The lower picture shows the group on the scaffold just after the trap was sprung, waiting for the doctor's pronouncement of death.

Some Ordinances Are Foolish Others Are Merely Neglected

DID YOU KNOW that it is against the law in Brownwood to play a piano, saxophone or other musical instrument between the hours of 10:30 p. m. and 6:30 a. m.?

Well, it isn't; but an eastern newspaper a few weeks ago published a story, purporting to come from Brownwood, in which it was stated that there is such a prohibition of music here. The story was clipped from The Boston Globe of October 2nd and relayed to The Bulletin by Alfred Stanley of Lincoln, New Hampshire, who is here visiting his son, Lyman Stanley. His interest in the story was immediately challenged because his son is one of the best known musicians of Mid-Texas and head of the piano department of Howard Payne college.

Here is the story containing the sad news about the plight of Brownwood musicians:

BROWNWOOD, TEXAS.—He thought to get away from the strains of the saxophone and all other kinds of musical instruments during the hours of night, when you may be wooing sweet sleep.

The City Council of this town of 10,000 people has passed an ordinance forbidding the playing of any piano, saxophone or other kind of musical instrument between the hours of 10:30 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The ordinance applies to concerts, public dances, private homes, restaurants, hotels and all other places.

One argument that was advanced in favor of the ordinance was that the instrumental music not only kept the tired business men of the town awake, but it provoked unearthly howling on the part of a multitude of dogs, thus adding to the tumult.

It really isn't quite as bad as that, but—

There is a city ordinance in Brownwood which prohibits the use, at night, of musical instruments in cafes, motion picture houses and similar places which "emit music or noises" calculated to disturb neighbors.

And there is another law here which prohibits spilling in front of motion picture shows, as a means of inducing the public to patronize the box office. It is recalled that this law was caused a few years ago by the practice of local motion picture houses of employing men with megaphones to stand in front of the shows and shout the glories of the film so that he who ran might hear.

There are some other ordinances with which many persons are probably unfamiliar.

One of them makes it a misdemeanor to tie a can or similar article to the caudal appendage of a dog, cat or similar animal. It isn't done very often in these days, but there was a time when "canning a dog" was a popular pastime, engaged in usually by small boys.

Still another local law, under which there has never been a conviction so far as memory recalls, prohibits "smashing." The ordinance as presented in the revised Civil Code of the city calls it "smashing," but explains that "smashing" consists of "words, signs, gestures, winks, facial expression or looks" calculated to attract the attention of persons of the opposite sex. One needs to be careful about his facial expression, therefore, if this law is ever made effective.

There is an air-tight Sunday law in the revised Civil Code, too, which prohibits the operation of all manner of places of amusement on Sunday. Another section requires adequate ventilation and proper sanitary conditions in all places of amusement. Still another law prohibits bathing in places exposed to the public view by persons who are nude or semi-nude. Semi-nude means that the modern bathing suit is distinctly taboo, unless a technician be employed by the bather. As a matter of fact, the modern bather, clad in the mode of the day, is not half-naked; he—or she—is three-fourths naked.

Another group of municipal ordinances sets up the machinery for a censorship system, to control all shows and especially all motion picture exhibitions. These ordinances, it is recalled, were enacted in response to what was thought to be a popular demand for censorship here, but were never made effective, because, in the first place, it was well nigh impossible to find members for the board of censors, and in the second place the popular demand for censorship was more apparent than real.

There are many other unusual, but usually neglected ordinances on the city's statute books. One of them, for instance, which is a charter provision instead of an ordinance, provides that the City Manager "shall make reports in writing to the Council once each month and shall make such other or special reports as the Council may from time to time demand."

REPORT OF SIX MONTHS WORK IS GIVEN AT C. OF C. MEET

TWO hundred citizens of Brownwood with several visitors from out of the city heard a report of the last six months of the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce and Young Men's Business League, with optimistic suggestions as to future accomplishments, at the general Chamber of Commerce and Young Men's Business League banquet held Thursday at the Central Methodist Church. While the men predominated in numbers, ladies composed a good portion of the audience. The menu was such as to please all assembled, the tables were beautifully spread, with attractive decorations; the program was found to be interesting and enjoyable; inspiration was given for greater efforts for the work needed for the better building of Brownwood and Brown county, and altogether the occasion was declared to have proven very successful in every respect.

Served at Church

The supper was served by the Missionary Society of the Central Methodist Church, with Mrs. S. E. Morris, president, in charge and the dining room was under the direction of the Gleaners Class of the Central Methodist Sunday school, composed of young matrons. The service in every way was given many compliments by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, as well as by the partakers of the feast generally. The menu was as follows:

- Fruit Cocktail
- Turkey Dressing
- With Cranberries
- Scalloped Irish Potatoes
- With Peas
- Cream Cheese and Celery
- Yellow Combination Salad
- Individual Cherry Pie
- Rolls
- Coffee

The nearness of the Halloween season gave the motif for the table decorations, which consisted chiefly of the yellow cosmos, and special Halloween tokens. Some special decorations still carrying out the Halloween idea, graced the director's table.

