Bankers Enjoyed Good Time Here

Hereford Royally Entertained Her Guests In Such a Way as to Cinch Her Claim to the Title of "The Queen City of the Plains."

CLOVIS, N. M., CAPTURES CONVENTION FOR NINETEEN-SIXTEEN

Many Visitors in the City, in Addition to the Delegates to Convention, Enjoy the Barbecue and Supper, Watched the Big Irrigation Wells Pour Out "Oceans of Water," and Said We Lived Up to Every Promise Made.

The Panhandle Bankers' Association held the final session Thursday afternoon of what was conceded to be one of the very best conventions in the history of the association.

There is always inspiration in numbers and with an increasing attendance from the beginning each session gained in enthusiasm and interest. Not only the master minds of the association, but bankers of national prominence from all over the country gave prestige to the convention.

The era of prosperity which exists throughout the Panhandle, as shown by the various reports, was very encouraging and added to the general feeling of good fellowship.

The regular program began Wednesday afternoon. The address of welcome in the absence of Mayor W. M. Knight was delivered by Judge John B. Slaton and the response was made by S. F. Sullenger of Amarillo.

President Ray Wheatley of Amarillo, opened the regular business with a concise and very comprehensive summary of the condition of the Panhandle. Secretary R. A. Underwood made his report; E. E. Masterman, vice president of the Kansas National Bank, Wichita spoke interestingly on the "Double Liability of the Banker."

Julian M. Bassett, president of the First National Bank of Crosbyton, spoke on the subject, "Financing Cattle Paper," a matter that is of vital interest in the present development of this section. In the evening J. C. Swift of Kansas City, spoke on the subject of "The Country Banker."

At 4:30 p. m. an immense auto procession of resident and visiting bankers reviewed the irrigated farms near Hereford and at 6:30 a genuine old time barbecue and fish fry was partaken of. This was to have been held on the river but owing to the recent heavy rains the cooked meat and fish, together with coffee, pickles and bread were served in the Miller-Walker building.

The reception for the ladies, and smoker for the men, were held simultaneously and were both as enjoyable as they were different from each other.

A detailed account of the reception is given in the society column. With a few changes necessitated by absence the program, Thursday was as scheduled.

J. W. Hoopes, vice-governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, Dallas, read a paper on the relation of the reserve bank to the member banks and the banker, much valuable information that will be of value to the banks and their customers. Ford Brandenburg, vice president of the First National Bank, Amarillo, read a paper on the benefits to the Country Banker from dealing with the Federal Reserve bank.

There was much discussion during the sessions, in which visiting bankers also took an active part.

Thursday afternoon was given over to business. W. B. Quigley of Memphis was elected president; T. E. Durham, Lockney, vice-president; B. E. Finlay, Pampa, 2nd vice-president; W. S. Posey, Lubbock, was re-elected treasurer, and

R. A. Underwood, Plainview secretary, all by acclamation. Clovis, New Mexico, and Memphis invited the bankers for 1916, and Clovis won by 29 to 14 votes. The Convention went to Clovis because Clovis wanted it. On the opening day a large delegation of her boosters came in and were present at the first session and from that time until it was known that Clovis was to have the 1916 convention, it was distinctly in evidence that Clovis had come after the convention and that, barring accidents she was going to take it and, like the little red hen, she did.

Wednesday evening, her star attraction, a ladies' band, came in and after they had played a few selections at the station, the whole town might have been theirs for the asking. They were certainly a drawing card, furnished good music and presented a very attractive appearance.

Thursday brought another band and more boosters making it a foregone conclusion that the Panhandle bankers would meet in Clovis in 1916.

The convention is over and Hereford has no apologies to make for the entertainment accorded her visitors. She put on her gala attire and extended the right hand of fellowship in her own hearty, characteristic way. She was glad to have this big bunch of brainy, broad-minded bankers and she took no pains to conceal the fact. Her appearance was less gay and festive than she could have wished owing to the rain, but the rain was good, the convention was good, and what more could be asked.

The Secretary's report and the address of President Ray Wheatley are given in full below.

President Wheatley's Address

Introductory to the submission of the detailed official reports I shall avail myself of the opportunity afforded the president to extend to the members of this Association here assembled, my felicitations upon a degree of progress and prosperity admittedly and obviously unsurpassed in the period of any previous year of the business life and gainful activities of the people of the Panhandle of Texas. This advancement is no less pronounced than manifest on every hand, and applies with equal emphasis to every line of legitimate endeavor. To enumerate specifically the uncounted successes and forward strides in all channels and directions would be a task no less huge than laborious. As a capstone to the memorable, if not record breaking fiscal year now closing, we enter upon another, epochal in the abundance of the ranch and the fruitage of the field and farm. A mild and genial winter, coupled with timely rains have yielded ideal if not perfect range conditions, followed by such generous calf crops and growth and thrift in every class and manner of livestock as to well be the envy of any favored land or people.

The soil has responded with such abundance in grain and forage crops as will veritably burst granaries and silos and tax to the utmost the trans-

First Christian Church

The work of completing the church will leave nothing to be desired in that regard. The only question as to finishing the work at this time is that very important one of finance. The membership is hopeful however that the work may be pushed and the building completed without delay.

There will no doubt be more of them from time to time and members should look out for them and report promptly to the secretary. In pursuing my duties your secretary has endeavored not only to warn members of the operations of the enemies of good banking, but also to encourage a spirit of co-operation along other lines as well. I have also carried on to the best of my ability, the usual routine of collecting dues and stimulating interest. In reviewing the condition of our territory; we find our harvest of grain bountiful; our herds of live stock increasing; both in quality, numbers and price. We find the cattleman buying a few more sections of land which adjoins his pasture; the farmer as well purchasing a little more land; with some occasional newcomers. This news traveling does not fail to find an echo in a desire for investments in our midst to which we lend the open ear of welcome, and by which large avenues are opened unto us.

