

EQUIPMENT ADDED BY CHEESE PLANT FOR RUSH SEASON

The old pasteurizer at the cheese plant, discarded several weeks ago because it could not handle the 40,000 pound daily receipt of milk, was put back into use this week to help the new machine take care of a constantly increasing production. The arrangement is only temporary, however, and the old machine will be used only as long as present poundage continues.

About 50,000 pounds are received each day now, according to Herman Swirczynski, and indications are that when herds become readjusted again following the unsettled weather, the production will continue to rise until near the 60,000 pound mark.

The cheese factory has also completed concrete work for its addition at the back of the building. Finishing touches were made Tuesday on the boiler base as well as the 22 by 26 foundation for the addition that will be made to the building after the new boiler is installed and the old one removed.

The new foundation was laid in accordance with a last minute change in plans by the directors. Instead of placing the new boiler where the old one now stands, necessitating several days' operation on the small emergency boiler, the new one will be placed in the annex and the other removed after all connections are made.

Delivery of the boiler, now delayed because of the failure of Gainesville Water Works to install its new equipment, is expected in about 10 days or two weeks.

MUENSTER HAS LOW SHOWING IN COUNTY MEET COMPETITION

With fewer contestants and entering fewer events than at any time in the past, Muenster's participation in the Interscholastic league competition this year was little more than a formality. The local entries failed to place in any of the literary events, and, through last Saturday's competition, succeeded in winning only two second places in tennis, the only athletic event entered by Muenster. The only first place of the school was won by Bertha Jane Hoehn, in junior girls' tennis.

Competing in the senior girls' doubles, Marjorie Pagel and Alvina Gehrig played the closest match of the entire division by finally winning 12 to 10 from Myra, then lost 6-1 and 6-3 sets to Gainesville.

Bernice Kathman in senior girls' singles also made a good showing by eliminating Gainesville 6-2 before dropping a close match 8 to 6 to Bulcher.

The senior boys, Norman Luke and Walter Becker, won their first heat against Valley View 7 to 5, and lost to Gainesville by the same score. Clarence Hoehn in senior boys' singles dropped a 6 to 0 decision to Myra after defeating Hood 6 to 1.

CREAM DEPARTMENT OF MUENSTER MILL COMPLETED TUESDAY

The cream buying station of the Muenster Milling Company officially opened for business Tuesday morning. At that time Roy Endres, manager of the business, completed installation of testing equipment and recorded his first purchase. The Milling Company is an agency representing Armour and Company.

Another recent improvement at the mill is the construction of a set of display bins for seed grain and feeds. The addition adds much to the general appearance as well as to the convenience in filling small orders. During the latter part of last week the mill also entered its bid for recognition as poultry headquarters for Muenster by adding a complete line of nationally famous Salisbury remedies and the introduction of a poultry tonic to insure fast healthy growth of chickens. The company also continues its former connection with a poultry expert of Universal Mills. This man appears in Muenster once each week and stands ready to test and cull flocks that have been reported to Mr. Endres.

KNIGHTS HOLD LAST OF STUDY SESSIONS WEDNESDAY EVENING

In the last study club session of the Lenten period the Knights of Columbus continued their religious problem contest last Wednesday night, with prizes going to Henry Hennigan and F. A. Kathman.

Father Francis, who was in charge of the meeting, called attention to the fact that next Wednesday is the regular monthly meeting night and the following Wednesday will fall in holy week, when special services will be held in church.

PAUL RIVOIRE ASKS ELECTION TO OFFICE OF COUNTY SHERIFF

Paul Rivoire, well known farmer and stockman of the Wolf Ridge community, requests the Enterprise to announce this week his candidacy for the office of Cooke county sheriff, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

A member of one of the pioneer families, Mr. Rivoire has long enjoyed a wide acquaintance which in recent years was greatly extended through his activity on county soil programs. He is a young man, aggressive, energetic and competent, and now in the best years of his life. He has a sound judgment acquired through responsible activity in the past. In both physical and mental qualifications he is competent to make one of the best sheriffs Cooke county has ever had.

Mr. Rivoire is a taxpayer living with his family on his own farm. He believes in law enforcement and, if elected, pledges to use the full power of his office in protecting the interests of his fellow citizens. With a reputation for honor and justice and a pleasant personality he could secure excellent co-operation from others in the enforcement of the law.

Mr. Rivoire looks like a sheriff. His husky stature and determined expression carry an air of authority that demands respect regardless of whether it is supported by a sixshooter. He is a business-like, industrious and clean in his habits, a worthy man to entrust with the law enforcement responsibility of the county. Voters would make no mistake in putting him in office.

During the campaign Mr. Rivoire plans to see as many voters as possible. In the meantime he invites every person to investigate his qualifications and expresses his thanks for any support the citizens will give him.

FIRE COMMISSIONER URGES OBSERVANCE OF CLEAN-UP WEEK

AUSTIN.—Marvin Hall, state fire insurance commissioner, today urged state-wide observance of Clean-Up Week as an effective means of fire prevention. The week of April 3-10 has been set aside by Gov. James V. Alfred for the annual clean-up campaign.

"This will be an excellent opportunity to dispose of unnecessary rubbish, combustible materials, and inflammable goods or solutions which naturally accumulate around the home, store, and factory," Hall said. "These and other hazards, can be removed or reduced to the direct benefit of all concerned."

Hall explained that the people of Texas had made progress with their fire prevention activities during the past few years, and that reduction in insurance cost had been the result.

"We cannot afford to jeopardize this good record," he said. "Clean-Up Week will be an appropriate time for us to eliminate any hazards or conditions that might start or spread a fire."

"It is only through such care and diligence that fire prevention can be successful," Hall pointed out. "For this reason I urge every Texas citizen to observe Clean-Up Week, and to extend the fire prevention activities of that week to include every day of the year."

AWARDED MEDAL

Dr. Irvin W. Abell, of Louisville, Kentucky, president-elect of the American Medical Association, was awarded the Laetere Medal for 1938 last Saturday. The medal is presented annually by the University of Notre Dame to an outstanding Catholic layman of the United States.

