NUMBER 46

A pilot in Uncle Sam's service was telling last week about the wonderful array of instruments in our army and navy planes and their essential importance to successful flying. More than a few times, he admits, those gadgets unerringly pulled him through when otherwise he was helpless. In a fog or darkness, for instance, when the earth or water isn't visible, there simply isn't anything to depend upon, and the fellow who claims he can "fly by the seat of his pants" is only kidding himself.

A day or so later Con had the opportunity to check on the theory. Sure enough, you can't depend on the seat of your pants. Through lots of maneuvers you can remain perfectly snug on the cushion. Centrifugal force does it, even in a loop. There are times, when you can feel the cushion pulling away. But not always. When a fellow hasn't got the ground to judge by he'd better have the gadgets.

Incidentally, that flight was a wonderful sensation. Not the first for yours truly, but so long since the last one that it seemed completely new. The other was a bit more adventurous—in the days of Jenneys and barnstorming. Since then the opportunity hasn't been handy and Con just did not take the trouble to look for it.

Really, everybody should take at least one trip up. The bird's eye view of ordinary scenes one is familiar with is fully as impressive as a long tour to unknown parts. The panorama of the country below, field, meadow, stream and forest spread out like an endless patchwork quilt, or an occasional plunge through fleecy clouds—its a sight to behold. The danger? Well, a vast majority of them are coming down alive every day. The odds are overwhelmingly in your favor.

Speaking of planes, did you know that the American airplane manufacturing industry is now larger than the automobile industry, and that most of the phenomenal growth came since the national defense program was introduced? At the same time the wartime industry is greater than General Motors. And U.S. today has a greater ship building capacity than all the world had a few years ago. That's what war does. And think of it, most of the products are weapons, machines of destruction.

Something I did not know until a few days ago is that baby crawfish will swarm into a compact knot and hang onto the adult for dear life. Some fellows down the street had a good sized crawdad—or was it a craw-mommy?—and ganged up under its fleshy tail was the whole family, some two or three hundred strong. Tiny little things and rather pretty, but full fledged crawfish. Pull one of them loose, you can't brush it off, and the first thing it will do is start scuttling backward.

I wonder what's become of the little family. Perhaps the boys turned it loose after their curiosity was satisfied. Had I been as curious then as I have been since I'd have managed to find a bucket or other thing for a home and observed a few points of crawfish family life. There are some answers I'd like to know. For instance, do the little fellows live in a swarm until it's time to leave home, or is that a feeding habit? How fast do they grow, and how long until the family circle is broken? Just in case any of the guys found a place for the group, I wish he'd let me in on the observation.

Come to think of it, crawfish aren't the only creatures that permit their babies to swim over them. Spiders are that way. Next time you see a spider that seems curiously fuzzy, look closer. You'll probably find a few hundred youngsters hanging on.

Something else I did not know was answered in the current Texas Game Bulletin. Snakes do not care for their young. For a while the offspring may be seen with their parents but they have to feed and look out for themselves. They are

Farmers Plan To Establish Wildlife Haven

First steps toward establishing a game preserve in this area were taken Wednesday night in a meeting of about 45 farmers in the parish hall. County Agent Albert Brient and Joe Bower, president of a similar organization west of Gainesville, were present to outline the purpose and methods of such a wildlife haven.

All persons attending the meeting were heartily in favor of the movement. They signed up and agreed to encourage their neighbors to attend another meeting next Wednesday night at which time it is hoped the complete block can be organized, officers elected, and by-laws adopted.

The proposed district comprises a block of 25 to 30 thousand acres bounded by Highway 82, Montague county line, Gainesville-Forestburg road, and the district west of Gainesville which ends in the vicinity of the Reed cemetery.

Wildlife havens are encouraged by the A and M extension service and the Texas Game Commission and appropriate metal signs to identify farms in the district are provided gratis by one of those organizations.

The purpose of the preserve is to protect fish and wildlife, giving them a better opportunity to propagate and keep down some of the insects constantly preying on crops. Farmers participating will be expected to provide shelter for birds by leaving vegetation along fences and brooks, and to prohibit hunting and fishing. The organization will have authority to prosecute trespassers.

At Wednesday's meeting several farmers expressed their hearty approval of the project because it solves an irritating problem for them. Heretofore they reluctantly granted the privilege of hunting on their places because they did not wish to deny a favor. Because of the same personal relations they declined to prosecute trespassers. As members of the district, and obligated to observe the rules, they will find it less unpleasant to turn the hunters away.

Construction on the local electric cooperative's line extension project, which has stood idle since the latter part of July because of a shortage of material, will be resumed next week, according to R. B. Pipes, project engineer, after his return here Saturday. All the material is now on hand, Pipes said, and if the weather permits, the work will be completed by November 1.

