The major subject in President Reagan's press conferences continues to be our country's involvement with the military action in Nicaragua and related action in El Salvador. In Nicaragua it is a matter of revolting guerrillas trying to overthrow the Communist Sandinista regime. In El Salvador it is a matter of Communist rebels trying to overthrow the democratic and free government. At the same time the reds of Nicaragua are helping the red rebels in El Salvador.

This is a general description of the situation presented by President Reagan and confirmed in a recent issue of Human Events based on an interview with Edgar Chamorro Coronel, one of a seven-man directorate of Contras, which is formally identified as the Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

The man has impressive credentials, having taken post graduate studies at Marquette and Harvard, and having served as dean of the University of Central America in Nicaragua, and as a conservative having led the opposition to dictator Somoza before the Sandinistas took over. His opposition to the present Sandinistas is based on their turn to communism and their totalitarian rule more ruthless than the Somoza regime ever was.

Chamorro said that some 10,000 Cuban military personnel are in Nicaragua now, 2,000 of them being security forces protecting the Sandinista directorate. He observes sadly that "Nicaragua has become not only a satellite but the satellite of a country that is in turn the satellite of the Soviet Union. This is the ultimate indignity."

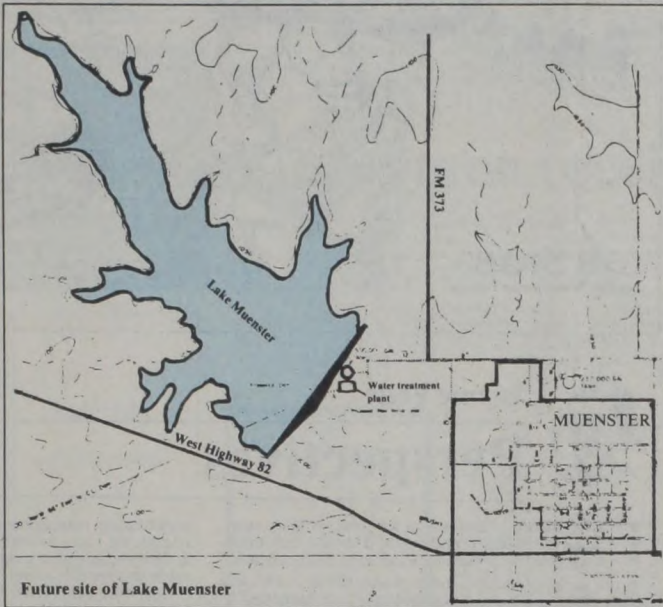

Besides being more ruthless than the Somozans ever were, the government has carried on a genocidal campaign against the Miskito Indians, suppressed the Catholic Church, physically attacked and humiliated bishops, and suppressed labor unions and the media. In addition it has confiscated the crops of peasant farmers, raped their women, forced young men into the military and taught atheism to the children. As a result, thousands have become refugees in Honduras, living in extreme hardship.

Because of the terrible conditions under present rule, Chamorro says that opposition is increasing. The democratic force, identified as Contras, on which Chamorro serves, is assisted by the rebelling Miskito Indians and another group of fighters near Costa Rica. The total force now numbers about 8,000 and intelligence estimates it will increase steadily in the next six months to control of almost one third of the population in rural areas and more than half of the country's 57,143 square miles of territory.

The growing strength of the resistance is said to be coming from Catholic peasants, evangelical Protestants, workers forced from their jobs for political reasons, volunteers breaking away from the Sandinistas, and average citizens who object to the dictatorial policies of government as well as deteriorating living conditions.

Chamorro is generally optimistic about the outlook. He thinks that the

Phase 1 of lake project underway

Nearly four years after discussion on a city lake for Muenster began, the first phase of a three-phase process is only a short time away.

Ken McDougle, Muenster Water Board president, said Tuesday that the first installment of bond money, totalling $580,000, should arrive within the next week or two. The first installment of the money is intended for the purchase of the land where the lake will be located.

"It's becoming more of a reality now," McDougle said, adding that the board expects the second stage of the project — construction of the lake's dam — to be completed by the end of next summer.

The third phase, construction of a water treatment plant behind the dam, has no particular time frame as yet. Nor does the construction of a pipeline to the city, he said.

The total cost of the lake project was estimated several years ago at just over $1 million. But a revised estimate completed last November set the total cost at $3,425,854. Of that total, $1,875,963 is to be paid by the Soil Conservation Service with the City of Muenster paying the remaining $1,549,891.

The total cost includes recreational facilities along with phases 1 and 2, but not the cost of the water treatment facility, McDougle said, which is estimated to cost $440,000.

The surface area of Lake Muenster will be 452 surface acres at spillway level, containing some 2.5 billion gallons of water.

The primary purpose of the reservoir will be to serve as a future water supply for the city of Muenster, but it will also be available for recreational use, although the lake will not be large enough for some activities like boating and skiing, McDougle said.

But, he said, no limitations of any kind regarding activities on the lake have been discussed or outlined since he was elected board president two months ago.

Council OKs new radio purchase

A separate communications system allowing all units of the city to keep in touch with one another was approved by the City Council at its regular meeting Monday night. Replacing the CB units currently in use, it will operate exclusively on the city's own frequency.

The system includes a base station for the city hall, mobile units for service vehicles and crystal units to modify the radios of police cars, all being interrelated in two-way operation.

An order for the equipment will be sent in as soon as a license is received.

The council also approved a fire contract with Cooke County whereby it receives $2,250 for answering rural fire calls during the year.

Likewise the council authorized the city's annual contribution of $1,000 to the firemen's pension fund. This amount, matched by the state, is used to pay pensions of retired firemen and to widows and children under 13 of deceased firemen.

Another project approved was installation of a national weather bureau antenna at the water well yard on North Main.

Also, the council voted to open Ninth Street from Oak past the new MHS baseball field to Mesquite Street. The street will mark the north city limit of Muenster.

