

3 GOOD WELLS ASSURE FIELD IN LINN AREA

Rosson and Fette Each
Good For 100 Barrels

Extensive Pool Indicated
By Identical Formation
And Depth in Wells
One Mile Apart

Two more wells apparently on a par with the Russell and Lausen 100 barrel discovery well on TCU-Stark seem to indicate another extensive pool in the South Muenster field.

Lausen's No. 1 C. J. Fette, an east offset to the TCU-Stark well topped sand at 1109 and penetrated to 1114 before running casing and cementing.

About a mile to the east and south C. E. Sykes et al drilling the No. 1 J. T. Rosson topped a similar sand at 1101 and penetrated to 1112. The similarity of formation and level is accepted as a favorable indication for the mile of intervening space.

Offsetting the TCU-Stark and Fette wells two offsets have already been staked for Mrs. J. D. Linn, and C. J. Fette is due to get an offset to the Rosson well.

In the Voth field Joe Beard is believed to have recovered his No. 1, formerly declared dry. After a thorough cleaning job it was acidified but the final result has not been announced. Closely beside it is the Beard No. 2, regarded as the champion of the Voth pool. Coming from Ellenberger topped at 1772 and penetrated to 1774. It has plenty of pressure and is believed good for several thousand barrels daily if turned loose.

North of the pool about a mile W. M. Trubench's test will begin before August 1. W. G. Kent will drill it for J. C. Roberts et al of Fort Worth. On the neighboring Hesse place Couch and Trumpler are drilling below 800.

In the Hood community Babe Felker will get a test well drilled by Pois and Schultz for Ross and Marshall. It is about 3,000 feet north of the recent Bailey English well and two miles southwest of the J. T. Donald well now drilling near 1400.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE DELEGATES REPORT AT PARISH MEETING

A general meeting for all members of the parish was held Sunday evening in the parish hall to hear reports from the delegates to the Catholic State League convention held at Oifen recently.

Following the opening prayer, given by Rev. Father Frowin, Mrs. William Waterscheid and Mrs. Joe Wilde gave reports, dealing mostly on the Women's Union which this year observed the 25th anniversary of its affiliation with the league.

A special banquet was held for the women in observance of this event. Each lady received a small bouquet of silver leaves as a favor and the large silver adorned cake, bearing 25 candles, was cut in 180 pieces for the guests.

Lectures for the ladies, as reported by Mesdames Waterscheid and Wilde, stressed guarding the faith in the family, family prayer, the giving of good examples by women, especially mothers, the value of Catholic education for children, the need of good literature in the home, the forming of study clubs, the evils of birth control, help of the missions and Catholic Action.

Barney Voth gave a short report on the more important phases of the men's meetings and Miss Olivia Waterscheid and John Wimmer gave detailed accounts of the Catholic Youth meeting.

The Catholic Youth Organization this year became affiliated with the league making the fourth society so associated.

Orval Malone is promoting the event and inviting model plane flyers from other cities to come in and add to the show. He is also soliciting funds to be given as cash prizes.

'REBUILD OR REPAIR' WILL BE DECIDED IN EARLY FMA MEETING

Anticipating an early general meeting of the Farmers Marketing Association membership to determine whether its store, recently damaged by fire, will be repaired or replaced by a new building, Rudy Hellman conferred Tuesday with Wm. Ratcliff, Gainesville contractor, and Leo Henschel to estimate the cost of either structure.

It is probable, he stated, that the general meeting will be called within the next week or two so that work can be started while the weather is favorable.

PROGRESS DELAYED ON REA EXTENSION TO SPANISH FORT

By an unfortunate circumstance the local electric co-operative has lost ground rather than advanced in its effort to extend rural electric service to North Montague County.

Some eighty membership applications and right of way easements that were to be transferred here from the Red River Valley Electric Company have been returned to the applicants themselves. As a result another survey will have to be conducted to secure members that were already signed up. Those applications had been secured more than a year ago by the Oklahoma co-operative but could not be used after REA headquarters decreed against crossing a state line with a project. They were valid with the local organization.

Authorization to go forward with an extensive project to Montague was received by telephone Monday from REA officials, Superintendent J. W. Hess advises. He has since contacted key men at Spanish Fort, Bonita and the Valley View and Prairie Point school districts and instructed them to go forward with their project survey. In the event the project is acceptable to REA engineers, a new federal appropriation will be given the local co-op.

