FACELESS PERSON, HEADLESS NATION

We wonder if many Americans are fully aware of the setback the Communists suffered in Indonesia and its shattering significance to worldwide Communism.

Everyone knows what happened, and how the Communists tried to seize the country in a coup in which some — but fortunately not all — of Indonesia's anti-red generals were slaughtered. Striking back, the anti-Communist generals and an aroused nation conducted a purge which virtually wiped out the Communists there — from 300,000 to 500,000 of them. Thus perished the third largest Communist Party in the world.

The tremendous significance of this to the international Communist conspiracy is that, once and for all, it makes a myth of red preachments once considered infallible. According to the Marxist doctrine of historical materialism, such an uprising as this just wasn't possible, since there is no turning back "the wave of the future" that is Communism. But turned back it was in Indonesia, in a bloody torrent that washed out an estimated half-a-million true believers and sympathizers. And by the Indonesian people themselves, with no discernible help from the West.

As a direct result of this, Red China, and Mao Tse-tung personally, suffered the greatest imaginable humiliation. Indonesia was Mao's personal bailiwick and its loss represented the greatest setback Communism has suffered in its history. And that is why you haven't seen much of Mao in recent weeks. He has lost that all-important accessory, face. And the faceless Mr. Mao is not in a position to take any bows.

All of which makes the continuing antics of Senator Full-bright and his fellow performers all the more enigmatic. Their dictum is that we should immediately and worthily enter into negotiations with Red China. But this raises the question as to who is running the country these days. Are we expected, once again, to give prestige to Mao Tse-tung, as when we favored him over Chiang Kai-shek, and thus restore this faceless person to what now seems to be a headless and confused nation?

This is one time when Dean Acheson's famous statement about waiting for the dust to settle seems to make sense. For it seems probable that Mao and his zealots can stay in power only by quickly negotiating U.S. recognition and trade.

THE EMPTY CARTON

Consumers are told constantly that more and more laws are needed to protect them in the marketplace. The publicity attending the drive to get such laws through Congress, leaves the impression that something is fundamentally dishonest about the mass distribution system. Thus, we have proposals to compel truth in lending, in packaging, truth in labeling, and overall a Department of Consumers to serve as a super-police agency that would end by emasculating the free market itself.

A cartoon that has appeared in a large daily paper is typical of the consumer-protection nonsense that is so prevalent. It shows a housewife with her market basket standing before a huge empty carton labeled Truth-in-Packaging Bill. A benign gentleman labeled Congress is shining a lantern into the carton. The puzzled housewife is waiting for his verdict. The carton is entitled "Diogenes and Friend".

The real truth is that under the free market system, the house wife is her own best policeman. If she buys a carton of breakfast food or soap, and it does not measure up to her expectations, she simply takes her patronage elsewhere, and the manufacturer or distributor who sought to exploit her is left holding an unsalable product. She does not need the help of Diogenes or truth-in-packaging bills to tell her when she has been gypped and what to do about it. Incidentally, the housewife might be well advised to take up the old practice of biting coins to see if they are real. If she tries one of the new quarters that she receives in change on her trip to the supermarket, she will find that it is not genuine. It looks the same, but isn't made of silver anymore. That's deceptive packaging at its worst!

Efficient Collector

The Internal Revenue Service is probably the most efficient collection agency in the world. They collect more than 115 billion dollars each year for less than 1/5c per dollar cost. However, they get a lot of help from the American taxpayers. Our nations' taxpayers pay 97% of their tax bills through taxes withheld of voluntary compliance. Only 3% of our taxes are collected through the enforcement efforts of the Internal Revenue people.

Grocer showing a new kind of cereal to a mother: "Youngsters just love it. It has premiums and you send in the box top if you want the cereal."

A SUBSTITUTE FOR STATESMANSHIP

In a recent address at Catholic University our top diplomat at the United Nations went out of his way to repudiate General MacArthur's truism, "In war, there is no substitute for victory."

Said Ambassador Goldberg: "Whatever relevancy that statement may have had in a non-nuclear age, it clearly has little relevance to an age of nuclear war... We must live by a new slogan: 'There is no substitute for peace.'"