City superintendent selection postponed

The matter of hiring a city superintendent to succeed Steve Mosier received brief attention but no selection in a short executive session by the city council following its regular meeting Monday night. Mosier served in the position since 1946 until his semi-retirement on part time duty three years ago.

Councilmen screened 21 applications for the position, eliminating several whose credentials they considered less desirable. Other applications were kept for further study. At the same time the city decided to table the matter another week awaiting possible response from a final ad in a special monthly magazine for towns and cities. No more ads on the subject are ordered on other publications.

When the application deadline arrives the councilmen will make a final screening to select preferred applicants and then schedule interviews to determine their number one choice.

East Hwy. 82 part of DWI crackdown

Between 400 and 450 accidents involving drunk drivers have occurred in Cooke County during the past year, according to Department of Public Safety records. Because of the total number of accidents (859) in Cooke County, ten people were killed, 440 were injured and the amount of property damage was very high.

Cooke County is taking a "step" in a safe direction to reduce the grim statistics, under a contract between Cooke County and the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Cooke County has been awarded federal funds for the program. These funds will be used by the Department of Public Safety to operate a unique driving while intoxicated (DWI) selective traffic law enforcement program (STE P).

The Department of Public Safety has reviewed traffic records throughout the county and identified specific high-accident locations, these accident-prone sites have been further reviewed to determine the cause of the accidents and the specific days and times of day

New construction started at Era school

Funded by a half million dollar bond issue approved in March, a construction program is getting under way at the Era school.

The first step, now in progress, is removal of two buildings and the rock wall at the front to make room for the new structure. One of those is the middle school, formerly the high school, with gym attached, built as a WPA project in 1932. The other structure is the science building which was moved in from Buck Creek following a consolidation many years ago.

The new building, measuring 170x72 will include eight elementary classrooms, science department, computer lab, music room, special education, reading program, principal's office and rest rooms. Remaining buildings at the school are the high school built in the fifties and the present elementary, built in the thirties. The high school will be kept as it is and the elementary building will be removed in the summer of 1984. The new elementary is expected to be finished in March 1984.

During the building program the middle school classes will be taught wherever space can be managed in other areas of the school, such as library, cafeteria, ag department etc.

The superintendent at Era since July 1 is Dale Smiley, assistant superintendent at Weatherford the past four years.

Behind machinery in this photo is the Era elementary school, and the rubble of the foreground is a small portion of middle school and science buildings which were removed to make room for a new combination building.

Matthew 5:33-37

Your have heard the commandment imposed on your forefathers, 'Do not take a false oath; rather make good to the Lord all your pledges.'

What I tell you is: do not swear at all. Do not swear by heaven (it is God's throne), nor by the earth (it is His footstool), nor by Jerusalem (it is the city of the great King); do not swear by your head (you cannot make a single hair white or black). Say, 'Yes' when you mean 'Yes' and 'no' when you mean 'No'. Anything beyond that is from the evil one.

The Owner's Manual

THERE HAS always been a mystery about the origin of man. Scientists have diligently sought to unravel this mystery. They have come up with some interesting, and sometimes fantastic, theories but no conclusive proof.

Any theory of the origin of man must be accepted by faith, for there is no undeniable scientific proof. Those of us who believe the authority of the scriptures choose to accept by faith the simple account in the book of Genesis. In the first part of Genesis 1:26 and 27 we read, "And God said, Let us make man in our image... So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him."

Although the first thought evoked by image is of physical resemblance, it has many other meanings. To be made in the image of God is to be distinguished by three main characteristics.

First, man, like God, is a spiritual being. He indwells a body, but the man himself is invisible. John 4:24 says, "God is spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth."

Second, man is a moral being and has freedom for moral choices. Lower animals obey their instincts and may learn to do certain things by association or repetition, but only man has the power to reason things out. People can think and reflect before they act. Thus human beings have a greater responsibility because of this capacity for freedom.

Third, man is an immortal being, that is, he continues to live eternally even after this earthly life has ended. This is not true of other created beings. When compared to God, man is little and insignificant, but compared to other forms of creation, he is an awesome and superior being.

When God created man, He placed upon him some solemn responsibilities. First, man is to give oversight to all of the rest of the created universe. "God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it, and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth" (Genesis 1:28).

Man is to subdue the rest of the created universe and use it. Man is a steward of this material universe and is responsible for its protection, development and use.

Second, man is responsible for the welfare of his fellow man. God made it clear to Cain that he was his brother's keeper. We are to seek the welfare of one another.

Third, man is responsible for his soul's eternal destiny. This is not to say that he is able to save his own soul, or by his own works to guarantee his eternal blessedness, but it does mean that as a free moral agent he is responsible for accepting or rejecting the provision which God has made for His eternal bliss.

This is an awesome and solemn responsibility, and it is ours to remind all men of this responsibility through the teaching and preaching of the Word of God.

Looking Ahead

MEMBERS OF the press, as well as those in radio and television, are supposed to present the news in an unbiased, objective manner.

However, according to Conservative Digest, "David Brinkley, long-time NBC evening news anchor man, exploded the myth of media objectivity several years ago when he said that no one can be objective, because reporters carry their own subjective views into their work."

Over the years we have found this to be true. People engaged in freedom-oriented educational endeavors can sense the hostility of liberal members of the press who interview them. Almost without exception, this adversary relationship will appear in subsequent news reports.

It is widely recognized that members of the press possess a unique power to influence the thinking of the public. When we add to that the conclusion that members of the media bring "their own subjective views into their work," it becomes obvious those views are extremely significant.

What is the subjective orientation of today's media journalists? That question has been fairly well answered in a recent study by a research institute at Columbia University.

A team of researchers interviewed a representative cross-section of U.S. media elite. These 240 journalists and broadcasters were selected from among the nation's major newspapers, all the television networks, and the more important public broadcasting stations.