Undoubtedly this will be a year of unusual liquidation of securities, and as a consequence follows the replacing of our funds for another season, and if this we do with a view of sure returns for our money, as well as with profit to our customers, then we are bankers in the truest sense of the word. So to my mind at this time it behooves us as custodians of the prosperity of our territory, to suggest to the in-experienced, and to temper with caution the strides of even the most experienced in the handling of investments whether he be using his own funds or those of our various banks. In conclusion, we are met here to mix our thoughts, to mingle our personalities; to develop ideas, which we hope we may find to be practical when we return to our homes. We are here to develop a co-working spirit; we are of the same class and kind, with practically the same environment, and if by coming together, we can find some gain, the pleasure of our association together will taste better than when we are in our own spheres rounding out our careers; eliminating from business that which would retard its progress; placing instead that which gives it perpetuity; and likewise eliminating from our personalities, those things which mean danger, and placing therein, so far as we can, all those things which would tend toward giving us That Everlasting Peace.

Secretary's Report.

First, I wish to express my appreciation for having the honor of serving as your Secretary for the past year and I also wish to thank publicly, Mr. Ray Wheatley, our President, for his untiring interest and assistance, as well as Mr. Quigley, Mr. Durham and Mr. Posey. I also appreciate to the fullest extent the spirit of co-operation among our members generally prevalent, for all of which, your secretary is deeply grateful.

In reporting my work as your secretary for the past year, I am very glad to say that, among our members there have been no calamities. Occasional irregularities have been reported to the secretary's office, principal among which is the cashing of worthless checks, and at this time we have disposition to make of one such individual.

PICNIC AT DIMMITT JULY 29TH

Castro County Seat Will Be Hostess to Her Friends Next Thursday.

Dimmitt, the capitol of Castro County, is going on the map for sure on Thursday July 29th when she will entertain her friends, and that means every one who has ever enjoyed her splendid hospitality with a big picnic. There will be races and games of number and variety to suit every taste. A special attraction will be a ball game between the Tulsa and Hereford teams and especially special will be the chicken dinner, which will include fried chicken, baked chicken broiled chicken and chicken a la fricasse with chicken any style for dessert, and its all free, the only toll exacted will be your presence.

Will Put Light in Mothers Park

The City Dads will be importuned to place a large arc light in the center of Mothers Park. This will be useful to the many who use the Park as a place for spending an hour for rest after and will light up the way for the belated travelers who may wish to lounge at any hour of the night.

Doris Stanley Hurt

Doris Stanley a young man twenty-one years of age, son of H. H. Stanley living about four miles southwest of town was badly injured Sunday when a horse which he was riding in from the pasture became unmanageable and jumped into a barbed wire fence, throwing the young man into the wire, giving him several ugly gashes the most serious was a deep cut below the knee to close which, it was necessary to take twenty one stitches. Medical help was immediately summoned and at last reports, the wounds, while very painful, were not considered serious.

Wool Clipping Finished

F. W. Lambert after more than four weeks of strenuous work has finished shearing the herds in this section, taking the fleece from 25,600 head. He began June 7 and finished July 17, using an eight drop power shearing machine. Mexican labor was used to handle the sheep and hold the clippers. Mr. Lambert thinks that the clips will average seven and one-half pounds, thus making some 192,000 pounds of wool to be marketed at Hereford. This is considerably less than usual owing to the large out shipments of sheep during the past two seasons, both of stock sheep and lambs. Wool is bringing a good price despite the talk that "Free Wool" would lower the price. Some has been sold as high as 20c.

Going To Short Course

The farmers short course will be held at College station for one week beginning July 26. There are a number of men and boys going from here. The railroads have made the low rate of $11.25 for the round trip. Board will cost $7.50 for the week and tuition will be $2.50. The party from this section will be in charge of W. L. Boys and he agrees to see that the boys are cared for. The following boys and men have already planned to go:

Lawrence Overstreet	Farwell
Tedd Nichols	"
E. F. Clennin	Friena
Clyde Goodwine	"
W. E. Schlenker	Bovina
Edward Meeks	Wildorado
Coy Philip	"

FIRE INSURANCE INSPECTOR HERE.

Ben Smith, Special Inspector, Was Here and Made Some Recommendations for Us.

Mr. Ben F. Smith special Fire Inspector for the State Fire Insurance Commission, was in our city this week for the purpose of locating and reporting to the Commission at Austin all conditions that can be corrected or removed which experience has shown to be the most frequent causes of fires.

The State Fire Insurance Commission is now, and has been for some time, engaged in making a rigid inspection of practically every city and town in the state and, after the inspection of the city and town is completed, is taking up with its city officials the question of eliminating or correcting the hazardous conditions found. Many dangerous fire hazards exist in almost every city or town of the State and, in many instances, they are due to lack of a proper conception of the latent danger that lurks in such conditions.

For example, the careless and improper handling of volatile oils has been, and is now, almost daily the source of very destructive fires. Poor electrical wiring, improperly installed gasoline lighting systems, gas engines and heat devices; the accumulation of rubbish, paper, trash, empty boxes, barrels, etc., each and all create a hazard that may, at any moment, break out in a serious fire or even a conflagration.

The Commission believes that, if it can have the enthusiastic support and co-operation of the various cities and towns, manifested by the adoption and enforcement of the proper fire prevention ordinances and the carrying out of the instructions of the Commission, which is also making a close investigation of every suspicious fire brought to its attention, that the annual fire waste in this state can be very substantially reduced.

The Commission will be very much gratified if fire waste can be reduced and kept to a point where a general reduction in rates to the insuring public will be justified; however, the Commission must be governed by the scientific fact that whatever the fire waste is, so must be the rate. If the waste is high, the rate must be high; if the waste is low, then the rate can be low. The average loss ratio for all companies reporting to the Commission for the year 1914 was 81.6 per cent; when we add to this the expense of doing business, the agreed average of which is 35 per cent, we readily see that there was an average underwriting loss to the companies doing business in Texas in 1914 of more than 16 per cent. If this kind of showing is repeated for 1915, a raise in rates will be the inevitable result. Therefore, it is to make such a showing as will preclude such a contingency arising that the Commission is now directing its energies, and to which end the support of all city officials, the insuring public and the citizenship in general is desired.

