Rain interrupts disappointing harvest

We're frequently told that the Soviet Union is the most efficient propaganda machine in the world. Its news manipulators are masters at creating favorable reports about the USSR and equally skillful at removing the unfavorable facts. As frequently obser-ved before, this condiditon became crystal clear in the reports of Evangelist Billy Graham after his recent crusade in Russia.

crusade in Russia. The popular minister, one of the most influential chur-chmen of the world, goofed in a big way by allowing himself to be taken in by the Red lies and especially by lending his prestige in presenting Moscow's twisted version of its religious rsion of its religious situation

As told by M. Stanton Evans in Human Events, "All in all, Graham's trip was a mindless, stunning propaganda triumph for the Soviets spreading events Soviets...spreading exactly the kind of disinformation the kind of disinformation that they labor diligently to propagate about their treatment of religion. The difference, of course is that propaganda this time was served up by an American clergyman...and one of allegedly conservative credentials, at that."

allegedly conservative credentials, at that." One of the absurd remarks referred to the "free church" of Russia, apparetly comparing with the "state church" of England, but obviously failing to note that the British situation concerns formality more than dogma whereas the church in Russia is free to operate only within the narrow limits allowed by the Kremlin. Actually, Graham became visitors to be given a Potemkin Village tour of the USSR, and to be coaxed into repeating Moscow's propaganda line. He praised his hosts for a supposedly common availability of Russian churches being full up to capacity, unaware that such impressive conditions were carefully staged in the suided tour. Contrasted with the false guid ided tour. Contrasted with the false Contrasted with the false version presented to visitors there are a few facts that are carefully kept under cover. First the official Orthodox Church is permitted to fun-ction only to the degree that it serves the Communist purpose. Its leaders say or do nothing to dispute the state line, whether in the field of religion, politics, economics, sports or what not. Over the years, many of those officials have been identified as high ranking officers of the KGB. Fur-thermore, as testified by Peter Deriabin, a former KGB agent, most of the priests in the USSR and religious people helping them are agents of the second religious people helping them are agents of the secret police. It's well known who directs the "free church" of Russia thing Still another thing Graham did not know is that Granam did not know is that many people in churches he visited were KGB agents pretending to pray but ac-tually keeping an eye on true believers and taking up space so that "unreliable" members could be kept away away. In addition to endorsing Russia's false claims about religious freedom, Billy Graham used very poor judgment in adding his bit to the anti-nuclear hysteria judgment in adding his bit to the anti-nuclear hysteria currently being promoted in several countries with agitation coming principally from Russia. Had Graham given serious thought to this

Dear Editor

Dear Editor, I was greatly disappointed to read the front page article in the Muenster Enterprise last week in which the Cham-ber of Commerce has gone on record as saying they do not want to see the results of an opinion poll on whether to have another Germanfest or not. This means that they are now saying that they do not care whether the people want a Germanfest or not, they will go ahead and make plans to put one on anyway even if the public does not want it. It also means that they must recognize the fact that most people now believe that what started out as a good thing, a local picnic and get together for family and friends to celebrate their German heritage, has now grown into a monster out of control with the costs far ex-ceeding the benefits.

frown into a monster out of control with the costs far ex-ceeding the benefits. Regarding the benefits, city records show that not one cent has ever been given to the city of Muenster by the Chamber of Commerce to be used for city improvements as the elected officials of the city see fit, or even to help pay the extra costs to the city which are incurred as a direct result of Germanfest activities. This year alone the taxpayers of Muenster had to pay the additional expenses of $86.00 for water used at the park during the German-fest weekend and $536.00 for extra police workers brought in specifically for extra duty during the same weekend.

brought in specifically for extra duty during the same weekend. The comment was made that some could not under-stand why anyone would disapprove of the activities associated with Germanfest. Below I have listed a few of the things which occured during this time which most people disapprove of. I. Numerous tickets given out by the Liquor Control Board to minors who were not yet of legal age to drink. Two men run over on the highway and seriously injured. One was so seriously injured he was believed to be dead and although he survived he was in intensive care numbers next year. One either approves or disapproves of the above facts. If you don't dissaprove, then you approve them. If you live in the city limits and do not approve of the above ac-tivities and want to do something about it, then it is up to you to get a petition drawn up, obtain signatures, and bring this matter to a vote. Failing to do so is the same as giving your approval to the above occurances. All I have asked for is that the people have a chance to say whether or not they want any more Germanfest ac-tivities in their city park. In a democratic society it doesn't seem right for a few people to put on something that the majority don't want. If the majority want it, then so be it. If not, then the question should be asked as to why it is being allowed to continue. Sincerely, Sincerely, Larry Tisdale, D.V.M.