An extension of several miles is due to be built to the northeast part of Cooke County in the near future. Shorter extensions to individual consumers are being built on an average of two a week.

After spending two weeks here, a project inspector from Washington expects to leave this week-end. The Muenster line is well above the average of other rural lines, he states.

BROKEN PHONE WIRE SHORTS POWER LINE, CURRENT OFF 2 HOURS

Muenster and the entire rural electrification system was out of current for two hours Tuesday after a broken telephone line shorted out the TP&L power line about three miles east of town.

A high load on a truck snapped a telephone wire and the tension in the wire caused it to spring up over the power line. The resulting short circuit melted the power line.

When the line fell to the ground its tremendous heat fused the dirt into a black crystalline lump somewhat similar to onyx.

LOW COST PLAN OF HOSPITAL SERVICE INTRODUCED HERE

Group hospitalization, an insurance plan by which people may secure hospital attention at a very low cost, is being introduced at Muenster. On Monday and Tuesday of this week Frank McNamee of Dallas, working in the interests of Group Hospital Service, Incorporated, called on a number of business men to explain the plan which is growing steadily in popularity all over the state.

The organization is not set up to earn profits, McNamee explained, but to provide hospital care at a cost not prohibitive to a normal person. Eighty-five percent of every dollar paid into the organization is reserved for paying hospital bills, the remaining fifteen percent is used to cover administrative expense. In the event a surplus accumulates the membership profits by reduced insurance rates.

Created by a special act of the state legislature, Hospital Group Service, Incorporated, is chartered under the insurance commissioner of the state. Its records are subject to the commissioner's inspection and its rates are subject to change in accordance with zone conditions. If the Cooke County zone should demand a smaller percentage of its general fund than another zone it would enjoy a local reduction of rate rather than have its surplus transferred to another zone.

At the present time Mr. McNamee expects to organize group units through the local Catholic parish and the Farmers Marketing Association. With another group, he believes, he can include most of the remaining people here.

Group hospitalization was accepted enthusiastically by several religious, civic, and business groups of Gainesville, McNamee said. He is confident that several group plans will be organized in Cooke county and one of the Gainesville banks picked as a zone depository.

Group hospitalization has been successful in Dallas for more than ten years. By the recent act of the state legislature its benefits can now be made available to the entire state.

CITY WATER WELL NEARS COMPLETION

Muenster's municipal water well nears completion. J. G. Richards and Son, drilling contractor for the job reported late Wednesday a depth of 535 and fair prospects of reaching the Trinity sand sometime Thursday. The sand depth is estimated at about 600 feet.

Contrary to original reports the well is not located on First Street. Lots were specially purchased to permit its location about 50 feet north of the street.

AUCTION SALE MOVES

The community auction sale conducted every Saturday by John Bayler has a new location since work began on the new Enterprise building last week. It is across the street from the post office and behind the building that used to be "Nick's Place."

Area Proposed Is Trinity Watershed

Counties Affected Would Be
Cooke, Denton, Montague
Grayson, Collin, Dallas
Tarrant and Wise

This community's petition for a soil conservation district along the Elm Creeks may become the nucleus of an extensive district ranking as most important in the state.

Conferring with J. M. Weinzapfel last week end, Forrest L. Park, engineer of the Trinity Improvement Association of Fort Worth, explained that the State Soil Conservation board favors the organization of a few large districts rather than a large number of small ones. Practicality in making plans and proportionately lower administrative cost are the reasons given for the proposal.

According to Mr. Park the greater project would include the entire Upper Trinity watershed under the name of Denton-Elm Forks—White Rock Soil Conservation District. It includes all of Denton County, all of Cooke County except the Red River Watershed, and sections of Grayson, Wise, Collin, Montague, Tarrant and Dallas Counties.

Because valuable farm land is at stake and also because three important bodies of water, Lake Dallas, White Rock Lake, and the Trinity River, are damaged with silt, Park is confident the state conservation board will regard the proposed district as the Number one district of the state.

Referring to the local petition for an Elm Creeks district, he stated that it would be regarded as part of the larger district but that its priority before the board would not be sacrificed. In the event the larger district is not approved, Muenster's small one will still be on file.

Even though a sufficiently large number of signatures are on Muenster's petition to serve for the large district, more signatures will be secured. A minimum of 50 is required and Muenster has 100, but it was thought advisable to have the other sections of the larger district represented by signatures.

