VOLUME VII

MUNSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1943

NUMBER 31

In case your daily paper carries the rambling reports of Ernie Pyle you may have noticed his recent tribute to a battalion of Engineers in North Africa. Ernie praises them to the sky as a crowd of unsung heroes who had too little credit for their work so far and aren't likely to get their full share of it even after the lid of censorship can be popped off.

Pyle continues, "the army engineers build things, you know. These particular engineers build airfields and depots and barracks for other soldiers. But it isn't so much what they have built as where they build it and how."

The mention of building airfields touched a soft spot in my heart. That's the kind of work my outfit did. I couldn't help glancing off the page and indulging in a minute of reverie, recalling a gang of swell guys with whom I had shared almost a half year of desert training. I hoped they were the boys getting the bouquets.

But the next few lines revealed that my guess was wrong. The outfit discussed had been away from home since the spring of '42. Just the same I claim the right to feel a glow of pride. I'm reasonably certain that at least a few of my companions from basic training days are in that memorable battalion. I'm also certain that quite a few very close friends are doing the very same kind of work and are entitled to the same measure of credit.

In case you do not recall some of the ravings of this column during the months it was singing the praises of the engineers, please string along while I dash off a few notes to refresh your memory.

An engineer is supposed to be a combination doughboy and jack of all trades. He's the guy that has to get out in the hot zone and build bridges and roads for the regular troops to pass over. In case the fortune of battle leans the other way he stays behind to blast the bridges and roads, build traps or devise any other trick he can to hinder the enemy. When all is going nicely he doesn't have to do anything but work. Doughboys should be near to handle the fighting. But quite frequently he has to drop his tools and start shooting.

Besides there's a lot of work to be done behind the lines. Building and maintaining practically everything as the army moves forward and making necessary repairs after enemy air raids. That is the specialty of my old outfit. Today it is taking care of an airfield somewhere in Africa or the Pacific.

Those of you who have sons, brothers or close friends in the engineers owe Ernie Pyle and me a word of thanks. We are a couple of the very few who have given your boys a pat on the back. Think it over for a minute. Of all the newspaper or magazine stories you've seen, how many gave any prominent credit to the engineers? How many cited any specific engineer company or individual for conspicuous action? You never hear of it. The engineer soldier is like the old trusty football guard or tackle who opens the line so his backfield team mate can romp through for a nice gain.

The trouble with most of us is that we're tuned for the sensational, adventurous news. We pay too little attention to the guy who has to work like a mule on a less colorful job.

To back up that remark, here's something specific. Our current GI movie menu lists about 8 war pictures of which 5 are 100 per cent for the air forces. The others are about spies, the navy or some romantic story with a war background. It's about time Hollywood cooked up a nice yarn about the engineers or the doughboys or the medics or cannoners. Or even about the quartermaster corps or finance. They're in this war too, you know.

We're still providing nice juicy propaganda for the axis press. This time it's the well known Southern curse of racial hatred.

THRESHERMEN READY TO SWING INTO BUSY SEASON NEXT WEEK

This week finds threshermen of the community getting their machines in running order for this season. Fette's thresher operated Monday, getting off a few bundles to see that everything was in order and on Tuesday and Wednesday Walterscheid Brothers and Becker Brothers did likewise. By next week, most threshers will be running full force.

As in years past the few dozen threshers will be entrusted with the job of separating by far the greater part of the grain. Only three or four combines operated in this area this season.

Predictions are that crop yields this year will be average, not counting the past two years, which were failures.

Joe Dankesreiter Is Victim Of Grade Crossing Crash

MRS. T.S. MYRICK'S GRANDFATHER, 97, DIES; FOUGHT IN CIVIL WAR

J.L. Harris, 97, grandfather of Mrs. T.S. Myrick of this city, died Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J.T. Bradshaw, at Weatherford following a week's illness.

Funeral services were held at Weatherford Thursday morning and the body was taken to Breckenridge for burial in the afternoon. He was buried beside his wife, who passed away 59 years ago.

A native of Georgia, where he was born December 30, 1845, he took part in the Civil War, fighting with the Confederates. Following the war he moved to Texas, settling near Breckenridge, and resided there until 1918 when he went to Weatherford to make his home with his daughter.

He was the father of four children, one son and three daughters. The daughters survive along with 19 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Harris was always unusually active and alert for his age. He enjoyed keeping up with the world happenings and often made the remark that he'd live to be a hundred years old.