The survey disclosed that 54 percent identified themselves as liberals, and only 19 percent as conservatives. In recent presidential elections over 80 percent voted for the more liberal candidate.

On social issues they are far away from the mainstream of American life. They support discrimination against whites, euphemistically called "affirmative action," by a ratio of four to one. They are for abortion nine to one and a majority sees nothing wrong with adultery or homosexuality.

Such attitudes would seem to follow logically from the fact disclosed by the survey, that half of these major news leaders have no religious affiliation whatsoever, and 86 percent seldom, if ever, attend religious services of any kind.

There is a puzzling disparity in the attitude of media leaders regarding private enterprise and the welfare state. The survey disclosed that "seventy percent agree that private enterprise is fair to working people," and 63 percent believe there should be less regulation of business.

Yet, 68 percent agree that the government should take from the "haves" and give to the "have-nots," and 48 percent "believe the government should guarantee a job to anyone who wants one." Obviously the latter attitudes are incompatible with the former.

We have been able to hit only the high points of this significant analysis of media attitudes. However, study of the complete survey would only serve to further substantiate the fact that the nation's major news media elite are decidedly left-wing. Close observance of the slant of major publications, television and radio outlets will disclose that bias comes through loud and clear.

Fortunately for the country, there are thousands of small, independent newspapers and radio stations which stand firmly for traditional American principles.

Perspectives

THE PHRASE, "Lee Iacocca for president" may seem just a little bizarre, and maybe it should, but it still is a phrase that is bizarre enough to be taken seriously.

If this savior of the auto industry were to run in 1984 as a Democrat, he could give that presidential race something it doesn't have much of right now — interest. Granted, Iacocca would be at a disadvantage in a few areas, but then few, if any, candidates haven't been.

For instance, if the unexpected were to happen, he would have to come out with a formal stand on an unending list of issues like the Central American situation, nuclear arms, taxes, and on, and on. He's never taken such a stand on any of these issues, publicly. But then, has anyone ever asked him?

Iacocca has a few very strong points in his favor right now. And with a few maybes and ifs, the potential of his becoming a viable political candidate are certainly worthy of consideration.

For one thing, he has an image a lot of candidates would not doubt give a lot of their campaign budget for. Iacocca took on the challenge of resurrecting the almost hopeless Chrysler Corporation in 1978. With his masterful powers of persuasion, he got a loan for several hundred million dollars to finance the project, which was approved by the Carter administration, and went to work. With his management expertise, he pulled off an amazing job of coordinating management and labor to get the recovery started. He had a following — the workers who remained at Chrysler agreed to a cut of more than a billion dollars in raises and benefits to help with the recovery.

Only four years later, Iacocca had turned the Chrysler Corporation around, turning a loser into a Wall Street favorite and repaid every cent of the government loan several years in advance.

But Iacocca's candidacy wouldn't only have a personality and an image, it would also have a message. The message could likely be one of cooperation — how the cooperation of labor, management and government can spell eventual success. It doesn't seem at all far-fetched to assume that such a line would sell pretty well in some circles.

Iacocca also has recognition. Although you may not instantly recognize him in a picture, he has an intangible quality that almost forces you to remember him in some way, even if it's only his name.

And then there's television. In this age of information, the potential the television has for either enhancing or destroying the image of a public figure is considerable. It's quite possible that, given the correct exposure, Iacocca could be considered a serious contender for the Democratic nomination in 1984 in a little more than a week.

And no, he hasn't officially announced his interest in the 1984 presidency. But then, neither has Ronald Reagan.

THE HYPOCRITICAL double standard of Washington's trendier journalists and politicians is certainly rearing its ugly little head with the current flap over Jimmy Carter's 1980 briefing book.

Assorted Reagan-haters from the Perrier set are having a field day feeding the fires of the unfolding saga of how President Reagan's campaign operatives obtained draft copies of briefing material prepared for former President Carter. Perhaps they should ask Amy. Anyone smart enough to advise a president on nuclear war probably keeps a pretty keen eye open to the goings-on in the White House.

Judging by those portions of the material printed in the press, it's hard to understand what the fuss is all about. The allegedly "strategic" material seems pretty bland. Even the recipients of the material described it at the time as "nothing spectacular." Shock! Horror! Reagan knew in advance that Jimmy Carter would denounce Republican proposals for tax cuts! Big deal. Anyone with half a brain could — and should — have expected as much.

Jimmy claims the material was a "serious loss" to his campaign. But even Tip O'Neill, the most partisan Democrat of them all, says baloney. "Briefing book or no briefing book, our candidate was extremely unpopular in the last election," he said.

So, if Carter was a turkey and bound to lose anyway, and the material varied little from a standard rafsnooning of the Carter record, what's the big deal?

The press corps and Carter cronies are telling us it's the "ethics" of how the Reagan camp obtained the material. Although the details are still unknown it's clear that Carter insiders, for whatever reasons, presented it to the Reagan camp. "Theft!" the media cries. I call it a "leak".

There in a nutshell is the trendy set's double standard.

No one is accusing the Reagan campaign of plotting to steal this material.

If this represents a "theft" from the White House deserving federal prosecution, WASHINGTON POST editor Ben Bradlee had better call his lawyers. Because this is a classic example of a White House "leak". You know what leaks are — the press is always complaining about the Reagan administration's attempt to plug them. "Leaks" seem to be the primary source of most stories on administration policy run in the POST, THE NEW YORK TIMES, and on the T.V. network news shows. Somebody within the White House loses a power struggle, or doesn't like a policy, so he calls up one of his journalist friends and spills the beans about what's going on. And, even if the information is classified, the press gladly runs the story in the interest of the "public's right to know."

