A recent issue of Parade magazine tells a terrifying story of mass murders by communists of Southeast Asia and the Soviets in Afghanistan to carry out a program named "Extinct Destruction Operations", which is intended to wipe out entire populations of an area.

One reference is to the Hmong people of Laos which in 1975 numbered 400,000 out of the total Laotian population of 3 million. Today it is estimated that fewer than 75,000 remain. Others have been killed or driven out by starvation or lethal chemical attacks. A former bureau director of the Laopian Communist ministry of health, who defected to Peking in 1981, says "The Vietnamese use chemical weapons in the air and on the ground, killing thousands upon thousands of people."

The program, known as chemical-biological warfare (CBW), includes both chemical and biological methods which are conveniently combined under the term "yellow rains," and are similar in that the effect in either case is horrible mass murder.

One incident tells of helicopters circling above a community of 300 wooden and grass thatch houses. Startled parents tried to grab their screaming children and run for cover as exploding clouds of red smoke and a musty yellow rain descended from the sky. Those covered by the wet sticky substance began spinning wildly in uncontrollable seizures, gasping for breath, blood spouting from noses and mouths as they died. People who escape the direct effect of the attack are found to endure a week or more of illness with nausea, fever, diarrhea and burning eyes.

Similar attacks are being made in Afghanistan by its Soviet invaders. There a wide variety of toxic smoke colors is being used causing varying effects ranging from incapacitation, stupor, nausea, choking, neurologic fits and massive hemorrhage, causing quick death. Guerrilla fighters in Afghanistan have experienced fatality rates of up to 70 percent, and large civilian populations have experienced rates of nearly 100 percent. Chemical experts believe that known chemicals like mustard gas, phosgene and sarin are being used as well as new forms of toxins.

A Soviet military chemical specialist reported autopsies on Afghan villagers and soil samples after attacks. His account agreed with stories coming out of Laos regarding the Vietnamese. And as far back as 1974 a Cuban emigre baffled US analysts with descriptions of similar chemical warfare systems being taught in Cuba. He also described a chemical land mine that validated a report by a Soviet defector in the 1960s.

Such reports from scattered areas of the earth leave little doubt that communists in general and the USSR in particular can and do use chemical warfare in their relentless campaign of world domination.

The other side of the strong is that US likewise has its chemical warfare division, but a comparison of its capabilities and those of

Foundation board to distribute assets

Payday has arrived for the shareholders of Muenster Industrial Foundation. Following a special session of foundation directors Saturday night, President Jerome Pagel announced that legal details and paper work are complete for dissolving the firm and distributing assets in accordance with the decision at a shareholders meeting on January 26, 1983.

It means that the original investment of 104 persons plus rent and interest earnings can now be divided in proportion to each person's original investment. According to Earl Fisher, treasurer the total of original investments is $22,200, and the total after final expenses is expected to be about $71,000.

The word is being sent to shareholders that certificates can be redeemed by bringing them to Muenster State Bank for processing and checks will be received a few days later. Fisher said the directors expect the certificates to be returned by the original investors, or by their heirs. In case a person can not find his certificate the directors will be able to assist by referring to their own records.

Ray Wilde, secretary, briefly reviewed the history of Muenster Industrial Foundation, saying it originated in 1959 to help Sam Raden establish a dress factory here. At the time it had 75 members with a total investment of $18,000. Dealings with Raden ended in 1966 when Lou Kreditor bought the dress factory which was changed to Jr. Elite and arranged his own financing.

The change left the foundation without a prospect until 1967 when the Valeron Corporation indicated an interest in locating here. Interest soon developed into an arrangement whereby the foundation would finance construction of a plant and Valenite would lease it for 15 years with an option to purchase at the end of that time.

Some of the construction fund was made up of rent and interest earnings of the previous eight years and the balance was raised by loans, which were partly secured by personal endorsement of several members. Present assets of the foundations are made up of rent and interest receipts and the sale of the building. In their January meeting shareholders were reminded of a choice to continue the foundation or dissolve and divide. Many chose the latter option, principally on the basis that they are advancing in age and some are deceased and they prefer to have the money for estate convenience or otherwise. Pagel said Saturday that the choice still applies, and

Accident spectators will be ticketed

Muenster Police have announced that the problem of private vehicles following emergency vehicles to the scene of an accident or fire has gotten out of hand and that effective immediately, citations will be issued for such violations. No more warnings will be given.

City Council members, when told of the problem at their monthly meeting Tuesday, suggested a city ordinance be established to help with the problem. But, City Attorney Chuck Bar-tush told the council an ordinance was not necessary since a state law against such actions applies here. Muenster police have said the problem has gotten progressively worse, particularly on a few recent occasions.

Also, council members voted to grant a 10 percent rate increase to Lone Star Gas Co., after cutting the original request of 16.37 percent at the last meeting.

The council also discussed a new radio communication system for the city services, police department and volunteer fire department. Several bids were opened

News for ISD both good, bad

Trustees of the Muenster school district heard good news and bad news at their regular meeting Thursday night.

On the happy side is a report that oil valuations of the district declined less than expected and will result in more revenue than expected. Re-calculation is under way and will be revealed soon by the Cooke County Tax Appraisal District.

More good news is that 1982 tax collections are 95 percent complete.

On the unhappy side is a shocker based on last week's state supreme court decision concerning taxes assessed to banks. Certain properties such as bonds and securities were declared to be tax free, hence Muenster ISD will have to return taxes of several years paid on those properties. The amount is to be determined by bank officers and the county tax appraisal district.