Accident Occured Sunday At Gainesville; Funeral Is Held Here Tuesday

Joe Dankesreiter, 43, was the victim of a grade crossing crash Sunday afternoon at 4:15 at the north city limits of Gainesville. He was returning from Oklahoma and was alone in the car at the time of the accident. It occurred at the Santa Fe grade crossing on North Weaver Street.

Buddy Potts, a Gainesville city policeman, said the engineer of the Santa Fe passenger train observed Dankesreiter pull up to the crossing halt his car an instant, then start the machine again as if believing he had time to cross the tracks ahead of the train. According to the engineer's version, the motor appeared to have stalled on the tracks and the locomotive struck the machine broadside.

Remnants of the automobile, a 1937 Plymouth coupe, clung to the front of the locomotive, while Dankesreiter's body was hurled some 100 yards into tall weeds and grass. Some time elapsed before the body was found. Search continued later for a second body, the train engineer expressing the opinion that he saw two persons in the car. This proved to be erroneous, however.

Frank Hess and Al Walterscheid returning from a fishing trip at Lake Murray, arrived a few moments after the crash and verified identity of the body after persons at the scene had found identification papers. A Leazer-Keel ambulance which had arrived took the body to a sanitarium but death was declared to have occurred instantaneously.

Funeral services were conducted here from Sacred Heart church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock with the pastor, Rev. Thomas Buegler, officiating at the requiem high mass and at burial in the Muenster cemetery. Pall-bearers were Clarence Hellman, Herman and Frank Bindel, Ray Martin, Werner Cier and Herman Fleitman.

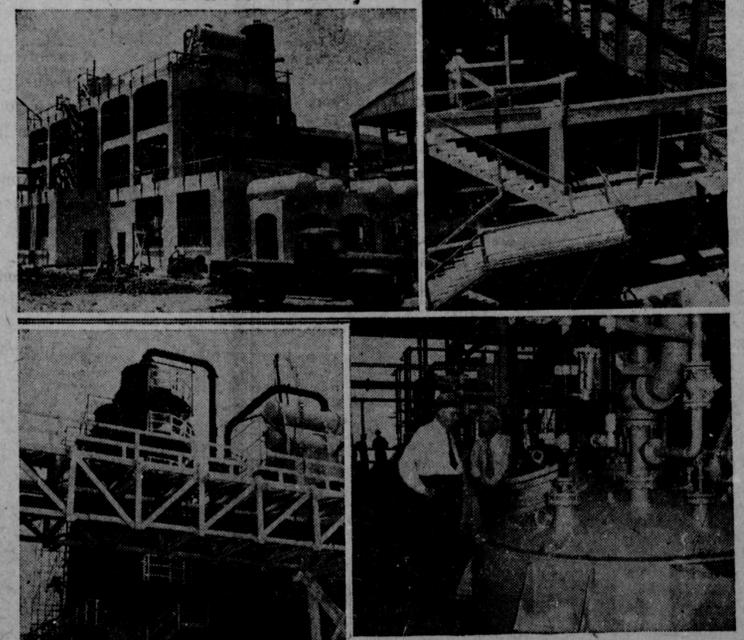

Mr. Dankesreiter was born in Germany on March 2, 1900, and came to the United States with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dankesreiter, in 1905, settling with them in Thomas, Okla., where the family resided for several years. In 1915 they moved to Muenster. He assisted his father in farming until two years ago when he moved to town. He had been residing with Ed Klimpf.

Survivors are his father and two brothers, Lawrence of this city and Frank of Tioga.

Among out of town relatives and friends at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dankesreiter and family, Eugene Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weber and son, Frank Jr., and Mrs. Joe Zellner, all of Tioga.

HOW TO Get the Most OUT OF Your Electric REFRIGERATOR

(THE HEART OF YOUR HOME)

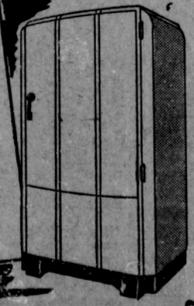

SUMMER is here. Right now your Electric Refrigerator has more work to do... more important work than ever before because of Food Rationing.

AND, because it cannot be replaced for the duration, you'll want to give your Electric Refrigerator unusual care. Keep it in good working order... do the little things which will help it give you its best performance... call your repair man before any serious trouble develops.