All Directors Present

All the directors were present but three, C. Y. Early, P. B. Eicher, and E. J. Weatherly, all of whom were out of the city. Occupying seats at the director's table were: President W. P. Murphey and Mrs. Murphey; Directors H. G. Wilson, T. E. Denman, Harry Knox, B. A. Fahn, H. Schroeder, J. H. McKee, Bluford Adams, Brooke Ramey, F. W. Greber, Jno. T. Yantis, Secretary Hilton Burks and the office assistant to the secretary, Miss Betty Mayes.

Called to Order

Assembled at the tables, the meeting was called to order by President Murphey, and prayer was offered by Dr. G. E. Cameron, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and the audience joined in singing, "America," led by the Brownwood high school band.

While the banquet was in progress, and before the speech making began, music was furnished by the Brownwood high school band, under the direction of Rex Gaitther. The band is composed of a lively bunch of high school youngsters, the personnel being as follows: Ward Smith, Harold Wood, Purvis Williams, Charles Giddens, Lonnie Cannon, Edward Brower, Denver Lee, Orville Walker, Homer Agee, Perry Day, Mike Selze, Joe McDonough, Finis Broughton, Roy Yaphan, Harry Saunders, Calvin Braston, George Belt, Clyde Morris, Dalton Bruce and Billy Logan. Later in the program there was music by the high school quartette, composed of Rowland Curry, Britt Brooks, Steve Heather and Roy R. Rubottom. Their accompaniments were played by Miss Leona McKie.

Burks Reports

First of the series of reports or addresses for the evening was the report of Secretary Burks of the activities of the Chamber of Commerce since March. Mr. Burks explained that President Murphey had asked him to devote fifteen minutes of this report, and explained that he would have to move rapidly to cover the ground in the time allotted.

Mr. Burks said that of the first things done by the Chamber in the period referred to was improving the Fry and Grosvenor, or Rosensfield, oil fields, and said that if Brownwood was not getting the business from those districts it was not the fault of the roads, for while these were not pike roads, he said, they were in good condition. "They are good oil field roads," he said. The secretary rapidly reviewed the work of the organization, telling of the trip to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Amarillo, the Brown County Fair, sending the club boys and club girls to the short course at A. & M. College; the well known work in the interest of the Brownwood's water projects; entertaining the rural mail carriers; the Heart of Texas Chamber of Commerce, and various other activities.

Outlines Future
Looking to the future, Mr. Burks mentioned among the important things that the Chamber of Commerce should devote its energies, with a view to building a greater and better city and community. Water, roads, streets, parks, hot wells, the band. To assist in obtaining many of the desired improvements, he said, there should be a city engineer. He was warmly applauded on his report and on the suggestions for future accomplishments.

The high school quartette introduced, as the Lions Quartette—having been recently adopted by the Lions Club—being called on at the close of the secretary's report, aroused a storm of applause with its "Whisper" song, and was forced to give an encore.

Blagg Speaks
Mr. Blagg, local representative of the interests building the big brick plant here, was introduced and stated that the brick plant would be ready for operation by the first of next month. He gave some detailed information as to the kind of plant being erected here, and stated that at the beginning it would have a capacity of 75,000 brick a day. The machinery equipment he stated, was sufficient for 150,000 daily.

Mr. Murphey called for any who had come to Brownwood and entered business in the last six months, in order that they might be introduced and extended a public welcome. The names of the Messrs. W. P. Murphey, Roy Miller and Roy Miller of the new Helpsey were called, and they were assured of a warm welcome here.

Claud C. Wild, secretary of the Board of City Development of San Angelo extended greeting to Brownwood in a short talk abounding in humor and carrying sincere congratulations to the city on the success of this meeting, and on the growth and progress of the city.

Discuss Chamber

President Murphey discussed very briefly the work of the Chamber of Commerce, giving some interesting detailed information as to its operations, together with general statements of financial conditions, and resources.

Mr. Murphey stated that 76 new families moved to Brownwood in September and said that that large number was due to the exceptional educational advantages of Brownwood, as represented in the two colleges and the public schools.

Financial report was given by the president as follows:

Special reference was made by Mr. Murphey to the work done on the Fry road, and said that there was abundant evidence that the $3,000 for this purpose was money well spent. He also said that in this matter the county commissioners assisted so far as they could and he thanked them for the assistance.

Very close and careful attention was given by the large audience to the reports of the president and secretary. The president explained that not all of the subscriptions to the Chamber of Commerce and the Young Men's Business League had been collected, but said that the organization would receive fully 95 per cent of the amounts subscribed. He explained further that while there was $7,000 of the $25,000 budget yet to be raised, there are 180 firms not yet on the subscription list, and that subscriptions are being received from them as they are approached by members of the committee.

