COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)

Three upperclassmen in Texas A&M University's Corps of Cadets may face criminal charges in connection with the death of a sophomore member who collapsed after he was roused from his bed and forced to run and perform exercises, an official says.

Bruce Ward Goodrich, 20, an electrical engineering major from Webster, N.Y., died Thursday afternoon at St. Joseph Hospital in nearby Bryan, said university spokesman Jeff Alford. Preliminary autopsy results showed Goodrich died of heat stroke.

"There is no way to predict this kind of death," Dr. J.C. Lee, who performed the autopsy, told the Bryan-College Station Eagle. "It is invariably accidental. It could happen to anybody. In the majority of cases it comes on abruptly and there are no warning signs."

University police, along with the vice president for student affairs and the commandant of the corps were investigating the incident.

Bob Wiatt, director of university's security and traffic, said the case will be presented to a grand jury and three junior corps members may face felony charges.

In addition, officials said, the trio could face suspension or expulsion if they are found guilty of violating university policy.

Three might be charged

According to school officials, Goodrich and his roommate were awakened about 2:30 a.m. Thursday and forced to run through campus and do push-ups and sit-ups.

Accounts given by other students to college authorities said Goodrich, who started classes Monday, collapsed during the "motivational exercises" designed to introduce new cadets to corps traditions but was told to get up and keep running.

His roommate, who suffered no ill effects, helped Goodrich back to the dormitory and helped him into the shower in an effort to revive him. Police were called when he failed to respond, and one officer administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation, authorities said.

Goodrich was taken to St. Joseph and placed on life-support systems in the hospital's intensive care unit. When Goodrich was admitted to the hospital, authorities said, his temperature was 104 and his heart had stopped.

"We are shocked by the passing of Mr. Goodrich and his family has our heartfelt sympathy. This was a most unfortunate accident — a tragedy — and I know that no one regrets it more than those involved. Their grief is, of course, shared by all of us,"

A&M President Frank E. Vandiver said in a prepared statement.

Although the exercises were conducted in early morning hours, the student's body may have had difficulty shedding heat because of high humidity. At 3 a.m., weather reports showed, the temperature in College Station was 77 degrees, with 79 percent humidity.

"That isn't very hot, but the body can lose its heart regulating ability at any time, especially when under stress," Lee told the Eagle.

About 2,000 of the school's 36,000 students belong to the corps, which is organized along military lines but is not connected with the ROTC program on campus. Most of its members, who wear uniforms, are male.

In Webster, N.Y., near Rochester, Robert Goodrich, 30, declined to discuss the circumstances surrounding his brother's death, saying the family had not yet been fully informed of the details. But he did talk about Bruce's interests and goals.

"He had said that he wanted to become service-oriented," Robert Goodrich said. "During the time he was interested in the ROTC programs, he talked about making the military a career."

Shultz: Soviet talks not likely

By R. GREGORY NOKES AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the odds are against U.S.-Soviet arms control talks being held in Vienna next month, despite the expressed hope of both sides that talks be held.

Claims Chernenko suffering from ills

Shultz' comments, made in an interview with the Associated Press Thursday, would appear to dash any chance that the two superpowers will hold new arms control negotiations prior to the November presidential election.

Shultz also said in the half-hour interview that it is well known that Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko is suffering from health problems, but Washington doesn't know whether he is seriously ill.

"There have been many reports that are public knowledge of problems that he has had when he appeared in public on various occasions," Shultz said. "It's clear he does have some health problems. How serious they are, I don't know."

The 72-year-old Chernenko hasn't been seen in public for nearly eight weeks, and a senior State Department official said earlier Thursday that "speculation is increasing" about his condition. Another official said Washington is in a state of "heightened watchfulness" on Chernenko's condition. These officials insisted on not being identified.

In the interview, Shultz said he hopes to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the United Nations in late September.

Shuttle launches first satellite

Second set to be spun out today

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With one communications satellite safely delivered, the crew of space shuttle Discovery planned to launch a second today, sailing it out of the cargo bay like a spinning Frisbee.