LUTHER McCOLLUM ASKS RE-ELECTION AS COUNTY SHERIFF

Luther F. McCollum, sheriff of Cooke county, has authorized The Enterprise to announce his candidacy for re-election as sheriff, subject to the Democratic Primary next July 23.

Mr. McCollum's record as sheriff of Cooke county is an enviable one and his friends feel that voters will have no hesitancy in returning him to office.

In making announcement of his candidacy for re-election, Mr. McCollum herewith pledges himself to continue to uphold his record and solicits the support of the voters in returning him to office:

"Before my election as sheriff of Cooke county, there were as many as three or four jail breaks in one month, but since my term in office we have had but three jail deliveries and that was during the first few months of my service," Mr. McCollum states.

"Ninety-seven per cent of our cases have resulted in pleas of guilty and we have lost no case in court. We try to get the right party all of the time."

"In co-operation with other county officers and the city officials, we have discovered and confiscated more illicit liquor stills than ever before in the history of the sheriff's office in this county."

"Out of all the stolen automobiles all have been recovered but four."

"Under the new liquor laws, each county is required to offer at auction sale, to licensed dealers, once each year, the liquor that has been confiscated, and the Cooke county sale was one of the largest in Texas, the money going to the state."

"We have not had any complaints about the way we feed or treat the prisoners in the county jail. We have been as fair to them as they would permit us to be."

"When I took office, there was

HUGH H. HAMILTON SEEKS RE-ELECTION TO PRESENT OFFICE

Hugh H. Hamilton, whose fine record is evidence that he is one of the most efficient public officials ever to serve Cooke County as tax assessor-collector, requests the Enterprise to announce this week his candidacy for re-election to his present position, subject to action of the Democratic primary on July 23.

During his time in office Mr. Hamilton has won the friendship and respect of other officials as well as of the entire tax paying citizenship of the county. His records have always been found in a neat, orderly condition and his accounts in balance to the penny. Considering the large sums of money that pass through his hands this fact by itself stands out as sufficient recommendation for his return to office.

Courteous and prompt attention from Mr. Hamilton himself as well as from his competent staff of assistants, has always been one of the outstanding merits of Mr. Hamilton's service in office. His system results in a saving of time as well as of money for taxpayers.

To date no candidate has announced as an opponent to Mr. Hamilton, and, in view of his fine record, it is unlikely that he will have an opponent.

The following is Mr. Hamilton's statement to voters of the county:

"In making my announcement for re-election to the office of County Tax Assessor-Collector, I desire first to thank the people of Cooke county for entrusting me with this important office which has the assessing and collecting of taxes, also the issuing of licenses for automobiles and trucks. The county retains about two-thirds of the registration fees for its roads and bridge fund, and this means much to our county in building and maintaining good roads."

During my three years incumbency there has been quite a lot of money passed through our hands in both the Tax and Automobile departments which has required a great amount of detail work. With the help of able assistants, we have performed these duties with efficiency and economy."

However, I desire to state that the books and records have been audited by both State and County auditors and they have always balanced to the cent. I am willing to leave to your judgement, I trust that you will see fit to return me to this office and I most earnestly solicit your support in the coming Democratic primary, and assure you that it will be my pleasure to continue to serve you to the best of my ability."

COUNTY JUDGE AND COMMISSIONERS IN MEETING WITH C-C

In accordance with one of the principal objectives of Muenster's five year program, directors of the Muenster chamber of commerce planned Wednesday to meet at 4:30 on the following day with County Judge Ray Winder and commissioners Bezner and Felker in an effort to work out a definite road improvement plan for Muenster and surrounding communities.

The special session was arranged by Dr. T. S. Myrick, chairman of the roads committee of the chamber of commerce.

TWO NAMES APPEAR ON BALLOT OF CITY ELECTION TUESDAY

With only Nick Miller and Al Walterscheid as candidates for the two open positions as city aldermen, indications are that the election next Tuesday, April 5, will be a mere formality.

Mr. Miller is running for position number one to fill the vacancy created by the expiration of Henry Stelzer's term. Al Walterscheid seeks the position that has been unoccupied since the death of Joe Felderhoff.

The election will be held in the city hall with B. H. Hellman presiding as election judge.

2 CENT REDUCTION IN FIRE RATE SEEN AS EARLY REALITY

The people of Muenster will enjoy a lower fire insurance rate in the near future, was the confident prediction of J. M. Weinzapfel Wednesday as he was preparing a report for the state fire insurance commissioner based upon a survey made over the city in the company of City Fire Marshal J. M. Luke and City Secretary Henry Luke to determine the number of inflammable roofs within the city limits.

Thirty-eight per cent of the 123 buildings listed are now shown to have non-inflammable roofs. Mr. Weinzapfel explained, and therefore place the city in the class under 40 per cent which is entitled to a two cent reduction on the key rate. Roughly estimating the total annual insurance of the city at $600,000, Mr. Weinzapfel said that the total annual saving of this 2 cent credit would be $120.

He pointed out also that another 3-1-2 cent saving can be secured through a registered efficient volunteer fire department. In order to get that rating the men would have to drill regularly, keep an accurate record of their activities, and send two members to a special firemen's training course at College Station in July.

It is Mr. Weinzapfel's intention to appear before the city council in the near future and urge that body to grant special inducements, such as compensation insurance and expense for the trip to College Station, to bring the fire department up to the required standard and further reduce insurance rates.

TRUSTEE ELECTION WILL BE HELD SAT. AT PUBLIC SCHOOL

An unusually large vote for a school trustee election is being predicted for Saturday afternoon when Muenster citizens will choose between Nick Miller and Al Kleiss as the new man to fill the vacancy created by the expiration of Joe Kathman's term. Mr. Kathman has declined to run for re-election to his previous position.

Election judges named for the day are Mrs. Rosabell Driever and Miss Dorothy Trachta. The polls, at the Muenster public school, will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The person elected begins a three year term on May 1. At that time Albert Henschel, beginning his third year, will become chairman of the school board and I. A. Schoech will begin his second term.

BULCHER SCHOOL IS FAVORED FOR THIRD CONSECUTIVE TITLE

Bulcher.—At the end of last Saturday's competition Bulcher's chance of retaining the Class C all round Interscholastic League Championship cup was encouraging. It led in points for its division and was favored to hold the lead.