Past History

Looking to the future work of the organization, Mr. Murphey referred briefly to its past history, and said that to do effectively the work that it should do, there should be an annual budget of $25,000, and that a good secretary-manager should be employed with two good competent assistants. He hoped that annual meetings would be arranged for at which there should be an attendance of 800 to 1,000 citizens, including representative citizens from all parts of the county.

A vocal trio by Mrs. Pirman Smith, Mrs. Norman A. Locks and Miss Lois Honea, with Lyman Stanley at the piano, met with the hearty applause to which the songs of this popular trio are accustomed. The toastmaster announced an open forum, stating that no one had been asked to make a speech at this luncheon, but that the meeting was open for any suggestions as to the work of the Chamber of Commerce and Y. M. B. L. He stated that the directors' meeting was held every Monday at 12:15 at the Southern Hotel, but said that while the meetings were at luncheon and in a private dining room, they were not executive meetings, and that any one was welcome to come and offer any suggestions at any time.

Swindle Speaks Oscar County Superintendent

Swindle, opening the open forum section of the meeting, said that he would like to have the Chamber of Commerce foster a Brown County Rural School Day, when the school children of the county might visit the city and have special arrangements made for welcoming them. He also said that he would like to have the Chamber of Commerce adopt a plan of having committees to visit the schools of the county. President Murphey expressed hearty appreciation of the suggestion, and asked Mr. Swindle to take the chairmanship of a committee to work out such a plan and to meet with the directors next Monday.

Rex Gaitther spoke in behalf of the military unit in Brownwood, and urged that the business men of the city should encourage young men in their employ to belong to the military company rather than throwing any handicaps in their way.

W. D. Armstrong complimented the directors and officers and the great success of this meeting, and offered the compliment and appreciation of the assemblage to the ladies of the Central Methodist Church for the excellent banquet. He proposed a vote of thanks to them, which was enthusiastically adopted.

Hear McCartney
Judge C. L. McCartney brought some hearty laughs from the crowd by some sallies of wit aimed at some of the remarks of Mr. Wild of San Angelo made earlier in the evening. Mr. Wild retorted that "Judge McCartney had talked water so long that he thinks he is on the water wagon."

G. F. Griffin told something of the boys' and girls' club work, and said that the existence and success of the clubs this year was due to one of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, who gave a good prize to start the clubs off on their work. He spoke of the success for the Brown County Fair this year, and said, "I don't know whether you people know it or not, but that success was largely due to Hilton Burks."

Dr. G. E. Cameron, pastor of the First Methodist Church, called on by the toastmaster, made a plea for so marking the streets of the city so that a stranger in the city—or citizens, as to that—might have no trouble in ascertaining their whereabouts when driving over the town, or when seeking any location in the city.

Dr. Cameron also urged the building of good roads in Brown county, and said that one of the greatest things that could be done would be to vote a bond issue and build the roads. While speaking seriously in urging the two projects that he suggested, Dr. Cameron so interspersed his plea with witty observations as to keep the crowd in constant laughter.

County Judge E. M. Davis gave his version of the arrival of Mr. Wild of San Angelo in the city. This was prompted by Mr. Wild's having made reference to his difficulty in finding the church, where the banquet was held.

Dr. John Power was introduced as one who had attended all the general meetings of the Chamber of Commerce for the last 15 years to the present's certain knowledge and was greeted with hearty applause when he arose to speak. He reviewed briefly some of the earlier works and meetings of the Chambers of Commerce that preceded the present organization. He said that great growth and great progress had been made both by the Chamber of Commerce and the city of Brownwood. Referring to Dr. Cameron's suggestion for marking the streets, Dr. Power said: "We made a great mistake when we tore down the old water tower." He also made a plea for better Brown county roads.

Judge McCartney and Dr. Power engaged in some exchanges of wit and banterings following the doctor's talk, that kept the crowd in a lively humor.

Speaking of new businesses of the city, F. W. Greber called attention to the Brownwood Building & Loan Association, declaring that every business man in town ought to be a stockholder in the institution. The president and directors of the organization draw no salaries, he explained.

Rev. C. A. Johnson called attention to the campaign now being made for the funds for the Howard Payne College deficit. He declared that investigations as to what the educational institutions mean to Brownwood in a financial way, aside from all other considerations, reveal figures that are truly astounding. He quoted a few statistics showing what the college means as a financial asset to the community. He showed that one of the colleges had spent in Brownwood $660,000 in the last six years, and said that he believed approximately the same could be said of the other. He said that careful estimates showed that the students spend an average of $81.14 a month aside from the tuition, and called attention to the hundreds of students here attending these institutions. He declared that he doubted if any other institution in Brownwood meant more to the city.

President Murphey thanked all who had had a part in making the banquet the great success that it had proven to be, again thanking the ladies for their excellent supper and service, and expressing his appreciation of the work of the ticket sales committee, headed by D. D. McInroe, which had resulted in the large crowd present. He also took occasion to thank all members of the board of directors for their cooperation throughout the year.

