A SURPRISE

"Well if there ain't the preacher comin' up the walk, and me in this dirty kaliker dress," said Mrs. Snodgrass, peering over her spectacles. She hurriedly smoothed down her hair and put on a fresh apron just as there was a resounding knock at the door. She opened the door with an expansive smile on her face, when it suddenly turned into one of consternation. "Josier Bartimus Snodgrass, where did you get them new clothes?"

Josier's smile grew more expansive as he saw her consternation, and noted how well he'd fooled her. "Don't stand there lookin' at me Josier, but tell me where the money cum frum to dike you out like that. I bet it took every blessed cent of that turkey and chicken money—now didn't it?" At that Josier's face fell. "Now Marier, shorley you won't hold it against a feller, will you; I'll pay you back the first cotton money I get, shore I will. I ordered this suit two weeks ago from Williams Bros. as a surprise for yore birthday and it just cum in today an' the turkey money wuz so handy an'—" "Stop! stop! I say, Josier, stop yore blasphemy—don't I know Williams Bros. han't got no dry goods, an'—" "Now hole on, old woman, remember we hev ben gone three months—no tellin' wher them Williamses will go, nor whut they will do in three months. I hed my order made fur Sears, Roebuck Co. fur a suit but I wuz goin' to get an envelop frum them, but that pesky thin un, he sez, "Shore you got your measure right?" At that I let him see the letter, an' I vum, Marier, I didn't have them measurements—none uv them—right. Well, he takes and shows me as how he can get me a heap better suit than that fur the money an' if it don't suit, back she goes, and so I knew you depended on them fur the chicken and butter money—an' rather than disappoint you I gave them the whole order, an' saved $5.00 on the whole deal, which I give to you. Now you git a pencil and paper an' I'll give you the price of every article so you'll know I ain't keepin' nothin frum you. These fine patent leather shoes were only $4.25. This suit, H. M. Marks & Co. tailor made, wuz $16.00. This is one of the very best shirts, $1.00. These here suspenders only cost 20c. This tie was 45c and this Arrow Brand collar for 15c shore can't be beat. This hat can't be beat by none of those city jude's at $2.75. My tie holder and sleeve holders they give to me. Oh, yes these sox were 25 cents."

"All right, Josier, you march right in there an' get on your farm clothes and feed them chickens, and I'll see whut I can get when you sell yore cotton."

The Girl From the Circus

By L. A. Harker

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The scholar sat in his study before his writing table, but he did not write. He leant his elbow on the table and his head on his hand, and he was thinking of Phyllis far away in the mountains with her husband. The table was piled with books—several stood open invitingly—and a fair white sheet of paper lay on his blotting-pad—but he did not write.

Presently the maid opened the door and said:

"There's a young woman, sir, asking to see you; shall I say you're engaged?"

"A young woman?" queried the scholar. "What sort of a young woman?"

"Well, sir," and the maid closed the door behind her. "She says she's from the circus tent that's pitched on the lot behind the school house."

"From the circus?" repeated the scholar. "What can she want?"

"She won't give her name or message, sir. Shall I say that you're engaged, sir?"

The maid considered the "height of impudence" that a husky from the circus should dare to ask to see her master. Fine-dolings, indeed, for such as she to be asking for gentlemen, as bold as brass!

The scholar pondered, then he said, half to himself, "Phyllis would like me to see her—she was always kind. You can show her in."

The maid departed, and presently ushered a young woman into the room and shut the door after her carefully.

The young woman advanced into the middle of the room and then stood still awkwardly, and said nothing. She was a tall, slight girl, attired in a variety of garments, startling in hue, and having apparently no connection with one another. Her hair was crowned by a hat of portentous size, adorned by several rather dejected looking feathers. But under the furze-bush of hair the face was oval and almost beautiful in its regularity of features and pure color.

The scholar rose and bowed, then with old-world courtesy he set a chair

"I Say, You're a Knowin' Old Cove, Aren't You?"

for her, and having seen her seated, murmured something shyly as "to what he was indebted for the pleasure of this visit?"

The girl stared at him with wide blue eyes, then said abruptly: "I say, you're a knowin' old cove, aren't you?"