Satellite No. 2 is called Leasat, the first payload designed especially for the shuttle, and it will be flipped overboard with a motion like those popular flying discs.

Spring devices will eject the satellite, imparting a slight rolling motion that will keep it on a steady course and prevent any one side from overheating in the sun.

Hughes Communications Services, which owns the satellite, obtained permission from the Whammo Corp. to call this the "Frisbee launch," using Whammo's trademark name for its saucer-like toy. Hughes plans to lease the payload to the Navy for military communications traffic among ships, planes and ground facilities.

Leasat is one of three communications payloads that were carried in the cargo bay when Discovery lifted off flawlessly from Cape Canaveral on Thursday after three postponements that delayed the debut of America's third and newest shuttle more than two months.

Commander Henry Hartsfield and pilot Michael Coats reported only a few minor technical problems as Discovery soared through its first day in space.

Eight hours into the mission the six-member crew released into its own orbit a satellite attached to the same kind of rocket motor that sent two earlier satellites into useless orbits last February.

It was the first trial of this rocket since those failures, and this time it worked perfectly, propelling the Satellite Business Systems satellite toward a stationary orbit 22,300 miles high.

Mission Control sent the word to the shuttle, and astronaut Steve Hawley responded: "That's real good news; we're up here celebrating." Hawley and Richard Mullane are responsible for the satellite launchings.

It was good news, too, for NASA which has had trouble lately with the shuttle's image as a reliable satellite delivery system.

Woman seeks medical payments

A Hereford woman is claiming she went into labor pains Thursday as a result of being called a dirty name by another local lady, and wants the name-caller to pay her medical bills, Hereford police reported this morning.

Confirmation could not be made this morning, however, whether the woman gave birth. Deaf Smith General Hospital did not have her listed as a patient, and the officer who handled the case was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile Thursday, police arrested two people, one for driving while license suspended and the other for no driver's license and an expired registration sticker.

Among the incidents looked into was a reported fight between two ladies waiting for free food distribution at Deaf Smith County Bull Barn. There was also one case apiece of a broken window, dog bite and family problem. One non-injury motor-vehicle accident occurred, police said.

A dumpster fire early this morning was the only action seen by members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department.

Another Ball joins Brand staff

Lisa Ball, a June graduate of Texas Tech University, has joined the news department of The Hereford Brand, it was announced this week by Publisher O.G. Nieman.

Ball, 21, has assumed duties as a reporter and feature writer for the lifestyles pages. She will be assisting Sandy Pankey in that department.

Pankey has been promoted to lifestyles editor, replacing Linda Caudle, who recently resigned to make a move to California. Caudle had been with The Brand for almost three years.

Ball earned a bachelor's in English with an emphasis in technical and professional writing. She was a section editor for La Ventana, the Tech yearbook, which won awards last year. She also designed layouts and wrote copy for academic campus organizations.

Ball was an honor graduate at Lake Highlands High School near Dallas. She has been active in the Baptist Church and was a study leader in the Campus Crusade for Christ at Tech. She was named to the dean's honor list, president's honor list and national dean's list. She and her husband, Dennis Ball, sports editor of The Brand, attend Avenue Baptist Church.

Larry Combest believes he'll win county

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

Larry Combest said this area does not overwhelmingly support opponent Don Richards, despite the former being a Democrat and former Hereford resident.

"I predict we'll carry Deaf Smith County," remarked Combest, the Republican nominee for the 19th U.S. Congressional District. He was at the courthouse Thursday afternoon as part of a two-day swing through the 15 counties which are to consider his and Richards' candidacies in the Nov. 6 general elections.

"Don got a lot of newspaper support," Combest said, "but I really don't think he will carry the county." Combest said he believed people "are going to look at the ticket," meaning the inclusion of the Reagan-Mondale race. A Republican, the Lubbock resident said, is more likely to be able to successfully represent area citizens and their beliefs.