KEPT TIME WITH THE MUSIC

Knitting Finally Got on Nerves of Individual Who Was There to Enjoy the Contest.

"I was at an orchestra concert recently," said a noted musician of Cleveland, "and was enjoying it thoroughly when, about the middle of the first number I began to feel a strange and regular movement about me. At first I thought it was the beat of the music, because I felt it grow slower and faster as the music went. But I never knew that Mr. Stockowski's beat extended as far into the auditorium as my seat. Gradually the movements grew more pronounced. Finally it became physical. It edged into my ninth or tenth rib, I'm not sure which. Slow in the andante movements, vigorous in the allegro, it edged into me.

"I looked at my neighbor, a pretty woman of about thirty. She was knitting. Oblivious of the music she knitted and knitted, responding unconsciously to the rhythm. Of course, it was for the Belgians, or I should have ventured a protest. But I feared the worst. In the dignified Sibelius number the elbow of my neighbor nudged me in appreciative gentleness. In the dance played by Zimballist they insisted a little, but joyfully and respectfully. Then the orchestra began to play the 'Marche Slave.' With the first blast of the trumpets my 'knitards' were attacked. With the beat of the drum my whole body was pounded by the knitting enemy's bayonets. As the crescendo rose I saw her arm coming in a flanking movement and—fed for my life."

USE OF QUOTATION MARKS

Protection Against Libel Suits as Well as An Excuse for Eccentric Style.

Judge Bodkin's book of reminiscences contains many good things. Among them is his description of one of the editors under whom he served, John B. Gallagher, who is said never to have read a book in his life. It was he, says the Dublin General Adviser, who revised the reporter's copy and mercilessly mutilated the manuscript.

He had one curious delusion. He fancied that inverted commas were a protection against libel action, and stranger still, an excuse for any eccentricities of style. On one occasion Mr. Bodkin, in describing a theatrical performance, wrote that it was "exquisitely amusing." "Old G." cocked his head critically on one side. "I don't like that word 'exquisitely,'" he said. "All right, sir," I answered, "I'll strike it out."

"No, no; it's a good enough word, but it's a little unusual there. Tell you what, we'll quote it."

"Quote it from what?" I asked in amazement. "Oh, it does not matter; just simply quote it." Next morning the Freeman's Journal duly reported that the performance was "exquisitely amusing."

The Man Who Disobeyed.

A corporal of the Scottish Borderers pays a fine tribute to the Indians. "It's an honor to fight with them," he says. "After their first fight some of their wounded were lying out under heavy fire. It was a critical moment for us, and there were strict orders that no man was to leave the trenches. In spite of that, one of the Indians collected some chaputtles and rushed out under fire to give them to wounded men of his own village, who were out there. He came back without a scratch, though he was under fire all the time. The queer thing was that the man who had faced death from German bullets and shells without quailing, was frightened out of his life at the thought of what would happen to him for disobeying orders in the field of battle."

The Old Hymns

There's lots of music in 'em—the hymns of long ago, And when some gray-haired brother sings the ones I used to know, I sorter want to take a hand. I think of days gone by, "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye!"

There's lots of music in 'em—those dear, sweet hymns of old, With visions bright of lands of light, and shining streets of gold; And I hear 'em ringing—singing, where mem'ry, dreaming, stands, "From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands."

They seem to sing forever of holier, sweeter days, When the lilies of the love of God bloomed white in all the ways;— And I want to hear their music from the old-time meeting rise Till 'I can read my title clear to mansions in the skies'"

We never needed singin' books in them old days—we knew

The words, the tunes, of every one—the dear old hymn book through!

We didn't have no trumpet then, no organs built for show,

We only sang to praise the Lord "from whom all blessings flow."

As so I love the old hymns, and when my time shall come—

Before the light has left me and my singing lips are dumb—

If I can hear 'em sing them then, I'll pass without a sigh

To "Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions lie."

A Berry with Three Different Flavors

In Jamaica grows a berry that tastes like cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. When the natives of that island discovered this berry, being unable to decide on which spice it tasted most like, they compromised the matter by calling it "allspice." That is where allspice got its name.

Allspice is grown in other places, but the Island where it was first discovered and which named it, still produces the best allspice—for that reason all White Swan Allspice is Jamaica Allspice. Now inasmuch as it is a certain oil in the berry which gives it its flavor, or rather its three flavors, the drying and grinding and packing of the berry must be very, very carefully handled so as not to let that oil be lost by evaporation. In the matter of White Swan Allspice the greatest care is taken to retain every drop of oiliness—the grinding is done by our own process which preserves all the original rich flavor. Finally it is packed in air-tight tins which keep all the good in. Your grocer sells White Swan Allspice—ask for it.

REFUSED TO SERVE PRINCE

Walter in London Club Allowed Distinguished Guest to Remain Thirsty.

A story is told of an experience the late King Edward VII had at the Savage club in London, of which he was a member.

One evening the then prince of Wales took the Grand Duke Alexis to the club, after the theater. Shortly before this there had been some trouble between the Savage club and the licensing authorities. It seems that a representative of the latter called at the Savage club one evening and, in the rush of business, was served with a drink after hours, although he was not a member.

A summons was issued, and there appears to have been a good deal of trouble in the matter, and the waiters were warned to be very careful whom they served.

The prince of Wales and the Grand Duke Alexis went into the smoking room, which was empty, and the prince, after consultation with the grand duke, ordered two whiskies and sodas.

"I have to ask your name, sir," said the waiter in attendance. "I do not think I have seen you before."

"My name is Albert Edward," said the prince.

The waiter immediately referred to the list of members. "I see an Edwards here," he said, "but the name is George, and not Albert. I do not see your name here, sir."

So the prince was refused the drinks and went thirsty—until a fellow member entered and all was set right.

"HOME SWEET HOME"

"Be it ever so humble There's no place like home"

WHEN John Howard Payne penned those words he builded better than he knew. No place can be that real abiding home unless you own the little plot of ground on which it rests and unless you have a proprietorship in the boards that enclose its walls.

