

James Lee and bride to reside in Lubbock

Vows uniting Miss Martha Jean Tyler of Chillicothe and James Claude Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Lewis Lee, 706 Cherokee, were read Friday during a double ring ceremony in the Church of Christ at Kress. Truitt Adair officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Tyler of Chillicothe. Her father gave her in marriage.

The bride's gown of white organza featured an empire waistline encircled by a narrow organza band. Her Sabrina neckline was scalloped by rose-point appliques encrusted with seed pearls. A lace motif enhanced the front panel of her A-line skirt.

The chapel-length train formed two pleats attached at the shoulder with a small bow. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a cluster of satin petals.

Orchids and stephanotis made up the bridal bouquet which she carried atop an heirloom silk fan. Two orchids from the bouquet were the bride's going-away flowers.

Jerry Bryan of Plains sang as the couple exchanged vows before an altar flanked by tapered candelabra entwined with greenery and floral arrangements with burning tapers in the center. Attending the couple were Zella Holt of San Antonio, sister of the bride, Mrs. Ben Old of Clovis, sister of the groom. Brenda Adair of Lubbock was the flower girl.

They wore light blue cotton floor-length dresses flocked with spring flowers designed in the style of the old South. Their veils of pink and blue tulle were held by lilies-of-the-valley.

Roger Graham of Levelland served as Lee's best man and Wesley Goodson of O'Keene, Okla. was groomsman. Donny Lauderback of Hereford carried the rings.

Lynn Lauderback was candlelighter and Mike and Richard Tyler, both of Amarillo, brothers of the bride, ushered.

The bride's mother wore a beige knit dress with beige tone accessories. Mrs. Lee wore a yellow linen dress with matching coat and white accessories.

Assisting with the reception which followed immediately in the church fellowship hall were Miss Beverly Burnett of Brownfield, and Miss Frissey Whiting, Idalou.

The four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with spring bouquets was served from a table covered with white damask cloth overlaid with net and centered with a floral arrangement in pastel blue.

For the trip the bride wore a blue knit suit with beige accessories. The couple will return and live in Lubbock.

The bride, a graduate of Kress High in 1969, attended South Plains College at Levelland where her husband is also a student. Lee graduated in 1970 from Hereford High School and is employed by Travelers Insurance in Lubbock.

Premonitions defy couples' sanity

If haunted houses are most interesting to you, then you're sure to enjoy a novel made available this week at Deaf Smith County Library. Check it out today.

THE SHADOW GUEST

By Hillary Waugh
A premonition of tragedy haunted Howard Whelan when he and his beautiful wife, Angela, had to move to London. Angela had been happy in New York but she was not used to change.

It wasn't long before his forebodings came true. Angela grew depressed to the point of a near breakdown. Under intensive psychiatric care she slowly began to make her long and lonely journey back to life.

Then Howard was stricken with a sudden and severe heart attack. A rest period in the country was ordered for both of them by their doctors.

However, that was only the beginning of their troubles. Angela did the house-hunting and the damp, dismal, seaside cottage she hit upon was as opposite to her taste as it was unpalatable to his.

Howard could not understand how she had found it nor why she wanted it. But it pleased her and that was what mattered. He was determined to make the best of it.

Howard dismissed the tales of ghosts that went with the cottage as he dismissed the housemaid's premonitions of disaster.

However, when strange sounds from an empty downstairs interrupted their sleep and a ghostlike figure appeared on the lawn, he became concerned.

Could it be connected with the tragedy that had driven the owners away? Skeptic as he was Howard began to wonder.

Then Angela began to have nightmares and Howard's wonder turned to fear. She became drawn to the ghostly figure and she fought Howard's efforts to take her away.

Her health grew worse instead of better and Howard found himself protecting them both from an unknown evil that threatened them with death.

A WOMAN IN THE HOUSE

By William E. Barrett
"All that you do and all that you learn prepares you for that which some day you must face." Father Stephen had once told the young monk.

And now, Konrad was facing what he never had faced before—hatred, violence and, oddly, love.

In an oblique way, he had been touched by violence and hate in the past: during his terrifying escape from East Germany, for instance; on his first day in Munich when some young toughs had attacked him.

But, Father Stephen's teaching had not prepared Konrad for the peculiar and intensely personal hatred of the woman, Ursula: "There isn't a woman in the world who would not have a man who had seen her as you saw me," she said.

What these two people do to each other and what is done to them, as love overcomes hate, is a singularly moving novel.

For, in this tale of a young monk who owned nothing of his own, but found himself hiding the world's most priceless possession, the author of Lilies of the Field tells a love story symbolic of the love and hope men yearn for everywhere.

APPOINTS ATREIST

NORWICH, England — The Rev. Roy Flindall, rector of St. George's, Norwich, has appointed an atheist as part-time vergor of this church. Michael Harvard, a 30-year-old Royal Air Force corporal, wears a cassock in church, leads choral processions and looks the part. "I do not see anything hypocritical in my attitude," he says. "I made it quite plain before I accepted the post that I was a nonbeliever. In a world of atomic bombs I cannot accept God." The rector says, "Michael is the ideal man for the job. There is a cultural division between the secular world and the Church which I hope this appointment will bridge."

'Secret Witness Plan' helps solve many Detroit crimes

By CHARLES C. CAIN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Some one knows and the Detroit News is betting $100,000 they will tell. That is the basis of the News' unique "Secret Witness Plan" under which it offers substantial rewards for information leading to solution of certain major crimes of violence in Michigan.

Fifteen murders, two bank robberies and a number of other crimes have been solved on the basis of information supplied by citizens through the secret witness idea.

The News has paid out $38,000 of its own money in reward in the four years the plan has been in operation, and it distributed an additional $38,000 put up by various organizations for solution of crimes. These included bar owners' associations, labor unions and banks which posted rewards for apprehension of those who committed crimes against their members.

The key component of the secret witness plan is the extreme care taken to protect the identity of informants. Not even Boyd S. Simmons, assistant managing editor of the News and guardian of the secret witness plan, knows the identity of some of the people to whom he has paid thousands of dollars in cash.

Close cooperation between the News and police agencies are involved in the plan which has won warm endorsement from law officers, Detroit Police Insp. Delore Ricard put it simply, "Many of our homicides — marked solved today — would be unsolved if it were not for the secret witnesses found by the News."

The Detroit FBI bureau, traditionally reserved in its treatment of the press, wrote to the News after a case had been solved. "It is felt that without the information obtained from this program, chances of this case being solved have been slim."

Police sources were a bit wary of the program when it was first announced but after seeing it in operation, they now often take the initiative in asking the News to add a particular case of theirs to the list of the crime rewards.

The News made it easy for those with knowledge of crimes to funnel their information through the newspaper to police agencies. They could either telephone the information on a special hot line or send it along to a specially designated postoffice box.

For those who wrote, the News asked them to include a capsule summary of the crime on which they were offering information. The letter was not to be signed, but rather the writer would make his own combination of the numbers 123456 on the letter and tear off a corner of the paper.

If and when the information paid off in a conviction of the person named in the letter, the writer — or his priest, minister, rabbi or lawyer — could contact the News, submit his missing corner of the letter and claim his reward.

"You get very few screwball tips in these cases," said Simmons. Simmons, explaining the theory behind the secret witness idea said, "The crime we are out to solve is the crime of violence committed by a stranger in your home, at work or on the street . . . crimes that could happen to you."

He said the News generally does not offer a reward in a case until the police appear to have come to a dead end in their investigation.

"Early in the program the various police agencies suggested that we not investigate the tips but simply turn them over to the police to process and we have done that," he said.

"The police generally are pretty good about keeping us posted on how they are faring with the tips we supplied them," he continued.

Simmons said, "Most of the tips we get from people come as a result of their indignation about a particular crime and their desire to have it solved. . . we do get some tips from people who primarily are interested in the reward money."

He said the reward money, running up past $5,000 in some cases, had been used for different purposes by the recipients.

For one man, it meant a chance at a college education. For another, a chance to start his own business.

For another, it meant flight before some of his associates might be able to run down his part as fingerman for the police.

One recipient of a reward was so fearful he agreed to accept it only in the privacy of the Detroit FBI bureau. The informant came in with his identifying slip of paper, got his cash and walked out with no one the wiser to his identity.

The secret witness idea got its start in Chicago in the early 1950's when a manufacturer named William L. Finstad sold the Chicago Sun-Times on the idea. The Sun-Times dropped the idea after several years but some other newspapers took it up after the News and its editor Martin S. Hayden gave the plan a big push in early 1967.

They included the Baltimore News American which discontinued the idea in late 1969 after six months operation; the Saginaw, Mich., News which started it in late 1970; the San Rafael, Cal. Independent Journal which used the plan on an occasional, not regular, basis. In another variation, the Pontiac, Mich., Press cooperates with the Pontiac city government which offers rewards for solution of certain crimes.

Not all those who contact the Detroit News plan are looking for reward; in one case, an informant's information solved a case but he refused the money; in another, he gave the money to charity.

The tips vary according to the importance of the case. In the recent John Norman Collins case in which the former Eastern Michigan University student was convicted in the slaying of a coed, the News received over 1,000 tips which were turned over to police. No reward has been paid to any witness by the three man jury which makes the awards — Richard S. Enrich, Episcopal Bishop of Michigan and Detroit attorneys Thomas L. Munson and Louis F. Simmons. Their word is final in all cases.

Simmons, after four years of guiding operation of the secret witness idea, had one suggestion for others who might follow it.

"Never publish a sketch of a wanted man for you just touch off a flood of crank calls," he said, adding with a grin, "the last time we ran a sketch, I became so involved in the thing that I began to imagine each night as I was going home that I saw the suspect on a bus or a street corner."

Black Friday, September 26, 1969, was the day of financial panic in Wall Street.

Singer to give recital

Carla Crist, soprano, will be presented in voice recital at 2:30 p.m. today in the home of her teacher, Mrs. Dolson Palmer, with family members and friends invited to hear an informal program.

Her first group of songs will include Caro Mio Ben (Giordani) and three sacred selections, Teach Me to Pray, I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked and Hold Thou My Hand.

After an intermission she will sing a Norwegian folksong, When I Was Seventeen; My Lover is a Fisherman, by Strickland; and songs from two Richard Rodgers musicals, Climb Every Mountain from Sound of Music, and I Enjoy Being a Girl from Flower Drum Song. Shan Bankz will pour punch for the recital guests.

The young soloist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Crist and a junior in Hereford High, lived 17 miles northeast of Hereford until she moved with her parents to 138 Nueces a month ago. She is the Dawn Lions Club sweetheart, and plans to make a career in music.

At HHS she plays alto saxophone in the concert, marching and stage bands; she had the role of Ethel in the Music Man, school musical last term. Attending First Nazarene Church here, she sings in the district youth choir, West Texas Ambassadors.

Amy Ballard,
Clif Herring marry Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ballard announce the marriage of their daughter, Amy Labryre, to Clifford Paul Herring, son of Mr and Mrs. Dean Herring, in a Friday evening wedding in Ward Parlor of First United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Norman Cobb, associate pastor of the church, read the ceremony.

