

MUENSTER TO VOTE TODAY ON SEWER BONDS

Glose Race Expected

Favorable Vote Regarded As Opportunity to Open New Era of Progress

What is expected to be the hottest election since the water bond election will decide today whether Muenster's citizens are willing to assume a $20,000 indebtedness in order to secure a $15,000 PWA gift toward the construction of a modern sewage disposal system.

The proposal has been under rather intensive fire for two weeks in addition to a less heated discussion for two months. Forces have lined up on both the "pro" and "con" sides, campaigning has been active, and both groups have permitted their hopes to stretch to the point of optimism.

The election will be held in the city hall with E. H. Hellman as presiding judge. It will offer two methods of liquidating the debt on a proposed $20,000 bond. Each method has a ballot of its own, however, according to general agreement voters will be expected to favor both or oppose both. That procedure was found necessary in view of the fact that neither a revenue bearing nor a tax bond alone would raise the necessary revenue, but the two combined would be adequate. Accordingly Mayor Endres suggested that those favoring a sewer vote "for" on both tickets and those opposing a sewer vote "against" on both.

Ballots will read as follows: "For the issuance of $20,000 revenue bonds, and the pledging of the revenue of the sewer system to the payment thereof; Against the issuance of $20,000 revenue bonds, and the pledging of the revenue of the sewer system to the payment thereof." The other will read: "For the issuance of bonds and the levying of a tax in payment thereof; Against the issuance of bonds and the levying of a tax in payment thereof."

Opposition to the sewer originates principally with those who are reluctant to pay additional tax. Some few also expressed their belief that relief labor would be used on the project and Muenster workers could not find employment. Again some object on the ground that connection charges would be excessive.

To combat such influence defenders of the project emphatically state that PWA, which is to make the grant, permits the employment of anyone the contractor wishes, also that the added tax, averaging $3.50 per year to those of normal means, would place no undue burden on anyone. As to connect charges it is said that no person need pay that price unless and until he begins using the service.

One of the most powerful pleas advanced in favor of the project is that it releases in Muenster at least half of the $33,000 of its cost and offers an opportunity for keeping the equivalent of Muenster's share here. By favoring a small tax a prospective worker creates an opportunity for months of work. Another view reminds that no less than one third the tax would come from railroads, utilities and other outside owned interests, thus relieving residents of much of their burden. A plea for health and prosperity is included in the claim that the threat of disease would diminish and that more industrial and business activity would be attracted to the more progressive town.

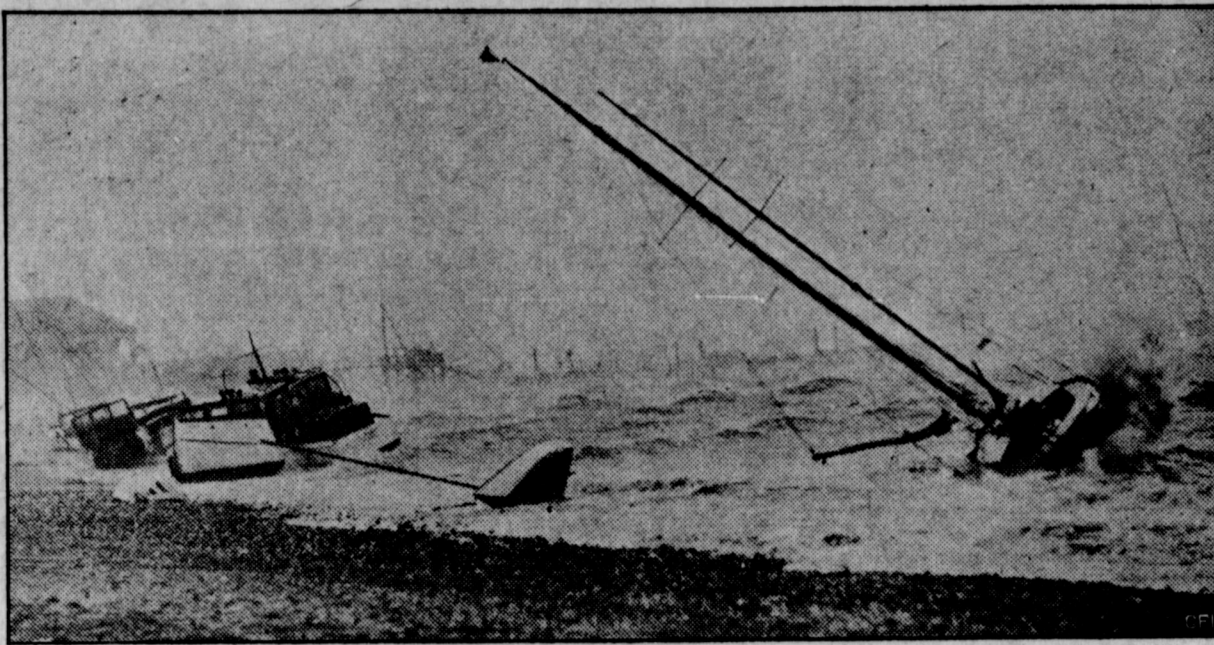

According to provisions specified by PWA, the result of Muenster's poll must be submitted to headquarters at Port Worth before midnight of Sept. 30.

AL SPENDS MANY A DAY HUNTING ROCKS FOR HIS NEW HOME

Al Walterscheid's pride and joy is his new rock home, now just beginning to take on its artistic appearance under the craftsmanship of Fritz Binder of Pilot Point, until seven years ago a stone worker in Germany.

Almost all the rocks were gathered by Mr. Walterscheid during spare time. On Sundays, holidays, and any time he could spend several hours away from his business, he drove into the country in search of rock deposits. Some trips took him to Oklahoma, but for the greater part they were confined to Cooke County. Some especially attractive petrified wood was secured near Bulcher and south of Muenster. Most of the red limestone came from east of Gainesville. A few unusual stones were picked up years ago in the Palo Duro Canyon of West Texas.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FRIDAY P. M. FOR MRS. ALDRIDGE

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Mrs. Oscar Aldridge, 58, who died in the Gainesville sanitarium Thursday morning following a lingering illness.

Rev. J. G. Forrester of Decatur conducted the funeral services, assisted by Rev. W. N. Oliver of Carrollton, and Rev. T. E. Hardy, pastor. Burial was in Reed cemetery under the direction of George J. Carroll and Son. Pallbearers were Leroy Porter, Roger Townsley, Roy Townsley, Horace Trew, T. L. Gaston, and Frank Aldridge of Gainesville.

