Hundreds Line Streets Here As Santa Officially Opens Christmas Season

Gigantic Give-Away Program Launched

Santa Claus came to town yesterday, modern to the finish, with the aircraft propeller, and Junior was on hand to greet the old gentleman from the North Pole.

Hundreds lined the downtown section to greet St. Nick as he wound through downtown, the principal attraction of a mammoth parade.

And with his arrival, Muleshoe businesses houses officially biased the lid of the Christmas shopping season.

Registration started at more than a half-hundred firms as the big give-away program got underway. The merchants and professional men of Muleshoe are giving away more than 50 AM-FM transistor radios, each valued at $29.95, and for the grand prize, some area family will look at colored television on Christmas day. The colored television set is the grand prize in the big give-away program which comes to a climax Christmas eve.

Meantime, Santa Claus is meeting his young friends at his own workshop on the courthouse lawn each Saturday from now until Christmas and in the final week before Christmas he will be in his workshop each afternoon until Dec. 24.

In order to win, persons whose names are drawn must be present when the drawings take place Saturday afternoon, Dec. 24.

Cash prizes were offered to participants in Saturday's parade. Santa Claus was flown to Muleshoe by Morgan Locker, owner of Muleshoe Flying Service, who made the flight to the North Pole to pick up the old gentleman of yule delight. The plane buzzed Muleshoe a couple of times before landing prior to the parade.

This year's give-away event by Muleshoe merchants is one of the most elaborate ever staged, and the give-away number set a record. For the past two years, bicycles have been given to two-score boys and girls.

A home lighting contest also is underway, and judging is to be done Dec. 11.

Entries are sought. Persons interested in entering the contest are asked to call the chamber, 272-4274. First prize will receive an installed "ready-Lite" second winner will get $20 and third will win $15.

Last year's winners, in order, were J. R. Ott II, 918 Hickory, Roy Whit, 1528 W. Ave. C, and Truman Lindsay, 333 Ave. J. Judging will be based on the following features:

EDITORIAL Building Good Will

The Journals were pleased with what Life magazine called the "radiant interlude in history" — a project to help cement relationships of two historically-friendly countries Great Britain and the United States.

Of course we refer to the party for Princess Margaret Rose and her husband, Lord Snowden, that "charming vignette of history to be savored and remembered."

Of the visit, Life magazine said, "A visit by British royalty is a most special event that must be observed in a most special way." Protocol demands that the president and his lady entertain such visitors, and the same protocol, for example, requires that the president dance with his Royal guest, Lord Snowden took his cue from the same age-old book of protocol and danced with Mrs. Johnson.

We are glad that the party was a success; such good will efforts are never in vain. England long will be grateful for the delightful manner in which America officially treated its No. 2 lady and her husband.

OUR FIRST SANTA LETTER — Between now and the time old Santa squeezes his round self down the chimney Christmas Eve, a lot of little boys and girls will write the Journals to express their Christmas desires. Here's the first such letter the Journals received this year, written by Rusty Tunnell, Route 4, reproduced exactly as he wrote it, off the sheet and all. (Journal Photo)

Goodfellows Seeking Food, Toys, Clothes For Boxes

Muleshoe Goodfellows, that anonymous group of men who do just what their name implies, are hard at work, making ready for the Christmas season.

But the making-ready they are doing is not for themselves (at least not directly); they're working that the unfortunate may have a cheerier time.

And you can help. Spokesman for the group said the Goodfellows want canned or packaged goods, all kinds, sizes and shapes of clothing and usable toys, new or used. And if you don't have any of those, money will come in handy as a substitute.

"We can use money," said the spokesman. "We need money and it looks like we are going to have a number of people who will need our help this year."

The work of putting the family boxes together is being carried on at the city hall, and persons who have items that

Paintings, drawings and sculptures by James Ivey Edwards, Amarillo, are being displayed in a month-long showing in the Canyon Art Gallery.

He is the grandson of Mrs. Owen Powell, Muleshoe. The exhibit opened with a reception last Tuesday.