BILLY GRAHAM IN MOSCOW

By Edwin Feulner

Like street urchins rummaging desperately through yesterday's litter for today's survival, for many within the Soviet Union hope is a commodity in short supply, providing only temporary relief from the endless cycle of despair

The Reverend Billy Graham's much talked-about visit The Reverend Billy Graham's much talked-about Visit to Moscow was disappointing not only because it revealed his naivete about Soviet propaganda, but because he missed an opportunity before a worldwide audience to bring a message of freedom and hope to the very people who need to hear it most.

to hear it most. The sojourners who came from Eastern Russia to hear him speak must have watched in puzzlement as Dr. Graham cruised through Moscow with Party elites inside a shiny limousine. As he nibbled caviar with Leonid Brezhnev — delighting Soviet propagandists with his comments that only the very wealthy can afford caviar in the U.S. — one wonders how he was not moved to respond to the silent crise of the needy and impoverished all over that country who are forced to grovel for a bit of bread. Did he forget that the Soviets can't even produce enough grain to feed their own people? Was he unaware that while the Soviet Union was blessed with an abundance of sturgeon, and has just about cornered the world market

Social Security has been the subject of a great deal of public discussion recently, as well it should be, for the system is headed for insolvency. Yet, this debate has not been productive

Attempts to acknowledge the need for reforms to save Social Security for the future have been characterized as at-tempts to harm recipients. There has been so much noise and so much distortion in the debate that the Congress has and so much distortion in the debate that the Congress has had to shelve the whole issue until later in the year. At that time, we will have the benefit of recommendations from a presidential task force appointed to study the subject, and the political fires should have cooled. Why is the Social Security system going broke? A combination of economic factors, including unprece-dented inflation rates in 1979 and 1980, have driven benefits up at a higher than anticipated rate. This means the Social Security funds have been drained to the point that only the most optimistic estimates show them to be solvent through most optimistic estimates show them to be solvent through the 1980s. With regard to the trust funds, many Americans fail to understand that these funds do not hold in trust the money which recipients paid during the years they were employed. That money was used to pay benefits to retirees in the past. Social Security is a "pay as you go" system, in the past. Social Security is a "pay as you go" system, with today's workers simply transferring some of their cur-rent income to today's retirees. Many people think that the system works like a private pension plan, with the worker receiving what he or she put into the system, with a certain amount of interest. Actually, the distribution of funds is progressive, so that a person who has earned federal minimum wage will receive benefits replacing about 54 percent of prior month-ly earnings. A maximum wage earner receives about 28 per-cent of prior monthly earnings. Married retirees with depen-dent spouses receive benefits at least 50 percent higher than single receipients. single recipients.

What this means is that a worker in the highest tax bracket at the end of an average lifespan will have received five times as much in benefits as he paid in taxes, while low wage earners receive up to 8.8 times as much as they paid in taxes.

In fact, if a worker had contributed the maximum amount to Social Security from the day of its inception to January of this year and then retired, he would receive back his contribution within 22 months. If he had a spouse who had never worked, the couple would receive back the entire contribution in just 14 months. Disability and health care benefits are in addition to this retirement nawhack. All of controlution in just 14 months. Disability and health care benefits are in addition to this retirement payback. All of these checks are paid for by today's worker contributions. This system worked well into the 1940s and 1950s. There was always a high ratio of contributors to bene-ficiaries, and wages rose as fast or faster than inflation. The end of the baby boom and increased life spans, which mean there are fewer working contributors per benefits recipient, have put a severe strain on the "pay as you go" policy. Ad-ditionally, benefits increases are based on the Consumer Price Index, which has been increasing faster than wages. In fact, benefits have risen almost twice as much as wages over the past decade.