Also, 23 property owners of the district were listed as delinquent in previous years. CCTAD has appointed a firm to request payments and file suit if payments are not made. The district indicated that more recent delinquencies are about to be added to the list.

In other business the trustees approved several additions to school equipment. They agreed to match band parents $0-50 on the purchase of new uniforms for the band, and they approved the purchases of three electric typewriters and two computers. Also they okayed purchase of a video recorder and reproduction facilities whereby various programs and technical information can be kept for presentation at classes, assemblies, etc. It's intended principally as an instruction aid.

The trustees also cooperated with Sister Cabrini, Sacred Heart principal, in hiring a remedial reading teacher for assignments to Sacred Heart, grades 2-6. This is a federally-funded community program administered through public schools.

Trustees also heard a progress report from Superintendent Coffey on the summer improvement program. A new insulated roof and four air conditioning room units are installed on the junior high wing. Gutters and down spouts are completed to control run-off at the band and ag areas and surface drainage is changed to prevent flooding north of

Public school struck by vandals

Muenster police officers are currently seeking information in connection with an act of vandalism which they believe took place sometime Sunday night at the Muenster Public School.

morning, found a pair of tire tracks across the sidewalk and lawn in front of the building and a number of bricks knocked loose at the base of a support column. Coffey said the entire column will probably have to be replaced, a repair which will run into several hundred dollars.

Police Chief Helen Tompkins said a $25 reward for information on the incident is being offered, with a promise of confidentiality for the person offering information.

"If it's a local person, I'll get them," she said. "But if it's and out of town person, I probably won't." In other recent crime activity, two burglaries of motor vehicles were reported having taken place in front of the Ranch on Main Street June 25. A purse was stolen from each car. Since that time, a Collinsville man has been charged in connection with the incident and has been released on $6,000 bond.

Sam Bass Days this weekend

Sam Bass Days in Rosston will be featured by Sally Francis on Channel 8, Thursday, July 14 at 6:30 p.m. The "legendary Robin Hood of the Rosston area", probable source of the community's modern fun day, will be recalled in an original play presented at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, when Rosston unveils its third annual community party.

Sponsored by the Rosston Volunteer Fire Department, the day-long event is a community-wide effort to entertain former residents, area friends and homefolks.

It begins with a parade at 10 a.m. and continues with the following schedule: Mule Pull 10:30; Lunch 11:00-1:30; Street Shoot-out 1:30; Children's Games 2:00; Adult Games 3:00; Horseshoe Tournaments 3:30; Fiddlers' Contests 4:00; Western Play about Sam Bass 5:30; Dinner 6:00; 49-ers Square Dance Show 7:00; Dance with Doug Martin and the Rustlers 8:30; Drawing for western boots, etc. 10:00.

There will be stage coach rides all day. The spans of oxen will arrive Thursday night and will be displayed in pens. The Era Progress Club will have a flea market all day. Bingo will be conducted by the Ross-Point Progress Club.

Many Area homemakers are well known for making beautiful quilts. Some of these will be shown in a quilt display and arts and crafts show in the Rosston Fire Hall.

New hitching posts have been installed in front of the Rosston Store. They will be used in the Western Play, and will become a permanent addition to the store front.

There will be music all day. Aerial photography will record events of the day. Concession stands will provide sandwiches, ice cream, snow cones and cold drinks, and barbecue in abundance will be available. Trophies will be given for the Fiddlers' contest and for parade winners.

For more information call Linda Muller, 768-2778 in Rosston.

Good News

John 7: 15-18

The Jews were filled with amazement and said, "How did this man get his education when he had no teacher?" This was Jesus' answer: "My doctrine is not my own; it comes from him who sent me. Any man who chooses to do his will will know about this doctrine—namely, whether it comes from God or is simply spoken on my own."

Mercury still under 100

The amazing weather of 1983 continues. A mild winter is being followed by a mild summer with mid-July being almost like spring, and, in spite of sub normal moisture, pastures and crops are in good condition and the mercury still has not reached 100.

Rain measure of the past week as zero as the total for July remains at .65 inch and for the year at 14.68 inches.

Low and high readings of the week are recorded as follows by Steve Moster. July 7, 68 and 87; July 8, 62 and 88; July 9, 64 and 91; July 10, 68 and 92; July 11, 71 and 95; July 12, 72 and 93; July 13, 72 and 90.

The Owner's Manual

LAST WEEK'S study broke when Jonah was thrown into the sea and a great calm followed. As the sailors on board ship celebrated their deliverance with a service of thanksgiving, Jonah sank deeper and deeper into the sea. And then the prophet began to pray. It was a cry of distress, a plea for help. And it was answered. God commanded a large fish to swallow Jonah and return him to dry land.

We would expect Jonah to have been a changed person after this experience, but the rest of the book shows that little had changed. To be sure, when God called him the second time to go to Nineveh, he obeyed. But he did so reluctantly, against his will. He perhaps muttered under his breath the entire distance to Nineveh. God might make him go, but he could not make him like to go. Jonah was an example of a person who is disobedient even in his obedience. He was like a rebellious child, who, when forced to go on an errand, walks along kicking everything in sight.

His message, found in the 4th verse of the 3rd chapter of the Book of Jonah, was simple: "Jonah started through the city, and after walking a whole day, he cried, and said, 'In forty days Nineveh will be destroyed!'" This sermon has only five words in the original Hebrew, making it the briefest sermon recorded in the Old Testament. It did not mention sins that needed to be confessed and did not offer a ray of hope for the condemned city. It did not mention the possibility that repentance might alter the situation. Although the prophet knew, or at least suspected, that the message he was given was conditional, there is no indication that he breathed a word of this to the Ninevites. He wanted to make it as difficult as possible for them to repent. The last thing he wanted was to see them spared.

