FIND IRRIGATION PROFITABLE

D. P. Vaughn Combines Growing Alfalfa and Hogs

The Editor of the Brand in company with Mr. A. C. Elliott and two visiting gentlemen made a trip out last Saturday to see some of the irrigating wells in operation. The only one near running at the time was that of Mr. D. P. Vaughn north of town. The party made an investigation of the well and growing crops and the fine herd of hogs.

All were of the opinion that parties in other states could not be censured for not believing the real truth about the wells, as it is hard to realize that a stream of water so clear that you involuntarily look for mountain trout, can be pulled out of the depths of these level plains with a pump. The stream after it left the well seemed about two feet wide and a foot deep and so clear that if it were ten feet deep one could see the bottom as clearly as at a foot. That this can be repeated on every quarter section and go on night and day without any apparent diminution of the supply is difficult to believe unless one sees it. Mr. Vaughn has about 25 acres of alfalfa that he is just starting to cut. He will cut it five times and expects a ton or more at each cutting. He waters each cutting twice at a cost of fifty cents each irrigation. Mr. Vaughn is also grazing alfalfa with hogs combining farming with stock raising. He has nearly 300 head of hogs and pigs of the Duroc breed. He has one of the best hog houses in the Panhandle. The hogs are grown on the alfalfa with a light grain ration till they weigh about 150 pounds and pushed on grain, all raised on the farm. Mr. Vaughn come here from south Texas about the boom time and went to grain farming without irrigating. A series of dry years and bad crops almost exhausted his means. As a last resort acting on his judgement he got a good quarter section and installed a well at a cost of $4000. Now his farming operations are not only sure but profitable. In fact his farm and alfalfa and hogs looks like a regular get rich quick scheme to the man who knows nothing of the perseverance labor and business sense that it takes to build and run such a business. Mr. Vaughn's farm is an example of what every quarter section in the shallow water belt should be and will be when people really know and believe in the possibilities of this irrigation work. There is not an acre of this shallow water land that cannot be made to pay returns on an investment of one hundred dollars per acre when farmed in quarter section and combined with live stock.

Such men as Mr. Vaughn who are demonstrating the possibilities of the soil and water are real benefactors. If you see if in the Brand it's true.

THE MIGHTY COURT OF THE UNIVERSE, THE HUB OF THE ARCHITECTURAL SCHEME AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

All visitors to the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco at some time during their stay at the exposition make their pilgrimage through the Court of the Universe. This is the largest court on the grounds and is the central radiating unit of the architectural and ground plans. Noble sculptured groups embellish it, the two Homeric groups—the Nations of the East and the Nations of the West—surmounting the giant arches at the east and west portals. By night the beauty of the court is enhanced by the flood lighting effects.

Alumni Banquet

Befitting in dignity, as well as in pleasure was the happy occasion in which the alumni pledged themselves in fraternal good fellowship on Saturday evening and fortunate, indeed were those who were honored by being asked to share their hospitality. The banquet was served in the dining room of the Christian church and by the ladies of that church. The decorations were beautiful and elaborate, roses and carnations being used in generous profusion. The pillars throughout were transformed into floral columns.

The long table was arranged for the seating together of the individual classes, a reflector on which was the class number marking the divisions. There were nine groups, corresponding to the nine classes which have been graduated. Mr. Sam Bratton, was an ideal toastmaster imparting his genial mood to ever one else so that the formality which so often proves a specter was avoided.

There were eighty-four in attendance, including the guests who were limited to the faculty, teachers, former teachers and members of the school board. Many of the graduates live away from here and were unable to be present on this truly delightful occasion.

I am directed by the City Commission to institute proceedings against all those who fail to pay street tax by June 1st.

I trust this notice will be the means of preventing the disagreeable duty imposed on me of prosecuting a citizen for a failure to comply with the law.

Rev. Farmer Preaches at Summerfield

Miss Nora Thompson and Rev. R. E. L. Farmer and daughter, Mildred went to Summerfield Sunday afternoon. Services were held in the school house where Rev. Farmer preached to an appreciative audience.

Alumni Elects Officers

At a meeting of the Alumni Association at the high school building Tuesday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres. Mrs. Paul Barnett; Miss Una Norton Vice Pres.; Sec'y. and Treas. Miss Hazel Wilson.

Honor Students

Those having the best standing throughout the four years of the high school course are Travis Dameron, who ranks first with an average grade of 94.08, Bess Robertson 94.05 and Grace Wilson 92.57.

Commencement of 1915: Passes Into History

A large audience again filled the auditorium of the court house on Friday evening to witness the last of the exercises of commencement week to which the general public was invited.

Supt. Bright made a short talk in which he briefly reviewed the years work, showing a favorable comparison of the work of this class with the class of former years. He also told of the good work done by the grades in that out of the three hundred enrolled only fifteen had failed to carry the work.

The program as given last week was carried out in full and was well given, each number receiving hearty applause.

The address of Attorney W. E. Dameron has received much complimentary notice. Mr. Dameron has a strong, well modulated voice, which gives him a decided advantage in speaking in a large auditorium. He talked from the subject "Light Houses Upon the Pathway of Life" and drew forcible illustrations from the figurative picture which he drew of a human life.

And so another commencement has gone and of the class of 1915 can be said, "Thus endeth the first lesson." Last week, the keys of the city were in the hands of the graduates everything belonged to them and scarce any favor would have been refused. The body paused to extend congratulations and bid them God-speed; today, they are ours; they belong to Hereford a vital part of that which goes to make up the sum total of her prestige and her usefulness and Hereford is looking them to prove worthy of the honor which is theirs, that of being a graduate of Hereford High School.

Mrs. Arnold's Parents Here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Arnold of Hannibal, parents of Mr. B. S. Arnold, are the guests at the Arnold home for an extended visit.

Having formerly lived in Hereford, they have many friends here who will be glad to renew the pleasant friendship of former years.

Fifth Sunday Meeting at Tulia

This office is in receipt of the program for the Fifth Sunday meeting now being held at Tulia.

The names of three Hereford people appear on the program. Mrs. J. E. Garrison is president of the Tierra Blanca auxiliary, B. W. M. W. E. Hicks is a member of a committee on the Student's Loan Fund for young ladies.

Rev. R. E. L. Farmer, pastor of the Baptist church here, was on the program for the sermon on last evening and to speak on Sunday School work today.

