VOLUME VII

MUNSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, AUGUST 17, 1943

NUMBER 38

Since I've been in the army I've been advised umpteen gillion times never to volunteer or stick out my neck. So I have nobody but myself to blame for what's happening to me now.

Early last week I decided to accompany a friend to some of his classes on mess management. Having an opportunity to break away from the job for a few hours I was going to sit in just for fun and pick up what ideas I could on the subject. Next thing I knew I was officially enrolled in the class. The colonel said that anyone sufficiently interested to attend on his own initiative should have an opportunity to take the course. So I'm destined to spend the greater part of the coming month attending conferences and snooping around mess halls. Even helping prepare some meals. The army figures that a guy doesn't know anything about food or mess management until he knows something about cooking and baking. I hope I won't be expected to learn about KP duties the same way.

After sitting through a few lectures I'm not so very sorry I was roped in — in spite of my dislike for kitchen jobs. The subject is interesting. Quite important too. In fact I'm almost convinced that the kitchen is the most important spot in any army unit.

That old line again. Back at OCS, I recall, each department rated its course above every other. Gunny said you gotta deliver the fire. Motor Transport said you gotta get the stuff to the right place on time. Communication said you gotta be in constant touch with other units. Tactics said you gotta outsmart the enemy. Similarly Mess Management says you gotta feed the boys or the whole shebang will fold up.

Obviously all of them are correct. So instead of trying to determine relative importance let's just agree that every job is essential and must be done efficiently if the unit as a whole is to function efficiently.

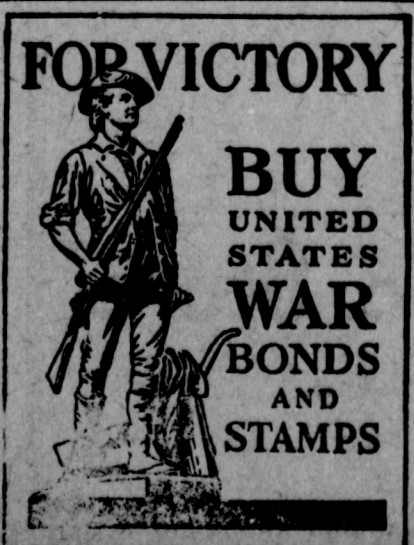

A mess officer, if he's going to be really on the beam has to worry about a lot of things. First of all he's the army's number one morale builder. He's got to see that the boys eat well. Which means that there's plenty of food and it tastes good. Any time you see a battery that doesn't gripe about the chow you see a good outfit. I suppose the mess officer's greatest ambition is to have his men actually brag about the food. And when you see such an outfit you can bet on it to go places against any competition.

Besides being tasty and attractive meals have to be balanced. Proteins, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins and all that in the proper proportion. The army wants to keep its men in tip-top condition, free from pallegra, scurvy and all those other mal-nutrition diseases that used to put a crimp in the old time armies. The policy is getting results. Good food is entitled to a lot of the credit for the good records now being turned in by the American forces. Conversely, inadequate diets have played a major part in some of our early defeats in this war. On Bataan, for instance, after supplies had been cut off for months and the men had to survive on rice and mule meat disease set in and caused more trouble than the enemy.

Another vital mess problem is economy. Nowadays especially when we're threatened with a critical food shortage. Here's what really calls on a mess manager's ingenuity. He is haunted on the one hand by the thought of discarding food that might be edible, on the other by the dread of serving a dose of food poisoning.

Back in the days of plenty the policy was to play safe. Save nothing that was subject to spoilage. In fact, save practically nothing at all. As a result pig herds were regularly treated to steaks, pies, puddings, fruits, bread and a lot of other things that most people would never consider throwing away. Waste was taken so much for granted that some complaints were made against the more prac-

Writes From California
Earl J. Fisher, Y2c, now stationed at the Navy Pre-Flight School at St. Mary's College, California, has written a long, interesting letter to the Enterprise, excerpts of which follow:

"It is only a month since we have been here and, my, how things do change and happen. The station, which has undergone considerable change, obviously cannot be mentioned. As for ourselves, we have seen a lot, changed many of our views and formed new opinions. The houses which seemed to us so much out of date with their bay windows and large construction plan have become rather enticing and well accepted. These overgrown buildings are really beautifully built. The purpose of the type is to conserve valuable space. We are becoming, but slowly, accustomed to this cool climate. "Almost giving up the search for an apartment as fruitless, my wife has decided to work. She is at the Henry J. Kaiser company's home office in Oakland, serving as a PBX operator. It is quite an interesting experience for her. Last Saturday we had a special pass into the Richmond Ship Yard to attend the launching of a liberty ship. We enjoyed the event and seeing the yard.