LEAGUE LADIES SET NEXT THURSDAY FOR CITY WIDE CLEANUP

The first of three annual clean-ups sponsored by the Ladies' Civic League, with the co-operation of the city and the help of the local Boy Scouts, will take place next Thursday, August 3. Mrs. T. S. Myrick, league president, and Mrs. Ben Hellman, chairman of the sanitation committee, announced.

A charge of 15c will be made for picking up trash that is sacked and 25c will be charged in the event that the boys must pick up the rubbish before loading.

Boy Scouts interested in helping, for which they will be paid, are asked to report to either Mrs. Myrick or Mrs. Hellman.

FDR AND THE HATCH BILL

Only President Roosevelt's signature is needed to convert the Hatch clean politics bill into a law of the land, but there is reason to fear the signature will not be affixed. By approving that bill FDR would be releasing his grip on the 1940 nomination. His policy in the past may be accepted as an eloquent testimonial of his intention to continue in power and increase his hold wherever possible.

The teeth in the bill are to be found in the provision that no federal employes, except a few in the upper brackets, may take part in political activities. With reference to the next democratic national convention it would mean that postmasters, employes of the several alphabetical bureaus, or any one else depending upon the New Deal for his bread and butter, would be ineligible to serve as a delegate. With reference to the election, it would bar any campaign activity on the part of those same employes. It would also prevent solicitation of campaign funds among employes or coercion on the part of local heads of the alphabetical agencies.

Thinking over the bill one must agree that it is the fairest proposal ever offered for our electoral system. Instead of turning the country's destiny over to those who ride the gravy train, it leaves the deciding power just where it belongs—in the control of plain citizens who have to foot the bills.

This is not to say that political conventions and elections heretofore have been controlled by a pack of crooks. But it does get back to the old saying that the normal man looks out for "number one." Well, if a large number of delegates now get their bread and butter through the grace of the New Deal, it is hardly far fetched to assume that they are well satisfied and will throw their support behind a continuation of the New Deal's reign.

Roosevelt is well aware of the possible consequences if he fails to veto the Hatch bill. He has even gone so far as to say that he favors it in principle but feels that it should be perfected in scope—he has given himself a loop hole just in case he decides to veto.

By not such a far stretch of the imagination one can regard this bill as a critical point in the president's career. Will he sign it and thus give back to the people much of the political control that he has enjoyed to a greater extent than any other president? Or will he veto the bill in an attempt to hold his power and perhaps increase it to the extent of dictatorship?

STOP THE THIRD TERM

Regardless of what Roosevelt does about the Hatch bill, it is high time for the American public to realize just how dangerously close it is tottering on the brink of dictatorship. In the words of Senator Burke of Nebraska: "The temptation toward a perpetuation of the power of an existing administration never was so great as at present. Never has a comparable bureaucracy existed or its members had more reason to pull political wires to insure the security of their jobs. At no time in our history has an administration had such tremendous political power through a distribution of public works, agriculture and other benefits and jobs. No political organization likes to relinquish power."

It is almost a safe prediction that no power will be relinquished if the New Deal's administration is extended another term. In fact one can predict that the force of dictatorship will assert itself more strongly than ever before—and quite likely establish itself. Here is a major reason why President Roosevelt's third term must be prevented.

Would the president, if given the chance, assume the power of a dictator? A definite answer to that question could be given only by the president himself, still, from his past record, one would be justified in assuming an affirmative answer. Too often he has extended his power to the very limit allowed by the constitution and a few times he has overstepped that limit, as shown by subsequent Supreme Court decisions. The alphabetical agencies he created vastly extended the scope of his jurisdiction. The socialistic policies he followed amounted to virtual confiscation of private property to be dealt out under his supervision. A suspicious person would go so far as to charge that administrative policies during the "reign" of the New Deal were deliberate build-ups for the "crisis" when someone can grab the dictatorial whip. Hitler, Mussolini, and Lenin, it will be recalled, got their start that way.

A point far more critical than it appears on the surface is to be decided in the 1940 campaign. It is no mere struggle between two political parties, no mere test of the third term precedent, no mere sanction of

New Deal or Anti-New Deal policy—it is a defensive issue for American democracy. It looms as the great factor deciding whether government of the people, by the people, for the people will assume the real dignity of its glorious heritage, or whether a highly systematized bureaucracy will develop to its logical destiny.

Democracy's first line of defense is the national convention, its second is the elec-

Household hint: Next time you put new paint or wall paper in your home, consider blue. If a report on experiments in Europe is true, that is the color that will make flies feel most unwelcome.