THE NEW YORK TIMES won a Pulitzer Prize because of a leak — the Pentagon Papers. And, unlike the briefing book — a campaign document — the Pentagon Papers were highly classified files recounting years of national security policymaking. The press can't have it both ways. If printing the Pentagon Papers was ethical, then no one should expect campaign staffers to pass back a leaked briefing book unopened.

Of course, we might forgive some of the Democrats who are trying to make hay out of all this. Newly released figures show the economy is going to be booming like gangbusters by next fall. By the end of 1983, the G.N.P. will have grown by 5.5 percent, unemployment is expected to fall by another point, and inflation will have been cut to 4.6 percent. The opposition needs a scandal, to cover up its own sorry record and cloud the success of Reaganomics. Somehow, I fear they'll have to keep looking, though. This one is definitely third-rate.

rebels have enough support inside the country to continue fighting without US backing. He also says that his group plans a general insurrection in September with high hopes of success, pointing out that the forces are receiving much aid from the people of the country, particularly the peasants. Meanwhile the rebels are receiving great moral support from countries seeking a halt of communism in Central America.

Though less confident than the Contras, US intelligence and defense officials consider the prospect of a military victory to be plausible. They expect the rebels to pick up more and more support, which will produce desertions in the Nicaragua military and gradually lead to a drive on Managua forcing the government out of power.

The confidence of the Nicaraguan leader is encouraging to President Reagan in his efforts to arrange US material aid to the rebels. This supports his contention that US fighting men are not needed and that equipment and supplies will be sufficient as our part in turning the Red tide. Without doubt his appeal to Congress will be more fruitful if the lawmakers do not fear another Vietnam.

As regards the need for our help in Nicaragua, there can be no doubt after recent reports of several shiploads of weapons from Russia. High hopes of stopping communism are futile unless we will supply some of the desperately needed weapons for our friends the rebels to fight with.

Registration early for new CCC freshmen

New freshman students at Cooke County College this fall are being given an opportunity to get a step ahead of classmates before they even attend their first class.

According to CCC Director of Counseling Bill Caver, new freshmen attending the college's special program of freshman orientation in mid-August will actually be able to register for all classes to be taken in the fall.

"That's a week's head start over other students who will not be able to sign up for classes until regular 1983 fall semester registration on August 25 and 26," he says.

The only catch is that these students must already have seen a college counselor prior to the orientation program scheduled for August 19 (Friday). Caver says all students are required to confer with a counselor prior to registration to work out class schedules.

This pre-enrollment counseling, Caver adds, has done much to help make the whole enrollment procedure as "hassle-free" for students as possible.

Another "hassle" freshmen registering early won't have to contend with is finding classes they need or want to take at a certain time already filled, according to CCC counselor Dorreice Leander.

"The advantages of this early registration opportunity are many," she says, "so new freshmen should not delay setting up an appointment to see a counselor so they will be eligible to enroll on orientation day."

Ms. Leander also stresses that new freshmen who may already have enrolled in school this summer are encouraged to attend freshmen orientation too and that they also will be eligible for early registration for the fall term. They too, however, must see a college counselor ahead of time.

The CCC Counseling Center will be open throughout the summer. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evenings; and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Fridays. The number to call for an appointment is 668-7731, extension 216.

"Having the opportunity to register early should be a big incentive for new freshmen to attend orientation," says Ms. Leander, "but it is by no means the only way in which the orientation program can help beginning students get a step ahead."

Success in college involves much more than just going to classes, she points out, adding that many students fail to take advantage of all the services, programs and activities available to them at CCC simply because they don't know they exist.

Among specific topics to be explored during freshman orientation at CCC are choosing a college major, formulating a degree plan, graduation and transfer requirements, grading policies and understanding grade point averages, attendance regulations, financial aid and scholarship programs, counseling and testing services, student activities and organizations and more.

The freshman orientation program will begin in the Activities Center on campus at 8:30 a.m. and will last until all eligible students have completed registration.

Caver stresses that students who will be registering early should come prepared to pay tuition and fees unless they have arranged a scholarship in advance.

A barbecue luncheon will be served during the registration session so that students who are waiting to go through the registration line can eat while they wait. A fee of $5 will be charged to cover the luncheon and cost of materials for the orientation program.

3 local men receive national honor

Three men from Muenster were recently selected as Outstanding Young Men of America. Receiving the honor from the Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Men of America Awards Program were John Bartush, Ronnie Hess and

Ben Fleitman, Jr. Men in America who receive this distinction were selected from nominations from senators, congressmen, mayors, governors, state legislators and college presidents as well as various civic groups, including the United States Jaycees which also endorses the program.

The program's board of advisors, in a recent press release, said: "In every community, there are young men working diligently to make their cities, as well as their country, better places in which to live. These men, having distinguished themselves in one or more fields of endeavor, are outstanding and deserve to be recognized for their achievements.

"The criteria for selection include a man's voluntary service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation."

K-4 registrations booked at public school

Monday, August 15, 8 to 9 a.m. is registration time for pupils of Kindergarten through grade 4 at Muenster Public School, according to an announcement this week by Principal Gwen Trubebach.

Regarding other grades Principal Eddie Green reminds students and parents that elementary grades will register on the first class day, and high schoolers who are not registered now may do so anytime before the first class day.

Pupils of grades 1 to 4 and the Kindergarten will register in their respective classrooms. Kindergartners do not need to be there, however each must be represented by a parent or someone else to see that all records are in order and also to receive information on whether the child is assigned to a morning or afternoon class.

Required records for Kindergarten are a birth certificate, certification of three DPT immunizations, the last being administered since the child's 4th birthday, plus the record showing that mumps, measles and rubella shots were given since the first birthday.

Buses will not run for the K to 4 registrations.

City gets $747 rebate for drink sales

The City of Muenster has received a check in the amount of $747.07 from State Comptroller Bob Bullock as its 15 percent rebate on the mixed drink tax collected here during the second quarter of 1983.

