Writing in a late issue of Human Events, John D. Lofton Jr. challenges the view of separation of church and state which has been forced on this country for many years.

His article, entitled "Voluntary School Prayer is a First Amendment Right," is based on a "brilliant" new book, Separation of Church and State: Historical Fact and Current Fiction, by Robert Cord, professor of political science of Northeastern University. His research and reasoning demolish myths about the First Amendment as handed down by those who make a big issue of separation of church and state.

Cord is quoted as documenting in scholarly detail the three purposes of the First Amendment with regard to religion; 1. "It was intended to prevent the establishment of a national religion or church, or the giving of any religious sect or denomination a preferred status;

2. "It was designed to safeguard the right of freedom of conscience in religious belief against invasion solely by the national government; and 3. "It was so constructed in order to allow the states, unimpeded, to deal with religious establishments and aid to religious institutions as they saw fit"

The author states "there appears to be no historical evidence that the First Amendment was intended to preclude federal governmental aid to religion when it was provided on a non-discriminatory basis. Nor does there appear to be any historical evidence that the First Amendment was intended to provide an 'absolute separation or independence' of religion and the national state.

This opinion has the support of Thomas Jefferson as far back as 1808. Concerning independence of the states on religious matters, he said "I consider the government of the United States as interdicted by the Constitution from meddling with religious institutions, their doctrines, discipline or exercises. This results not only from the provision that no law shall be made respecting the establishment, or free exercise, of religion, but from that also which reserves to the states the powers not delegated to the United States. Certainly no power to prescribe any religious exercise, or to assume authority in religious discipline, has been delegated to the general government. It must then rest with the State, as far as it can be, in any human authority."

Another opinion, which reaches back to 1851, is taken from Joseph Story in his Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States.

He said "The real object of the First Amendment was not to countenance, much less to advance, Mahometanism, or Judaism, or infidelity, by prostrating Christianity; but to exclude all rivalry among Christian sects and to prevent any national ecclesiastical establishment which should give to a hierarchy the exclusive patronage of the national government. It thus cut off the means of religious persecution (the vice and pest of former ages) and of the subversion of the rights of conscience in matters of religion which had been trampled upon almost from the days of the Memorial Service honors all benefactors of the nation

Deceased service men of the community were honored Sunday in annual memorial services conducted by the VFW Post and VFW Auxiliary following the 7 a.m. Mass in Sacred Heart Church.

It was held in the parish cemetery, however it departed from custom in that Father Stephen Eckart chose the acoustics of church rather than outdoors to present his message.

An attendance estimated at more than 200 heard the speaker express gratitude to countrymen as far back as 1776 for their sacrifice in attaining the freedom and other cherished blessings which enrich American life.

Then he diverted slightly to remember the many who helped in so many ways to add the other qualities which have made the country great.

He praised the hard work, determination and sacrifice by which the pioneers developed their newly liberated country. He likewise praised the thousands of people since who not only led the country to material greatness but also lived up to such virtues as justice, generosity, thrift, patriotism, responsibility, and other qualities that preserved our country while extending a helping hand to other countries. His message was to honor those who lived for us as well as those who died for us.

The ceremony started with a procession from church to the cemetery led by the Post's color bearers and color guard. Also in the procession were Auxiliary officers with bouquets, flower bearers and a Cub Scout honor guard, along with the pastor and altar boys and the public.

First stop at the cemetery was the Crucifixion monument at the center where Father Stephen led in prayers for deceased members of the community and Auxiliary officers placed bouquets. Next the procession moved to the service men's area where other

The ceremony closed with the traditional three volley rifle salute by the color guard, Arthur Bayer directing, and taps were sounded by Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Weinzapfel.

Special places of honor and special flowers were provided by the Auxiliary for Gold Star Parents. Mrs. Frank Bayer and Mrs. Theresa Mosler received corsages, Frank Bayer and J.M. Weinzapfel received boutonnières.

developed, including classifications for all kinds of residential, commercial, agricultural and industrial properties.

Someone from the staff of in-house appraisers would then examine each piece of property individually and place it in the proper classification. The appraiser would also set a depreciation percentage and would check the outside dimensions of each improvement.

Based upon the average sale price per square foot, a schedule was developed from a combination of the three appraisal approaches. A similar schedule was prepared for lot values.

As provided by the constitution, this, in theory, keeps all properties treated fairly and equally.

With the schedule applied by the computer, the chances of error are lessened. The sketch of the house is even drawn by the computer.

Johnson noted the following example of how this system works:

A house located on Aspen

Road in Gainesville sold in the month of May for $60,000.00. This same house had been classified sometime earlier by a CCTAD appraiser as a "Class 7". The depreciation had been set at 5%. The measurements showed the house to contain 1,928 square feet of area. The computer applied a factor of $27.20 per square foot to this figure and reduced it to 95%. This resulted in $49,818.95. The lot was classified at L-3. This meant it was set at $90.00 per front foot. Since the lot measured 80 feet wide, this made the computer set a value of $7,200.00 on the lot. The combination of the lot value and the house value gave a total tax assessment of $57,018.95. This is about 95% of the actual sale figure which was just realized.

Johnson said that no property should be valued over market value. The hope is to set values for tax purposes under but within ten percent of the actual market value.

Since only an actual sale can tell exactly what the market value is, there will be errors. Appraisal is not simple mathematics and variances are inevitable.

Johnson says the facilities of his office and of the consulting firm which worked with the District, Associated Appraisers, will be available to answer any taxpayer questions.

While it is anticipated that all assessed values will rise as a result of the re-evaluation (in the example above, the previous assessment was $26,520.00), this does not mean that taxes will go up. The taxing agencies will set their tax rates after a complete tax roll has been established. Obviously, the tax rates will be reduced drastically in the light of the overall increase in total value. The rates will be set at a figure which will produce the amount of income to fit the budget of the taxing agency.

The telephone number of the CCTAD is 665-7651 and that of Associated Appraisers is 665-1992.

Texans will vote Saturday in Democratic primary run-off

The Democratic Party of Texas Saturday will finish its job of selecting nominees for the general election in November. Voters will choose between two front runners of the several races to name favorites which the first primary failed to determine.