Edwards, who is 22, is the only student whose work is exhibited.

Santa, I Want...

Santa Claus has started receiving his Christmas mail, via The Muleshoe Journal, and Bailey County mailboxes, and these newspapers would like to have YOUR letter to St. Nick, too.

The Journals would appreciate it if all letters were signed with the full name of the writer; however, of those received so far only one has been signed with the full name and address of the writer.

Judging from the early letters at the Journals' mailbox, Superman still figures in the lives of the small fry; three letters received so far want Superman suits, including the letter reproduced above.

At schools, several classrooms are planning to write letters as a group to Santa Claus. These newspapers will print all the letters received, space permitting, on a first-received, first-printed basis.

It Just Didn't Work Out, So Terry's Quitting School After Christmas!

This business of getting an education just isn't what it's cracked up to be. That's the opinion being reached by a Muleshoe pupil.

In fact, he has informed his mother that he is joining the drop-out ranks at the end of the present semester.

Last autumn it had looked like such a good idea — bright schoolroom, new books, new teacher and all that.

But things just haven't gone right at all. He seems to have a good idea of math (modern though it is) and he knows his other subjects, too. In fact, around the kitchen table at home Terry files through his lessons with the greatest of ease.

But at school! — Well, that's a different matter. Answers to questions just don't seem to come, and there are more "U's" on his report card than any one pupil should possibly have — all "U's" in fact.

And to make matters worse, Terry is having playground difficulties. Seems boys have a way of "jumping on" him, and Terry, being a boy, feels constrained to rise to the occasion.

Band Members Seeking Berths On Area Band

Forty-seven members of Bill Bradley's Muleshoe High School band were participating Saturday in Lubbock.

Taking part were: Flutes: Marsha Blackman, Sonja Bass, Ellen English, Patsey Angley, Brenda Weyer, Jean Davis and Vicki Kelley.

Oboe: Sonja Bass, Clarinet: Kathy West, Nancy Lee, Renee

Is It Gonna Rain This Week? Well, There's A 9 Percent Chance It Will

Is it going to rain in Muleshoe this week? Well, there's a 9 percent chance that it will, but at best it will amount to no more than .24 inches.

And it's going to be fairly cool — somewhere between 22 and 51.

The figures, incidentally apply only to Muleshoe and are contained in a release by the Cotton Economic Research, Cotton Research Committee of Texas.

The organizations went to considerable trouble to figure up the weather picture for Muleshoe, and it's all on two tables sent to County Agent J. K. Adams.

The information mentioned above applies only to the period from and through Dec. 6-12. But the next week, the chances will be even less for rain; the compilation by the cotton organizations (taken apparently from the U. S. Weather Bureau's detailed records) shows that there probably is only a 7 percent chance for rain the week of Dec. 13-19 inclusive.

And a dry Christmas is almost for sure; the figures show only a 6 percent chance for rain during the Dec. 20-26 period.

The two tables also show probable frost dates, zero dates and a number of other choice bits of information. The information shows that, on the average, Muleshoe has 160 days from planting time to harvest.

It's more than likely that New Year's will be a dry time of the year; the records show there's only a 6 percent chance for rain during the final two weeks of the year.

And the chances stay around that level until the middle of February when the chances pop up to 11 percent from Feb.

14 through Feb. 28.

March, the Muleshoe records show, is typically dry, the chances for rain dropping to a mean 3 percent between March 15 and March 21. For some odd reason, however, the chances pop up to 12 percent the last week in March.

July is habitually a wet month in Muleshoe, the Cotton records show, 21 to 29 percent possibilities. In fact, the compilation shows that June, July and August all are high potential rain months in Muleshoe, but the chances start dipping in September skidding right on down until the end of the year.

Alcoholism Expensive

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Alcoholism among white South Africans costs the country an estimated $70 million a year — more than the combined losses from drought, plant disease and accidents, according to Theo Gelder, administrator of Natal Province.