The scholar stared a little at this description of himself, and waved his hands deprecatingly. The girl went on: "I've heard in the town as you are always a-studyin' old books, and knows all sorts of headenish lingo; now do you know how to make a love poshin'?"

The scholar gazed at her in speechless astonishment, then he grasped the edge of his writing table for support and stammered:

"Do I understand you to ask me if I know anything about love philtres?"

"Yes, that's the ticket," said the girl, genially. "I want a love poshin to give my young man. He's been and took up with Mad'selle Leonore, what does the trials of strength, and I want to bring him back to me. I was sure as you'd know."

The scholar felt quite sorry for her when he realized the disappointment he was about to inflict, she smiled so prettily and looked so pleasant. He shook his head, then he said gently:

"I'm afraid I am quite unable to help you in this matter. I know nothing of such things, neither do I believe that they can have the smallest effect."

"But I thought you was always a-studyin' ancient days," said the girl, in an argumentative voice, leaning forward in her chair. "Do think—in some of those old books" (waving her hand in the direction of the book-lined walls). "Ain't there something in some of them old books?"

"I fear not," said the scholar almost sadly, she was so eager, so much in earnest. The girl drew herself up in her chair and said abruptly: "I'm a honest girl, I am."

"That I am sure you are, and therefore you need no love philtres. Believe me, you are quite pretty and good enough to inspire love, an honest love, without resource to magic." The scholar spoke persuasively, his voice was very gentle and his manner courtly. The girl winked her wide blue eyes, and made a little swallowing motion with her throat, then she coughed and continued: "My father's brought us up strict. He don't allow wearin' for women; and if we was igh: he'd lay the horse whip about our shoulders, he would. He's clown in our show, as is."

There was silence for a minute in the big library, then the scholar said gently: "Why do you want a love philtre? Is the—man you are engaged to fickle?"

"Well, he runs after Mad'selle Leonore, and I can't stand it, and he laughs at me, and I'm miserable, I am."

The girl's voice broke, and great tears rolled down her cheeks. She wiped her eyes with a gayly-bordered pocket handkerchief and said: "What would a lady do?"

The scholar pondered for a moment then said, diffidently, and with extreme shyness:

"I think that she would not—show that she minded. That she would try to be always sweet-tempered and gracious, above all to Madam what's-her-name. Don't let him think himself so precious, my child; we all value what is hard to obtain. He's too sure of you, or he wouldn't tease you. If you are wise, and if he is worth having—if he's worthy of you and of your good father, you'll find that all this nonsense will come to an end as a tale that is told."

It was a long speech for the scholar to make; he flushed a little as he made it, and the circus girl gazed at him admiringly, exclaiming, "You are a knowin' old cove!"

The scholar shook his head and said humbly, "I fear I am ignorant in these matters. I have only known three women intimately in my life—my mother, my wife and my daughter."

"Is that what your daughter did?" she asked, eagerly.

"I don't know what she did," answered the scholar gently; and indeed it was true, for the engagement had come to him as a bolt from the blue while he was thinking of Phyllis as still in pinafores.

"Was she very hard to please?" persisted the girl.

"Had Phyllis been hard to please?" the scholar asked himself. He did not know. It had not taken long to please her, anyhow; so he said, "I don't know if she was hard to please, but I know that whatever she did was right and womanly, and you can do all that yourself, my dear."

"I wish I was a lady!" sighed the circus girl, "but father says one can be as good a girl in a troupe as if one was a scripture reader. What do you say?"

"I quite agree with your father; he must be a most sensible man, and I wish I knew him. Believe me, a circus lady can be just as good and useful a lady as any other if she will only try, and I am sure you'll try."

The girl rose from her seat, so did the scholar; she held out her hand and he took it, and the old man and the girl looked into each other's eyes.

"Good-by," said the girl; "I'm glad I come, though you are so ignorant about love poshins!"

"I'm very glad you came," said the scholar heartily; "and, believe me, you need no love poshins, you are quite charming enough without." The girl flushed up to the roots of the furze-bush.