If the cup is retained this year it will become the school's permanent possession, according to a clause in the league ruling which awards the trophy to the school winning it three consecutive years.

Bulcher pupils winning places in the League competition to date are: Jane Blackwell, first in junior girls' declamation; Velma Tucker and Imogene Pickett, tie for first in senior spelling; Charles Gunn, second in junior boys' declamation; Ray West, second in senior boys' declamation; Billy Blackwell, third in story telling; Junior Dennis, third in boys' extemporaneous speaking; Beatrice Hice, second in girls' extemporaneous speaking.

Bulcher also won second place in choral and placed in several track and field events.

Total Precipitation Said To Be Approximately Six Inches

Muenster's first heavy downpour of the season came during the past week-end when a total of almost six inches of rain took a heavy toll of freshly cultivated top soil, ruined many a newly planted corn field, filled creek banks to overflowing, and on its course to the Trinity, caused a railroad accident by weakening a trestle near Denton.

According to F. J. Schenk, the total precipitation was 5.75 inches, the heaviest rain Muenster has had for three years.

The deluge came in mildly with a series of moderate showers Saturday totaling almost an inch, then added another inch until Sunday evening, and several downpours on Monday.

In the Muenster area most of the damage caused by the rain is thought to have struck in the newly cultivated fields, some only recently planted in corn and others awaiting corn or other row crop planting. From hillsides especially, tons of the precious top soil were carried away by the rushing currents.

Estimates are that more than twenty four bridges and culverts gave way as creeks and numerous streams were filled to overflowing, breaking out in many places to flood adjoining lowlands. South of Muenster the small Brushy Elm threatened to rise above the bridge. Farther along its course, at the Myra-Hood road, it broke over the concrete bridge. As usual Big Elm carried a great deal more water. Traffic was tied up for hours while high waters reached a depth of about three feet on approaches to bridges crossing the stream.

The Dry Elm bridge near Chares Wimmer's was one of the first to give way to the rain. On Sunday morning the approach on either side had been washed out so that the bridge was impassable, and the structure itself went down the creek before Monday's deluge. As a result many Muenster people have been forced to take an all weather road to Lindsay then follow the highway back to Muenster. The highway itself was blocked Saturday and traffic was forced to pass over the treacherous detour. The road continued to be blocked through Tuesday.

In the county oil fields drilling activity ceased at noon Saturday and was not resumed until Tuesday.

The rain was also responsible for a discouragingly small attendance at John Bayer's Community Auction last Saturday, as well as for the postponing of a scheduled meeting to organize a local CYO unit. Then again on Monday, so many children were absent from school that a special program to honor Father Frowin on the feast day of his patron saint had to be postponed.

BRIDGE GONE; EASY VOTH IS CAUGHT BY RAGING HIGH WATER

The kind of adventure that makes a person's hair stand on end was the experience of Alois (Easy) Voth of Lindsay last Monday when he was caught in the center of a raging torrent.

At the height of the flood Easy was riding horseback on the road near Andrew Roewe's and came upon a low place where water was rushing across the road. Not knowing the culvert had been washed out he continued on his way only to plunge headlong into the swiftly moving current with his horse when they reached the spot where the bridge had been.

A poor swimmer and handicapped by boots, raincoat and other wet weather paraphernalia, he was helpless as the flood carried him down stream for a quarter of a mile before he was able to clutch a tree limb.

After several minutes spent in resting and reviving Easy made good his escape.

The horse had succeeded in reaching the bank only a short distance from the scene of its plunge.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

I am running for school trustee, and will appreciate your vote next Saturday, April 2. I am definitely against any special school tax or consolidation.

I can assure you that I am running for this office on my own initiative, and no individual or clique have either influenced me to run, or will dictate to me if I am elected.

CHILDREN HONOR PASTOR ON PATRON'S FEAST DAY

Honoring Father Frowin Koerdt on the feast day of his patron saint, pupils of the Sacred Heart Parochial school presented a short program Tuesday afternoon in the school basement. Their efforts were rewarded when the Reverend Pastor, in his remarks of appreciation, dismissed school for the remainder of the day.

The program opened with a Father's Day chorus by pupils of the second, third and fourth grades, after which the first graders gave a delightful short dialog entitled "Spiritual Bouquet" and an action song.

A two act mission playlet "God mother and God child" with a special feature added by Sister Lucia was given by children of the eighth grade and two chorus numbers "The Bullfrog" and "Mother at Your Feet" were presented by the high school.

Individual numbers on the program included "Spiritual Bouquet" by Alfred Bayer, "Appreciation verse" by Mildred Walterscheid, Presentation of gift by Helen Walterscheid, "Baptizing Day," a poem by Armella Flusche, and an accordion solo by Katie Mae Walterscheid.

Two selections were given by the school orchestra under the direction of Sister Leonarda.

Originally scheduled to take place Monday, the program was postponed until the next day because of heavy rains.

POST OFFICE HERE SELLS OVER $1,000 IN SAVINGS BONDS

The following shows in detail the amount of United States Saving Bond sales at Muenster Post Office from September 1, 1936 to August 31, 1937 inclusive:

Sales at Post Office $958.25; Sales sent in by mail order $187.50. Total sales for Muenster, $1145.75. These sales place Muenster in the rank of 187 on the comparative chart of all third class offices throughout the state of Texas.

The following is taken from a compiled statement from the Treasury Department showing the sales of United States Savings Bonds to recent date throughout the Nation. It will serve to show a written investment history of the progress made in securing investments, and to show that the sale and distribution is proving of immense value to the public and to the Government.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the total maturity value of United States Saving Bonds sold through the close of business March 7, 1938, amounted to $1,584,462,875. This total was purchased by more than 1,260,000 investors, and represents an average sale for each business day since March 1, 1935, when these bonds were first sold, of $1,720,375. A record for one day's sale of Saving Bonds was set on Monday, January 10, of this year, when $10,029,775, maturity value, of these bonds were reported sold on this single day. Sales by post offices throughout the country on that day represented $9,025,350, maturity value of bonds, and direct-by-mail orders were received in Washington for Savings Bonds of a maturity value of $1,004,425.