There are 17,800 chronic alcoholics in South Africa, which has a total white population of 3 million.

A further 143,840 persons (17.5 per cent of all men and 3.6 per cent of all women) frequently use alcohol in a manner detrimental to themselves, he said. The average alcoholic cost 22 working days a year because of illness, said Gelder.

WTCC to Study
Labor Problems
in Farm Areas

ABILENE — The Executive Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has recommended to Texas Governor John Connally the appointment of a special Agricultural Labor Advisory Committee to help deal with pressing agricultural labor problems in Texas, WTCC President Beeman Fisher announced Tuesday.

Fisher said the recommendation from the top leader-ship of the West Texas Chamber came after careful study and research. Purpose of the committee would be to make recommendations to the governor, and state agencies which the governor might designate, on all matters dealing with Texas agricultural labor needs. Fisher said this committee should be authorized to call on existing state agencies for research data, information, and statistics to aid in making its recommendations.

Fisher said the proposed committee would keep the governor advised of agricultural labor conditions in Texas; inform the governor of agriculture's labor needs; advise him on federal labor legislation and its possible effect on Texas agriculture; and prepare recommendations for the governor regarding state agricultural labor legisla-tion.

Blackouts and Red Faces

It looks as if President Johnson and Secretary Udall were little too eager last week when they sent swarms of federal investigators into the northeast to track down the cause of the massive power failure and thus, presumably, demonstrate that the government can save us from the supposed inadequacies of private utility management. It turns out that the trouble started neither in the United States nor in a private company.

The Federal Power Commission and the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission have jointly put the blame on a broken relay in publicly owned Canadian facilities west of Niagara Falls. The broken relay cut off power to Hamilton and Toronto. Excess power, with no place else to go, surged thru a connecting link into upstate New York, where it knocked out distribution facilities. This imposed a sudden burden on power plants farther east, knocked out one after another in quick succession, like a row of falling dominoes, until the lights flickered out in New York City and Boston.

Mr. Udall's race probably should be colored the redder, because he seized upon the black-out as an argument for the distribution system which he favors and for "stronger ties with Canada." In the light of what has since been announced, neither suggestion was visibly appropriate. We should save some red also for the faces of the Canadian power commission spokesmen who implied that the trouble had started in upstate New York and suggested that Canada ought to protect itself by severing the links between its system and those south of the border.

We don't know what steps may be advisable to prevent a recurrence of last week's costly effective. Fisher said, the proposed committee should include representatives from the sheep and goat raisers group, cattle raisers, cotton producers, vegetable producers, grain producers, cotton ginners, fruit and vegetable producers, rice growers, citrus growers, poultry producers, and dairy producers.

failure or to prevent a similar one in the midwest. But when recommendations are made, we will put a good deal more faith in those coming from private power experts who have dedicated their careers to solving such problems than in those coming from public officials whose motive is to build a public power empire.

Teachers Attend
Math Workshop

Roy Dawson, math consultant for Addison-Wesley Publishers, conducted a brief workshop for the math teachers of grades 3-7, Wednesday, at the Muleshoe junior high building from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Dawson holds degrees from George Peabody College, and has done graduate work at Vanderbilt University and the University of Minnesota. For more than 20 years Prof. Dawson worked as teacher and administrator in the public schools of Arkansas. He has taught mathematics from the first grade through the graduate level, and is now retired from full-time teaching, and from the U. S. Army for whom he served as educational director of the armed forces dependent schools in Europe.

Dawson gave an interesting background of math makes and offered several helpful suggestions that teachers might use in the classroom. Prof. Dawson said if the child can discover concepts, it is a much more meaningful learning experience than mere rote memorization. Math classes should be labs of learning where the child manipulates concrete materials instead of repeating abstract rules. There is a difference in memorization and meaningful remembering, Dawson further stated.

Thirty-five teachers and administrators attended this meeting.