"Thanks to the Enterprise, I had two visitors whom I didn't have the slightest idea were in this part of the country. Vincent Fuhrmann of Lindsay, who is stationed with the army at Sacramento, and August Lutkenhaus of San Francisco. They saw our address in the paper and came by for a visit, however we were not at home when Gussie called.

"Give our best regards to all the folks in Munster."

Fathers Draft Delay Likely; Boards Revolt

Delay of at least a month in the scheduled October 1 draft of fathers appeared likely Monday as the spreading revolt among the nation's draft boards over the ordered induction of men with children was taken to Congress.

Speaking on a radio information broadcast, Phillip S. Broughton, information director for the War Manpower Commission, expressed doubt that many fathers would be called for service in October.

The few members of Congress remaining in Washington showed little interest in the demand of Senator Wheeler of Montana that the Legislature be recalled from its summer recess to act on the matter. They felt Congress would have time enough to take up the fathers draft order after it reconvenes September 14.

Cooke County Board To Reclassify Fathers From 3-A To 1-A Class

Official notice to Cooke County selective service officials to immediately begin reclassifying men in class 3-A as 1-A, has been received and the board will start its task at once, board members said Tuesday.

Officials urged those men whose occupations are such as to entitle them to possible deferment to file their proper applications immediately. Included in these groups will be men eligible for deferment for other reasons than the fact that they are fathers, a previous ground for excuse from military service which is no longer considered sufficient.

Men in 3-A classification are fathers of children and draft board members have warned that induction of such men will begin in October. The board has no alternative but to begin shifting 3-A men into 1-A categories, it was said.

It was pointed out that the number of children a man may have hasn't any bearing whatever in the matter.

Members of the J.S. Horn families spent a most enjoyable evening last Thursday when they gathered at the family home for a reunion party in observance of Mr. Horn's 75th birthday.

The honor guest was able to be up and join his family in the celebration. He is greatly improved from an illness that sent him to bed last November and was feeling well enough to accompany his family on a trip to Gainesville to have a group picture made. On Friday evening he attended the local picture show. He spends most of his time out of bed now, although a part of his day is taken up with rest in a wheel chair.

Attending the family reunion were all children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Horn: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horn and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Alois Horn, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Horn and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Al Schrad and children of Lindsay, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Swirczynski and children of Dallas.

Stray Dogs Killing Farmers' Animals In County Must Stop

Farmers who find their flocks of turkeys, chickens, sheep and in some cases, calves, falling prey to stray dogs received some consolation Friday from a warning issued by County Agent Albert Briant to all farmers and ranchers.

"This situation must be remedied" he said, "and we are warning all farmers and ranchmen to get rid of all stray dogs and cats because they are causing a great loss in food needed for the war effort. In some cases farmers have lost as many as 100 turkeys; other ranchmen have lost a number of sheep. It may be that stray dogs or cats have not bothered you, but they may strike at any time."

For the benefit of farmers who do not know how to obtain gun shells for the purpose of killing stray dogs, cats and varmints, shells may be obtained by making application at hardware stores, Mr. Briant said.

"There is a great number of farmers and ranchmen who place poison on their farms for the purpose of killing stray dogs. These fore dog owners are urged to keep their pets on their own property and feed them so they will not roam over the community."

"We do not want to kill any of the good dogs which are properly taken care of," he continued. "Our advice to dog owners is to get rid of stray dogs and take proper care of those you want to keep."

Also we are warning the residents of Gainesville, Munster, Valley View and all towns in Cooke County to get rid of stray dogs which may roam out to farms where poison has been placed. We can't afford to let stray dogs ruin our meat supply."

Our customers know that we have always operated under a "price ceiling" with rates stabilized and fixed by regulatory bodies. INDIAN CORN VS HYBRID

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—Genuine Indian corn is being pitted against modern hybrid for the first time in a project sponsored by the Rock Island County Historical Society. Dr. J. R. Holbert, famous Funk Farms corn breeder, who is accredited with having developed more successful corn hybrids than any other man, compares an ear of modern seed corn with an ear of Sauk flour corn as a Sauk-Fox Indian squaw (in ceremonial dress) prepares to plant one of the historical Indian corn hillocks in Blackhawk State Park here. No corn has been grown on these hillocks since they were last planted by the Sauk Indians in 1831, just before the Blackhawk war.

 You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable District Court of Cooke County at the Court House thereof, in Gainesville, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 6th day of September A.D. 1943, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Petition filed in said Court, on the 20th day of July A.D. 1943, in this cause, numbered 13855 on the docket of said court and styled C.T. Chasteen Plaintiff, vs. May Chasteen Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit: Suit for divorce stating that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married January 10, 1934 and that said marriage relation still exists, but that no children have been born of said marriage and that no property rights are involved.