In a series of tests, they say, eighteen flies landed on clear green paper for every one that landed on blue. That is the reason that certain French hospitals and clinics chose blue for all walls. Likewise a packing house in Denmark uses blue throughout the inside, and an Englishman selected it for every room in his home.

Other experiments revealed that other insects too have a preference for certain colors. June bugs will swarm around white bulbs but not colored ones. The same is true of moths.

Many a Texas business man has been rejoicing lately over the hot check law. At last he has a break in his favor. Now the man who writes the check is on the spot, not the poor unfortunate who had to decide between taking a chance and offending a patron every time a questionable check was presented.

We all know what it is like. There is something unpleasant about turning down a check even when it is known to be bad, but to turn it down when there is a doubt is worse. No merchant wants to offend, in fact most of them are really anxious to accommodate; so what to do about it?

Now it isn't so much of a problem. When the giver, rather than the receiver, has to beware, a person can accept a check with reasonable assurance that he will not be left holding the bag. In the event the check proves hot, the other fellow will be plenty anxious to make it good.

The law has teeth in it, they say. But will it bite the most notorious "hot check artist" in Texas—which happens to be the State of Texas? Probably the answer is "No." People on the state payroll will continue receiving checks on overdrawn accounts, and either discount them or wait indefinitely for their pay at face value. It does seem queer, doesn't it?, that our state should presume to crack down on little fellows when it is so much at fault itself. Perhaps there is something in the ancient contention that lawmakers are above the law.

Talking about hot checks, one of our respected citizens sorta blushes when reminded of this one: A person wanted to pay him $5.00 by endorsing a $10.00 check and accepting $5.00 in return. He was almost certain the check was hot, but rather than give offense he took a chance. And not having 5 bucks with him, he wrote a check. The next day he was mighty pleased to discover that the supposed hot check was good. His own check, however, was hot. He had written it on the wrong bank.

A paper salesman recently offered to supply a pre-heated paper to be used in printing hot checks, also a rubber content paper for the kind that bounces back.

From Grand Saline comes a news story that a member of the board of school trustees has held that position for 50 years and never attended school a day in his life.

It is doubtful whether another such co-incidence can be found in the country. On the other hand the country has plenty of men who had little or no school training but made a creditable mark in the world. Common sense, after all, is better than book sense. In fact, it is enough to carry a man through life whereas book learning by itself is not enough.

This does not mean that a successful man who had no school training remain illiterate. Almost universally it is true that such persons gradually acquire book learning through their own efforts. They have the ambition and sense of responsibility that drives them to individual achievement the hard way. Smart alec boys who like to tell of great men that did not go to school would do well to realize that those same great men, had they been given a chance, would have been ideal students.

It's been a big job for some men to get as far as they did. How many

Paying by Check
BUILDS CONFIDENCE
Paying by check not only gives others confidence in you but gives you confidence in yourself.
When you pay bills in cash you are likely to let yourself get too close to your "bottom dollar." Paying by check, on the other hand, encourages you to build a safe reserve between you and trouble.
It pays to pay by check. It's safer, more convenient, more business-like. It builds credit and is a real aid to success.

Red Chain
EGG NUGGETS
Make Every Hen Pay a Profit
Experiments prove that it requires 100 eggs, produced during the course of a year, to pay for the feeding and care of a laying hen. It's reasonable to expect then, that a hen laying 200 eggs per year pays DOUBLE the Profit of a bird averaging only 150 eggs per year. For this reason we urge you to cull the "non-producers" and feed your flock on RED CHAIN EGG NUGGETS... the feed that contains all the essential egg-making material for consistent... profitable... egg production.

FARMERS WELCOME WOLF TRAPPERS WITH SUNDAY BARBECUE

This year's barbecue party to celebrate the confusion of Br'er Coyote was more successful than that of last year in one important respect—this time the wolves were not feasting at the same time.

After a federal licensed wolf trapper had killed ever so many of the pests last year, a group of men in the vicinity honored him with a barbecue. As if in ridicule, a few surviving wolves killed a number of sheep while the party was in progress less than a mile away.

This year's event differed in a few other details also. It celebrated the arrival of the trapper instead of his departure. And drinks were drawn from a keg rather than from a lemonade crock; it was a stag affair.

Hosts for the party were Gordon Ramsey, Sam Biffle, John Fette, Joe Cooke, and Reeve Cooke, and the location was John Fette's ranch. About 20 persons attended.