As regards Cooke County voters, the ballot is dominated by the contest for justice of the peace, Precinct 1, Place 2, with Steve Phelps running against Dorothy Smith. The race has been held, nevertheless it accounts for most of the local interest.

Rating second place are two state races with combined appeal that hardly matches the JP showdown. Those are Hannah and Maddox for attorney general and Snelson and Mauro for land commission.

Then there are three contests for judges presenting the customary choices between the least known of all candidates.

A surprise on the North

Muenster ballot is the appearance of two candidates for Precinct 18 chairman. Christie Klement, the incumbent, has been joined by John Pagel.

Muenster balloting will be held, as usual, in two locations. Precinct 17 is in the VFW Hall with Janet Fisher as election judge, and Precinct 18 is in Muenster Public School with Christie Klement as the judge. Both polls are open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Public School names faculty

Next year's faculty at Muenster Public School is complete. Superintendent Charles Coffey announced this week that the list of new personnel includes a principal and five teachers and the complete faculty list consists of twenty eight instructors plus the superintendent, principal, librarian and counselor.

The new principal is Eddie Green, who has been with the Irving school system for 18 years. He received a BS degree at NTSU in 1964, a master degree in chemistry at ETSU and a degree in Administration at NTSU in 1982. He has been in administrative work at Irving the past four years. He is a native of Italy, Texas, 39 years old, married, the father of three children.

This year marks the introduction of a new system dividing principal duties at Muenster Public School. Green is principal for grades 5 through 11, and Gwen Trubenbach is principal for grades K through 4 along with teacher for combined grades 1 and 2.

Another of the new faculty members is Ann

Green, wife of the principal. She received a BS degree at the University of Texas in Austin in 1973, has taught for 9 years, the past 3 in Irving. She is presently working on a master degree at NTSU and expects to receive a degree in 1983. She will teach grades 3 and 4.

Third on the list of newcomers is Geraldine Colwell of Forestburg. She has a BS degree from NTSU in 1969 and an MS at NTSU in 1971. She taught 4 years at Bellevue and 7 at Forestburg, is a widow and has a 9 year old son.

Deborah Sue Falk will teach junior high math at Muenster. She received a BS in 1980 at Stephen F. Austin University, Nacogdoches, has taught two years at Alief, a suburb of Houston. Bob Gross with a BS from Jesus left that place and went back to his home town, followed by his disciples. On the Sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue. Many people were there; and when they heard him, they were all amazed. "Where did he get all this?" they asked. "What wisdom is this that has been given him? How does he perform miracles? Isn't he the carpenter, the son of Mary, and the brother of James, Joseph, Judas, and Simon? Aren't his sisters living here?" And so they rejected him.

Jesus said to them, "A prophet is respected everywhere except in his own home town and by his relatives and his family."

Swimming pool changes manager, to open Saturday

After losing a week, the Muenster swim pool will be in business Saturday, starting at the usual opening time of 1 p.m.

Last Saturday's problem was twofold. First, the pool manager, living in Gainesville, changed to a job nearer home; and secondly, an excess of algae had accumulated in the water. Since then Gary Weems of Lindsay has been named the manager and the water has been cleared.

Other pool personnel are unchanged. They are Kathi Koch, Rhonda Hellman and Rodney Hess. Admission charge is 75 cents per person and the pool is open daily except Monday from 1 to 7. At other times it is available for private swim party reservations.

May rainfall was 8.59 in.

May rainfall in Muenster, though considerably less than a record breaker, was far above normal. The total as recorded by Steve Mosler was 8.59 inches as compared with 10.34 in 1946, 9.68 in 1957, and 9.53 in 1947.

In accumulating that total the month had 16 days of recorded rainfall, plus 5 days with traces measuring less than .01 inch.

Another notation explains why thunderstorms were mentioned so often in the month's radio and TV weather reports. Mosler's entries of the month included thunder on 17 days.

Also, the month's total of 8.59 is only slightly less than the previous four month total of 8.99. As a result the year's total for five months to date is about half of normal for a full year. Temperature of the week was recorded as follows.

COMMENT

Looking Ahead

by Dr. George S. Benson President

NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION

A most significant struggle is entering the decisive phase in Washington. The outcome of this contest may well determine whether the nation returns to the principles of the American Revolution — the principles which made it great — or continues the slide down the path of the Welfare State as so many once great nations have done in history.

For half a century the demand-siders held sway in Washington, buying votes with the voters' own money; taxing and spending and inflating!

Finally, when the "forgotten citizens" had enough, they demanded a change — a change that meant less taxes, less government, less spending, less inflation and more productivity!

The supply-siders realize the only way to have more is to produce more. The only way to produce more is to invest more. The only way to invest more is to save more. The only way to save more is to tax less and cut spending makes sense.

This struggle between the supply-siders and the demand-siders is critical. There is no assurance the supply-siders will emerge victorious. There are so many millions of people on the government payroll, and who therefore have a selfish interest in keeping taxes and inflation growing!

There are 36,900,000 collecting Social Security; 22,400,000 Medicaid beneficiaries; 21,400,000 receiving food stamps; 28,900,000 under Medicare; 23,200,000 being given school lunches; 11,000,000 benefiting from Aid to Families With Dependent Children; and 3,600,000 on unemployment compensation.

We could take a defeatist attitude, exclaim, "It's too late!" and relax and await the collapse of our great nation. That is the way it happened to Rome, Greece, Persia, Babylon, Assyria and Egypt, and now it is happening to England. Why should America choose to be next?

But it isn't too late! It's never too late as long as we have the right to vote!

In the first place, the President is taking his "show on the road." He's talking directly to the people. If the people back him they can prevail over the demand-side special interest groups.

But even if that fails, there is a second line of defense now being prepared that may be "the ultimate solution," and that is the Balance Budget-Tax Limitation Constitutional Amendment making its way through the Congress. The Senate version is known as SJ Res. 98, it has 40 co-sponsors. The House version is HJ Res. 350 and already has over 145 co-sponsors.

The Amendment requires that total outlays including off-budget items, may not exceed total receipts, except in time of national emergency. At such times a three-fifths vote of both houses of Congress could override.