The sale of Savings Bonds for the calendar year 1937 was 34.2 per cent greater than for 1936, and the year 1936 exceeded the ten month's sale of these bonds in 1935 by 82.8 per cent.

The total maturity value sale for the calendar year 1937 amounted to $635,419,175, with approximately 600,000 purchasers, and an average sale for each business day of $2,090,200.

Detailed analysis of the daily sale at each of the post offices throughout the country authorized to sell Savings Bonds was begun on September 1, 1936, and for the year ending August 31, 1937, showed that there was a maturity value sale of $636,748,500, or an average sale of 2,101,500, for each business day for the first year these records were kept.

Approximately 16,000 post offices throughout the country are authorized to sell U. S. Savings Bonds. The Government to date actually retains more than 92 per cent of all the money that has been invested in Saving Bonds, less than 8 per cent of the bonds sold have been redeemed. The majority of the registered owners are small investors who are buying the bonds out of income. Among the features of the bonds most frequently influencing their purchase are safety, the constant availability of the funds and the fact that Savings Bonds increase 3 1/3 per cent in value if held for ten years. The redemption features, which eliminates any chance of loss to the investor, appeals to all purchasers.

ARTIST AND PRIEST TELL OF GHOST WHO RETURNS TO CHURCH

PITTSBURGH.—This is the story of a ghost in church—perhaps the ghost of a former pastor who returns to pay penance.

It is vouched for by Maxo Vanko, famous artist, and Father Albert Zagar, pastor of the Croatian Catholic Church of St. Nicholas in Millvale. They tell of a specter in black, three distinct knocks, howling dogs at midnight, and the eternal light going out in the church.

The story, as it is told for the first time in a magazine, goes back to April 5, 1937, when Vanko arrived in Millvale to paint murals in the church in two months. To speed his work, no one—not even Father Zagar—was to enter the church while he painted, and often he worked at night.

On the night of April 13, Vanko said he saw a figure in black at the altar, making gestures in the air. He thought it probably was Father Zagar, but four nights later, the artist felt weird and cold, and soon he heard the figure.

Going into the parish house to remonstrate with Father Zagar for apparently coming into the church while he was working, Vanko was astonished to find the priest asleep on a couch.

Then Father Zagar revealed that except for that night, he had stood guard outside the church on nights Vanko worked because "the Croations for many years have believed that the ghost of a former pastor comes back at night to pay penance for failing to serve the parish well."

Thereafter, Father Zagar came to the church at 11 o'clock to remain with Vanko the nights he worked. Suddenly one night, there was a strange click, then two, other clicks or knocks, in other parts of the church. Both men heard the knocks and the dogs howling outside, but only Vanko saw the figure in black sitting in the fourth pew.

Father Zagar shouted a challenge to the ghost.

"If you're a ghost, if you're a dead man, go with God—peace to you. I'll pray for you. Only please don't bother us."

For two nights there was nothing and Father Zagar thought he had chased away the ghost. There was a knocking. Vanko tried to flee, but Father Zagar held him there.

The old man in black was seen by Vanko, moving down the aisle. "Look, Father," Vanko yelled. "There he goes—he's at the altar—he's blown out the light."

Father Zagar rushed to the altar, reached inside the glass globe and felt the candle which was still warm from burning. It was the sanctuary light that burns all the time. Never before had it gone out.

Since Vanko finished the murals, the church is locked at dusk and no one ventures in it at night. But sometimes the dogs howl at midnight and anyone lying awake in the parish house says he can hear three weirdly sharp knocks.

CITY PROSPECTORS PAN BIG PROFIT IN SEWER GOLD RUSH

NEW YORK.—A gold rush that might have developed into a subterranean Klondike was averted Saturday when Magistrate Irving Ben Cooper ordered three young 1938 forty-niners to quit panning the icy sewers.

An early-rising resident of the Bronx, taking a brisk one-two-three in front of his bedroom window, was horrified to see three dark figures sulking around an open manhole. Bounding to the telephone he shrieked an alarm of murder. At that very moment, he said, the assassins were lowering the body of their victim into the labyrinthian sewer system.

Police arrived and seized the three sulkers. Several hours later they turned up, considerably bewildered and somewhat muddy, in front of Magistrate Cooper.

After ascertaining that their names were, respectively, Louis Cassano, 25; Anthony Cassano, 20 his brother, and Joseph Marrone, 20, he inquired the nature of their nocturnal prowling.

"We were just looking for gold," said Louis. "You know, old gold."

"Gold, old gold?" inquired the Magistrate archly. He demanded details.

It developed the Cassano brothers and their fellow argonaut, Marrone, had discovered the sewers were indeed nothing less than bonanza creeks.

During the last eight months, working in the early morning hours when traffic was light, they had panned enough old gold to yield them an average weekly income of $35 to $50. They fished out gold teeth, coins and jewelry of every description. Once they found a diamond ring that brought $150, they said.

Their equipment consisted of high boots, shovels, rakes, flashlights, a pan with a screened bottom, and the ability to ignore unpleasant odors.

The Magistrate was impressed with their enterprise, but ordered them to cease and desist.

PRISONERS TRAIN
ROACH TO SMUGGLE
SMOKES INTO CELL

AMARILLO, Texas.—County Jail-er Dick Vaughn, upset because the appearance of cigarettes in a solitary confinement cell led him to believe a prisoner had a key, solved the mystery Tuesday and can't believe the solution himself.

A jail regulation denies the prisoners in solitary confinement the privilege of smoking. The cell cannot be reached without a key and its only opening is a crack under the door.

For several days Jail-er Vaughn found two prisoners in the cell smoking cigarettes. He searched them and the cell. Later he caught them smoking again. The incident was repeated so many times he concluded that a prisoner had a key.

Tuesday he heard the prisoners in the cell calling his name. As he slipped along the barred corridor he saw something moving on the floor. It was a large cockroach. Tied securely to its back was a cigarette. The roach was headed for the crack under the solitary cell door.

Later, Vaughn tested the roach, placing it in another room with a cigarette on its back. The roach responded to the call and delivered the cigarette. Several officers saw it.

