Focus On The Family

QUESTION: What is the most common error made by parents in disciplining their children?

DR. DOBSON: In my opinion, it is the inappropriate use of anger in attempting to control boys and girls. There is no more ineffective method of influencing human beings (of all ages) than the use of irritation and anger. Nevertheless, most adults ration of children.

One teacher said on a national television program, "I like being a professional educator, but I hate the daily task of teaching. My children are so unruly that I have to stay mad at them all the time just to control the classroom." How utterly routine assignment, year in and year out. Yet many teachers (and parents) know of no other way to lead children. Believe me, it is exhausting and it doesn't work.

Consider your own motivational system. Suppose you are driving your automobile home from work this evening, and you exceed the speed limit by 40 miles per hour. Standing on the street corner is a lone policeman who has not been given the means to arrest you. He has no squad car or motorcycle; he wears no badge, carries no gun and can write no tickets. All he is commissioned to do is stand on the curb and scream insults. is commissioned to do is stand on the curb and scream insult would you slow down just because he shakes his fist in protest? Of course not! You might wave back as you streak by. His anger would achieve little except to make him appear

Control and foolish.

On the other hand, nothing influences the way Mr. Motorist drives more than occasionally seeing a black-and-white vehicle in hot pursuit with 19 red lights flashing in the rearview mirror. When his car is brought to a stop, a dignified, courteous patrolman approaches the driver's window. He is 6-foot-9, has a voice like the Lone Ranger and carries a sawed-off shorgum on each him.

foot-9, has a voice like the Lone Ranger and off shotgun on each hip.

"Sir," he says firmly but politely, "our radar unit indicates you were traveling 65-miles per hour in a 25-mile per hour zone. May I see your driver's license, please?"

He opens his leather-bound book of citations and leans toward you. He has revealed no hostility and offers no criticisms, yet you immediately go to pieces. You fumble nervously to locate the small document in your wallet (the one with the horrible Polaroid picture). Why are your hands moist and your mouth dry? Why is your heart thumping in your throat? Because the course of action that John Law is about to take is notoriously unpleasant. Alas, it is his action which dramatically affects your future driving Disciplinary action influences behavior; anger does not. As a matter of fact, I am convinced that adult anger produces a destructive kind of disrespect on the minds of our children They perceive our frustration is caused by our inability to control the situation. We represent justice to them, yet we're on the verge of tears as we flail the air with our hands and shout empty threats and warnings.

Let me ask: would you respect a superior court judge who behaved that emotionally in administering legal justice? Certainly not. This is why the judicial system is carefully controlled to appear objective, rational and dignified.

controlled to appear objective, rational and dignified.

I am not recommending that parents and teachers conceal their legitimate emotions from their children. I am not suggesting that we be like bland and unresponsive robots who hold everything inside. There are times when our boys and garls become insulting or disobedient, and our irritation is entirely appropriate. In fact, it should be revealed of else we appear phony and unreal.

My point is merely that anger often becomes a tool used consciously for the purpose of influencing behavior. It is ineffective and can be damaging to the relationship between generations.

Someone sent me an email with the following bit of news about Bill Gates. I liked it and I hope you will too.

At a recent computer expo (COMDEX), Bill Gates reportedly compared the computer industry with the auto industry and stated:

"If GM had kept up with technology like the computer industry has, we would all be driving twenty-five dollar cars that got 1000 miles to the gallon."

In response to Bill's comments, General Motors issued a press release

"If GM had developed technology like Microsoft, we would all be driving cars with the following characteristics": For no reason whatsoever your car would crash twice a day. Every time they repainted the lines on the road you would have to buy a

Occasionally your car would die on the freeway for no reason, and you would just accept this, restart and drive

Occasionally, executing a maneuver such as a left turn, would cause your car to shut down and refuse to restart, in which case you would have to reinstall the engine.

Only one person at a time could use the car unless you bought "Car95" or "CarNT." But then you would have to buy more seats.

Macintosh would make a car that was powered by the sun, reliable, times as fast, and twice as easy to drive, but would only run on five per cent of the roads.

The oil, water temperature and alternator warning lights would be replaced by a single "general car fault" warning light.

New seats would force everyone to have the same size butt The airbag system would say "Are you sure?" before going off. 10. Occasionally for no reason whatsoever, your car would lock you out and refuse to let you in until you simultaneously lifted the door handle, turned the key, and grab hold of the radio antenna. GM would require all car buyers to also purchase a deluxe set of Rand McNally roadmaps (now a GM subsidiary), even though they neither need them nor Attempting to delete this option would immediately cause the car's performance to diminish by 50% or more. Moreover, GM would become a target for investigation by the Justice Department.