Total tax collected during the period was $4,313.81.

The payment was a part of $11 million to 219 counties and 416 cities as rebates for $37.9 million receipts in taxes for the period. After the $11 million payments, the state retained the balance of $26.9 million for its general revenue fund. Statewide the mixed drink tax income increased 5.4 percent over the corresponding period last year. The total for the first half of the year is $74 million. Mixed drink tax at a rate of 10 percent is remitted to the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and a rebate of 15 percent is paid by the comptroller's office to counties and cities within which the tax was collected.

According to the comptroller's report total tax collected within the county was $46,335.39, and the rebate to the county was $6,950.35. Tax collected in Gainesville and Lindsay was $11,616.82 and $24,400.22 respectively, and their rebates were $1,742.52 and $3,660.03.

when most accidents occur.

In Cooke County, DWI is the major cause of accidents at several locations selected by the Department of Public Safety as being DWI "STEP" sites. They are US 82 west of Gainesville and Interstate 35 north to Red River. The Department of Public Safety will provide increased enforcement during crucial times in the high accident areas. The use of troopers from Cooke, Collin and Grayson counties will be utilized by working their days off, holidays they have accumulated, and some vacation time.

According to Colonel James Adams, director of the DPS "STEP" is a program that benefits all. By reducing the number of accidents, it reduces deaths, serious injuries, and property damage. Each driver can help make this program effective by driving safely at all times and in all locations. This program began June 15, 1983 and extends to August 31, 1983.

Scripture study classes to be at Sacred Heart

A Scripture Study Program will be held at the Sacred Heart Community Center this fall, each Tuesday from 7:30 p.m. until 9:00 Sept. 13 and continuing until Nov. 15.

This Scripture Study Program is designed to bring the average lay person to a greater understanding of the Bible, awareness of God's living presence in Sacred Scripture, and appreciation of how the Bible can be applied to daily life. The first course, "Acts of the Apostles," concerns the birth of the Church and lays the basic foundation upon which the succeeding courses are built.

The study is an opportunity for both educational and spiritual growth and consists of three essential elements: daily personal study, weekly small group sharing, and a taped lecture each week.

The course is open to people of all ages, from teenagers to great-grandparents. Registration forms will be found in the church bulletins for Sundays, August 7th and 14th.

Forestburg News

By Kyura Orrell

Mrs. Wanda Perryman and her niece, Mrs. Charles Charlotte Le Master of Tulsa left last Thursday for Austin. During their visit, they stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Box and their family. Jimmy is Wanda's nephew and Charlotte's brother.

Cleo Lanier, Louise Shults, Veda Brogdon, Perryman and Myrt Denham joined the Nocona Fun Tour Group last Tuesday for a fast trip to Amarillo. While in Amarillo, the group went to Canyon and visited a museum then on to Palo Duro Canyon State Park for a tour followed by attending "Texas" the musical which was set in a natural amphitheater under the stars. The musical was described as fascinating and brought a feeling of pride about being a Texan. On the next day, the buses headed just north of Amarillo to have lunch at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch. Boys Ranch is a small community that gives refuge to boys that have no home or family. The tour was impressive to say the most. The buses arrived back Wednesday night in Nocona.

Mrs. Pauline Murrell of Callisburg and Mrs. Ruby June Lile of Gainesville visited with Cleo Lanier last Friday afternoon.

Millie Reynolds and dShelle Perryman went to Bowie last week and visited with Millie's sister, Mrs. Joe Denham who lives in the Bellmire Home.

Visitors in Dolly and Leo Orrell's home were her brother, Frank (Poochie) Scott of Beadford in the a.m. and later that afternoon Wilma Orrell of Monterrey, Mexico.

While in the Burg, Wilma's grandsons visited their cousins, David Steadham and Bill Orrell, while they were milking. This was something of an adventure for our cousins who live down south of the border.

Wilma and her grandson, Freddie and Ricky, spent a few days with her brother and family, Helen and Jimmy Steadham.

Shirley and Cleo Lanier went over to Nocona last Saturday night to attend the Nocona Jamboree.

Mrs. Leo Marcum of Olo, Ark., spent last Wednesday night with her cousin, W.T. Reynolds and his family. While in the Burg area, Mrs. Marcum visited with her McMillion kin folk and several relatives.

For interesting reading, Rosemary Reynolds suggests "Indian Raids in Montague County" written by Marvin F. London. London was a judge in the county. The book describes many Indian raids that took place in this area and refers to Forestburg when it was called Hagler's store.

Mary, Hal and Leann Hayes of Grainell, Kansas spent the first part of last week with Carroll and Jewel Dill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Griffin, Edna Merle Hill and Vera Mae McGee spent last weekend in Amarillo. While in Amarillo, they visited Mr. and Mrs. Mayo, Mc and family. The group also took time out to see "Texas" the musical in Palo Duro Canyon.

After attending a majorette camp at North Texas University in Denton, Jackie

Farrell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Farrell, returned home to the Burg with two superior and one excellent award. The superior is the highest honor that could be gained at the camp. Jackie also received a Texas-shaped honor pin at the camp. Besides being a twirler, Jackie is also a skeet shooting enthusiast. While in her league, Jackie took second and received a plaque.

Get Well Soon to Bertha Covington and Gladys Barclay.

Bill Orrell of Kirkland, Wash., the uncle of the local Bill Orrell has come down for a visit with his family and will be staying with his dad, Willie Orrell for a while.

Barney and Veda Brogdon had a household of family and friends visit last week. Donna Evenson, Elizabeth Pox, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Steadham and Oran Steadham. They also visited with Uncle Ernest Umberson who is under the weather.

Marion and Howard Sockwell are being visited with by Mrs. Freda Lois Boyard and Kay, their daughter.

Virginia Wilkerson and her family of Bowie entertained Vera Mae McGee in Bowie on an afternoon at the lake.