The meeting adjourned with benediction by Rev. L. L. Felder.

Santa Fe Purchases Promote Prosperity

WHILE the Santa Fe is itself a large employer of labor—its payroll in 1926 totalled $107,000,000, and its employes number more than 75,000—indirectly as a buyer of materials and supplies it helps to furnish employment to many more. Such purchases last year exceeded $64,000,000. In addition it bought over $12,000,000 of new cars and locomotives.

Its largest class of material was fuel, which totalled $24,360,000. This consisted of about 2,267,000 tons of coal, and 507,800,000 gallons of fuel oil. The use of coal or oil on any division is determined primarily by which is the cheaper fuel in that locality.

The second largest class of purchases was iron and steel products, for which the expenditure was approximately $19,750,000. This included an expenditure of $9,500,000 for 152,700 tons of rail, frogs, switches, and fastenings. $1,500,000 went for wheels, axles, and tires, and $3,060,000 for flues and tubes for locomotives. Bridges, turntables, structural steel, forgings, and fabricated, unfabricated, and pressed steel took nearly $3,000,000. Steel and iron are basic necessities in railroading.

Purchases of forest products totalled $6,412,000, which included over 3,000,000 cross ties, and large quantities of lumber and timbers. The Santa Fe crosses its ties and much of its timbers, otherwise greater quantities would be needed each year.

Folders, report blanks, notices, tickets, tariffs, and various items in the stationery line required $1,225,000, electrical materials $660,000, lubricating oil and grease, illuminating oils, waste, etc., $1,180,000, and air brake material $617,600.

These purchases were necessary to maintain the railroad properly and to give satisfactory service to the public. They were covered by 130,000 invoices and were made from 3,347 individuals and firms. Note the wide spread of this buying.

Thus the Santa Fe and all railroads are an important factor in maintaining the prosperity of our country through the employment arising from these large purchases of supplies, as well as the millions directly disbursed among their own employes for services.

When the railroads are doing well, they buy materials and supplies on a larger scale than when net revenues fall off. Money thus spent mainly pays for the labor of many persons, helping merchants, farmers, everybody—your own community included. You therefore are vitally interested.

Broken Threads

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

To the home of Prof and Mollie Elwell in Camdenville, Indiana, one night in October of 1898, is brought a woman who had fainted on a train. That night twin girls are born to her and she dies without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins have been adopted and named Margaret and Elizabeth. They are called Rusty and Betty.

Jim Elwell, the son, enlists in the World War. He then discovers that one of the twins loves him.

He is shell-shocked at Sedan and reported dead. Much later he is identified in a New York hospital, where his parents find him with his speech and memory gone. He is like a living dead man.

The day before he is to be taken home he wanders away from his nurse. Late that night he is found in Bellevue hospital with his skull fractured, expected to die. He had been hit by a truck.

The twins are in Indianapolis at the home of their wealthy uncle, John Clayton, the mystery of their identity having cleared while Jim was away. Some time later Mollie writes that Jim will live but his memory is forever gone. She tells them she is bringing him home and the twins and Martha Dalton, their old nurse, go to Camdenville to meet him.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIV
MARTHA DALTON was smiling as she contemplated the two girls. It was nearly train time now. Not very long to wait before Jim Elwell would be home again—the first time since he had left it more than two years ago to march away to war.

Just to think that twenty years ago Martha had brought the beautiful young stranger to this very house and had helped to bring these two into the world. And here they were now, grown up young women, anxiety written all over their faces, trembling at the prospect of meeting Jim once more.

Their spirits had slumped considerably between the noonday meal and supper. The exuberance of the morning was gone. In its place was nervousness, depression, anxiety.

But what, she was asking herself, was there to be anxious about? They had known all along that Jim Elwell would be unable to recognize them when he returned. They had known how close Jim had come to death, had given prayerful thanks that his life had been spared, even if his life was to be a dreary monotony of dead days. Were they anxious because they were entertaining hopes that the sight of them would fan into life those smoldering embers in Jim's brain?

And Martha was thinking, one of these girls was in love with Jim, had promised, very foolishly, to marry him on his return and to share his life with him. Was she thinking now of going right through with it, of insisting that she share the days that nothing—even burning love—could relieve of their dreariness?

Which one was it? Martha Dalton thought she knew. It was Betty—Elizabeth. They had tried like gallant little souls to keep their secret, but Betty's tears one day had betrayed it. Poor thing.

The old nurse sighed. Life was a funny proposition. She couldn't help going back in her mind to that wild October night of twenty years ago when the storm had ushered these two lives into the world. And a stormy life they had had of it, she told herself, especially in the last two years. Nameless walls—now helresses to millions—broken-hearted because the boy who had been their big brother all these years was coming back a shattered remnant of the live, vital thing that had left them with a smile on his lips.