Miss Darla Springer was Miss Ballard's maid of honor, while Greg Herring, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. A medley of wedding songs was played by Jim Hannaford, pianist, who also played the professional music.

The bride was dressed in orchid crepe, in quaint peasant style with bands of varicolored embroidery on the full sleeves, down the front of the empire bodice and at the tip of a wide ruffle which circled the skirt at floor length.

She wore flowers in varied shades of purple in her hair, and her bouquet was formed of white roses and gladiolus with a few of the purple blossoms.

Miss Springer wore a pink frock in design similar to the bride's, and carried pink and purple flowers.

A reception after the ceremony was held in Ward Parlor. Wedding cake and punch were served by the bride's sisters, Mrs. Ronnie Welty and Miss Laura Ballard, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Monica Herring. The oval table was centered with flowers repeating the wedding colors.

After a trip, Mr. and Mrs. Herring will be at home at 1209 Grand. Both will be 1971 summer graduates of Hereford High School.

Former resident is bride

The marriage of Miss Denise Ann Melton, formerly of Westway community, and Kenneth Earl Brannan, student at Angelo State University, was a recent event in First Baptist Church of Portland, Tex., where both families reside.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Melton and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Brannan, all of the Gulf Coast city.

The Melton family lived at Westway until a few years ago; the bride was born there and attended Hereford schools. She is the niece of Mrs. Frank Cogdell and Walter Seeds of Hereford.

The couple is at home in San Angelo, where Brannan is a sophomore physical education major at ASU. Both are graduates of Gregory-Portland High School and were National Honor Society members.

Their wedding was conducted by the Rev. W. D. Broadway, pastor, after a Sunday morning worship service in the church. Mrs. Richard Brock of Laredo was her sister's matron of honor and Gary Harrison of Portland was best man. Mrs. Johnny Miller of New Braunfels, sister of the bridegroom, was the wedding soloist.

Liberals argue that no community has the right to exclude any person by imposing a zoning requirement for a certain type or size dwelling. They insist that every community must be open to all economic groups and contain a mix of social types. This attitude is characteristic of the intellectual orientation of contemporary liberals. They not only demand complete leveling in community life but strive to have the federal government impose a stereotyped plan on all citizens.

There's nothing in America's political tradition to justify either the leveling doctrine or the compulsory association notion inherent in a plan of federal zoning. More than that, no one has an automatic right to live in any particular neighborhood or real estate development. Community authorities traditionally have enjoyed the right to set standards through zoning laws—standards that embody community concepts. This pattern has developed because that's what people want. People want a true neighborhood feeling—a genuine sense of community and identity.

Proponents of federal zoning would wipe out all that and make every community conform to a single federal model. If they are successful, the liberals will have pushed this country far toward the monolithic existence envisioned in George Orwell's book 1984. They would introduce in American life a rigidity that would be intolerable to free spirits.

The federal zoning concept should be fought by every citizen who values his human and property rights, his rights to individuality and freedom of choice in developing a community living pattern. The political process at the town and city level affords ample opportunity for developing equitable zoning policies. Suburbanites don't need a bureaucratic Big Brother in Washington to set the rules for their residential areas. Land use is a matter for the individual land-owner and local government, not a proper concern of the central government.

Elderly becoming big element here

Deaf Smith County residents 15 years of age and older are emerging as a more important element in the local economy than ever more through their demands and potentials available to the community.

Proportionately, they have been expanding at a more rapid rate in the last ten years than most other age groups. Approximately 1 out of every 15.6 local residents is now in the plus-65 category.

And, because the majority of them have become more self-sufficient than their counterparts were in previous years, their status as consumers has risen.

As a result, they have become the sales targets of manufacturers and merchants who have found that they can boost their sales volumes by giving special attention to the needs and desires of the elderly.

Politically, also, they are being courted. Their influence is great, not only because of their growing size but because most of them get to the polls on election day.

In Deaf Smith County, the latest figures show, those in the over-65 bracket now number 1,211. Of the overall population they represent 6.4 per cent. In 1960 they totaled 5.7 per cent. Throughout the United States as a whole, the upper age group constitutes 9.9 per cent of the total. It represents 9.5 per cent in the West South Central States.

In most parts of the country, the figures show, women have a much better longevity record than men. This is borne out by the last census, which counted 139 women over 65 for every 100 men.

In Deaf Smith County the number of women of that age is 673 and the number of men, 538. Although many elderly people are having a hard time these days, financially, because of the constantly rising cost of living, the majority are holding their own by virtue of increased social security benefits, medicare and special tax reductions.

As a group, their combined purchasing power is about $45 billion a year, which is much greater than it was 10 years ago.

Lloyd Bentsen: weekly report

One of the things I have sought to become involved in since coming to Washington as a U. S. Senator representing the people of Texas is the growing number of complaints against the bureaucracy of the Federal government, and the frequent inconsistencies of the sprawling agencies which have so much to do with regulating the lives of all Americans.

One of the latest, and to me one of the most inconsistent efforts by a bureaucracy, was the effort by the Department of Transportation to prevent those under 21 years of age from driving farm trucks. The Department wanted to include farm vehicles in a set of new regulations that require drivers to take a physical test, extensive drivers' tests, and that they be 1 years of age.

Those of us who know something about farming know that such regulations would work extreme hardships on many family workers. Historically, farm vehicles have been exempt from certain regulations in order to permit responsible youngsters to help with the farm work.

We all support safety measures. But this regulation says in effect that 18-year olds are not sufficiently responsible to drive farm trucks in the fields. My contention is that if they're old enough to be drafted, then certainly they're old enough to help with the farm work by driving farm machinery and trucks.

I can report that the Department of Transportation is showing some response to my protests. We have asked for exemptions, and the Department is considering exemptions to permit youngsters 18 and older to drive, trucks and farm vehicles. We are now told that the Department really never intended to put farm youths under the restrictive regulations, which is a good indication that the bureaucrats are backing off from their earlier stand.

A Senator receives a lot of mail, some complimentary, some critical and some requests. Occasionally, there is a letter that is especially touching and needs to be shared. Such a letter came in this week from the Richard Fletchers in Gruveg, Texas, who have recently adopted a Vietnamese-American orphan.

The letter was especially gratifying to me because I had personally intervened in behalf of the Fletchers with the American Embassy when I was in Saigon during a trip to Southeast Asia. Also, we kept a fire built under the State Department to help cut red tape to get the 16-month old child cleared for adoption.

The Fletchers, who have two other children, initiated efforts to adopt the baby after reading about the many unwanted Vietnamese-American orphans in Vietnam. Mrs. Fletcher's description of the child, her heart-rending description of him as an undernourished baby on his arrival some weeks ago, and her elation at the baby's response to good care and ample love, is very moving. Wrote Mrs. Fletcher: "We have three children. One of them is adopted, and already I forget which one."

On a different subject, recreation and conservation, I have initiated work in the Public Works Committee, on which I serve, and with the Corps of Engineers to provide broader use of the Federally controlled lands associated with flood control projects near Houston's great urban population.

These lands are set aside for impounded water when there is flood danger, and naturally cannot be the site of permanent buildings. But they can be used for outings, for camping, for recreation with a minimum of expenditures for a chance for city dwellers to really enjoy some of the quality of life that we find outdoors.

The process of coordinating such projects is time-consuming, and getting the agencies in-

YOU MIGHT say that summer is really in swing now; nearly everyone you meet has just got back or is just starting on a vacation, or has vacation visitors.

Guests of Alberta and Hap Higgins at their ranch home north of Hereford have been her sister and family, Col. and Mrs. Frank W. Durkee and Jill from Kincheloe Air Force Base in Michigan. Jill, a high school graduate this spring, arranged while she was here to begin nurse's training at Amarillo in the fall.

When I saw Alberta the last of the week, she said they expected more company Friday—their daughter, Janis, and her husband, Tommy Gordon, from Apalachicola, Fla.

ALSO EXPECTED as a visitor this week, by Mrs. J. T. Gilbreath Sr., was her son, Carl Shirley, a former Hereford resident who teaches in Balboa, Panama Canal Zone.

VISITING THE Al Lees at midweek were their daughter Deborah, Mrs. Ben Olds of Clovis, and her two-year-old daughter Tanna. Deborah and Tanna were downtown Thursday, making an attractive picture in their mother and daughter pantsuits.

Sewed by the young mother, they had tops in red-white-and-blue stripe worn with pants of the solid flag blue. Plumb cut!

GETTING READY to move all the way to Alaska, Betty Thomas is growing more excited involved to get together in administration, supervision, rules, etc. won't happen tomorrow. But the time to get started is now, and hopefully we can clear some of the red tape and get the land designated for recreation and park purposes.

With a little planning, and a little cooperation, we can make several thousand acres of land available for use of city people who want to enjoy the surroundings of relatively unspoiled surroundings.

The Gallery at Carl McCaslin Lumber had its formal opening? The prize, an old-fashioned crock churn, the kind that was no antique when I first learned its uses. Even a pre-schooler could help around the farm by churning.

Of course it's supposed to be decorated now, in some of the clever crafts that you can learn at The Gallery, for display in a room with Early American furniture. But that's not my period, and I think it can stay blue and white, ready dasher and all in case there might be some clabber to be churned some day.

Cemetery group meets Tuesday

The annual membership meeting of the Hereford Cemetery Association will be held in Community Center, Tuesday, June 22 at 3:00 o'clock.

All members and anyone who is interested in the Hereford Cemetery are urged to attend this meeting and help elect a Board of Directors and hear the reports and discussion of the year's work.

Jack Nunley of 602 E. 4th is Father of the Year in Hereford for 1971. He received the title in the 6th annual Fathers Day event sponsored by Radio Station KPAN, based on letters written by children to nominate their fathers.

His daughters are Annie, now Mrs. Roger Ruland, and Leta, and his sons are Gerald, who lives in Colorado Springs, and Dennis. Last year the Nunley family included a foster son, Dean Navigamool, student from Thailand who spent the year attending Hereford High School in the American Field Service (AFS) program.

Ray Hartman called him into his office. What for, Dippel didn't know. "I was completely surprised. I didn't have any idea. I was happy and scared," Dippel said, recalling his feelings after hearing about the probable promotion for Wartes and for himself.

Hartman told Dippel not to get his hopes too high, because it still had to be approved by the School Board, "but that didn't work, because I did think about it a lot. I did a lot of thinking and a lot of worrying. All I could think about was could I do it, and if I could, how would I do it?"

What made it more unbearable, he couldn't say a thing about this thing he was so elated about. Obviously, there shouldn't be any rumors before the School Board was presented the matter for its decision.

"The first honest feeling I had, all of a sudden," Dippel said, "was a loss of confidence in myself. Being an assistant coach, you always have the confidence you can do about anything, but all of a sudden, all of my confidence left me."

Having played lineman on a state championship team that Wartes coached at Stamford in 1958 and having been an assistant under Wartes for six of his eight years, Dippel finds his philosophy almost a carbon copy of Wartes'.