We see the response to Jonah's message in verses 5, 8, and 9: "The people of Nineveh believed God's message. So they decided that everyone should fast, and all the people, from the greatest to the least, put on sackcloth to show that they had repented. And the king of Nineveh sent out a proclamation saying, 'Everyone must pray earnestly to God and must give up his wicked behavior and his evil actions. Perhaps God will stop being angry, and we will not die!'"

Repentance is not genuine unless it leads to behavioral changes. The king called on the people to prove their repentance by their actions. They were to pray earnestly and turn from their wicked behavior and evil actions.

The "perhaps" at the end of the king's proclamation saved it from being presumptuous. God is not one who can be manipulated by our actions, even when we feel that we have done what was expected of us. We cannot force God to do something that we want done. To say "perhaps" when speaking out of what God may do for us is always proper. The king realized that God was not obligated to spare them, but he thought "perhaps" God would change his mind and spare the city. Verse 10 tells us that in response to their actions of repentance, God did change his mind and withdraw His judgement and did not destroy the people of Nineveh. Even today, in response to our actions of repentance and acceptance of Jesus as Lord, God withdraws His judgement and spares us a life in hell.

In closing we might note that sadly, we are not immune to Jonah's sin. If God does not heal when we say to, we join Jonah in the pouting corner. If someone dares question our pet doctrine, we want God to join us in excluding such heretics from his people. Yes, too often we become experts in what God should and must do. We can thank God he does not depend on our expertise to determine his actions.

Perspectives

YOU KNOW, if one didn't know better, one might just get the impression that the National Women's Political Caucus doesn't like Ronald Reagan. Nor the Caucus' guests, for that matter.

In its 12-year history, the NWPC has never endorsed a political candidate, but says it just might do that this year. Regardless of whether they do, they've already made an endorsement of sorts — all five of those candidates for the 1984 presidency invited to the San Antonio meeting this year were Democrats. That in itself could have been translated into a rather resounding statement against the current administration.

But no translation needed. The caucus leaders and guests spelled out the message in a language that was sometimes creative, sometimes abusive, but always clear. Gloria Steinem: "Our biggest priority is to defeat Ronald Reagan."

Walter Mondale: Reagan has a "perception problem" with women. "He can't see you (women) at all, and you can see right through him." Also: "Reagan is the most anti-women's president in American History."

Alan Cranston: Reagan believes the gender gap "was an episode in 'Death Valley Days'."

John Glenn: (in reference to Reagan's appointment of a woman to the U.S. Supreme Court) There's a huge difference in making one woman a justice and bringing justice to women.

And on, and on, and on. Some a little bland, some a little abrasive, some a little creative, and most rather interesting. But what's going to be even more interesting is what's going to happen in 1984.

It's probably a safe bet that the National Women's Political Caucus is going to have some sort of effect on the 1984 election (just what type of effect, it's difficult to say). But it's a pretty sure bet that the 1984 election is going to have a significant, and probably lasting, effect on the NWPC.

The NWPC has never been more active and vocal during its relatively short lifetime than it is right now. And for a group that calls itself "non-partisan," it may be sticking its neck out just a bit by embracing a particular party, which they seem to have done, regardless of which party they may choose.

Considering the intensity of the stand the NWPC seems to be taking, endorsing a victorious candidate in the 1984 election could be a real feather in the hat of the relatively young organization. On the other hand, if the Caucus gives its all in an endorsement and falls short, the weight it will carry in future elections will be greatly lessened.

Nevertheless, if the NWPC really feels that strongly about the issues (as they obviously do), they probably will figure it's a chance worth taking.

With the election still more than a year away, it's difficult now to see just how the NWPC will fit into everything.

Will these Democratic candidates really choose a female running mate, as all have said they would seriously do? If one of them wins, will he have the ERA passed within a year, as more than one has said he would do?

One thing's for sure. Waiting for questions like those to be answered is going to make this year's campaigning and next year's election that much more interesting to watch.

Looking Ahead

DR. FREDSCHWARZ has coined an accurate and concise description of the conquest of the United States: "External encirclement, plus internal demoralization, plus internal demoralization, plus thermonuclear blackmail, lead to progressive surrender." The Soviets are indeed following this "formula."

After having successfully completed the first two phases, the Soviet are now in Phase III of their plan to cut the Western Hemisphere in half, seize the strategic Panama Canal and threaten the soft underbelly of the United States, which has no defense against illegal aliens, let alone insurgent guerrillas.

Since 1959 the Soviets have had their base for hemisphere, indeed even world-wide operations, from Cuba. This represented Phase I. With the revolution in Nicaragua, the Reds were able to seize their first beachhead on the mainland. This was Phase II.

The expansion of the beachhead and the drive toward Mexico has begun with the insurgent attack on El Salvador.

They can move to the South through Costa Rica and Panama anytime they're ready. Costa Rica has no

Army! Speaking in San Francisco on March 4, President Reagan pointed out that if El Salvador should fall to the Communists, "Costa Rica, Honduras and Panama also would go under."

Reagan said, "We believe that the government of El Salvador is on the front line of a battle that is really aimed at the heart of the Western Hemisphere and, eventually, at us."

What more do we need to see the importance of supporting the government of El Salvador? What more do we need to convince us that we should draw the line in Central America? We can certainly never count on Mexico which is even now aiding the Nicaraguans and the Communist guerrillas of El Salvador.