This story of her girls, Martha Dalton felt, might have been most anything: a romantic love story, drama, comedy, or a tragedy of wrecked hopes. But however it might terminate, she felt sure of one thing; they would play their parts bravely.

Outside they could see the lights of the little railroad station. The hands of the old fashioned clock in the sitting room pointed to past eight. Martha Dalton stirred. Rusty parted the velvet portieres dividing the room from the parlor and stood there for an instant, her slim form and pretty face framed in the opening.

Betty's little body twisted nervously in the depths of the big easy chair. Her hands were clasped and unclasping. The eyes of both girls held a light that stirred Martha Dalton almost to tears.

"Pretty soon now," said Rusty. "The old nurse nodded. "Is the light lit on the front porch?"

It was, Rusty informed her. Elizabeth sprang from her chair and began to pace across the room, back and forth. Martha eyed her nervously but said nothing. She was afraid, Martha was, afraid of what might happen to the girl when she met Jim.

A mournful sound, high-pitched, was borne to their ears from a distance. Rusty jumped nervously. "There's the train whistle."

Her hand flew to her throat and she gazed out the window into the night, her face working convulsively, tears standing in her eyes. "Remember, girls," said Martha.

Rusty began furiously to dab at her eyes with her handkerchief. Betty did not have to; her eyes were dry and staring, her face dead white.

The old nurse swallowed hard; she was plainly worried. She didn't like this penit-up atmosphere, she told herself, so quietly, a volcano about to burst into eruption. It presaged something unpleasant—something, perhaps, dreadful.

Again the sound of the whistle, this time much nearer. No word was spoken. Presently there came the ringing of the engine's bell, and the hiss of the steam exhaust struck on their ears.

The train had stopped, and the little room where they waited was ominously silent. Martha Dalton couldn't help reflecting on the vagaries of the human mind—how it can look forward with eager anticipation to an event, only to get it with shuddering fear.

Again they heard the ringing of the bell, sounding clear on the cool night air. A moment later the whistle shrieked. The train had stopped and was moving on again. Another minute, perhaps two, and then—

Footsteps sounded outside. Martha Dalton looked swiftly at the girls and caught a last glimpse of blanched faces and trembling hands and stepped to the door.

As she swung it open she could hear feet sounding on the porch steps. Then Prof Elwell stepped inside, dropped a suitcase on the floor and grabbed the old nurse's hands. The girls had not moved from their place in the room.

"How are you, Martha?" Prof greeted cheerily. "This," indicating the tall figure beside him, "is Mike Hennegan. Where's the girls? Oh, there you are." He strode over toward them, caught them in his arms and kissed them.

Mike Hennegan saluted. "Glad to know you," he said to Martha. Prof said, "Step inside, Mike, and meet the girls, Jim," he added to Rusty and Betty. "Is coming right behind with Mollie. Thought I'd come in a little ahead of them to sort of pave the way."

The twins thought they detected a false note in his cheerful tone. They acknowledged the introduction to Hennegan, who stood embarrassedly with his suitcase still clutched in one hand.

Mollie Elwell, holding her son tightly by the hand, was standing in the doorway now. They saw, even in that first brief glimpse before running to get her, that she was a changed Mollie. She looked ten years older, looked tired and drawn and her hair, they noted, was almost white.

She stepped inside, followed by Jim, who still held tightly to her hand. "Mollie and Jim are tired, girls," cautioned Prof. "You'll excuse them, won't you, if they want to lie down presently and rest?"

Both girls nodded, dumbly. They moved toward Mollie, who said, "We've brought Jim, you see."

She uttered the words in a dull, lifeless tone. The girls kissed her. Rusty twining her arms around her neck and laying her head on Mollie's shoulder.

Betty, trembling, helped Jim remove the light topcoat he was wearing. She dared not look into his eyes.

When she stepped back, Rusty had caught her hand and they stood before Jim Elwell, together. "Timidly, both girls stepped up to him and kissed him. Then they tried to look at him as he stood quietly beneath the lights of the chandelier. He still had on his hat.

tragic thing. The air in the room, it seemed to her, suddenly had become stifling. Why didn't someone else speak?"

Why didn't somebody cry, scream, faint—do anything to break the awful spell that had gripped them all?"

Rusty was wiping her eyes with her fingers. Timidly she laid a hand on Jim's coat sleeve.

"Oh, Jim—dear old Jim—don't you know me? Can't you remember me, Jim—your little pal, Rusty? Don't you know Rusty, Jim?"

She heard herself murmuring the words in a flat, toneless voice, a voice that seemed to be like her eyes—weighted down by an ocean of tears.

After a moment she heard Betty's voice and noted that she, too, was fitting her tone to the somber tenor of the room. Betty was still holding on to Jim's hand.

Jim was looking at Rusty, his eyes devoid of expression, his lips moving a little. His face was as pale as the white waist worn by Martha Dalton; on the back of his head was a big scar, livid and ugly, around which the hair had not yet grown.