TOURING THE PANHANDLE

Demonstrator Boys with the Farwells and Bainter, on Tour of Investigation

County Demonstrator Boys and Mr. Bainter, of Amarillo, demonstrator for the Santa Fe, are the guests of the Capital Freehold Investment Co. this week, in a tour of investigation over the Panhandle.

The Farwells, promoters and managers of the company, and owners of the large tract of land in the neighborhood of and including Farwell, came to Plainview in their private car from Chicago on Monday, were joined by Mr. Bainter at Amarillo and by Mr. Boys at Farwell, where a magnificent banquet was held in the evening.

Mr. Boys was accompanied by Miss Avert who has just been appointed lady demonstrator, for this and Farmer counties, and Miss Bernice Carter who is at the head of the domestic science department of the A. and M. College.

On Tuesday, the party left Farwell and are touring the Panhandle.

Rev. Paris at Canyon

The commencement sermon of the Normal was preached Sunday morning by Rev. G. A. Paris of the Hereford Christian Church. He is an exceptionally able man and his sermon Sunday was highly educational and spiritual. Special music for the services consisted of the "Hallelujah Chorus" sung by the Choral Club and "A Life's Lesson" sung by the ladies Chorus.—Randal Co. News.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Class of Twelve Graduate from the Dimmitt High School This Week

On Sunday May 23rd, the first of the commencement week programs of the Dimmitt high school was given. The church where the services were held, was indeed a thing of beauty with its artistic and elaborate decorations. The interior walls and ceiling were almost hidden beneath graceful festoons of crepe paper in the class colors, lavender and white. Flowers were everywhere, the class flower, the pansy being especially favored in the decorations, and not the least attractive was the dozen bright earnest faces of the class in whose honor the large audience had assembled.

The sermon by Dr. Paris was characteristic—full to the overflowing with good things which were all the better coming as they did from the depths of a great heart which added to the intellectual power that follows a lifetime of study, also breathes the wisdom which cometh from above.

Several choruses and vocal, and an instrumental duet were pleasingly rendered. Dr. Paris preached again in the evening making a fitting close to a long-to-be-remembered day.

Society and Clubs

The Bible Club met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. D. F. Ashbrook. The lesson study was conducted by Mrs. Cummins. It included the latter part of the book of Isaiah. Next week's work will be from the books of Jeremiah and Lamentations.

Mrs. Ashbrook will again be hostess and Mrs. Mitchell will have charge of the lesson. One of the prettiest social affairs of the week, was the forty-two party Wed. morning when Mrs. D. C. Laird entertained in honor of the following ladies who are guests of Hereford friends: Mrs. B. W. Arnold, of Hannibal, Mo., Mrs. M. C. Crabtree of Eufaula, Okla., Mrs. W. T. Stanberry of Amarillo, and Miss Lura Stickley of Canadian.

Others who shared Mrs. Laird's hospitality were the members of the Bay View Club. The spirited manner in which the guests entered into the games bespoke the keen enjoyment they occasioned.

Miss Elzina Mounts contributed much to the pleasure of the guests by her charming rendering of several vocal and instrumental selections.

A dainty salad course was served by the hostess.

Miss Lura Stickley of Canadian, who is the guest of Mrs. D. L. Thornbury, was the honoree at a delightful picnic party on Tuesday afternoon. The merry makers selected that ideal picnic spot, the Gough ranch, for the afternoon's pleasures, and to each one who participated it was an occasion of real enjoyment.

The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Thornbury, Mr. and Mrs. Moreman, and Misses Lura Stickley, Mabel Betts, Gladys Johnson, Mary Jones, Bell and Meda Woodburn, and Messrs. Oscar Cardwell, Gallagher, Skelton, Edgar Betts, Forrest Walker, Ed Bryant and Douglas Fox.

The husbands of the Bay Views were tendered a fish fry and picnic Tuesday afternoon by their wives. They chose one of the many charming spots on the Tierra Blanca where boats do not capsize and where fish vie with each other in their eagerness to catch the hook.

This wise forethought prevented any embarrassment which might have been occasioned had these famed fisherman allowed their reputation to suffer.

All in all, it was one of the jolliest afternoons imaginable, and the bountiful picnic luncheon was an added pleasure.

Mothers' Club Hears Miss Carter Monday morning at the school building, Miss Berenice Carter, of the A. and M. College, addressed the Mothers' Club and other ladies of the town in the interest of the work which will be done by Miss Avert as lady demonstrator.

Her talk was very interesting and was much enjoyed by the ladies, who are anxious to cooperate with Miss Avert in every way.

Those who didn't go picnicking Tuesday afternoon were hopelessly in the minority. Another of the jolly parties that enjoyed the afternoon on the river was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Renfro, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Johnson of Summerfield, Mrs. Rector and daughter of Clarendon, Messrs. Carl Cockrell and Misses Alta Renfro and Gladys Ivy. A fish fry and picnic supper, added to the delights of the moonlight evening, rendered the occasion a most enjoyable outing.

The charming hospitality of Mrs. Emmett Cardwell was enjoyed by a number of her friends at a delightful dinner party given at the Cordova Hotel Sunday. Mrs. W. B. Arnold, of Hannibal, Missouri, being the honor guest.

The snowy tables were arranged with perfect taste and each feature of the dinner was a triumph of the simple and artistic.

The occasion was the source of real pleasure to the guests who were Mesdames. P. W. Price, J. E. Ferguson, J. P. Snyder, W. P. Stanberry, H. Hawins, W. B. Arnold and B. S. Arnold.

Mrs. H. B. Stephens entertained with an informal dinner Saturday evening at which time her guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McCampbell and Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Arnold.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Black was thrown open on Thursday afternoon in cheery welcome to a large party of the friends of the three honor guests, Misses Irmer Wilson, Minnie Dea Coffin and Lura Stickley of Canadian.

After the conclusion of the charming luncheon, which was served from beautifully appointed tables in the large dining room, the party attended the senior play at the Pastime Theatre.

Those who enjoyed this delightful occasion were Misses Irmer Wilson, Minnie Dea Coffin, Lura Stickley, Alma, Emma and Ruby Norton, Helen, Jessie, Cotta and Bessie Sisk, Hazel and Waldine Wilson, Grace Lucas, Dimple Gass, Mary Jones, Olive Perkins, Doris Bowers, Mable Betts, Lois Garrison, Ethel Fuqua, Clyde Wilson Maude McLean, Gladys Johnson Eulah Head, Bess Nance, Mattie, Meda and Belle Woodburn.