"Most of the things I've learned, I feel like I've learned from him," Dippel said. "In fact, I'd probably reached the point where I don't know if I could have worked for anybody except Larry. It would have been hard to work with anybody a great deal different from him."

After some inquiries he made in the past year, Dippel was disappointed that most expresses this is Matthew 19:14, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven," Mrs. Wilson said.

Director ...

Sharing and social relationships are heavily emphasized at the Day Care Center. This gets the children emotionally ready to begin school.

"This is the most rewarding work I have ever done. I've known for a long time if there was a God-given talent I had, it was working with children and young people. I sometimes get impatient, but more at myself than with the children. I feel God has given me the ability to control my anger and frustrations that come to being with little children all day."

"In this fast, hard society which we live, this is something we can do to make a child happier and easier adjusted to life," Mrs. Wilson said.

The former Anna Jo Owen, she was born and reared in Hereford. She was the only daughter in a family of eight sons. Her father farmed and operated a cleaning business.

Residing at 239 Avenue D, she and her husband Gerald have one daughter Dian, now Mrs. Dan Belbeck, and a son, James Nell, 13.

For 12 years, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson operated the "Corral" cafe, catering to high school students during the lunch hour. They ran the La Hacienda Restaurant for four years.

Prior to the cafe business, Mrs. Wilson operated her father's cleaning service for 12 years. The Wilsons are members of the First Baptist Church, where Mrs. Wilson served as nursery director and cook for church events.

"I feel that if people work with children and youth, they will always stay young," Mrs. Wilson said.

"The city of Hereford has grown so much, we have new industries and many new people. Since we are progressing so rapidly, much is required of us. One of these is to provide a place for children, help them grow mentally and spiritually while their mothers work."

"In order for us to know Jesus and the true meaning of life, we must be like genuine, honest children. The biblical scripture

Glider planes will fill air over Hereford

Hereford will host the Texas Speed Soaring Contest Saturday and Sunday, and pilots from four other states are expected to be on hand.

At least 18 sailplanes, ranging in value from $500 to $15,000, will be trailed up to the Hereford Airport and towed into the sky to make their flights.

The competitors — from Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Kansas — will practice all day Friday, and then compete Saturday and Sunday. Several members of a soaring club based in Hereford are entered.

"Visitors are very welcome out here," said John Claypool of Hereford, who will be in charge of the contest. There is no admission charge.

Each pilot will have a route he must follow in his sailplane. He has a choice of gliding from Hereford to Canyon to Dimmitt and back to Hereford or to Vega to Friona and back to Hereford. An equal distance is involved in both trips.

The winner will be the glider which makes the round trip in the fastest time.

The second phase of the competition is Sunday, when pilots will go to a certain location and return. Again the pilots will have two choices — either to the zinc smelter plant in Amarillo or to an intersection in Hart where five highways come together.

Both Saturday, the pilots will take pictures from a camera mounted in the plane to prove they flew over the required points.

The ground crew of each pilot will follow on the ground with a trailer in case lack of proper wind conditions should cause the glider to come down prematurely. If there is time, the trailer will bring the glider back to Hereford, where the pilot will be allowed to try again.

Competition will be in four classes, separated by wing span. Gliders with wing span up to 13 meters will be in one class, from 13 to 15 meters in another class, from 15 to 17 1/2 meters in another class, and anything larger will be in the fourth class. The wider the wing span, the greater the distance a sailplane will glide farther for every foot of decline.

This is the first such competition being scheduled in the Panhandle.

It came about as a result of a convention of the Texas Soaring Society last spring in Dallas. It was urged there that more smaller meets be conducted for the non-expert pilots, since most contests are restricted to top pilots.

"This is for the little guys, then," Claypool said. "This is the first such competition being scheduled in the Panhandle."

He was offered the head job at Roswell, N.M., a couple of months ago but turned it down. "I didn't think it was as good as the assistant's job here, as far as I was concerned."

At some of the larger schools he visited, there were problems such as disharmony with the administration, racial problems, etc. So he stayed here, with no regret.

"I was happy with the assistant's job in Hereford. Very happy. Happy enough to stay as long as Larry was here. And I accept the challenge and opportunity of coaching here since he was promoted."

The key thing to success in coaching, Dippel feels, is to have the key players giving 100 per cent when game time arrives.

"And that was Larry's philosophy. How I go about doing it may be different from Larry, but that player has to perform on Friday night for a coach to succeed, no matter how much he knows about the game," Dippel said.

"If there's any difference between us, it could be that I might be more technique-conscious, although I don't want to be. What Larry was good at was in getting the players to want to play for him. The main difference will be in my personality, as compared to his, but my philosophy is going to be basically the same."

Camp Wigwam opens today with 13 local kids

Some 13 mentally retarded children from Hereford, who were sponsored by various local civic organizations, are attending Camp Wigwam, a special camp for exceptional children this month.

Beverly Bell, Cathy Warden, Rodney Huston will leave today to attend the first week-long camp session. These three will return Saturday and the second group will leave June 27 for a week's stay.

Those to attend the second session are Donna Rickman, Karen Shores, Melinda Simons, Janie Torres, Rey Arando, Jimmie Dale Brownlow, Tony De La Cruz, Brad Hromas, David Legates and Royce Legates.

Camp director Gene Brock and four counselors, all from Hereford, left Saturday morning for a day of orientation prior to the start of the first session. The directors are Charlene Weaver, Brenda Brock, Jerry Brock and Harold Schmuecker.

Some 140 area retarded children will participate in the programs at Camp Wigwam this summer. There are 4 staff members to assist the children during their stay.

Life among snakes appeals to transplanted American

By LISA WOHL
SELAIYUR VILLAGE, India (AP) — Romulus Whitaker is a 27-year-old American who loves snakes.
He loves them so much that when he was in the Army, he kept rattlesnakes in his barracks locker.
"They used to rattle when I came into the room, and I'd beg them to be quiet," he recalls.
Despite numerous warnings from his superiors, Whitaker never got in trouble.

Today, he is keeping his snakes — more than 200 of them — in a snake park he founded a year ago in this typically Indian village of thatched huts and rice fields 15 miles from Madras.
Whitaker's snake zoo, financed largely by the World Wildlife Fund, is a popular attraction to Indians and foreign tourists who pay a four-cent admission fee and get a lecture and a view of 25 species of reptiles, both poisonous and non-poisonous, in return.

Although India is known as the land of snake charmers, Whitaker says the flute-playing showmen are phonies.
"With a defanged cobra, a two-year-old can be a snake charmer," he says.
And what about the flutes?
"Snakes can't hear. The music is for the tourists, not the snakes," Whitaker explains.

Whitaker also explodes local myths about snakes. Many Indians believe killing a cobra, a benevolent figure in Hindu and Buddhist mythology, brings bad luck and that the dead cobra's mate will track down the slayer for revenge.
"Nonsense," Whitaker tells his startled visitors.
His arguments carry extra weight because he can speak in Tamil, Hindi and Kannada, the local vernaculars he learned in Indian schools when his family lived in the country during his childhood.

Whitaker's reputation as a snake expert has grown so great villagers now consult him for snakebite remedies.

When he first arrived here, snakebite victims preferred the rituals of the local priests.
"Now if it's anything mysterious and poisonous, they come to me," say Whitaker, who keeps a supply of antitoxins in his refrigerator.
Whitaker milks his snakes for deadly venom that Indian biochemical laboratories turn into life-saving antitoxins.
Cobra venom, he says, also yields a non-habit-forming painkiller "better than morphine" for use in cancer and arthritis treatments. Russell's viper venom produces a blood coagulant used by dentists, he adds.

"I could supply the world with venom," says the native of Hoosac, New York. He has applied for an Indian export license.
Whitaker, a dedicated conservationist, regrets that venom collection causes psychological and physical damage to snakes.
"Snakes are delicate creatures," he says. "When one dies you feel like mourning."

Whitaker says he plans to stay in India indefinitely and is content living in rural isolation among his snakes.
"When you live with snakes you get to be more like them," he says.
Despite his love for India, Whitaker feels the United States also has a great snake-hunting potential.

"There are great snakes in your own back yard," he says. "You never see them, that's all."
SOMEWHAT SHAKEN
LEXINGTON, Ky. — Fred J. Kissinger was somewhat shaken when he ordered a new suit.
"It was only when the tailor told me what my waist measured," he said, "that I realized a Douglas fir with that much girth would be 90 feet tall."

Baron Von Richthofen was called the Red Baron because his plane was painted red.

Hereford woman to represent area at national convention

The 14th Biennial Convention of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League, meeting in Louisville, Ky., this week, will have Mrs. Herman J. Schelter of 363 Western as a representative of the High Plains area. Meeting dates are June 22-24.
Mrs. Schelter, wife of the pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church here, is Christian growth chairman on the High Plains Zone LWML. With almost 4,000 local societies in the United States and Canada, the LWML is an auxiliary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The convention program concerns problems in human relations, ecology, social ministries and evangelism. Action groups will discuss ways for individuals to work at solving these problems, and how to keep the "action" going in their home church groups.

The convention will hear Dr. J. A. O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Dr. Preus with three leaders of the Catholic, United Presbyterian, and Christian and Missionary Alliance churches journeyed around the world, meeting with world leaders to press for peace in Indo-China and plead for the release of prisoners in Vietnam.
Other featured speakers on the program include Mrs. Robert Kroehnke, a missionary wife just returned from New Guinea, Dr. Theodore Raedeke, national director of the International Evangelism Thrust, "Key 73," and Dr. William Danker, St. Louis Seminary professor recently returned from an extensive tour and study professor recently returned from an extensive tour and study of Africa.

The league raises over half a million dollars every year for special grants in addition to local service projects undertaken. International projects just completed include scholarship funds for India, Brazil, and the Philippines, a rehabilitation program in war-torn Nigeria, grants for an American Indian Ministry, Lutheran Braille Workers, Inc., an Argentine Lutheran Prep school, and a Spanish Religious TV series.

Delegates will vote on projects for the coming two-year period, by-laws changes and proposed programs, and elect new officers. More than 2500 leaguers are registered to attend under the convention theme, "Declare His Glory."

Concerning veterans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their dependents are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q — I know a veteran who served on active duty during WWI and WWII. Will a burial allowance of $50 be paid for each period of service?
A — No. A single payment, not to exceed $50, is payable toward the veteran's burial expenses.

Q — A friend gets maximum disability compensation from the VA because of war injuries. He works for the state at a good salary, and sells insurance at night. A fellow employee has challenged his entitlement to disability payments. Is he entitled to them?
A — Yes, if he is receiving compensation for a service-connected disability. Outside in-

Bufs face rugged 26-game schedule

CANYON, Tex.—West Texas State University's Buffaloes, hoping to improve on a 19-7 record, face a rugged 26-game basketball schedule for the 1971-72 season.

Coach Dennis Walling, in announcing the completed schedule, pointed out that the Buffaloes will play 14 home games in Amarillo's Civic Center Coliseum and 12 on the road.
The Buffaloes played all of their home games in Amarillo this past season and drew record crowds, averaging 3,113 per game.