Then the scholar said: "Would you like some roses?" The girl said "Please sir," in the shyest, smallest voice, and the scholar held the door open for her to pass out. Then he followed her across the hall and through the open front door. He took his pruning knife from his pocket and he cut her a great bunch of roses that were famed throughout the county, then he walked down the drive with her, and at the gate he bade her good-by.

She started down the road, and then, looking back and seeing him still standing at the gate, she ran back, saying breathlessly, "I wish you'd come and see me ride. I can jump though the hoops beautiful, I can! I should like to show you."

The scholar's eyes were very kind, but he shook his head, saying: "I'm getting an old man, my dear; I hardly ever go out at night."

"But there's a matinee—an afternoon show," she explained, "this afternoon."

The scholar wavered, then the beseeching blue eyes caught his and held them. "Phyllis would like me to," he murmured; then "I will come and see you ride this afternoon."

"I shall look out for you, mind," said the girl; "don't you forget!"

The scholar did not forget—he went!

To Stay-at-Homes.

A change of air and scene is very desirable, but all of us cannot have these luxuries. Luxuries they are, though there has grown up an idea that they are necessities. Let those of us who perforce stay at home console ourselves with two reflections. First, that our forefathers never dreamed of shutting up and leaving their homes for weeks at a time, and yet they lived in comfort and died at a ripe old age. Second, that whether we get through the summer comfortably or not depends much more on ourselves than on our surroundings. A nervous, fretful woman will let the heat wear her out quite as much at the mountains or seashore as if she had never left home. A serene habit of mind and determination to make the best of things will carry out triumphantly through the hot days and over the weary nights, even if they must be spent among bricks instead of by rolling waves or rustling trees.—Harpers Bazar.

Choose Your Paint Yourself

A man should take such precautions as he can to safeguard any investment he makes. A house owner's expense for painting is very often larger than it would be if he personally looked after the material put upon it. There is often a difference of three years in the wearing of two different paints. Certainly, in this case, time is money. If you will see that Pure White Lead mixed with Pure Linseed Oil is used on your house, you will place your painting bills on a reasonable basis. You can tell the pure lead from the adulterated kind by the brand—

COLLIER

Pure White Lead (Made by the Old Dutch Process)

Manufactured for years and, as any experienced painter will tell you, the standard by which others are judged.

Why?

Why is it that when a man wants a suit of clothes he doesn't call for the cheapest thing in the house? The answer is easy—you know cheap clothing is the dearest in the long run. Why is it that a man almost invariably figures on the cheapest lumber he can buy? The answer is simple—the ordinary individual knows about as much about lumber as a monkey does about frenzied finance, and something cheap looks goods. A carpenter will tell you why the best is the cheapest, AND HE KNOWS.

SOME WEAR FINE CLOTHES

It Seems also that E. Dubbs & Sons Supply the Wants of the Majority in This Line.

Adam inaugurated the idea of making one's clothes to measure. He was so particular about the fit of his garments that he made his own clothes and fitted them, leaf at a time, around his person. Adam had an abundance of clothes but none first class, but that was because he was the victim of circumstances. If he were living today he would have probably visited The Globe Friday, Saturday or Monday and had his measure taken for about a $60 suit. Many people did, and they were just as particular about the fit of their clothes as Adam ever dared be. In all, Mr. Oliver, that clever gentleman representing Sam Leopold & Co., took measures for 61 suits and 7 pair of pants, some of the suits being as high as $60. The entire business amounted to over $1000. Mr. Oliver says this beats any business he has ever done for any house, and he has been on the road for tailoring houses for years. He says that the business done was entirely due to the push of E. Dubbs & Sons. He also attributes a great deal of their success to the judicial use of printers' ink and the fact that the Globe has the confidence of the people, having always lived up to the letter of their advertised statements and treated the people as square as they possibly could.

ROWE'S DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Many Thousand Dollars' Worth of Damage as a Result of the Fire Bug's Work.

The town of Rowe, this county, was visited by a most destructive fire last Saturday morning at an early hour, in which some $15,000 or $20,000 worth of property was destroyed. Interest in the conflagration is further stimulated by the prevailing opinion among the residents of that berg that the fire was of incendiary origin.

