At last. The steel strike is ended after almost two months of a shutdown that has cost the country hundreds of millions of dollars besides plunging the nation's economy in a general mess and causing perhaps irreparable harm to the national defense program.

With his usual becoming modesty President Truman admits that he's entitled to more than a small part of the credit for bringing about a settlement. There's no telling how much longer the principals would have held out if he hadn't talked to them. All of which is fine. If he shortened the shutdown by as much as a day he's entitled to credit for it. But while giving such credit we might reasonably assume that he can be blamed for permitting the settlement to be delayed so long. If his order was all that was needed to get industry and labor heads in a negotiating mood, why was he so slow in giving it?

Of course he's pleased no end that this was accomplished without use of the Taft-Hartley Act. He's proved to the public that it doesn't need that wicked old "slave-labor law." But it isn't at all certain that the public is going to be impressed by his achievement.

While the president enjoys his smug satisfaction of having won a great victory there are millions of people over the country who think that it was a Pyrrhic victory. The cost of this adventure in politicking has been terrific... more than enough to convince a thinking man that we actually need the Taft-Hartley act, and a president who will enforce it.

It's impossible to estimate just how much the nation has lost. The 650,000 steel workers alone lost an estimated $350 million in wages. As the strike continued an estimated 2 million persons in other industries had to lay off for lack of steel, and they will wait a while before they can go back to work. Meanwhile the government itself lost an estimated $3 million a day in income tax. Besides, there are intangibles such as business lost all over the country because of lack of steel products as well as lack of pay checks.

This kind of economic catastrophe is what the Taft-Hartley act was intended to prevent... and what could have been prevented if the act had been used in this case. There's no reason why business could not have gone on as usual while union and industry leaders arrived at the same settlement they have reached now. Steel workers and any others who have taken a financial beating can charge their entire loss against the obstinacy of President Truman and Phil Murray. They could have kept working except for the fact that the president refused to use the law which was intended to break the labor leaders' strangle grip on them.

Actually that very refusal on the part of the president appears as one of the strongest arguments in favor of the law. Now people know what kind of a mess can be prevented by it. Now they are quite certain that both Truman and Murray would have been most pleased to use the law and prove that it was no good if they themselves had not been afraid that it would work. To them it's become a passion to get the law off the books, but they know as you and I know, that its use would prove its wisdom.

In case you're not sure, just imagine the procedure if the problem had been handled according to law. A court order would have required another 80 days of work, during which time labor and industry leaders could have worked on a settlement. If at the end of that time a settlement had not been reached the workers themselves would have been allowed to vote by secret ballot on whether to accept or reject the industry's best offer. That is the part that makes Phil Murray squirm. He's scared stiff of the final showdown. He thinks, just as I do, that workers themselves would vote to accept the industry's offer. That of

Community Band Will Meet Friday

All persons interested in joining the Muenster Community Band, especially those who do not have instruments, are invited to a special meeting at Muenster High Friday afternoon and night.

Superintendent Weldon Cowan announced Tuesday that a representative from an instrument company will be present to help players in their selections.

Both new and rebuilt instruments will be available on either a purchase or a rental plan. Those who rent, Cowan said, will have an opportunity later to apply their rental payments on the purchase price if they decide to buy the instruments.

As regards instruments that have been donated, Cowan and the band director, Bill Searcy, have encountered a disappointment. Closer examination has revealed that many are not suitable for use in the band.

Besides arranging for instruments the meeting Friday will consider a practice schedule convenient for the greatest number of members. Father Louis will be there to help parochial students in that respect.

The band welcomes students from both schools and adults as well. Students from either school will be able to earn music credits by participating in it.

Practice will begin as soon as possible, very likely next week. Director Searcy has hopes of progressing enough to play at football games this fall.

News of Sick And Injured

Linda, 4-year-old daughter of the Gene Hoedebecks is receiving medical care at Gainesville Sanitarium. She is a patient since Monday.