This syrupy Goldburgism is made to order for the craven who believe in peace at any price and who would rather be Red than dead. Unfortunately, His Excellency's superficial sloganeering overlooks experience, not to mention the wisdom of men who were truly statesmen. Indeed, it puts our Ambassador on much the same level as Neville Chamberlain, who also believed that there was no substitute for peace. It will be recalled how that peace-loving statesman returned from Munich in 1938 with a piece of paper from Hitler, chirping happily that we were going to have "peace in our time."

The trouble with the Goldbergs and the Chamberlins is that they make trouble for stronger and wiser men. After Chamberlain negotiated his peace with Hitler it took Winston Churchill and the combined blood, sweat and tears of millions of Americans as well as Englishmen to undo the mischief caused. Nor did Churchill dispense any Goldberg Brand Soothing Syrup when he told the British people what they'd have to do to secure peace: "We shall fight in France, we shall fight in the seas and oceans... we shall not surrender."

In other words, Churchill knew it was necessary to get peace through victory, as MacArthur later pointed out. For that matter, the kind of pap being so literally dispensed by today's Goldbergs was not favored by President Roosevelt either. When he fought Hitler, the President's aim was "unconditional surrender." Indeed, he could have had peace much earlier if he had not been adamant on that score.

All of which makes us wonder about the man who represents us in the UN. Not only about his qualifications to speak for us, but even about his qualifications as a labor lawyer. He was pretty potent in union labor circles before he was swooped up to adorn the Warren Court. However, we've never heard of a labor lawyer going into a conference with management mouthing sweet nothings about accepting any terms to secure a quick and peaceful settlement. Somehow there's something wrong with the picture.

THE ISSUE AT STAKE

The Sierra Club, a conservation organization, recently placed two newspaper advertisements declaring that proposed federal dams on the Colorado river would mar the beauty of the Grand Canyon. Within 24 hours the Internal Revenue Service issued a warning that the organization might lose its tax-exempt status because of its fight against the construction of these dams. In similar fashion, others have been denied the right to charge as operating expense — money used to oppose expansion of federal activities that could put the companies and organizations afected out of business.

One may not agree with Sierra Club activities which, all too often in the name of conservation, seem to needlessly promote expansion of government land ownership and block reasonable and needed development of natural resources. But the present situation raises a serious question. Should public servants be permitted to penalize private citizens for opposing government policies with which they do not agree? It is only a step from such methods to liquidating opponents with more violent centralized-government methods. The principle involved in this bureaucratic arrogance is the issue at stake.

Russians Claim To Have Sure Cure For Drunkenness

MOSCOW — A Russian doctor eight years ago found a quick cure for drunkenness, but foot-dragging Soviet bureaucrats still haven't sanctioned its general use, the government newspaper Izvestia reported.

It described the treatment as follows: The patient eats a full meal, drinks a specially concocted emetic (vomit-inducing) potion and then tops it off with a glass of vodka.

What happens to the stomach and central nervous system is enough in many cases to generate a permanent disgust toward alcoholic drinks, the newspaper said.

Some patients are cured by one treatment and others are given a second dose 3 months later, it said.

The newspaper said the treatment was discovered in 1958 by Dr. Timofel Fadeevich Burkenkov of the regional psychoneurological dispensary at Chelyabinsk in the Urals. Since then, he has said to have perfected the method and to have successfully treated 23,000 patients from many regions who have beaten a path to his door.

Officials of the Chelyabinsk Medical Institute were quoted as saying that 80 per cent of those who undergo Burkenkov's treatment become teetotalers.

Drunkenness is regarded by Soviet officialdom as a major problem. It has reported that six out of every 10 "dangerous" crimes and murders in 1964 were committed under the influence of alcohol.

Other sightseeing included Michelangelo's first Pieta, the statue of Moses, the Catacombs, the tomb of Pope Leo XIII, the Church of St. Peter in Chains, the Basilica of St. Mary Major, and other famed places, and a tour of Rome by night with its beautiful lights and fountains.

Motorists Pay 29% of State Tax

Texas highway users dug down in their pockets for 29 per cent of the total state taxes collected last year, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association reported this week.