W. B. Autrey, superintendent for Taylor Construction Company, is expected to arrive here with his line crew this weekend and be ready to start Monday. Bad roads along much of the line after recent heavy rains prevented the men from starting immediately after the arrival of material early this week.

In all probability, Pipes said, two line stringing crews will go into action. The contractor is anxious to complete this job at the earliest possible date so that he can get to another project now waiting.

Sixty-five miles of the original 102 mile project remain to be completed, and work on those 65 miles is complete up to the wiring stage. After conductor is stretched transformers will be installed and then the project is ready for inspection, cleanup and energizing. Only 18 miles of the project are now energized. Another 19 miles is completed but it has no connection with the main circuit.

Airmail Beats Radiogram Via Amateur Relay From Nome Alaska to Muenster

One of the very few, if any, radiograms received here to date was that received Monday by the Henry Fettes from their son, Richard. It was sent from Nome, Alaska, via a chain of amateur short wave operators. Details as the number of times the message was relayed are not known, but it finally reached here on a postcard from an amateur in San Antonio, who probably gave up after several fruitless attempts to reach Muenster through the ether. The service in this case failed to live up to radio's reputation for speed. The message reached here only a day ahead of an airmail letter posted two days later.

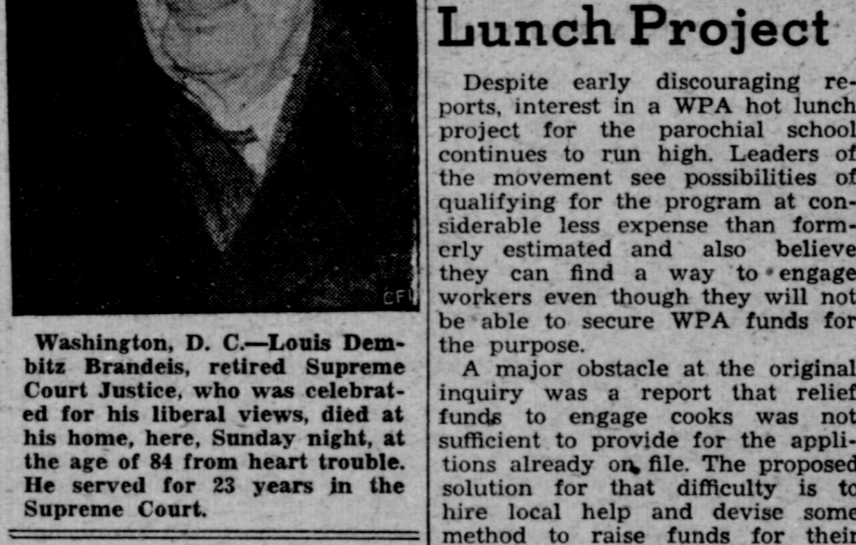

The gist of the message is that Richard is now employed at the Anchorage airport. His former job, tin mining across the strait from Siberia, folded up when the ground froze and forced the company to close its season several weeks earlier than usual.

CHUTIST MAROONED SIX DAYS

Sundance, Wyoming—George Hopkins, 30 year old former instructor of parachute troops of the Royal Air Force, started his sixth day, Monday, marooned atop Devil's Tower—1,280 feet high. What started out to be a publicity stunt became a grave situation. This photo shows Hopkins landing atop the peak (arrow left) and the plane from which he made the descent (right). He was rescued Tuesday.

Local Grocers Agree To Stop Sunday Trade

An unnecessary and undesirable custom of long standing came to an end in this community last Saturday when grocers of the city unanimously agreed to discontinue keeping their stores open on Sunday mornings. Their decision becomes effective next Sunday, October 12.

The custom originated many years ago when, on a few occasions, merchants opened for a few minutes after Sunday services. At the special request of friends. Before long requests became so regular that they began opening, realizing they would be called anyway.

At the same time patrons gradually formed the habit of doing their regular buying on Sunday. In recent years Sunday has been the busiest time of the week.

Several past attempts to break the custom failed because the grocers were not unanimously behind it. This time all have agreed and it is believed the decision will stand pat.

Three principal reasons are given for closing on Sunday. First of all, it is a Christian custom and, the merchants believe, should be observed in a Christian community. Second, the grocers feel that they are entitled to a day of rest as well as most other people. Finally, conditions no longer warrant the custom. Most people now have opportunity to get groceries during the week without any inconvenience whatever and with present roads and automobiles, others can make a special trip with very little trouble.