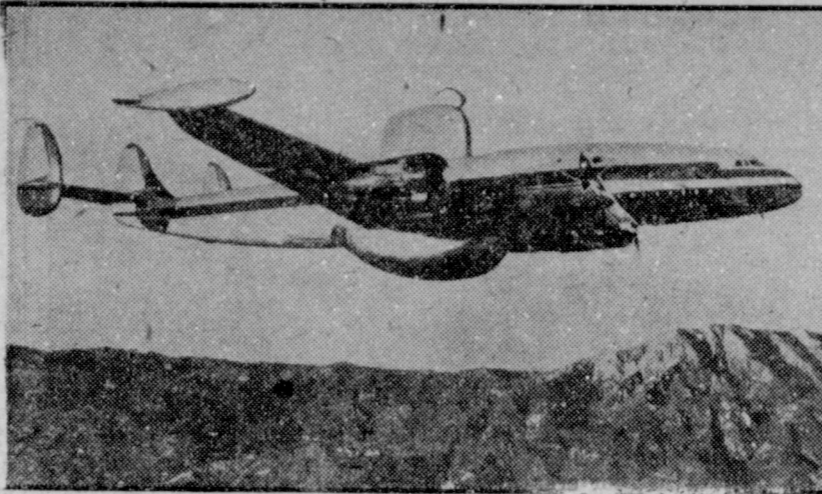

Jimmy Eckert, son of the James Eckerts, had his tonsils removed at the local clinic Saturday.

Leonard Walterscheid is back at home recovering satisfactorily from an attack of malaria fever that confined him to veterans hospital in McKinney for two weeks.

Miss Florence Fette, polio patient, was moved from Parkland Hospital to St. Paul's Hospital last Friday. Her general condition is improved but she is more uncomfortable than before. Progress noted is that her throat paralysis is loosening up. Since Tuesday she is able to swallow. The discomfort is caused by braces on her legs. Her parents, the Joe Fettes visited her Wednesday and her sister, Mrs. Leonard Hartman, and Miss Dorothy Hartman visited at her bedside Tuesday.

HIGH, CLEAR VOICE—Preparing for any possible complete severance of communications between Western Germany and West Berlin, workmen ascend a 450-foot very-high-frequency tower at Heckeshorn, in Western Germany, to prepare it for transmission. Heckeshorn station can route messages throughout Western Germany.

BUBBLE BELLY—Flying out of Burbank, Calif., a Super Constellation laboratory ship, with a shark-like fin on top of its fuselage and a bulbous protrusion beneath, bears aloft the Navy's new WV-2 radar equipment. The electronic device is designed to act as a flying sentinel in this country's civil defense plans.

Auctioneers Nudge Whitesboro 9 to 8 In Extra Innings

The Muenster Auctioneers gave fans more than their money's worth Wednesday night of last week when they went two extra action packed innings to nose out the Whitesboro lads 9 to 8.

It was a close game from the start and the score was tied at 2 all at the opening of the seventh. Then things started popping. The visitors apparently had it in the bag when they scored 2 in their half. Muenster came up and did likewise. Again in the eighth Whitesboro seemed to have it cinched with a 3 run rally. And again Muenster tied it. A third rally was almost too much to hope for as the local lads found themselves again trailing by two runs in their next turn at bat. But they did it again... plus the extra winning run.

Perhaps the strain of that contest had some effect on the boys at Gainesville the following night. They went down in 11-1 defeat before a team they had been beating consistently.

At Denison on Sunday their game was mostly batting practice against a team of younger and less experienced boys. The final tally was Muenster 27, Denison 7.

Back on their home diamond Monday the boys took a 7-6 trimming from Denton. A slump in the fourth, in which they allowed the visitors five runs, mostly on errors, cost the Auctioneers the game.

Faculty Vacancies: Two Filled, One to Go

The faculty situation at Muenster High is somewhat better this week, but one vacancy is still causing a headache. Superintendent Weldon Cowan continues to have trouble finding an instructor in the speech department.

Other vacancies are due to be filled at an early meeting of the school board. Cowan has received several applications for each of the two remaining openings, in English and math, and trustees will select from them.

Muenster Baptists Conducting Revival

The Muenster Baptist church is conducting a revival this week and is also holding a Vacation Bible School for the young people.

Rev. Henry Mozingo of Gainesville is the guest preacher in charge of the services held each night at 8 o'clock.