Democratic congressmen from somewhere as conservative as West Texas, he said, are handicapped due to the more liberal approach of party leaders in Washington. The policies of House Speaker Tip O'Neill, Combest claimed, help make it difficult for conservative Democrats to land important committee positions.

"My campaign is supported by many conservative Democrats who realize the national Democratic Party no longer shares their conservative philosophies," a Combest press release contends he said. "I hope all conservative Democrats will always remember the rousing cheer that went up from the Democratic delegates in San Francisco when the

Despite opponent having lived here

Rev. Jesse Jackson said that they must "rid the party of the boll weevils."

During an interview in front of the courthouse, Combest stressed care needs to be taken in the placement of the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump. Deaf Smith and Swisher counties - the latter located just outside his district - each possess one of nine sites being considered for the repository. Combest said the Ogallala Aquifer, a main source of water in the Panhandle, must be protected from contamination.

There are other states which want the dump, Combest claimed. "I say let them have it."

The former aide to four-term Sen. John Tower said there is "a great deal" the federal government could do to help farmers. For one thing, he feels the implementation of a free international market is perhaps being pursued too quickly by the current administration.

Combest also said he favors controls on production rather than acreage. He claimed to be, however, anxious to hear any proposals on agriculture.

Combest was a Tower legislative assistant from 1971 to 1978. For the last six years he has been owner and operator of Combest Distributing Company, a Lubbock firm dealing with electronic equipment.

Born on a farm in Memphis, Combest received his bachelor's degree in business education 15 years ago at West Texas State University.

Signing of agreement stalls

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for a Mexican civil rights group and the city school board signed an out-of-court settlement of a 28-year-old desegregation lawsuit, but NAACP lawyers decided to wait until minor wording changes in the plan were made.

The changes were approved by attorneys for the Houston Independent School District, and the final draft was expected to be reviewed today by lawyers for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"This is something that we would be very pleased with, and the beginning to bring more equality into the district," said local NAACP President Frank Burns said.

The agreement was reached among the three groups early Thursday after almost four days of around-the-clock negotiations. But NAACP expressed last-minute reservations.

"We just had a couple of issues where we thought the language needed to be made more clear so that it fully reflected the agreement that had been reached," said NAACP attorney Patrice Johnson.

Heroin sales prompt probe

AUSTIN (AP) — The availability of higher-grade heroin on city streets spurred an investigation that resulted in 53 indictments and a citywide dragnet for 27 suspects, the head of Austin's police narcotics unit says.

Arrests continued Thursday as police looked for people named in the sealed indictments that were handed up last week by the Travis County grand jury.

Officers said the indictments charge delivery of heroin, a felony punishable by a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The arrests began Wednesday night with 12 people named in the indictments and two others had been arrested by Thursday.

The indictments stemmed from heroin purchases made by undercover officers between early July and Aug. 14. Amounts purchased ranged from about half a gram to two ounces, according to Lt. Pete Taylor, head of the Austin police narcotics unit.

Taylor said work on the investigation began in March, as officers were looking at the city's heroin problem.

SWAT teams to eye inmates

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A trained negotiator and a sniper will be part of four SWAT-like teams set up to help curb violence within the nation's second largest prison system, where 267 inmates have been stabbed this year, 12 of them fatally.

Lane McCotter, deputy director of operations for the Texas Department of Corrections, said 60 potential members of the special teams, to be called Special Operation Reaction Teams (SORT) took physical training tests this week.

McCotter had several such teams at the U.S. disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he was commander of the barracks before joining the TDC.

The teams will work at six heavily-guarded units set up for inmates "so ornery you can't take a chance with them," prison spokesman Phil Guthrie said.

Guthrie said three units would be at Darrington, Ramsey II and Retrieve, all in Brazoria County and others would be located at Coffield in Anderson County, Eastham near Trinity in Houston County and Ferguson in Madison County.

Some Montana blazes controlled

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Nearly a week after timber and range fires erupted across Montana, scorching nearly 250,000 acres, firefighters corralled seven of the blazes and turned their sights today on the worst — a 145,000-acre inferno that has destroyed 30 homes.