The incident won freedom from the cell for the two prisoners. Said Jail-er Vaughn:

"Anyone who can make a cockroach work shouldn't be in solitary confinement."

ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY TOO MUCH SPEED
LACK OF COURTESY

HARTFORD.—Basic reasons for America's shameful automobile accidents in 1937 were "too much speed and too little courtesy" according to a new booklet "Death Begins at 40" just issued by the Travelers Insurance Company. The booklet presents a complete analysis of last year's traffic accidents, based on official figures from the 48 states.

There is no intention in the booklet, according to the editors, to advocate 40 miles an hour or any other fixed speed as a top limit. To quote: "... There are times, as in heavy traffic or heavy fog, when 30 miles an hour is suicidal; other times when 50 miles an hour seems reasonable. Every driver should know, however, that if he does have an accident it is more likely to mean death if he is going fast."

Many of the features in the booklet have been prepared especially to show what happens in the higher brackets of speed. It is pointed out, for instance, that a car is four times harder to stop at 50 miles an hour than it is at 25, and nine times harder to stop at 75 miles an hour than at 25. A new word, "turnability" has been coined to express another speed factor. The driver's turnability, the booklet shows, decreases rapidly as his speed increases. Thus, he can make only one-fourth as sharp a turn at 50 miles an hour as he could make at 25 and only one-ninth as sharp a turn at 75 as at 25.

Another set of figures shows that if you have an accident while driving under 40 miles an hour there is only one chance in 44 that somebody will be killed but if your accident comes while you are traveling faster than 40, there is one chance in 19 that somebody will be killed.

While the folly of high speed provides the main theme of the booklet, there is a secondary theme which runs consistently through the issue. It is the need for courtesy on the highway.

After analyzing reports of 40,300 fatalities and 1,221,090 injuries in traffic accidents last year, the company's statisticians point to these interesting and little known facts about accidents:

Exceeding the speed limit was responsible for 37 per cent of the deaths and 25 per cent of the injuries.

More than 94 per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents were male and less than six per cent female. It does not necessarily follow that women are safer drivers than men, it is pointed out, because adequate data on the relative exposure are lacking.

Ninety-seven per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents had had one or more years' driving experience.

More than 78 per cent of all fatal accidents occurred when the road surface was dry. Eighty-three per cent of all fatal accidents occurred in clear weather.

More persons were killed on Sunday than on any other day. The heaviest toll came on Saturday. More persons were killed between seven and eight o'clock in the evening than at any other hour.

Fatalities increased last year in every age group except that from five to fourteen years of age.

In the last fifteen years, 441,912 persons have been killed in the U. S. by automobiles. This is almost double the number of American soldiers killed in action or died of wounds in all the wars this country has engaged in since its birth.

KANSAS CITY.—A cardboard box is home for the latest addition to the William C. Wells family.

WHERE LEADERS AGREE

It must be a shock to serious and clean minded people to learn that the contraceptives "industry" has already passed the quarter of a billion dollar line. Another shock is an announcement in the recent issue of a woman's magazine that seventy-nine per cent of American women, according to a survey, are in favor of birth control.

With such facts as these staring them in the face people still continue to search for explanations of many distressing conditions. They ask what can possibly be done to relieve unemployment or crime or grafting or crooked politics or the dozen other plagues that threaten our civilization.

Church leaders have answered their questions for years, but selfish, shallow minded individuals have failed to heed the warning. Financial and industrial leaders now offer the same answer, and again it falls on deaf ears.

From the standpoint of morality one can easily see a relationship between sex indulgence and selfishness or greed, which are accepted as two prominent causes of modern economic distress. Selfishness practiced in one way becomes a part of personality, and asserts itself in other ways. Moreover, it destroys ethical concepts of duty, responsibility, right and wrong, without which neither society nor individual can survive.

All this has to do with people's souls. But what is its effect on their physical well being? We complain of surpluses that destroy price levels and throw people out of work. If the birth rate were not declining, if there were more consumers, this problem of supply and demand might have a better chance to adjust itself.

Modern trends urge us to continue our present pace of self indulgence. Decency and common sense urge us to return to loftier standards. One of these days our nation will awake to the realization that its present movement is not in the direction of civilization and progress, it is a movement toward paganism and destruction such as the history of Rome will testify.

This world was created by a mind greater than that of all ages combined. That same mind supplied a set of natural laws for us human beings to follow in running the world. We can, if we choose, disregard the rules, but every time we do we pay a price—in misery.

It was stated that industrial and financial men as well as moralists are distressed over birth control and contraceptives. We quote in part from Babson's Reports, one of the nation's leading financial organs: "In the final round-up, the future of America and other democracies depends upon the birth rate and upon the kind of stock from which our people are breeding. I can not emphasize this too strongly, especially, since to satisfy demand from the best (!) American stock, the Consumers' Union has recently issued a booklet on 'Contraceptives.' All the battleships and bombing planes in the world can not offset the evils of a declining birth rate within our own country. This is France's underlying trouble today. Vital statistics upon the offspring of college graduates show that the United States will soon be in the same serious situation unless the decline is checked

"The vital question facing us Americans

today is not whether we will be killed with a bomb in warfare, or die with a cancer in peace. The vital question is how many useful children and grandchildren we leave when we do die. If there is any Day of Judgment, St. Peter will not bother to ask us how much money we left, or how many college degrees we held, or how 'successful' we were. He will ask us only two questions—(1) "How many useful children and grandchildren did you leave when you died? (2) What did you do to help protect teach and train the children of others?" This is the acid test, 'for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.'

FOR YOUR TREES' SAKE

A garden club of Gainesville has recently instituted a campaign to discourage topping and cutting back trees. Their activity is supported by the plea that topping not only induces bushy growth depriving many leaves of sunlight, but also invites later decay.

Though the Gainesville club is interested primarily in Gainesville trees, its activity can serve as a very helpful hint to Muenster. Our tree program is merely in its infancy. Dozens of trees were planted during the past year, and indications are that hundreds more will be set out during the next few years.

The prospects are that Muenster will boast an array of beautiful trees several years hence if growers will adopt proper methods of care, if they will assist rather than hinder natural growth.