KEPT TIME WITH THE MUSIC

Knitting Finally Got on Nerves of Individual Who Was There to Enjoy the Contest.

"I was at an orchestra concert recently," said a noted musician of Cleveland, "and was enjoying it thoroughly when, about the middle of the first number I began to feel a strange and regular movement about me. At first I thought it was the beat of the music, because I felt it grow slower and faster as the music went. But I never knew that Mr. Stockowski's beat extended as far into the auditorium as my seat. Gradually the movements grew more pronounced. Finally it became physical. It edged into my ninth or tenth rib, I'm not sure which. Slow in the andante movements, vigorous in the allegros, it edged into me.

"I looked at my neighbor, a pretty woman of about thirty. She was knitting. Oblivious of the music she knitted and knitted, responding unconsciously to the rhythm. Of course, it was for the Belgians, or I should have ventured a protest. But I feared the worst. In the dignified Sibellus number the elbow of my neighbor nudged me in appreciative gentleness. In the dance played by Zimballist they insisted a little, but joyfully and respectfully. Then the orchestra began to play the 'Marche Slave. With the first blare of the trumpets my 'knards' were attacked. With the beat of the drum my whole body was pounded by the knitting enemy's bayonets. As the crescendo rose I saw her arm coming in a flanking movement and—fled for my life."

USE OF QUOTATION MARKS

Protection Against Libel Suits as Well as An Excuse for Eccentric Style.

Among them is his description of one of the editors under whom he served, John B. Gallagher, who is said never to have read a book in his life. It was he, says the Dublin General Advertiser, who revised the reporter's copy and mercilessly mutilated the manuscript.

He had one curious delusion. He fancied that inverted commas were a protection against libel action, and stranger still, an excuse for any eccentricities of style. On one occasion Mr. Bodkin, in describing a theatrical performance, wrote that it was exquisitely amusing. "Old G." cocked his head critically on one side. "I don't like that word exquisitely," he said. "All right, sir," I answered, "I'll strike it out."

"No, no; it's a good enough word, but it's a little unusual there. Tell you what, we'll quote it."

"Quote it from what?" I asked in amazement. "Oh, it does not matter; just simply quote it." Next morning the Freeman's Journal duly reported that the performance was "exquisitely amusing."

The Man Who Disobeyed.

A corporal of the Scottish Borderers pays a fine tribute to the Indians. "It's an honor to fight with them," he says. "After their first fight some of their wounded were lying out under heavy fire. It was a critical moment for us, and there were strict orders that no man was to leave the trenches. In spite of that, one of the Indians collected some chaputties and rushed out under fire to give them to wounded men of his own village, who were out there. He came back without a scratch, though he was under fire all the time. The queer thing was that the man who had faced death from German bullets and shells without quailing, was frightened out of his life at the thought of what would happen to him for disobeying orders on the field of battle."

Advice to Young Men

Remember, my son, whether you handle a pen or a pick, a wheel-barrow or a set of books; digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around you son you will see that the rest of their lives without work, are the men who work hardest, don't be afraid of killing yourself by working, my son. It is beyond your power to do that. Men cannot work so hard as that on the sunny side of thirty. They, some times, but it because they quit work at 6 p. m., and don't go home until 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills, my son, not work. Work gives you an appetite for meals; it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives appreciation of holidays. There are young men who do not work, my son, but the world is not proud of them. The great busy world does not even know that they are here. So find out what you want to be and that you want to do, my son; take off your hat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less devilment you will be up to; the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holiday, and better satisfied will the world be with you—Selected

Some Marvelous Exhibits at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

Exhibits in Agricultural Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Show Caterpillar Gaining Favor Over Lug-wheeler Tractors in Farm Machinery.

An observer in the Agriculture Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco cannot help noticing, in the display of agricultural power machinery, the almost complete supersession of the new design of power tractor, known as the caterpillar, over the cumbersome, unstable, high-wheeled engine of a few years ago. There are few of the old models on exhibition, while the caterpillar principle has been applied to almost every type of engine for agricultural purposes.

The caterpillar proper is a heavy sheet metal chain, varying in width from ten inches to two feet according to the weight of the engine, which passes around two heavy sprocket wheels like a belt. These wheels revolving, pass the chain about them, the lower part moving backward, with the weight of the engine resting on the broad surface of the chain between the two sprockets.

An engine of this type can be operated on ground soft enough to mire an ordinary farm wagon.

Duplicate of the Roosevelt African Shotgun.

A duplicate of the shotgun which Col. Theodore Roosevelt took with him on his African trip, a gun constructed expressly for him by an American armorer, is on display at the manufacturer's exhibit in the Manufacturers' Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco. The gun cost its illustrious owner $360, and its beautiful design, graceful lines and wonderful inlay work would justify the expenditure to any lover of fine pieces. The stock is elaborately hand carved, the barrels and lock are hand engraved, and the lock is inlaid with a hunting scene in gold. The barrels are of the finest Krupp steel. Before starting on the trip the ex-president wrote to the makers: "I really think it is the most beautiful gun I have ever seen. I am almost ashamed to take it to Africa and subject it to the rough treatment it will receive."

The left barrel is choked and the right open. It is cored to shoot either buckshot or a single ball.

In a group in this Palace are displays by four of the world's greatest manufacturers of sporting arms, which form an exhibit which attracts hundreds of sportsmen. Each display is in charge of a firearms expert.

Pearl Culture a New Industry.

Among the interesting exhibits of the Japanese in the Manufacturers' Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is a demonstration of the methods and results of pearl cultivation in the far East. The displays of this cultivated product, showing hundreds of pearls which until pearl culture was placed on a commercial basis a few years ago would have been the possessions of royalty, will delight any lover of beautiful gems, and the methods of production will prove interesting to any observer. Though pearl culture has become a thriving industry in Japan, attempts to reproduce it in other parts of the world have yielded but meager results.

The successful method of propagation was evolved by the Japanese scientist Kokichi Mikimoto, who discovered a species of oyster which produced pearls. The method of the shell. Though the finding of the oysters and inserting the nuclei, then waiting for the pearl to grow to a commercial size may seem a simple process, the fact that it has not reduced the price of the gems, even to that of the most expensive imitations, shows that it is beset with many difficulties.