Also, the Amendment prevents taxes from increasing at a greater rate than the rate of increase in national income in the preceding calendar year, unless a specific law for additional taxes has been passed by both houses.

Additional safeguards against skirting the limitations are also included. To prevent, for example, requiring the States to "engage in additional activities without compensation equal to the additional costs."

Especially important is the fact that the Amendment will put an end to deficit spending, except in time of war or other national emergency, which will halt inflation and thereby, halt tax increases through bracket creep.

This Amendment is an idea whose time has come! We must all ask our representatives to support it. When passed by the Congress, it will be adopted by the States in short order. This is our "ultimate solution."

Control The Uncontrollable

"Today we face the absurd situation of a federal budget with three-quarters of its expenditures routinely referred to as uncontrollable, and a large part of this goes to entitlement programs. The time has come to control the uncontrollable."

Thus, in his State of the Union message in January, President Reagan staked out his position in this year's budget battles with Congress, reaffirming his determination to preserve the economic program he set in motion last year.

Despite cries of anguish from a liberal media and special interest groups, savings in entitlement and transfer programs of $63 billion over four years envisioned in the President's message are not cuts in the programs but are, instead, only cuts in increases in the programs.

Under the new budget proposed by the President, funding for federal social programs will be more than double the amount spent only six years ago. It is the spiraling cost of these programs that would be brought under control.

Starting for most Americans is the discovery that the federal food stamp program, started in 1964 with an expenditure of $34 million to serve one of every 492 Americans, will have risen in July of 1982 to a $10.3 billion program serving one of every 10 Americans. Without President Reagan's budget reductions last year, the cost — nearly 13% of all federal expenditures — would have skyrocketed to $17 billion.

Said Senator Orrin Hatch of Utah, "I don't care who you are, you've got to say that's going out and buying too many votes... that's what has been done to us in program after program."

And, in program after program, the Reagan Administration's safety net for the truly needy is not only still in place, it is bigger. Accounting for inflation, the proposed 1983 budget includes a 4% increase in food stamp funding in 1977 actual dollars.

Untouched by the President's budget proposals for fiscal 1983 is the largest entitlement program, Social Security, whose financial stability is vital to 90% of American workers. Despite the fact that it will go broke next year, the Senate last year voted 96-0 to reject a hard look at Administration proposals to remedy the imbalance. This insolvent transfer program will, in 1983, be spending a mind-boggling 21% over actual 1977 outlays.

Blaming the state of our economy on decades of taxing and taxing, spending and spending, the President rightfully rejected balancing the budget on the backs of the American taxpayer. But, in order to decrease the size of the projected large deficits, it is imperative that Congress not only enact the proposed social spending caps but broaden them to include weeding out abuses in Social Security and solving its long-term monetary problems. Otherwise excessive deficits will raise government borrowing and serve to increase interest rates, which even at currently reduced levels, are choking the private sector and inhibiting business investment and job creation.

In an election year, President Reagan will need the continuing written and vocal support of each of the majority of Americans who agree with his program. It is a battle that will be fought with letters and phone calls to Washington as much as among the occupants of the legislative cloakrooms.

We must make sure we are heard and counted. This is not just a Reagan battle. This is "our" battle!

Apostles to the present age."

This reasoning of Robert Cord obviously gives a plain and indisputable answer to the claim that voluntary school prayer is a violation of the First Amendment. On the contrary, voluntary prayer in school is a free exercise of religion, which is precisely what the amendment guarantees.

An interesting observation submitted in support of Cord's view is Thomas Jefferson's statement that the federal government is out of line in meddling with the religious issue. The Constitution requires that no law shall be made relative to establishing religion or the free exercise thereof. From this it appears that application of the first amendment is completely reversed. Instead of banning school prayer, the law, or the court, has a duty under the constitution to see that the free exercise of religion will not be violated.

The opinion of Joseph Story, dating back to 1851, likewise indicates a better understanding of the real issue than current demands to ban all religion. Story said the object of the First Amendment was to see that no one denomination would be adopted as the official religion. In that provision they were remembering when America's ancestors were forced to belong to religion other than their choice, or were persecuted for belonging to another religion. America's founding fathers exercised both judgment and justice in banning an official religion and in assuring freedom in exercising one's own religion.

From this it also follows that the twisted concept of separating church and state has to clash with logic. It cannot harmonize with the concept of guaranteeing free exercise of religion.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

The single largest impediment to economic recovery is the stubbornly high level of interest rates. Nowhere is this problem more serious than in the housing industry.

High interest rates make monthly payments for houses far above the reach of most families, particularly those buying their first home. When existing houses aren't selling, new ones aren't built. The problem is made worse by the high interest rates that contractors must pay for short-term financing for construction. These rates affect both the contractor's ability to begin new houses and the ultimate price he must charge.

All of this means that people who want to purchase new houses, and have income levels that ought to allow them to do so, can't. People who need to sell their houses can't.

But the consequences of this situation go beyond the problems of those trying to buy or sell houses. The housing industry has a tremendous impact on the economy as a whole. Many construction jobs have been lost, as have jobs in a whole range of industries that are related.

Appliances, timber, textiles, furniture and building materials industries are heavily dependent on a healthy home construction industry. Unemployment in these industries is high, and likely will not improve substantially until the housing industry begins to recover.

The Administration has embarked on a sound economic recovery program. If Congress will act on the program to cut the size and scope of government, control the size of the deficit, and generally bring order to the way government does business, interest rates will come down.

However, in the meantime we need to act to help the housing industry begin to recover.

The Senate soon will consider legislation to subsidize mortgage rates temporarily for buyers of newly built homes. The government would do this by "buying down" the interest rate by four points. For example, if the mortgage interest rate was 15 1/2 percent, the government would buy down the mortgage to a level of 11 1/2 percent. This could make a difference of hundreds of dollars in the size of the monthly payment. And it is the monthly payment which determines whether a family is eligible for a mortgage.

Those who qualify for the subsidy eventually would repay the money to the government. But this program would mean that they can purchase a house now. When their financial situation improves, or when mortgage rates decline, they will be able to repay the government.

This is a reasonable and prudent manner in which to speed the economic recovery of the housing industry, related businesses, and the economy as a whole.