Mrs. Aldridge had been a resident of the Myra community for 37 years and was endeared to all who knew her because of her loving disposition and kindness. She was a devout member of the Methodist church and leaves a large circle of friends and acquaintances who are grieved over her death.

Survivors include Mr. Aldridge and six sisters.

PERMANENT ROLL OF HONOR HEADED BY 20 LAST YEAR'S PUPILS

Twenty children of the Parochial School have a record to defend during the present school year. In recognition of their perfect attendance last year they have the honor of leading an attendance roll which will be continued permanently. Their names will remain there until eliminated by an absence from class.

Teachers at the school state that regular attendance is so important that every possible encouragement should be offered to children to strive for it. The permanent attendance roll was introduced as an appeal to their pride in a good record.

Strange as it seems, the tiny tots of the first grade placed the greatest number of names on last year's list and the upper grades had the fewest. Several children missed the list by a single absence.

Names now appearing on the roll are as follows:

- 1 Grade: Anna Mae Dankesreiter, Emma Lou Gehrig, Doris Lee Hellman, Arthur Hennigan, Mary Evelyn Hoffbauer, Robert Dean Reiter.
- 2 Grade: Walter Haverkamp, Victor Koelzer, Alvin Noggler, Evelyn Vogel.
- 3 Grade: Philomena Felderhoff, Edmund Fleitman, Beatrice Fuhrmann, Marian Gremminger.
- 4 Grade: Anna Marie Schilling, Dorothy Vogel.
- 5 Grade: Ewald Fuhrmann.
- 6 Grade: Clara Henscheld, Werner Henscheld.
- 7 Grade: Anna Marie Klement.
- 8 Grade: Florentine Endres.

SPEECH ON NATIVE BIRDS WILL FEATURE CIVIC LEAGUE MEET

A talk on "Native Birds of Texas" will be the feature attraction for the next meeting of the Ladies' Civic League on Friday, October 14. Colored slides of the birds and their nests will be shown in connection with the lecture.

This highly instructive talk will be given by Mrs. A. S. Horn of Gainesville, a member of the Maggie House Garden Club of that city. Several members of the club, including Mrs. L. A. House, president, and Mrs. Clay Newton, chairman of the flower show committee, will be present at the meeting, which promises to be one of unusual interest.

APPROXIMATE COST OF NEW PAROCHIAL BUILDING IS $2,500

The total cost of remodeling a wing of the old Parochial School building into two modern classrooms and an assembly hall will, in the end amount to approximately $2,500, Henry Fleitman foreman of the building program stated Wednesday. The cash expenditure to date is $1520.22.

Of this figure $1,201.82 was spent on materials and $318.40 on labor of moving the old building and engaging workmen for the remodeling. Figure in the value of the building but not in the cash expenditure is donated labor in the amount of $171.80 and labor to apply on obligations to the parish in the amount of $200.00.

In the opinion of Mr. Fleitman the cost of plumbing, gas and light fixtures, blackboards, desks, heaters, and other necessary equipment will be about $600, bringing total to about $2,500.

Mr. Fleitman and his associates of the building committee are well satisfied with their product. Though made of what was regarded an outmoded shack it conforms to modern school standards of warmth, ventilation and illumination. It is attractive with sheetrock walls and oak floors and sturdy enough to be serviceable for 25 years or more.

WAPLES PAINTER CO. FINISHES EXTENSIVE BUILDING PROGRAM

With the application of paint, now in progress, the Waples Painter Company, completes an extensive improvement program.

A new sheet metal lumber shed at the south side of the lot increases the yard's lumber storage capacity by slightly more than fifty percent. Warehouse space also has been increased in about the same proportion by changing one section of the old lumber shed into a storeroom. A rack along the remaining portion of the southside of the lot serves as a storage space for tile, fences, and other articles not affected by the weather.

Convenience is one of the outstanding features of the new arrangement. All materials can be easily reached for convenient loading. The warehouse addition adjoins the salesroom.

O'DANIEL STATEMENT ON SANITATION MAY BE TIMELY WARNING

What some local people consider as a timely warning by providence is Governor-nominee W. Lee O'Daniel's declaration last Friday that he is in favor of more effective measures for the conservation of human health. His statement was made in connection with his meeting with Dr. George Cox, state health officer.

Dr. Cox said his department had been handicapped by lack of sufficient appropriations to carry on constructive work in preventive sanitation and that lack of adequate laws had tied the hands of the department in combating evils which the department knew existed. He also reminded that almost three times as much is appropriated for the prevention and control of livestock diseases per head of livestock as is granted per capita for the care of humans.

The condition was recognized by O'Daniel as one of the leading factors slowing up the process of bringing new industry to Texas.

In view of today's sewer bond election the opinions expressed at that meeting are regarded as most pertinent for Muenster. Many here can see in the present unsanitary condition a deterrent to the establishment of industry.

But more important still is the expressed opinion favoring "more effective measures for the conservation of human health." The statement is regarded as a prediction that, if possible, legislation will be enacted to force smaller cities to eliminate their filth by putting in sewers.

It raises the questions: "Will Muenster still be able to secure Federal aid in the event it waits until forced to install a sewer? Will it not pay dearly if it rejects the present proposal?"

Of equally great importance is the assurance of the state's thinking men that better conditions of sanitation are necessary for both health and prosperity.

PAROCHIAL BUILDING BLESSED MONDAY, 42 STUDENTS ENROLLED

Following closely upon the completion of their new class rooms forty-two Parochial High students enrolled Monday morning and attended a special ceremony of blessing the building. Father Francis Zimmerman had charge of the service.

Present indications are that the first class of graduates from the high school will include five, the number enrolled in the newly begun fourth year class. Enrollments in other classes are as follows: third year, eight; second year, fourteen, and first year, fifteen.

RURAL CURRENT FOR CHRISTMAS TREES IS SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

The wish expressed several weeks ago that some Muenster people will have the pleasure of using rural electrification current to decorate their Christmas trees, is still offered as a possibility. J. W. Hess, manager of the local co-operative, stated Tuesday, with the project in excellent condition to cause very little delay, and a general report that REA officials demanded all possible speed, indications are that the construction will move forward at a rapid pace.

In a meeting of directors last Thursday night Wm. G. Morrison, consulting engineer, stated that all data will be available to permit a call for contractors' bids by the middle of October. After the contractor is engaged little time is expected to elapse until actual construction is under way. For his part, Mr. Hess said, there will probably be no hindrance whatever because right of way easements have already been secured for about 97 per cent of the applicants. The few remaining, he thinks, can easily be cleared before construction begins.

The project continues to grow. Since last Friday nine more have submitted their applications for membership.