Daniel Webster's Plow at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

One of the most valuable exhibits commercially, in the Agricultural Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, is an ancient plow displayed in the Massachusetts exhibit, and forming a striking contrast to the highly-complex modern machinery displayed on the acreage of floor about it.

The plow owes its distinction to the circumstance that a hundred years ago Daniel Webster's youthful hands guided it along the furrows of his father's farm near Marshfield, Mass. It was drawn by a yoke of oxen and if the future peer of American orators and statesmen could turn an acre of sod a day he had to work from daylight to dark.

Released on Bond

W. G. Sears, principal of the school here, was released on $5000 bond, after the hearing in which he was charged with shooting J. O. Long sheriff of Briscoe county. The bond was signed by brothers of Sears and a number of residents of Briscoe county. The trial will probably be held at the next term of district court here. —Memphis Democrat.

Grow and Save Feed Crops

"We want you to raise big feed crops," says the First National Bank of Portales in a recent circular letter. "We want you to feed them to good livestock. After you have raised your feed crop the next thing is to gather it up and keep it. We hear on every side today that the most profitable way to keep a feed crop is to put it in a silo."

The Portales banks have been sending out this sort of letters every month and their gospel has taken root in the Portales Valley. Every letter deals with some phase of farm development, laying especially stress on the fact that growing and feeding all manner of live stock is a safe way to farm prosperity.

The new bulletin on diversified farming issued by the Santa Fe Railway, is being distributed. It is written by H. M. Bainter and fits local conditions. The information is sent out in plain English and covers every crop grown successfully here. Every farmer should have a copy of this bulletin. It is free for the asking.—A. M. Hove.

COMPARE PRICES

In the Light of Firestone Extras

YOU who know, know tire values from experience; but note also the specifications in this cross section. The same relative values apply in all sizes of Firestone tires. For instance, in the 30 x 3 inch, you pay only 40 cents more for the more mileage values represented in these extras. And only a trifle more in proportion for the larger sizes. Less material and lower grades are traps to make sales on prices. The Firestone organization, the largest in the world specializing on tires, can make and market tires and tubes at a lower cost to you, the user, than any one else in the industry.

GENIUS OF THE PIONEER

Last Sunday marked the first exercises of commencement week for the Dimmitt schools [baccalaureate-sermon being preached by Dr. Paris of Hereford. Dimmitt is the county seat of Castro county twenty-three miles south of Hereford. In population it is a mere village compared with what is usually expected of a county seat but in beauty of setting in its artistic and commodious school house, in the beauty of its court house, and in the culture, refinement and real worth of its people it will stand favorable comparison with many a county seat boasting its thousand population.

Surrounded by vast plains that in their bigness and beauty puts everything small or selfish to shame, with here and there beautiful lakes that glisten in the clear sunlight of the plains and are often lifted high on the horizon by the mirage that magnifies and beautifies at times all this country this little village has a setting that is excelled by none in both beauty and inspiration.

They have a school building that cost with equipment about $20,000 and looks as though they had got their moneys worth. Their court house is also a model for buildings of its size. As for the people congregated that day to hear the message of the speaker and to do honor to their young people who graduate this week they would compare favorably in culture, manners and intelligence with any audience anywhere. In their hospitality they are as broad and generous as the plains from which they draw their inspiration.

Only a few years ago all this section was a real frontier a hundred miles from a railroad separated from all those artificial means of culture that are often deemed necessary to the making of great men and women yet many of these people have been reared and spent their life on these plains and developed into manhood and womanhood that for real worth stands comparison with the best. They have battled with the forces of nature and wrested from her material success and in the struggle have developed a stability and strength of character such as goes forth each year into the larger towns and cities and become the real builders and doers. Their hearts schooled in the bigness of their environment, are open and generous.

Such is the genius of pioneer life. Such a life has been the greatest teacher of a great people and has produced more really great and noble characters that all the schools and colleges of the effete East. From these plains and frontier settlements go young men every year to the cities to later become their dominating force.

AFTER GRADUATION THOUGHTS

Looking backward from the vantage ground of the experience which comes with years, one is enabled to better distinguish the real from the visionary, to see that, stripped of the halo with which youth surrounds her idols, many of them become ghoul.

That "things are not what they seem" has no part in the sum of youthful knowledge and rightly so, for it is through the upward striving to overcome mistakes and failures that character is builded.

Yet, it is true, so very true, that if youth could but see through the vista of the years as they spread out before them, the pitfalls and the snares into which misdirected thought and effort is surely leading them, it would be to them indeed a Mount of Transfiguration.

Preceding and during the commencement festivities the expression was often heard "If I were a high school graduate again" and then followed as many plans and ideals as there were individuals who made use of the expression and doubtless to many a one was brought back a picture of that day in his own life, so long enshrined among the most sacred of memories—graduation. A picture, perhaps not unlike that brought before us this year, the same flowers, the same good wishes from loving friends, the busy, busy days and the final goodbyes, so sweetly blending joy and sorrow. Happy the individual who has only such scenes to recall, but—

Do you remember (you one time sweet girl graduate) the dainty dress in which you took such pride and do you still blush with pleasure as you picture the vision of your own youthful loveliness as you felt it then—and do you also remember, the many, many weary hours in which a tired, patient mother worked until far into the night fashioning that dainty garment, that it might be exactly as you wished it?

Do you remember the freedom from household duties which she gladly gave you, assuming the added burden herself that you might give your best self to those dreadful finals and when you won the honor you so much coveted you accepted it quite as your due and that nothing of her sacrifice?

And, in that last week, when you were smiling and gracious to those who paid tribute to your success—a tribute which you knew was often empty words you felt it your inalienable privilege to be a grouch at home, to snap and to snarl because the breakfast which had been kept waiting so long that your rest might be uninterrupted, was not fresh. Some classmate perhaps, had more flowers or received a greater number of presents, and you concealed your envy until the opportunity came to pour out your bitter words to the best friend your life will ever know, and the knowledge of your selfish ingratitude was to her a dagger thrust.

You may remember a father who cheerfully met your demands for the money you then deemed so necessary but which you now realize that you could have earned yourself or, better still, have done without, and that instead of thanking him you took pains to impress upon him the handicap that poverty had been to you.