We could have drawn the line on the Island of Cuba in the 1950s when our Ambassador warned the government of the Communist nature of Castro and his band—but we didn't! Think of the damage done world-wide by the Cuban Communists!

We could have drawn the line in Nicaragua — but we didn't. Now we're faced with the threat to all of Central America — and ourselves!

Testifying before a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, Under Secretary of Defense Fred C. Ikle laid it on the line:

"If we deny arms, ammunition, and money to those fighting the Cuban-backed forces, if our allies and U.S. banks keep sending more money to Nicaragua than to El Salvador, if we force those who wish to build democracy to share power with those bent on destroying it, if we simply wash our hands of the conflict, then the military strength that the Soviets and Cubans have assembled in the region is quite adequate to turn Central America into another Eastern Europe."

Just as the Communist base of Cuba provided the springboard for the subversion and conquest of Nicaragua, so that country has become the launching pad for the subversions of El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica.

Let's learn from the Cuban and Nicaraguan experiences and draw the line in El Salvador — before Guatemala and Mexico also feel the threat!

America loves peace. America wants to trust other peoples. That is why America has given in to the unjust demands of the Russians time after time since the fighting ceased in World War II.

Heritage News Forum

IN ANOTHER assault on common sense, couched in the language of sexual "equality," several members of Congress are now pushing legislation designed to bring the "sexists" in the insurance industry to heel.

The proposal, called the "Fair Insurance Practices Act" by its Senate sponsors, would prohibit insurers from using race, color, religion, national origin or sex in establishing insurance premiums. It is that last one—sex—that really seems to be on their minds, since it is the only one of these factors that is used today by the insurance industry to establish rates or benefits. And for good reason.

For example, young female drivers as a group, pay lower premiums for auto insurance than young male drivers because they get into fewer accidents, and less serious ones, at that, than young male drivers.

Women, as a group, also live longer than men. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the average American man can expect to live until the ripe age of 70—the average woman until she is 78.

The proposed legislation would require insurance companies to charge women exactly the same rates they charge men for insurance and to treat both groups as equals in computing benefits.

This means young women drivers would be charged higher premiums for auto insurance than they are now paying, though young males are involved in many more accidents. It also means women would have to be charged higher premiums for annuities if they expect to receive the same monthly benefits as men. It's a deal most women can live without.

the Soviets is downright frightening. For instance, USSR outnumbered us 10 to 1 in chemical munitions, 5 to 1 in delivery systems, 14 to 1 in production potential and 10 to 1 in decontamination methods. Furthermore some 72 percent of US chemical stocks are of doubtful military value because of deterioration. Also, Soviet chemical warfare troops are estimated up to 100,000, and they are experienced in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia, whereas we have some 6,000 inexperienced chemical warfare troops.

According to an international treaty with the Soviets in 1972, all chemical warfare weapons are banned on both sides. However, the treaty has no provision for verification and the Soviets have continued to produce and to use as they please.

The situation presents another area in which the USSR has the advantage in global politics. It is far in front in numbers of conventional weapons and troops on land or sea and in the air, and the yellow rain revelations indicate that it also has the upper hand in chemical warfare. About the only basis in which the two powers are comparable is nuclear capability.

It could be that this situation explains Russia's eagerness to negotiate a nuclear freeze, thereby establishing its present lead in that respect as a permanent advantage. That would be especially favorable to the Reds because historically they do not honor treaties and they do not permit verification.

In assuming that Russia is willing to accept a stand-off in the nuclear freeze issue, it might be advisable to consider some other benefits it could derive from the freeze. When both nations have nuclear potential Russia can still fear a retaliating blast in case of the big showdown. But if US loses its only threat Russia can take charge with its big advantage in conventional and chemical warfare.

Actually there is good reason to think that Russia prefers the chemical way of aggression. As pointed out by Sterling Seagrave, author of the book "Yellow Rain", Soviets use poison because "in a nuclear stalemate only conventional weapons can be used in regional wars."

Conventional weapons have become complex and expensive — a new weapons system can bankrupt a national economy. Poisons, on the other hand, are cheap. And they have the killing power of nuclear weapons, without attracting so much attention.

"There's no big bang and no mushroom cloud. But all the people can be eliminated silently, as they have been in parts of Afghanistan. The new poisons are so bizarre and evaporate so rapidly that they make proof extremely difficult to obtain." Also, "any serious study of Soviet military doctrine demonstrates that not only is CBW defensive gear a routine part of Soviet operations, so is CBW aggressive gear."

Another thought on the subject by Dr. Bernard Wagner of Columbia University: "The threat of limited, controlled biological warfare is, at least for me, on a scale with nuclear war. With toxins having both acute and delayed effects, an aggressor can achieve his ends without the problems posed by a nuclear blast. Besides, toxins can be delivered in an insidious, almost undetectable manner."

Police attacking local drug problem

On the night of July 2, 1983, Muenster Police Officers Robert Stovall and Larry Holloway arrested a local man on a charge of public intoxication. The officers, after searching the man, found a small amount of pills and proceeded to search the individual's vehicle. What they found was a total of 2,719 pills of various sizes, shapes and colors, with an estimated street value of about $5,550. It's not known whether the pills contain a controlled substance or merely caffeine (a laboratory analysis is pending) but since an individual can obtain a high from either one, Muenster police say the incident is only one illustration of a drug abuse problem in Muenster that is very real.

2,719 pills confiscated during a recent arrest by Muenster Police

"Those people who don't know need to know that there is a drug problem in Muenster," says Muenster Police Chief Helen Tompkins. "Muenster kids are buying them."