Every man should plan a home of his own. It may be humble but it will be more of a home if you are monarch of the manor.

If you buy your lumber from the Hereford Lumber Company you will build better than you know. Remember, the memory of good quality will last longer and yield its harvest of happiness, long after the price is forgotten. Parrot News Notes

Rain over the greater part of Castro county reported since the last issue of the Brand. The vicinity of Parrott was touched very lightly, however, just a light shower, while a few miles west they had a good rain.

Hazel Hacker came home Saturday after a week visiting with Mrs. A. Ricketts.

Mrs. B. F. Neely is still quite sick. Her friends hope that she may soon be so much improved as to be able to be among us again. She has been sick about three weeks. The Tate Hotel in Dimmitt is closed on account of the sickness of Mrs. Tate.

Ben Tate and wife invited a few guests to partake of a sumptuous dinner last Sunday. Those present were A. G. Noble, Mr. Tate, Elmer Noble and wife, and J. W. Haplan and wife and son Earl.

Ester Noble writes to his father from Pampa where he is employed the wheat fields that he is well pleased with that country, and is working steadily for two dollars and half per day. Will Easter of Dimmitt went with him.

Mrs. L. A. Ricketts and Hazel Hacker spent last Monday with Mrs. James Boydston.

Mable Hacker was among the parrot students who received a teachers certificate in the recent examinations.

Joe Burkenfelt of Nazareth, is in this community running the engine of Jacob Waggoner's thresher.

Chris Kopp received a beautiful present from Jerry Miller the young man from New York, who was stopping at the Bob Neely home recently, the present being a fine gold watch.

Leonard Ricketts returned from a trip up on the Canadian river in search of plums. He reports fruit being very plentiful there and bought a nice supply home with him.

B. F. Neely lost a fine Hereford bull recently purchased from Will Brien of Hereford. The animal died of snake bite.

"Uncle" Buck Tate and family have moved from the hotel building to Cleve Tate's house in Dimmitt. Mrs. Tate has run the hotel for many years and will be greatly missed by the people. The building is for rent and it is hoped that a new proprietor will soon be installed. A location such as Dimmitt is really in need of a hotel.

The recent rain was accompanied by very severe lightning. Two cows belonging to Leonard Ricketts were killed, also a horse belonging to Tom Tate. A shock of wheat in the field of Mr. Smith near the Delmar place was struck and burned. Wire along several fences cut to the grass.

Mrs. and Mrs. Sawyer Sunday visited Saturday night and Sunday at the home of J. C. Myrick in Hereford.

The people of Castro county are making great preparations for their picnic which is to be held in Dimmitt July the 29th.

Everybody come and do your part and it will be a grand success. J. W. Haplan helped the Noble brothers haul lumber from Hereford to replace the buildings destroyed by the cyclone.

Joe Hastings and Jane Dixon were visiting in Parrott last Sunday with Florence Hacker.

Edgar Ireland and family visited Sunday evening at Presley Dyer's. Mrs. Presley Dyer returned Saturday from the home of her parents south of Dimmitt. Her mother is somewhat improved in health.

Martin Simpson had a colt badly badly cut up in the wire during his absence last Sunday.

The marriage of Miss Blanch Waggoner of Parrott to Mr. Joe Burkenfelt of Nazareth, was announced at Nazareth last Sunday. The wedding will take place August 1st.

Rev. Father Campbell of Hereford conducted services at the Catholic church in Nazareth last Sunday, the priest at that place being sick and in the hospital at Amarillo.

Judge Kerr and family of Dimmitt are visiting relatives in east Texas.

The pupils of Miss Griffith have each received cards from her during her visit at the great San Francisco Exposition. She is having a grand time sight seeing but all the glamor has not attracted her mind from her school work at home as evidenced by these remembrances sent to her pupils.

Workman Falls Forty Feet to Bottom of Well

Last Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, while Edwin Morrison and Mr. Ellison were working in a deep well, twelve miles west of Kelsey, this county, the bucket broke while Ellison was riding to the top and he fell 40 feet to the bottom, the bucket striking a glancing blow against Morrison's head, cutting an ugly gash three inches long on his scalp. Those at the top of the well rendered immediate assistance and the injured man was drawn to the top. Physicians went out from Hereford and dressed the wound. They found Morrison suffering from partial paralysis but fully conscious. The bucket was full of rock and dirt and weighed possibly 300 pounds, and this added to the weight of the man, made some 450 pounds to fall 40 feet, and it is an act of fortune that he was not instantly killed.

STRONG POINT WITH JURY

Evidence Cleverly Brought Out by Lawyer Convicted Man on Trial for Murder.

The chief clue that hanged Williams, the hooded murderer, was a hat of the unusual size of 7 1/4. When the murderer of Inspector Wells was in the witness box giving evidence on his own behalf, Sir F. Low, K. C., who was prosecuting, suddenly said: "What size hat do you take?" "Seven and a quarter," replied Williams.

"And this hat is seven and a quarter," said the counsel, holding up the hat found near the scene of the crime. "So I believe."

"And it is stated to have come from a shop in Bournemouth."

"Were you in Bournemouth at the time?"

"Yes."

"It would be a remarkable coincidence," finally said Sir F. Low, "that you should have been at Bournemouth at the time the hat was bought, that the hat should turn up in Southcliffe avenue, Eastbourne, and that you, hatless, should not be far from the spot of the murder."

The coincidence was too strong for the jury, who had breathlessly followed this dramatic piece of evidence, and they brought in a verdict of guilty.—London Mail.

Grief of a Rhinoceros

A rhinoceros is capable of grief, according to a Paris writer who wrote this anecdote years ago: "The animal had been in the collection at the Jardin des Plantes for twenty-two years, but was of an unsociable and irascible temper, and not even his keepers ventured to take any liberties with him. One day, however, the little lap dog of the wife of the director got into his house by squeezing in between the bars. Instead of killing the intruder, as expected, the rhinoceros allowed the little creature to play with him, scampering over his back, biting his neck, and playing off all manner of sportive tricks. The two became great friends; the 'wee doggie' passing several hours each day with his undemonstrative acquaintance, who put up patiently with all its teasing. One day the rhinoceros inadvertently set his foot on his little pet, killing it instantly. The poor brute's grief at the catastrophe was pitiable; for two days he did not eat a particle of food."