This legislation has been approved in the Banking Committee and the Appropriations Committee in the Senate, and I would expect the full Senate to consider it in the near future. The House has passed similar legislation, with differences that would be worked out in a Conference Committee after Senate passage.

We should not wait any longer to provide some form of relief to the housing industry. Everyone will benefit if we do.

Letters to the Editor

Warning:

Just a few words about dog and cat pets or stray animals. I believe in being kind to them. But when they are loose and are running around on the streets and get into your garbage they can be a problem and could be vicious.

Through my own personal experience I was kind to a little kitten and was bit by it. The kitten was caught in the fence and I pulled it out then it bit me. This kitten and 3 other kittens and a cat died this last week on my property, all were stray animals. I am now undergoing treatment for prevention of Rabies. You might think these shots are cheap. But they are not, they are very expensive. Cost to me for the series of shots $375.75 plus additional cost. You have to go to Texas Department of Health in Arlington to get the serum, then have a nurse to administer it at your doctor's office or at the hospital.

People who love their pets should have them vaccinated and try to keep them at home. I hope all the residents in the city get busy and if you see any stray or unwanted dogs or cats, call the city and they will pick them up.

Beware for your safety and your children's. The doctor in Arlington said kittens are more likely candidates because they are small and can't get away from the infected animals. Clara Wilde

Aggies are better student loan risk

COLLEGE STATION — The default rate among Texas A&M University students on national Direct Student Loans is among the lowest in the nation, U.S. Department of Education records show.

As of June 1981 only 2.36 percent of the loans granted at Texas A&M were in default compared to 1980 figures of 16 percent nationally and 21.3 percent in Texas, university officials said. The percentage of Texas A&M students in default dropped from 4.7 percent last year.

Only 129 student loans for a total of $73,000 were in default by Texas A&M students. The figures are believed to be the lowest for any major university in the nation.

Texas Oil & Gas . . .

Price Decontrol Boosts Stripper Oil Production

By Avery Rush, Jr., Chairman,
Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association

One very positive effect of the accelerated decontrol of crude oil prices last year was the best-ever year for drilling, nationally as well as in Texas. A less-publicized, but also very positive effect, was a tremendous increase in stripper well production.

According to preliminary figures from the National Stripper Well Association, output from wells which produce 10 barrels or less of oil per day totaled about 420-million barrels. That represents an increase of some 10-million barrels (4.7-percent) over 1980 production from stripper wells.

In Texas, the increase was even more dramatic. Last year's production of 156.9 million barrels, a 15-million barrel jump over the 1980 level, represented a 10.6-percent increase.

Also increasing dramatically was the number of stripper wells active last year in the state: 114,788 wells. That number is up 11,194 from the 1980 total of 103,594 and represents a 10.8-percent increase.

Those figures are good news for the petroleum industry in Texas. Last year, the state witnessed the phenomenon of many drilling projects which were specifically designed to bring stripper wells into production. More wells drilled and more wells producing means additional work for service and supply companies, further strengthening the state economy.

The value of this production — using a preliminary statewide average figure of approximately $34.58 per barrel for crude oil and condensate — amounted to more than $5.4-billion. Additionally, the severance tax paid to state government — at the rate of 4.6-percent of wellhead value — was more than $249.6-million from these producers, often referred to as marginal wells.

Obviously, the benefits for Texas from a healthy petroleum industry are widespread. Decontrol of crude oil has allowed stripper well production to play an even more significant part in the industry's continuing contribution to economic well-being here.

These figures also mean that Texas — the nation's No. 1 crude oil and condensate producing state last year with 928,710,351 barrels — realized 16.9-percent of its production from wells averaging 3.7-barrels per day. Certainly the search must go on for big reservoirs all the way up to major fields with ultimate recoverable reserves of 100-million barrels or more. But, it is no time for this country to take actions that would discourage the recovery of oil from marginal wells.

An end to the so-called windfall profit tax on stripper well oil would be one way by which to prevent a downturn in this vital area of domestic petroleum production.

THE CHECK IS IN THE MAIL

By Edwin Feulner

While the Social Security check is a symbol of American bounty to some, there's no reason this bounty should turn into a world-wide welfare system for aliens no longer living in or contributing to our country.

Yet, despite the financial straits the Social Security system finds itself in, over $1 billion is paid in benefits each year to people living outside the United States—70 percent of them non-Americans who, one way or another, have managed to weasel their way into the Social Security system.

What to do? Congressmen Hal Daub (R-NE) and Ed Weber (R-OH) and Senator Richard Lugar (R-IN) have introduced legislation that would eliminate benefits for non-resident aliens after they have received back what they paid into Social Security—saving upwards of $700 million per year, according to the General Accounting Office.

The idea for the legislation came to mind after the congressmen did some sleuthing into Social Security abuses and inequities and found one instance where a non-resident paid only $397 into the system and received over $42,000 in benefits.

They also found that just a few years ago some 2,070 Mexican students were receiving student Social Security benefits while enrolled in Mexican universities. The average tuition cost at the time was $10; the students were receiving an average of $93 monthly from Social Security.

Then there is the May-December scam. It works like this: an old man returns to his native homeland upon retirement and marries a young woman who will care for him in his later years. In return, the woman and any children the couple may have are financially provided for after his death with Social Security dollars. In one case, a 70-year-old Filipino is reported to have married a 17-year-old girl and fathered three children before his death. (Does Social Security pay cash bonuses for exemplary service?) Even though his widow and children will probably never set foot in the U.S., they will collect thousands of dollars in Social Security benefits.

"The Social Security Act has become a Christmas tree of programs with a little bit of something for everyone," says Congressman Daub. "Unfortunately, in doing this, our tree's roots have become severely weakened to the point where today we are scrambling to find revenue sources to keep them alive."

Aliens who come to this country have already received a privilege—the right to work and live freely, a right not offered to non-citizens of many other countries. There's no reason to lavish Social Security benefits on former "greencarders" who don't wish to stay in America. That was and is not the intent of Social Security.

We're not talking about cutting these people off cold. They would get back what they pay in. But that's all.