over the past decade. As you can see, protecting this system -- preserving benefits for those who receive them now and ensuring to-day's workers will receive the benefits to which they are en-titled -- will be a huge task. I cannot say now what form these essential reforms will take. The choices will be hard. But you did not send us to Washington to ignore problems and look for easy paths. I pledge to you that no one who depends on benefits now will see them reduced. I pledge to you that we will preserve the system so that it is able in the future to fulfill its mandate to provide protection and benefits to those who depend upon it. depend upon it

But in order to restore solvency to the system, we are going to have to dispense with distorted rhetoric and finger-pointing and get on with the real business in a rational, reasonable manner.

Dr. Graham was in Moscow to participate in a conference for religious leaders on the nuclear issue. He had been asked by the Reagan administration to forego the trip because of the propaganda mileage the Kremlin would try to squeeze out of his participation. The fact that the Soviet Union — which has systematically attempted to extinguish the fire of faith within its expansive borders — should hold a conference for religious leaders is ludicrous in itself. It seems prudent to exercise caution when mixing politics and religion. A lot of the momentum for the nuclear freeze movement has been generated in the religious community and on moral groundates most can agree about the tragic consequences of nuclear confrontation. But if our clergy are truly concerned about the suffering in the world, they would do well to concentrate less on parroting rhetoric and attending conferences in Moscow and look more to the needs of people all over the world whose spirits have cracked under the oppressive tyranny of the very same system that now purports to be the champion of peace. convience for local funerals

A new community service and a new convenience to Muenster residents became available this week with the announcement that Vernie Keel Funeral Home of Gainesville will use the Sacred Heart Community Center for Rosary and Wake Services and the deceased may lie in state for family visitations.

The arrangement was made by Father Denis Soerries, pastor, and Earl Clement, co-owner of the funeral home, as a way of eliminating time and mileage in attending the pre-funeral services in Gainesville. Instead visitors will have am-ple space in air conditioned comfort at home.

Director was Scoutmaster Leo Hallis of Denton, The scouts worked on their hiking skill award by going to and from Bor-man School, measuring 3 miles round trip. Setting up camp, afternoon activities and preparing their own supper kept the boys oc-cupied the first day. The second day was disrupted by a storm with high winds and heavy rains. Several of the scouts tents were uprooted and the boys had to take shelter in the adult camp facilities. Calls home were made to reassure parents that all were okay. Saturday tents were re-set and planned activities were resumed. A family picnic

Strokes: what to watch for

Usually it occurs in people in their 50s and 60s, but children and even infants can suffer a stroke. Regardless of the dif-ferent causes that lead to the various types of stroke, all result ultimately from a change in the blood supply reaching the brain, accor-ding to the Texas Medical Association.

with excess blood. Older people are more susceptible to strokes because the network of ar-teries and veins becomes less flexible with age. They har-den and become less able to handle blood being pumped faster during sudden movements. For this reason, doctors constantly warn older patients to slow down their constantly warn older patients to slow down their movements, particularly if they awaken to use the bathroom at night. Statistically, more strokes occur then than at any other time. The person's blood pressure is at its lowest point, and suddenly he begins to move. Major strokes result in paralysis of one or. both sides of the body, depending on the side of the brain in-jured during the stroke. Loss of vision and speech can result. Still, 75 percent of those surviving a stroke eventually regain most of their lost abilities through rehabilitation. But this can take a year or two. The main factor con-tributing to the majority of strokes is high blood pressure. Doctors say that more than 50 percent of stroke cases could be prevented with early treat-ment of high blood pressure. Other factors contributing to stroke are obesity and smoking. Certain signals commonly