The 5,000 firefighters got their first break Thursday when the winds slackened and rain began falling, prompting authorities to express their first note of optimism since the fires broke out last weekend.

"Overall, it sounds a lot better," said Paul May, spokesman for the Department of State Lands.

Seven large fires totaling nearly 190,000 acres remained out of control today. Five others were listed as contained, meaning they were circled by fire breaks and not likely to spread unless weather conditions worsened.

In south-central Montana, 500 firefighters were massed in the Bull Mountains south of Roundup for a full-scale assault on the state's most destructive fire, one covering 145,000 acres near Hawk Creek. It destroyed about 30 homes in a subdivision near Roundup on Monday.

Groundwater plan draws fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-awaited administration plan to give states major responsibility for protecting groundwater — the source of half the nation's drinking water — is being called inadequate by two environmental groups.

Under the new strategy unveiled Thursday by the Environmental Protection Agency, the federal government will set contaminant standards and regulate pollution sources, sometimes indirectly through existing state programs.

The participating states will be responsible for classifying particular groundwater aquifers.

Alvin Alm, EPA deputy administrator, told a news conference that EPA expected to give the states $7 million soon to draw up their groundwater protection strategies.

Timothy Hayes, a Richmond, Va., attorney who handles water matters for the Environmental Defense Fund, said the new strategy needs "more carrot and more stick" to give states an incentive to participate.

Pact sparks labor revolt

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A reported agreement between caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and his chief rival, Shimon Peres, to take turns leading a bipartisan government set off a revolt today in the ranks of Peres' Labor Party.

Israeli media reported the accord calls for Peres to serve the first 25 months as prime minister and Shamir to take the top post for the next 25 months, breaking the deadlock that had resulted from the inconclusive July 23 elections.

Peres was designated by President Chaim Herzog to form the government after his Labor Party received 44 votes to 41 for Shamir's Likud bloc, leaving 13 smaller parties holding the balance of power with 35 seats. Herzog had urged the two major parties to form a national unity government.

Shamir spokesman Yossi Ahimeir told The Associated Press that Shamir had not yet agreed to let Peres to serve as prime minister first and that other details still were not ironed out. But he said he expected an agreement during a meeting between the leaders today.

By PAUL RECER AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A new drug being manufactured in orbit aboard shuttle Discovery this week could lead eventually to robot pharmaceutical plants that operate in outer space to save the lives of thousands of people on Earth.

An engineer named Charlie Walker, aboard the Discovery as NASA's first paying passenger, is to operate a machine that uses the zero gravity of outer space to make a health-restoring drug that cannot be made on Earth.

Walker is an employee of McDonnell Douglas Inc., an aerospace company that has teamed with pharmaceutical giant Johnson & Johnson in an effort to create a drug factory in the sky.

Neither partner in the venture will name the pharmaceutical being developed on the mission, but McDonnell Douglas project director David W. Richman said of the drug: "If it can be produced commercially, we will have a life-saving material that would have an impact on a large population of people."

The drug is actually a hormone that is naturally produced in the body in small quantities. The drug machine on Discovery will use a technique called electrophoresis to separate this hormone from a raw material that contains the hormone mixed with other natural compounds.

Electrophoresis is a system that uses an electrical current to separate materials from a liquid mix. By applying a precise amount of current to a flowing stream of molecules, the target hormone can be forced to separate itself from other elements in the mix that have different electrical charges.

This system will work, to some extent, on Earth. But gravity is strong enough to overcome the slight separation forces of the electrical process.

In outer space, where the effects of gravity are null, the electrical current causes the mix to separate into its constituent parts while flowing continuously past charged elements. Once the various materials are divided, the target hormone is collected.

The result is a drug of a purity impossible to achieve on Earth.

McDonnell Douglas and Johnson & Johnson have flown the electrophoresis machine experimentally on four earlier shuttle missions. Astronauts operated those machines.

The partners paid NASA $80,000 to give Walker the training he needed to become a shuttle passenger.