Without costing U.S. citizens an extra dime in taxes, the proposed change could help bring the Social Security system one small but significant step closer to long-term solvency. Let's hope Congress acts appropriately. (Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

County faces cost problem on Fish Creek bridge project

Cooke County commissioners have accepted a bid of $134,000 for construction of a bridge on Fish Creek, near Moss Lake, replacing a structure that was destroyed by flood in October, 1981. The contractor is C.T. Martin, Inc., of Terrell.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency, which is to pay 75 percent of the project had estimated the cost at $99,000. The difference of $35,000 is believed to derive from the fact that FEMA had estimated the bridge span at 80 feet, whereas Commissioner Robert Bayer says the actual creek width is 93 feet and a bridge width of 120 feet is needed.

Judge Jim Robertson said he thinks FEMS proposes to build wingwalls with dirt fill to narrow the gap to 80 feet, but commissioners were of the opinion that such a structure is more subject to damage from undermining by floodwater.

Still another problem is bridge width. The federal agency specified 22 feet and the county expects a 24 foot width suitable for heavy truck traffic.

A First Texas 80's Report: On Investments.

First Quarter Comparison, 1982

■ Average annual yield of First Texas Daily-Rate Money Maker Security

■ Average annual yield of all national money market funds

■ Average annual inflation rate

"Money Maker Securities-They beat money market funds and inflation."

Some people think money market funds are the only way to beat the 80's. But at First Texas, they have better ways to make the most of your money.

Take their Fixed- and Daily-Rate Securities. Both are proven winners you can get only at First Texas, and both outperform the funds with the high interest you need today to beat inflation. In fact, in the first quarter of 1982, the average annual yield of the First Texas Money Maker Daily-Rate Security was higher every month than the average annual yield of the money market funds. Plus, the First Texas yield also beat the 1981 inflation rate of 8.9% by 63%. That's right: 63%!

Not just a better investment. A safer investment.

The First Texas Money Maker Securities are also a safer investment than the funds because both your principal and interest are backed by the strength of First Texas and a trust arrangement. So you know your money is secure. But with most money market funds, your entire principal is at risk.

Immediate access to your money.

With Money Maker Securities, you also have immediate access to your money. So if you should need your investment back quickly, for whatever reason, you can get it immediately with a cashier's check on the spot at over 70 locations statewide. Compare that to the funds. And with the First Texas Daily-Rate Security, there's no penalty for early withdrawal.

So if you want to make a sound investment with high interest, see First Texas. They can make the most of your money. And that's what beating the 80's is all about.

Minimum deposit: $2,000. Money Maker Securities are repurchase agreements which are secured debts of First Texas, collateralized by government securities. However, these repurchase agreements are not insured or guaranteed by the federal government or its agencies.

"Yard of the Month" names Tony Hoenigs

The Muenster Garden Club has announced the selection of the home and yard of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Hoenig for "Yard of the Month" honors in June. Especially cited for its overall neatness, its trimmed front and back yards and its two well kept vegetable gardens, the yard also boasts beautiful shade trees, minosas and fruit trees. Surrounding the front of the house are holly shrubs, peonies and irises. The overall general landscaping is very pleasing.

Gainesville Heritage Days event features tour of homes

Gainesville will be holding its first annual Heritage Days on Saturday and Sunday, June 5th and 6th. Heritage Days is a weekend family festival that focuses on Gainesville's history. The Heritage Days celebration will center around a tour of homes, three of which are Victorian in style and three of which are new homes. The tour will also include three old churches and the old railway depot, which has recently been donated to the City of Gainesville by Santa Fe. The tour of homes, which emphasizes the theme of Gainesville's proud past and bright future, is being sponsored by the Cooke County Heritage Society. The tour will be held both Saturday and Sunday afternoons, from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. Tickets are $5.00 a person and can be purchased at the Morton Museum, corner of Dixon and Pecan, in Gainesville. While purchasing a ticket to the tour of homes, visitors are welcome to walk through the museum's current exhibit, "Of Bicycles Built for Two: A Time Victorian".

In addition to the tour of homes, Heritage Days will feature a variety of activities in downtown Gainesville, most of which will be concentrated around the courthouse square. Antique cars, different kinds of food, arts and crafts, exhibitions, demonstrations and entertainment will be featured in an atmosphere similar to an old fashioned outdoor fair. Downtown merchants will be dressed in period costume, and there will be a contest for the best costume, a clown contest, a window design contest and drawings for gift certificates.

Ross-Point Club fetes Senior Citizens

The Ross Point Community Improvement club honored senior citizens of the area with a dinner and fellowship hour on May 26 in the community center. Guests signed the guest book, showing that many came from a distance. Kitty English, daughter of Tim English, came from Dilly, Texas, near San Antonio; also Katie Crafton of Freeport, and many from Fort Worth. Rosston was also well represented.

Dinner followed a prayer by Joe Brown of Leo. There was group singing and some individuals recited favorite poems. Renewing friendships and meeting old acquaintances made a happy time for all. The guest book listed about 75 names, indicating an increase over last year, when Rosston's first senior citizen day was observed.

ELECT STEVE PHELPS

I wish to take this opportunity to say thank you to all of you who let me into your homes over the last five months during my campaign. Your hospitality was most appreciated. I've run a modest campaign relying mostly on going door to door. You have helped by listening and showing your concern over our local government. There are many to thank, the League of Women Voters who held the quorum last March, KGAF for free radio time to all candidates, and to The Enterprise fine professional ads. I have told many my views of this office. I feel it is a public office that is there for the people. It should be a less formal court but no less fair or just. I am a very conservative person who feels the law should be applied to the people and the situation at hand. Whomever is elected will be fortunate to attend the institute for Justices of the Peace and work along with an experienced JP in Judge Bill Freeman. Knowing this, it may be easier to select the right person to fill the office. As said before, if elected I will serve the people of Cooke County to the utmost of my ability. I will continue to educate myself to be a better public servant. You won't be embarrassed by my actions, statements, or availability. Entrust your vote and confidence in me. In turn will give you the people of Cooke County the type of Justice of the Peace you deserve. Please exercise your right, your privilege and vote.