West Texas will be competing as an independent for the final time, but it gets a strong taste of Missouri Valley Conference basketball. The Buffaloes, who will compete for the MVC title the following year, play four MVC opponents, three of them in Amarillo.
The Buffaloes face North Texas State in Amarillo Jan. 8, Drake Jan. 11 and Wichita State University Jan. 17. They travel away from home to face Drake Feb. 1, Tulsa Feb. 17, North Texas March 2 and Wichita State March 4.

The Buffaloes open their season with a pair of home games, playing Fort Lewis State Dec. 1 and the University of Texas at Arlington Dec. 4. Following those two games, they make a rugged three-game road trip.
West Texas State's Jan. 3 game in the Civic Center against Athletes in Action, an independent amateur team representing Campus Crusade for Christ, will not count on the Buffaloes' record. NCAA rules prevent games against independent teams counting on school's records.

Other home games are against Eastern New Mexico University, Weber State, Long Island University, Houston Baptist University, Southwestern Louisiana, New Mexico State, Utah State, and Oklahoma Christian University.
The Buffs won 19 of 26 games last fall and from that team they

Plunkett, Kern clash in All-Star Game

Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett, a quarterback from Stanford, will duel against Ohio State's Rex Kern Saturday night in the 11th annual Coaches' All-America Game, set for a 7:30 p.m. start in Jones Stadium at Lubbock.

terback his junior year, but Plunkett came on last year to keep him from repeating.

The game will be televised nationally, but blacked-out in this area, Lubbock officials said. Chuck Hixson, SMU's record-setting passer, will be in and out of the West lineup with Plunkett, and for the East, Alabama's Scott Hunter will be sharing time with Kern. Hunter broke most of Joe Namath's records at Alabama.

The West will have such receivers as All-Americans Chuck Dicus of Arkansas, a flanker; Ernie Jennings of Arkansas, a flanker; and offensive ends Bob Moore of Stanford and J. D. Hill of Arizona State.

Texas will have a couple of players on the team—defensive end Bill Ateiss and offensive tackle Bobby Wuensch. Arkansas' Jerry Moore will bolster the West defensive backfield.

Charley McClendon of LSU is head coach for the East, assisted by Alex Agase of Northwestern and Fran Curci of Miami. Bob Devaney of Nebraska coaches the West, assisted by Bennie Ellender of Tulane and John Ralston of Stanford. Tickets are on sale at the Texas Tech ticket office.

Here are the rosters for both squads:

An international effort: the United Nations

(Editor's Note: David Thomas left today for a trip, sponsored by the Odd Fellows, to the United Nations. He won the trip on the basis of an interview, answers to a questionnaire and an essay he wrote. His essay follows.)

An International Effort: THE UNITED NATIONS For centuries, mankind's indulgence in wars and military conflicts has created worldwide tension and concern. Because of such interest and desire for peace, the countries of the world ultimately organized to form the United Nations.

Today, many consider this body to be internationally powerful, and perhaps the world's last hope for preventing future holocausts, a la World War III. Although a mighty force, however, its true value can only be appreciated after one becomes cognizant of its history, objectives, organizations, and accomplishments.

Following World War I, the development of the United Nations began with Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations. This group of countries held many beliefs that were later employed by the present-day UN. Wilson actively sought support for his plan, but it later succumbed to Congressional execution in the United States.

Nevertheless, a spirit for international unification persisted, and in 1941, the Atlantic Charter was presented. With this document, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Sir Winston Churchill pledged to establish an international organization after World War II. Later conferences at Moscow and Teheran in 1943 reaffirmed his goal between England, Russia, and America.

Progress continued when the Dumbarton Oaks Conference of 1944 brought representatives from China, Russia, England, and the United States to Washington, D. C. for the purpose of writing the rough draft for the United Nations Charter.

In February of 1945, delegates to the Yalta Conference made plans for a San Francisco meeting, at which time the Dumbarton Oaks proposals could be implemented. A dream finally reached reality when fifty nations adopted the last copy of the UN Charter at the Golden Gate City in April of 1945.

The principal ideology of the United Nations revolves around its desire to maintain peace throughout the world. Specifically, the body has other long-range objectives. Ambassadors continually strive to solve economic, social, cultural, and humanitarian problems on the international level.

Furthermore, it promotes respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms. A final purpose for the United Nations is that it serves as an excellent center through which nations can meet to discuss their problems and difficulties.

Such ambitious aims for peace and worldwide cooperation made it imperative that the charter members organize a structure for the United Nations. Hence, the UN has six "principal organs" to aid in its efficiency. The General Assembly wields great power, as it attempts to keep peace, solve international disputes, promote higher standards of living, and occasionally admit or expel member countries.

It is the only division in which all members participate. On the contrary, the Security Council is composed of 11 members, with five permanent delegates originating from the "Big Five" nations of France, Nationalist China, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and the United States. With six other alternating members, these men investigate disputes between countries, and may impose military force when deemed necessary.

The Economic and Social Council and the Trusteeship Council are respectively responsible for supervising world economic conditions and territories that are unprepared for self-government. Judicially, legal action of the United Nations is consummated in the International Court of Justice.

Serving as the chief administrative officer of the UN is the Secretary-General. Following recommendation from the Security Council, this individual is elected by the General Assembly. His duties range from appointing the UN staff to supervising all of its office work. Thus, the Secretariat directs the work of the five remaining organs in the United Nations.

Due to a pertinent group of objectives and a sturdy structure within which to work, the United Nations has made many accomplishments since its inception in 1945. Although some events such as the Hungarian Revolution, Berlin Crisis, and Communist Chinese expansion were failures, the New York City-based operation is renowned for its many successes. At the request of the United Nations, Soviet troops withdrew from Iran in 1946.

Following Mideast trouble a decade later, the Security Council successfully urged English, French, and Israeli troops to withdraw from Egypt. Other notable achievements occurred when the UN became instrumental in creating the new nations of Indonesia and Israel.

Its police forces helped to ease tense situations in both Cyprus and the Congo. The major victory for the organization was the repelling of aggressive North Korean Communists by its own armed forces, under the direction of General Douglas MacArthur.

Thus, efforts to establish the United Nations progressed from ideas to development to guidelines to productive implementation. International cooperation was responsible for yesterday's alliance and is responsible for today's peacemaking decisions.

The question remains: Will the United Nations continue to be an effective force for the future? Tomorrow's answer lies in mankind's patience and concern for peace.

Mrs. Flowers is recent hostess to needle club

An informal social meeting of Mothers Needle Club was held in Mrs. Adam Flowers' home Thursday, when members spent a leisurely afternoon chatting, and were served tea.

Mrs. E. V. Carter was a guest, and members present were Mmes. W. T. Gunstenson, H. E. Lindley J. L. Shirley, C. N. McClure, W. H. Awtrey Sr. and Haskell Benson.

The July meeting will be at 2:30 p. m. on the 15th, in the home of Mrs. McClure.

Work day, election on program for Bippus H.D. Club meeting

A work day at Bippus Community Building was held at this week's meeting of Bippus H. D. Club. Members staged a cleanup of the yard around the building where church services and other community events are held.

Mrs. G. V. Hall was hostess for the meeting, which featured election of officers for a new year. Mrs. Kenneth Homfeld was named president to succeed Mrs. J. V. Perrin; Mrs. Charlie Burk is the new vice president, Mrs. Hall secretary.

Mrs. Wayne Sifford was elected delegate to the County H. D. Council and Mrs. Perrin will serve as alternate.

The club will not meet through remaining summer months. Programs will resume Sept. 8, when Mrs. Jack Fortenberry's home is designated as the meeting place.

Mrs. C. F. Homfeld presented the program, on care of various types of floors. A new member, Mrs. Jack Nolan, was welcomed to the club.

The Fisherman's Ring is placed on the Pope's finger at his election and broken up at his death, says the new Webster's "Dictionary of Proper Names." The ring shows St. Peter in a boat hauling in a fishing net.

Vacation Bible School at Frio Baptist Church, the past week has been attended by approximately 100. Mrs. Tommy Sparkman has been principal. A picnic at the church on Friday concluded the event. Commencement was scheduled for Friday evening at the church. Frio Church will be dismissed Sunday night and Wednesday night so that members may attend the Encounter '71 Crusade at Hereford this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Parris and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Watson left last weekend for Des Moines to attend funeral services for Mrs. Bob Doughman, mother of Mrs. Watson. The service was held Wednesday afternoon there in Hamilton Funeral Chapel. The Parrises were planning to arrive home on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Harder went to Meade, Kansas Wednesday to visit his mother, Mrs. G. H. Harder, who is seriously ill in a hospital there.

Visitors of the James Dobbs, the first of the week were Mrs. Joe Streun's parents, the W. L. Serights and others of the family, from Sayre, Okla. The Serights and Mrs. Dobbs family were neighbors and close friends since their children were growing up in the Sayre area. They were here to be with Mrs. Streun after the passing of her husband, Joe, on Friday.

by MELVIN YOUNG
Over the past year, a number of counties and cities have moved to combine their law enforcement agencies, eliminating duplication of responsibilities and services and, hopefully, saving money for the taxpayers. Harris County (the city of Houston) is one of the counties moving in this direction. As we understand it, there would no longer be a City Police Department, but all police officers would become deputy sheriffs and the direction of all law enforcement in the city and county would be under the direction of the County Sheriff.

Up in our area, we note that Collingsworth County's Commissioners Court and Wellington City Council have approved the combining of the two agencies under the direction of the Collingsworth County Sheriff's Department. The move there was made following the resignation of the Chief of Police, leaving only one patrolman on the city force. The above action of course, is still subject to approval or disapproval by the Criminal Justice Council, but there is little doubt that it will be passed. Collingsworth County is also asking for a federal grant of $53,588 yearly to help operate the department. The city and county also fund the department to the tune of $35,873.

Of course, it appears that the real reason behind the combination of the departments in this particular case, is the federal grant to offset some of the cost of operation. However, there is some merit to combining the agencies, and we think it might be good if our own county and city governing bodies considered doing the same. It might solve a lot of problems.

At the present time of course, the two agencies are doing everything within their power to cooperate, but we have had many instances in the past when the two departments spent about as much time fighting each other as they did performing their normal duties. And we suspect that other cities and counties have had similar experiences and problems. There is also the problem of keeping separate dispatchers on duty throughout the day. Were the agencies combined, all could work out of the courthouse with greater efficiency, we suspect. We're not sure what the law allows on this score, but we have an idea that by combining forces, salaries could be upgraded throughout the agency. And that's something that is sorely needed, not only here but in law enforcement circles throughout the nation.

And meanwhile Governor Preston Smith is still having his problems with the news media and TV reporters in particular. But Smith has not rescheduled his much talked-about state-wide TV appearance for Sunday night so some of the question the citizens have been asking will surely be answered at that time. It will be interesting to see how he handles it, and particularly what comments he may have about Lt. Governor Ben Barnes.

Letter to the editor

An open letter:

We are glad that our forefathers were set free. Aren't you glad that your forefathers and you were born free?

I am not expecting anyone to answer this, nor am I altogether asking a question. For I am sure that you are glad and thankful to God for a life of freedom.

