EVERYTHING BUT RUNNING WATER

From where I'm looking, the harvest season this year appears to be presenting quite a problem. Old familiar groups of roving harvest hands just ain't. Convenient man power in army camps is tied down with red tape. And over-publicized prisoner labor cannot be spread far enough or thick enough. So it's up to the neighborhood dads and sisters and kid brothers to pool their energies and do the best they can.

The pinch is felt in farm kitchens too. Rationing does not make sufficient allowance for the traditional harvest hand's appetite. No more of the sumptuous spreads that used to greet him as he stormed into the dining room. A disappointment to men accustomed to the good old days. A humiliation to housewives.

It's a queer predicament to say the least. The nation cries for food but doesn't muster enough labor to put waiting crops in the granaries. Neither does it provide the little extra food needed by those few who are doing the work. In what time save our present era of highly efficient bureaucracy could such a paradox develop? It's a situation you can laugh about or cuss about, depending upon your sense of humor.

By hook or crook the artillery does a good job in this war. That little fact was again brought home a few days ago by an officer just returned from the African campaign. He tells of a lieutenant who discovered an enemy gun battery while out on a survey. Excitedly he grabbed a walkie talkie and proceeded to direct artillery fire on the position. Unfortunately, he never got close. But during the course of his wild shooting he wiped out two other enemy batteries and a truck park.

The speaker also described a currently popular defense against land mines, the heavy ones that touch off when a tank or truck passes over. Put a row of sand bags or a piece of armor plate on the seat and have the passengers sit on it. Then, if the blast should come, the car's innards might be scattered over hell's half acre but the personnel won't have to pick scrap iron out of their pants.

This system is reminiscent of the first armor plate used in airplanes. According to the story, this is supposed to have happened during the last war—in an American camp. As you know, planes were used first for reconnaissance. Very successfully too, until the enemy, incensed by such brazen snooping, started opening up with small arms fire.

It was at this stage in the evolution of air combat that kitchen personnel frequently found the lids of their ranges mysteriously missing. Then, early one morning, one of them caught a culprit red handed. He was a pilot, and intended to sit on the stove lid while making his dawn flight over enemy lines.

A new version for the old story about the postman who took a walk on his day off. During a five day AWOL a fellow returns twice just to visit with the boys in the barracks. Touching, these GI friendships.