His hand hung on Betty's like a live weight. Mike Hennegan, Martha Dalton noted, was standing facing a window, his back to the little table. He was biting his lips. Mollie had flung herself into a chair and lay there with closed eyes. Prof looked on anxiously.

Then Martha Dalton spoke—dear old Martha—and the black pall of tragedy seemed to lift a little as she strode purposefully over toward Jim and caught him by the arm.

In the next chapter the girls try to recall Jim's memory. But—

ATHLETIC PROGRAM TO BE PRESENTED BY PROMOTER FOR LEGION

The local National Guard units, Company A 142nd Infantry and the Service Company 142nd Infantry, will open a series of athletic programs here Friday night of this week for the purpose of raising funds to equip club rooms for the local guardsmen. Captain John Shockey, of Company A, will have charge of the various athletic shows all of which will be staged in the auditorium of the Soldier's and Sailor's Memorial Hall.

For the opening program Captain Shockey has booked a finish wrestling match between Gus "Roughhouse" Anderson, of Coleman and Greek Gotch, of Lowell, Massachusetts. This will be the main exhibition of the evening and promises to be a good one. Anderson is well known here among mat circles and his ability has been proven time and time again. Gotch has never shown here before but is said to be a good grappler.

Manager Shockey has scheduled two boxing exhibitions, one for ten rounds and the other an eight round affair. The main boxing exhibition will be between Corporal "Kid" Dula and Sergeant Lonnie Griffith, the latter a favorite in Mineral Wells for several years now a prominent Fort Worth boxer. Kid Dula, for the past two years the pride of Brownwood and a lad who has not met defeat in the same length of time, will return to Brownwood for this bout from Abilene, where he has been slinging gloves for several months. His bout with Griffith was to have been held in Abilene last week but the mayor of that city stepped into the ring, and won the decision with a knockout blow that stopped the bout. Dula and Griffith are good fighters and both weigh in at 135 pounds, ring-side weight.

The eight round show will be between Young Red Wells and Eddie Walsh, the former a Fort Worth boxer and the latter a Boston glove slinger. These two preliminaries

RURAL SCHOOL DAY FOR WHOLE COUNTY IS BEING PLANNED

Plans for a Brown county rural school day in Brownwood and a statement concerning the May road were the principal matters brought before the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at its noon luncheon today. In the absence of President W. P. Murphey, who is out of the city, First Vice-President Brooke Rauey presided at the meeting. County Superintendent J. Oscar Swindle was present on invitation extended at the banquet last Thursday night, to lay before the board the plan for holding a rural school day, as was suggested by him at the banquet. The board gave its hearty approval to the plan and voted that a committee of two should be appointed to assist Mr. Swindle in the necessary arrangements. Secretary Burks read a statement from J. B. Early of Abilene, division highway engineer, in which Mr. Early stated that he would be in Brownwood in the early part of this week to go over the May road with Mr. Burks, at which time he would give a statement of what would be necessary to be done in order for the State to take the road over. Mr. Burks will then place the statement before the Chamber of Commerce and the commissioners' court, it is stated.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE AT LOCAL COUNTRY CLUB

The Brownwood Country Club is now in the most prosperous condition that it has been in since its organization. Improvements are being made almost daily at the club, the golf course is now one of the best to be found in the state, the club buildings are in an excellent state of repair, the lake is or soon will be a sportsman's paradise, and other changes are either under way or will begin soon that will make the Brownwood Country Club one of the best in the entire State of Texas.

The lake committee, of which Roy H. Duncan is chairman, has recently received 600 finger length bass and have put them in the lake so that the Isaac Waltons of the club will have excellent fishing grounds near home. The committee is arranging to build a fish hatchery in four small lakes below the dam and they hope to have this in successful operation by next spring.

The same committee has put in a number of duck blinds for the use of members during the duck season. The dam has been repaired and is now in first class condition.

New Golf Greens. The golf committee, of which E. J. Robertson is chairman, has recently finished putting in cottonseed greens for the entire nine hole course, making it, it is said one of the sportiest nine hole courses in the state. This committee is now making arrangements to put in an additional nine holes, making 18-hole course. The additional nine will be back of the lake.

The committee has secured the services of R. B. Hillis, a professional from the River View Country Club at Steubenville, Ohio. For two years he was connected with the Schersky Club at Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Hillis comes to Brownwood highly recommended as a sportsman and as a teacher of golf.

Pairings are now being arranged for the annual fall tournament for the president's cup, now in possession of Dr. J. N. Arvin. The tournament will start next Monday and will continue through several weeks before the winner is determined. Interest in golf here is said to be increasing and every pretty day the course is full of ambitious players striving to lower their records.

BANKER CITES LEGAL PERILS

HOUSTON, Oct. 26.—(P)—Bankers tread a path of legal peril, and if they tumble it is not usually because of malfeasance, but for acts of inadvertent omission, Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, president of the American Bar Association, said here today in the only address before the American Bankers Association general meeting.