When I was informed that this committee had been granted permission to parade through the city of Hereford, it made me feel that you were sharing with the Negroes for approximately 106 years of freedom.

This is not a march, nor protest, or even a demonstration—but a celebration and an expression of thanks to God for bringing our race from such a long, long way. 800,000 lives were lost before the war ended.

We are aware of the fact that the South consisted of only 11 slave states of a population of only 9,000,000 and one-third of them were Negroes who were slaves, in 1861. We are also aware that the Emancipation Proclamation was signed by President Lincoln on January 1st. But for the benefit of those who might be skeptical, the slave owners finished working their crops and released the Negroes June 19, 1865.

For that reason, we are glad that our forefathers were set free. Aren't you glad that your forefathers were born free? Twenty-one years ago there were only two or three Negroes in Hereford, and this is the first time anyone has ever asked for a day to celebrate. So I feel that the majority of the Negroes in Hereford and Deaf Smith County are grateful for being in a city where there are so few problems.

At a future date, place and time I could go further into the details of what the slaves had to undergo, and how the world's first slaves were freed. Thanks.

Church honors local seniors

The Youth of Wesley United Methodist Church sponsored an all-church swim party at the Hereford City Pool Thursday night.

The special occasion of the party was to honor the senior students of the youth group and have as special guests Hereford's foreign exchange students Sam Aydin and Gabby Lotner.

After the swim party and a demonstration of swim technique by Sam Aydin, the group went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Priddy, 506 Lawton, where gifts were presented to the seniors and the exchange students.

Something Special

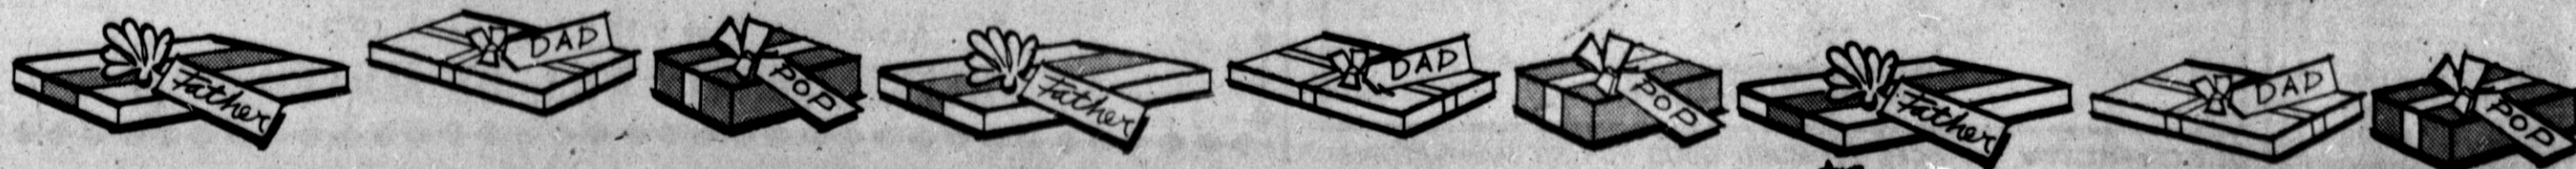

By Hilda Butler Farr

A father is something special,
He stands at the head of the list.
We seldom bestow enough praises
And yet how much he'd be missed.

He gives of his love and affection,
Expecting not much in return;
He gives of his money and labors
And does this at every turn.

The years travel on so quickly at times,
Too quickly so it seems,
For his life has been given to others,
He has hidden his youthful dreams.

Let us show that we truly admire him
And send a bright smile on his way . . .
A father is something special,
We pay tribute to him each day.

London-Ailshie vows spoken Friday evening

Miss Dianne Lynnette London and Bill C. Ailshie were married Friday evening in a candlelight service in First Christian Church. The Rev. Eugene Brink, pastor, conducted the service by the light of candles and a hanging cross.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baxter O. London, 306 Western. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charlotte Ailshie of Brownfield.

They were united as they stood before an altar decorated with white gladiolas, long stemmed pink carnations and growing ferns.

The bride wore a floor-length nylon organza gown with Venice lace over taffeta featuring a high neckline, empire waistline and short puffed sleeves. The front of the semi-A-line silhouette was enhanced with inserts of lace to match the bodice.

Her Juliet veil of imported illusion was held by a comb and she carried a white Bible with pink and white streamers, stephanotis and pink rose buds.

She wore a single strand of pearls belonging to an aunt.

Mrs. Orval Galley, organist, accompanied Miss Pam McCutcheon and Gary London, brother of the bride, as they sang Twelfth of Never, Each For the Other and The Lord's Prayer.

The bride was attended by Miss Priscilla Crume of Dallas, maid of honor, Debby Stice of Hobbs, niece of the groom, and Miss Deborah McCutcheon.

They wore princess styled gowns, each in a different shade of pink, featuring short puffed sleeves and a short train edged in French lace. Headpieces were pink tulle bows to match their gowns. They carried single, long-stemmed pink roses.

Best man was the bride's brother, Gary London. Groomsmen were Monty Myers of Amarillo and Tommy Saul. Persons attending the wedding were ushered by Dale Pierson and David Fanning.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. London wore a mint green knit dress with white accessories and sweetheart rose corsage. Mrs. Ailshie wore a one-piece knit dress, in soft melon color, and a corsage similar to Mrs. London's.

Miss Rhonda Fanning registered guests at the reception which followed in the fellowship hall.

Cake and punch were served by Mrs. Wayne Turner of Sayre, Okla. and Miss Debbie Gholson. In the housparty were Mmes. Walter London, Glenn Nelson, Lewis Fanning, Dick Gholson, Nathan Stowers, and Misses Rebecca, Barbara and Belinda London.

The four-tiered colonnade wedding cake decorated with garlands of pink shaded roses centered a table covered with a pink cloth overlaid with tulle. It was caught at the corners with pink ribbon streamers and white and pink wedding bells.

Also on the table were burning tapers with English ivy and pink rosebuds.

For a honeymoon trip to New Mexico the bride wore a pink knit pantsuit with white accessories and her mother's rose corsage.

The bride graduated from

Mrs. Bill C. Ailshie nee Dianne Lynnette London

Hereford High School and completed her freshman year at West Texas State University. Ailshie attended schools in Brownfield and is employed by Walco Drilling of Hereford.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were Mrs. Emma Alston of Amarillo, grandmother of the bride; Msrs. and Mmes.

Bud Jowell, Ray London, Ted Myers and Paul Hubbard, all of Brownfield; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ailshie, Hobbs, N. M.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boyer of Clarendon, Mr. and Mrs. Max Johnson, Steve and Stephanie and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Alston, all of Durango, Colo.

Summer job is sure

Honor graduate looks to future

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

ON HER way to Rice Institute, via Bovina, Sharon Readhimer was packing one day this week at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Viola Readhimer, 213 Aspen, which has been her home while she attended Hereford High School.

"It's amazing how much you can accumulate in a few years!" exclaims the dark-haired honor student.

Sharon was valedictorian of the 1971 graduating class, climaxing a series of scholastic honors she has earned during her school years. She plans to attend Rice on a full scholarship, majoring in French.

But for the summer, "I'll be a farm girl," she says, keeping house for her father on a farm near Bovina, driving the pickup and running errands for him during the busy season.

AT THE HOUSTON university she will join her brother, Marvin, also a scholarship student. He is a junior, and was a 1969 HHS graduate. In her family Sharon is sandwiched between two brothers; the younger, David, will be a sophomore in high school this fall.

The experience as class valedictorian was not her first; she was honor graduate from the sixth grade at an American

REVISED PSALMS

LONDON — A new version of the Psalms, intended to make them more readable and singable in modern colloquial English, has been prepared by British author Alan Neame and published by Darton, Longman and Todd. Neame, who based his version on the Jerusalem Bible, said he had "an absolute horror of words like thou." In the 23rd psalm he changed "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want" to "The Lord—Himself is my Shepherd, what more could anyone ask?"

school in Mexico where she did elementary school work.

Her father started a business in Guadalajara just before she entered school. He still conducts the business in Mexico and she spends some time there, always a part of her summer vacation.

HER CHOICE of a college major was not easy, Sharon says, because she finds science and math "fascinating" and then, "when I read history I know I'd like to teach it. That's my problem; all school subjects are my favorites."

She is choosing languages because she hopes to enter the Peace Corps for a time after college, then aim for a post in the U. S. diplomatic corps. She studied French the two years offered in HHS, winning the honor prize given by the American Association of Teachers of French in state competition, and also studied German.

A TRIP TO FRANCE with a student group one summer, with study at the International Institute of Culture at Vichy added to her interest in that language.

For hobbies, she puts reading at the head of her list, but also likes sports, with participation in water sports such as skiing, swimming and skin diving.

Her scholastic honors include a certificate of merit in the National Merit Scholarship program, a place in the honors group in the Westinghouse National Science Talent Search, a listing in the Outstanding Teenagers of America, membership in the National Honor Society and on HHS Student Council, and HHS merit awards in various subjects.

Joyce Shipp takes hold of new assignment

Background in 4-H asset in new job

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor
BECAUSE SHE enjoyed her ten years as a 4-H Club member, and feels they contributed much to her life, Joyce Shipp is especially enthusiastic about her new job as assistant Deaf Smith County Home Demonstration Agent.

A major segment of that job is direction of 4-H Club work, and Mrs. Shipp found herself taking a group of county winners to state 4-H contests as one of her first duties when she arrived in Hereford the first of this month.

She plunged at once into summer club activities for the girls and boys of the county, and good-humoredly says she will finish moving into her home at 205 Fir later in the summer. A good many boxes are still not unpacked, she adds.

THE SHIPPS moved to Hereford from Snyder, where Roy Shipp was manager of a grocery store and Joyce taught home economics in nearby Hermleigh High School. She also taught a year in Lubbock after receiving her degree from Texas Tech with a major in home economics education.

Graduation from Tech also preceded her marriage, but barely; she was married a week after commencement. She studied at West Texas State University a year and a half before transfer to Tech.

Shipp has enrolled in WTSU to complete work toward a degree with the aim of becoming a basketball coach.

THE FORMER Joyce Alexander, Mrs. Shipp was born at Wellington. Her father was a farmer near that Lower Panhandle city and she attended Samnorwood School, where one of her studies was homemaking.

Becoming a member of a 4-H Club while she was in grade school, she eventually earned the title of Collingsworth County Gold Star Girl.

She also received leadership and citizenship awards and represented her county in food shows, dress revues, safety and home improvement demonstrations.

LISTED ON the dean's honor roll every semester while she was at Tech, she was vice president of her dormitory and a member of the Women's Residence Council.

She shares her husband's interest in sports, played basketball in high school and college and likes to ski, both on snow and water.

Painting is a hobby and she particularly enjoys painting ac-

Glady's Garden

By Gladys Howton Manjeot

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14 —It is a beautiful day today, real nice day to display the flag of the United States. One of our neighbors, who is a retired military man, has a very attractive flag pole.

Each day the colors are raised and lowered, creating a beautiful sight in the bright sunshine against an azure blue sky and a background of lovely, stately trees.