Then there came the day of days in which you sat with your class and drank in the encomiums which the best oratory you could pay for heaped upon you and you felt that a great career was awaiting you, that humanity had suffered much in that your advent into the world had been so long delayed, when suddenly the thrill of ecstasy was changed into a self-conscious shiver as you observed the antiquated hat your mother wore, and that the threadbare edge of your father's coat sleeve could easily be seen by Judge Jones' daughter. You realize now where the money went that might have purchased these things and you also realize that the highest honor that was yours on that occasion was the fact that you were the son or daughter of these self-same, brave, upright, industrious parents.

And you were so utterly worn out that a vacation was imperative; you needed quiet in which to contemplate the many lines of work which would suffer irretrievably if you passed them by and the money and the vacation were forthcoming and instead of thanks there was a grouch because these things were limited.

Young people, would you really make commencement an epoch in your life, then resolve that from today you will endeavor to pay back to you owe to those who have made possible any success which you may have achieved. Begin now to assume your part in the daily duties of the home, USE the ability you have in whatever work lies before you, forget the selfishness which you have been pleased to call genius and He who makes no mistakes will choose your life work for you.

"OCEANS OF WATER."

Don't Know the Truth

Mr. M. F. Richardson of Salina, Kansas was here last Saturday looking over this country. He owns some land west of here. Mr. Richardson expressed himself as much surprised at the prosperous appearance of this country. He went out to see one of the irrigating wells in operation and was still more surprised at the volume of water the well was throwing. He said he had seen a picture of these wells but never believed they would furnish a stream of water like they did. He formerly supposed that a well might furnish enough water to irrigate 10 or 15 acres, but never believed a well would furnish plenty of water to irrigate a quarter section.

The editor of the paper asked Mr. Richardson "when people are so land hungry and good land in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri is selling for one to two hundred dollars per acre this shallow water land should lie here for sale at $25 per acre." He said the only reason is people do not believe the truth about this land, said he "I did not till I come and saw it with my own eyes."

Calomel when Discontinued DOES NOT STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tonic is Harmless" To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tonic tonight on my guarantee.

store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tonic is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine, entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

Should Raise Pork

The first duty of the South is to produce the pork products consumed in the South. To do less than this is to give up to that extent, at least, profits resulting from the growing of one so called money crops, like cotton, tobacco, truck, peanuts, etc. The soundness of the above can only be questioned on the ground that we cannot produce hogs in the South as can be done in other sections, and that the difference in the cost of production against us is at least equal to the freight and other handling charges for bringing these pork products to us from distant sections.

If we can even produce hogs as cheaply as can be done in other sections it will certainly pay us to produce sufficient for home consumption for the freight and handling charges alone, are equal to a liberal profit to the producer.

It requires care, intelligence and some cost to produce hogs anywhere but in view of our longer growing seasons, our numerous legume crops especially fitted for hog feeding, and the cheapness of our lands, we have no hesitation in stating that the South can produce hogs at as low or lower cost than can the corn belt, where the most of the pork products consumed in the South are now produced.—Fort Worth Record.

Do You Read Labels?

Domestic science teachers and food authorities are urging the housewife to carefully read the labels on all food articles.

The National Pure Food Law compels food manufacturers to print the ingredients of their products on the label, and in this way enables consumers to distinguish healthful foods from those which may be deleterious.

High-grade baking powders are made of pure cream of tartar, derived from grapes. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is a type of the highest grade. It is pure and healthful beyond any question.

The low-grade baking powders are made from alum, a mineral acid salt. Most physicians condemn their use in food.

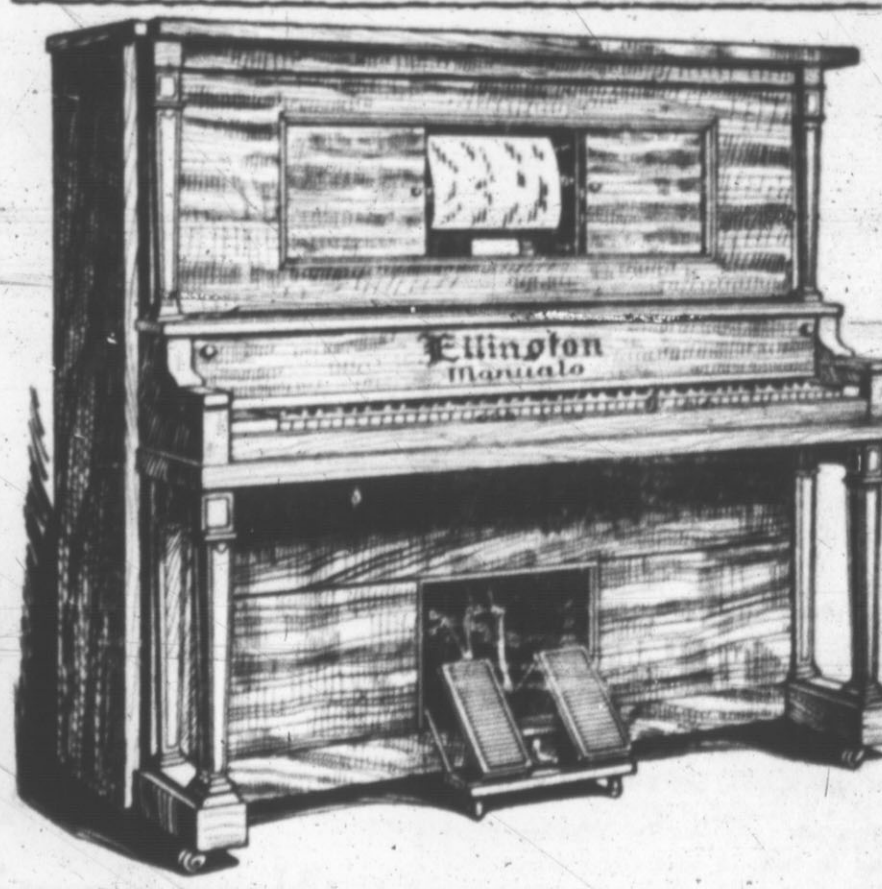

Consumers can learn the character of the baking powder by referring to the label, which must state whether the contents include cream of tartar, alum or phosphate.