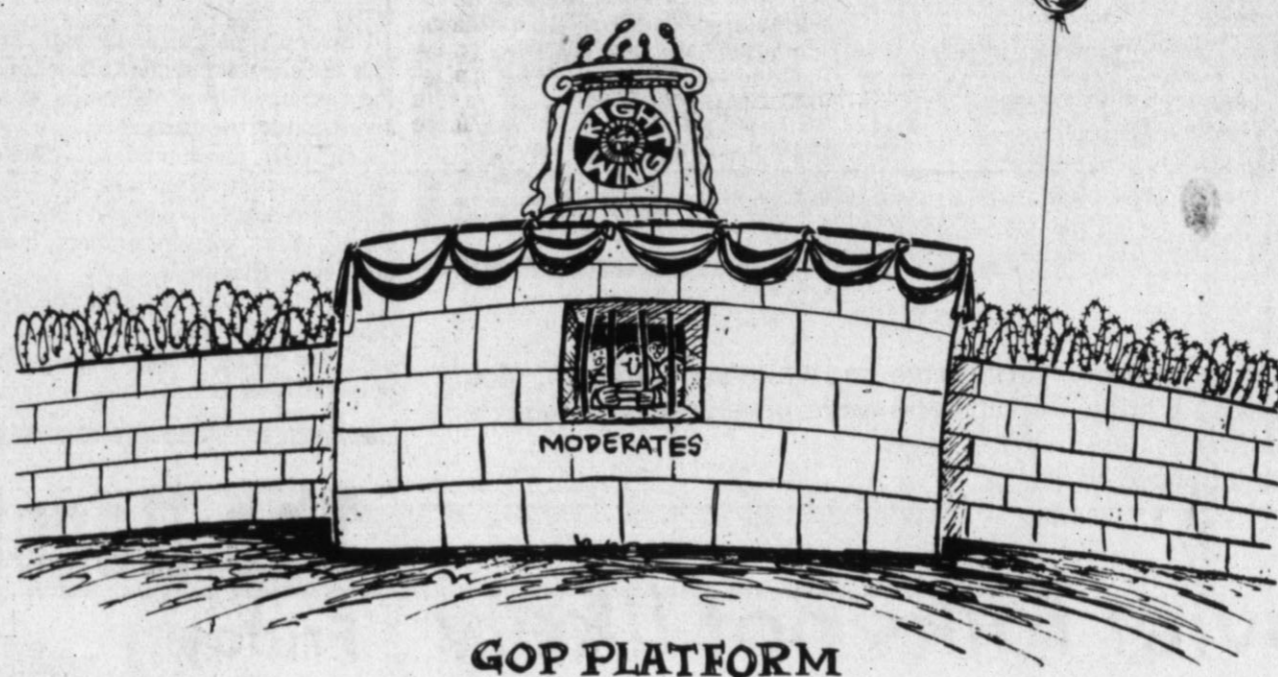

On Discovery's first flight, Walker will be operating a new, perfected model. His goal is to produce enough of the hormone for clinical testing on Earth.

James Rose of McDonnell Douglas said the material to be processed has already been partially purified in a laboratory. The material started as 1,500 liters of fluid produced by laboratory cell cultures. This batch, said Rose, was "put through the most advanced techniques for purification we have on the ground today."

The returned material will then be used by Johnson & Johnson for animal tests and, eventually, for clinical tests on human patients.

A fully automatic electrophoresis machine will be flown in the cargo bay of a space shuttle next year. This 5,000-pound machine will produce even more of the hormone.

Pact thought victory for some

By BARRY RENFREW Associated Press Writer

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The decision by 14 South Pacific nations to work toward declaring the region a nuclear-free zone, but let individual governments rule on port calls by nuclear warships, is seen as a victory for moderates with close defense ties to Washington.

The members of the South Pacific Forum agreed at their annual summit this week to appoint a working committee to draw up a draft treaty to declare a nuclear-free region. The forum members would agree not to acquire, store or test atomic weapons and would also oppose the dumping of nuclear waste in the Pacific.