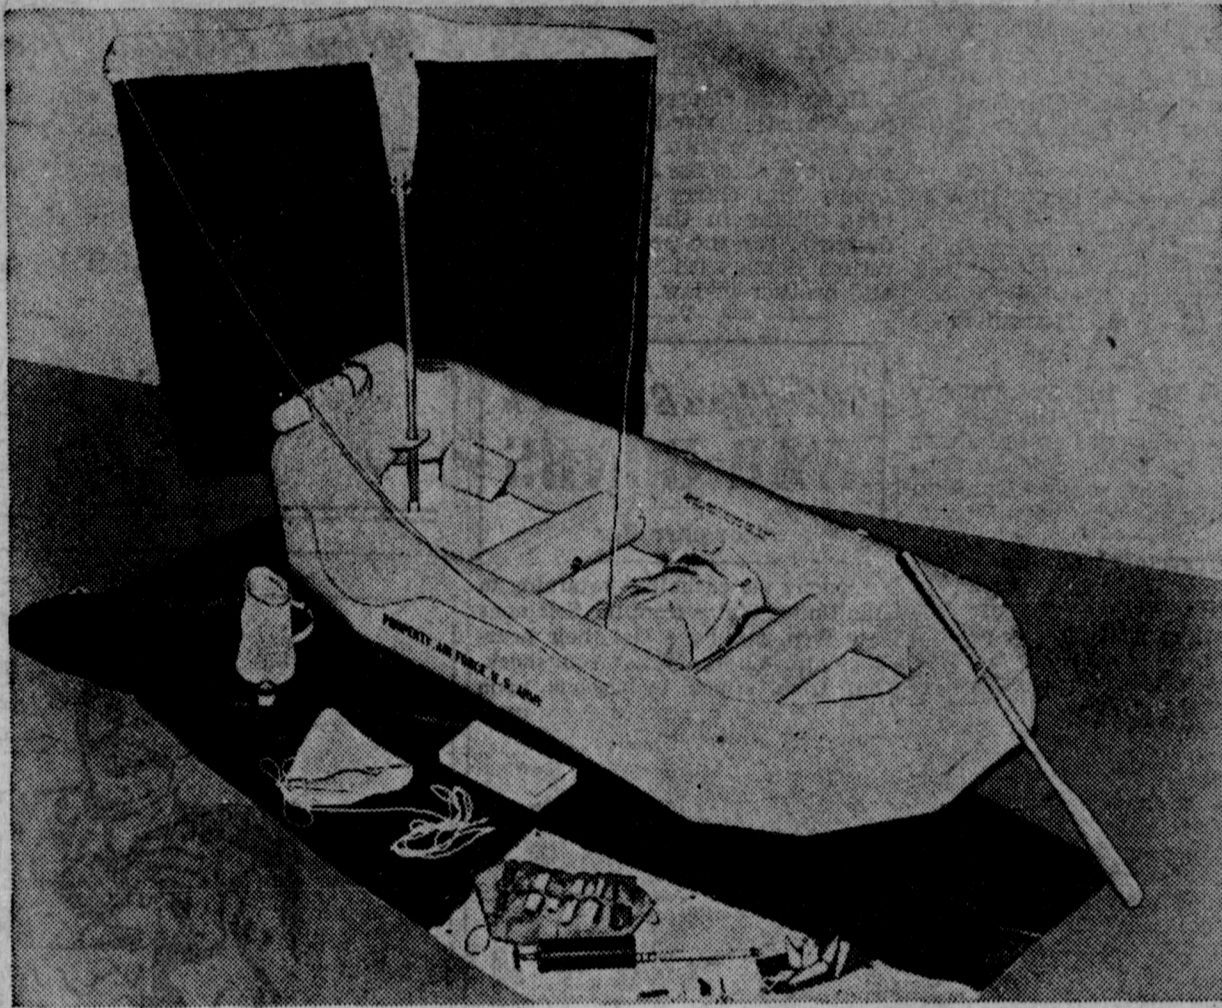

And here's an incident that would have given me much more satisfaction about ten weeks ago. Specifically, the day I went through the battle inoculation course toward the end of my OCS career. In case you don't remember, that's the occasion on which they had us crawling about 100 yards on our bellies under machine gun fire. Every 15 or 20 yards we'd come to pits loaded with dynamite (mines). When touched off they scattered dirt, gravel, and clods all over us. As if we were not already having plenty trouble getting kicked in the face by the guy ahead, choking on dust, and straining to pull ourselves over the terrain.

For about three months they've been putting the boys through this ordeal. And finally, poetic justice. A dynamite charge slips out a nice sized clod that lands smack on a machine gunner's nog.

Rubber is playing an important part in the war. Not only does the modern mechanized army travel on rubber tires but many products made of rubber are used. Pictured above is a five-man boat made by The General Tire and Rubber Company with its complete equipment. This equipment consists of two tarpaulins, one used for a sail and the other for camouflage or to catch water; two long oars, one to hold the sail upright and the other to keep it spread out; a short oar for steering; a sea anchor; a boat bailer; a repair kit consisting of four bullet hole plugs, rubber cement, patches, sandpaper, pliers and scissors; a gas cylinder to inflate the boat; a hand pump for use in inflating the boat if punctured; a signal kit containing a pistol and five distress signals; seven water cans; three sea markers; nine type K rations; a flashlight; a scout knife; a police whistle; a first aid kit and a fishing kit containing hooks and lines and all other equipment needed for fishing.

Walterscheid Youngster Sustains Painful Burns

James, little two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walterscheid suffered painful body burns Wednesday morning when he playfully took a dive into a tub of hot wash water. He was treated at the local clinic and while the burns are very painful they are not considered serious, it was reported.

Threshing To Be Completed This Weekend

Lack Of Help Causes Longer And More Drawn Out Season This Year

This year's threshing season will probably be completed during the weekend, according to local farmers. Due to lack of help the season was lengthier and more drawn out than that of any other year in the past history of the community. The work was done almost entirely by the oldsters.

Machines waited in the morning until about 8 o'clock before they began activity. Farmers first milked their cows and tended to other daily chores. Likewise, in the evening, thresher crews quit at 8 and went home to do the evening milking and other farm tasks. "We simply couldn't let our cows down" local farmers remarked. "They carried us over many a rough place and through several crop failures. They deserve the best of care. Threshing just had to wait until the cows were taken care of."

Favored by good, dry weather, the arrangement worked perfectly. With fair weather prevailing there was no need to hurry the threshing season. Farm women rather welcomed the change. They did not have to prepare the customary breakfast and suppers for the thresherman. Dinners and lunches were the only meals the men ate away from home.