Outside interest also is being attracted. A representative of Fuller Construction Company in Missouri met with the directors Monday night then made an inspection tour over the territory on the following day. Attending at last Thursday's meeting were Mr. Morrison of Waco and Mr. Lee, REA field man.

Plans are also under way to find a larger office for the co-operative. Once the project gets under way that office will be used as a store room for much of the equipment. The office now in use is much too small.

KNIGHTS LAY PLANS FOR COLUMBUS DAY PICNIC AND DANCE

Arrangements are under way now to make this year's observance of Columbus Day a memorable event. At a special meeting in their hall last Wednesday night, officers of the local Knights of Columbus Council made plans for the combination picnic-dance and appointed committee chairmen to take charge.

The celebration is scheduled to begin at 6 o'clock in the evening. That time was agreed upon because the tendency during recent years was toward smaller attendance in the afternoon. At night very few are kept away by conflicting work schedules.

The ever popular tango game is again offered as the feature attraction of the picnic. Supplementing it will be an abundance of sandwiches, candies and cold drinks, and several tables where card players can have their usual games.

A dance upstairs will be the principal attraction for the younger set. Roy Endres, in charge of engaging an orchestra, states that he has hopes of making it the banner social event of the year. At the present time he is negotiating with several leading orchestras of North Texas and expects to announce his choice within the next few days.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Friends here have been advised that Bernard Tacke, one of Muenster's pioneer citizens, died at his home in Cottonwood, Idaho on August 16. Mr. Tacke's memory is cherished by old timers who regarded him as a good neighbor for about twelve years. He has been away from here for 25 years.

Henry Henscheld Sr. To Be Buried Friday, 8 A.M.

Age and Weak Heart Give Way to Attack of Four Weeks' Illness

Henry Henscheld, Sr., one of Muenster's pioneers and an important contributor to the community's progress, died Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock following a four weeks' illness.

A High Mass of Requiem to be followed immediately by burial in the Muenster cemetery has been set for Friday morning at 8 o'clock. Father Vincent Orth of Subiaco, Ark. his nephew, will officiate at the services.

Members of Mr. Henscheld's family attribute his death to weakness of heart caused principally by old age. Next Tuesday, Oct. 4, would have been his eightieth birthday. Other internal complications also contributed to his death.

Until his sickness first came upon him, about two years ago, Mr. Henscheld was blessed with very good health. Since then he continued to grow feeble, and has not ventured from home since attending church services on the first Friday of this month.

Ever since settling here in the early nineties he has enjoyed a community wide friendship for his amiable kindness and untiring service in the interests of others. His energy and persistence is largely responsible for the formation of the German Farmers' Mutual Benevolent Association, which is saving thousands of dollars annually for the farmers of this and several other German communities. In recognition of his work in that cause he was elected the company's president at the first meeting 41 years ago and has been re-elected at every meeting since that time.

Mr. Henscheld likewise served his community with credit during the organization of the Muenster Telephone Company, another mutual organization that has saved thousands in reduced rates. When the Farmers' Marketing Association was started he again offered his support but in a less vigorous manner because of his advancing years.

His spirit of public service led him also to spend day after day for weeks at a time in caring for the Sacred Heart Cemetery. After retiring from farming in 1922 he imposed upon himself the task of fighting the growth of weeds in the sacred plot. It is hardly an exaggeration to state that he alone contributed as much to its appearance as all the rest of Muenster combined. His capacity slowed down with declining health, but it did not cease until the recently organized Cemetery Committee relieved him.

Mr. Henscheld was born in Neunkirchen, Germany on Oct. 4, 1858. He crossed to America as a youth and settled in Illinois, later moving to Iowa. At Hillsdale, Iowa, he was married to Christine Langenfeld on March 2, 1886. Five years later he moved to Muenster.

As a member of the parish he enjoyed the same respect that was his in other affairs of the community. He was recognized as one of the mainstays of the Saint Joseph's Society since its organization. He was a member of the church choir for forty years, severing his relations only when his voice weakened and he had enlisted several sons to take his place.

Mr. Henscheld retired from active duty on his farm in 1922, turning it over to his son Albert. Since the death of his wife in 1923 he has been living with Albert.

Surviving him are six sons, John of Norman, Okla., Henry of Blackfoot, Idaho, Joe of Westphalia, Iowa, and William, Albert and Leo of Muenster; and three daughters, Mrs. Ben Derichsweller of McAlester, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Frank Yosten and Mrs. Joe Hesse of Muenster.

4,039 BALES

Edwin J. Huffaker, special agent of the Department of Commerce at Gainesville, reports that 4,039 bales of cotton have been ginned from Cooke County current crop prior to September 16. Last year's record to the corresponding date was 5,535.

DANCE POSTPONED

MUENSTER TO VOTE TODAY ON SEWER BONDS

Close Race Expected

Favorable Vote Regarded As Opportunity to Open
New Era of Progress

What is expected to be the hottest election since the water bond election will decide today whether Muenster's citizens are willing to assume a $20,000 indebtedness in order to secure a $15,000 PWA gift toward the construction of a modern sewage disposal system.

The proposal has been under rather intensive fire for two weeks in addition to a less heated discussion for two months. Forces have lined up on both the "pro" and "con" sides, campaigning has been active, and both groups have permitted their hopes to stretch to the point of optimism.

The election will be held in the city hall with B. H. Hellman as presiding judge. It will offer two methods of liquidating the debt on a proposed $20,000 bond. Each method has a ballot of its own, however, according to general agreement voters will be expected to favor both or oppose both. That procedure was found necessary in view of the fact that neither a revenue bearing nor a tax bond alone would raise the necessary revenue, but the two combined would be adequate. Accordingly Mayor Endres suggested that those favoring a sewer vote "for" on both tickets and those opposing a sewer vote "against" on both.

Ballots will read as follows: "For the issuance of $20,000 revenue bonds, and the pledging of the revenue of the sewer system to the payment thereof; Against the issuance of $20,000 revenue bonds, and the pledging of the revenue of the sewer system to the payment thereof." The other will read: "For the issuance of bonds and the levying of a tax in payment thereof; Against the issuance of bonds and the levying of a tax in payment thereof."

Opposition to the sewer originates principally with those who are reluctant to pay additional tax. Some few also expressed their belief that relief labor would be used on the project and Muenster workers could not find employment. Again some object on the ground that connection charges would be excessive.

One of the most powerful pleas advanced in favor of the project is that it releases in Muenster at least half of the $33,000 of its cost and offers an opportunity for keeping the equivalent of Muenster's share here. By favoring a small tax a prospective worker creates an opportunity for months of work. Another view reminds that no less than one third the tax would come from railroads, utilities and other outside owned interests, thus relieving residents of much of their burden. A plea for health and prosperity is included in the claim that the threat of disease would diminish and that more industrial and business activity would be attracted to the more progressive town.