One From Muenster, Two From Lindsay to Enter Service On October 17

One young man from Muenster and two from Lindsay will be included in the group of 7 Cooke county youths entering Selective Service on October 17. They are Paul Yosten, Clarence "Dutch" Albers and Leonard Zwingel, according to a report received this week from the County Selective Service office. Another call received at the office specifies six more young men for induction on Nov. 4. Their identity has not yet been determined.

Fields Lose Tons Of Topsoil During Week's Heavy Rain

Ten Inches of Moisture Recorded Here in Eight Day Period

An almost clear sky Wednesday afternoon offered some hope that the community's eight day siege of dreary, rainy weather had finally come to a close. More than 10 inches of rain had fallen since Tuesday of the preceding week, according to official Department of Commerce records noted by Frank Hoedebeck.

At times the downpour reached cloudburst proportions, but fortunately the showers came far enough apart that they did not cause really serious damage. On three separate occasions the creeks approached their banks and threatened another flood such as the community experienced last Spring, but each time the waters had time to subside. Had the heavy showers combined there is little doubt that they would have repeated the havoc.

The short hard rains left a devastating effect on fields, however. Acres upon acres of top soil, soft and loose from recent tillage, is now marked with ugly ditches left by the rushing rivulets. That is especially true on sloping terrain where the excess water had a chance to run faster. Many a ton of precious top soil was lost. Many an acre of recently planted grain was also lost—some of it in the erosion process, some of it in low areas that were silted to several inches in the fields.

The delay in unfinished tillage and sowing constitutes another loss to farmers. That few of them had finished their jobs is plainly evident from the fact that tractors and drills are now standing in scores of fields. It is doubtful whether any of them will be able to resume work this week.

One circumstance that helped to check the heavy rain's damage was the dense pasture growth. Water that fell in them was retarded until the heavy flush from open fields had passed.

Rising branches took their usual toll of small bridges and culverts. South of town, especially, a cloudburst early Sunday afternoon took out several small bridges and cut far into the road bed at the sides of others. Many spots were impassable until residents of the neighborhood made temporary repairs. Both commissioners have a long job replacing or repairing wrecked bridges and regrading the badly marred road surface.

Traffic through Muenster was slowed down as result of the rain, however, not because of local conditions. The road between Nocona and Wichita Falls was under deep water in several spots, holding up traffic for hours. Because of it no mail was delivered here Saturday morning.

In general, the excessive rain has caused no serious loss to the community but the total of small losses will reach into the thousands.

HOT LUNCH PROGRAM AT PUBLIC SCHOOL BEGINS NEXT WEEK

The Muenster public school's WPA hot lunch program will probably be under way next Monday, Principal Virgil Lee Welch disclosed this week. A worker has been assigned to the job and a quantity of food is already on hand.

The food, Welch said, is the school's share for participating in the county's WPA vegetable raising and canning project. Schools had raised a fund to rent land and buy seed, and WPA paid for workers to raise the vegetables and can them.

Only one WPA worker will be on this year's lunch project. She will be assisted by two students receiving NYA allowances.

75 BOYS AND GIRLS SEE STATE FAIR IN 4-H GROUP MONDAY

Approximately 75 boys and girls members of the local 4-H clubs and students of the public school spent Monday in Dallas attending the fair. It was 4-H day.

The trip was made in two trucks, one driven by Joe Horn and the other by Edward Endres. Chaperones were J. E. Gray and Mrs. Tony Gremminger, club sponsors, and Virgil Lee Welch, Miss Mary Wiedeman and Miss Charlie Bradshaw, teachers.

The party left Muenster at 7 a.m., spending the entire day on the fair grounds, leaving at 5 p.m. for their homeward drive.

Gainesville Kiwanis Join Muensterites At Supper Program

Setting a new precedent in the inter-city relations, members of the Gainesville Kiwanis club and their wives will join Muenster citizens at a good will supper here Tuesday night. The event is conducted similar to the club's regular luncheon except that the meal will be prepared and served outside of Gainesville.

Arrangements were made through the city council at the Kiwanis' suggestion that a Muenster organization be engaged to serve the supper here and that Muenster people be invited to the special event. Entertainment features have been arranged by the club.

John Fischer, as representative of the city council, disclosed Wednesday that the Catholic Daughters will serve the supper in the K of C hall. It will consist of fresh country sausage, etc. The admission price will be 50-cents. In order to help the Catholic Daughters' needs, Entertainment features have been arranged by the club.

THIS AREA'S RURAL ELECTRIC SYSTEM RANKS WITH BEST

After only 28 months of operation the local rural electric distributing system has attained the financial stability it was expected to reach in seven years, according to a statement released this week by J. H. Flood, manager.