Sincerely,
Steve Phelps

AA helps all ages and all occupations

Inga is 23 years old. She had her first whiskey sour at 16; a year later, she was mixing liquor with uppers and downers. She dropped out of school, decided to hitchhike from her home in Atlanta to San Francisco and start a whole new life. She drank and drugged as she thumbed her way West. In Kansas, she was raped and beaten and left for dead on the highway. At the hospital, she was detoxified and introduced to Alcoholics Anonymous. John is 51 years old. He graduated cum laude from Yale in 1950 and started up the career ladder at IBM.

From the start, he liked his two martinis at lunch, cocktails before dinner and brandy after, but he knew how to handle his liquor. He married and produced three children, belonged to the right clubs, and was on a first-name basis with the right people. Then his drinking got out of hand; he had the shakes, the sweats, wound up in one drying-out place after another. His wife insisted that he see their minister, who referred him to a psychiatrist. But John kept on drinking. In time, he lost his job, the mortgage was foreclosed on the house, his wife left him, the children would have no part of him. Those endless nights, his bedroom was a Bowery. That's when he found A.A. Just how far down the path of alcoholism do you have to go in order to qualify for membership in A.A.? As these two true stories show, not far...or else very far; hitting "bottom" is an individual thing. Inga drank for seven years, John, for about 30. She stuck mainly to wine and beer because they were cheaper; he could afford the hard stuff. But they both qualified as alcoholics--because drinking had made both their lives unmanageable. And once they crossed the "invisible line" that separates the alcoholic from the heavy drinker, there was no going back. In A.A., time was when virtually all the members had lost families and jobs, to say nothing of time spent in hospitals, jails and skid rows across the country. Today, however, the portrait of membership has changed. Newer members come in speaking of days lost from work rather than of lost jobs. Most of them still have families intact; have never seen the inside of a jail or lived in fourth-rate hotel or slept in a hallway on skid row. They may not have had the shakes and the sweats in the long, lonely nights. But they know they have a problem with alcohol. In large measure, these alcoholics owe their early recovery in A.A. to the fact that the disease of alcoholism has been recognized, at all levels, as a national health problem. According to a recent A.A. survey of its membership, 41 percent credit another A.A. member for introducing them to the Fellowship; 21 percent because of a family member; and 10 percent through their family doctor. Moreover; --The under-30 membership in A.A. increased by nearly 50 percent in the past three years. --At a typical A.A. meeting, one out of every three people is a woman--a jump of 33 percent over the past 10 years. Virtually all occupations are represented by alcoholics in A.A. Among men, for example, 29 percent are in sales and business; 27 percent in crafts; 26 percent in the professions (such as medicine, law); and 11 percent are semiskilled. Among the women, 40 percent call themselves homemakers; 21 percent, professionals; 18 percent, office, clerical; 14 percent, in sales and business; and 7 percent skilled and semiskilled. Some A.A.'s may have been referred to the Fellowship by a doctor, psychiatrist, or clergyman. Or, the alcoholic's spouse or a friend may have read about A.A. in a national magazine or newspaper. Or, the alcoholic may have seen a movie or television drama dealing with alcoholism and A.A. Moreover, such alcoholics may work for some of the thousand or so companies in the country that have developed programs to combat alcoholism among employees--as early on in the progression of the illness as possible, before chronic absenteeism and diminishing performance on the job have rendered the worker unemployable. Like most other illnesses--heart disease, cancer, diabetes--alcoholism can strike people of any age; and it develops at different rates in different individuals. Nor does it matter how much or how little you drink. The important question is: What is your drinking doing to you? How is it affecting your life? Alcoholism is a progressive illness; as long as the alcoholic keeps on drinking, it will grow progressively worse. Until the drinker chooses to stop. There is no known "cure" for alcoholism, but the disease can be arrested with the help of A.A.--BEFORE the horror stories start.

Classes of 1962 hold reunion

Seniors of 1962 from MHS and SHHS held a reunion on May 30 marking the 20th anniversary of their graduation and continuing a tradition of meeting at five year intervals.

Approximately 117 former students and spouses and former teachers attended the catered noon meal in the pavilion of Muenster City Park. Special guests were Sr. Carmelita, Sr. Cabrini, Brother Thomas Moster and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Felderhoff.

A program in the afternoon told a brief history of each classmate, present status and one exciting incident at some time for each. Prizes went to these, as voted on by their classmates: Lucille Hesse with the oldest child; Pat Knabe with the largest family; Judy Merritt who traveled the greatest distance; Charlotte Dangelmayr, the first grandparent; Alvin Hacker, the most gray hair; Paulette Hudspeth, changed the most; Judy Merritt changed the least; Della Hellman, the sexiest.

The planning and arrangements committee included Charlotte Dangelmayr, Lucille Hesse, Fran Voth, Agnes Hesse, JoAnn Pagel and Betty Jean Bindel. Guests agreed that the reunion was so much fun that plans are already begun for the next reunion.

When the graduating classes of SHHS and MHS held a reunion Sunday, May 30, marking the 20th anniversary of their graduation, one of the treasured keepsakes being shown was this picture made in approximately 1955, when they were grade school students. In row 1, front, l. to r. are: Anna Marie Fleitman Skinner, Kay Fette Hickey, Frank Hess, Claude Bayer, JoAnn Fisher Pagel, Sharon Schumacher Boruff, Doris Sicking Hermes, Judy Sicking Merritt, Kenneth Hacker, Billy Don Wolf. Children expect to get 'ripped off'

COLLEGE STATION — A Texas A&M University marketing professor wanting to learn more about young consumers has found youngsters are disenchanted with the business world.

After surveying 45 third-graders and 54 fifth-graders, Dr. James McNeal of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration and C. J. Anderson, a former doctoral student, said many children expect to get "ripped off" or misled by stores, packaging, advertising and salespeople.

"Half the children felt scared or uneasy while shopping, particularly when they shopped alone," McNeal said. "They said they felt like they were being neglected by store personnel, and that it was sometimes difficult to get people to sell them things."

McNeal suggests one problem leading to a mistrust for the business community is a child's uncertainty when making purchase decisions.

"The kids have difficulty in ascertaining product quality," said McNeal, "and they have problems relating prices to a product's worth. They also have concerns about product performance — whether the product would break, how well it would work and if it would be safe."

"Some complained they bought things that broke before they were even used. They said things they buy just don't last," he continued.