Research Aids In Whittling Losses From Wilt

LUBBOCK — Research sponsored by the Cotton Producers Institute is amassing facts to help growers in the High Plains and other areas cut their heavy losses to verticillium wilt.

Renewal of grants to support research projects on the costly disease was announced this week by Institute trustees. In the High Plains the trustees are Howard Alford and Joe B. Pate, Lubbock; Jay Cannon, Hale Center; Joe Rankin, Ralls; L. C. Unfred, Tahoka; and Roy B. Davis, Lubbock, ex officio member.

Research at the New Mexico Experiment Station has uncovered a special difference between the inner workings of the cotton plant and the verticillium wilt fungus which attacks it.

Scientists are hopeful this discovery will open an opportunity to achieve more effective control. The idea would be to find a method of blocking the movement of the disease within the plant.

The CPI also is supporting work to find effective systemic fungicides which could move in the sap stream of the plant and control the disease. In many ways the problem is more difficult than that of developing systemic insecticides, since the metabolism of the plant and the disease pathogen are much more similar than those of the plant and insect pests.

To date University of California scientists have tested some 200 materials in an effort to find an effective fungicide. About 2,000 chemicals are available which are suspected as offering possibilities.

Still another approach to finding ways to fight the disease is being sought in a project under way in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In this research, scientists are seeking to discover the resistance mechanism in plants which are tolerant to verticillium wilt. This could lead either to more effective genetic transfer of resistant traits, or to development of chemical means for supplementing natural plant resistance.

county agents and local farmers.

Harvey Walker, of the South Plains Center, says if there are insignificant yield differences between fall and spring applications, more nitrogen applications could be made in the fall. This would ease the spring rush for both farmers and fertilizer dealers.

The South Plains Research and Extension Center has been conducting off-station fertility tests for 12 years. This year they had plots in 20 locations representing every major soil type in the area.

Autumn or Spring Planting? Tests To Show Differences in Yield

A new series of off-station soil fertility tests conducted by Texas A&M University scientists should show if there are grain sorghum yield differences between fall or spring applications of nitrogen.

Test plots will be in Deaf Smith and Pecos Counties and Plains Research Center, at Bushland. Each plot will receive three different rates of nitrogen applications and each rate will be applied at five different times.

Personnel at the Bushland Center and at the South Plains Research and Extension Center, near Lubbock, will conduct the study in cooperation with

Cotton Program Due for Airing At Dallas Meet

A team of experts from the U. S. Department of Agriculture headed by Under Secretary John Schmittler will be in Dallas Dec. 11 to explain to the cotton industry the complexities of the new government cotton program.

Burrus C. Jackson, Hillsboro, Tex., chairman of the American Cotton Congress, said the all day meeting was arranged at the mutual request of USDA officials and leaders of various segments of the cotton industry.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Statler-Hilton Hotel. Schmittler will be joined by Joseph Moss, director of the USDA's cotton policy staff, also of Washington, D. C., and officials of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which administers government farm programs through county offices.

Jackson said the clarification of regulations of the recently enacted Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 comes at a time when producers, ginners, oil mill crushers, merchants and spinning mills must make plans for the 1966 season. "Some cotton will be planted in less than three months in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas," Jackson said. Arrangements must be made now for the next crop even though some five million bales remain to be harvested in the current season.

Several provisions in the law are new concepts in government programs for cotton including the transfer of allotments by lease or sale; direct subsidy payments to producers and

Tech's Light Program Set For Tuesday

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech will officially open the Christmas season Tuesday with the annual Carol of Lights program scheduled at 7 p.m. in the Science Quadrangle.

More than 17,000 lights will outline campus buildings during the month-long Tech observance of Christmas. A flip of a master switch at the program site will turn on the lights simultaneously.

There will be one addition to this year's lighting plan. The West Texas Museum will be outlined by the multi-colored lights for the first time. Extra strings of lights have also been placed on the tower of the campus radio station (KTXT).

The ceremony will feature the music of residence hall choirs, the Tech choir, a brass band and group carol singing.