Returning from a conference in Washington sponsored by the Rural Electrification Administration, he stated that the local project is well above the national average. Many are far better, however. In more densely settled areas the revenue per mile of line is greater and in many cases favorable soil conditions permitted a lower cost of original construction. Only 15 projects in the nation are delinquent he said.

REA determines a project's financial status by its ability to meet obligations on loans allotted for construction. At the present time the Cooke County Electric is making regular payments sufficient to meet both interest and principal on its total allotment, whereas only interest is expected for some time to come. REA assumes that a project is not able to begin retiring its debt until it has had a few years to acquire customers and each of them increases consumption by gradually adding appliances.

After present extensions are completed and a larger number of members are connected, the project will show an even better return, Flood added. The eventual result of this circumstance is that the organization can consider rate reductions far earlier than it originally anticipated.

Mrs. Barney Wilde Hurt In Sunday Auto Crash

Mrs. Bernard Wilde of Gainesville, formerly of this city, was slightly injured Wednesday from injuries received in an automobile accident Sunday evening on Highway 77 north of Gainesville.

Mrs. Wilde sustained a broken nose and cuts and bruises on the body, but her husband and another man who were riding with her in the pickup truck when it crashed into a car parked at the side of the road, were uninjured. Mrs. Wilde was taken to a sanitarium for treatment.

Boht cars were badly damaged.

Driver's Licenses Will Be Issued To Over 1,350,000

AUSTIN—Approximately one-third of the Texans are now eligible to receive their new drivers licenses. For many of them the stampede is already under way.

There's really no need to get in a hurry about it, State Police Director Homer Garrison explained. From Oct. 1 until Dec. 31, old licenses numbered from 1 to 450,000 will be renewed.

From Jan. 1, 1942, until March 31, those numbering from 450,001 to 900,000 will be renewed.

Those numbered from 900,001 to 1,350,000 will be renewed between April 1 and June 30.

Any license number from 1,350,001 upward will be renewed between July 1 and Nov. 1.

Here the procedure for getting your new license:

Obtain an application form from any Highway Patrolman or Drivers License Examiner, or by writing directly to the Department of Public Safety in Austin. The forms also will be available from police and sheriff departments, banks, and other public places.

Either print in ink or use a typewriter to fill out the application, enclose a 50-cent money order or cashier's check with it, and mail it directly to the Department of Public Safety, Austin. The new license, good for two years, will be mailed to you from Austin.

Persons renewing licenses will not have to take an examination unless they have a bad record of traffic violations or collisions.

But if you fail to renew your license in the stipulated time, you will be liable both to arrest for driving without a license and an examination.

More Defense Foods Needed

"More milk, more eggs, more pork" is the food-for-defense appeal being made to American farmers by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Farmers are responding unitedly, the Department says, and are turning huge quantities of feed from the AAA Ever-Normal Granary into energy-giving foods. Milk production is highest on record; egg production is higher than in any year except 1930; extra numbers of brood sows are being held over for fall farrowing. Nevertheless, the Department declares, even additional increases in these products must be made to supply the growing home demand and the emergency needs of Great Britain.

Rise and Fall of the Silk Stocking Era

As prominent women begin setting an example for the conservation of silk by wearing cotton stockings, it is interesting to review the rise and fall of the silk stocking era.

In 1899, at the turn of the century, silk stockings first made their appearance in American stores. That year, 12,572 pairs of silk stockings were sold, which constituted one pair sold for every 2,500 pairs of cotton stockings. It didn't look then as if silk stockings were going to go over with women and even ten years later, in 1909, less than one per cent of the stockings sold were made of silk.

It was not until after the last war that silk stockings approached the popularity which they have had recently. Even in 1919, over half of the stockings sold to women were made of cotton, but during the next ten years cotton stockings became a drug on the market. In 1929 about 86 per cent of women were wearing silk stockings and last year over 90 per cent of the stockings sold were made of silk or rayon.

Girls who have grown up during the period since the last war may find it hard to get used to the cotton idea, but their mothers should have less difficulty dropping a fashion which has actually had such a comparatively short life.

As for men, most of them never cared much whether their socks were silk, cotton or wool. All have preferences, but last year only about five per cent of men's socks were made of silk.

Up to the age of sixteen a youth may be a good scout, but from that time on he is a girl scout.

Leaves and Straw Valuable To Soil—Don't Burn Them

COLLEGE STATION. — Don't burn leaves and straw, for when decayed they form humus. And, says M. K. Thornton, Extension agricultural chemist for A. and M. College, humus in the garden helps keep moisture in the ground, and in turn helps to prevent dry weather injury.