According to R. C. Morrison, city forester of Fort Worth, trees should be thinned but not cut back. "Trees that are topped always give trouble in later years," he said, "as the wood decays rapidly where the tree has been cut, and after the branches appear as suckers in the beginning there is a weakness produced that causes the tree to split when older."

Mr. Morrison explains that trees do not need to be cut back when they reach a certain size, as some people seem to think. The better method is to preserve the shape by leaving main branches but eliminate inside small limbs and brushy growth, and permit normal growth at the outside.

While we do not presume to be versed in the science of tree culture we submit these suggestions in the hope that they will induce people to study correct methods. Faulty trimming will do our trees more harm than good.

CHARACTER — REPUTATION

By nature we are social beings dependent for our happiness and success very much on the opinions of others. Perhaps this circumstance is responsible for the fact that normal people are so scrupulously anxious to make a good impression. Everyone desires to be thought of as a person of rare ability and judgment and sound morality.

Reputation seems to be the big item nowadays. Many a person is willing to overlook the fact that his character is not up to par as long as he can keep others under the impression that he is above reproach.

Consider the public officials who shout to the skies every small gesture that can be credited to their reputations, but who steal, accept bribes, and misrepresent at every opportunity. There are business men who boast of their lofty standards while deliberately palming off shoddy merchandise. Farmers will question a neighbor's honesty while working on their own little petty skin game.

This is not a sweeping condemnation of all persons but it is a claim that shady character is to be found in every walk of life. Regardless of occupation that trait in human nature which prompts us all to take unfair, selfish advantage is certain to assert itself unless a sturdy character stands on guard.

We are social beings, yes. Reputations mean much in our dealings with others. But at the same time it is well to remember that we spend much more time with our own than with other personalities. Reputation cannot inspire self respect, character must do that.

"Do what is right because it is right," is a sound bit of advice passed down from great men of the ages. Sometimes it does not bring general approval but it preserves self respect, an infinitely greater asset.

What Others Have to Say--

THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD

"The Seven Wonders of the World" has been a catch phrase in literature and on the platform for hundreds of years, yet there are many today who do not know what makes up the list, as there has been constant endeavor on the part of partisans to add an eighth, or to substitute one for some less known of the original seven.

The Clarendon News believes that there are today two or three spectacles that should be added to the original seven, but in order that we may have something to build on besides the all-too-common total of "seven" spoken parrot-like, we offer below an authentic compilation of the original "seven wonders of the world." Here they are:

FIRST

The Sphinx and Pyramids: These great Egyptian monuments were built about 4500 years before Christ was born. The Pyramids were the tombs of Egyptian royalty. The largest of these is Cheops, 461 feet high and 746 square at the base. It is made of large blocks of stone and covers 12 acres of ground. The Sphinx is an idol with the head of a woman and the body of a crouching lion. It is carved from a solid granite rock and is about 180 feet long and 100 feet above the ground.

SECOND

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon: These were terraced gardens planted with beautiful trees and shrubs and watered by fountains from a reservoir in the top terrace which was about 300 feet above the ground. They were built about 600 B. C. in the palace of King Nebuchadnezzar, which was about 60 miles south of the present city of Bagdad.

THIRD

The Temple of Diana: This was one of the world's most beautiful buildings. It was erected at Ephesus, a now vanished city near Smyrna, in Asia Minor, by the Greek Ionian cities, as a joint monument. It was constructed entirely of marble and was 425 feet long and 225 feet wide. The roof was supported by 127 columns of marble weighing 150 tons each. It was finally destroyed when the Goths pillaged the city in 262 A. D.

FOURTH

The Statue of Jupiter Olympus: This was a wonderful statue built by the Greek sculptor Phidias. It was begun shortly after 432 B. C. and was situated in the Valley of Olympia in southeast Greece. It was made of marble, encrusted with ivory and white drapes of beaten gold. It represented the bearded Jupiter, the supreme god of the Romans and Greeks.

FIFTH

The Tomb of Mausolus: This was built by the widow of the King of Caria at Heliarnassus, on the eastern side of the Aegean Sea. It was made of marble and was remarkable for its beauty, both inside and out. It was destroyed by an earthquake. From this building, and the name of the King it was made for, we get our word "mausoleum."

SIXTH

The Pharos of Alexandria: In the year 282 B. C. King Ptolemy Philadelphus of Egypt completed a most remarkable lighthouse on the island of Pharos, in the port of Alexandria. The island had previously been joined to the mainland by a causeway. The lighthouse was made of white marble and cost $350,000, a much more tremendous sum in those days than it is now. Open fires in the top of the lighthouse provided a beacon to guide sailors.

SEVENTH

The Colossus of Rhodes: This is one of the best known most exaggerated by legend. The Colossus was a brass of the ancient wonders of the world and one of the statue of the Greek god Apollo and was erected on the island of Rhodes, in the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea by Charles of Lindus. It took twelve years to build and was about 110 feet high. It was destroyed by an earthquake about 224 B. C. and was sold about 400 years later as old brass. Legend has it that the statue straddled the entrance of the port and believed to be untrue. It probably served, as does the Statue of Liberty, to guide sailors.

IDLE AND MALICIOUS GOSSIP

"They say" and "I heard" are preambles to the slaughter of more reputations than all the actual wrong-doing in a lifetime.

"They say she did this or that," or "I heard that So-and-So was—" are repeated more often by certain types of persons than the Lord's Prayer and comments on the state of the weather combined.

Sometimes we think the urge to gossip is a form of insidious disease that not only is incurable but gradually eats away at the vitals of the gossiper until, finally, it devours its perpetrator in its own accumulated venom. Be that as it may, gossip has destroyed more good names, besmirched the reputations of more innocent persons than all the actual wrong deeds ever done by any target of gossip.

cent persons than all the actual wrong deeds ever done by any target of gossip.

Gossip is the most prolific form of "insect" life we know. Start it by a whispered "They say," and without further cultivation or special effort on the part of anyone, it grows from a tiny and usually more or less harmless germ to a vicious monster that sears the reputation of several people.