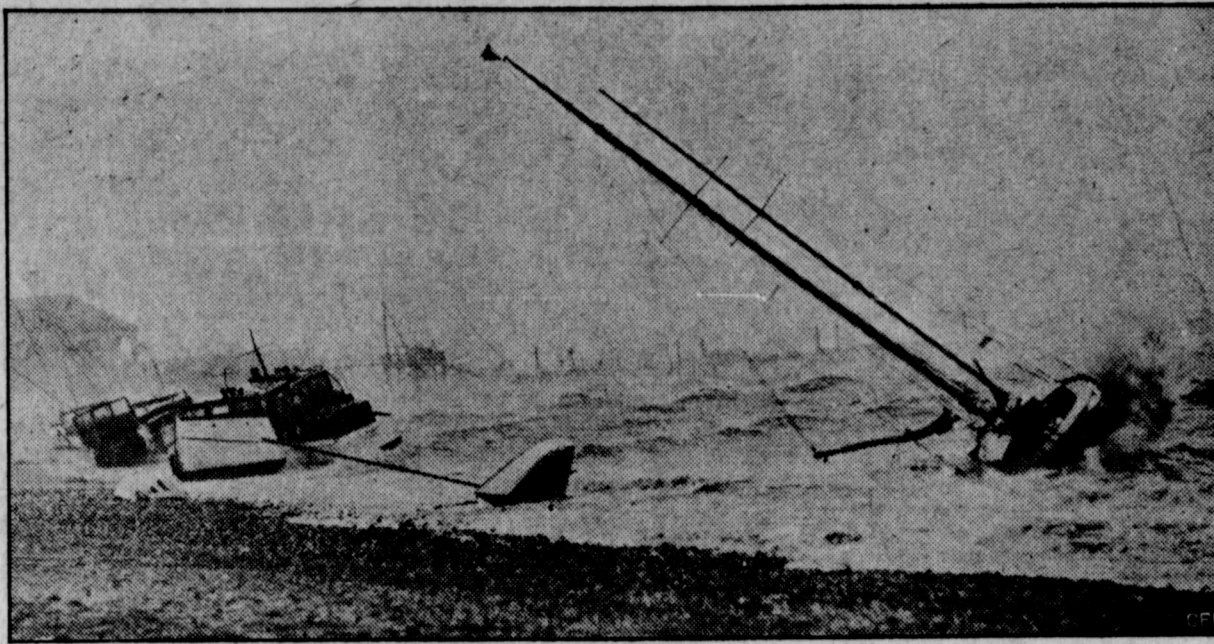

According to provisions specified by PWA, the result of Muenster's poll must be submitted to headquarters at Fort Worth before midnight of Sept. 30.

In recognition of his work in that cause he was elected the company's president at the first meeting 41 years ago and has been re-elected at every meeting since that time.

Mr. Henscheld likewise served his community with credit during the organization of the Muenster Telephone Company, another mutual organization that has saved thousands in reduced rates. When the Farmers' Marketing Association was started he again offered his support but in a less vigorous manner because of his advancing years.

His spirit of public service led him also to spend day after day for weeks at a time in caring for the Sacred Heart Cemetery. After retiring from farming in 1922 he imposed upon himself the task of fighting the growth of weeds in the sacred plot. It is hardly an exaggeration to state that he alone contributed as much to its appearance as all the rest of Muenster combined. His capacity slowed down with declining health, but it did not cease until the recently organized Cemetery Committee relieved him.

Mr. Henscheld was born in Neunkirchen, Germany on Oct. 4, 1858. He crossed to America as a youth and settled in Illinois, later moving to Iowa. At Hillsdale, Iowa, he was married to Christine Langenfeld on March 2, 1886. Five years later he moved to Muenster.

As a member of the parish he enjoyed the same respect that was his in other affairs of the community. He was recognized as one of the mainstays of the Saint Joseph's Society since its organization. He was a member of the church choir for forty years, severing his relations only when his voice weakened and he had enlisted several sons to take his place.

Mr. Henscheld retired from active duty on his farm in 1922, turning it over to his son Albert. Since the death of his wife in 1923 he has been living with Albert.

Surviving him are six sons, John of Norman, Okla., Henry of Blackfoot, Idaho, Joe of Westphalia, Iowa, and William, Albert and Leo of Muenster; and three daughters, Mrs. Ben Derichsweller of McAlester, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Frank Yosten and Mrs. Joe Hesse of Muenster.

4,039 BALES

Edwin J. Huffaker, special agent of the Department of Commerce at Gainesville, reports that 4,039 bales of cotton have been ginned from Cooke County current crop prior to September 16. Last year's record to the corresponding date was 5,535.

DANCE POSTPONED

Respecting the memory of Henry Henscheld, Sr., Roy Endres, chairman of the Knights of Columbus dance committee, announced that the dance originally scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed until Tuesday night of next week.

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION

STATE FAIR OF TEXAS

Celebrates 50th Anniversary

It was fifty years ago that a pioneer group struggled and organized the State Fair of Texas. That year a total of 30,000 people attended the fair. Fifty years of service to its community has placed the State Fair of Texas far ahead in the fair world—its last ten years of activity shows an annual average attendance of almost one million. And now it plans its hugest celebration—the Golden Jubilee.

In New Buildings

In addition to being the largest State Fair in the world in the point of attendance, the Texas fair resumes activity with the most beautiful plant in which a state exposition has ever been held. In addition to the remodeling of many of its old buildings, the State Fair of Texas presents its Agriculture Poultry and Livestock in new buildings, and will use for the first time its new Educational Building and its beautiful new civic center...

With New Shows

In keeping with its new plant, the State Fair of Texas will present at its Golden Jubilee Celebration many new shows—both of the amusement and educational type. Its amusement program has not yet been completed due to efforts to secure the best in the amusement world. Its educational type programs—such as new farm shows, hobby shows, flower and others—have been completed and early response points to outstanding attractions in each...

And New Features

Along with the new buildings, the new shows, the State Fair of Texas has planned and is arranging many new special features and special days. Among these will be the Golden Wedding Day, the Queen's Day and other special days. There will be events which will prove of the utmost interest to young and old... educational features for those who seek and amusements for everyone.