The Association's Oil Information Committee Chairman, Charles F. Heidrick, Dallas, said that a U.S. Department of Commerce study showed that the state tax on motor fuel, which amounted to $299,175,000, was the largest single item in the highway-user category. Other special taxes on vehicle owners included registration, drivers' license fees and motor carrier taxes.

Of the state's $1.2 billion taxes, highway users paid a total of $345,427,000.

A fellow carrying a hundred-pound bomb got on the London bus and sat down.

"What's that you've got on your lap?" asked the conductor. "It's a delayed-action bomb. I'm taking it to the police station," came the answer.

"Lumme," said the conductor, "you don't want to carry a thing like that on your lap. Put it under the seat!"

NATURAL GAS not only fuels homes, businesses and industries, but also plays an important role in the space age — from research labs to the spaceships themselves. In the photo above, missile nose cones emerge from natural gas-fueled kiln where they have been hardened for space travel.

Gas Industry Provides Third of Nation's Energy

The American gas industry is celebrating its 150th anniversary this year. In a century and a half it has grown to be the nation's sixth largest industry and provides about one-third of all the energy consumed in the United States.

The gas industry was born in Baltimore on June 13, 1816, when a portrait painter, Rembrandt Peale, organized a company to light the streets of the Maryland city. The gas used at that time was manufactured from coal.

In 1859, the Fredonia Gas Light and Water Works Company was organized in New York to distribute natural gas. Growth of the industry was stifled somewhat for decades until engineers and scientists found suitable materials and developed practical methods for transporting large volumes of gas over long distances under high pressure.

Today there is a coast to coast pipeline network transporting gas over 765,400 miles and by 1975 will total one million miles. There are now 1,400 gas utility companies distributing gas to 37.4 million customers, and customer growth is at a rate of nearly one million a year.

In the home, gas cools, cooks, heats, dries clothes and also fuels water heaters, incinerators, gas lights, and barbecue grills.

In commercial establishments, such as hotels, restaurants, schools and hospitals, gas is used to provide heat, air conditioning, water heating, cooking on incineration.

Recent purchases of natural gas represent a net increase of more than ten percent to the company's available gas supply. Lone Star serves and energizes more than 500 cities, towns and communities in Texas and Southern Oklahoma.

The constant and consistent progress of Lone Star and the entire gas industry is keyed to bring all the comforts and conveniences of modern living to natural gas consumers. The 150 years of gas industry progress, thus far, is only the beginning.

A long step toward cleaning the countryside would be for someone to invent magnetized beer cans that would fly back and stick to the side of the car when thrown out.

If you can't stand criticism you're not worthy of praise.

was to take over the country. By that standard, why don't we back South Vietnamese to complete victory and help establish them in North Vietnam?

Doing that could pay off in more ways than one. First it would be a big setback to the red conquest. Secondly it would warn all reds to avoid other aggressions. And, thirdly, it could do a lot for American prestige and self respect.

As regards the cry babies who wail about provoking Red China into the war, we could add that Mao Tse-tung has plenty of trouble keeping his country from falling apart. He's unlikely to jump in, especially with Chinese Nationalists itching to get at him.

Texas Has Over 11,000 Physicians

At the beginning of 1966, there were 11,218 physicians (doctors of medicine) in Texas and 292,088 in the United States. With the recent graduations from the nation's 88 medical schools, the physician population will reach a new medical milestone and go over the 300,000 mark. The number of physicians in the United States has been increasing faster than the general population for several years. The population of Texas is currently estimated to be 10,700,000. At the present time, Texas has a ratio of one physician for every 954 people.

The physician population growth in Texas is expected to be even greater in the very near future with the opening of the new University of Texas South Texas Medical School in San Antonio. The admission of its first class this Fall will give Texas four medical schools. The demand for medical service, according to the Texas Medical Association, will, of course, also continue to grow. In addition to the fact that Texas is one of the major "growth" states, new medical programs such as "Medicare" will put an increased load on the present physician population.

According to the American Medical Association, there are more applicants to medical schools, more enrolled and more MDs being graduated than ever before. In the 1964-65 school year, the nation's 88 medical schools had a total enrollment of 32,428 students and graduated a record 7,409 new MDs. Teacher: If one and one makes two, and two and two makes four, how much does four and four make? Pupil: That ain't fair, teacher. You answer the easy ones yourself and leave the hard one for me.