SIMPLE SUGGESTIONS ABOUT THE CARE AND USE OF YOUR Electric REFRIGERATOR

1. Defrost before frost becomes more than 1/4 of an inch thick, and clean refrigerator thoroughly, using a soda and water solution.
2. Let hot dishes cool before placing them in refrigerator.
3. After freezing desserts or other foods, turn temperature control back about halfway to normal and hold until served.
4. Avoid unnecessary openings of refrigerator door, closing it quickly each time.
5. Protect rubber gasket around the door by always using door handle when opening refrigerator. Replace gasket when worn.
6. Wash off spilled foods and liquids immediately... both for the sake of cleanliness and to preserve the finish of your refrigerator.
7. Don't overload your refrigerator.
8. Cover all liquids. Moisture drawn to freezer speeds formation of frost.
9. Call your repair man if your refrigerator does not perform properly... do not delay.

Thomas Buegler, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony and at the nuptial high mass, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends from this city and from Gainesville.

The altar before which the vows were exchanged was adorned with red and white gladioli and pre-nuptial music was played by Sister Leonarda, who also presided at the pipe organ to assist the church choir in rendering music for the mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a becoming, light blue dress of aqua blue. She wore a picture hat of black straw and other accessories in black. Her flowers were orchids and she carried a pearl and sterling silver rosary, a gift from the bridegroom.

Daisies decorated the dining room.

Lt. and Mrs. Janicki left after the breakfast for a short wedding trip and are now at home in Tyler. He was transferred from Camp Howze to Camp Fannin there.

HENRY N. FUHRMANN SUSTAINS BURNS AS TRACTOR GAS IGNITES

Henry N. Fuhrmann sustained second degree burns on both legs from the ankle to the knee last Wednesday when his tractor burst into flames as he was attempting to fill the gas tank while the motor was running. Quick thinking saved him from more serious burns. Noticing that his clothes were aflame he rolled on the ground, away from the scene, and stripped off his outer garments with only slight injury to his hands.

Mrs. Fuhrmann, who arrived shortly, extinguished the tractor blaze with milk before much damage was done to the machine. She had just emerged from the barn, following milking.

Fuhrmann was treated at the

BANKING

Through courtesy Muenster State Bank

Last week we began an explanation of services performed by Banks of our Country, and attempted to give a short description of what banks are and how they originated. This week we will take up the subject of the "Why" of Bank deposits.

There are several reasons why people put their money and securities in a bank, among them, safety and convenience. Businessmen, farmers, and ranchers have another reason in addition to the first two. It is an important factor in any business to maintain a large bank deposit to establish a mutual respect with other businessmen in order to uphold a credit standing in the community in which it is located, to be able to take advantage of competitive buying and create a reserve for contingencies.

Considering again the first factor involved, it is easy to understand the grave responsibility that would rest upon the public if each individual would be required to find a place to hide large amounts of cash as to be safe from the dangers of thieves and other disasters. Using the Bank relieves all worries incident to such practices. Banks are equipped to protect money and valuables left with them for deposit and such deposits are protected against loss from theft, fraud, fire or any other losses, by insurance. In addition to all these precautions, nearly all banks in our Country are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which is a Federal Government Agency guaranteeing every depositor against loss of what ever kind up to $5,000.00.

A depositor of a bank likewise receives the benefit of the book-keeping system set up by the banks to handle the depositor's accounts, which enables the depositor, along with a few other records to have a complete record of every transaction he has made as well as a legal receipt for all payments in the form of cancelled checks.

PARISH SOCIETIES HAVE JOINT SOCIAL MONDAY

Members of St. Joseph's Society and St. Anne's Society enjoyed a joint social gathering in the parish hall Monday evening. Games of 42 and cards furnished diversion in the early hours and later dancing was the feature attraction. Miss Mildred Walterscheid provided music with her accordion. Refreshments of fried chicken and salads, brought by the ladies.

To every fair minded American the Beaumont incident comes as a jolt to his national pride. Especially now since we have been pointing the accusing finger at atrocities in Europe. People who persecute negroes put themselves in a class with the Nazis.

Let's hope the next few days will bring us news that the rabble rousers who instigated the violence have been brought to justice. Democracy's system of fair play has no use for their kind.

Almost as contemptible are the imbeciles who followed the fanatics. Anybody with an ounce of common sense should know that a city's entire colored population cannot be held responsible for the act of one criminal.

To make matters worse, it is doubtful whether there was even a criminal. The whole mess seems to be a gigantic hoax. The rioters were just a mob of suckers led on by a loud-mouth, possibly an enemy agent who invented a situation in order to disrupt business and industry. The people responsible deserve to be prosecuted for murder, subversive activity, and inciting a riot, and probably a half dozen other charges. In short they ought to have the book thrown at them.

Miss Carolyn Branham spent the weekend in Gainesville with friends.