The circle will be closed to traffic but directions will be given at each entrance for parking.

changes in the skip-row planting patterns and the release and reapportionment regulations governing allotments.

Farmers have various choices under cropland adjustment and acreage diversion features of the law to plant, not to plant or plant only a portion of their cotton allotments. In general, the options for subsidy payments and retirement programs make the farmers decision a separate consideration for each individual farm.

Jackson said leaders of cotton interest groups from every state in the Cotton Belt had been invited.

That Gas Pump Gallon's Gotta Be Just That!

AUSTIN — When the housewife checks out at the grocery store cash register she is usually pretty careful about counting her pennies to make sure she isn't short changed.

But she may not know a third party has interceded to make her pennies count more.

An inspector of the Weights and Measures division of the Texas Department of Agriculture has already insured that the pound of meat she bought in the market was really a pound. And he made sure that the contents of that package of frozen food weighed as much as the wrapper claimed.

The inspector didn't stop there, however. He also checked the gas pump at her favorite station to guarantee that when she wanted three gallons she got a correctly measured three gallons.

Assuring "a dollar's value for a dollar spent" is a prime duty of the Texas Department of Agriculture, according to Commissioner John C. White. "Our inspectors are always alert for violations which may rob the customer of a substantial amount from the family budget."

Prof of the inspector's vigilance can be determined by three types of official seals used in this work. Eggs which are checked for quality will bear on the carton a blue seal with the word "Approved" printed above the signature of Commissioner John White, along with a written guarantee stating the eggs met the quality standards claimed on the carton.

Ben Johnson, cello instructor, has composed a new fanfare for the Brass Choir to play at the opening of the activities.

An open house and reception will be given in the Tech Union following the ceremony. Entertainment will be presented by the Tech Madrigal Singers and refreshments will be served.

Thousands of visitors are expected for the observance, which will be climaxed by the turning off of all campus lights and the simultaneous turning on of the 17,000 red, yellow and white lights outlining buildings on the campus.

The Christmas scene will continue to unfold at dusk each evening through December as photo-electric cells connected to the lighting system automatically turn on the display.

lephone in your home, he said, and the new equipment will go into operation by Dec. 15. Workmen Friday were completing the erection of the second 250-foot tower.

The equipment will be strictly automatic and will not require an operator to serve between the mobile unit and the conventional stationary phone, he explained.

The mobile phone program is only part of the expanded service being completed by Five Area.

"For the past year," Lancaster said, "the telephone cooperative has been in the process of expanding its facilities. More than 150 miles of cable have been buried, and many calls going to the rural areas are now transmitted by buried cable. A completely new building with all new equipment was installed in the Lathbridge Exchange for additional users."

The cooperative was started in 1956 with only 400 users, and now has almost 1400 subscribers. It is expected to add about 300 additional customers within the next three years.

Lancaster explained that the cooperative is financed by a loan from the federal government that is being paid back to the government with interest on a 35-year loan.

The cooperative is controlled by a board of directors made up of seven men: Wallace O. Jones, president; Dimmitt, Raymond Gage, vice-president; Circleback; Eddie Wallace, secretary-treasurer; Enoch; D. L. Tucker; Morton; Joe Embry, Muleshoe; Lonnie Wilhite, Muleshoe; and Ike Williams, Morton.

Abernathy Man Wins Grid Prize, Cotton Bowl Trip

A young Abernathy man, who knows his football teams, won first prize in the Muleshoe Journal and Bailey County Journal's annual football contest. It was announced Saturday.

Joe Dell Hosier, P. O. Box 848, Abernathy, outguessed all others during the football season in picking winning teams. He won first place three times during the season, setting some sort of a record for so many firsts.

For his winning Hosier receives two free tickets to the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl game in Dallas, plus $50 in expense money, given by the Journals.

Winners were picked each week throughout the football season, and finalists were determined by the number of times to score first or second in the weekly series. A first-place counted for 10 points, second place 5 points. Three winners gathered 31 points for the season.