If you are fortunate enough still to have leaves around, save them. They help to build the garden soil. Rake them when they are wet into broad, flat-topped piles in a remote corner of the garden and allow them to decay. If raked dry, wet them as they are piled. The leaves may require a year to decay properly.

The man who brags, "I run things in my house," usually refers to the lawn mower, washing machine, vacuum cleaner, baby carriage and errands.

"Second from the left in the balcony," was the reply.

The barber was dark and swarthy, and his eyes were black and sparkling. It was evident that he was descended from Latin stock.
"What do you think of the Italian situation?" he inquired of the customer. "What is your opinion of Mussolini?"
"The same as yours," replied the man in the chair.

"But how do you know my opinion?" inquired the startled barber.
"I don't," admitted the man, "but you have the razor."

JOBS FOR TOMORROW

The chemical laboratories of the petroleum industry are now laying the foundation for industries of the future.

Out of their research are being created new products and more efficient ways of making old ones. Synthetic rubber, plastics, explosives, basic chemicals and scores of other essentials developed in petroleum laboratories are already being made on a commercial scale.

These scientific discoveries of materials vital to peace-time needs, as well as National defense, are opening up new fields of industrial activity.

Texas as the leading oil State is playing an important part in the creation of these new American enterprises. As a result, many young Texans now preparing themselves in our schools and colleges will find places in the industries resulting from this research.

The test tubes of today make the jobs of tomorrow.

THE END OF A BAD HABIT

At last! Grocery stores in Muenster are going to observe Sunday properly. It's all arranged. Merchants got their heads together and agreed to put an end to a totally unnecessary and unjustified custom that grew out of a few personal accommodations many years ago.

The change is long over due. What necessity there ever was for the custom passed with the horse and buggy days. In fact, even in the early days there was no absolute necessity. People could have got along, and many who had deep-seated scruples about transacting unnecessary business on the Sabbath did manage to get along. Perhaps it was a little inconvenient, but it did not seem to qualify as "an ox in the pit," and they haven't to this day bought on Sunday.

Nevertheless, it may be conceded that accommodating the trade on Sunday was justifiable at one time. A few small items might save the trouble of a tiresome special trip the next day, and the business after all was so small that it did not seem a desecration of a sacred day. And then, before the days of the home refrigerator, Sunday used to be one of the very few days farmers could enjoy fresh meat. To provide a special treat for scores of Sunday dinners seems like sufficient justification for the custom.

But all that has changed now. Good roads, cars and refrigerators have eliminated the only valid excuse for Sunday trading. What we have today is simple abuse of a privilege. Merchants have their biggest rush on Sundays. Some who have an opportunity to get food every day via milk haulers, school children or members of the family on regular trips to town, do the greater part of their shopping on Sunday. It is thoughtless and unnecessary. A few do not come under this classification. They do not have frequent opportunities during the week. But even they will not be seriously inconvenienced by the change. Suppose they have to make a special trip. What does that amount to nowadays?

The merchants are entitled to hearty congratulations for their definite, though somewhat delayed, decision on this matter. By doing so and returning to a traditional Christian standard they are removing an ugly blemish on the town's record. Besides, merchants are entitled to a day of rest as well as anyone else. At last it seems they are going to get it.

Naturally there will be complaints. People have had the privilege so long that some have come to regard it as a right. And it is possible that a few will be calling on merchants to come down and open up, as a special favor. That takes crust and the merchant will need an equal measure of crust to say "no." In case any of them are too chicken hearted to refuse they might do well spending the first few Sundays out of town.

WINGED DEFENDERS

While engrossed in the production of thousands of aerial craft designed to protect this county and its possessions we must also see to it that we have an abundance of song and insectivorous birds — the winged defenders of the farmer's crops. These feathered "insect bombers" are a most important adjunct to the stability of our economic system.

The success of our agriculture program, which also materially benefits our wildlife program, depends upon our ability to control the enemies of our crops. And in this never-ending, relentless warfare we must depend almost entirely upon our feathered allies.

Insect pests cost this country more than a million and a half dollars every year. The anopheles mosquito, for example, carrier of malaria, is said to levy a toll of $125,000,000.00 yearly; then there is the cotton boll weevil, a $120,000,000.00 racketeer; and the $25,000,000 gangster — the grasshopper, destroyer of corn and small grain. Others such as the spotted cucumber beetle and Japanese beetle also take a heavy toll. It is upon insects such as these that many birds feed.

Economists have stated more than once that if all of our wild birds were suddenly to disappear, life of all kinds would likewise cease to exist within the short span of seven years. Aside from this prophecy and all the destitution it implies, we must also remember that industry cannot produce the essential implements of war on empty stomachs; that crops cannot be raised unless they are protected from pests which prey upon them.