Rev. H. A. Myers of Fort Worth, pastor, is conducting the Bible classes every morning from 8 to 11.

The revival started Sunday and will continue through next Sunday.

Mrs. Joe Luke and Mrs. Emil Herr were in Dallas Monday for Mrs. Herr's checkup. She is recovering satisfactorily from a recent major operation and is staying here in the home of her sister until she is strong enough to return to her home in Hereford. They were joined on the trip to Dallas by their brother, Arnold Friske and daughter, Gwendolyn of Gainesville. The latter had dental work done. Before returning to Muenster Mrs. Luke and Mrs. Herr visited their mother, Mrs. August Friske in Gainesville.

Don't Shoot! Those Birds Are Al's Pets

If you happen to see two crows drifting around town, maybe even landing in your yard to give you a few sassy squawks, restrain that trigger finger, please.

The chances are umpteen gillion to one that your visitors aren't crows, but Al Eberhart's pet ravens. They like to get around and see what makes Muenster tick, but they seem to know where they belong between excursions, especially at meal time.

Al found the birds while working on a drilling job in New Mexico. Every day while crew members were eating lunch a grown raven picked up food scraps and carried them to an old windmill tower about a hundred yards away. Al climbed the tower and found the young birds. Others had told him they make nice pets, if taken in pairs. A raven taken alone does not thrive.

The birds are about a month old now. When full grown they will be considerably larger than crows.

Fisher Picked for Demo State Confab

In the Democratic precinct convention held Saturday afternoon in the high school auditorium Earl Fisher was recommended to serve as Muenster representative on the Cooke County delegation at the state Democratic convention in Amarillo on Sept. 9. John Hoffman was recommended as his alternate.

Funeral services were conducted on July 28 with Rev. James J. Reilly of Christ the King parish officiating. Burial was in Calvary Hill cemetery.

Survivors in addition to the parents include the maternal grandmother, Mrs. George Spaeth of Lindsay.

Joe Lutkenhaus returned Saturday from a vacation in Nebraska with relatives. He spent most of his time in Lawrence as the guest of his sisters, Mrs. Ben Kathman and Mrs. Bill Kathman and their families. He said corn looks wonderful and farmers are expecting a bumper crop.

Guests in the John Hoffman home Sunday were Mr. Hoffman's oldest brother, Frank Hoffman, his wife and their two daughters, Miss Margie Mae, and Mrs. Louis Schroeder, her husband and family, all of Scotland, Texas.

Mrs. M. J. Endres left Sunday for a visit in Huron S. D., with her son, Leonard Endres and family.

R. M. Zipper was in Pilot Point Sunday to visit Ed Blumberg who has been sick but is up and around again. He also visited other relatives and friends.

During the morning session, H. H. Moss, county superintendent, will discuss rock formations in relation to the soil in the county, and J. O. McMains of Fort Worth, State Department of Public Safety, will address the group on safety problems.

A swimming party in the municipal pool and a picnic lunch will complete the morning session.

Muenster Votes for Local Losers, State Winners in Election

Muenster voters turned out about 65 percent strong last Saturday and cast their majorities almost equally for winners and losers in the various state and county races. Generally they favored the winners in the state contests but the losers in county and district votes.

Allan Shivers, Ben Ramsey, Price Daniel, John C. White, Bascom Giles, Olin Culberson, John Ben Shepperd and Martin Dies all polled comfortable majorities proportional to their total over the state.

In county and district balloting Muenster was right for only one race. It's 8 to 1 majority for Richard Stark helped materially in overcoming the lead his opponent polled in Grayson County. However other favorites Carter, Atchison and Woods, all were losers. Horn, local favorite in the Sheriff's race, went into a run-off with O. E. Whisnand and Biffle, second high man locally, was eliminated.

Total ballots cast in the two Muenster boxes were 532. The combined recorded voting strength of the two boxes is 674 poll tax receipts and 33 exemptions. In addition the community has at least 100 qualified voters over 65 who do not have to secure poll tax exemptions.

County and district candidates elected without opposition are Ben Boyd, district judge; Carrol Sullivant, county attorney; Woodrow Clegg, district clerk; Tom Blount, County Clerk; R. I. Piper, tax assessor-collector; J. B. Klement, commissioner precinct 4 and J. E. Taylor, Commissioner precinct 3.