Another indicator of the problem locally is the number of times local police come in contact with a drug-related incident. Holloway says there are an average of two to three confiscations of drugs or drug paraphernalia each month in Muenster. Tompkins says there's not a weekend that passes without the police coming in contact with some person or persons who are under the influence of illegal drugs. Such incidents involve both residents and non-residents. Of that total number, a formal charge is made on the average of once a month — only once per month because Tompkins says a drug incident involving a local youth is handled differently than one involving a non-resident.

"If it's a first offense with a local kid, what we usually do is take them home to their parents," she says. "If it happens again, we file against them." Such a practice is sometimes enough deterrent to stop the youth's drug use. But then, sometimes it isn't.

That why Tompkins describes the local problem as "serious" but not "major." She says young people locally don't perceive it as a problem, now, and may not until it's too late.

"Let me put it this way," she says. "They must not feel it's a problem or they wouldn't talk to me so openly about it." In confidential discussions Tompkins says she has had with some local youths, they have admitted to at least trying some form of drug use. It's those "experimenters," she says, who are the ones usually caught for their first offense and taken home to their parents.

The majority of drug abuse cases locally have involved persons in the 17 to 25 age group, but sometimes, they are as young as 13. The most popular drug for those below age 20 locally, as one might guess, is marijuana. (Tompkins says most of the marijuana confiscated here was grown here, but they aren't sure exactly where.)

For those 20 to 25 years of age, the most frequent substances are pills or some combination of drugs, drugs with alcohol, etc.

Police attribute one of the main reasons for drug abuse locally to peer pressure — a pressure which Tompkins says she believes is especially great in a small town like Muenster. Most (85 percent) of those local youths who experiment with drugs wouldn't if it were not for that peer pressure, she says.

Another reason is the difficulty involved in catching and prosecuting those selling drugs in the area. But that takes people who will come forward and testify. Witnesses — something Tompkins says she doesn't have right now. "Knowing something and being able to prove it are two different things." And although she'd like very much to see such a conviction the police chief would be just as happy if those doing the selling simply left town and the area was well.

But the police hope to fix the problem with more than just legal action.

They hope to make young people more aware of the dangers of drug abuse, and they plan to do that through a series of drug awareness programs for the local schools this fall. Tompkins says that will help, but she's quick to admit that it won't be enough. "I really think just one good local drug bust would effectively kill the problem — for about six months," she says. "After that, it'll be right back again."

Why? Mainly because many convictions result in fines and probated sentences. And then there's the problem of technicalities: "We (the police) screw up one iota, and the case is kicked out."

Tompkins says it will take a unified effort and a common desire in the community to keep it drug-free.

"The kids feel that they're just experimenting," she says. "But what they don't realize is that they can go over the hill and never come back."

and considered, but the subject was tabled pending consideration of alternatives to a completely new system.

The council accepted a bid from Julian Walterscheid in the amount of $10,072 for an extension to the city's fire station. After lengthy discussion on how the work should be done, Councilman Aubrey Tuggle urged the rest of the Council to accept the bid and proceed with the work, since it had been almost two years in the planning stage, he said. Councilman Johnny Pagel agreed, saying the delay was "almost as bad as the Mesquite Street (paving consideration)."

In other action, Bartush explained recent action by the Texas Legislature which allows cities to assess a 15 percent penalty for delinquent taxes, providing adequate notice is given to those to be assessed the penalty. The purpose of the penalty, Bartush said, is to help defray attorneys' costs of collecting the delinquent taxes. Council members adopted the resolution unanimously.

Council members also considered a request to open Hickory Street and Ninth Street to Mesquite Street. Councilmen agreed that opening Ninth to Mesquite would be the most beneficial option for the city — but also the most expensive, and then tabled the idea for consideration at the next meeting.

Several other items tabled included:

- a request for rezoning a part of Block 65 form R-1 to B-2.
- a request for a street light on South Walnut Street.
- a request to close Hickory Street through the Cemetery and a request for a sewer extension to the cemetery.

Council members in attendance were Johnny Pagel, Aubrey Tuggle, Willie Wimmer and Mayor Ronnie Felderhoff and also City Secretary Celine Dittfurth and City Superintendent Steve Moster. Council members Bertha Hamric and Ted Henscheid were absent.

Ceremony at Denton unites Joan Fetsch and Lee Campbell

Joan Fetsch of Denton and Lee Campbell of Longview were married in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Denton on July 1 with Father Jerry Mosman officiating at 10 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fetsch of Muenster and the groom is the son of Linton Campbell of Bowie and Marge Campbell of Nocona.

The bride is employed by Dr. Gaylen Z. Fickey D.D.S. in Denton. She is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School and Cooke County College with a license in Cosmetology. The groom is employed at Otis Engineering in Longview. He is an honor graduate of Bowie High School and attended Special Services School.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a white dotted Swiss gown she designed and fashioned, with an oval neckline and wide ruffle extending to a cap sleeve edged in lace and pearls. The full skirt was gathered at the waistline and fastened with a pastel blue satin ribbon, falling to a deep flounce hemline and slight train edged in lace and pearls. She wore a diamond and pearl necklace, gift from the groom.

The bride completed her attire with a white, wide brim hat trimmed in lace and fresh flowers to match her dress. The hat was covered with shirred tulle that fell to waist length. She carried a bridal cascade of orchids and stephanotis.