The answer is obvious—give our song and insectivorous birds every protection possible because they play a very important national defense role. —Texas Game Bulletin.

The foregoing comments are especially significant to us at this time because of current efforts to establish a wildlife haven in this vicinity. Farmers will do well to give careful consideration to these winged defenders which, unlike the modern dive bombers, protect life and property instead of spreading death and destruction. The game preserve is worthy of general community cooperation.

Editor's Note

The typographical error is a slippery thing and shy; You can hunt till you get dizzy, but it somehow will get by. Till the forms are off the press it is strange how still it keeps; It shrinks down into a corner, and it never stirs or peeps. That typographical error, too small for human eyes, Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size. The boss, he stares with horror, then he grabs his hair and groans; The copy reader drops his head upon his hands and moans— The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be, But that typographical error is the only thing you see.

WHAT WE CAN CONTROL

How do we worry about things we can't control, such as floods, thunderstorms and wars in Europe? Just for a change why don't we do something about the things we can control. For example, none of us can lengthen his span of life, perhaps, beyond the hand of destiny, but we can control its width and depth. Nor is it given us to control the contour of our countenance, but we can control its expression—we can smile instead of frown. We cannot alter the distance of our heads above the ground but we can control the height of their contents—we can think high thoughts. We have no control over the weather, but we can control the moral atmosphere that surrounds us. We cannot control the other fellows' annoying habits, but we can do something about our own. If we all controlled what we can control this would be a better world in every way.

Four-fifths of the value of all the crude oil produced in Texas each year is paid to Texas oil workers and farmers and ranchers in wages and lease and royalty payments.

borrowed it since last you used it and left a shell in it. It takes but a second to "break" a gun and learn definitely whether or not it is loaded. And this should be done with any weapon you pick up. Don't take any one's word for it.

There was one hard and fast rule regarding firearms that was first taught to boys. That was: Never point a gun at anyone unless you intend to shoot them. Another should be: Always "break" a gun before you examine it. Obeying those two rules will avoid many accidents—to yourself and to others. Think first and avoid that accident.

Selective Service Exams Reveal Poor Condition of Average American's Teeth

"Nothing in recent years has more graphically called attention to the seriousness of the American dental health problem than the present defense crisis," said Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"The figures of the National Draft Board show that dental defects rank first as cause for rejection of draftees. Nineteen and one-half per cent of young men examined at army induction centers are rejected because of dental defects.

"These figures reveal the inadequacy of our dental health programs during the past generation and the public's inertia toward this vital phase of health. If this problem of dental health is to be solved, it must be done at its source, which is the child.

"From surveys made by the United States Public Health Service, of two million school children throughout the United States, it is estimated that approximately ninety per cent of our elementary school population are in need of dental care. To solve this problem the public must be aroused to the gravity of the status of dental health and its effect on general health. This should be accompanied by an intelligent, effective dental health program in our schools, impressing both child and parent with the importance of dental health.

"Since the health of a community is a community problem, the aid of all civic and welfare organizations in the community should be enlisted to carry out the program of dental health. It is only in this way that we can bring our children to adult life free from the devastating effects of untreated dental defects which so influence their physical, mental and social well being. It will also contribute to his usefulness to the community and better enable the individual to assume the responsibilities of citizenship, whether in time of war or peace."

Edited This Week by

An excellent addition to our library arrived during the past week. The books were purchased from the library funds to which each student contributes. Among the newly arrived books are the following: Twelve volumes of the works of William Sydney Porter, popularly known as O'Henry; "Brother Petro's Return" by S. M. G.; and the "Study of Poetry" by Thomas and Brown. These books are all classified and ready on the shelves for those who wish to read. Another addition to the library is expected within the coming weeks. All members of the Book-a-month Club are anxious for the days to pass until they have their much coveted volumes snugly tucked under their arm. A card saying that they were shipped on the sixth of this month promises an early realization of their dreams.

During the past month we all racked our brains trying to think of some "fish tale" to use as a subject for our narratives. With this week's compositions of the descriptive type came pouring in. It is rather fascinating to think that the monotony of composition writing will be broken by variation of types. Description aims to create a verbal image. Don't be too greatly shocked, gentle reader, to find some old acquaintance or perhaps even your own image staring you in the face from among the words of this column in the very near future.

This is the first year of science for the freshmen, and they find it very interesting. They have performed several experiments in the laboratory which proved of great interest. Sister M. Teresina, the science instructor, thinks that her class is doing very well, and that the science discovery note books are making long strides on the way to completion.