Hot line fights oil field crime

An aggressive campaign against oil field thefts in Texas has begun with the in-stallation of a new 'per-manent statewide hotline. The Petroleum Indusfry Security Council (PISC) is offering a reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and in-dictment of persons suspec-ted of stealing crude oil or for ted of stealing crude oil or oil field equipment, or for information leading to the equipment. The new toll free hotline number is 1-800-645-2677 or 1-800-OIL-COPS. Chartered as a non-profit corporation in January 1982, PISC was formed by petroleum industry associations in an effort to provide organized support to law enforcement in com-bating oil field crimes. The hotline is just the first step in a comprehensive program to reduce the oil industry's estimated $100 million theft losses in Texas. Headed by Ed Richards, the former In-texas Department of Human Resources and Department of public Safety officer, PISC plans to develop a uniform marking system for oil field equip-ment, theft prevention programs for the industry, and a computer backed theft reporting and inquiry system. PISC also plans to investigators across the state to cooperate with and sup-port law enforcement efforts to reduce the theft problem. The new hotline will replace the oil field theft hotline operated by North Texas Oil and Gas Association and supported by other petroleum industry associations. The old num-ber, 1-817-723-1114, will cease operation on June 6. Any citizen having infor-mation about oil field theft is requested to call the PISC hotline or write: P.O. Box 15392, Austin, Texas 78761. Citizens are not required to reveal their name, just Chizens are not required to reveal their name, just provide the information and they will be assigned a code number for identification. Richards says citizens should call 1-800-OIL-COPS and help reduce oil production costs by stopproduction costs by stop-ping the oil field thefts which ultimately drive up consumer costs for oil consumer products.

High blood pressure is prime cause of heart attacks by Kathryn S. Stream PH.D. One of the three highest is factors in heart attacks blood pressure is really a rather curious condition. If you have it, nothing hurts and you don't look bad - but you ARE sick. Whn your heart beats, it blood pressure is the blood pressure is the stream against the walls of arterics. Everyone has to have some blood pressure to get blood to vital organs and muscles. Blood pressure to get blood to vital organs and muscles. Two readings are necessary to measure blood pressure. Two readings are necessary to measure blood pressure. The higher number gives the "systolic" pressure, when the heart is actually pumping out blood. The lower number gives the "diastolic" pressure, as the heart is filling up between beats. What specific levels are normal for your, depen-beats. What specific levels are normal for your, depen-beats means for your age. For people under 18, normal blood pressure is 120/89 mm Hg. Older people do not need higher levels! The nearer to 120/80 the better. Low blood pressure is not a problem, except in very rare cases. Although people with low blood pressure may tire easily or feel faint in a hot room, they usually live a long, normal life without symptoms.

long, normal life without symptoms. Hypertension is another word for high blood pressure. Many people used to think that if a person has hypertension, he/she must be a tense, anxious person. Not necessarily. Many even-tempered, apparently calm people also suffer from hypertension. We know now that genetics is a factor in a person's blood pressure level. What are the other factors relating to blood pressure that are within your control? (1) exercise, (2) appropriate weight, (3) stress management, and (4) sodium intake.

A minimum exercise program involves vigorous exercise for twenty minutes without stopping, three thimes a week. Exercise programs should be worked into gradually. A brisk walk is a good, uncomplicated way to exercise - even if it is for short distances. intake

Please remember: it is better for you to lose ten pounds and toba ten pounds and pounds one month and put it back on the next. Management is the key factor for stress. It is not the stressful situation in itself that is harmful. It is how one handles the situation. Deep breathing is an easy technique that helps one relax in tense situations. By taken J mean, breathe as deeply as you can, hold it a stressed and be the air out. Repeat. We get enough sodium from meat and vegetables that we eat. It is much better not to salt food at the table -particularly before you even taste it. Salt in cooking should be reduced by one-half. Most Americans eat 2 to 4 times more sodium than they need through their salt intake.