According to general reports, wheat averaged 17 bushels per acre, though some farms produced 21. The yield this year is a good quality wheat. Oats fell short of expectations averaging only about 20 bushels an acre in this sector.

FORMER RESIDENTS RETURN FOR VISIT

Mrs. Emil Herr of Hereford and her son, Sgt. Reynold Herr of Shreveport, La., were here for weekend visits with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Friske and family, and members of the Herr families. Sgt. Herr was on a 15-day furlough and left here early Sunday morning to return to camp. He is with the air corps. His mother returned home in the evening. A dinner party honored her Sunday at the Friske home for which all members of the family were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Friske and daughters of Gainesville.

Japanese American Workers Help in Food Production

Japanese Americans who were evacuated from the Pacific Coast and temporarily quartered in the WRA relocation centers, are helping to produce food for victory. Many have left the centers for seasonal farm work, some living at the FSA transient farm labor camps. Rural War Production training courses are given at the centers to qualify those lacking in experience who have volunteered for farm work. These courses include care and repair of farm machinery, as well as planting and cultivating crops.

The lower center picture shows a typical Japanese American family relocated in a year round home outside the center. The head of this family volunteered for beet harvest work last year and arranged for full-time employment.

SELL MANY BONDS

Employees of Texas Power and Light Co. have sold $1,008,916.25 worth of War Bond and Stamps during the past sixteen months, it was announced by John W. Carpenter, president. In addition to these sales, the employees of this Company are purchasing War Bonds, through the payroll deduction plan, at the rate of $273,839 annually.

The million dollars in Bond and Stamp sales resulted largely from the program the Texas Power and Light Company inaugurated shortly after Pearl Harbor, when Mr. Carpenter suggested that employees devote at least two hours each week to selling War Bonds and Stamps to the public.

"We expect to continue active sale of War Bonds in the interest of the war program as long as such activity is needed," Mr. Carpenter said. "This program was undertaken with no thought other than to be of service in the war program and to cooperate with our many friends and neighbors in the territory in which we operate. That is has met with such tremendous success is a reflection of the deep patriotism and loyalty of Texans."

All Texas Power and Light Co. district officers are authorized issuing agents for Series "E" War Bonds, and War Stamps may be purchased through T. P. & L. cashiers.

From the way grandma pulled down the shades against sunlight on her carpets, we can be sure she'd never have dried her washing out of doors if she'd known this would be destructive to colors. In fact, with modern gadgets for testing all sorts of things that happen to the family washing, grandma probably would be the very first to toss aside her reputation for thriftiness in view of scientific truths which reveal she wasn't as wise as she thought. For example, tests made by the American Institute of Laundering clearly show that outdoor drying of colored things often makes them unusable because of faded colors long before the fabric itself has succumbed to normal wear.

All worn out from whipping around on the clothesline, Mr. O.D. (Outdoor Dried) Shirt looks anxiously at Mr. I.D. (Indoor Dried) Shirt stepping merrily out the laundry door.

One particular test made by the Laundry Institute showed that some color-fast percales of high quality became so faded after twenty 20-minute exposures to sun drying that it was almost impossible to discern their original coloring or designs. Swatches from the same original cloth, washed and dried inside at the laundry, however, remained just as clear-toned and definitely patterned as the original cloth. That's one of the reasons why professional laundries dry our things inside instead of letting Old Sol get in his destructive work. Then, too, clothing whipping about on the line has a tendency to become weakened where the clothes pins are attached. All this is avoided in the professional laundry where articles are dried inside. Inside drying also protects clean washing from becoming contaminated again with gasoline fumes and soot which may be present in the air. To prevent fading and weakening materials by outdoor drying at home, hang the washing early in the morning so it can be taken down before the mid-day period or late in the afternoon. And never hang out the washing in a strong wind.

court and styled Geo. H. Maxwell Plaintiff vs. Lena G. Maxwell Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit: A suit for divorce from the bonds of matrimony, filed by plaintiff against defendant, for the reason of harsh and cruel treatment on the part of defendant toward plaintiff, and three years abandonment of plaintiff by defendant, for costs of suit and for general and special relief, as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs. Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Gainesville, Texas this 23rd day of June A.D. 1943. (SEAL) Attest: Martin G. Davis Clerk District Court, Cooke County, Texas. To: Opal Halloway Defendant, Greeting:
You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable District Court of Cooke County at the Court House thereof, in Gainesville, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 9th day of June A.D. 1943, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Petition filed in said Court, on the 17th day of June A.D. 1943, in this cause, numbered 13823 on the docket of said court and styled Bill S. Halloway Plaintiff, vs. Opal Halloway Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit: Suit for divorce alleging that plaintiff and defendant were duly and legally married in Hidalgo County, Texas, on or about March 9, 1941, and continued to live together as husband and wife until about February 17, 1943, at which time, due to the omissions and commissions of defendant, this plaintiff was forced to abandon said defendant.