The business houses of Hollifield & Thornton, general merchandise dealers, and R. N. Gillis, hardware and implements, were the ones destroyed. Will Guill's barber shop was also burned.

The fire was discovered about 3:30 a. m., and the evidence of those first on the scene is that it started simultaneously in both stores, at the back end of each. As the stores are on opposite sides of the streets, facing each other, this is generally accepted as proof positive of the incendiary origin of the fire. There being no means of combatting the flames, and big headway having been gained before they were discovered, the people were forced to stand by and see the buildings destroyed.

The Hollifield & Thornton store was on the east side of the street, and was a large, double building. One portion of it had been but lately finished, and the whole was crammed full of goods of all descriptions, several thousand dollars worth being new stuff just received and only partially opened up. Their estimated loss on stock, building and fixtures, from the best reports we have been able to get, is $12,500. They carried $7000 insurance; $1500 on the building, $100 on fixtures, and $5400 on stock.

Mr. Guill's barber shop stood on the lot adjoining this store and was also burned. His loss is about $250.

The hardware house of Mr. Gillis was on the other side of the street. The loss here is estimated at about $5000, with insurance of $2000.

Sheriff Patman was phoned for and went down at an early hour of the morning. He says the evidence as gathered by him is that fire bugs were responsible for the disaster, but there is no clue as to the guilty parties, and no arrests have been made.

Hollifield & Thornton will resume business as soon as possible, and are even now getting in shape with a small stock of groceries. Mr. Gillis, we understand, will not re-enter business, as his losses bear heavily upon him. He was doing a nice business, and the people of the community deeply sympathise with him, as well as the other losers' misfortune.

FARM LABOR VERY SCARCE 100 ACRES SELL FOR $4000

Panhandle Farmers Hard Put to It to Gather Their Crops—The Denver to the Rescue.

All over the Panhandle comes the cry for more farm help. In Donley county the same conditions prevail. Every day sees farmers in town looking for laborers to help gather the crops. Cotton farmers especially are going to be up against a hard proposition, and many of them will be forced to take their children out of school, while those who have no children are worrying no little over the proposition.

The officials of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad, realizing the necessity of importing help have made very low rates for cotton pickers, Electra to Clarendon. The rate to this particular section are as follows:

Clarendon, $5.60. Rowe, $5.30. Giles, $5.20. Memphis, $5.05. Tickets on sale daily until Dec. 10, good for continuous passage. It is to be hoped that many laborers in the lower sections of the state will take advantage of these rates.

Sale of a Choice Piece of Property by Rev. G. S. Hardy Adds Another Good Citizen.

Rev. G. S. Hardy this week sold 100 acres of land a mile and a half southwest of town to W. R. Holder at $40 per acre. After the deal was closed the buyer decided that he wanted twenty acres more adjoining but not so desirable, and the deal was closed, the final figures being $4350 for the 120 acres.

This land lies just east of the D. J. Murphy place, and is improved to the extent that a well and windmill have been placed on it and a large number of trees planted. It is a choice piece of property. Mr. Holder is a prominent ranchman of Gray county, and we are informed that he will build a splendid home here and move his family over to enjoy Clarendon's excellent school advantages, and that he will probably be located with us about the first of January.

Thus the rapid advance of land values in Donley county is shown. The section that this piece of land is on was the first section of Donley county land which sold as high as $5 per acre. The editor of the Banner-Stockman well remembers recording the sale at that price some five years ago, and commenting on the fact that land was going up. The seller was H. W. Taylor, the buyer being Jackson Collier, and at that time Mr. Taylor thought that he had made a good sale, and we distinctly remember Mr. Collier's statement to us "that he had paid a fancy price."

For County Commissioner.

Mr. J. D. Jefferies is a candidate for re-election to the office of county commissioner of Donley county from the town precinct, No. 2, and authorizes the Banner-Stockman to say so. Mr. Jefferies has held this office two terms, and has made one of the best commissioners the county has ever had. His interest in Clarendon and Donley county is such as to cause him to devote to their interests his best business acumen and judgment, and he perhaps puts in more time working for the county than any other commissioner has ever done. He has done good work in the past, and the Banner-Stockman, in common with our citizenship generally, has reason to believe that he will do more in the future. Your vote could not be cast for a better man than J. D. Jefferies.