The World in Epitome Shown by Displays in the Vast Exhibit Palaces at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Today the great Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco is being widely exploited throughout the world by the millions of sight-seers who have visited the exposition since its opening on February 20th last as the most beautiful, comprehensive and interesting universal exposition that the world has ever known. The wonderful exhibit palaces house the treasures of the earth, while the grounds, planted to millions of rare bulbs, are a gorgeous mass of color and fragrance. To the visitor entering the gates for the first time, either by night or day, the scene is certain to hold the newcomer spellbound, as the vast panorama unfolds bit by bit before the gaze and the eye wanders from one beauty spot to another in an endless chain of amazing surprises. Entering the main gate at Scott street, for instance, the visitor sees the great Fountain of Energy directly before him, its giant sprays sparkling and flashing in the light of the warm California sun by day, or assuming the appearance of masses of flowing flames by night under the powerful beams of the great batteries of searchlights trained upon this work of art. As the spell is lifted the eye falls upon the Tower of Jewels, the great center piece of the exposition, and again attention is arrested until the eye has conquered the dizzy heights of this gem-studded tower, every cornice and figure sending forth its share of dazzling lights. The world's advance in all branches of art, science and industry is amazingly portrayed in the exhibits. Among the electrical exhibits, for example, is the Audion amplifier, invented by Lee De Forest. Through this invention the visitor in the Liberal Arts palace is enabled to converse over the long distance telephone with his relatives at the farthest section of the Atlantic coast and may hear the voice of the speaker in greater volume than was actually given into the transmitting telephone. The intensity of the sound is increased by passing through heat waves. Today it is possible for an orator in New York city to address through the telephone a large audience at San Francisco; the sound being increased so that it is of power great enough to fill a large hall. This single advance in the development of the telephone is paralleled in hundreds of other lines. The railroads have made low round trip rates and ample and reasonable accommodations are to be had in San Francisco and the adjoining cities.

HIS TRUE ANGEL

By A. J. GARTH.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Four boys! dead or alive, which?" Old Abner Dorsett sat crouched over the embers of a dying fire in his desolate home. Time was when he had stormed and raved whenever he thought or talked of his missing son. He had disowned him, had almost cursed him. Time, however, had softened the smart of a terrible disappointment, a severe blow to fatherly trust and affection.

Wilfred Dorsett, bright, handsome, twenty-two, engaged to Una Walden, the prettiest girl in Winsted, had been sent to the city by his father to invest the earnings of years, some fifteen thousand dollars in bonds. He had kissed his neighbor's daughter, gentle Una, good-by with all his accustomed sincerity. He was to return in two days. On the third there came an appalling telegram. It read:

"Forget me. I have lost all the money through gambling."

From that day until this, through two lonely, heart-breaking years, old Abner Dorsett had gone about the deserted house like a dazed, numbed creature unable to rally from a deadening shock.

It was Una who had won him finally from his bitterness and despair. Whatever her sufferings, poor girl, she never let the world know their depths. She hid her misery with a smile. She felt it her duty to care for the poor old man.

It was not often that Una attended any usual functions. Hers had become a home life, but once in a while some close girl friend would tease her into attending a party or reception. That same evening the brother of such a friend became her escort to a birthday celebration in the next town. He had shown marked attention to Una, and she regretted it and decided this would be the last time she would accompany him.

An open carriage from the livery called for them. The driver sat muffled on the front seat in his great coat. Una's escort carelessly regarded him as the sleepy-headed driver he usually employed, and after they had driven a mile or two, to the distress of Una, made a flat proposal for her hand in marriage.

"I am very sorry," she said, "but you must not speak of this again."

"There is some other?"

"There always has been!" murmured Una softly; "it will be always the same."

The driver moved, stirred with some deep emotion, but silently drove them to their destination and back home again. When he took the team to the livery he handed his proprietor a bank note with the words:

"Thanks for entering to my fancy to act as a driver on a special occasion," and kept his face shaded, as during his spell at the lines.

Mr. Dorsett and Una got up a turkey dinner for the next day. That evening Una, her father and mother and her sister were invited guests, and it cheered up Mr. Dorsett to be in such friendly company. Una looked charming in her spotless white bib and tucker.

"All ready!" she announced at last, and the well-browned turkey was ushered into evidence. "That is strange!" spoke Una, returning to the kitchen and finding the outside door slightly open. She picked up the covered dish of sweet potatoes, carried it to the table and sat down, feeling she had done her duty and was ready for the due reward.

"I declare! this is simply grand and neighborly!" began Mr. Dorsett, and then he came to an abrupt pause, the cover to the potato dish in his hand. He dropped it, stared past a steamy veil within the dish at a neat rubber-banded package of papers.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, and then fell back, overcome. "Bonds!" repeated Una, vaguely rising up from her chair and hurrying over to his side.

"Yes," uttered Mr. Dorsett, hoarsely, as though some quick suggestion brought partial illumination to his mind, "and the same bonds identically that I ordered two years ago and that Wilfred—Wilfred—What does this mean?"

"It means—it must mean Wilfred!" ventured Una, with a speedy gleam of intelligence.

"Did you call me?" interrupted a new voice, and there in the doorway stood—Wilfred Dorsett!

The old man got up, shaking from head to foot. Una stood staring, palpitating.

"It's all right, father," spoke the newcomer, moving to the side of Mr. Dorsett and placing a loving, gentle hand upon the silvered white head.

"You true angel!" burst forth the returned wanderer, and his arms were extended, and Una ran into them. "Ah, you were all ready for me!"

Yes, there, as at every meal Una attended to in the lonely house, was the plate set for the missing one. Next to it she had sat and there a moment later those two were together.

"I slipped that package into the dish just now in the kitchen," explained the returned outcast. "I drove you over to the party last night, Una. I heard your answer to your escort. Then I knew I might hope."

A More or Less Dry Remark.

"I've invented a boat made entirely of cork."

"Who will man it?"

"Oh, I am the cork's crew."

Parrot Items

Has Parrot moved off the map? No sir-e-e, we are all here and move too, and so busy not even one off duty to represent us in the news columns for some time, but resolved that we be represented from this date on indefinitely unless we miss once in a while, each and every week, now on, and forever.

Rev. Faris of Hereford delivered the baccalaureate sermon for the Senior class of the Dimmitt high school on Sunday morning.

H. D. Neely of Omaha is spending a few days on his Parrot ranch, and to attend commencement exercises at Dimmitt. His nephew Charlaton Neely being one of the graduates.

A. G. Noble spent a few days recently with J. W. Hamlan and family.

T. R. Metcalf bought a large bunch of cattle from Shore Bros. at Hereford and moved them to his ranch at Parrot.

Two new automobiles right in the middle of Parrot. The possessors being B. F. Neely and T. R. Metcalf.