Attendants

Brenda Maggard, a friend of the bride, of Denton was matron of honor. She wore a pastel blue dotted Swiss gown similarly designed by the bride, with white lace and ribbon trim. Her hat also was similar to the bride's, accented in pale blue, with lace and flowers matching her gown. She carried a white basket of mixed flowers.

Rusty Reed, a friend of the groom, of Bowie was best man. Brennon Campbell, nephew of the groom and Chad, son of the bride were ushers.

Madalene Fetsch and Janet Fetsch, nieces of the bride were flower girls and Tres Crenshaw, nephew of the groom was ringbearer.

Reception

A reception at the Parish Center followed the ceremony. Brunch was catered by the bride's sisters and sisters-in-law. The three tiered wedding cake, iced in pale, soft yellow was decorated with daisies and wedding bells. It was baked, sliced and served by the bride's sister, Evelyn Bonfiglio of Plano.

Fresh flower arrangements used on the altar for the wedding and on guest tables at the reception were made by the groom's mother.

Among guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fetsch; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Lutkenhaus; Mr. and Mrs. Garry Fetsch and daughter Janet; Mrs. Evelyn Bonfiglio and son Brian of Plano; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Noyes and children Jennifer and Chris of Richardson; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fetsch and children Madalene and Nicholas of Lexington, Kentucky.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas, the couple is at home in Longview. They plan a delayed snow ski trip to Colorado this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Otto of Muenster announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Carla Rose to Tracy Paul Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Wilson of Gainesville. The couple has chosen Friday, August 12 for their wedding day. Don Clayton will be the officiating minister at 7:30 p.m. in Temple Baptist Church of Gainesville. Attendants will be Lou Dyer maid of honor, and Janel Lutkenhaus, Jana Barnes and Sharon Voth bridesmaids.

Three couples have vacation trip

Traveling in a van, three couples vacationed together, sightseeing in 14 states and Canada, driving more than 6,000 miles. They were Theo and Emilia Voth, Richard and Florence Grewing, and Vince and Trudy Felderhoff who returned July 8 after a two week vacation.

From Muenster they drove to Colorado, where rain was almost constant and after passing through Grand Junction, learned later that they were some of the last tourists permitted to continue before that highway was closed by flooding. At one time they drove through a heavy hail storm.

They spent two days at Lake Tahoe; then in Sacramento California they visited friends of the Grewings, and in Napa visited Philomena and John Ladd, sister and brother-in-law of Vince Felderhoff.

The three couples continued on through the Redwood Forest enroute to Oregon and Washington. In Yakima they were guests of Marge Schmitt, Mitzie Schmitt and Teresa Hess. Mitzie Schmitt accompanied them to Prosser, Washington to see Leo Schmitt's huge wheat combining operation, but rains were delaying the harvest.

In Spokane they visited the Lehnertz Brothers and Dukie Fette, saw Both locations of the Longhorn Barbecue and saw David Lehnertz' new home.

In Canada they went sightseeing at Banff, Lake Louise and Okotoks, but missed James Fleitman whom they planned to see. They attended Mass at Okotoks and left for Yellowstone, driving for 150 miles of sightseeing in the park, and enjoying snowballing in July.

They viewed Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota, and attended dog races in Rapid City, S.D. and Pueblo, Colorado.

Enroute home they stopped in Ponca City Oklahoma to visit the Voths' son, David.

Liturgy Honors ill and aged

The Social Activities Commission of Sacred Heart Parish announces a special Mass at 9 a.m. on the third Sunday of every month, to encourage the attendance of house-bound parishioners who are unable to come to church without assistance, but who are otherwise ambulatory. Also invited are residents of St. Richard's Villa.

Family members are urged to attend with their sick or aged or incapacitated relatives. A place will be reserved for their use, in the wheel chair area, near the Saint Joseph altar.

A special liturgy has been planned relating to family units and family interests. Parishioners of Sacred Heart are invited to visit with them after Mass, in the reserved section, to greet and welcome them.

Sunday, July 17 will be the first time the special liturgy is used. For more information call Thelma Trubenbach, 759-4341, Dorothy Fisher, 759-2751 or Lillian Walterscheid, 759-4506.

De Ann Gaye Hellman of Aubrey, Texas and Kyle Morris of Denton will be married on October 28 in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Denton. Their engagement and forthcoming marriage have been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hellman of Aubrey. Parents of the future-groom are Mr. and Mrs. Chester Morris, Jr. of Denton. The bride-elect is also the granddaughter of Mrs. Hallie Flowers of Gainesville and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hellman of Muenster.

Theo Wiesman family has reunion

The reunion of the family of the late Theodore and Anna Wiesman on July 10 was marked by two important highlights. Principally it was held to honor the golden anniversary of Sister Ann Theodore Wiesman of Lady of the Lake Convent in San Antonio.

Also it was the first opportunity for many family members to view the family tree assembled by Elmer Wiesman of Keller. He has been researching for the past six years and chronicled the Wiesman family history back into 1600 and has traced two ancestors into the late 1590s. The large family tree was displayed on a wall in the pavilion at Muenster City Park.

The family reunion came as an anniversary surprise for Sister Ann Theodore, Wiesman, who is visiting relatives here. Planned by her four sisters, Mmes. Milly Fleitman, Lizzie Haverkamp, Josie Lueb and Mary Koelzer, the covered dish dinner on Sunday July 10, was held in the pavilion of the city park and attended by more than 180. Illness prevented the attendance of Mrs. Lueb and Mrs. Koelzer.

For the first time in the many years that adult ladies have had exclusive use to the swim pool on Mondays, some sticky fingered somebody spoiled the arrangement this week.