Here are the winners first and second, during the season:

- Sept. 9: Jerry Roddam and Kenny Taylor.
- Sept. 26: Randy Holly and Gene Paul Jarman.
- Sept. 23: Dudley Malone and Ken Spilvan.
- Sept. 30: James Roy Jones and Bo Bryant.
- Oct. 7: Joe Dell Hosier and James Roy Jones.
- Oct. 14: Howard Spawan and G. W. Chapman.
- Oct. 21: T. L. Glascock and Alton Epling.
- Oct. 28: Joe Dell Hosier and Rodger Holley.

Summing it up, the spokesman said: "Last year we helped 342 children and a lot of grownups out of those 72 boxes we delivered on Christmas eve. If folk here are as generous as they have been in the past, we should be able to make Christmas brighter for at least that many people this year. But we will need contributions of canned or packaged goods, clothing, shoes and usable or new toys — plus money!"

And these little schoolground skirmishes aren't helping build up his popularity with other teachers or pupils.

So, Terry has informed his mother that he has just decided to become a drop out right after Christmas. "I'll stick it out until Christmas," he told her this past week, "but then I'm quitting and going to get me a job."

He hasn't decided yet what business he'll enter, but he's considering the shoe-shine business. "Gosh, I wish I had a shoe-shine business," he claims, "wouldn't make an ideal location?" (He's experienced in that line.)

So now, Terry is running through those final days of his education. In January he'll be a drop-out (he thinks!). Quicker his mother. "Guss he'll be the only first-grade drop-out in town!"

Broadened Aid To Handicapped Workers is Due

By Sen. Ralph Yarborough In 1959, the Congress of the United States passed the first vocational rehabilitation bill, to aid disabled and handicapped people of this country to become employable and productive citizens.

This act was expanded in 1943 and 1954, and during the closing days of Congress this year we enacted a broad expansion of this Vocational Rehabilitation law, to aid disabled or handicapped people to become productive money earners.

At the present time there are around 3 million people in the United States injured or disabled who could substantially benefit from vocational rehabilitation training. Last year, we rehabilitated around 122,000 people and made them wage earners where they had formerly been dependent. President Lyndon B. Johnson has said that our goal should be to rehabilitate about 200,000 Americans every year. The bill which we passed this year should enable us to reach that goal by 1968.

Under this new Vocational Rehabilitation bill, formerly disabled people will now regain the labor force in a productive capacity. This gives them dignity and self-respect by making them self-sufficient, with more money than they had before.

In 1964, over 9,000 people in this country who had been receiving public assistance were able to go off the disabled dependency rolls because they had been rehabilitated and were earning their own money. Over 9,000 people who had been receiving Social Security last year for total disability are now earning a better living on wages and salaries after being rehabilitated than they could ever have gotten on Social Security.

The people rehabilitated last year earned, before they were re-habilitated, just $45 million, but after rehabilitation, those same people now earn $460 million. For every single dollar the Federal government spends in this program, it will receive back in income taxes over $5 over the life-time earnings of the rehabilitated individual. We cannot measure its benefit only in terms of dollars and cents, for the happier life which rehabilitation adds to the formerly dependent people would warrant the whole expenditure. He becomes a producing unit in our society.

Each year 8 million people in America are injured at work, 22 million in automobiles and in recreation and other injuries. Due to this high domestic accident rate, physical disability

Science Theme: God the Cause and Creator

Congregations in Christian Science churches throughout the world will hear a Bible Lesson this Sunday on "God the Only Cause and Creator."

The readings will open with the last verse from the first chapter of Genesis: "And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good."

Related passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "The spiritual reality is the scientific fact in all things... God, Spirit, alone created all, and called it good."

The age seems ready to approach this subject, to ponder somewhat the supremacy of Spirit, and at least to touch the hem of Truth's garment". (pp. 307, 339, 170).