For cause of action plaintiff alleges that defendant, about February 1941 began a course of cruel harsh and unusual treatment toward plaintiff, which continued until about the 10th day of February, 1942, when plaintiff and defendant separated and since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife; that said conduct rendered their living together as husband and wife insupportable; that during said time defendant associated with other men and kept company with them and had improper relations with them, and that she finally left plaintiff and has kept her residence secret from him and that she has refused to perform her wifely and household duties to him.

Wherefore plaintiff prays that the defendant be cited to appear and answer herein, and on final hearing that he have judgment dissolving said marriage relation and for general and special relief, as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit.

HOME DOLLARS

ARE OUR OWN Children

We cannot spare the dollars earned in this community any more than we could do without our young people who were born here.

It would be civic suicide if we were always to send away the best of our youth. Likewise, home-earned dollars, born of our own hard work, should not be sent away needlessly to give strength to other communities at the expense of our own.

This is a matter for every citizen to think about—and to do something about. Patronize home merchants. Boost this community. Buy and bank at home. Keep our dollars here to nourish our future prosperity. Let's all do our part.

OLIVIA WALTERSCHEID AND JOHN H. WIMMER MARRIED TUESDAY

Sacred Heart church was the scene of impressively beautiful wedding rites performed at 8:30 Tuesday morning to unite Miss Olivia Walterscheid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walterscheid of this city, and Fireman First Class John H. Wimmer, stationed with the Coast Guard at Panama City, Florida, and son of Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Wimmer of Muenster.

Rev. Thomas Buegler, pastor, officiated at the ring ceremony and at the nuptial high mass. The church choir, with Miss Juanita Weinzapfel at the organ, sang the Mass of the Angels. Miss Weinzapfel also played the traditional wedding processional.

The bride was lovely in a bouffant gown of white, designed with a long fitted bodice of lace and a full skirt of net, sweetheart neck line and sleeves that extended to the wrist. Her finger tip veil fell from a pompadour arrangement of orange blossoms and she carried a colonial bouquet of white gladioli. For "something old and borrowed" she wore a silk handkerchief sent from France during World War I by her uncle, August Walterscheid, on duty there with the army, to her mother. Her only ornament was a stand of pearls.

Miss Katie Mae Walterscheid was her sister's maid of honor. She was attired in a pink marquisette frock, made similar to the bride's, with short puffed sleeves. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of white carnations and she wore a head-dress of pink feather flowers.

Andrew Wimmer, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the church services the bridal party were guests at breakfast in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joe Bayer, and at noon dinner was served in the Walterscheid home to immediate members of the family and a few close friends. The bride's table carried out the all-white theme and was centered with a three-tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and Coast Guard groom figurine. The exquisite table cloth used belongs to the bride's sister, Mrs. Herman Danglmayr, and was her wedding gift from Bishop A. Danglmayr of Dallas.

During the afternoon an informal reception was held and a buffet supper served in the evening, after which a dance in the parish hall honored the couple.

tical men who tried to save. It's a fact. Garbage contractors actually beefed about finding too little in the cans, claimed they were not getting their money's worth.

While the army consisted of only a few hundred thousand and food was plentiful, few knew how much was wasted and still fewer cared. But when the army grew into millions and famine started staring us in the face the attitude changed. You've heard about the investigation that was made, and the report that more than 20 per cent of the army's food goes to the garbage can.

Since then there's been a strong trend to change all that. Leftovers are to be used whenever possible. To hell with the garbage man and his hogs. Old bread is saved until the reserve supply is large enough for dressing or bread staling us in the face the attitude changed. You've heard about the investigation that was made, and the report that more than 20 per cent of the army's food goes to the garbage can.

The newlyweds will remain in this city to visit relatives until Monday when they will leave for Panama City, Florida, to make their home. He has a 15-day leave. Both young people were reared in this city and attended Sacred Heart School. He has been in the service since May 1942. Prior to his call to the colors he was president of the local Holy Name Society and his bride has served as secretary of the Young Ladies' Sodality, in which groups both have been active.

Among out of town guests at the wedding were the bride's brother, Pfc. Joe H. Walterscheid of Camp Gruber, Okla., the groom's sister, Mrs. Al Reiter, with her family, from Era, and Mr. and Mrs. John Henschel of Norman, Okla.

against food poisoning, of course. We're gradually coming to the point where a cook's ability is judged by his left-over concoctions rather than by his extravagant spreads.

Likewise there's a change in the policy of serving. Heaped trays are discouraged now. Portions are smaller and heavy eaters are urged to return for a second helping.

It works. Plate waste isn't near what it used to be.

Isn't an easy job to change the habits of the most extravagant organization in the world's most extravagant nation. But little by little we're improving. Eventually the army will do its part in conserving food for a hungry world. At the same time it will continue feeding its men better than any other army of the world.