OFFERS $100,000 IN PREMIUM AWARDS FOR LIVE STOCK, POULTRY, AGRICULTURE And Other SHOWS

List Available

Write now for the premium list showing the various classes for which the $100,000 in prizes is offered. The largest number of requests for these lists ever received has come in for the Golden Jubilee Celebration, which further shows the unprecedented interest in the 1938 Fair.

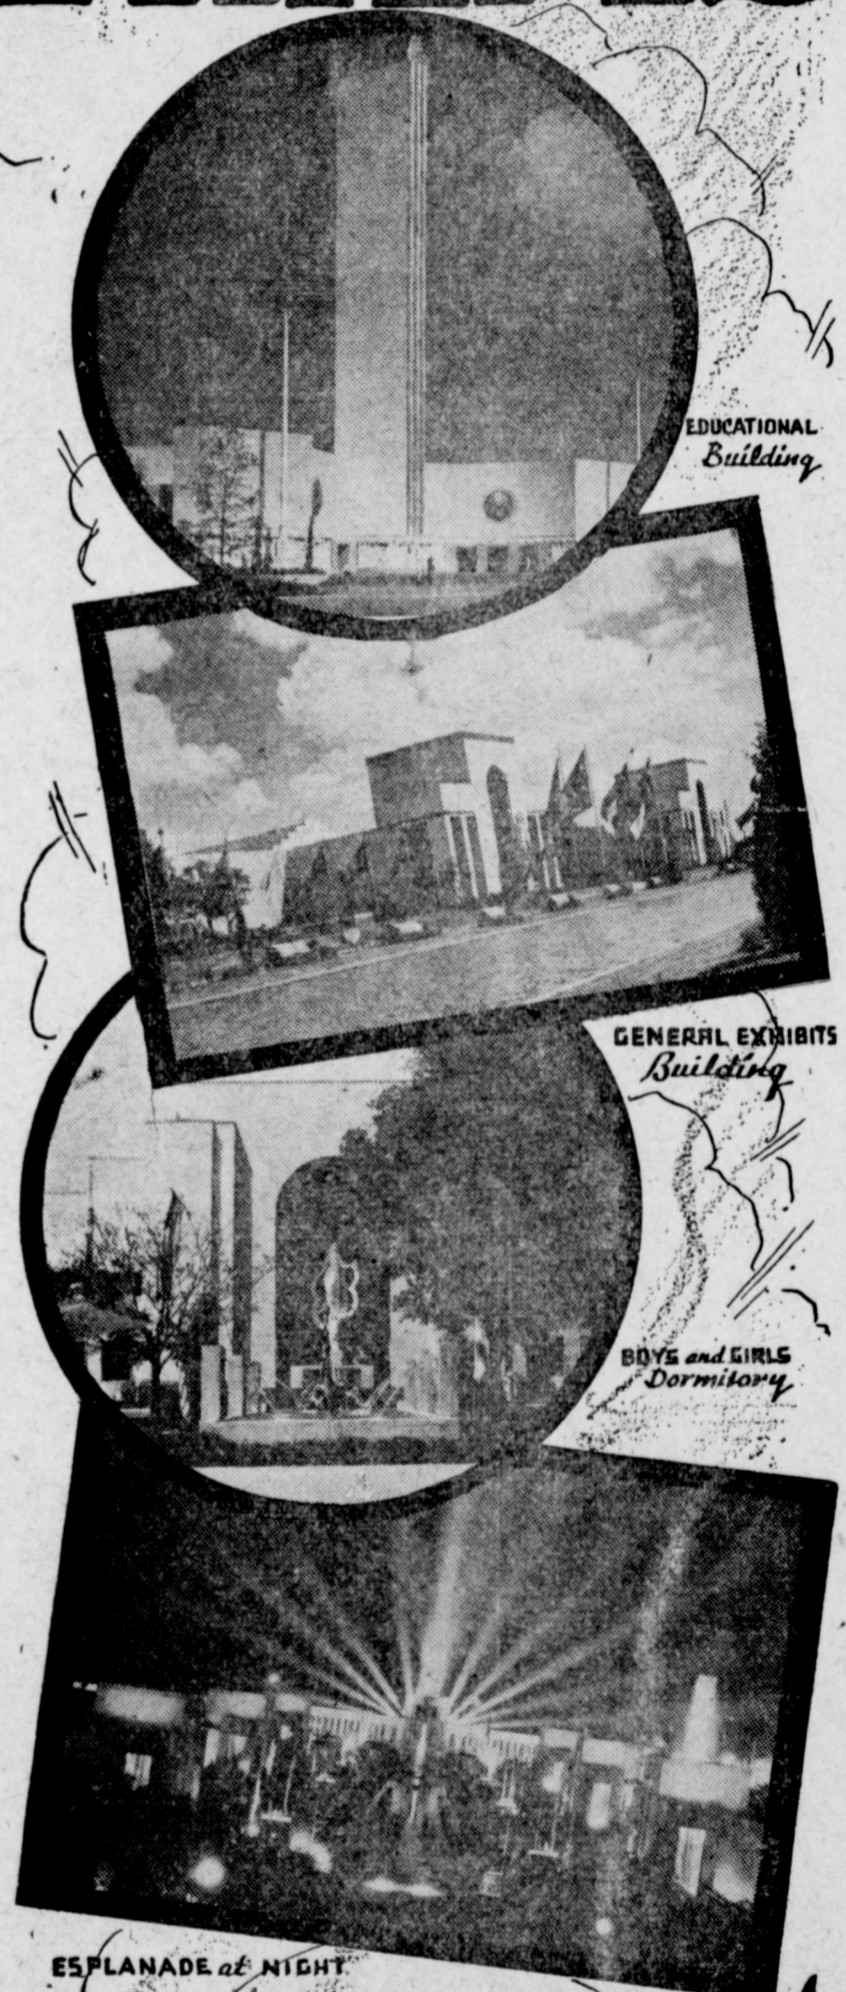

Many New Contests

Included in the premium list are prizes for hobbies—any collections included; newspaper contests which cover the entire Southwest; flowers, which will include any plants grown in the Southwest; culinary and textile exhibits, fancy birds, caged birds and many other interesting contests.

A visit to the State Fair is an education in itself. No vacation or holiday spot in the entire Southwest offers such attractions—both education and amusement—as does the State Fair of Texas.

A FINAL PLEA

Today's election is a major event in our city's history. The result of its poll on the proposed sewer bond will decide whether local citizens want to step into a parade of progress or whether they are content to sit back and permit a handicap which, though it need not prevent development, will at least retard it and deprive many a deserving man or boy of opportunities to which he is rightfully entitled.