Every time GM introduced a new model car buyers would have to learn how to drive all over again because none of the controls would operate in the same manner as the old car.

You'd press the "start" button to shut off the engine.

GED Classes Offered

Maybe you had to leave high school to help take care of your family. Maybe you just didn't like school or didn't think a high school diploma would mean anything and now, you know what it means not to have it. If you left high school without graduating, the GED class provides a way for you to earn your high school equivalency diploma. Every year, hundreds of people get their GED diploma, people just like you. Getting your GED can make a big difference in your life and could be one of the best things you ever do for yourself. If you or someone you know is interested in pursuing this opportunity, please call the Community Resource office, 659-3233. Classes must have 10 students registered before the class can be offered.

At The Lake

by Dorothy Hudson

Lake Depth--29 ft. 8 inches

The picture is of Kenneth Scroggins of Perryton with the 10.5 #catfish that he caught in self defense as it kept bothering his crappie fishing. He released it back in the Lake at another spot.

Fishing has slowed somewhat as instead of seeing 15 to 20 boats on the Lake, there are 10 to 15. Friday there were 8 RVs. The shelter wasn't rented this weekend, but last week the Gruver Class of '58 had a cookout at the shelter with Dean Sparks and John Boney as the Jim said there were 2 RVs from Booker this Saturday. One of the men, a Mr. Lile who had been retired 18 years, told about there being two dams on the Palo Duro for irrigation before World War 11. One of the dams was on the Oklahoma side near Range and the other was on the Texas side. He had been swimming in the pools formed by both dams. I have reports of a dam before World War I that Oneida Bynum's grandfather built. Could someone tell Jim where the dam Mr. Lile mentioned was?

The hummingbirds are straggling through the area. Gene Fletcher and Skeet Ellison are both seeing some at their feeders. Penny Kruse, who is so efficient at the Gruver Post Office, said she had some visit her cannas and that James and Tammy Red, who have moved back to Gruver, are finding some at their flowers. Granddaughter Amy Harris told me that the hummingbird moths that catch our eyes because at first we think we are seeing a hummingbird come from the green horned tomato worms that devour our tomato plants in such a short time if they are not picked off.

Local Scouts Go To Philmont

Philmont Scout Ranch at Cimarron, New Mexico was home for hundreds of Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and their families on the weekend of September 11-13, 1998

Four Scouts, Brent Hughes, Andrew Cummings, Wayne McCubbin, Scott Sauer, and three sponsors, Donna McCubbin, Linda Cummings and Doug Cummings, from Boy Scout Troop 551 traveled to Philmont to participate in the Philmont Family Weekend. The Scouts are members of the Golden Spread Council of the Boys Scouts of America.

On Saturday morning they hiked the Urraca Trail to the Urraca Mesa. The trail has many educational stops. You learn about the different formations, plants, trees etc. On this trail you can see many other points of interest at Philmont. The Tooth of Time, Bear Tooth, and the Historic Bed and Breakfast can be seen clearly. You can also see Mt. Capulin. In the afternoon they toured the Old Mill House Museum, the Setoff Museum and the Villa. The Villa is the home of Waite Phillips. Mr. Phillips is the benefactor of Philmont Scout Ranch. Through his generosity, Philmont can continue.

This summer approximately 20,000 Boy Scouts were able to attend Philmont. Saturday night, a campfire was held. It was attended by many

Thank You

There are no words that can express our gratitude for the outpouring of love that has been shown to our family during the recent loss of our loved one. Your love has been extended to us through so many ways.

The prayers of everyone have touched our hearts, the comforting words, by being quietly by our side, the beautiful flowers, the memorial gifts, the visits, the wonderful food, the lovely cards and hugs, and many other acts of kindness.

Our prayers are that God will richly bless each of you in special ways as you all have touched and blessed our lives with your love.

Thanks and God Bless each and everyone of you

Thank You

The staff and especially the students of Spearman Elementary School wish to express appreciation to Junior Girl Scout Troop 126 and Brownie Troop 90 and their leaders Cheryl Sander and Audra Thomas. These girls donated funds to purchase four Accelerated Reader test disks for our school's library and also sponsored a complete set of twenty books for our annual Texas Bluebonnet Reading Program.

Additionally, Mrs. Sander has donated over 250 books that have come either from her home or used book stores. She has spent hours of her personal time and a significant sum of money searching for and finding books that will benefit our students.

We are so proud of our "Exemplary" rating by the Texas Education Agency and fully realize that these types of donations are a community effort. Thank you Girl Scouts, Audra, and especially Cheryl for your parts in helping the reading programs at Spearman Elementary.