Proper Management Assures Good Eggs

The egg is a perishable product. It cannot stand rough treatment nor maintain the high quality and grade it possessed when laid if given improper care. The use of good management practices in and around the laying house by the flock owner, says F. Z. Beanblossom, poultry marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will increase the income from eggs when sold on grade.

Produce clean eggs. The hens will do their part of the job but it's up to the flock owner to provide the surroundings that make clean egg production possible. First, there must be plenty of nesting space—a nest for each four to five hens; keep plenty of clean absorbent material in the nests, such as straw, peanut hulls or shavings. Keep the floor of the laying house dry and be sure there is plenty of ventilation. If the hens range, be sure, says the specialist, they don't play in a mudhole—they'll track mud into the nests and such holes are trouble breeders.

Gather eggs at least three times and preferably five times per day says Beanblossom. Then get the animal heat out of the eggs as soon as possible; case the eggs after the animal heat is removed and market twice per week unless cooling facilities are available on the farm. If eggs are held on the farm, the holding temperature should be kept below 68 degrees F., says the specialist.

If eggs must be cleaned, don't wash them. Use an abrasive such as emery cloth or a buffer. Rub only the soiled spot. Doing the little things that are often overlooked in giving the egg proper environment, says Beanblossom, is good management and a sure way to improve egg quality and income.

TORNADO SAFETY RULES

Dallas, Texas, July 10.—The U. S. Commerce Department's Weather Bureau has issued a bulletin giving tornado safety rules.

It contains such pointers as: If you're in open country, move at right angles to the tornado's path. Given no time to escape, lie flat in a ditch or ravine.

If in a city or town, seek shelter, preferably in a steel reinforced building. Stay away from windows. In homes, the southwest corner of the lowest floor or in the basement offers greatest safety. Windows on the north and east sides of the house may be opened to help reduce damage.

The publication points out that the big storms are most apt to appear between 3 and 7 p.m., but "don't depend on it!"

How to recognize a tornado by its cloud formations is also explained.

Says Ernest Tutt, Commerce Department director for four states: "Better stop in at your nearest Commerce office and get a free copy of this tornado information before the next big blow."

Their father, a carburetor engineer, who built the boat in three years, plans to settle in the U. S.

Outlaw The Union Shop, Too!
 By Maurice R. Franks

In my last article I pointed out that there is a world of difference between a "Union Shop" and a "Unionized Shop." In this article, I would like to reiterate that there is very little difference between a "Union Shop" and a "Closed Shop."

Under the Closed Shop, so designated, a man was compelled to belong to a union as a prerequisite of employment, whereas under the Union (Closed) Shop the worker is compelled to join the union some time afterward, or get out of the plant and stay out.

The Union Shop, thus, is in every way but one a perfect duplicate of the infamous Closed Shop, which the Taft-Hartley lawmakers were at such pains to outlaw. The only difference between the two is a period of time. The one went into effect before employment, the other goes into effect after employment. The Union Shop is, in effect, a Closed Shop to the man on the job who refuses to join up. What Taft-Hartley banned, thus, was not the principle but merely the procedure. Outlawing the Closed Shop deprived the labor boss of his padlock but left him with an economic stopwatch and club.

With a Union Shop clause in the contract, the union boss has a "full house" to begin with. He has absolutely no selling job to perform so far as the workers are concerned. Being comfortably possessed of a job-or-no-job cudgel to swing over the head of every person who works or would like to work in the shop, he can settle back in his chair and pick his teeth. It's caviar and filet mignon for him, even if it means horse meat and cold potatoes for the worker who refuses to pay him tribute.

A Union Shop clause in any union contract means no further membership worries for the one-time union organizer, who now has the leisure to dream of personal political conquest and oil his guns for the onslaught. It means for the bloated tycoons of the labor movement a guaranteed treasury—a bulging war chest. And the real joker is that he gets free bookkeeping and collection service from the companies with which he has a Union Shop contract. For in such a setup, the employer is charged to collect all union dues, as payroll deductions, and turn over the total to the union in one tidy lump—signed, sealed and delivered—or else!