Wheat, oats, rye and speltz in this vicinity are looking good, much row stuff is planted and some early planting is up.

Rev. Sharp of Dimmitt preached at Parrot last Sunday afternoon.

Hazel Hacker is spending the week with friends in Dimmitt.

Tom Sheppard who is attending Theological college at Planview spent a few days with home folks.

The neighborhood called Parrot is advancing materializing and improving as fast as a big metropolis, every home has a telephone installed.

Solicitors have already circulated a petition for a rural route and now, with all that and automobiles too, wont we be envied by our brothers of the metropolis who are copped up in lots not half so large as our back yards, who look out upon some one else cooped likewise. Nothing cooped about life on the Plains.

HAD TO STAND THE GHOSTS

Frenchman Vainly Tried to Get Relief From His Unwelcome, Noisy Visitors.

Writing on the effect of ghosts on leaseholds, William W. Ackerly in Case and Comment tells of a case before the parliament of Paris less than four centuries ago. It appeared that a house was let in the suburbs of Tours, and that the tenant, being promptly disturbed by a "noise and routing of invisible spirits, which suffered neither himself nor his family to sleep o' nights," as promptly went to law. The lower court broke the lease, the hauntings being considered insupportable nuisances. But this he did without letters royal, and the lessors appealed on the formal point.

Then the ghost was in for it. The learned counsel for the lessors laughed at the very idea of noisy spirits, and cited Joan of Arc, and quoted from Plato, Philo, Judaeus, Empedocles, Marcus Aurelius, Tertullian, Quintilian and Dioscorides, as antighost authorities. He concluded that the tenant and his family were suffering from nightmare, and suggested that they should consult a physician and not a solicitor; or, granting that the house was haunted, that they should appeal to the clergy, and not to the law. Naturally the tenant's advocate did not appreciate his adversary's sense of humor, and told him so. He, too, called upon the ancients for assistance, citing Pliny, Plutarch, Suetonius, Ovid, the Fathers, and whom else do you suppose? Why, none other than the self-same Plato whom his adversary had quoted so glibly to the contrary. Obviously that philosophic one, like many of our courts, either overlooked, or found good reason for overruling, a former decision; or else he was an equitable soul and wished to satisfy both parties! Anyway, however, it seems that the lower court was reversed, and the poor tenant, of course, had to endure his unwelcome cotenant, or pay the full term's rent and vacate.

Among Acid Fumes for Three Weeks

A large manufacturer of cotton oil, fertilizer, etc., needed some roofing. Up to that time no roofing had been found which would stand the acid fumes given off in the manufacture. So his chemists thought of the strongest test they could make.

In the laboratory a cabinet was used for all experiments where dangerous acids were required; this cabinet being provided with a flue to carry off the fumes.

Up in the neck of the flue, right where all the acid-fumes concentrated, different brands of roofing were placed, Texaco among the number. For three weeks they remained right in the destructive gases.

Texaco Roofing was untouched—as good as before. The rest were eaten away and partially destroyed.

A WONDERFUL HEALING INFLUENCE IN KIDNEY TROUBLE

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as stone in the bladder and prescribed lithia water. I took lithia water and tablets for some time and got no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half-dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly, H. W. Spinks, Camp Hill, Ala. Personally appeared before me this 16th day of August, 1909, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact. A. B. Lee, Ex. of Justice of Peace.

STRONG POINT WITH JURY

Evidence Cleverly Brought Out by Lawyer Convicted Man on Trial for Murder.

The chief clue that hanged Williams, the hooded murderer, was a hat of the unusual size of 7 1/4. When the murderer of Inspector Wells was in the witness box giving evidence on his own behalf, Sir F. Low, K. C., who was prosecuting, suddenly said: "What size hat do you take?" "Seven and a quarter," replied Williams.

"And this hat is seven and a quarter," said the counsel, holding up the hat found near the scene of the crime. "So I believe." "And it is stated to have come from a shop in Bournemouth." "Yes." "Were you in Bournemouth at the time?" "Yes." "It would be a remarkable coincidence," finally said Sir F. Low, "that you should have been at Bournemouth at the time the hat was bought, that the hat should turn up in Southcliffe avenue, Eastbourne, and that you, hatless, should not be far from the spot of the murder." The coincidence was too strong for the jury, who had breathlessly followed this dramatic piece of evidence, and they brought in a verdict of guilty.—London Mail

Grief of a Rhinoceros.

A rhinoceros is capable of grief, according to a Paris writer who wrote this anecdote years ago: "The animal had been in the collection at the Jardin des Plantes for twenty-two years, but was of an unsocial and irascible temper, and not even his keepers ventured to take any liberties with him. One day, however, the little lap dog of the wife of the director got into his house by squeezing in between the bars. Instead of killing the intruder, as expected, the rhinoceros allowed the little creature to play with him, scampering over his back, biting his neck, and playing off all manner of sportive tricks. The two became great friends; the 'wee doggie' passing several hours each day with his undemonstrative acquaintance, who put up patiently with all its teasings. One day the rhinoceros inadvertently set his foot on his little pet, killing it instantly. The poor brute's grief at the catastrophe was pitiable; for two days he did not eat a particle of food."

Malta's "Hood of Shame."

A peculiar headdress is worn by the women folk of Malta and is known as the "falsetta." It is said to have originated under the following curious conditions, says the Wide World: During the French occupation of Malta, over a century ago, the natives were subjected to much persecution. Their religion was attacked, churches were rifled and the women and children molested. This state of affairs so grieved those deeply religious people that they made a solemn vow to wear a "hood of shame" for a hundred years. This period has now elapsed, which perhaps accounts for the gradual disappearance of the "falsetta" and the increasing numbers of women who wear the "latest from Paris," and generally follow European fashions.

When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, unless out of the ear are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue. Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side. The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair. At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work." If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today. LOVE AND INDIANS

By MYRA E. TERMUNE.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)
It was so cold that the catchup jars in the cellar of the Alden farmhouse were popping like champagne corks.

For all that, Roger Blaine was preparing to go forth and brave the chilly blasts, sixty miles on horseback and through a barren and uninhabited district. Love impelled him, however, deep and sincere, and that impetus kept his spirits far above freezing point.