Relieved faces among the Freshmen are being seen on the campus. The initiation which took place in the latter part of Wednesday afternoon, left them with a feeling of relief and gratitude that the ordeal was not so bad as anticipated. From the first moment of entering the hall until the end, it was a period of great suspense. Blindfolded as they were for some of the "acts," they expected to run into anything here or there scattered along their path. Going on a little farther, they were confronted by other small, indefinite objects, some of which sent a cold chill down the spine, while others made one lose courage and freeze stiff in one's tracks. A gruesome feeling overcame one at every new contact one made. What could this be? What was that? Soft, warm, smooth surface, cold, wet, clammy articles, all left an indelible impression on one's brain. Finally, when the light of day was returned, one found it was only one of the Seniors moving about, and carrying one or more of the initiation "gadgets." The presence of the entire student body and all the faculty members, with an addition of two former graduates, Andrew Wimmer and Wilfred Herr, made the affair most enjoyable. The Freshmen are to be complimented for the splendid way in which they played up to every situation.

In its last meeting of the Junior-Senior Club, the adoption of a class and club flower were discussed. After much debate, the club selected the white rose as the class emblem, with the forget-me-not as the club flower. The school colors of blue and gold remained the same, but club colors of blue and white were chosen.

MUESTER PUBLIC SCHOOL

Editors: Rosalie Lutkenhaus
Lorene Lutkenhaus

The Juniors and Seniors of the Public School initiated the Freshmen and Sophomores Wednesday with an all-day masquerade. You surely would have enjoyed seeing Harvey Grammar and J. D. Harmon with red ribbons in their hair; Andy Stelzer, Roy and Sam McDonald, and Dossie Hamilton with their trousers on backwards; Bill Hamilton, Gerald and Julius Stelzer with their shirts on backwards; and others with deep red nail polish. Paul Nieball, Sam McDonald, and J. D. Harmon wore placards around their necks which read "No hunting allowed. This means you." Through his own ingenuity Paul Nieball added a touch of patriotism with a "V for Victory" emblem painted on his forehead with lipstick. The boys outnumbered the girls, but we can hardly say that they outdressed them. Rosalie Lutkenhaus, attired in one of her mother's dresses and tennis shoes wore her hair in a knot and was stockingless. Thelma Kathman always has her hair in place, but on this day she came to school without making use of a comb. Della Mae Moore's costume was rather confusing. At first glance we noticed the large hat she wore and the purse she carried, but then with a second glance—which the impression received from the first required—our eyes fell on a man's shirt and a pair of blue denim trousers. Since nearly all the Freshmen and Sophomores followed the directions given them, the Juniors and Seniors are planning on honoring the classes soon with a skating party.

On Monday, October 6, seventy-six boys and girls from the Sacred Heart Public schools visited the Texas State Fair in Dallas.

Exhibits too numerous to mention were appreciated by the pupils. After the 4-H Club displays were seen, the crowd divided into various groups and each visited the sights which interested it particularly.

Some were quite lucky in bringing home prizes from the different fair concessions. Mr. Welch will surely have some delicious and tender meat in the roaster he won. Perhaps Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Gray will also reap some of the fruits of the fair. We're certain their husbands did their utmost in counting correctly the number of pins in a coat exhibited in one of the booths, since the two guessing the exact number will each be awarded a beautiful fur coat.

On behalf of all the pupils of the public school who enjoyed the fair, we wish to thank our school board for furnishing the trucks. The drivers, Joe Horn and Edward Endres, also deserve a word of gratitude and appreciation from the pupils for a safe trip.

Final arrangements are being made for the 1941-42 annual. An important step in this direction was the election of an annual staff. The following were chosen to take a lead in the work of the year book: Billie Roberson, editor-in-chief; Anselma Pagel, assistant editor; Leo Lawson, business manager; Joe Cason, sports editor for boys; Marie Moore, sports editor for girls; Dossie Hamilton, art editor; J. D. Harmon, photographer; Della Mae Moore, society editor; Jack Hoehn, office boy. A committee of three, Billie Roberson, Leo Lawson and J. D. Harmon was appointed to choose an appropriate name for the annual.

Another Load of Old Paper and Rags Delivered

A shipment of old rags and papers last week by Catholic Daughters of America netted $18.01 for the new church, according to Mrs. John Mosman, grand regent. The load was hauled to Dallas by the FMA truck.

The campaign is still going on. Mrs. Mosman stated, and efforts are being made to send another load to Dallas on Friday, the 17th. She requested all persons who have rags or papers to bring them to the Ben Hellman garage before that date.

SUNDAY CARD PARTY WAS ENJOYABLE SOCIAL

The benefit card party sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America Sunday evening in the parish hall was an enjoyable social attended by approximately 50 people.