A real nifty, there—so far as the union is concerned—and no kidding! But what about the individual worker, his integrity as a man, his dignity as a free American? Nuts to him! He'll serve as steam in Big Labor's boilers or he'll look for another job. And if enough companies are flattened into line by the steam roller of union-shop unionism—and he still balks at compulsory membership—well, maybe he can work as somebody's gardener, even if he happens to be a first-class craftsman.

Naturally, this doesn't interfere with the sleep of a union tycoon. His dreams are not of individual security; they are focused exclusively upon "union security"—which means to him, "union-leader security." What haunts him as he says his prayers at night—if he says any—is not the fear of betraying the nobility of spirit which is true unionism; it is the knowledge that he has done an inexcusably poor selling job and cannot hope to get on with his personal power seeking without the cudgels of coercion.

The facts are inescapable. Consider only that in 1946 the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations counted between them a membership of 14,500,000, and that in 1952, with almost 6 million new workers added to the nation's industrial payroll, the total of AFL and CIO membership still stands at 14,500,000. No wonder the wouldbe supermen of the labor movement—already White House buddies—are bellowing for compulsory unionism!

The way of the despot has ever been thus: He goes as far as he can as a leader, then uses his power and prestige to develop a police force for the final coercive drive. Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin provide us with perfect examples. Well, America has no use for despots, whether they emerge as politicians, industrialists or labor leaders.

A good beginning against the despots of organized labor was made in 1947 when the Closed Shop was outlawed. But a big loophole in the ban was neglected. Today, because of the growth and expansion of the principle of industry-wide bargaining, that loophole constitutes a real menace to democracy. Immediately, then, while there is yet time, one of our main-jobs should be to close that cunningly-devised legalistic loophole and OUTLAW THE UNION SHOP, TOO!

NEW NEIGHBORS?

Coincident with the Navy's announcement that one of their rockets had travelled at a speed of 1,238 miles per hour, thus smashing the sonic barrier like a baseball going through the schoolhouse window, comes word from the Air Force that no less than 60 flying saucers have been reported within a two-weeks period.

Among these observers were two veteran pilots who saw "eight glowing, red-orange discs" travelling, they said, at 1,000 miles per hour.

Far from disparaging any such expert testimony, we are passing on this information so that, if you walk into your kitchen some morning and find a Martian with a pointed head foraging for breakfast, you will keep calm and show him how to use your orange juicer.

Going Somewhere, Bud?

"WHERE DID I come from? Where am I going? Why am I on this earth?"

There is no consideration more profitable than the study of your eternal destiny.

"Why should I practice religion? What's the good of it? Why is it necessary?"

YOU CAME out of the womb of eternity. With the speed of the fastest airplane that ever winged its way across the sky, you are traveling forward toward another eternity.

You ask, "What am I supposed to do while I am on this journey? Is the journey after all worth taking seriously? Should I try to direct my way, or should I just let myself drift?"

"Is there possibly a port toward which I am headed, for which it would be worth while steering a straight course and suffering the buffets of this life to reach?"

THERE IS such a port. You were put here by God, to live a short time on probation, to prove yourself amid the trials and temptations of this life as worthy of the life to come.

You can say, "I was created by God, I am destined for God, and only the possession of God can one day fill my heart to overflowing with all happiness. Riches and honors pass away. Only God and eternal life remain forever."

The great St. Augustine was a man who tasted most of the pleasures that this life affords.

IN THE END, however, he turned away from them with emptiness in his heart, exclaiming: "Thou hast made me for Thyself, O Lord, and my heart will not rest unless it rest in Thee."

Why then should you be concerned about religion? Why? Because God demands it of you and because the salvation of your immortal soul is at stake.

THE GREATEST EVIL that can befall you is the loss of your immortal soul. "What doth it profit a man," says Holy Writ, "if he gain the whole world, yet suffer the loss of his soul?"—by Rev. James V. Linden.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

For years now we been making laws about "rivers"—how to control 'em. We been pouring in dinero by the train full—but Old Man River, to show us up as upstarts and not knowing much about what we are up to, pays no heed, and floods as he sees fit—if not more so.