One often hears the remark that conditions that were good enough for our fathers and mothers are good enough for us. Just a little reflection will suffice to convince that, after all, such a remark is not a reason but rather an excuse for opposing the installation of a sewer. Few need to be reminded that fathers and mothers tackled conditions far less comfortable than now exist and added innumerable improvements. To leave things as they were was not good enough for those pioneers. The present status of our city and community bears witness to the fact that they built. Those who place so much importance on tradition will do well to remember that the pioneer spirit was ever pushing forward to new possibilities. They conquered the wide open spaces in that way. We, since the frontier is no more, can carry on their work only by developing what they have left for us.

The opinions mentioned herein are not prompted by a tendency toward reckless spending. Careful thought from the viewpoint of one who also must help carry the financial burden, presents the sewer plan rather as a wise investment, one that is worth several times its cost in newly created business opportunity, then again is infinitely more valuable in health and convenience.

These opinions are a plea for the cause of Muenster youth. No one will deny that opportunities in farming, business, and industry here are very nearly, if not completely, saturated. Unless boys and girls are to be turned out, sent away from their circle of friends and relatives, those of us in a position to determine this issue must decide to provide an opportunity for more pleasant living as well as an opportunity for business and industrial expansion. Anyone who is far sighted and fair will admit that investors, whether local or from the outside, are reluctant to cast their lot in an antiquated city. Our outmoded tenacity favoring inconvenience and poor sanitation is little inducement to employ or employer. In order to compete with other communities, to protect what progress has been made, to provide for coming generations, we must remove a glaring handicap. We must move Muenster out of the rank of old towns, give it recognition for aggressiveness and progress and a bright future outlook.

As regards an immediate opportunity for local laborers, this column has mentioned before that many a person can work on the sewer and quite likely earn more than he will ever have to pay as his share in liquidating the debt. Some have said that imported relief labor will be given preference hence that Muenster people would not have a chance. To counteract such statements we explain that the proposed project is to be handled by PWA, not by WPA. The latter is a relief agency. But PWA is an agency to assist in public works, and places its contracts the same as any individual builder. It will offer an opportunity for anyone who wishes to work.

As a final plea we ask voters to consider the project from this angle. By approving it they will impose upon themselves a tax of 35 cents per $100 of valuation. To the average property owner this will bring a tax of $3.50 a year. Who will consider this cost excessive in view of the opportunity it opens? Is there any prospective laborer who would not spend that amount for the chance at several month's work? Is there any business man who would not spend it for the chance of profiting by the future growth of his city? Is there any parent who would not spend that amount for the chance of securing a better future for his children? Is there any young man who would not spend it to enhance his own opportunity? Is there any man now thinking about placing modern conveniences in his home or wondering when his septic tank will lose its usefulness who would not pay that price to have a sewer available?

Let us not misunderstand. To make the sewer and its many advantages available will cost a 35 cent tax and no more. Additional expense will then fall on the man who decides to connect, but we can rest assured that no one will assume that cost unless he feels he is getting his money's worth.

What Others Say

UNITED STATES STRIVING FOR TAX RECORD

Americans often attempt to cheer themselves by arguing that our tax burden is not yet so heavy as that borne by the British people. But, as Harry Scherman points out in the New Republic, this is definitely a misconception.

Due to the tremendous increase in taxation that has taken place here in recent years, we have the unenviable distinction of having caught up with the English. In the last fiscal year, the English paid $107 per person in taxes. And the American people paid precisely the same.

Furthermore, much of our emergency spending has been financed by deferring the taxing period—that is, by inflating the debt, and incurring gigantic obligations to be paid in the future. If we made our tax income equal our tax outgo, it would very possibly be discovered that we are the highest taxed nation in the world.—Mission Times.

GOVERNMENT WORK

The best laugh discovered this week came from a Kansan, who was looking into the depths of the Grand Canyon. "Do you know," said the guide, "it took millions of years for this great abyss to be carved out?" The man from Kansas was tremendously impressed. "You don't tell me," he commented. "Why, I didn't know this was a government job."—Scurry County Times.

TESTIMONY OUT OF EXPERIENCE

Throughout the centuries the power and authority of human testimony based on personal experience has held highest place in the establishment of fact and truth.

Just last week it was the privilege of this writer to sit in a service club luncheon and hear a remarkable example of personal testimony, just a little out of the ordinary for such an occasion. A wiry, old man—so old he is now starting in on his second hundred years of life—stood and calmly, yes, happily, told the gathering that he had passed the century milestone of life, secure and confident in the religious faith of a Christian. He declared that he had no malice against any living person, and in unusual strength passes on, ready and unafraid to meet his Maker.

There is a wonderful lot of inspiration in witnessing and hearing such a testimony. Here is a man—an unusual physical strength at an unusual age—who has come down through a hundred years of life—labor, victories, defeats, sorrows, disillusionments, and yet in calm triumph he voices no pessimistic note, but a faith and hope worth all this world's tawdry wealth and honors.

Personal testimony out of experience is a wonderful power to draw, to strengthen, to inspire. There is no human activity so powerful, so convincing. It was Jesus' plan for the propagation of a philosophy and religion, and the reason Christianity isn't universally accepted today, is the failure of His people to bear witness—as they should.

Somehow, to this writer, there was an unusual message and power in this simple, spontaneous testimony to religious faith on the part of this hundred-year-old man, who in remarkable vigor still looks forward—serene and unafraid.—Clarendon News.

"UNCONSCIOUS ARSONIST"

The crime of arson is universally condemned. The deliberately setting of fire can have no justification in any case, and the person committing it is properly given severe punishment when apprehended.

It would be a fine thing for the country if some of that condemnation were extended to the man who causes fire because of his own ignorance, carelessness or stupidity. For the grim harvest reaped by the "unconscious arsonist" is infinitely greater and more serious than that of the fire-bug. He does not do it on purpose, of course—but that's a frail excuse indeed when lives and property are destroyed.

Certainly the man who carelessly discards smoking materials in dry woods that are ready to explode into flame at the touch of a spark, is deserving of little public sympathy. Neither is the man who wantonly permits hazards to exist on his property and endangers the property of everyone else in the community.

In some European countries, notably France, the law provides that if a fire starts on anyone's property through the fault or negligence of the owner, he is financially responsible for the damage done to other property. There's small chance of passing such a law here—but the principle it represents is worth thinking about. Most of the hazards that cause fire can be easily eliminated. And the argument that many of us do not recognize the hazards when we see them, isn't valid. Ignorance of fire dangers, like ignorance of the law, should not constitute an excuse.

Are you an "unconscious arsonist"? It's easy to say "no"—but can you be sure that's the right answer.—Huntsville Item.