Plains Farmers To Visit Farms In South Texas

About 150 or more West Texas farmers, ranchers, and businessmen will visit South Texas, the Gulf Coast, and Lower Rio Grande Valley area Feb. 20-25 as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce holds a special agricultural development tour into those areas.

The tour is being set up to give the West Texans a good look at both the industrial and agricultural picture from Houston into the Valley, with a special look at ranching operations on the King Ranch and the Armstrong Ranch between Kingsville and Brownsville.

W. H. (Bill) Lane, of Perryton, chairman of the WTCC Agriculture Committee, officially announced the tour. Dennis L. Brownfield banker, is chairman of the subcommittee which is making tour arrangements and plans.

Travel will be by rail, with Santa Fe Railway making arrangements for the West Texas Chamber. Lance said. Pullmans will originate at Amarillo, Lubbock, and Fort Worth.

Some of the highlights of the tour will be a visit to the Houston industrial complex along the Houston channel and shipping facilities where West Texas — grown agricultural products are exported — cotton, grain sorghum, wheat, and other crops.

The West Texas group will see the new livestock facilities of the Houston Fat Stock Show, located near the famous Astrodome. They will visit agriculture operations of the Department of Corrections at Sugarland and will learn the techniques being used there on the prison farms.

Tentative plans call for a visit to the famous King Ranch to observe ranch management techniques, plus a visit to the nearby Armstrong Ranch to observe a sale of Santa Gertrudis cattle — the first time any of the Armstrong stock will have been offered to the public.

The touring group will then move into the Lower Rio Grande Valley to see vegetable production, cotton, grain sorghum, and other crops adaptable to West Texas. Arrangements in this area are being handled by the Lower Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Brownsville Chamber.

CARE to Offer Cheer to Millions In Private Gifts

The 1965 holiday-season CARE Food Crusade opened today with a goal of sending 6,000,000 packages to the hungry overseas as personal gifts from Americans who give a dollar per package.

Combined with CARE Partnership Programs whereby host governments pay most of the distribution costs, the packages will complete a yearlong plan to help feed more than 37,000,000 people in 32 countries, it was announced by Frank J. Phillips, Southwest Director.

Largest single item in the $5,000,000 fund appeal is a $500,000 allocation to buy rice, salt and mace man (a high protein fish sauce) for civilian war victims in South Vietnam.

However, U. S. Food for Peace donations of farm abundance are the mainstay of CARE's plan. Partnership Programs will bring these funds to almost 90 percent of the recipients. Food

WTSU Basketball Squad is Short On Lettermen

CANYON — West Texas State opened its third basketball season under head coach Jimmy Viramontes who has improved the team's previous win-loss record in each of his first two seasons. With only four lettermen returning and an exceptionally tough road schedule, the young coach will be hard-pressed to better the 1964-65 season's record of 16-9. Not since 1951-52 had the Buffs won so many games.

Gail Simpson is the outstanding returnee on the squad. A two-year letterman, Gail shows 50 per cent field goal shooting and 75 per cent marksmanship at the foul line among his many credentials for post-season honors. He won both the Kleinschmidt (Most Valuable Player) and Fighting Heart (Inspirational) Awards following his junior year and is a top candidate to be the first two-time MVP since Price Brookfield, the school's career scoring leader.

Simpson handles all phases of the game well. His shooting has been mentioned previously, but he also "quarterbacks" the offense and consistently draws the toughest assignments on defense. He needs only 300 points to move well into the top 20 scorers in West Texas State history.

Three other lettermen will be in Saturday's starting lineup. Seniors Cal Taylor and Joe McWilliams and junior Mickey Fitts. Taylor was the number two rebounder last season and is expected to lead in that department in 1965-66 in addition to playing excellent defense. McWilliams has been a part-time starter during the past two seasons and is being counted upon to carry a good deal of the load at the other guard spot opposite Simpson. Fitts had one starting assignment last year, but played a good many minutes in relief and will pound the boards along with Taylor.