I have not ceased to thrill at the beauty of the flower gardens, the lovely stately trees, and so remember what this area (the seat of our U. S. A. Government) holds in its hands the fate of our nation. The great store of historical significance, that is so predominate here.

One of the most popular historical places visited by the people coming to this area, is Mt. Vernon, which was the home of the first president of the U. S. A.

Rosemary and I visited Mt. Vernon, one beautiful morning (early to miss the throngs of people) and even though it was my third visit, I was all thrilled and excited to know that it was on hallowed ground that we walked.

Before going into the mansion, we slowly strolled neath the majestic trees, and along the well trod paths. I found it very interesting to see how many of the trees I could name, also the shrubs, flowers, ect. It made a challenging "think session" for a Garden Clubber.

The oldest shrub on the grounds was Boxwood, growing in the flower gardens, and screening the paths from the sight-seers.

It was planted 173 years ago. The tallest tree (and most beautiful to me) was a Horse Chestnut, which was over 100 years old. It created much interest among the guests.

Some of the other trees were: Mulberry, American Elm, Chinese Elm, Locust, Honey Locust, Maple (red, green, sugar), Red Bud, (they grow to height of trees here) many types of evergreens, and pine White Oak, Pin Oak, Scarlet Oak, Lindens, Birch Holly, Willow, and many cessories for her home. She sews her own clothes and items for the home, and likes to collect and try new recipes.

A basset hound, Barney, is a member of the Shipp household and gets preferred treatment, his mistress says.

varieties of fruit trees, which are grown mainly in the vegetable garden, and espaliered to the fence which surrounded the garden.

We visited with the gardner, and he gave us information regarding the garden and its products. He said that the vegetables and fruits were used by the 23 permanent employees which worked on the estate.

The vegetable garden is especially interesting, because of the plan. It is laid off in sections, and each of these are bordered by herbs, some of which were: mint, thyme, lavender, Rosemary, chives, parsley, basil, sage, dill, anise, tarragon, lemonverbena, and others. Cabbage, green beans (pole and bush), unions, irish-potatoes, English peas, beets were growing and others were being planted.

The gardner was also busy dusting the cabbage, spraying and watering which was done by hand with a watering can. The pond was in the center of the garden. In a corner house tools were kept, and often the vegetables were prepared for cooking here, also some books were a-round for reading and information.

The fruits which were used in the espaliering were apricot, pear, apple (both crab and other varieties), peach and cherry. These added beauty as well as interest. Some of them had large trunks, but had been kept to the original pattern in the espaliering.

We were told that this garden was one of Martha Washington's great prides, and that it had been kept just like she had originally planned it, when she and the President took up residence at Mt. Vernon.

After we had toured the house, where we saw flower arrangements suitable to the period of the home, we visited with one of the guides, and inquired as to what the attendance was at Mt. Vernon per year, and which month has had the greatest attendance. He replied that over a million people visited per year, and that April of 1971 had the largest attendance since the estate was opened to the public in 1858. The Washington grant was first acquired in 1674 by John Washington, great-grandfather of the President George Washington. It was named Mt. Vernon in 1743. The title to the estate passed to George Washington in 1753.

He and Mrs. Washington lived there until 1799, and both are interred on a site selected by General Washington, in a vault, and the ornate wall an outer vault added in 1837.

Mount Vernon is one of the best-remaining examples of the plantation around which centered the highly developed social and economic life of the South in the 18th century. A beautiful place, overlooking the Potomac River, with a verdant lawn and trees making up the landscaping. Restful, yet inspiring and a wonderful place to reminence ... and to renew purposes for the future.

The circumference of the globe is 25,020 miles.

Kidney Transfer Working
The second attempt to perform a kidney transplant so far is successful for Mrs. Pat Maupin of Hereford and her 12 year old nephew, David Murphy of Phoenix.

An employe at Deaf Smith County Abstract Co., where Mrs. Maupin works; reported that "everything was okay for them."

The pair underwent surgery Tuesday at the Childrens Hospital in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Maupin donated one of her kidneys to David, whose kidney had been removed about 10 months ago.

The employe said Mrs. Maupin called her Tuesday to report the success of the operation.

The first attempt at the transplant on the pair was performed in Feb. David developed complications and surgery had to be halted.

Mrs. Maupin said that she will remain in the hospital for a week and then will recuperate for another week in the homes of relatives in California. David a native of Amarillo, was born with a malfunctioning kidney. He attended schools in Amarillo until three years ago when he moved to Phoenix with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Murphy. David had been on a blood dialysis or kidney machine three times a week until the operation.

Mrs. Maupin said that if the operation is successful, he will be able to go off the machine and live more normally. She and her husband, Pat, reside at 902 16th St. in Hereford with their 8 month old son Chad.

SUN-PROOF® FOR THE HUSBAND WHOSE IDEA OF "GETTING OUT" DOESN'T INCLUDE PAINTING THE HOUSE.

Your wife says, "Paint the house before you do anything else this summer." So what do you do? As little as possible. That's why you need Sun-Proof Latex House Paint. It does as much as possible. To begin with, it normally allows you to skip priming completely. Further, it stretches and shrinks with your house. Which eliminates cracking and peeling. Also, a special paint film resists air pollution, smog, and mildew. This all means that your paint will last up to four years longer. So you spend less time painting and more time relaxing. Housing for elderly: an encouraging step

We have heard a lot of talk over the years about "low-cost" housing specifically designed for the indigent, the laborers and for the few who may be living on welfare, but the proposal this week for the construction of a 150-unit housing project specifically for the elderly is finally getting to the core of our real need. It is in this area that we have really been lacking and it is encouraging to see some action being taken. The people "over 65" and not ready to take up residency at King's Manor, or perhaps can't get in, have been sorely neglected in our community too long, and it's high time we did something about it.

Quite often, after a person reaches the age of 65, he or she as the case may be, no longer wishes to be burdened with the care of a private residence and particularly with the heavy work of caring for a lawn and garden. There are many who will welcome the construction of low-cost housing units, with the responsibility of upkeep, landscaping and lawn care being handled by someone else. As a matter of fact, a number of cities now have fine retirement apartment buildings available, out not necessarily in the low-rental category. Regardless, they usually have a waiting list for rentals.

There is another aspect of this proposition also, and one that we sometimes forget. These people are not living on welfare. Most of them are now drawing their social security insurance after contributing from their salaries for many, many years. And if we may be allowed to look at the "commercial" end of the proposition, we would like to remind the merchants in our community that the elderly are among our finest customers. They tend to spend their money locally, supporting our schools, our hospital, our churches and our local merchants. They also pay their bills regularly.

Surely, in return for this, we can build and administer, a suitable housing unit where these fine people may reside economically in comfort. We would encourage the City Commissioners to seriously consider the plan advanced this past week, or one similar and let's get on with the project as quickly as possible.

MAIN STREET, U. S. A.

Wilbur Mills--is he or isn't he a candidate?

BY BERT MILLS

WASHINGTON — Wilbur D. Mills, a hero to many admirers in Washington and back home in Arkansas, is the most intriguing of the longshot possibilities for the Democratic nomination for President in 1972.

Rep. Mills is the perennial Chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, which writes the tax and welfare laws. His reputation in the House is so high that he is revered even by many Republicans, and bills that he reports from his committee almost always sail through to passage without change.

More than 100 members of Congress have endorsed Wilbur Mills for President. He says he is not a candidate but he is obviously testing the water. He addressed four state legislatures in as many weeks recently, and said "yes" to a "Meet the Press" invitation he had always snubbed in the past.

As a Southerner, his greatest strength is among conservatives of both parties in Dixie. But his unofficial campaign manager is Rep. James Burke, from Boston, Mass., and he has many other Northerners in his corner. And Lyndon Johnson proved that a Southerner could win the White House, although he did it from the vantage point of already being President by succession.

It's Now or Never

Having celebrated his 62nd birthday recently, it is probably 1972 or never for Rep. Mills. By 1976, he will be 67—a ripe old age for a Presidential contender. Already he is the oldest among the Democratic possibilities for next year.

Nor is the Arkansas Democrat interested in becoming Vice President. He already enjoys more power than the V. P. One of his admirers in Congress said recently: "The Presidency would be a lateral move and the Vice Presidency a demotion." It is doubtless an overstatement to contend the Ways and Means Chairman is as powerful as the President but an argument could be made that Mills is more influential than any other man on Capitol Hill.

"I am not a candidate," Mills says frequently, adding that he lacks the time to campaign and he doesn't think anybody can land the nomination without campaigning. However, he has said he would accept the nomination if it came his way and has predicted "I could beat him" when discussing a possible race against President Nixon.

The trick, of course, will be to get nominated. The Democratic party is not in the habit of nominating Southern conservatives, and practically every other Democratic possibility for 1972 bears authentic liberal credentials.

Silver Spoon Background

Wilbur Mills was born to the richest family in Kensett, Ark. He was a high school valedictorian, graduated from small but prestigious Hendrix College in Arkansas, and took his law degree at Harvard. He went back home to work in the family-owned bank and store.

At 25, Mills made his political debut, defeating an incumbent county judge. During his first term he cut his own salary from $3,600 to $2,000 a year. He won reelection, then ran for Congress. His father insisted on bankrolling his campaign so Wilbur would be under obligation to no one.

He has had no serious opposition ever since. In Congress, he became a protégé of Speaker Sam Rayburn, from neighboring Texas. It will be remembered that Lyndon Johnson was another protégé of the late Speaker.

Mills climbed the seniority ladder in the House but acquired the reputation of doing his homework. He mastered the intricacies of the tax laws and is seldom challenged on his facts.

He is always careful to test the political winds. He held up Medicare for years until he felt the time was ripe, then steered the bill to passage. He is expected to do the same thing for a national health insurance program, before the 1972 election.

Wilbur Mills lacks a national constituency and is not likely to become the nation's next President. But the Democratic party could do worse than nominate Mills and probably will.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm tackles the garbage problem this week, not too successfully.

Dear editor:

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night which I'd already looked at once but was better than the run I'd already seen three times on television, some ecologists were up in arms in some city...I forget which, because members of a woman's garden club served refreshments in paper cups.

Cold drinks, they contended, should be served only in returnable bottles or re-usable glasses and the women ought to be ashamed to be contributing to the garbage problem.

They said they had nothing against garden clubs but the members ought to join the national drive to cut down on the millions of tons of disposable containers now plaguing the nation.

I have been thinking about this and I guess the ecologists are right, but they shouldn't stop with paper cups.

For example, what I'd like to see is a returnable automobile. These throw-away models are cluttering up the junk piles of the world.

The same goes for refrigerators, washing machines, box cars, baby beds, etc. I don't know about Congressmen. There're very few returnable ones. When one gets beat he rarely returns home to the people he claims he loves, he gets appointed to a job and stays on in Washington. They tell me there're hulks of ex-Congressmen scattered all over the place.