BEHIND THE SCENES in AMERICAN BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—BUSINESS.—The war crisis overshadowed all else in the world of business last week. Stock markets here and in Europe gyrated widely as recurring waves of optimistic and pessimistic news emanated from Germany, Czechoslovakia, France and England. Prices of wheat, corn, copper and other commodities that would be vital in war rose briskly early in the week. Europeans scrambled to ship gold to America for safe keeping. Meanwhile, in this country there was little evidence that scare headlines were hindering the forward progress of business. Operations in the steel industry continued to expand and retail trade reflected increased spending. Reports from machine tool manufacturers that their orders increased 35 per cent in August from July were most encouraging. For it is an indication that sufficient faith in the future is developing among American business men for them to start investing money in new industrial equipment.

WASHINGTON.—Long range planners here are studying the possible effects on established industries and agriculture of hydroponics, a revolutionary method of growing food plants. This method utilizes troughs or vats filled with water and chemicals to take the place of the "good earth" in growing crops. It is said that a few square feet of such troughs is sufficient to supply the average family with vegetables. A number of scientifically-minded individuals around the country are actually growing their own tomatoes, cucumbers, beans and peas now by this chemical process. Though it is still too expensive and too scientific for the average person to undertake, the day may not be far distant when hydroponics will be such a popular backyard or basement avocation as to make a serious dent in some markets now being supplied by farmers. And should hydroponics ever become adaptable to raising grain crops on a commercial scale, the farm implement industry might be faced with slackening in demand for plowing, planting, cultivating and harvesting machinery. In such an event, however, new avenues for business and employment undoubtedly would be opened in the chemical and metal industries.

TAXED FOR CLEANLINESS—A new study reported last week by one of the numerous Emergency Consumers Tax Councils of New Jersey formed in the last year to protest hidden taxes and the rising cost of living shows not only how many taxes exist on a cake of facial soap but how the calculation is reached. When a housewife pays for ten cakes of facial soap, the report says, she actually receives only nine for the tenth is consumed by hidden taxes. Fourteen of these unseen levies are placed on the tallow producer, 14 on the perfume maker, 15 on the chemicals manufacturer, 17 on the soap company, 19 on transportation companies, 10 on the soap wholesaler and 10 on the retail store, making an almost unbelievable total of 104 taxes, of which the average consumer is completely unaware even though they take a toll of 10.3 per cent of the purchase price of a ten-cent cake of soap.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR—Synthetic fur made out of skim milk—A new lighting fixture said to produce double the usual quantity of light from equal current, designed for store owners who want to throw a strong downward light on their merchandise to improve its display value—A stamp pad said to be unaffected by humidity, not to collect lint or to over ink—An automatic device which makes it easy for motorists to stop and start on hills; applicable only to hydraulic braking systems, it keeps the brakes on until the clutch is released—A new window design which has the advantages of standard double-hung windows opening at top and bottom, and also swings out as a casement window for free passage of air and for safer cleaning.

HEADLINES IN NEW YORK—Value of inventories in hands of manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers reduced by $1,250,000,000 in Another diocesan retreat at Dallas has come to a most happy conclusion for about 125 men and women. In general, it has given a new lease on life. It conveyed an inspiration both sublime and energizing, and threw greater light on eternal and temporal destinies.

It has been said that music hath charms to soothe the savage beast. But music pales into insignificance before the consoling message that a generous loving Creator is giving every assurance of victory to blundering men if they will only play the game fair. There is a real source of optimism in the thought that He has provided this wonderful world for those same blundering men to use in working out their temporal success. Arts and music may elevate a person's mind above more sordid things but it does not, like a sensible view of religion, add the sublime spice that brings a deeper happiness. Strange, isn't it, that so many prefer a cynical outlook, that they seemingly want to cloud their lives with things neither they nor others can enjoy, and expect no more than a blank void after their few miserable years. The man with optimism and hope may be a dope in their opinions but he gets a great deal more out of life. To get an increase of that hope and optimism is smart. Spending a few days to reflect on the Divine scheme is the wisest investment anyone can make.

The war clouds are gathering fast. Who knows? another European massacre may be under way before the end of the week. To us, as to most Americans, the whole mess seems a most unnecessary case of wicked stupidity—wicked in that a few diabolical madmen in the upper brackets are requiring millions of decent men to face death because of their own selfish petty mindedness, stupid in that the whole thing could be avoided. Can leaders possibly be ignorant enough to think they are of service when they scar an entire generation of lives with suffering, death, and hatred? Though far from perfect, our nation can well point to its history as a splendid example to Europe. America too has a neighbor but it held that neighbor's friendship by refraining from building forts, those inexcusable monuments of distrust. America has grown but it purchased rather than appropriated the greater part of its land. Why can't Europe save blood and distress by resorting to understanding and common sense business? Why can't it save money by purchasing outright that which it would take by violence at far greater expense. "Alas, man's inhumanity to man!"

Now, apparently, it has gone too far. Innocent men have been duped by the unscrupulous. They will not be satisfied until they have drawn blood. Our one hope is that our national leaders will not be so asinine as to repeat their folly of 1917. They should have learned that human life is more precious than the commercial interests of a few. They should have had another practical lesson on war debt repudiation. Did we gain anything before? A lusty cheer for those who proclaim "I'll shoulder a gun to defend America, but my blood will not be shed on foreign soil."

A skunk can be the most exasperating animal! Have you ever had one leisurely trot down the road ahead of your car, seemingly oblivious to the glare of your horn or all the invective your impatient voice could shower on him? You must admit he has the advantage. For fear of arousing his antagonism you remain at what seems a safe distance, which, of course, is too great to remind him he's in the way. It's even worse when the wind is in the wrong direction—there is the ever present danger that you are within his range. A skunk has a pungent way of demanding respect, and he usually gets it. No doubt the Czechs could halt the threatened invasion by parking a row of them along the frontier. There may be some truth in the remark that one can stand off an army.

We recommend the dog house for the guy who has so little consideration and common decency as to shoot five or six dozen birds in a single day. While conservationists all over the nation are clamoring over the extinction of our most effective insect control, while other hunters, the ones reasonable enough to be content with their legal limit, complain about the gradual extinction of game, this fellow will not realize that his greed is bringing sorrow to many another man and before long will bring an end to his own pleasure. Wholesale killing is not sport. Maniacs who resort to it are more than a mere nuisance, they are a curse.

A FINAL PLEA

Today's election is a major event in our city's history. The result of its poll on the proposed sewer bond will decide whether local citizens want to step into a parade of progress or whether they are content to sit back and permit a handicap which, though it need not prevent development, will at least retard it and deprive many a deserving man or boy of opportunities to which he is rightfully entitled.

