himself first took suggestions that he might be the candidate, as flattering but rather idle conversation.

When the Willkie campaign got underway, it was run entirely by amateurs. His name was not entered in any state primaries—though he did receive a very large and purely voluntary write-in vote in some states. No delegate to the convention was really pledged to him. The comparative handful of votes he received on the first ballot came from unpledged delegates who, with the whole field to pick from, considered him the best man. And long before that ballot was polled, it became evident that supposed Dewey and Taft strongholds were cracking fast in favor of Willkie. Some of the party leaders, finding their influence waning, organized an almost hysterical "stop-Willkie" movement. It apparently added to his support, and on the third ballot, when Dewey lost heavily, it was clear that Willkie was to be the man.

The obvious question is, What manner of man is this, who so dramatically licked the GOP bosses to a standstill? And the obvious answer is that he is a very remarkable man indeed. No one doubts his intellectual capability for the number one U. S. job. A Jeffersonian in political philosophy (he first voted Republican in 1936, when he became convinced the New Deal had abandoned Democratic principles and was moving toward collectivism) he has done a magnificent job of publicizing the issue of the individual versus the state—he is implacably opposed to government going into business competition with its citizens, and to dictatorial government domination of the social and economic life of the nation. But in these days, intellectual capacity is not enough—other talents are needed, and Mr. Willkie has them too. As William Allen White has written, he is extremely photogenic—he is a big man, jovial in manner, with a shaggy, leonine head. He is quick as they come on his mental feet, and has a highly developed sense of humor. As a speaker and radio platform personality, he is one of the best—many think even better in this regard than President Roosevelt. He has a strong sense of drama, and a great aptitude for the telling phrase. In brief, seasoned political observers feel that he was the only GOP aspirant with the important physical as well as mental attributes needed to battle the strongest Democratic candidate on even terms.

The Republican platform says little and means less. That is not important—Mr. Willkie will make the platform himself, and no one in these days pays much attention to the political planks. While he believes in private enterprise, he believes also in strict regulation, and the iron-handed elimination of business abuses. On foreign policy he favors aid to the allies, but is pledged against declaring war. He is especially strong in defense of civil liberties for minorities, no less than majorities, and has pointed out that if we are to assure the perpetuation of freedom, we must, always protect the liberty of those whose views we abhor no less than those views we endorse. He detests fascism, and all that it stands for.

The nomination of Senator McNary of Oregon for second place on the ticket was what the sporting fraternity call a natural. No senator has so strong a following in the West, and in the all-important agricultural states. He is perhaps the ablest parliamentarian in Congress, and is universally popular. His record as minority leader during the GOP's leanest days has been excellent. He is a definite asset to the ticket.

Many experts are saying that the nomination of Mr. Willkie makes the renomination, by draft if necessary, of President Roosevelt almost certain. Reason is that the Democrats must now put their best foot forward—and the President is their best foot by far. Mr. Willkie is far too strong a candidate, far too good a speaker, to oppose with a colorless or routine candidate. If these forecasts prove true, and colorful Mr. Roosevelt does run against colorful Mr. Willkie, it should be one of the most dramatic campaigns in our history.—Industrial News Review.

making a gallant fight to keep the Texas bighorn mountain sheep from becoming extinct. Only a few are left. It is estimated there are upwards of 300 of the sheep in the mountains of the Trans-Pecos. Probably many of them are in the Guadalupe Mountains within sight of El Capitan, the state's highest peak. Others are in the Beach, Sierra and Diablo mountains.

When the Americans first came into Texas there were thousands of the bighorns in the mountains of West Texas. They were killed off until the remaining few are to be found only in the most inaccessible places. The sheep have been protected by law for many years, but the places where hunters find the sheep are so isolated that the law has little effect. Also the sheep have been driven to barren mountainsides where it is difficult for them to get enough to live on.

Who is This Man W. D. McFarlane?

W. D. McFarlane is a red-blooded American who traces his ancestry to the McFarlanes who came to America and settled in Virginia in 1740.

His grandfather, Dr. R. S. McFarlane, came to Texas from Alabama in 1839 and served as a Texas Ranger with Col. Denton who was killed by the Indians, and in whose honor Denton county was named. McFarlane's father was born in Tloga, Grayson county, Texas in 1858, and now resides in Graham, Texas.

William D. McFarlane attended the public schools and after finishing them, worked on farms, in coal mines, and in a general mercantile establishment to secure funds to pay his expenses through the University of Arkansas. While working in the store, young McFarlane saved enough to purchase partnership in the firm, and kept it until he sold it to enlist as a private to serve his nation at $1 per day during the World War.