Or getting back to paper, take postage stamps, a small item you might say, but do you know how many billions are used every year? There's no need for the post office department to print up thousands of tons of stamps and ship them around to all the country's post offices, then haul them back one at a time on letters where they'll be thrown into the receiver's wastebasket with the envelope. All the post office needs is a machine that'll read numbers. You write your Social Security number on the envelope where the stamp goes, the machine reads it, charges your account and adds it to your income tax.

You might say, yeah, but what are you going to do about people who forget other people's Social Security number on their letters, and my answer is, let's change the subject.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

over $60,000 in the stock transactions.

To date, however, Smith's major opponent for the governor's post, Lt. Governor Ben Barnes, has not been implicated in this particular stock deal. Barnes made his big move and announced his candidacy for the governor's post last Tuesday, and since Smith has already indicated his intention to run for a third term, there would be little political mileage in taking time on statewide television to reiterate that intention.

However, it now appears that testimony by Houston financier Frank W. Sharp to a federal grand jury could lead to criminal charges against some top Texas politicians and it may also expose a few more who have not been implicated earlier, perhaps Lt. Governor Barnes.

Therefore, it is our guess that Smith cancelled the program to await developments in the case, particularly since the name of Lt. Governor Ben Barnes and that of Speaker Gus Mutscher have surfaced in another stock acquisition deal. Obviously, delaying the telecast will help Smith if the investigation now in progress puts him on solid ground politically and embarrasses his opposition.

There is one thing you can say about Smith — he is a politician, and he is a winner. And he will not run in 1972 unless he feels he has a good chance of winning.

Smith's cancellation of the Thursday night telecast, coming on Wednesday after new developments in the stock case were made known, has had a lot of his supporters guessing. According to Austin news sources, the speculation has taken two directions:

—That Smith had suddenly reconsidered some major announcement — probably political — that he had planned to make.

—That the timing might be rendered inappropriate by some development in the federal government's stock manipulation case, with which Smith's name has been linked.

Our guess, is that the reason for the cancellation is a combination of the above.

There is little doubt that Preston Smith is going to run for a third term as governor, in spite of the fact that his name has been linked with the stock manipulation deals brought to light recently by the Securities Exchange Commission. Smith has admitted making

SKIN GAME ARTISTRY

Trying to invest an essentially grim situation with a little humor, The Wall Street Journal devotes some ten lines of a double column editorial to "The Six-Minute Break" which has been granted... the dehydrated taxpayer... "this year. According to The Journal's calculations, the taxpayer will work six minutes less in 1971 than in 1970 out of his eight-hour workday, to meet his federal, state and local tax obligations. The decline is attributable partly to federal tax reductions, but also to lower government revenues as a result of the business downturn. As The Journal points out, taxpayers still need to work two hours 37 minutes out of an eight-hour workday "to take care of all the levies lovingly provided by all those solicitous levels of government. The period is one hour 34 minutes longer than the work time required to pay food."

Politicians who are always thinking up some new program to help the people are conducting the greatest skin game in history. The final words of The Wall Street Journal's brief editorial may contain more truth than humor. They ask, "Tax revolt, anyone?"

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — If a secret order from General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna had been delivered on time, Texas might have lost the deciding battle in its fight for independence from Mexico.

Santa Anna wrote the order on December 20, 1835, at San Luis Potosi, Mexico. It directed General Vicente Filisola, the Italian who was second in command of the Mexican armies, to take his troops across the Rio Grande at Guerrero. Filisola then was to march to San Antonio and take the Alamo while Santa Anna crossed the river at Laredo and moved along the Texas coast.

The order directed Filisola to continue north from San Antonio to the vicinity of Bastrop. With his own troops deployed on the coast, Santa Anna hoped that his maneuver would trap the Texans under General Sam Houston between the two Mexican armies.

However, the order didn't reach Filisola and he assembled his troops at Laredo, 75 miles south of Guerrero. When Santa Anna arrived at Laredo and found Filisola there, he decided to combine the two armies for the march to San Antonio. On March 6, the Alamo fell and Houston retreated eastward, drawing Santa Anna deep into Texas and lengthening his supply lines. On April 21, 1836, an overconfident Santa Anna was defeated at San Jacinto and Texas was free.

Had the secret order been delivered, however, the two-pronged attack on Houston's forces might have defeated the Texans and destroyed the chance for independence.

POOR FINKS — National Fink Day was held as usual June 24, but the Grayson County town that is home for the unique festival may be in its death throes.

Fink lost 12 of its 1970 population of 15 when nearby Perrin Air Force Base closed. However, the three remaining residents went ahead with the annual festival to which everybody with the surname of Fink is invited.

This year, as always, Finks came from throughout the U. S. to uphold the honor of their good name. But in 1972, they may have to celebrate elsewhere.

WEATHER-BEATEN — Sixteen years ago this month, 266 passengers bound by train for San Antonio ended up completing the trip by helicopter and bus.

On June 27, 1954, heavy rains — unusual for that part of Texas — washed out three bridges on the Southern Pacific Railroad near Langrey, Val Verde County, and stranded the famous "Sunset Limited." Passengers had to be airlifted by Army helicopter to nearby Comstock, then bussed the remaining 200 miles to San Antonio.

TRAVELING TEXAS — Asia, largest of the seven continents, now is located in Texas. At least, a caricature of it is welcoming visitors at Houston.

It is the 40-acre Asian Gardens, built by Anheuser-Busch to enhance its adjoining brewery. The $11 million park includes everything from a golden-roofed Buddhist shrine to a collection of exotic animals that roam free on landscaped islands and compounds.

After disposing of what was perhaps the heaviest docket in the history of the local district court, Judge Reese Tatum Thursday took a temporary adjournment and departed for his home at Dalhart. Heretofore nothing like this number have been handled at one term of court.

When Captain Bob Elliott and Jim Robinson come to grips in the Stock Pavilion, June 24, the ground is going to shake. They are perhaps the biggest men in the county, as well as the strongest.

John Douglas Pitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pitman, won the grand prize, a de luxe bicycle, in the four months long Junior Business Builders contest sponsored by Close Drug Store. He finished well ahead of the field with a total of $107,432 to his credit.

A two hour air show staged at Renfro Airport will be one of the big features of the American Legion's mammoth July 4th celebration here. Complete plans have been made for the show, which will include stunts, bomb dropping, shirt tail race, free ride for women over 65, and parachute jump.

A non-profit "seal of approval" guaranteeing the authenticity of products grown or manufactured in Deaf Smith County is being worked out to enable local producers to take advantage of nation wide publicity given Deaf Smith County products and "The Town Without a Toothache."

Future steps to enlarge Hereford's public school facilities to accommodate anticipated enrollment increases were studied by the Hereford school board.

5 YEARS AGO

Officials cited facts concerning possibilities for things to come for the Hereford school district during a public meeting Friday night and then received indication that the majority of those present favor establishment of an area vocational school here. Asked for a show of hands from those favoring the establishment of an area vocational school here, a clear-cut majority of those present responded to the affirmative.

1 YEAR AGO

There is a critical housing shortage facing Hereford. Population rises but there are few houses available. There are no rent houses available. Whenever one does open up that is fit for living it almost always is rented before the owner has a chance to advertise it. "There are a lot of houses for sale, but generally, they aren't in the majority of the market range," said Melvin Jayroe, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors.

The Hereford post office received six new red, white and blue delivery trucks last week that will eliminate all foot routes, Postmaster Nolan Grady said.

July vows planned Couple exchange vows in Adrian

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Duffy of Burlington, Wisc. announce the engagement of their daughter Peggy to Richard Combs, a former Hereford resident now of Denver. A late July wedding is planned.

Combs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Combs, 150 Ranger Drive.

Miss Duffy is a graduate of Saint Mary's School of Nursing at Madison, Wisc. She is presently employed at Saint Luke's Hospital in Denver.

Combs, a Hereford High School graduate who received his degree in architecture at Texas Tech, is in business with James Sudler Associates, architects in Denver.

Miss Lora Louise Hoagland of Amarillo and George Neal Harwood of Adrian, exchanged marriage vows recently in a double ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. Bob Miller, pastor of First Baptist Church in Adrian.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hoagland of Amarillo and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harwood of Adrian.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a satin empire gown with Alencon lace designing the high neckline and long sleeves. Her illusion veil fell from a coil of lace and seed pearls.

The couple's attendants were Miss Bobbie Smith of Amarillo, maid of honor, and Mike Horton, best man.

A reception hosted by women of the church was held immediately following the ceremony.

Following a brief honeymoon trip the couple are at home in Adrian.

Lance on leave after army duty in Vietnam area

At home for a 21-day leave, Sp-5 Ronnie E. Lance has been on duty the past year at the U. S. Army Depot, Long Binh, Vietnam. He served there as NCO in charge of the Rest and Relaxation Section.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lance Jr., 343 Stadium Drive, the Hereford man recently was awarded the Bronze Star and Citation "for meritorious achievement in ground operations against hostile forces from June 1970 to April, 1971, in Vietnam."

He will be assigned for the next year to the Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station in Los Angeles, and will report there after his visit in Hereford.

It costs Uncle Sam about one cent to make a dollar bill.

CLIPPINGS BURIED

HUTTON, England — Newspaper cuttings about the American moonshot were buried along with parish records and coins inside the foundation of St. Joseph the Worker Church, blessed and laid by Bishop Bernard Wall of Brentwood.

Girls presented in joint recital

An evening program of songs was applauded by friends of Susie Hickman and Jane Lyons, who were presented in recital by their voice instructor, Mrs. Dolson Palmer, at her home Saturday. Parents of the students are the Robert Hickmans and the Paul Lyons.

Both girls were members of Hereford High School girls' choir last term and will be in the mixed choir next year. Both participated in the musical show The Music Man, at HHS and in the Southwest Music Festival at Amarillo.

Miss Lyons leaves today for choir camp at West Texas State University through June 26. She will be captain of HHS pep squad next year. In IUL solo contests this spring she received Division 1 rating.

Miss Hickman will be a high school junior next term. She was rated in Division 1 three years in UIL contests, and for two years in the Federated Music Club festival here. She participated in state UIL events at Austin.

Each of the student vocalists was heard in solos, then their voices joined in By the Bend of the River, Edwards, and They Call the Wind Maria (Lerner).

Opening the program Miss Lyons, a mezzo-soprano, sang

O Cessate di Piagarmi, Scarlati; Lasclayme Morire, Monteverdi, and La Girometta, Sibelius. First numbers by Miss Hickman, soprano, were Se tu Mami, Pergolesi; Sing, Smile, Slumber by Gounod; Voi Che Sapete, Mozart, and a religious song, Hold Thou My Hand.

Next came Sapphic Ode, Brahms, and Ouvre tes yeux Bleus, Massenet, by Miss Lyons and Vellanelle, Della'Acqua, by Miss Hickman. Each then sang lighter songs in English, including The Moon's a Hoop, and The Living God by Miss Lyons; This Day is Mine and I Like Men, Miss Hickman.

Gary Royal gets Air Medal

Army First Lt. Gary L. Royal, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted R. Royal, 220 Avenue D, recently received the Air Medal near Vinh Long, Vietnam.

Lt. Royal received the award for heroism in action while engaged in aerial flight in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in Vietnam.