For cause of action plaintiff pleads cruel and inhuman treatment. Plaintiff would show to the Court that this marriage could not have been a happy and lasting union, in that it was a forced wedding, by reason of the pregnancy of defendant; that it was not the intention of either party to be married otherwise, and that after their said marriage defendant did not even attempt to make plaintiff a dutiful wife, but neglected him and her household duties as a wife; that a child (a boy) was born to them and is now 22 months of age; that he is now and has been making a monthly allowance for the support of this child, and to the mother and will continue to do so in the amount and at such time as may be directed by this court; that the defendant refuses to live with plaintiff, and says that he is repulsive to her, and that she does not intend to live further with him as his wife; that said marriage relations still exist, and that their further living together as husband and wife is insupportable.

Wherefore plaintiff prays the court that defendant be cited to appear and answer herein, and that he have judgement dissolving their said marriage relations,

Power for Victory

In the war news, the big headlines go to the air raids, the commando landings and the taking of large territories and great cities. The loudest acclaim naturally goes to those who take the biggest risks and make the most sensational achievements. Yet full credit should also go to those on the home front whose daily service is essential to victory. This vast group includes not only those who build ships, planes, tanks and other war equipment but every person who works faithfully in an industry that is bolstering the war effort. The electric power industry, for instance, is one without which no other war industry could operate. There must be power for the lathes, punches, riveters and other machines that make our war weapons, power to light our factories for night shifts, power to take workers from their homes to their jobs and back. One of our main defense aims is to protect our power plants; one of the main objects of our bombers is to destroy the enemy's generating plants.

General Cable Corporation, which makes wires and cables through which electric power is transmitted, does well to call public attention to what the power industry is doing to hasten the day of victory. This industry has given the United States more electric generating capacity than all the rest of the world and has delivered this power to the places where it was most needed and could most readily be harnessed to the war effort. In this and other essential industries, every worker should know that victory depends on his doing his part and should have recognition for unusual performance.

ADDRESS REPLY TO
CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, U. S. ARMY
WASHINGTON, D. C.
FORM TO FILE IN: CE-675 (Utility War Time Aid Program)-SPEUM
WASHINGTON

WAR DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS
WASHINGTON

March 6, 1943.

Mr. J. W. Carpenter, President,
Texas Power & Light Company,
Dallas, Texas.

Dear Mr. Carpenter:

The participation of the Texas Power & Light Company in the Utility War Time Aid Program is greatly appreciated by the Army.

Your splendid cooperation has aided in the operation and maintenance of the many military establishments throughout the United States at a minimum of expense and use of critical materials. In making available to the armed forces your wealth of experience, research, manpower, and equipment, you are rendering a very fine contribution to the national war effort on the part of one of America's most vital war industries.

For the Chief of Engineers:

Very respectfully,

G. F. LEWIS,
Colonel, Corps of Engineers,
Chief, Repairs and Utilities Branch,
Construction Division.

WE LIKE TO KNOW that others, besides those in the electric industry, appreciate the vital importance of Electric Power Service in the war effort, as well as in the day-to-day life of our customers and their communities.

This Company takes pride in the things it is doing to speed Victory... supplying ample electric power to military installations and war industries (some of which require more electricity than entire Texas cities) and, in addition, providing for the full electric requirements of the civilian population of this area; selling War Bonds; lending full support to the wartime conservation program. Its employees (those who are not fighting at the battle fronts) are "fighting" on the home front... buying a substantial quota of War Bonds; helping to staff the Red Cross, Civilian Defense and other war agencies; and doing their regular, important job of supplying electric power service twenty-four hours a day.

Yes, recognition of our efforts in the war program is a source of inspiration which spurs us on in the fight for Victory.