A toddler rarely stops. He touches, explores, and in-vestigates everything and everywhere. His inquisitive nature and interests are limitless. Every obstacle, crumb, crack, or crevice is his business. He is a professional loiterer. A two-year-old needs games and toys as well as adult stimulation to satisfy his enormous curiosity. He doesn't need too many toys, though, and certainly not expensive ones. Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, suggests these make-at-home playthings that are fun and educational, too. *Old pocketbooks (for pretend) Fill an old purse with a key chain, a pocket flashlight (the kind that is sealed and requires no battery), an old compact with glass mirror removed, hairbrush, comb. This will be good for countless hours of make-believe and role-playing. *Boxes (for form perception). Cut out simple shares removed, hairbrush, comb. This will be good for countless hours of make-believe and role-playing. *Boxes (for form perception). Cut out simple shapes (ball, cube, cylinder) from the lid of a small but sturdy box. Show the child how to push the right shapes through the right holes. As he drops the object into the box, he watches it disappear. He hears it land in the bottom of the box, and then he removes the lid to observe where it went. He is also learning that the ball will go into the round hole but that the cube will not. *Tin cas (for building, nesting, and stacking skills). Remove the lids from fruit, vegetable, and juice cans and check the edges for smoothness. Collect a variety of sizes and cover the exteriors with colorful adhesive paper. These cans are great for building towers to demolish, hiding small cans inside larger ones, and discovering the mysteries of space: "near" and "far", "up" and "down," "this" and "that." They help a child learn basic concepts of gravity and geometry, too. * Water and Sand (for expressing feelings). A big basin of water and a pit of sand is all that a child needs. Most of a child's experience with water comes from water con-fined to fountains, bathrooms, or pools. Water, sand, and mud are great tools for safely expressing aggression and hostility by pounding, banging, pummelling, moulding, pouring, and squeezing. * Tars and lids (for the development of size matching and discrimination). Collect an assortment of different sized containers, preferably made of non-breakable plastic. Screw the lid securely to a board. Then when the child attempts to place and rotate the container on the appropriate lid, he will be able to concentrate exclusively on that task and not on holding both still. For variety and complication of the task, change the placement of the board-on a table, attached to the wall, on its side. complication of the task, change the placement of the board-on a table, attached to the wall, on its side.

Group attends 2 dance recitals dance recitals Mrs. August Fleitman was hostess in her home on Saturday, May 29, when her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Les Richar-dson and her sister, Mrs. Jackie Zackery came to visit. The Richardsons, who recently moved to Dallas from Shreveport and Mrs. Zackery of Denton came for the dance recital of their two inieces, Jan and Melinda Fleitman, students of Gina's School of Dance. Jan par-ticipated in a ballet routine and Melinda in a tap dance routine, in the show. Special gifts were given to the two girls from their aun-stand uncle, and pictures Mrs. Fleitman and children were made. On Saturday, June 5, Mrs. Fleitman and children were in Denton to see their nephew and cousin, Troy Zackery in his dance recital. Also attending were the Les Richardsons and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zackery of Den-ton.

The unforgetable Marigold

by Ted Brice The Marigold is among the most popular flowers in the United States. They are ex-ceedingly easy to grow and require little attention. Their colors range from white, bronze, yellow, maroon and orange.

All marigolds are decen-dants of the wild Mexican species. They have been hybridized to produce four separate types. The African or sometimes referred to as the Aztec Marigold is the tallest variety ranging from 18 inches to three feet with double blooms in a ball shape of 3 to 5 inches. These marigolds resemble chrysan-thermums.

themums. Then we have the French Marigolds which are usually Marigolds which are usually a low growing variety ranging from six to 18 inches tall with one to two inch-single and double blooms. Next we have the African-French Marigolds which are usually double two to three inches in diameter born on very sturdy stems. We also have the dwarf marigolds which usually run about 12 inches tall and are topped with masses of single yellow or orange flowers measuring about one inch in diameter. In this variety we find the about one inch in diameter. In this variety we find the foliage to be fern like and much finer than the other varieties. Many marigolds have a brusing scent which is strong to some people and unpleasant while being at-tractive to others. There are some marigolds that are odorless.

When the blooms of the yellow marigold are fed to the chickens the hens will lay eggs with a darker yellow yolk. Scientists have proved that the parasitic worm (nematode) vanishes where marigolds grow well in or-dinary soil but need sunlight. They can be started inside from seed and set out after the danger of freezes has passed. They can also be set out as bedding plants or the seed can be planted directly in the garden. It takes the seed about five days to germinate. Dwarf varieties may be planted 6 to 10 inches apy the planted 5 to 24 inches apart, Keep your blooms cut and the plant