Which Did He Take?

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, was sauntering down a shady lane one day in the early summer when he met a tall, handsome youth who had just been graduated. He was poor but very intelligent. In all his courses he had taken honors, including athletics. "Well, Smith," said Dr. Wilson, "through at last, eh?" "Yes, sir," said the young man, smiling and blushing. "And now what are you going to do?" "I hardly know, sir. I have had two offers." "Two? Wonderful!" "Yes, sir. One from a scientific society, offering me a secretaryship at $5 a week and the other is from a baseball magnate offering me a five years' contract to pitch at $5,000 a season."

TWO MEN KILLED IN WRECK

The Denver Road Suffers Bad Freight Wreck Near Tascosa Tuesday. Two Injured Also.

Through freight No. 20, south-bound, went through a bridge near Tascosa Tuesday afternoon. A broken truck giving way just as the bridge was reached caused the destruction of some vital parts of the bridge, which collapsed, piling twenty cars in the shallow creek below.

Two men were killed in the wreck. One was a man named Elliott, who was in an emigrant car moving from Channing to Amarillo. The other was a tramp stealing a ride. Among the wrecked cars were four carloads of horses. Only seven of the animals escaped, the others all being killed. It was the most disastrous wreck the Denver has yet experienced.

Against Hard Proposition.

Herbert Knox Smith, the brilliant deputy of the bureau of corporations, said in Washington apropos of certain illegal acts: "Those acts are illegal, but the question is: Can the law get at the perpetrators? I am afraid it can't. For these men are poor, and monetary punishment is the only one the law can take. The law, I am afraid, is in the position of a certain housewife I heard of the other day. 'This housewife, a strict woman, said to a new maid: 'I forgot to tell you, Maude, that if you break anything, I'll have to take it out of your wages.'"

"But Maude, whom two days had heartily sickened of her berth, replied with a merry laugh: 'Do it, ma'am, do it. I've just broke the hundred-dollar vase in the parlor, and if you can take that out of four dollars—for I'm leavin' at the end of the week—why, you'll be mighty clever.'"

Forever Young.

J. Ogden Armour, returning to America on the Kronprinz Wilhelm, neatly pricked the "child musician" bubble.

A young man was praising the various child musicians of the last few seasons.

"And there is Nicolo, that wonderful boy violinist," he exclaimed. "Have you ever heard the nine-year-old Nicolo?"

"O, yes," said Mr. Armour, yawning, "I heard him 15 years ago at Covent Garden."

Progress.

"Oh, yes, he's pretty deep in politics now."

"Well, that's not surprising; that has been his bent for years."

"Bent? Huh! He's positively crooked now."—Philadelphia Press.

Versatile Youth.

"That new clerk of yours is rather versatile, isn't he?" said the drummer.

"That's what," replied the village merchant. "He makes three or four different kinds of a fool of himself every day."

TO THE PUBLIC:—If you want to buy, or have any lands for sale worth the money, it will pay you to see us. REEVES & SORELLE, Clarendon, Texas.

Sheriff J. T. Patman is an unlucky man. Only a short time ago his fine Jersey cow laid herself down and gave up the ghost, much to the financial loss of Jim and to the great grief of the other members of the family. Tuesday night Mr. Patman's saddle horse, one of the very best in the county, got tangled up in a barbed wire fence and was ruined for life, if indeed, he is not already dead as a result. Jim valued the animal at about $200 for his actual worth, and at about ten times that figure as a reliable and trustworthy family standby.

Capt. E. E. McGee and R. N. Gillis, of Rowe, were in the city Wednesday and made this office a pleasant call. Mr. Gillis is the hardware merchant who was burned out last week. Although practically ruined he takes his loss philosophically. He is a most pleasant gentleman and the Banner-Stockman greatly regrets his misfortune, as his prospects for a splendid business at Rowe were excellent. Capt. McGee was here to attend the ex-Confederate meeting, and was as jolly as ever. No man in Donley county takes more interest in the memories of the Lost Cause than himself, and he has more relics and souvenirs of that bloody struggle than anyone else whom we know. He showed us some Confederate postage stamps, relics which are now rare indeed.