Malta's "Hood of Shame"

A peculiar headdress is worn by the women folk of Malta and is known as the "falsetta." It is said to have originated under the following curious conditions, says the Wide World. During the French occupation of Malta, over a century ago, the natives were subjected to much persecution. Their religion was attacked, churches were rifled and the women and children molested. This state of affairs so grieved those deeply religious people that they made a solemn vow to wear a "hood of shame" for a hundred years. This period has now elapsed, which perhaps accounts for the gradual disappearance of the "falsetta" and the increasing numbers of women who wear the "latest from Paris," and generally follow European fashions.

Burglars

Several small burglaries have been committed in town lately, the Texas Meat Market being perhaps the heaviest loser, some hams, bacon and other meat having been taken. A few residences also have been broken into and relieved of provisions of various sorts—the loss, however, not so significant.

The Bankers! Long may they flourish, and may the years to come bring to us just such noble men and true to be the custodians of the resources of this great country and may the years bring to them, the measure of success and happiness that sterling integrity and untarnished honor merit.

AFTER THE RAIN

Man wants but little here below,
 And calmly takes his ease,
 Watching his maize and kafir blow,
 And the fresh Panhandle breeze.
 But Woman holds content aloof,
 And pines for a retreat,
 Where all the screens are fly-proof,
 And where ice-men clean their feet.

WINTER IRRIGATION

We will be wise if we can gain some lessons from the recent drouth of 2 1-2 months duration. One surprising thing notwithstanding the dry weather and high winds all vegetation, especially wheat has continued to flourish long after we expected it to wither and fall. The wheat has ripened and threshing results show up well. Our wheat acreage being large will result in a big total and a big bulge in bank deposits.

Now what is the lesson for us to remember and benefit by? It proves that deep heavy winter irrigation will insure good wheat yields and if our irrigation farmers will go into wheat farming aside from the summer crops they can add wonderfully to their present incomes by running their well during the fall and winter and raising wheat.

A Farmer.

THE ONE REMEDY

Women may not know how to dress decently, may not be able to write without using too many adjectives, they may even sometimes prefer the company of other intelligent, interesting women, whom they meet in their clubs, to an atmosphere, composed chiefly of slang and tobacco smoke, yes, dear good men, (The term "men" as here used does not apply to every representative of the genus, merely to those whose pulpit utterances or editorial comments have become disgustingly unbearable.) these deplorable conditions may really exist, and our advice to you, the natural arbiters of woman's thought and conduct, zealous of her ability as a meek and lowly follower, is to shun this personified evil as the pestilence. Avoid temptation, lest your strong, manly, manhood fall a victim to the weak mind but mighty attractiveness of this imbecile being who will not stay in her "sphere."

If, after being carefully catalogued and relegated to the darning basket and kitchen sink, she insists upon invading your own sacred domain, of books, and travel, of commercial, intellectual and social activity, you, if you would preserve your holiness, flee. You have tried ridicule, you have howled, you have repeatedly placed her where she belongs, and she will not stay put, so you are absolved from all responsibility. The fault, dear innocents, is not in your stars.

Your only safety lies in flight. When some one of this irresponsible species urges that she be allowed to wear your classic features in her watch case and to call upon you every Sunday afternoon and accompany you to church; when she invites you to go riding, or walking, or motoring and if peradventure she declares that if you do not become hers, and hers alone, her lifeless form will feed the fishes in the Tierra Blanca, (or some other stream) rise, in the dignity of your manhood and say, "Get thee behind me, Satan."

When your town has become a wilderness of weeds, when your boys and girls are face to face with evil when on the street, when your schools are inefficient and you feel the need of libraries, and rest rooms and Sunday schools, don't, let us beg of you, say, "Better suggest this to some of our ladies," but ask Brother Brown to put on his long black coat, and his long blank face, and attend to these things.

When you are sick, or sad or in trouble or in disgrace and the world is unsympathetic, when you want a home—go down yourself.

For once, we have been aristocratic. The bankers told us to make ourselves one of them for the time being, and we hastened to take advantage of the opportunity. Having a well developed imagination, for two whole blissful days, we revelled in delightful phantasies where in preferred stock and time deposits, cavorted with speculative dividends. We enjoyed it but the illusion has vanished, the spell is broken, and we again face the grim necessity of securing impossible advertising and persuading the business men, and the lodges, and the clubs, and the society folks to have their printing done at the Brand Office. A fleeting joy, truly, but we assure you, gentlemen, the experience, though brief, was as pleasurable as it was unique. Thanks.

Woodburn Chapter, U. D. C.'s emphasized the characteristic foundation principle of their organization—love and loyalty to the Confederate veterans—when they met on Thursday the 15th day of July, a day set apart by the local chapter as a day of merry making in commemoration of him, in honor of whom their chapter has been named, Col. E. T. Woodburn.

The meeting was held at the Woodburn home and besides the U. D. C.'s and the guest of honor there were present the old soldiers and their wives.

A campfire over which most of the supper, including the old time hoecake and an immense catch of fish were prepared, gave the realistic touch, that went straight to the hearts of these boys of '61 and brot back anew the sad, sweet memories that slumber in each soldier breast.

Campfire stories and reminiscences filled the after supper hours—hours which passed all too quickly.

The honoree was the recipient of several remembrances, tokens of the love and esteem in which he is held, not only by the U. D. C.'s and his soldier brothers, but by all who are favored by knowing him.

Before the goodnights were said, he gave a talk, eloquently tender and touching in which he expressed his appreciation of the thoughtful kindness of the U. D. C.'s and his pleasure in having them all in his home.

About forty guests were present and shared in the pleasures of the happy occasion.

The reception given on Wednesday evening for the ladies who were Hereford's guests during the Banker's Convention, demonstrated ideal hospitality combined with just enough formality to make the occasion delightful. So complete was the transformation in the lower floor of the court house that the original bore little resemblance to the elegant reception rooms into which the visitors were ushered. Dainty curtains, caught with sprays of fern and roses, at the windows gave the homey touch which was heightened by the perfect taste shown in the arrangement of the other decorations.