In trying to analyze the reason for gossip, we come to several vague conclusions. One is that we believe some of the most persistent peddlers of gossip carry out their part of the vicious whisperings with a certain degree of joy and exultation because they feel that by gossiping about others they throw the spotlight off their own wrong-doings.

Others gossip with a certain fatalistic glee because their minds are too shallow to entertain any really serious or uplifting thought. They merely are taking the line of least thought in their daily round of idle gossip, for certainly it takes no high form of mentality to whisper a "they say" story about some neighbor or acquaintance.

If there are degrees of hell, as some religionists contend, for the various forms of sin, then certainly there will be a place far down in the sub-basement reserved especially for the peddlers of idle and reputation-smearing gossip.—Menard News.

WHY SHERIDAN'S BLACK HORSE BECAME ROAN

For many years, the stuffed horse Gen. Phil Sheridan rode in the Civil War has been on exhibition in a glass case in the Smithsonian Institute of Washington. Some visitor, noting the horse was a roan in color, thought he remembered from his school history that Sheridan's mount particularly at Winchester, "twenty miles away," was a black horse. This got into the papers and started rumors that someone had switched horses in the museum, making off with Sheridan's famous black charger. Smithsonian officials have laid all such rumors at rest by explaining that age had turned the horse's hair from a glossy black to a rusty roan.—Gainesville Register.

UNLOADING PLENTY ON UNCLE SAMMY

Establishment of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. which insures deposits up to $5,000 in 14,000 banks has brought Uncle Sam into possession of all sorts of properties owned by banks that have failed and were unable to make good losses to depositors. The FDIC, of course, takes over all assets of the failed bank. Among the property so taken over and which this branch of the government is now trying to dispose of is a night club in Pennsylvania, some mules in Missouri, a hamburger stand in South Dakota, a golf course in Minnesota, an opera house in Montana, and a stock of whiskey on Long Island.—Gainesville Register.

THE PLACE OF THE CHURCH

We overheard a man who was asked why he did not attend church give as the reason the old stock excuse, "there are too many hypocrites in the church." There may be. But there are more outside. This is also true, that the loss to the individual who refuses to give his support to the church for any reason, is greater than is the loss to the church. The church can afford to go on without him, but he cannot afford to go without the church. He needs the thing that the church will give him infinitely more than the church needs him. Even though it is true that every man in the church except his own estimable self is a hypocrite, he would still be the gainer by attending and supporting its work.—Fort Davis Dispatch.

AN OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK

The country may be going to the dogs, which dire prediction you can hear any day in the week, but John D. Rockefeller, Jr., doesn't think so. As evidence of his continuing faith in the future of America, he announced last week a $12,000,000 building program for Rockefeller Center (Radio City) in New York. Business may be headed for the scrap heap, as is often charged, but the Hudson Motor Company doesn't think so. Hudson has begun production of a new automobile in the lowest price field, believing that American people have and will continue to have money with which to buy new automobiles. Business leaders are practically unanimous in predicting a business upturn with the coming of spring, and some even predict a business boom in the near future. If you are wise, you won't sell America Short.—Whitewright Sun.

The treasury recently released a story to the effect that if all the money in circulation were divided equally, every person would have $50.38. For some reason the treasury failed to add that if the national debt were divided the same way, every person would owe $285.—The Commentator.

LINDSAY STUDY CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Lindsay—The Saint Rose' Study Club which was recently organized by members of the Young Ladies Sodality, held their initial meeting in the sacristy of St. Peter's Church Wednesday evening.

Because the functions of a discussion club are foreign to members of the newly formed club, the Rev. Father Bonaventure acting pastor and moderator for the society explained its various phases which include the duties of officers, order of meetings, the use of the text book, suggestions and references.

As their first lesson in the series of Praying the Mass, members studied the first chapter of Part 1, of the Liturgy.

Due to mission services in St. Peter's parish, the meeting scheduled for Wednesday, March 29, was suspended until the first Wednesday in April at which time the club will again meet in the sacristy of the church. This is considered an ideal meeting place since members, there, have access to the missal, ritual and various other sacramentals to which they might turn for references.

Three new members, Misses Rose and Anna Sandman and Kathryn Bezner were added to the club's roll.

SEEPAGE ON STREET SEEN AS EFFECT OF MONDAY'S DELUGE

Excessive moisture causing a rising and cracking of pavement near the post office on Main Street was recognized Wednesday as one of the after effects of the week-end deluge. Seemingly the result of a broken water main, the trouble was explained as seepage by several persons who recalled similar occurrences in the past.

Once before at the same location the city dug to the main when a similar seepage became evident. This time the place will be unmolested, at least until it has a chance to dry, Mayor Endres stated.

The seepage is said to have followed the water main from some point up Main Street.

New pavement will have to be applied in several spots after the seepage disappears.

We find that we enjoy life more if we avoid the company of well-informed people.

Confetti

By CON FETTE

It was a bad day for ole' Con a couple of weeks ago when State Press of the Dallas News came upon the weekly offering in this column. That guy must have started his day with a mess of razzberries topped with sour cream. Nevertheless we enjoy his remarks and envy his skill in putting a fellow in his place. The incident makes us feel almost distinguished. After all, there are a lot of cross-roads scribes who have never been honored with a calling down from the eminent Mr. State Press.

Well, for Pete's sake, be comments on our item about ladies' shoes, "must our girls study trigonometry in order to walk with their feet placed at the proper angle? Besides what does Anatole France know about the ladies' attitude toward the ground on which they walk? A woman who buys ten pairs of shoes a year knows something about footwear as well as feet. She knows what high heels do to her manner of walking and what low heels do to her manner of resting. If she walks on high heels and rests on low heels, it is because she has tried both heels and knows their answers. To tell a woman that her feet when walking should hit the ground at an angle of 35 degrees is to tell her nonsense. She doesn't care anything about the higher mathematics involved. She cares only about the way her feet look and how she looks. If she complains that her feet are killing her it isn't because she has ignored the angle's degree, but because her shoe heels are too high and thin in relation to her bulk and bone structure. Don't try to tell milady anything about shoes.

So what? We don't know a lot about ladies' shoes but we do think that State Press sorta took his sights off the target. It seems that Anatole France's remark was that high heels made ladies more attractive. And State Press will probably agree that the ones who rate a second glance usually have high heels.