Okay the stage is set. Meb Dunn, Barney Brogdon and George Wylie have just stopped off at the First National Bank of Forestburg to deposit the money from Wylie's grocery store.

While George Wylie and Pryor McGee, the cashier, are processing the deposit, Brogdon and Dunn have gone on back into the rear section of the bank to get warmed by the fire. Ova (Brogdon) Mann is waiting out in front of the bank for their return.

Enter the plot. Two unmasked gunmen hop out of their Model A roadster, leave it running and case the joint. They cut the telephone line which by the way is the only line in town and a party line.

Action. The two gunmen walk up to the teller and start to convince him it is actually a hold-up. It seems that McGee had to explain the seriousness of the situation to Wylie. During the discussion, Brogdon and Dunn decided to take out through the back door. The bank had a small partition that hid the fire from the other parts of the bank. Brogdon and Dunn would have made it if the door hadn't been locked. The robbers heard them and locked all four of the men in the vault.

"We could have gotten out of the vault because it was a day lock but, I didn't want out with those sawed-off shotguns so close," Brogdon said.

The bank robbers filled up their sacks with $2,800 in cash and $500 in gold. They ran outside and jumped into their roadster and drove out toward Alvord. During the robbery, Ova didn't even know that those men who had jumped into the car and drove off had just held up the bank.

As soon as the news was out, Dutch Landers went running up the street, gun in hand after the criminals. He didn't catch 'em. This robbery took place back in 1931. The bank had been established in 1917 and 18 months after the robbery, the "bad risk" merged with the First National Bank of Saint Jo. The bank was the only financial institution that the Burg ever had. The bank building is still in Forestburg, but now it is the Longhorn Cafe. The cafe has been many things besides a bank. It was a barber shop, a funeral parlor and at one time housed the Forestburger newspaper.

The funniest thing Barney Brogdon can remember about the hold-up, was the reaction by Dick Martin. Martin had gone to McGee and was denied a $50 loan. McGee had said that the bank had no money after the robbery. Martin was madder than a hornet, cause they had gotten the money.

The robbers were found months later when they confessed after being picked up for disturbing the peace in Wichita Falls. The men were charged in Montague, one received 35 years and the other a sentence of ten years.

Barney Brogdon explains that "we were just in the wrong place at the wrong time".

By Ruth Smith

Mr. and Mrs. H.D. Cook visited Mrs. Essie Agee in Saint Jo Sunday afternoon July 17.

The Western Shootout at 2 p.m. at Sam Bass Day in Rosston was "The Duncan Gang." According to the "old-time stories" it seems the Sheriff, known as Doc Reynolds did some high class robbing and the Duncan gang took his punishment. After serving their time, they came back to settle the score with the sheriff, thus the big shoot-out. Ran Greenead was the narrator for the play. The character parts were played by Wassie Reynolds as sheriff; Wesley Reynolds and Tom Richardson, deputy sheriffs. The Duncan gang members were Ricky Huckleback, Doyle Gates, Benny Pomaroy and Frankie Griggs. Our congratulations to all the actors for a good job in this story of long ago.

IN THANKS

I want to express my gratitude to Dr. Knight and Dr. Antonetti and the entire staff of Muenster Memorial Hospital for excellent care given me while I was a patient there. Also to Fr. Victor, Fr. Denis and Bishop Dangelmayr for their visits and prayers. My special thanks are offered to my family and friends for beautiful flowers, gifts and baskets of fruit, and get-well cards, visits and prayers. It was heartwarming to receive so much attention. May God bless all of you.

Mrs. Sadie O'Connor and family 37-1C1

I want to thank my sister for her daily visits and the work she did for me the 19 days while I was in the hospital and my brothers and nieces and friends for their visits, and the hospital staff, the cooks for their good food, and the nurses for their good care. I am glad to recommend Muenster Hospital for its good and gentle care.

Andrew Fleitman 37-1C1P

I would like to thank my four sisters, Mrs. Josie Lueb, Mrs. Lizzie Haverkamp, Mrs. Millie Fleitman and Mrs. Mary Koelzer; all my nieces, nephews, grand nieces and grand nephews; great-grand-nieces and great-grand-nephews, who in any way helped; and for coming from far and near, to help celebrate the wonderful surprise jubilee party held for me on July 10, 1983, in the Muenster Park. My Jubilee Mass was beautiful in San Antonio June 26. And now this great get-together surprise party! It was just wonderful seeing all of you. Thanks also to the Muenster Enterprise for the nice write up. I love you all. God Bless you all.

County Agent's Report

The blackland soils have many advantages in cropping systems. Some of these include their ability to hold nutrients and soil moisture to produce excellent crops with high yields. Each year about this time we begin to consider ways to extend pastures by using legumes, primarily clovers. Here lies our problem with the heavier soils that have high ph factors. Many farms located in the blacklands in Cooke County have ph ranges from 7.5 to above 8.0. This limits our legume selection.

Some of the well-known legumes do not perform well in soils with a high ph. These include the arrowleaf clovers (yuchii, Meechee, Amclo) and subterranean clovers. With the arrowleaf clovers there have been problems in growth on soils 7.5 ph or above. The plants that survive the seedling stage will tend to become chlorotic from an apparent iron deficiency. Arrowleaf clovers do extremely well when planted on some of the more sandy type soils that are well drained. For this reason producers in the blackland should consider another legume source.

The subterranean clovers also have problems in alkaline soils. In variety tests at the Texas A&M research station at Dallas, the sub-clovers came up to a good stand but began to die in November. Those people interested in the subterranean clovers should look at varieties. Of the four varieties tested, Clare showed the greatest winter death loss with 3% of the plants surviving. Wootenellup had 71%, Mt. Baker 86% and Tallarook had a 91% survival rate.