You take a river and put a dam across it—and if it rains sometime—you will catch yourself some rain water. And if it rains a whale of a lot—and if the dam is empty to start with—the dam will prevent so much water from flooding down stream. Putting dinero into dams such as this will pay dividends, but we don't do it that way. We pass laws for dams—and donate big money—but the Smart Boys tell us we might as well put in a dynamo or 2 and make some power on the side. Congress, not knowing a kilowatt from the side of a barn, says that is "jake" with us—go to it, it says. But the trick to the get-up is that you can't make power unless the dam is full and the water can flow over and turn the water wheels.

So, with the dams full of water and the dynamos running full tilt and making kilowatts, what happens when the spring freshets come along. Yep, that's it, Old Man River don't even hesitate. We been getting it in the neck—and how—with our "smart alec" dam antics.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA

The Administration Building, to the north of the high school, houses the offices of the Dean of the College and of the English department. Here, also, are the English classroom, and the College Library and reading rooms with more than 6,000 books, magazines, and periodicals which are under the direction of a competent librarian.

To the west of the Administration building are the Physical Education classrooms and the college recreation room operated and used by many students during leisure time. Continuing to the west are to be found the gymnasium with the latest in lockers, showers, and play equipment, and the band hall.

Business, science, social science, and mathematics laboratories and classrooms are to be found in the north wing of the High School building while the home economics courses are housed in the same building. All buildings are well lighted, ventilated and equipped with steam heat. Recently the Administration building and many of the rooms have been redecorated and equipped with modern furnishings.

Available for the use of those college students desiring it are asphalt tennis courts equipped with steel nets and lighting for night play. Outdoor playing grounds and the pleasingly landscaped Mary Josephine Park, suited to outings, and the facilities of track and field at Leeper Stadium are to be found on the campus, also.

Learn to Identify Poisonous Snakes

Someday your life may depend upon how quickly and accurately you can identify a snake. Only four of the 103 species of snakes known in Texas are considered dangerously poisonous, says R. E. Callender, specialist in wildlife conservation for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He urges Texans to become familiar with these poisonous snakes so that positive identification can be made quickly in case a member of the family is bitten.

The four species of snakes that are poisonous are the rattlesnake, copperhead, cottonmouth moccasin and the deadly little coral snake. Rattlesnakes are easily identified by their rattles; the copperhead by its chestnut-brown hour glass markings over light brown or brownish gray background color; the cottonmouth moccasin is a dirty brown in color and is usually found around water—on old logs or driftwood and it can bite under water. The coral snake is the beauty of the group, but adds Callender, it's also the most deadly. Don't confuse it with the more commonly found king snake because the mistake could be fatal. The color rings of the coral snake are red, yellow and black and completely circle the body and if the red ring touches the yellow, you've found a coral snake. Treat him with care.

OYSTER BOYS—Unaware of the watching camera, three youngsters in Brindisi, Italy, lose themselves in an orgy of eating their favorite dish—oysters. The harbor of the southern Italian seaport is an ideal growing place for briny delicacies and oysters are practically free for the picking.

Fangs for ejecting the poison are common to all poisonous snakes. The marks left by the fangs are a sure identification sign. The venom injected by the rattlers, copperheads and water moccasins is known as hemotoxic venom because it effects the blood cells. The coral snake, on the other hand, injects a neurotoxic venom and it effects the nervous system. Antivenins, which are available at most drug stores, are ineffective for treating the bite of the coral snake.

Snakes can be discouraged from moving in on the home lot, says Callender, by keeping the place clean. Rubbish should not be allowed to accumulate and trash should be removed for such debris about the place is usually inhabited by rats and mice. These rodents are favorite food for snakes and unless kept under control, snakes will move in to clean them up.

Here's a word of advice from Callender on what to do in case a person is bitten by a poisonous snake. Keep the victim quiet; don't let him walk, become overheated or take alcoholic stimulants. Don't cauterize the wound with strong acids nor inject potassium permanganate. Get the victim to a doctor as soon as possible but first aid measures will help. Apply a tourniquet above the bite and make cross cut incisions at bite and on the advancing edges of the swelling. Apply suction with the mouth or a suction cup but release the tourniquet every 15 minutes to keep up circulation. Inject antivenin, if available, as soon as possible. After the injection, release the tourniquet and continue the suction. In the meantime have the patient on the way to the doctor or the doctor on the way to the patient.