Fern wreathed columns, banks of green brightened with crimson roses and carnations, and great bowls of cut glass filled with rich red roses, were only less beautiful than the winsome maidens in dainty evening gowns who shared their girlish charm with the dignity of the matrons, in the honors of hostess.

A musical program was given including a chorus of ladies' voices under the direction of Mrs. G. A. F. Parker, several individual vocal and instrumental numbers, and selections by the Ladies' Band of Clovis.

The guests, upon entering, were served with punch, brick cream and angel food cake being served after the program.

The large assemblage in an environment so ideal, the splendid entertainment, and the spirit of fraternal good will so much in evidence made the event a social affair of unusual brilliance and pleasure.

Sunday, July 18th, at the pretty country home of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Blacet, four miles north-east of Hereford occurred the marriage of their daughter Mary, to Dr. W. O. Padgett, of Graham, Texas.

The ceremony was performed at 4 p. m. by Rev. Farmer of the Baptist church. Sweetpeas, dainty and fragrant, made the rooms very attractive and as the bridal couple entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Zollie Garrison, and took their places before the waiting minister, amid the wealth of gay blossoms, the flowers, themselves seemed to add their message of blessing and congratulation.

After the ceremony, a delicious luncheon, consisting of chickens andwiches, pickles, ices and cake, was served, the place cards showing the daintiest of sweet peas drawn through the cards.

The bride, always sweet and winsome, was especially so in her simple white bridal gown. She has grown to womanhood here and is a graduate of the Hereford high school class of '14. Last year she entered Memorial Sanitarium to prepare for graduate nurse and it was there that the romance which culminated in marriage was begun, Dr. Padgett having been, an interne there at that time.

The good wishes of many friends will attend them.

Included among the guests were the following:

Rev. R. E. L. Farmer and wife Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle, Mr. and Mrs. News and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt of Missouri, Dr. and Mrs. Price, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morrell, Mr. and Mrs. Harris, Misses Zollie and Lois Garrison, Cotta Sisk, Clara Lambert and Messrs Edgar Webb and Don Doolittle.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Hon. Elihu Root On Woman's Sphere

The question of Woman Suffrage is an issue before the American people. Twelve states have adopted it, four more states vote upon it this fall and it is strongly urged that it become a platform demand of the national political parties. It is therefore the privilege and the duty of every voter to study carefully this subject. Hon. Elihu Root, in discussing this question before the Constitutional Convention of New York, recently said in part:

"I am opposed to the granting of suffrage to women, because I believe that it would be a loss to women, to all women and to every woman; and because I believe it would be an injury to the State, and to every man and every woman in the State. It would be useless to argue this if the right of suffrage were a natural right. If it were a natural right, then women should have it though the heavens fall. But if there be any one thing settled in the long discussion of this subject, it is that suffrage is not a natural right, but is simply a means of government, and the sole question to be discussed is whether government by the suffrage of men and women will be better government than by the suffrage of men alone.

Into my judgment, sir, there enters no element of the inferiority of woman. It is not that woman is inferior to man, but it is that woman is different from man; that in the distribution of powers, of capacities, of qualities, our Maker has created man adapted to the performance of certain functions in the economy of nature and society, and woman adapted to the performance of other functions.

Woman rules today by the sweet and noble influences of her character. Put woman into the arena of conflict and she abandons these great weapons which control the world, and she takes into her hands, feeble and nerveless for strife, weapons with which she is unfamiliar and which she is unable to wield. Woman in strife becomes hard, harsh, unlovable, repulsive; as far removed from that gentle creature to whom we all owe allegiance and to whom we confess submission, as the heaven is removed from the earth.

The whole science of government is the science of protecting life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In the divine distribution of powers, the duty and the right of protection rests with the male. It is so throughout nature. It is so with men, and I, for one, will never consent to part with the divine right of protecting my wife, my daughter, the woman whom I love, and the women whom I respect, exercising the birthright of man, and place that high duty in the weak and nerveless hands of those designated by God to be protected rather than to engage in the stern warfare of government. In my judgment, this whole movement arises from a false conception of the duty and of the right of both men and women.

The time will never come when the line of demarcation between the functions of the two sexes will be broken down. I believe it to be false philosophy; I believe that it is an attempt to turn backward upon the line of social development, and that if the step ever be taken, we go centuries backward on the march towards a higher, a nobler and a purer civilization, which must be found not in the confusion, but in the higher differentiation of the sexes."

Notice

On December 25, 1915, we will give a ten dollar gold cash premium for the best letter about our new book, "AD-EM-NEL-LA, an Indian Love Story in Verse, and Other Poems, by Ethan Allen Hurst," received before that date. A second and third prize MAY be given, also.

Better send in your letter at once, it will be numbered and filed. The judges may think yours is the best, and give you the premium. Do not write to us for information. We may publish all the letters after the award.

Here is a letter from a little girl that will be in the contest:

"I am glad you wrote that book, its so easy to read. I can understand every line in the whole book. It is not hateful like some hard poetry.

"Gee that old Indian could remember well about how the world and all the stars and things was made, and how they courted when the world was fresh-made, like they do in school. I guess the angels was dressed awful nice when they went up to Heaven on that Cloud to marry, and all Tanged so nice. I wish I could write a story that way and dress all of 'em up funny and odd any old way I wanted too.

"Your mother was sure awful strict on you. I guess thats the reason why children was so good in them days like my papa says he was. I don't believe they'll always be War like you said in one place. -Mama says this'll be the last War in Europe. She likes that piece that says he'll be powers in controle to rule the New Republic of the world. I think that girl in the auto was silly. My teacher says it isn't good forme to always be a-chompin gum.

"Do you suppose Leda really drowneded herself because she loved her sister so good? O, it was awful findin her in the river that way. I wish I could have been with her that night when she Walked among the Flowers. I love her the best of all the characters.