And yet, he concluded after citing many court decisions, some of them strange to laymen's ears and others which followed intricate by ways of business and of the law, "considering the volume of business done, the daily temptations to which they are subjected and the many opportunities to make mistakes, I submit that cases in which bankers have been held liable, civilly or criminally, are surprisingly few."

Therefore, may we not conclude that the banker in the conduct of his business as well as in his daily life, is generally well within, not only the civil, but the moral law?

Resolutions adopted by the association at a general session here today urge Congress to speedily enact legislation for the practical flood control and to divorce the question from all others in considering it.

Rumania, Prepared, Waits for Attempt of Carol to Return

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(P)—The preparations of Premier Bratianu of Rumania to thwart any attempt of former Crown Prince Carol to seize the throne from his six year old son King Michael are the most thorough possible according to reports reaching here.

The frontiers are said never to have been more closely guarded and all conceivable measures have been taken to prevent Carol from re-entering the country. All telegraph and telephone communications between Rumania and other countries have been cut off by government orders, according to a report from Belgrade, Jugo Slavia.

ZIEGFELD FOLLIES SEAT SALE OPENS WITH A RUSH AT THE LYRIC

Gorgeous pageantry, an almost-unfading riot of color and life, combined with every type of music Americans like best, together with comedy scene which are swift and bracing, constitute, according to advance notices, many of the delectable features of the Ziegfeld Follies, which will be seen at the Lyric Theatre, Tuesday night, November 1st.

Possibly the most expensive international stars now on tour in America, Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn, head the huge cast, together with their Denishawn Dancers, who have just returned from an eighteen month's tour of the Orient. Other names, too, which are familiar along Broadway, will be noted in the cast, and the beauty chorus, consisting of three distinct units, is said to be the absolute final word in beauty and youthful charm—in other words typical Ziegfeld, Glorified Girls. Depending not in any way upon nudity or vulgarity, the Follies have remained the outstanding success of the musical comedy revue stage in America for over twenty years, and the style from which all other revues have been patterned, though many are the producers who have strayed from the original as conceived by Flo Ziegfeld. The Follies will be presented here, it is understood, from Mr. George E. Wintz, the sponsor, with the entire scenic production from the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, which means that at least a super-musical attraction will be seen on tour in all of its original beauty and magnitude, and will be seen in a strictly metropolitan manner, with not even a hint of care or attraction omitted. If all of these things are true, then it is evident that there has been transferred to the road something precious and highly to be desired. The seats which are now on sale at the Lyric are going fast.

BO WALKER IS FLAME VICTIM FRIDAY NIGHT

DIXON BOURGARD WALKER, age 64, night watchman for the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, oil operators in the Rosenfield pool, was burned to death Friday night while on duty guarding properties of the Roxana. It is not known how Mr. Walker came to meet his death, but it is presumed that his clothes became saturated in oil or gasoline and that in striking a match his clothes became ignited. It is not known what time of night Walker met his death as it was not discovered until workmen went to the scene of the tragedy.

The body was brought to the McInnis Funeral Home to be prepared for burial and was taken to deceased's home at Locker Saturday afternoon. Funeral services were held there Sunday morning and was conducted by Rev. Buck of Locker.

Mr. Walker is survived by his wife, two sons, George Walker of Fort Worth and Lon Walker of Rosenfield, five daughters, Mrs. Josie Barrow and Mrs. Alma Rosser of Fort Worth, Mrs. Golda Seals and Miss Cecil Walker of Locker, and Mrs. Olive Smith of Thrifty. In addition to the immediate family, Walker is survived by his mother, Mrs. Jamima Walker, of Clifton, a brother, Jim Walker of Oklahoma.

Santa Fe Is Winner Over Pacific in West Dallas Clash

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(P)—Over the opposition of the Texas and Pacific railroad, the interstate commerce commission today gave the Santa Fe system permission to build eight miles of new lines into West Dallas, a new industrial district of the city of Dallas.

At the same time the commission ruled that the new railroad should not be used except where transportation over it would clearly add to efficiency of transportation. The railroad management concerned were directed to confer together upon terms of regulation which will restrict routing over the new lines to shipments which will obtain better transportation.

The state of Texas supported the Santa Fe petition and denied the right of the commission to attach any condition to the use of the Santa Fe branch after construction.

DRILLING AT LOSS

The well by W. D. Gully and J. M. Parker on the George tract, north of the Cason, was drilling last night at 1,038 feet. It had been thought that there was a probability of the test picking up the "first sand" yesterday, but the sand was not found at that depth.