"Bound to go, are you?" demanded Farmer Alden, and Roger glanced with a soft admiring eye at Gladys, his daughter, and answered carelessly:

"Just a little exercise for my horse. I expect to make it and return in three days."

"I wish I could dissuade you," here spoke Gladys, concerned and tremulous. "Please do not risk it, Mr. Blaine!"

"But what about those saddle bags, Miss Alden?" proposed Roger.

"Oh, they will be safe, if they were ever safe, a week from now. Then the weather will let up and it will not be so dangerous."

"You don't know the average Indian," declared Roger, shaking his head sagely. "This fellow, Vaka, who brought back your horse, said he had left the saddle in his home dugout. Perhaps, and perhaps not. Even if so, his wife, his children, his neighbors may take occasion to rifle it. Vaka has promised every day for a week that he would go after them."

"Which he won't do until the last cent of that hundred dollars is squandered," predicted Mr. Alden.

It was Gladys who accompanied Roger to the door and stood there while he mounted his horse. She, too, stood at the window looking after him till he was out of sight. Was he mistaken, or did she really lift her hands to her lips, as if sending after him a good luck kiss?

Roger loved Gladys Alden. She had many suitors and he was not entirely sure of his ground. Since he had announced his present journey, however, Roger had fancied a new depth of expression to her sweet eyes.

It seemed that a month before, while out for a gallop, Gladys had left her favorite horse beside the trail to gather some wild flowers. When she returned he was gone. Wandered off or stolen, nothing was heard of the missing steed until about three weeks later. A reward of one hundred dollars had been offered for the return of the horse. Vaka had appeared, but bareback. He had "forgotten" the saddle, he said. In one of its pockets Gladys had placed a small hand bag. It contained some valued trinkets, once belonging to her dead mother. She had mourned their loss. Hence the chivalric foray of Roger, looking to their restitution.

Roger found his calculation as to a speedy journey at fault. The trail was forty inches under snow, the rines clogged, the horse worn out before half the journey was accomplished. On the evening of the second day, however, he arrived weary and half frozen at the wretched dugout that Vaka called home. His squaw with her five children greeted him. Roger made out that he was at the right place, but the Indian woman could not speak English. She made a motion as if intent on going for a neighbor to act as interpreter. About to depart, her eyes glittered, her breath came rapidly, she stared hard at the leggings which Roger wore. Then, a lowering expression on her dusky face, she left the hut.

Roger was so exhausted that he threw himself on a pile of skins to recuperate while the woman was away. Before he realized it, drowsiness overcame him. He was aroused by finding himself pounced upon vigorously. The squaw had lurked outside the hut, had stealthily returned, had bound him hand and foot.

"You kill Vaka!" she shrieked frenzied, and she pointed at the leggings and poised a knife ready to plunge it into his vitals.

"No! no!" asserted Roger strenuously, comprehending her dark suspicions—"alive! Pocket—pocket!"

The squaw half understood him. She groped past his helpless hands and drew from his breast pocket a wallet. She scanned its contents. Then, snatching from among the papers it contained the photograph of Vaka, she stood regarding it with distended eyes.

"I kill her!" she screamed in a wild frenzy, drawing the knife in her hand through the smiling face of the woman in the picture.

The determined squaw was the companion of Roger, mounted on her Indian pony, back to the town. She had located the missing saddle among some trappings and the little hand-bag had its original contents intact. The gratitude expressed in the eyes of Gladys was sufficient reward for all Roger had done. When he told of his narrow escape from death, however, this grew to concern. She drew closer to him and her hand trembled as she touched his arm unconsciously.

In the moonlight at the door step, Roger Blaine frankly confessed his love an hour later. The first kiss of a happy betrothal was interrupted by the appearance of Mr. Alden. He was chuckling hilariously.

"Vaka," he explained, "with drooping feathers has just been led homeward bound by his better half at the end of a lariat!"

REFUSED TO SERVE PRINCE

Waiter in London Club Allowed Distinguished Guest to Remain Thirsty.

A story is told of an experience the late King Edward VII had at the Savage club in London, of which he was a member.

One evening the then prince of Wales took the Grand Duke Alexis to the club, after the theater. Shortly before this there had been some trouble between the Savage club and the Licensing authorities. It seems that a representative of the latter called at the Savage club one evening and, in the rush of business, was served with a drink after hours, although he was not a member.

A summons was issued, and there appears to have been a good deal of trouble in the matter, and the waiters were warned to be very careful whom they served.

The prince of Wales and the Grand Duke Alexis went into the smoking room, which was empty, and the prince, after consultation with the grand duke, ordered two whiskies and sodas.

"I have to ask your name, sir," said the waiter in attendance. "I do not think I have seen you before."

"My name is Albert Edward," said the prince.

The waiter immediately referred to the list of members.

"I see an Edwards here," he said, "but the name is George, and not Albert. I do not see your name here, sir."

So the prince was refused the drinks and went thirsty—until a fellow member entered and all was set right.

Released on Bond

W. G. Sears, principal of the school here, was released on $5000 bond, after the hearing in which he was charged with shooting J. O. Long, sheriff of Briscoe county. The bond was signed by brothers of Sears and a number of residents of Briscoe county. The trial will probably be held at the next term of district court here. —Memphis Democrat.

POOR REWARD OF RESEARCH

English Scientist Demands Fact That He Has Been Able to Accomplish So Little.

Lecturing at Charing Cross hospital, Sir Ronald Ross, discoverer of the life history of malaria parasites in mosquitoes, spoke of his disappointment at the slow progress of the fight against malaria. "When I had completed my work in 1899, I had fondly dreamed that a few years would see the almost complete banishment of malaria from the principal towns and cities in the tropics; that those benign climates and those beautiful scenes would be almost rid at once of a scourge that has blighted them from time immemorial. In this I have been disappointed. True, much has been done in certain places, as in Panama, Ischia, Italy, West Africa, and parts of India and the Malay states, and in some other spots; but much more might have been done had we remained fully alive to our opportunities—and our duties. It is not the fault of science that we do not fully utilize the gifts that she gives to us. None of us here will live to see the full fruition of those gifts in this particular case; but we have it ever thus with science. Her slaves are like laborers condemned to drive tunnels through mountains—working, perhaps for years, in darkness, and oppressed by the immense spissitudes of nature above them; but always encouraged by the hope that at any moment they may emerge into the sunlight and upon the vision of a new world."—Youth's Companion.