One often hears the remark that conditions that were good enough for our fathers and mothers are good enough for us. Just a little reflection will suffice to convince that, after all, such a remark is not a reason but rather an excuse for opposing the installation of a sewer. Few need to be reminded that fathers and mothers tackled conditions far less comfortable than now exist and added innumerable improvements. To leave things as they were was not good enough for those pioneers. The present status of our city and community bears witness to the fact that they built. Those who place so much importance on tradition will do well to remember that the pioneer spirit was ever pushing forward to new possibilities. They conquered the wide open spaces in that way. We, since the frontier is no more, can carry on their work only by developing what they have left for us.

The opinions mentioned herein are not prompted by a tendency toward reckless spending. Careful thought from the viewpoint of one who also must help carry the financial burden, presents the sewer plan rather as a wise investment, one that is worth several times its cost in newly created business opportunity, then again is infinitely more valuable in health and convenience.

These opinions are a plea for the cause of Muenster youth. No one will deny that opportunities in farming, business, and industry here are very nearly, if not completely, saturated. Unless boys and girls are to be turned out, sent away from their circle of friends and relatives, those of us in a position to determine this issue must decide to provide an opportunity for more pleasant living as well as an opportunity for business and industrial expansion. Any one who is far sighted and fair will admit that investors, whether local or from the outside, are reluctant to cast their lot in an antiquated city. Our outmoded tenacity favoring inconvenience and poor sanitation is little inducement to employ or employer. In order to compete with other communities, to protect what progress has been made, to provide for coming generations, we must remove a glaring handicap. We must move Muenster out of the rank of old towns, give it recognition for aggressiveness and progress and a bright future outlook.

As regards an immediate opportunity for local laborers, this column has mentioned before that many a person can work on the sewer and quite likely earn more than he will ever have to pay as his share in liquidating the debt. Some have said that imported relief labor will be given preference hence that Muenster people would not have a chance. As a final plea we ask voters to consider the project from this angle. By approving it they will impose upon themselves a tax of 35 cents per $100 of valuation. To the average property owner this will bring a tax of $3.50 a year. Who will consider this cost excessive in view of the opportunity it opens? Is there any prospective laborer who would not spend that amount for the chance at several month's work? Is there any business man who would not spend it for the chance of profiting by the future growth of his city? Is there any parent who would not spend that amount for the chance of securing a better future for his children? Is there any young man who would not spend it to enhance his own opportunity? Is there any man now thinking about placing modern conveniences in his home or wondering when his septic tank will lose its usefulness who would not pay that price to have a sewer available?

Let us not misunderstand. To make the sewer and its many advantages available will cost a 35 cent tax and no more. Additional expense will then fall on the man who decides to connect, but we can rest assured that no one will assume that cost unless he feels he is getting his money's worth.

Though far from perfect, our nation can well point to its history as a splendid example to Europe. America too has a neighbor but it held that neighbor's friendship by refraining from building forts, those inexcusable monuments of distrust. America has grown but it purchased rather than appropriated the greater part of its land. Why can't Europe save blood and distress by resorting to understanding and common sense business? Why can't it save money by purchasing outright that which it would take by violence at far greater expense. "Alas, man's inhumanity to man!"

Now, apparently, it has gone too far. Innocent men have been duped by the unscrupulous. They will not be satisfied until they have drawn blood.

Our one hope is that our national leaders will not be so astute as to repeat their folly of 1917. They should have learned that human life is more precious than the commercial interests of a few. They should have had another practical lesson on war debt repudiation. Did we gain anything before? A lusty cheer for those who proclaim "I'll shoulder a gun to defend America, but my blood will not be shed on foreign soil."

A skunk can be the most exasperating animal! Have you ever had one leisurely trot down the road ahead of your car, seemingly oblivious to the glare of your horn or all the invective your impatient voice could shower on him? You must admit he has the advantage. For fear of arousing his antagonism you remain at what seems a safe distance, which, of course, is too great to remind him he's in the way. It's even worse when the wind is in the wrong direction—there is the ever present danger that you are within his range. A skunk has a pungent way of demanding respect, and he usually gets it. No doubt the Czechs could halt the threatened invasion by parking a row of them along the frontier. There may be some truth in the remark that one can stand off an army.

We recommend the dog house for the guy who has so little consideration and common decency as to shoot five or six dozen birds in a single day. While conservationists all over the nation are clamoring over the extinction of our most effective insect control, while other hunters, the ones reasonable enough to be content with their legal limit, complain about the gradual extinction of game, this fellow will not realize that his greed is bringing sorrow to many another man and before long will bring an end to his own pleasure. Wholesale killing is not sport. Maniacs who resort to it are more than a mere nuisance, they are a curse.

WHERE POWDER KEG FUSES SPUTTER

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—With millions of men already under arms and the major powers of Europe girding their land, sea and air forces for possible war, this map shows where the powder keg fuses of Europe threaten to ignite. While statesmen confer and diplomatic notes are rapidly exchanged, the situation seemingly is becoming more acute. Arrows show where Dictator Hitler and peacemaker Chamberlain met and where armies have massed to prepare for eventualities.

FIRE BOYS FAIL TO QUENCH OILERS' FIRE IN BENEFIT CONTEST

The firemen did not have what it takes to put out the oilers. At a benefit game last Friday night a crew of oil field workers, fired with a determination to cop the long end of a 60-40 gate receipts split for their disabled pal, George Cates, played rings around the local smoke-eaters and finally emerged with a 31 to 9 lead.

Lined up for the oilers was a real array of talent. All the fellows were playing snappy, heady ball in the field and pounding hard at the plate. The firemen, on the other hand, were afflicted by several weak spots.

Collections at the game brought in about $16.00.

Another game of the same evening was the encounter of Muenster's champion Youngsters with Myra. Their miserable stand against the visitors showed little of the mid-sea-

FIRE BOYS FAIL TO QUENCH OILERS' FIRE IN BENEFIT CONTEST

The firemen did not have what it takes to put out the oilers. At a benefit game last Friday night a crew of oil field workers, fired with a determination to cop the long end of a 60-40 gate receipts split for their disabled pal, George Cates, played rings around the local smoke-eaters and finally emerged with a 31 to 9 lead.

Lined up for the oilers was a real array of talent. All the fellows were playing snappy, heady ball in the field and pounding hard at the plate. The firemen, on the other hand, were afflicted by several weak spots. Collections at the game brought in about $16.00.

Another game of the same evening was the encounter of Muenster's champion Youngsters with Myra. Their miserable stand against the visitors showed little of the mid-sea-