The ladies, who prefer not to be bothered with a life guard or pool custodian, have been paying by the honor system, placing their money in a dish to be picked up by an officer on his regular rounds.

This week Officer Holloway found the dish empty, so he's asking for any possible information on a suspicious person who might have been seen there. The city not only wants to recover its loss but also to continue a custom that is popular with the ladies.

4-H'ers stage vegetable show

by Cookie Myers

If you had taken all the vegetables that the 4-H'ers exhibited in the 1983 4-H Vegetable Show, you could have made a big pot of mouth-watering vegetable soup and complimented it with a garden fresh salad. The 4-H'ers exhibited all kinds and varieties of vegetables including carrots, squash, onions, tomatoes, cabbage, potatoes, dill, and kohlrabi to name a few.

These vegetables are the results of the 4-H'ers' gardening projects. The 4-H'ers learned about planting, fertilization, care and harvesting of their crops. From the looks of the show, they learned their lessons well. The vegetables were judged on appearance, uniformity, color, prime eating quality, and freedom from disease and insect damage. The 4-H'ers can exhibit as many types of vegetables as they choose. Eleven 4-H'ers from Lindsay, eleven from Muenster and one from Callisburg presented the 4-H Show.

 THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
 Beef Knackwurst is a cousin of the Knackwurst and Ring Bologna. It was originally made in the Frankfurt area. Before World War II, Jewish business people moved to the Frankfurt area because of its central location. There was a big airport, trains and ships going in all directions of Europe. Butchers in that area realized that these meats catered to the Jewish community. They started making all beef and Kosher style products. The beef Knackwurst in German Rindwurst was and still is the most flavorful of all.

A&M coach guest speaker for local scholarship fund-raiser

R.C. Slocum, defensive coordinator for the Texas A&M University football team, will be the featured speaker at the Cooke County A&M Club's 1983 Coach's night program Monday, Aug. 1 in Gainesville.

The program is jointly sponsored by Texas A&M's Association of Former Students, The Cooke County A&M Club, and the Aggie Club.

The event which will be held at the Gainesville Knights of Columbus Hall, will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a social hour with a variety of pick-up foods available along with complimentary beer and wine. Slocum's program, which begins at 7:30, will feature a review of the recent recruiting season, a run-down on spring training and prospects for the Aggies' upcoming season.

Cost for the entire evening is $6 per person, and the program is open to the public. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Cooke County club's scholarship endowment fund, which annually provides $1,000 to a Cooke County student attending Texas A&M.

Slocum, who had coached at

A&M from 1972 to 1980, was hired for a second time by Head Coach Jackie Sherrill last year after serving as the defensive coordinator for Southern California since 1981.

Besides his job as defensive coach for the Aggies, Slocum also serves as a recruiting coordinator for the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex area.

Slocum's bowl games as a coach include the 1975 Liberty Bowl, the 1976 Sun Bowl, the 1977 Bluebonnet Bowl, the 1978 Hall of Fame Bowl and the 1981 Fiesta Bowl. He also was a coach for Texas A&M's 1975 Southwest Conference co-champions.

Another featured guest at the program will be Harry Green, executive director of the Aggie Club, Texas A&M's athletic fund-raising organization.

Persons interested in attending the Coach's Night program should make their reservations by July 22 by calling Van Knight at 668-8531 or Bernie Fette at 759-4311.

Jaycees host nine teams in slow pitch softball tourney

Teams sponsored by Clyde D. Fisher Beer Distributor monopolized the slow pitch softball tournament hosted by Muenster Jaycees last weekend.

Miller of Denton was the champ, Miller Lite of Muenster was runner-up and Miller of Wichita Falls was a third entry for Clyde. Also, Bobby Hermes of Miller Lite (Muenster) was voted the tourney's most valuable. Still another honor for Muenster was the sportsmanship award to Jimmy Jack Biffle's team.

In winning second place Muenster was downed 11-4 in the first with Miller-Denton. However it makes no apologies. The Denton fellows play in state competition and had a perfect record in the tournament. In other tourney games Miller Lite split a pair with H&W and also beat Bud Light of Muenster and McGill of Denton. Third and fourth of the tournament were H&W and McGill.

Nine teams competed in the double elimination tournament. They were Miller Lite, H&W, Bud Light and Biffle of Muenster; Miller and McGill of Denton; Gilbert and Sanders of Gainesville; and Miller of Wichita.

Miller Lite will be busy again this weekend in a tournament at Denton.

And Miller Lite will sponsor a big tournament July 19-23 at Muenster. Sixteen teams will play in the double elimination event.

Farm Bureau starts selection of state queen and talent-find

Two contests to be conducted Friday, July 29, 7:30 p.m., in Muenster High School auditorium will constitute Cooke County's participation in the queen contest and talent-find in the Farm Bureau state convention in November.

The two winners will advance to district contests where the winners will qualify for the final contests on the state level. The district contests will be held Saturday, Aug. 6, 7 p.m. at the Finley Cultural Center, 500 N. Elm St., Sherman.

Eligibility requirements are similar in the two contests. The entry must be single, the daughter or sister of a FB member, and between the ages of 16-21 as of September 1, 1983, but cannot be an employee of the FB or one of its dealers or servicing agents nor a previous winner of the contest entered.

Likewise awards are similar and apply on the district and state levels. In either case a district winner receives a $500 college scholarship plus expenses to the state convention. The expenses include transportation, meals and two evenings of lodging for the candidate and one parental escort. Further, the state winner will have her scholarship increased to $1500 and the state runner-up will have her scholarship increased to $1000.