"That girl that stood on the sea with so many pretty jewels in her hair, 'tall and beautiful as the skies' was grand, but I don't like her 'cause she's bad. My papa says 'Andromeda's Sacrifice' will be a classic. I don't know what that is but I know its something Grand. I wish my letter would not be too long to say some about all the peeces. I know something good about every pece in the whole book.

"Echo is a funny thing. One time I said naughty words to it to see if it would say them back. I did not know it was a girl all awritted-up for lovin a boy!

"If I get the prize for the best letter I know what I will do with the money. If you print all our letters send me one."

If the books are not on sale at your local merchant's, send us $1.10 for a copy by mail. Yours,

E. A. HURST & COMPANY, Hereford, Texas.

FEEL LURE OF THE LIZARD

Many Ships Sight and Pass the Famous British Headland Daily.

"If the Lizard (Lizard point, Cornwall, England) could see as one half believes it can, from that one piercing eye, Cyclops-like, in its forehead, what sights it could report—Phenician and Roman galleys; the ships of Hawkins, Drake, Frobisher and Raleigh; the Mayflower after its final release from detention at Southampton, Dartmouth and Plymouth; the broken winged armada; and the Titanic on that first voyage, so confidently and cheerfully begun, which ending in the unforeseen ice, was also its last." William H. Rideing writes in Scribner's.

"All the ships of the famous lines between American and English and European ports come within a mile or two of it, eastbound and westbound, those of the North German Lloyd, the Atlantic Transport, the White Star and the Red Star, the Canadian branch of the Cunard, the Holland-American, the Hamburg-American and the American, most of them making their passage so punctually that you know to an hour when to look for them.

"Just beyond the light is Lloyd's signal station, and close to that a Marconi station, subsidiary to the most powerful of all, that at Poldu to the west, where the swish, sparkle and crackle of the four high latticed towers can be heard at a distance of a mile.

"Man's ingenuity and benevolence have turned the dreaded headland from a menace into a dispensary of safeguards. During fogs two horns, each with a mouth six feet in diameter, blare across the cloaked channel, and a submarine bell at the foot of the cliffs tolls its number within a range of sixteen miles to every listening vessel provided with a receiver. Both light and sound have vagaries in fogs; however, if we can believe the masters of ships which have come to grief on and near Lizard, there are times when the 15,000,000 candlepower of the lighthouse is invigible, and the howling of those enormous trumpets inaudible."

HIS TRUE ANGEL

By A. J. GARTH.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Poor boy! dead or alive, which?" Old Abner Dorsett sat crouched over the embers of a dying fire in his desolate home. Time was when he had stormed and raved whenever he thought or talked of his missing son. He had disowned him, had almost cursed him. Time, however, had softened the smart of a terrible disappointment, a severe blow to fatherly trust and affection.

Wilfred Dorsett, bright, handsome, twenty-two, engaged to Una Walden, the prettiest girl in Winsted, had been sent to the city by his father to invest the earnings of years, some fifteen thousand dollars in bonds. He had kissed his neighbor's daughter, gentle Una, good-bye with all his accustomed sincerity. He was to return in two days. On the third there came an appalling telegram. It read:

"Forget me. I have lost all the money through gambling."

From that day until this, through two lonely, heart-breaking years, old Abner Dorsett had gone about the deserted house like a dazed, numbed creature unable to rally from a deadening shock.

It was Una who had won him finally from his bitterness and despair. Whatever her sufferings, poor girl, she never let the world know their depths. She hid her misery with a smile. She felt it her duty to care for the poor old man.

It was not often that Una attended any usual functions. Hers had become a home life, but once in a while some close girl friend would tease her into attending a party or reception. That same evening the brother of such a friend became her escort to a birthday celebration in the next town. He had shown marked attention to Una, and she regretted it and decided this would be the last time she would accompany him.

An open carriage from the livery called for them. The driver sat muffled up on the front seat in his great coat. Una's escort carelessly regarded him as the sleepy-headed driver he usually employed, and after they had driven a mile or two, to the distress of Una, made a flat proposal for her hand in marriage.

"I am very sorry," she said, "but you must not speak of this again." "There is some other?" "There always has been!" murmured Una softly; "it will be always the same."

The driver moved, stirred with some deep emotion, but silently drove them to their destination and back home again. When he took the team to the livery he handed its proprietor a bank note with the words:

"Thanks for catering to my fancy to act as a driver on a special occasion," and kept his face shaded, as during his spell at the lines.

Mr. Dorsett and Una got up a turkey dinner for the next day. That evening Una, her father and mother and her sister were invited guests, and it cheered up Mr. Dorsett to be in such friendly company. Una looked charming in her spotless white bib and tucker.

"All ready!" she announced at last, and the well-browned turkey was ushered into evidence. "That is strange!" spoke Una, returning to the kitchen and finding the outside door slightly open. She picked up the covered dish of sweet potatoes, carried it to the table and sat down, feeling she had done her duty and was ready for the due reward.

"I declare! this is simply grand and neighborly!" began Mr. Dorsett, and then he came to an abrupt pause, the cover to the turkey dish in his hand. He dropped it to stare past a steaming well within the dish at a neat rubber-banded package of papers.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, and then fell back, overcome. "Bonitas!" "Bonitas?" repeated Una, vaguely, rising up from her chair and hurrying over to his side.

"Yes," uttered Mr. Dorsett, hoarsely, as though some quick suggestion brought partial illumination to his mind, "and the same bonds identically that I ordered two years ago and that Wilfred—Wilfred—What does this mean?"

"It means—it must mean Wilfred!" ventured Una, with a speedy gleam of intelligence.

"Did you call me?" interrupted a new voice, and there in the doorway stood—Wilfred Dorsett!

The old man got up, shaking from head to foot. Una stood staring, palpitating.

"It's all right, father," spoke the newcomer, moving to the side of Mr. Dorsett and placing a loving, gentle hand upon the silvered white head.

"You true angel!" burst forth the returned wanderer, and his arms were extended, and Una ran into them. "Ah, you were all ready for me!"