Bill Reeves, a graduate of DeMar Junior College and a native of Raymondville will be the fifth starter. The 6-4 forward has shown the most promise among the eight newcomers on the squad and will be given the starting berth over sophomores Jack Johnson, 6-7 from Quitaque; Ron Gardner, 6-5 from Amarillo; and Skip Moore, 6-4 from Canyon.

Ahlene Christian will provide the opposition in Saturday's opener slated for 9 p.m. because of the high school tournament being played that evening. The Wildcats sport an 8-2 record against West Texas State in the 16 1/2-year reign of head coach Dee Nutt although the Buffaloes have a commanding 26-10 lead in the series. Seven lettermen among whom is the sensational 6-8 center Charles Cleek are back from last year's 17-9 squad which went to the finals of the NCAA Southwest Regional Tournament.

General Shows Video Telephone, Results Good

An experimental model of a video telephone which automatically centers the image of the user in the picture screen was demonstrated recently by Automatic Electric Company, a subsidiary of General Telephone & Electronics Corporation.

The compact unit utilizes an electronic scanning device which employs a motorized vertical-adjustment control that positions the image on an eight-inch screen.

Two experimental video telephone units were shown at the opening of the three-day annual convention of the U. S. Independent Telephone Association to illustrate the potential versatility and flexibility of video telephones of the future. Following additional development work, advanced models ultimately will be utilized to provide VIDEOTELEPHONE service.

In addition to the viewing screen, the streamlined, single-unit video telephone includes a 16 millimeter motion picture camera with a wide-angle lens to assure a sharp image on a broad field.

A unique feature of the unit is a "video mirror" which enables the user to view himself on the picture screen prior to or during communication with another person.

Voice communications may be conducted either through a conventional telephone handset, or on a "hands-free" basis, through a microphone installed with the unit console.

Constructed of cast aluminum, the attractively designed video telephone unit weighs 30 pounds and is 11 inches high, 17 inches wide, and 17 inches deep.

Television equipment for the unit was supplied by the Commercial Electronics Division of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., a GTE operating subsidiary. It utilizes a 325-line screen, the same level of quality provided for commercial televisions units.

'Football's the Life,' Says Farwell Youth After Signing for Pro Ball

PORTALES — "Football is my life. This is a dream come true for me."

In these few words Benji Dial summed up his reaction to a contract with a professional football team. Dial, quarterback for the Eastern New Mexico University Greyhounds, was drafted early this week in the 11th round by the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

Usually calm and collected — particularly on the playing field — Dial is definitely excited about the prospect of playing for a pro team. He received a bonus under an undisclosed amount.

The Farwell, Tex., senior reports to the Pittsburgh camp in July and in 10 weeks will discover the difference between college football and the brand of football practiced in the pro ranks.

His contract specified that Dial may be cut from the squad if he fails to measure up. Grinning wryly, the 22-year-old quarterback commented: "I don't expect to go in and take over as first-string quarterback (Steele) Bill Neison has the job now) but I'm going to give it everything I've got."

That statement typifies Dial's outlook toward football in his four years of playing at Eastern and at Farwell High School before that.

He lettered in football four years in high school, then was red-shirted his first year with the Greyhounds. It was mostly defensive work for Dial when he joined the Eastern team and, he admits, his first year as a passing quarterback was unimpressive.

"My throwing form was bad and I threw too many interceptions," he recalls. "That was in 1963. The next year I whipped that problem."

Dial credits a former Greyhound end, Earl Dunn, and a current member of the squad, Jim Martin Clovis, with helping him develop his passing ability. "They also gave me confidence a big boost," he says. B. B. Lees, head football coach at Eastern, also draws a share of gratitude from the lanky Texan for "tremendous help."

One of the high points in his college football career is the 1964 Eastern-Arizona State College game, Dial says. "That was the best day I had all year," he asserted, and records attest to the fact.

A search of his memory turns up few if any real moments of discouragement in football for the pro rookie. "I can't dislike any part of the game," he explained. "Even though we had a losing season this year (three wins, six losses, and a tie) I hated to see that last game end."