Class of 1962 reunion SHHS and MHS - front row, l. to r. Kay Shanks, Agnes Hesse, Charlene McGee, Lucille Hesse, Cindy Miller, Alice Hellman, Joyce Strittmatter, JoAnn Pagel, Trudy Merritt, Alvin Hacker. FOLLOW OUR FREE ADVICE ABOUT AIR CONDITIONERS. AND WE'LL THROW IN A BONUS CHECK.

Mr. Jones' new three ton central air conditioning system has an EER/SEER of 8.5, so he saves $40 per ton, or a total of $120. To find out what installing a new air conditioning system could be worth to you call your Energy Experts at TP&L.

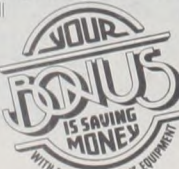

IT PAYS TO LISTEN TO TP&L.

That's right. We'll pay you a bonus check just for following our free advice and installing a high-efficiency unit. Cutting down on peak load (that means high usage in demanding times) will help save us operating costs, so we pass that along to you.

To find out more about TP&L's BONUS program give our experts a call or check with your local dealer. Remember, saving energy saves you money. And in this case, it could make you money, too.

We're TP&L. And we don't even sell air conditioners, but we do have an air conditioning program which could save you money. Here's how it works.

When you're buying a central air conditioning system, look for the ones which have an energy rating of 8.5 or higher. This rating is called an Energy Efficiency Ratio or Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio. EER or SEER for short. These efficient units use a lot less electrical power. And that saves you a lot of money. But there's still more.

Tee-ball, softball programs organized

Coaches and assistants of the summer softball and Tee-ball program held a meeting last Thursday to review rules and assign team members. Sue Trachta, director for the sponsoring Knights of Columbus, said there are eleven teams; five in Tee-ball and three each in junior and senior softball.

Tee-ball games will be played in the southeast part of the ball park, designated as Field No. 2. The area has no seating, so parents and friends are urged to bring lawn chairs. The two softball leagues will play on the regular field.

Each of the three leagues will open the season on June 15. Tee-ball games are scheduled for 6 and 7 p.m.; junior softball at 6:30 and senior softball at 8. Parents are asked to have children at the park at the time specified by the coach. And...vacancies still exist in both softball leagues. Interested girls are invited to sign up. Sacred Heart first grade has field trip

On Wed., May 19, the first grade of Sacred Heart school took a field trip. The first stop was the Morton Museum in Gainesville where the new exhibit is the Victorian Age. Items of interest were a bicycle built for 2, a treadle type sewing machine, a people-powered washing machine and wringer combination, and costumes of the period. Of particular interest was an old stereopticon. The Cooke County Court House was the next attraction. The various offices were visited and discussed and the county courtroom was visited. Court was not in session at the time so each of the students played the roles of the participants in a trial. The drivers license office was visited where the students witnessed and discussed the issuance of a drivers license. Cooke County College was the final stop with a program given by Dr. Dale Alsup in the planetarium. The students discovered some of the main planets in our solar system and were shown how to locate the North Star, The Big Dipper, the little Dipper, the Pleiades, Orion the Hunter, the Queen, and the Milky Way.

After having lunch at the College the class returned to the school.

Plant roses in a raised bed for easy care

by Ted Brice

In picking a location and preparing the bed, remember roses need at least one half day of sun light and they do not like wet feet. Roses are classified as shallow rooted plants, therefore they need proper drainage.

Here I suggest that rose beds be raised up to 12 inches above the ground level by using cross ties, bricks, concrete blocks, etc. Place a one inch layer of gravel at the bottom of a 12 inch bed for drainage. Then fill the balance of the bed with sand, peat moss and perlite or vermiculite in equal amounts.

When digging the hole for the bush be sure to dig it large enough that the roots can be spread out and not bunched together. Do not dig a two-bit hole for a five dollar plant. At the bottom of the hole mound a small hill in the center for the rose to sit on with its roots spread out on all sides. Then fill in with your planting medium to within one half to one inch of the bud union.

The bud union is the large knot between the root system and the canes. Roses are grafted on different root stock than what appears above the ground. Usually the root stock is the Hawaii cultivar.

There are two ways to purchase roses, bare root and canned roses. You may plant canned roses any time of the year by simply cutting the can away and placing the rose with soil intact in the hole in the bed. The bare root roses can be planted only in the spring or late fall. Which is the best is a matter of personal opinion.

Roses are graded by standards such as No. 1, No. 2 1/2, No. 2, and No. 2 1/2. The number one grade rose has at least three canes with the canes one-half to three-fourths inches in diameter. Remember, you may save money on your initial purchase by buying a rose which is of quality less than a No. 1 but you will spend as much or more on fertilizer and care and still you will not have a No. 1 Bloom.

After planting, I recommend a good application of humic acid as this lessens the shock of transplant. Humic acid is not a root stimulator. The first year rose must be kept well watered and not allowed to dry out. They are building their root system.

After the first year, a bush needs two inches of water per week. Here I recommend you place a coffee can in your bed to keep track of the water weekly, especially if mother nature does not furnish the needed rain.

This is where a good mulch comes in handy. A one-inch layer of cedar mulch helps conserve your moisture. Cedar mulch has been proven to retard nematodes and restore nitrogen to the soil.

Roses should be fed twice a year, the first year with a well balanced fertilizer such as 20-20-20 water soluble. Remember that your fertilizer has to get into a liquid form before your plant can use it.

Roses go dormant in the winter in the Northern states. Pruning is done in the spring after the last freeze. You should cut the canes back to within 15 inches of the ground. This is done on all different varieties except the climbers.

The new blooms are born on old growth on the climbers. A climber is pruned only when needed to control the growth after the blooming season is over. This lets a climber produce new canes before going dormant.

The biggest problem with roses is powdery mildew and blackspot which can be controlled by regular spraying of a fungicide such as benlate. If you already have powdery mildew, this can be eradicated by the use of P M Acti Dione. Red spider on your roses can be controlled by the use of an insecticide such as Isotox. If you should have Ap-hids, you can control them by the use of Malathion.