"Awash amidship!" "Sparks" the radio operator, has sent his final message from another U-boat victim. The lifeboats are pulling away from the doomed vessel as millions of dollars' worth of food, supplies and munitions settle to the ocean bottom in another allied catastrophe in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Millions of dollars' worth of material that was paid for by the dollars we saved and invested in War Bonds. Thousands of man hours have been lost.

We can have but one answer: work harder, save more and invest more frequently in War Bonds.

HOW BANKS INVEST
AND LOAN MONEY
 It is not an absolute necessity in the operations of banking that they loan out their funds in the form of local loans. There is open to the banking fraternity ample investments to enable them to operate their business, pay expenses and dividends without investing funds in what is known as local loans, but all banks of this country have developed a system and have set up a practice of investing as much as possible of their available funds in the communities in which they operate in order to help develop these communities.

By following such investment policies it provides the life-giving credit which enables business, industry, agriculture and the various professions to operate, grow and prosper. It also makes available to the people of its community funds which add to their comfort, security, convenience, and happiness. Since part of the money which a bank lends and invests consists of funds of its depositors, it is under a heavy moral and legal responsibility.

Safety of the money invested must always be the paramount and primary factor in the making of any investment or loan and it is for this reason all the loan and investment policies, powers, and procedures of banks are subjected to strict laws and controls imposed upon them by the government authorities by whom they are chartered and under whose supervision they operate.

Every loan must be made to stand upon its own merits. Character is the first consideration which enters into the making of a loan by banks. Capital and capacity are next in consideration. Collateral is the security given by the borrower as a guaranty or pledge for the repayment of a loan, which consists of stocks or bonds or some other non-capital property. Such collateral must stand a rigid inspection and test of value as it must be considered not only upon its present value, the amount of depreciation subjected to, the probable market value several years hence and a number of other tests. All banks maintain a very complete credit file to which is added daily all available information affecting any of its patrons.

It is hard for some individuals to understand the demand of banks for ample collateral. This is especially so when individual has not had much experience in business and finance and when such individual does not take into consideration the fact that the paramount factor involved in a loan is safety. Collateral is such a necessary part of every loan made that the governmental supervising agents hold each banker to a strict accounting for the worth and value of every piece of collateral taken on loans.

 When we consider the fact that large concerns as General Motors, Ford Motor Company, any Bank or any individual regardless of net-worth, must furnish ample collateral if they wish to borrow money, we can more fully understand collateral as being a necessary part of every loan, as much as the note signed by the borrower (Continued next week.)

Flora Plaintiff, vs. Dorris Flora Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit: Suit for divorce, stating that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married in October 1941 and that said marriage relation still exists, and that one child, a girl about 18 months of age, was born of said marriage, her name being Virginia Lee; that defendant abandoned said child in Washington D.C., and that the plaintiff had to take care and custody of it, which he now has, and that defendant is a wholly improper person to have the custody of the child, and prays for its custody; that there are no property rights herein involved.

Plaintiff alleges that soon after said marriage, the defendant began a course of cruel, harsh and unusual treatment toward this plaintiff, in that she refused to do her wifely and household duties and refused to live with plaintiff, and that this continued until about one year ago, when plaintiff and defendant separated and since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife, and that defendant has been guilty of other conduct unbecoming the wife of the plaintiff.

 No American wants this war to go one minute beyond the time we can bring it to a victorious end. To hasten that victory—to save possibly the lives of millions of our boys on our far flung fronts—it is imperative that every American do his part in the Second War Loan. There is an investment to fit every purse. The most you can do is little enough compared with the sacrifice offered by our boys in service. They give their lives—you lend your money.

As a finale for the week, the column passes on a portion of a touching eulogy to a faithful mule whose "spirit has sailed away to mule heaven." Pilfered from the Latimer County (Okla.) News-Democrat, it's probably a lot better tribute than the editor has given some of his town's leading citizens. Anyway, here it is:

"Jack was a mule of no mean reputation. He was a pioneer. Those who knew him say there was never a harder worker in Latimer County.

"If all of the weight that he pulled in his lifetime was represented in height, it would reach into the clouds; in depth, miles into the earth; in weight, no half dozen mogul engines could start it.

"He worked for victory during World War I and went through the depression and the panic that followed without a whimper. He made a brave and courageous start in farming for victory during No. 2 and even in death, he dedicated his hide to the army for shoes, his bones to meal for cattle and swine feed lots, that our armed forces might be fed, his meagre fat and grease he dedicated to explosives and undoubtedly his last bray, when he was in the throes of death was for victory. Old Jack, the best doggone mule that ever wore a collar."