Sweetclover for years has consistently outproduced other clovers in the blacklands. Madrid is the most commonly grown. Its small stem and leafiness make it more desirable than other sweet clovers. Like other legumes, the requirements for phosphorus is high and should be landed about 2 inches below the seed.

Another clover showing good production and livability in the blacklands is

Red Clover. We saw test plots of red clover at Dallas this spring that looked excellent. It may prove to be the up-and-coming thing in our area. They have been in the U.S. for about 200 years but seem to have been overlooked. PH ranges for their adaptability are at least 6.2 and above making them adaptable to about any soil in Cooke County.

Legumes have the ability to extend our permanent pastures. The following table is results from comparisons of selected legumes grown on the blackland soils of north Texas. The test was conducted at the Texas A&M Center at Dallas.

New plants introduced

Two new conservation plants have been released to seed growers for use in range, pasture, and wildlife plantings.

Ray Svacina, district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service at Gainesville, said the releases are 'Haskell' sideoats grama and 'Sabine' Illinois bundleflower.

Haskell sideoats grama has been tested in more than 30 plantings across Texas, Svacina said. It has wider adaptation than other sideoats grama strains available commercially, and is especially adapted to central and South Texas. It also has exceptional rhizome production which aids in controlling erosion. It is considered equal or superior for forage and seed production over present commercial types.

The plant appears to be best adapted for use in range or pasture mixes in areas receiving 18 inches or greater natural rainfall. It was released to seed growers by SCS in cooperation with the Agricultural Research Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

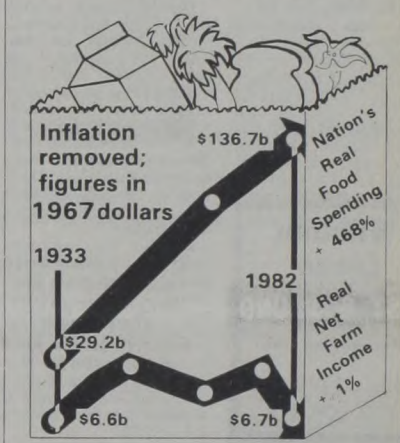

Sabine Illinois bundleflower, a warm season native legume, has been evaluated since 1972 for forage abundance, seed production, and nitrogen assimilation. It appears to be useful in range and pasture plantings and for wildlife food; is also an excellent legume for use in mixtures on eroding sites low in productivity.

The selection is hardy from south Texas to northern Oklahoma, drought resistant, and readily eaten by all types of livestock and wildlife. It frequently grows on clay soils, and grows well on soils that have sandy loam textures.

It appears to be best adapted on areas receiving 20 inches or greater natural rainfall. Plantings west of this zone should be where extra moisture would be expected. The plant was released by SCS in cooperation with the Agricultural Research Service, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Svacina said that seed from the two plants should be available to producers by the Spring of 1984.

Food Spending Soars But Farm Income at 1930s Low

Source: Economic Report of the President, 1983

"In spite of the steady growth of food spending by American consumers, the net income of American farmers has not kept pace in recent times, falling now to the lowest level in real dollars since the early 1930s," says Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. "It's easy to see that farmers haven't always benefited from greater food spending, which instead has been absorbed by the supply, processing and marketing sectors."

Improper harvesting of fish ruins future fishing

How many of us have thrown fish back to grow up because they were too small?

Everyone who owns or has access to a favorite fishing hole wants to catch fish. They want the larger fish for trophy or a high number for the skillet. But, improper harvest of fish ruins future fishing in more Texas ponds and small lakes than any other cause, according to Ed Schwille, Biologist with the Soil Conservation Service.

Pond owners and other anglers frequently overharvest the black bass population in the first two seasons of fishing. This allows the "perch" or bream and many times bullhead catfish to overpopulate the pond and cause poor survival of young bass. In other cases, when bass harvest is too low, bass become overcrowded and sunfish survival or bass forage rate is poor. Results of improper harvest are overcrowding and poor fishing.

Schwille says, "Realignment of thinking on pond harvest is needed if the pond owner is interested in catching bass over 15 inches", the 8-12 inch bass must be controlled. An 8-inch bass can reproduce. Annually, about twenty-five 8-12 inch bass should be harvested per acre. The removal of these small bass reduces competition and allows some fish to grow over 12 inches.

"To keep the sunfish, perch or bream from overcrowding the pond, 12-15 inch bass should be released. Releasing bass of this size will insure that some bass over 15 inches will be caught.

When trophy bass are desired, then the upper size limits can be expanded to 20 inches, thereby releasing bass between 12 and 20 inches. Numbers of bass will decrease but the size of remaining fish will be larger.

"In ponds with an overcrowded sunfish population, a shortage of bass may be the cause of the problem", he says. "Ceasing fishing pressure on bass for one year, stocking of bass and removing excessive numbers of sunfish is indicated. It will take 2 to 3 years or until the number of bass increases before the overpopulation of sunfish can be controlled."

Proper harvest of fish is just one tool used in pond management. According to Schwille, other management tools to consider are proper pond construction, water quality, fertilization, analyses of fish population, pond renovation and proper stocking. Information is available on the proper management of ponds and lakes from the area Soil Conservation Service office.

PIK means income... and taxes!

Let Edward D. Jones & Co. show you the right tax-free investments to protect your PIK dollars.

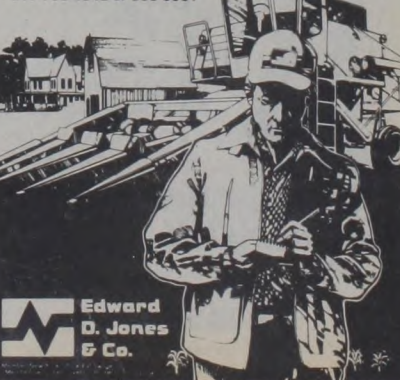

This year, the federal government has taken some of the guesswork out of farming with its Payment-in-Kind program. They've guaranteed a certain amount of commodity you'll have available to sell. Sounds good, doesn't it?