He is a helicopter pilot in the 114th Assault Helicopter company.

Lt. Royal's wife, Patricia, lives at 915 Silber Road, Houston.

CHARACTER TRAINING

CONSETT, England — Police cadets are getting character training at the Roman Catholic Passionist monastery of Minsteracres near here. In groups of four and of any denomination they briefly share the lives of the priests and novices while learning something of the underlying principles of discipline and service. "We are not imposing strict monastic rules for the cadets," said Father Colum Devine, the Superior. "The idea is to give them plenty of healthy work and let them see what kind of work we do."

Michelin costs less in the long run. The very long run.

In fact, this Michelin steel belted radial costs less per mile of driving than any tire you can buy. Backed by Michelin's Warranty* for 40,000 miles of tread wear. (Many owners get much more.) Puncture resistant Michelins stop faster, corner better, give more traction on wet surfaces. Now there's a Michelin for domestic cars too. Stop in and start saving right now.

*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Tubeless Whitewall Tire shown here covers 40,000 mile tread life, defects in workmanship and materials and normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) when tire is used on domestic passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to original retail purchase price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: IT IS FORTUNATE THAT THE THREE FRIENDS FOUND SIEUR DELAUNCY'S STRONGHOLD, FOR ZIRARA'S MARE IS LAME AND IS IN NEED OF REST AND ATTENTION. ONLY BY THE SPEED OF THEIR MOUNTS CAN THEY ESCAPE THE WANDERING BANDS OF GOTHS.

VAL MIGHT HAVE ACCEPTED DELAUNCY AS A HARDY WARRIOR ON APPEARANCE ALONE, BUT HE TALKS ENDLESSLY ABOUT HIS DEEDS OF VALOR. ONCE OR TWICE HIS ADORING WIFE LAYS A RESTRAINING HAND ON HIS ARM, BUT HE PAYS NO HEED.

AT LAST VAL SAYS: "YOUR PROWESS MAY SOON BE PUT TO THE TEST, FOR A LARGE BAND OF GOTHS WERE IN PURSUIT WHEN WE ENTERED YOUR GATES. THEY MAY DEEM THEMSELVES STRONG ENOUGH TO RISK AN ATTACK."

TWO YEARS HAVE PASSED SINCE THIS TRIBE LEFT THEIR HOMELAND BEYOND THE RHINE. THEY HAVE NEVER LEARNED THE ART OF STORMING CASTLE WALLS, BUT THE THOUGHT OF ALL THE FOOD AND PLUNDER WITHIN THIS SMALL ONE MAKES IT WORTH A TRY. ALL NIGHT LONG THEY FELL TREES AND MAKE SCALING LADDERS.

AT DAWN THEY MOUNT THE ATTACK. THE DEFENDERS ARE READY FOR THEM AND IT IS HOPELESS FROM THE START, BUT THE PRIDE OF THESE FIERCE WARRIORS KEEPS THEM FROM ADMITTING DEFEAT.

DELAUNCY LEAVES THE FIGHTING TO TAKE HIS FAMILY TO THE SAFETY OF THE END TOWER, BUT HIDDEN FROM VIEW OF THE DEFENDERS AT THE GATE TOWERS, THE GOTHS HAVE RAISED A LADDER HERE. HE HAS TWO CHOICES: TO HOLD BACK THE ENEMY UNTIL HELP COMES OR.....

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

TAKE A LETTER

DEAR HELOISE: Did you ever have the problem when you want to write a letter, that the stationery and envelopes are one place and the pens and pencils are in another? Then you can't find the stamps?

I had this problem until I figured out how to keep them all in one place and handy for me.

I took a small (old) train case and put my stationery in the bottom. I found a cigar box that just fit in the case and put my pens and pencils and stamps in this. On each side of the cigar box I fitted my thank-you notes and extra envelopes.

Much easier than looking all over the house for these items.

Laurie Steele

TOASTMASTER'S TIP

DEAR HELOISE: Today was one of those kinds of days when it seemed the kids didn't like anything I fixed for them to eat. In mid-afternoon when they were begging for cook-wash the walls, I had an idea: Why not use the cookie cutters for their toast for supper?

You've never seen such angels, when I announced that they were having "toast-cookies" for supper.

I put the scraps left over from cutting the "cookies" on a plate with the toast-cookies, and what fun they had guessing which scraps went with which cookies, and also figuring out what the scraps were—a triangle, key, etc.

Best of all, no arguments about eating and no scraps left over, either!

This has been such a hit that I'm going to use it for their sandwiches, too.

Lucy Matchett

KITCHEN SPECIAL

DEAR HELOISE: The walls in my kitchen are plasterboard, painted with enamel paint. All of my neighbors' walls, and others readers' too, I presume, have the same kind. When it comes time to wash the walls, I close the kitchen windows and doors, and fill three big pots and the teakettle with water, heat and let the water steam for an hour or so.

This steams the walls, making them about four times easier to wash.

When ready to do the scrubbing down, I open the kitchen doors and let the steam out. This task must be done quickly, while the soil on the walls is softened and loosened.

I get the job done in less than half the time. Not only that, but it does a thorough job, too.

I have found that the best time to do this is on a weekend, when my husband is home.

M. J.

And let's hope he's got a rag in his hand!

I tried this in my bathroom with the shower running HOT and my walls are beautiful now. Thanks to you...

Heloise

KITTY'S KATNIP

DEAR HELOISE: My cat loves the little catnip toys you buy at the store, so one day I decided to try to make her one.

I took a scrap of felt and doubled it. Then I cut out a cat and fish figure and put a little catnip inside each figure.

I sewed the two halves together and with the scraps, made eyes, etc.

These would make darling gifts for your friends' kitties.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: As a beauty I am not a star, There are others more handsome by far. But my face I don't mind it, For I am behind it. It's the people in front who get the jar.

Not a Star
Mrs. J. W. K.

THREAD OF TRUTH

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a hint for that seemingly universal problem of keeping spools of thread from unwinding and tangling.

Slip a small rubber band around the spool, just being sure the end of the thread is caught snugly underneath.

You can do anything you want with that spool and the thread will never unwind.

It has surely solved a snarly problem for me.

H. J.

DEAR HELOISE: Our den has a very long wall on one side, and I was at a loss to decorate it. My pictures were all too small and I really needed something extra special there.

Then, while on an outing at the lake, I spied a magnificent cedar root half submerged in the water.

My husband cut it loose for me and the two of us managed to get it home and let it dry thoroughly outdoors. Then I spray-painted it gold.

We mounted it on the wall with the use of small nails and nylon fishing cord (which is transparent). The roots flowed across the wall for several feet, filling up that long bare space just beautifully!

Then, to add a bit of extra interest, I placed several gold-sprayed pine cones at various spots on the root trunk (although it's just as attractive without the cones).

Have had ever so many compliments on the unusual effect, and thought some of your readers might find this idea of interest.

Shirley Busby

Well, I've heard of hanging driftwood on the wall, but this is the first time I've ever heard of someone establishing roots in this manner!

UP A TREE?

A tree grower wants to set out 25 trees in 12 straight rows, with five trees in each row. He claims to be able to achieve this end within the framework diagrammed above.

Can you discover a way of adding 16 trees to the nine shown (heavy dots) to accomplish his aim?

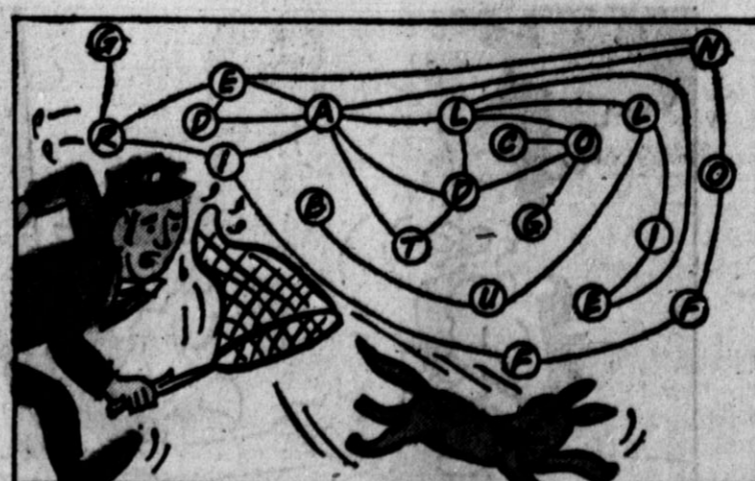

No fair peeking at the answer.

BULLETIN BOARD

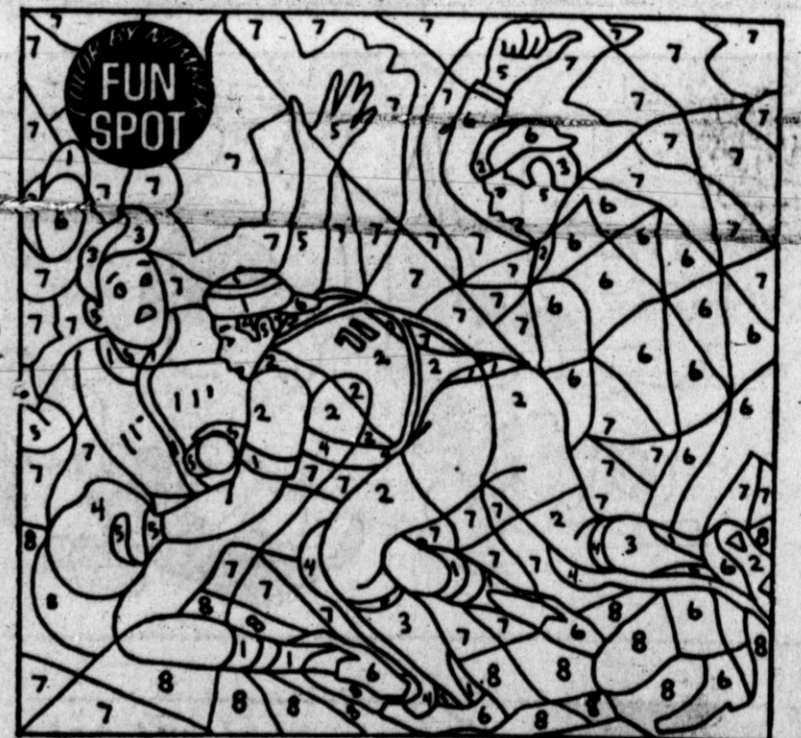

● SNAP QUESTION: In 1884, Abraham Lincoln posed in the studio of Matthew Brady for a campaign picture. The result, described by his son Robert as a most satisfactory likeness, is a common sight today. Where?

● REAL GONE! One of these creatures does not belong with the others: dinosaur, iguana, chameleon, skunk. Which one?

● Wanna Bet? Ask a friend to write something on a sheet of paper. Have him place the slip on the floor and cover the writing with his foot. Bet him that you can tell what's on the paper. If he accepts, your answer, of course, is "Your foot!"

POUND BEAT? How quickly can you spell out names of five breeds of dogs above? Hint: Initial letters are A, B, C, G, G. Alredale, bulldog, collie, Great Dane, Riffon, are five.