Progressive 42 series and other table games were played. In the 42 games Mrs. M. J. Endres scored high and M. J. Endres low. Each received an attractive prize.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Herbert Meurer, Mrs. Joe Fisher and Miss Anna Hellman who were hostesses for the evening.

The party was a benefit for the new church fund.

A TIMELY THOUGHT

ON CROP ROTATION

Crop rotation is based on natural laws as inflexible as the laws of heredity which govern the successful breeding of blooded livestock.

Successful farmers, too, know the importance of a scientific crop rotation schedule. They know they cannot take too much out of their land without taking plenty out of their own pockets.

It would be hard to compute the total of the wealth which is being added to this community by intelligent crop rotation.

In The Future--- Our Stores Will Not Be Open On Sundays

YEARS AGO merchants of this town occasionally accommodated friends by opening their stores on Sundays. At first it was only a few minutes for a few friends, but other friends started coming and the result is today's custom of keeping open every Sunday morning. It is an unnecessary custom because shoppers nowadays have ample opportunity to do their buying during the week.

Mindful of this circumstance and of the traditional Christian precept that no unnecessary business should be transacted on Sunday, we, the undersigned grocers of Muenster, have mutually agreed to keep our stores closed on Sundays.

We respectfully urge our patrons to anticipate their needs so that we, in breaking an unnecessary habit, will not cause them any inconvenience.

THE FATAL ERROR

New York, N. Y.—Here is the fateful play in the 9th inning which won the game for the Yanks, Sunday, Oct. 5th. Henrich, shown at bat, swung for a 3rd strike and supposedly last Yank out of the game but the ball got away from Mickey Owen. Henrich looks around, sees Mickey's predicament, dashes for first—then the Yank deduce won the game. The Yanks won the series.

party Sunday in observance of her birthday. The group of relatives who planned the party brought covered dishes and birthday remembrances for the honoree.

Enjoying the affair were the honor guest and her family and Mr. and Mrs. John Eberhart, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Eberhart and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wilde and daughter, all of Muenster, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thoele and daughter, Maxine, of Necona.

Hubert Bezner Gets Trip To Fair for 4-H Clubwork

Hubert Bezner, Lindsay 4-H club member and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bezner, was one of the two boys from Cooke county selected as outstanding farm workers and honored with a three-day encampment, Tuesday through Thursday of this week, on the grounds of the State Fair of Texas as guests of the fair. The other youth was Don Farr of Gainesville.

Young Bezner's achievement was the feeding of a calf and the keeping of a complete record of work on his father's farm last year.

"Bits o' Nothing" Hayley of the Saint Jo Tribune remarks that "This department's rat story was snubbed by the Muenster editor, who says we didn't say half enough. He says we should have mentioned silver-fish, moths, crickets, mosquitoes and a thousand other insects which have been well bred this year." That's right. And a few more deserving of special mention are ants, flies, grain weevils, boll weevils, and cotton worms. It seems as though the whole world is run over by pests. Here we have a super-abundance of the usual varieties, in Europe they have Nazis. Well, we have a few two-legged varmints, too.

Apparently Europe isn't the only place where the free exercise of religion is being curtailed. From some place in Mississippi comes the report of an irate farmer who refuses to permit any more baptizing on his place. People had been leaving the gates open and he declared that rather than chase his helpers all over the country he'd Because Columbus Day falls on Sunday the annual dance has been scheduled for Monday. Billy's Melody Five, which has expanded to ten persons during recent years of popularity in the Wichita Falls area, is the orchestra engaged to provide the rhythm. The group was well received in an appearance here last May.

TOXIN TO IMMUNIZE AGAINST DIPHTHERIA TO BE GIVEN MONDAY

Monday, October 13, has been set by Dr. E. S. Myrick as the annual day for administration of diphtheria toxoid, it was announced this week. Cooperating with the State Health Department, Dr. Myrick will administer the vaccine for only 25-cents, and will make tests on vaccinations given previously.

Any child not immunized against this dread disease should receive the inoculation Monday, Dr. Myrick stated. He added that Muenster has a fine record of immunization and probably the only ones left to treat are children who moved here during the past year, and infants who were not six months

A few interesting facts about salt that young truly stumbled across lately. Laborers on very hot jobs often eliminate as much as three pints of perspiration an hour in which as much as 45 grains of salt is lost. The loss of salt is the principal cause of heat prostration, and to prevent it workers are now given salt tablets with cold water. Throughout the world salt is the most common ingredient in the human diet—and the most commonly taxed. London owns its birth to salt. Pack trains crossing the Thames at that point set up their headquarters.