Yes, there, as at every meal Una attended to in the lonely house, was the plate set for the missing one. Next to it she had sat and there a moment later those two were together. "I slipped that package into the dish just now in the kitchen," explained the returned outcast. "I drove you over to the party last night, Una, I heard your answer to your escort. Then I knew I might hope."

A More or Less Dry Remark. "I've invented a boat made entirely of cork." "Who will man it?" "Oh, I am the cork's crew."

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak-I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

Magazines Wanted

The Brand office will be glad to receive any good magazines which you have read and no longer care for, and to become a repository for them where they may be had at any time by any one who wishes to call for them.

When you realize just how much these journals mean to you and to your family do you not wish that they might give the same pleasure to others?

Once read they are only in the way, and in a few weeks they have accumulated until it is really a problem to find storage room for them and it seems like sacrilege to destroy them. If you will bring them to this office, they will be placed where any one, who enjoys good reading matter, may have them simply by calling for them.

This is in no sense an idea for giving charity or for doing missionary work. Few of us can have every journal we would like to have and often some one else has just what we want and would be glad to read ours. In this way both would be benefited.

Then, there will often be some special article or number in which you are interested that you might find in this way.

Aside from these features, it is a fact that our school libraries are deficient, many country schools having little or no library. Copies of "Popular Mechanics," "American Boy," or the "Youth's Companion" would supplement these deficiencies very adequately.

No matter if the journals are old; some of them will never be old in the way of losing their interest or helpfulness.

Bring your magazines.

About Rev. Nance

The Daily Panhandle of Tuesday contains an article giving the history of the First Christian church of Amarillo in which appears the following which will be of interest to our readers as Rev. Nance is now a much-loved resident of Hereford.

"The First Christian church was established in Amarillo in the fall of 1888, with the Rev. Thomas G. Nance, as pastor. He preached in the old courthouse building in Old Town. The Rev. Nance preached his first sermon in the Panhandle in a dug-out near Plainview, which was used as a school house and he preceded the pioneer Methodist minister, who was the first Minister of the gospel to preach in the Texas Panhandle, on 13 three days. When he came to Amarillo in the fall of 1888 the only members to greet him were Mrs. W. W. Wetsell and Mrs. Wm. Harrell, who reside here at the present. During his administration here the Ladies Aid society was organized and comprised six or seven members. The first money made by this organization went to pay his salary and they also bought the lot at 610 Taylor street, at $150 where the church stood before the present structure was erected. The Rev. Nance preached in Amarillo only once a month."

The Telephone "S. O. S." Saved the Farm

"One day last fall my wife and I started for a drive, leaving the house deserted. A short while after we'd passed Jones' place, Mrs. Jones saw smoke coming from our roof.

"She ran to the telephone—Got Mrs. Reed who operates the switchboard located in her home. Mrs. Reed called all the nearby people on the line (two long rings—the emergency signal,) and they put the fire out with little damage."

Some Marvelous Exhibits at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

Exhibits in Agricultural Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Show Caterpillar Gaining Favor Over Lug-wheeler Tractors in Farm Machinery.

An observer in the Agriculture Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco cannot help noticing in the display of agricultural power machinery, the almost complete supersession of the new design of power tractor, known as the caterpillar, over the cumbersome, unstable, high-wheeled engine of a few years ago. There are few of the old models on exhibition, while the caterpillar principle has been applied to almost every type of engine for agricultural purposes.

The caterpillar proper is a heavy sheet metal chain, varying in width from ten inches to two feet according to the weight of the engine, which passes around two heavy sprocket wheels like a belt. These wheels revolving, pass the chain about them, the lower part moving backward, with the weight of the engine resting on the broad surface of the chain between the two sprockets.

An engine of this type can be operated on ground soft enough to mire an ordinary farm wagon.

Duplicate of the Roosevelt African Shotgun.

A duplicate of the shotgun which Col. Theodore Roosevelt took with him on his African trip, a gun constructed expressly for him by an American armorer, is on display at the manufacturer's exhibit in the Manufacturers' Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco. The gun cost its illustrious owner $360, and its beautiful design, graceful lines and wonderful inlay work would justify the expenditure to any lover of fine pieces. The stock is elaborately hand carved, the barrels and lock are hand engraved, and the lock is inlaid with a hunting scene in gold. The barrels are of the finest Krupp steel. Before starting on the trip the ex-president wrote to the makers: "I really think it is the most beautiful gun I have ever seen. I am almost ashamed to take it to Africa and subject it to the rough treatment it will receive."

The left barrel is choked and the right open. It is cored to shoot either buckshot or a single ball.

In a group in this Palace are displays by four of the world's greatest manufacturers of sporting arms, which form an exhibit which attracts hundreds of sportsmen. Each display is in charge of a firearms expert.

Pearl Culture a New Industry.

Among the interesting exhibits of the Japanese in the Manufacturers' Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is a demonstration of the methods and results of pearl cultivation in the far East. The displays of this cultivated product, showing hundreds of pearls which until pearl culture was placed on a commercial basis a few years ago would have been the possessions of royalty, will delight any lover of beautiful gems, and the methods of production will prove interesting to any observer. Though pearl culture has become a thriving industry in Japan, attempts to reproduce it in other parts of the world have yielded but meager results.

The successful method of propagation was evolved by the Japanese scientist Kokichi Mikimoto, who discovered a species of oyster which produced the pearl on the surface of the shell. Though the oysters are opened and inserting the nuclei, then waiting for the pearl to grow to a commercial size may seem a simple process, the fact that it has not reduced the price of the gems, even to that of the most expensive imitations, shows that it is beset with many difficulties.

Daniel Webster's Plow at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

One of the most valuable exhibits commercially, in the Agricultural Palace at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, is an ancient plow displayed in the Massachusetts exhibit, and forming a striking contrast to the highly-complex modern machinery displayed on the acreage of floor about it.

The plow owes its distinction to the circumstance that a hundred years ago Daniel Webster's youthful hands guided it along the furrows of his father's farm near Marshfield, Mass. It was drawn by a yoke of oxen and if the future peer of American orators and statesmen could turn an acre of sod a day he had to work from daylight to dark.