But here's something else they've guaranteed - you'll still have to pay taxes on that PIK income.

So, this year, while your production costs are down and while you've got some guaranteed income, let Edward D. Jones & Co. show you how to keep those PIK dollars in your pocket... with careful, conservative, tax-free and tax-advantaged investments.

3rd annual Vacation Bible school ends

The third annual Vacation Bible School of Sacred Heart Parish closed Friday, July 29 with a special liturgy in Sacred Heart Church. Theme for the week for ages four through grade six was "Jesus, Lord of Promises."
 The students spent the week studying Bible Stories, which told of God's promises of Love, Forgiveness, Life, Strength and Peace. Included were religious songs, worksheets, crafts and planned learning situations.

 With an average daily attendance of 168 students and 60 aides, craft helpers, refreshment hostesses, and nursery attendants, the classes began each day at 9 a.m.
 Worship service began with a procession into church led by Mmes. Emily Klement and Ruth Felderhoff, who also led Pledge to the Flag, to the Christian Flag and to the Bible, also in learning new songs.

 During this time, children had an opportunity to donate to this year's two-fold mission project: household goods donated to be divided between the Ronald McDonald Houses of Fort Worth and Dallas; and monies collected given to Camp Sweeney for Diabetic Children in Gainesville.
 Students were served snacks at midmorning by Mmes. Karen Endres and Jane Taylor and a number of assistants.
 Father Victor Gillespie visited all classes on Thursday, gifting each child with a holy card in remembrance of Vacation Bible School.
 Linda Khabe, mission director presented each student with a pencil, courtesy of Pat Knabe, and a coupon for a free hamburger from McDonald's. Jeannie Patterson was the McDonald representative.
 Friday's closing Liturgy was planned by Father Victor and Mmes. Emily Klement and Karen Endres. In the entrance procession were flag bearers, Paul Black and Raymond Stewart; Allison Klement carrying a Bible; celebrant Father Victor and Mass servers Troy Berres, Stanley Knabe, Arnold Hess and Sammy Fleitman.

 Readings, responses and petitions were given by Eric Dankesreiter, Dana Hess and Dawn Knabe.
 Four-and-five-year-olds sang the Offertory song. Students representing all classes made during Bible School, including Sherilyn Sicking, Jenny Endres, Angie Endres, Dyan Fisher, Connie Black, Jenny Yosten, Dianne Pagel and Kimberly Stewart.
 Two Communion songs were sung by Emily Klement and by the student body. Third and fourth graders gave the Meditation song.
 Mrs. Shirley Hess was director of the 1983 Vacation Bible School.
 All attending felt that Father Victor's homily was outstanding. He closed by saying that it is hard to say "goodbye", until the word is taken, letter by letter: G stands for God; O stands for Our Father, we are brothers and sisters; O stands for Others - love all Others; D is for Disciples who follow Jesus; B is for Bible, studied this week to learn more; Y is for Year, when we learned something new this year; E is for everyone - Goodbye Everyone, See You Next Year!

Physical examinations to determine whether football players of this area are physically fit for the season's rugged demands will be held Saturday, August 6, 7 a.m. in the gym of Sacred Heart School.

A general appointment has been set up for team members of Muenster, Sacred Heart and Saint Jo

High Schools, and players from other schools of the area, both high school and junior high, will be welcome.

The exams are booked just two days before practice authorized by the University Interscholastic League. All public schools of the area as well as Sacred Heart will start Monday, August 8.

WWII vet helps ex-POWs deal with stress

TEMPLE—A young soldier left for dead in the snow during World War II is today helping older veterans—especially ex-POWs—deal with the same kinds of post-combat stress suffered by their nephews and sons after Korea and Vietnam.

Dr. Merrill Lipton is reluctant to dwell on his own combat experience, but he feels it gives him a bond with the veterans he talks to.

"They know I understand what they went through," says Lipton, an associate professor of psychiatry with Texas A&M University's College of Medicine and a staff psychiatrist with Olin E. Teague Veterans Center, one of two Temple facilities where Texas A&M medical students receive training.

Some World War II veterans and former prisoners of war have just recently begun to have serious symptoms, Lipton explained.

"Many of the vets returning from World War II and Korea grew up in a time when nerve problems were regarded as abnormal, as evidence of defects in character. You were a weaking if you had fear or nerve problems," he explained. Modern psychiatry has done much over the past five years to document these problems as bonafide disorders, however.

"My own interest in this problem is natural since I was a young combat soldier in World War II," said Lipton. During the days following the Battle of the Bulge, he was so severely wounded by shrapnel that he was left for dead and lay in the snow for two days.

Oil spill control expert receives prestigious environmental award

COLLEGE STATION—A leading oil spill control expert, Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr. of Texas A&M University, has been presented the 1983 Palladium Medal for Engineering Achievement in Environmental Conservation.

Hann has been an adviser for clean-up efforts at most of the world's major oil spills since 1974 and has been a consultant for seven national governments and 15 other agencies and oil firms on oil pollution abatement. He heads Texas A&M's Oil Spill Technical Assistance Program, which is comprised of a mobile team of researchers who provide on-site oil spill clean-up advice.

Presented by the National Audubon Society and the American Association of Engineering Societies, the medal is given to emphasize the vital importance of mutual understanding between conservationists and engineering professionals.

The abused child will grow up someday. Maybe.

Each year, over one million American children suffer from child abuse. Over 2,000 children die from it.

But what about those who survive?

Statistics show that an abused childhood can affect a person's entire life.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children.

So do juvenile delinquents and adult criminals.

Yet we now know that child abuse can be prevented.

The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to prevent child abuse.

But we need your help to do it. We need money. We need volunteers.

Send us your check today, or write for our booklet.

Because if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse

Help us get to the heart of the problem.