White Swan and Harvest Queen flour are guaranteed at Williams Bros.

A NEW YORK milliner advertises hats from $87 to $267, which makes us awful thankful we don't live in New York.

DONLEY county cotton farmers are all wearing smiles, and report a half to a three-quarters bale crop in sight. No boll weevil to mar their happiness, either.

It is strange to notice that all the big fellows, with the exception of Adlai I. Stevenson, make a noise like a clam instead of falling over each other to congratulate Willie Hearst.

THE big men of the turf are after Texas horses. Texas is beginning to lead in everything. We notice that the only time Chicago's record of nineteen straight ball games has ever been excelled was by the Corsicana team in 1902 with twenty-seven. Yes, when anyone wants anything extra good produced they make their wants known to Texas and the state immediately enters into the producing business and always delivers the goods in good condition.

THE Hereford Brand editor is hiding his head under a new John B. Stetson hat, the gift of a friend who hides his light under a bushel and refuses to let his good works be known. Well, a hat's a hat, for a' that.

ONE man has moved to this country because he proved to his satisfaction by a scientific and infallible method that the country could not have a drouth unless the entire United States were stricken. Wish more people were of a scientific bent.

HEREFORD has bought land for a city park and will proceed to improve same at once. Clarendon has had a park site for lo these many years, but is inhabited only by the town cow and a few mud cats in the pool. Shall we let Hereford, the Plains youngster, beat us to it on this proposition?

A SISTER of Mrs. Howard Gould has married a Chinaman. She took the chink's ring and his bracelet and stated to her associates that she was married. Of course that is her business, but unless she ties Mr. Chinaman to the bracelet with his cue her chances of legally keeping the heathen are pretty slim.

AFTER Willie Also-Randolph Hearst had worn out the exclamation and interrogation points on his type-setting machines in telling his many readers what a scoundrel Murphy was, the boss of Tammany decided to turn his influence to the penny-a-paper man for governor of New York. Probably Hearst will now explain why such frequent typographical errors slipped into his paper.

MR. PROSPECTOR if you will find out how much building is being done by Panhandle towns, take the one that is doing the most and multiply the amount by two you will find that the result spells Clarendon, all with capitals.

FIFTY bushel corn crops are now the order, and each week turns up a new one. The latest is Capt. W. T. White, whose farm is near Rowe, this county. Capt. White reports having 25 acres of corn, planted on sod land, dropped in each third furrow as the land was broke, with the grass turned right over on the seed, plowed once when-knee high with a disc cultivator, and now turning out a crop of corn which looks good for 50 bushels to the acre. He had some of the ears, taken at random, in town Monday, and finer corn would be hard to find. Truly, this Panhandle soil is a wonder.

Married.

Mr. Hervey Lott and Miss Fannie Warren sprung a little surprise party on their friends and relatives last Saturday and were married at the home of Miss Sarah Porter, County Judge Morgan officiating. Mr. Lott is in the real estate business with Davis & Alexander and is a new citizen with us and a young man of merit and enterprise. His bride is the daughter of J. M. Warren of the Lelia community, and is a pretty and accomplished young woman. They will make their home in Clarendon. The Banner-Stockman extends congratulations.

A. L. Chase, of Cleburne, general manager of the various Chase electric light interests, was here Monday inspecting the local business.

The usual services will be conducted by the pastor at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. At the close of the morning service a meeting of the congregation will be held to attend to business of the church. All members of the congregation are expected to be present. On Wednesday of next week Rev. Dickey and perhaps another representative of the Clarendon church will go to Roanoke to the meeting of Dallas Presbytery and from there to Dallas to attend the meeting of the Synod of Texas.

An Awful Cough Cured.

She had spells of coughing, just like one with whooping cough and some though she would not get well at all. We got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which acted like a charm. She stopped coughing and got stout and fat," writes Mrs. Ora Bussard, Brubaker, Ill. This remedy is for sale at Dr. Stocking's store.