Next is his blister on the subject of feasting and fasting. Here it is in part: Who was the prominent man who indorsed the church's recommendation of fasting as a help to spiritual and physical health? And how often had the prominent man fasted before making his recommendations? When a fat man advises abstemiousness at table his audience has the right to question his sincerity. Not that he mayn't be wholly sincere. He may be. But his advice is a good deal like that of a thin man urging his audience to stuff at the table.

Dale Carnegie is the man, Mr. State Press. If you will thumb back through a few weeks' copies of the Dallas News you will find a dandy little item on taking it easy at the table.

Few things hurt an editor's pride worse than to be told that one of his stories is all wet. We say this from experience. Twice recently and a few times before people who know have reminded us of errors that crept in. Fortunately none of them were sufficiently important to cause serious trouble, but they were embarrassing just the same. All of which helps to give some idea of the worry newspaper people have to face. First they run all over town and part of the country, see a hundred people and ask a thousand questions in an effort to get it all, then publish their findings with a blind hope that they are correct.

Errors will break into print in spite of the most painstaking efforts. During his younger days a man, now prominent as a New York society editor, was careful to list all notables at an opera. Not being personally acquainted, he copied names from all boxes that were occupied. His energy was rewarded the following day when a reader phoned to advise that he must have opened a few dozen graves to gather his audience.

Fellows on the R. W. McKinney crew do really take their work seriously. Last Saturday during the downpour two of them were out sprinkling the highway.

A fine point in salesmanship, so they say, is first to win the customer's confidence by being scrupulously honest about a product. A man selling cleaning fluid might admit that it will not remove ink, rust, fruit stains and a few other things. After that his prospect is more likely to believe that the fluid cannot be beat for removing grease, tar and paint. An outstanding example of such salesmanship was noted here only a few days ago. The speech was something like this: "Now, here's a real used car for you—and when I say used, I mean USED. In fact, I'd go so far as to say AB-USED." Results unknown.

not an identification bureau in operation and we had no police radio station, which are modern necessities if an officer is to render the service expected by his constituents. We now have these.

"It has been a pleasure to co-operate with all local and out-of-town officers, and I have endeavored to the best of my ability to work with them harmoniously, in enforcement of the law.

"I believe that I have had good deputies, who are courteous to the public and fair with everybody in law enforcement. My office has been open to the public both day and night. My books are open for public inspection and my private conduct likewise is open for any investigation the taxpayers may care to make.

"I have tried to be fair to everyone; have endeavored to answer every call coming to me, day or night, except one call that came when my mother was ill, and I had that one answered.

"Since taking office I have realized I am here to serve the public and I have given the best that is in me, to that end, always trying to be fair and courteous, yet unafraid to enforce the law, no matter who it involved. Many similar offices in Texas are said to close at 5 o'clock each afternoon, with Sunday and holidays off. We keep our office open every day in the week, and usually until 10 or 11 o'clock each night, so as to be on hand when our services are needed.

"I have visited places of entertainment frequented by the young people, in this city and county, and when I believe it necessary, I have encouraged them to do the right thing. I do not believe in hiding and waiting for someone to violate the law, and if I know it in time, I will try to keep them from making a mistake. I am not here as sheriff to see how tough I can be, or how many arrests I can make, but rather to help prevent law violations and maintain a peaceful community. Any officer that does this, is contributing something worthwhile to the welfare of the people.

"I have enjoyed serving the people of Cooke county as their sheriff and if they re-elect me at the July 23 primary, I will continue to be the same Luther McCollum as in the past, and will serve them to the best of my ability and experience.

Mr. McCollum is 33 years of age, is married and has two children. Although he was one of the youngest men ever to be elected as sheriff in Texas, he has proven the wisdom of the voters by his successful record as a law-enforcement officer. He is always on the job and his willingness to assist and accommodate those who have had occasion to call upon him has served to uphold the high esteem with which he is regarded by citizens of not only Cooke county but neighboring counties as well. Mr. McCollum hopes to be able to meet as many voters personally as his duties will permit, and asks all of them to give him consideration and support him at the polls next July 23.

CITY CONVENIENCES BROUGHT TO FARMS BY BUTANE SYSTEM

As an outstanding contribution to modern rural conveniences and comfort, butane gas now emerges from the experimental field and takes a definite place in hundreds of plans for home building and rebuilding programs.

It is a tried and proven system, said F. H. Turbeville of Gainesville, who has recently assumed county wide dealership for the individual gas system. Seventy thousand units are now in use in the United States, twenty of them to be found in this county, and 375 in Dallas county.

In its use the butane gas system is identical with natural gas. It is actually a gas, not a liquid, and burns in any natural gas equipment. With minor changes, consisting chiefly in eliminating vaporizing attachments, it can be made to burn also in gasoline appliances.

In its original state, however, butane gas is a liquid, but it has a great tendency to vaporize. Placed in underground storage tanks it vaporizes until, at normal temperature, it reaches a pressure of about six pounds per square inch. The fuel is taken from this supply of vapor at the top of the storage tank and sent through an automatic regulator to obtain the proper pressure for heating appliances.

An especially attractive feature of the butane gas system is the extremely reasonable price of fuel. Butane is plentiful, being a by-product of gasoline refining, for which, until now, no general commercial use has been found. It is the escaping gas in oil fields which is frequently marked by a constantly burning flare.

Rural homes that use the butane system are supplied by regular route trucks which make their rounds on an average of about once a month.

In cost it is said to be actually cheaper than natural gas from city mains. Offsetting a slightly higher price per thousand cubic feet is the fact that, volume for volume, butane gas contains slightly more than three times as many B. T. U.'s. Some city residents have been known to install it in preference to natural gas.

60 PERCENT MORE COTTON

A recently received census report from Edwin J. Huffaker, Gainesville agent of the Department of Commerce, reveals that 14,258 bales of cotton were ginned in Cooke county from the 1937 crop as compared with 8,906 bales for the crop of 1936. This represents an increase of 60 per cent or 5,352 bales over last year's production.

Most of us get as many good breaks as bad ones, but we forget all about the good ones.