Cotton Crop of Brown County is Unusually Short
 The Brown county cotton crop is shorter than in many seasons, and has matured earlier, according to local cotton men.
 It is said that an estimate of 8,000 bales for the county is liberal, and it is believed that most of the crop has already been ginned and disposed of. A new ginning report was issued today by the government, showing a total of 8,138,000 bales, but the figures for the count will not be available for a few days. The total on October 1, when the last report was made, was 6,173 bales.
 Many ginneries are finishing their season's work and closing their plants, according to R. S. Daviette, oil mill manager, who said three made a final accounting at his plant yesterday.
 Brown county's crop usually averages around 14,000 to 16,000 bales, and this year's production probably will be about one-half an average crop.

LOCAL LEGION POST TO GET MEMORIO OF DEFEATED GERMANS

Several members of the local post of the American Legion plan to go to Austin Saturday afternoon and select a piece of artillery for the local post, and bring it back to Brownwood to be used during the Nov. 11 celebration by the Isham A. Smith post. Governor Dan Moody, in a letter to Zeno Ingram, adjutant of the local post, states that the artillery will be given the Brownwood post at six o'clock Sunday morning.

The government has a regular arsenal of guns, ammunition and other trophies that were seized from the German armies during the World War and it is planned to distribute this among Legion posts all over Texas. Efforts are being made to place one or more of these guns with every Legion post in Texas in time for Armistice celebrations. Officials of the local post are glad to accept the Governor's offer and are losing no time in getting in their claim for one or more of these guns. For some reason the guns cannot be officially awarded to the Legion post now but it is expected that this technicality will soon be removed, making it possible for the Legion posts to keep these guns permanently.

Representatives of the local post who will make the trip to Austin Saturday plan to ask for two "German 75s" similar to the "French 75s" and of the same calibre as the American three inch cannons. German sabres, bayonets and other trophies will be brought back to Brownwood if it is possible to obtain them from the government.

If the local post is successful in obtaining these two guns it is planned to mount them on concrete bases, one on each side of the main entrance to the Soldier's and Sailor's Memorial Hall. Regardless of whether one or two guns are brought to Brownwood it is planned to fire the National salute at eleven o'clock on the morning of Nov. 11, this being the exact hour and minute when the Armistice went into effect and guns along the entire western front ceased firing. It will be a salute to the "Buddies," who have gone west.

At the meeting of the city council Tuesday night $30 was appropriated to the Legion post to defray the expense of bringing the gun or guns to Brownwood.

Coleman Well Has Good Gas Flow at 4,060 Foot Depth

COLEMAN, Texas, Oct. 25.—(Sp.)—Paul English et al. drilling on their No. 1 Harris, 150 feet north of the south line of block 1, San Augustine University Survey 519, and one mile south of Goldsboro in the extreme northeast corner of Coleman county, encountered a gas producing sand Monday afternoon at 4060 feet, while drilling in the black lime which was encountered at about 3985 feet. Present gas flow estimated at 1,500,000 cubic feet.

This well is being watched closely by the oil fraternity here as it is five miles from any other deep test, and sixteen miles west of the gas wells drilled by Canary and Mid-West Exploration Company on the Morris Ranch, eleven miles due north of Coleman. These last name wells are now supplying part of the gas for Winters, Ballinger, Rowena, and San Angelo through an eight inch welded line recently completed by Barney Carter, and the Western Gas Service Company.

The Paul English No. 1 Harris is expected to drill deeper today to test out this sand. If not made a commercial well at this depth, it will be carried to probably the greatest depth of any well ever drilled in Coleman county. They have five and three-sixteenth casing set to the top of the black lime with the hole in good shape.

The deepest well so far drilled in the county was Roth & Faurot, one mile west of Valera, with total depth of 4,302 feet.

Judging an Investment

An investment can be judged by its safety and the return that it yields. Too big a return at the beginning often ends in no return at all. Too much safety at times may give you little or nothing for your outlay.

We have been selling used cars for five years. Our buyers have implicit confidence in making their investment with us. Every sale has meant safety corresponding to the price they wanted to pay. The return has been exactly as we represented it.

Last Saturday afternoon Misses Lola Fuller and Irene Patis crisscrossed the Junior Christian Endeavorers on a nature study hike and picnic. The children met at the Presbyterian church and when all had arrived the chaperones chose sides for the collection of plants for study. The children were told to gather flowers of all kinds as well as leaves and branches of all other trees and plants. When they reached a nice shady place on the creek the specimens were carefully gone over and counted. The count showed Miss Irene's crowd had 160 and Miss Lola's crowd had 121. Some of the children could tell the names of all the plants and showed they had read good botanic judgment.

After this several games were played until some complained of being hungry. They were all called together and seated in the shade, preparatory for lunch. Jake McCulley then told the Bible story of the miraculous feeding of the five thousand and of the gathering up of the fragments. All were set to prayer by Miss Falls and the little folks were served to a splendid lunch consisting of sandwiches, potato chips and cake. They were then reminded it was time to go home and with reluctance they all left the beautiful shady picnic grounds for home, each declaring they had spent a very enjoyable afternoon, and wishing they could stay longer.