Because of his ability and hard work, McFarlane climbed the rank of a private to the rank of a lieutenant, which commission he held at the end of the war.

Upon being discharged from the army, McFarlane resumed his studies at the University of Arkansas, and in 1919 received his B. A. degree from that school. After graduating from the University, McFarlane continued his law course at the Chicago Kent Law school, in Chicago, working to pay his expenses in the Commerce Clearing House, the largest income tax office in the United States for lawyers and accountants. Receiving his L.L.B. from the Chicago Kent Law school, McFarlane returned to Texas, and in 1923 married Miss Alan Carl, San Antonio, a graduate of the 1920 class from Texas University.

On April 6, 1938, Mrs. McFarlane died suddenly, leaving her husband the full responsibility of providing a home for their five children, three girls and two boys, the eldest 13, at her mother's death and the youngest, an infant of 8 months.

McFarlane served eight years in the Texas State Legislature, four years in the Senate and four years in the House of Representatives. During his terms, he saved over $3,000,000 in tax remission for the people of Texas and over $15,000,000 through the removal of the prison system.

In 1932 McFarlane was elected to Congress from the Thirteenth District and served efficiently in the House of Representatives for six years. Because of his legislative experience, McFarlane was placed on one of the 12 major committees, the first time in history that Thirteenth district was ever honored by having a representative on a major committee in Congress. In recognition of his outstanding work on this major committee, McFarlane was unanimously elected by the Texas delegation to the powerful appropriations committee, and was assigned to the agricultural sub-committee.

As a member of the House Naval Affairs and appropriations committees, McFarlane was appointed on a special investigating committee to investigate all aircraft and ship construction contracts for the Navy and was individually appointed by the President to investigate the income tax returns of the corporations. Information secured and furnished Congress resulted in legislation being enacted that prohibited consolidated income tax return, and thus put back into the United States Treasury over $500,000,000 annually.

While serving in Congress, McFarlane worked faithfully and untiringly for the district. He cooperated with the different government agencies and the President, and because of his cooperation the district secured many projects, such as new school buildings, parks, gymnasiums, light plants, emergency crop and feed loans, drought loans, soil conservation camps, rural electrification, and many others too numerous to enumerate. During the six years Thirteenth District received over $62,000,000 in Federal funds which aided in solving many problems in the district.

Because of his fights for farmers' rights, the laborers, and the veterans of the United States, McFarlane has always had the endorsements of all the organizations of the respective groups.

Because Thirteenth District does not want a blood spurge, we are sending back to Congress a man who favors adequate National Defense. The people, fathers and mothers, much rather have an "arms spurge" than a blood spurge.

JERRY SADLER

For GOVERNOR

A young candidate for the high office of governor of this state has received a great deal of criticism because he holds another office—that of railroad commissioner.

But the record should be made clear. Two years ago when Jerry Sadler was elected to the railroad commission he promised a fight for the common people of this state. He is still in there fighting. He has not violated your trust or faith in him. He is not violating your trust in him by announcing his candidacy for the governorship. In fact he is repudiating anew the many sound principles he has fought for in the past.

Jerry Sadler entered this race solely because the present governor would not go to bat for Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen. O'Daniel has repeatedly shown that he is the poor man's candidate and the rich man's governor. Sadler offered to withdraw if O'Daniel would accept his natural resource tax plan, one which is based on the ability to pay, but the governor refused. There was nothing for Sadler to do but to back up his promises of two years ago and carry your battle to the governor's chair.

Jerry Sadler has proved himself a statesman in two years. Why should we the electorath of this great commonwealth vote for two more years of O'Daniel's do-nothingism in preference to a man who is only criticized because he holds another position? When a volunteer fireman is spraying water on our burning home we don't ask him to quit that job just because he is a banker, a carpenter, or a grocer!

Just remember when you go to the polls Saturday that the name of Jerry Sadler stands for a fight for the future generations of Texas.

preciate the vote of all men and women. As County Attorney I will be just and fair to everybody.
W. S. MOORE.

Tax Assessor-Collector:
I want to thank my friends of the Muenster community who have so loyally supported me in the past. It is our desire to render an impartial service to all, hence I have arranged a schedule of hours to enable the wage earner and professional man who has business in my office an opportunity to transact it before or after work hours or during the noon hour. Always on the job.
Efficiency: Records approved by state, county and outside auditors.
Economy: Expenses kept well below income derived from authorized fees.
Courtesy has ever been our slogan. You are the judges.
HUGH H. HAMILTON.