Callender warns that hunters and campers should never go to the woods without a snake bite kit. He urges home owners to keep their premises clean and to be on the look out at all times for the poisonous snakes. All except the rattler strike without warning—and the rattler sometimes does his biting before sounding off—so the safe thing to do is stay out of the way of all snakes.

Chennault Favors Raiding Red China

Nationalist Chinese guerrillas with American support could create "chaotic terror" inside Communist China, which is ripe for revolt, Major General Claire L. Chennault says in the July issue of the magazine U.S.A.

Gen. Chennault, leader of the "Flying Tiger" air squadrons, which helped Nationalist China against Japan, now operates an airline between Formosa and Hong Kong. Guerrillas could cripple China's economy by hit-run tactics without American troops, he says.

Aid Needed

Advocating a "Supreme Authority for Rehabilitation of the Far East," headed by Americans with $500,000,000 a year to spend on guerrilla raids, he says "China is particularly vulnerable to organized guerrilla war."

"Wreck two train ferries crossing the mile-wide Yantze River at Nanking, and the single rail supply line connecting Manchuria and North China with Shanghai and the South is broken for weeks," he declares.

"Turn a heavily loaded steamer sidewise in the narrow Whangpoo Channel just below Shanghai, blow it up, and isolate the city's hungry millions from the sea. Or put a coolie with a box of matches among Communist gasoline dumps along the South China seacoast, and cripple the Red air force facing Formosa."

Old Fashioned Farm Is on the Way Out

By 1970, the American farm, nostalgic centerpiece of song and story, will be about as romantic as a cannery or an insurance office, if the statisticians of the U.S. Department of Agriculture are correct.

There will be 400,000 less farms a total of a bare five million, and 34 million more people to feed. In the meantime, the rush of farmers and farm workers for town will continue, six million having left in the last four years.

But, we're not going to starve, they tell us, nor will we have to live on synthetic foods. By 1970, the five million farms will be business institutions, the old-fashioned family-farm merely a tender memory. On these highly-mechanized, precision-operated farms every cow and chicken, pig and sheep will have a the mere handful of super-men who will run them will be too production quota to meet, and busy to go fishing or waste time going to town or reading the mail-order catalog or shooting a deer or a quail in season.

Somehow, 1970 seems a bit soon for all this. It will take a lot of doing to stop the spring-song of the meadow-lark, the enticing siren song of the brook over the stones, to stifle the perfume of fresh-cut hay or the urge to pet a starry-eyed calf, to say nothing of the narcotic delight of just lying on your back in a clover patch and watching the clouds roll by.

There are only four perceptible tastes, sweet, salt, bitter and sour.

"In these days of stress and crisis when there is great diversity of opinion, when unity is so necessary to solve a problem, we ought to recall the wish expressed by Benjamin Franklin in the heated debates prior to the adoption of the Constitution—that each one of us doubt a little of his own infallibility."—James H. Duff, U. S. Senator from Pennsylvania.

The Wetter the Water the Better

"A farm", wrote the city boy who was spending his first summer in the country, "is a place where they are always carrying water."

And even though electrification has brought pumps and tanks and piping systems, water-carrying still goes on, especially in emergencies. And whether you've carried water to a blazing barn or just to the kitchen or wash-house or sprayer tank, it might relieve your aching back to know that the water is wetter, you don't have to lug so much.

How do you make water "wetter"?

Just by adding some of this new synthetic detergent, such as Surf. Rural fire fighters have found for instance, that one barrel of "wet" water will do as much or more than 7 and a half barrels of untreated water. "Wet" water is just as helpful in spraying, whether you're after garden aphids or cattle grubs. Just add a pound of Surf to 100 gallons of spray, or three tablespoons to a bucketful, and you'll have a solution that will really soak your livestock, or trees or plants instead of running off in droplets, thus increasing the effectiveness of the poisons or other control ingredients, and making your spray go several times as far.