AGAIN LOVE FINDS A WAY

The Course of True Love May Never Run Smooth but it Sometimes Runs Exceedingly Fast.

That "Love Laughs at Locksmiths" was again proven in this city Sunday night, when Miss Rena Lee, a boarding student at Clarendon College, was married to the man of her choice without the knowledge of the school authorities. The young man in the case is a Mr. Nowel, from Aspermont, the home of the young lady. With a license in his pocket he watched his opportunity, stole his girl and had the knot tied fast by Judge Morgan and was on the train and gone with his bride before the affair was brought to the knowledge of the teachers. It was not known that they had succeeded in having the ceremony performed locally until officers at Childress in response to instructions from here, boarded the train for the purpose of putting a stop to runaway, when they were informed that they were too late and that they were duly and truly married.

The young people were really quite smooth in their plans and preparations for the marriage, and no blame attaches to the faculty, as the circumstances were such as to be unforeseen by them.

Wounds, Bruises and Burns.

By applying an antiseptic dressing to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, they may be healed without maturation and in about one-third the time required by the old treatment. This is the greatest discovery and triumph of modern surgery. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principal. It is an antiseptic when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save your time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering injuries entail. For sale at Dr. Stocking's store.

CIRCUS "RUBES" FIGHT

Campbell Bros. Show Carries Scrappy Lot of Stake Drivers and Roustabouts.

In the language of the street gamin there "was somethin' doin'" in Clarendon on circus day. Campbell Bros. show pulled in at an early hour from Amarillo, and the roustabouts had evidently been up against a particularly vile quality of Amarillo joy water from the way the blood flowed. They came in a-fighting, and kept it up off and on all day. Sheriff Patman was ousted from his slumbers at an early hour by a big burly Irishman with a face resembling a well-hacked steak, who said he wanted to report another stake driver for assault. It developed that the fight was pulled off on the train before the county line was reached, so no complaint was filed. Said the Irishman: "Well, if O'i go back down there and bate the face off the devil, and you don't see it and nobody reports it O'i wont have to pay a foine, will O'i?" On being assured that he had guessed right he said, "Well, O'll just go down there and fix that son-of-buck right now." And sure enough, it wasn't long till another rube came up town hunting a doctor, with a broken nose.

Various other fights were pulled off throughout the day, and the number of bruised faces in evidence was remarkable. Finally one of the show managers got tired of the trouble, took up a tent stake and waded into the bunch, laying them out right and left, and putting a stop to the war.

It was renewed in a different manner in the afternoon. One of the college boys got mixed up with a show man and had his face beautifully peeled by the latter. It was a case of assault, straight out, and a complaint was filed and an arrest made. At the courthouse, however, the complainant and his friends were unable to identify their man, and the case was dismissed.

that Texas people could learn something about the stability of difbridge costs more but if it stands the test it will be cheap at any price.

ARE NOT DISCOURAGED

Members of Local Cantaloupe Association Balance Books for Season and Are Glad.

The Cantaloupe Association held a meeting last Saturday and wound up the season's business matters.
There had been fear and trembling among some that the bank ledger would show the association deep in the red, consequently all were agreeably surprised when it was found that the association was only in the hole to the amount of about $50. To offset this they have a claim against transportation companies for $800. This claim is the result of delay in shipping two cars of fruit to New York, the cars having been more than two weeks on the road and the fruit spoiling as a consequence. President Cole, of the association, expresses himself as being very well pleased with the showing. After the wet weather caught the fruit in the fields there seemed little to hope for except debts, and the fact that the growers got out as lightly as they did is proof positive that the cantaloupe business here is destined to be a big thing. It developed at the meeting Saturday that there would be a big acreage next year, when favorable weather conditions will likely exist.
The wet weather this season was unusual.

Election Notice.

The Ladies' Aid society, of the Baptist church, will serve dinner to ered from local cattle raisers. The shipments are of high grade stuff in good condition and are ready for northern feed yards. They will be sold during the October auction sale at the Fort Madison yards in large