Again soliciting your support in my campaign for the office of Tax Assessor-Collector, I want to thank you for whatever assistance you have given me, and assure you I shall appreciate your continued efforts in my behalf. Fully qualified and asking for a first term, I offer an administration of competency, efficiency and economy, as well as accommodation, courtesy and the liberal use of common sense. I believe in the Democratic custom of changing office holders periodically, and expect to follow this custom if elected.
HOUSTON MOORE.

Select the candidate for your next Tax Assessor-Collector upon his merits and qualifications. Accountancy is a profession. Have as much faith and confidence in an accountant to handle your finances and the county's as you would in your doctor for your medical needs, your lawyer for your legal advises or your teacher for the training of your children.
I am offering in my candidacy an accountancy with the knowledge and practical experience to handle the finances of the county.
TOM A. HAYS.

County Treasurer:
In seeking the office of County Treasurer, I do so on my merits alone, leaving it to my friends whether I have conducted the office satisfactorily. I have children whom I am trying to assist thru school, which is taking all that I make from the office to support my children and myself. I have no other means of support if deprived of the office.
I sincerely appreciate the many friends who have aided me and assure each voter that I will continue to make every effort to properly fill the office as I have in the past.
MRS. SALLIE W. BASS.

I am asking for the office of county treasurer with a firm conviction that I can perform the required duties efficiently, and a realization that I must secure a means of support for myself and my two children. I have a practical education and am an experienced bookkeeper. I have been a resident of Myra for many years, until early 1940 when I moved to Gainesville, shortly before the death of my husband, who was well known as a rural mail carrier. I will be grateful for any consideration.

MRS. R. M. (Roger) TOWNSLEY

Commissioner Precinct 3:
While serving as commissioner of Precinct 3, I have proven myself to be qualified, capable, courteous, and without prejudice to anyone. I have been a true friend to every community of my precinct.
I will be grateful for every vote cast for my reelection and will prove my appreciation by my work.
E. A. (Babe) FELKER.

The commissioner's job is a trust. He spends the taxpayers' money. He should be a man with business qualifications. The tax money should be distributed equally in the precinct.
Tax rates can be lowered by cooperation and continued efforts on behalf of your commissioner to be on the job at all times. All this I endorse, and can and will fulfill if elected your commissioner. Your vote and support will be appreciated on July 27th.
J. C. (Jim) ARRINGTON.

Commissioner Precinct 4:
I am asking for reelection as commissioner of Precinct 4 on the basis of my record. During the past two years I have secured WPA projects for construction or improvement of more than 30 miles of road along with bridges, drainage structures, etc. I have been influential in raising the precinct's share of road funds from 25 per cent to 31 1/2 per cent of the county's fund. I have cooperated fully with the other members of the commissioners' court. I have tried to serve my precinct well and will be deeply grateful for another term.
JOE BEZNER.

In asking the support of the voters in Precinct No. 4 I do so with the full knowledge of the responsibilities of this office and feel myself fully qualified. This is my first time to ask for public office. My opponent in this race has held this office for four years and is seeking his third term. His record as commissioner has not been outstanding in any sense, therefore why should he be put back for a third term. In making the campaign for this office, I have not obligated myself to any persons or communities therefore I feel that I will be able to treat everyone alike and I pledge myself to do that.
J. C. O'BRIEN.

County Agent Urges Trench Silos To Save Exceptional Feed Crop
By Albert Brient, County Agent
Cooke county has a prospect of a wonderful feed crop this year. I know of no better way to put up this feed than a trench silo. These silos can be built from the 2 ton size to the large 3 or 4 hundred ton size, depending on the size of the feed crop. I am hoping that every farmer in Cooke county will make every effort possible to save this year's feed crop.
If it is impossible to obtain an insilage cutter in your community, I may be of some help to you in obtaining one. It is far better to cut the feed than to put it in bundles, but if it is impossible to obtain a cutter, you can make insilage by putting it in bundles.
The County Agent's office will be glad at any time to assist farmers in locating the proper place for their trench silos and laying out the proper size for the farmer's use. If you need any information just drop a card to the County Agent's office, Gainesville, and I will be glad to come by and be of assistance to you. Be sure and not cut your feed before it is fully matured, by that I mean that the grain is fully mature, and the stalk is good and sweet.

Feed when cut at this stage has the most feed value for the live stock.
We are planning on having 3 or 4 trench silo demonstrations scattered around the county for the farmers who will be in the process of filling these silos.