An entry in the queen contest must wear a formal evening dress and will be required to speak 1 to 2 minutes on a FB current event question. The list of questions is available at the FB office, in Gainesville. Criteria of judging will be appearance, poise, personality and speech.

In the talent-find contest on entry is limited to five minutes and a penalty of 10 points per minute will be charged for overtime. Contestants will be judged on audience appeal and performance.

Deadline for entry in either contest is Tuesday, July 26 and rehearsal date is the 28th. More information is available from Janie Hartman, 759-4590.

County Agent's Report

With things or practices that are new, we are sure to eventually encounter some type of problem. They're not always serious but certain things that need to be brought to the attention of producers. We thank Leon Klement, area dairyman, for informing us of some possible toxicity problems when ammoniating hay. The problem we are going to address is ammonia poisoning.

Leon had been ammoniating hay and feeding it to his dairy cattle. Some heifers were in a dry lot situation and fed only the hay. They developed a reaction to the ammonia. They appeared crazy and would run into fences, etc. An area veterinarian and the Diagnostic Toxicology lab at Texas A&M called it ammonia poisoning.

I visited with Dr. John Reagor in the toxicology lab at A&M about the problem and he made some interesting observations. First of all this is the first case he has heard of in the state and he emphasized that the practice should not necessarily be discontinued, but used with management. Ammonia, like urea, is potential protein and so animals need bacteria in the rumen to utilize this protein source. Producers should feed an additional energy source with ammoniated hay. This could be in the form of grain, grain in the parlor, high quality winter pastures, or range cubes. Range cubes should be of a natural protein type and not one high in non-protein nitrogen like the hay.

According to Dr. Reagor, there is no permanent damage to the cattle and he has heard or knows of no deaths resulting from this form of hay.

Ammoniation of hay is a proven practice that increases both protein content and digestibility of poor quality hays. As in all improved practices, they have great potential of increasing net income to farmers and ranchers. However, we must always weigh the pros and cons and adapt new innovative programs with a sense of experimentation and caution. Ammoniation of hays works. It's one of the newest and best ways we have to improve the largest and most important requirement of beef and dairy cattle - forage.

Once again, our thanks to producers for the observations and information to help others.

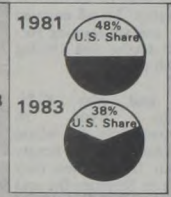

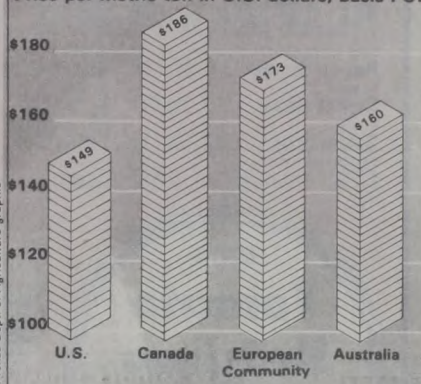

In closing this week we would like to remind grain sorghum producers to begin checking their fields for the presence of headworms. We checked fields this week and the populations were very light. There are a few out there but no control is needed at this time in the fields we checked.

TDA Flashfacts

Statistics that shape Agriculture, from the Texas Dept. of Agriculture

U.S. Wheat Still Cheap In World Export Market

Price per metric ton in U.S. dollars, basis FOB

But U.S. Market Share Falling

Prices gathered by USDA on June 14, 1983. European wheat export price expected to drop to about $140 per metric ton on Aug. 1, because of increased government subsidies.

Some are claiming that the U.S. is losing export markets because our grain is too expensive, and they are urging farmers to take a lower price in order to expand U.S. grain exports. "But the facts don't support this claim," says Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. "For example, of the five countries that ship 95% of all the wheat exported in the world, the U.S. offers the next-to-cheapest price. The real causes of our declining share of exports are such non-farm factors as high U.S. interest rates and political ploys of the State Department."

Heavy spring rains bring mosquitos

With Texas' heavy spring and summer rains, homeowners need to be on guard against a "bumper crop" of mosquitos and the health hazards they bring.

Encephalitis is spread by the bite of an infected mosquito, which receives the infection by first biting an infected animal, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Texas offers an ideal environment for encephalitis because of its large bird populations which can become infected with the virus and carry it great distances, she says.

So far this year, the Texas Department of Health has reported no human cases of mosquito-borne encephalitis. But last year in Texas, 18 cases of St. Louis encephalitis in humans were reported.

In addition, infection from scratching mosquito bites and allergic reactions causing redness, swelling and itching are other possible health hazards.

While many areas have mosquito control districts or local health programs for reducing mosquito populations, homeowners should still take measures to prevent infestations, says Shirer.

Homeowners should keep doors and window screens in good repair and make sure they fit tightly to keep mosquitos outside. A commercial spray can eliminate mosquitos which get indoors.

The best practice, however, it to eliminate standing water, since mosquitos must have water in which to hatch their eggs. Shirer recommends periodic cleaning of roof gutters and all water holding containers such as bird baths, flower containers and pet's watering dishes.

It pays to topdress pastures.

Pastures are too often overlooked in an otherwise comprehensive fertility program.

The fact is, proper fertilization of pasture will greatly increase meat and milk production. You'll see faster weight gain, more pounds of gain per acre, a longer grazing season and greater carrying capacity. It can also dramatically increase your milk production.

Begin with a soil test. Then apply the fertilizer shown to be needed. Add lime, if your soil is found high in acidity.

Let our Fertilizer Specialist help you. He has the know-how and we have the materials. Come see us soon. We're ready when you are.