Your garden editor hopes this helps you with your roses and that you will have beautiful roses this year.

from the Texas Energy Extension Service

With the cooling season here again, would you please provide a list of items that need periodic checking for proper air conditioner maintenance? H. E., Cameron.

The following is a listing of items provided by Houston Lighting and Power that require checking during the air conditioner maintenance visit:

1. Inspect and clean condenser coil.
2. Inspect the evaporator coil.
3. Check compressor against rated amperage.
4. Check for loose electrical connection.
5. Check refrigerant charges.
6. Inspect for proper operation.
7. Inspect and, if needed, change filters.
8. Check all operating pressures.
9. Check evaporator temperatures.
10. Check condensate pan and drain lines.

Also check for air leaks in both the supply and return air ducts.

Soon I shall begin to plan for the up-grading of a 60 year old frame house in Jasper. The house needs re-roofing, and I am considering replacing the shingles with metal roofing. Could you advise me? J. G., Jasper.

There are no research data showing how much energy is saved by metal roofing, but these facts are known to be related to its general character:

- (a) It has a longer life expectancy than asphalt shingle roofing. A metal roof with baked on enamel surface will probably last 20 years or more.
- (b) It is generally light in weight and will not store as much of the summer heat as other roofs. This allows the attic to cool down faster on a summer night.
- (c) If it is white or silver in color, much less solar radiation is absorbed and so less total heat gain is experienced in the summer.
- (d) It will generally cost more than the asphalt shingle roof to install.
- (e) The reduced heat gain should not be harmful in the winter if the attic is well insulated.

If you have a question about energy conservation in the home, send it to ENERGY ANSWERS, Texas Energy Extension Service, Center for Energy and Mineral Resources, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843 or phone (713) 845-8025. Funds for this program were made available from the U.S. Department of Energy through the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC).

Koch-Britton Low Voltage Electric Stimulation

... for tenderness gains in every beef carcass you process!

- Checklist of Benefits
- Energy savings. Reach chill temperature 1-4 hours sooner
 - Less dripping
 - Less spoilage
 - Less shrink and trim loss
 - Shorten aging times up to 66% less time in cooler
 - Improved quality and flavor
 - 25% increased tenderness
 - About 6% move up a grade, better color, more visible marbling, less heat ring, reduced re-grade
 - Lower the Ph level
 - Eliminate cold shortening and dark cutters

When a carcass is stimulated, a lot of body heat is dissipated in a hurry. Extra bleeding occurs and reduces chances of spoilage and excessive trim loss. Once in the cooler, proper chill can be reached hours earlier, saving money and energy. Next day a brighter cherry red color appears. At grading time, about 6% of the carcasses move up to a higher grade. Heat ring and cold shortening are negligible. Aging time is far less (3 days instead of 7, or 7 instead of 21).

WHAT HAPPENED 45 YEARS AGO May 21, 1937

Farmers haul out binders as grain begins to ripen. Fire department arrives in nick of time to save Joe Flusche's truck. Big crowd of old timers gather at Myra for homecoming program. Mrs. Irene Frost, local CDA grand regent, attends state convention in Houston. Bertha Rohmer marries Gary Wooten of Wichita Falls. Solemn Communion class has 37 children this year. Lillie Perryman, popular Myra teacher, and Walter Purcell of Borger marry. Freda Walterscheid enter-lined 30 friends with a wiener roast Sunday night. Gertrude Schmitz who is employed in Dallas spent the weekend with her parents, the John Schmitzes, at Lindsay.

40 YEARS AGO May 22, 1942

Free enterprise in outer space restricted by treaty

COLLEGE STATION — The future of American space exploration and colonization is in jeopardy from new treaties that could restrict free enterprise in outer space, says a Texas A&M University economist.

Dr. Larry Wolken, associate director of Texas A&M's Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise, says economic concerns rather than technological considerations pose the greatest stumbling block to settling space.

Wolken points out the economic potential of further space exploration would be stifled particularly by the United Nations "Agreement Governing the Activities on the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies," commonly called the Moon Treaty.

While fewer than 10 nations have signed the treaty, neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union have approved the document and are not yet bound by its provisions.

The treaty declares all celestial bodies and their resources the "common heritage of mankind." No nation can claim sovereignty over any celestial body and their resources can't become the property of any nation or person. Wolken claims the treaty prohibits nations and individuals from owning property in space.

Worlds Unknown revealed in Noble Planetarium voyage

Travel to the planets in our solar system aboard a spacecraft of the future in Noble Planetarium's current star program, "To Worlds Unknown." Produced by the Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City with assistance from NASA, this multimedia voyage of discovery uses findings by astronomers and American space missions to reveal details of our solar system never seen before.

Your journey begins with liftoff aboard a space shuttle into earth orbit and rendezvous with the interplanetary space traveller Orion. Orion's crew will guide you on a grand tour of our solar system, the sun, and eight planets before returning to earth orbit.

Saturn and watch bolts of lightning leap across the thousand rings. Uranus, Neptune and Pluto are the final sights on your six billion mile journey.

Last Chance! Advanced swim classes start June 7

Local young swimmers intending to improve their swimming skill and planning to help in the annual beginners swim program, are reminded that their last chance is only a few days away.

Kathy Hartman, speaking for the Cooke County Red Cross, explained that a two weeks course in Basic Rescue and Water Safety will start next Monday and will consist of ten class sessions, June 7 to 11 and June 14 to 18. Class time is 8-9 daily.

Persons who complete these two weeks of classes will qualify to teach in the coming beginner class. Such swimmers will not have a Water Safety Instructor rating but will be ready to enroll in a WSI class at the next opportunity.

At this time the important consideration is to become competent to teach in the Learn to Swim beginners program in July. The only requirement is being at least 11 years old and in sound physical condition.

City gets minor storm damage

Muenster was lucky last Friday as a blustery storm tore through town and scattered tree limbs but caused no serious damage. The worst was a large tree at the Mid-Park, across from Ben Franklin, snapped off at the ground. Also a few large limbs and many small limbs were torn down.

About the most conspicuous damage was pole supporting a cluster of lights at the city baseball park. It was tilted to an angle of about 45 degrees and has since been restored to perpendicular. Roofs likewise received minor damages, but there are no reports of injury or heavy damage.