Under the plan, put forth by Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke, each nation would be free to provide military facilities to friendly countries — specifically, nuclear-powered warships of the U.S. Navy.

The stipulation means the zone would not hinder American military operations in the region, where Australia, New Zealand and the United States have operated the ANZUS defense pact since 1951.

A communique issued at the end of the summit said: "South Pacific countries retain their unqualified sovereign rights to decide for themselves their security arrangements, and such questions as the access to their ports and airfields by vessels and aircraft of other countries."

Hawke's proviso on U.S. warships blunted efforts by some forum nations to make the nuclear-free zone more restrictive, Australian officials indicated. The new Socialist government in New Zealand has already banned U.S. nuclear-fueled vessels from its ports, and Vanuatu suggested the ban should be applied throughout the region.

Papua New Guinea, another forum member, hailed New Zealand's action last month, suggesting it provided a lead for all the nations in the region.

A senior Australian official, speaking on condition he not be named, said the purpose of the treaty proposal was to produce a document that might make the region safer while still being practical.

Trying to ban warships of the superpowers would guarantee they would not agree to recognize the area as a nuclear-free zone, he said.

South Pacific nations, he said, are deeply worried about the international situation and the lack of progress in nuclear arms reduction talks. Their hope is to lessen the threat of nuclear warfare in the region while remaining tied to the United States through common interests, he said.

"The aim," he said, "is to make it a realistic treaty."

Trevino, a native of Raymondsville, died Tuesday in the Veterans Administration Hospital in Amarillo after a lengthy illness.

The U.S. Army veteran came to Hereford in 1976 from California. He was a truck driver and a Catholic.

SHUTTLE

"That was absolutely the type of day you like to have when you are deploying satellites," said flight director John Cox.

The launching technique was different from Leasat's in that the satellite was spun on a turntable and ejected straight up out of the bay instead of being rolled over the side. The third satellite, owned by AT&T, will use the turntable technique when it is launched Saturday.

After three postponements, the astronauts had to endure one final launch delay Thursday — seven minutes this time — because a private plane was circling.

Ann Landers

Teenager's prayer

Dear Ann Landers: I am a teenager. About a year ago I clipped this column out of the paper after I had a big disagreement with my parents. I am asking you to run it again so other teens can read it. Maybe it will help them appreciate their folks a little more, like I do.—Learning A Lot In California

Dear Learning: The clipping you sent was pretty badly worn. That's good. It means you read it often. Thanks for asking me to run it again. I hope it will catch the eyes of teens who missed it the first time.

A TEENAGER'S PRAYER
God in heaven, I am young and don't understand what it is like to be a parent, but it must be very hard because so many people are failing at it these days.

I pray for Mom and Dad, God, that you will help them to be good parents—strong in the ways you want them to be, so I can look up to them with admiration and feel confident that their instruction is right.

Help me, dear Lord, to understand my parents, Remind me that when I don't get my way it is because they love so and not because they want to be mean or deprive me of a good time.

Help me, God, when I become stubborn and refuse to listen, to accept the fact that they have wisdom and experience because they were once teenagers, but I have never been a parent.

Put in my heart the respect and consideration they deserve for their years of hard work and sacrifice. They raised me as best they could. Let me not repay them with grief or shame. Rather help me to give them obedience, respect, forgiveness and love. Most of all, God, while I still have my parents here on earth, help me to appreciate them and let them know that I do.

Dear Ann Landers: We attended two weddings recently where the guests applauded the bride and groom following the ceremony. The last was a formal Catholic ceremony (our own daughter's) and it was a mass. To my surprise the priest led the applause and encouraged others to join in.

We had absolutely no idea he would do this. Both my husband and I were embarrassed. We went to a great deal of trouble to make the wedding dignified and elegant and felt the clapping and cheering downgraded the affair. What do you think?—Chagrined In Idaho

Dear Chag: I have attended formal weddings that ended in applause and was pleased by it. A formal affair produces tensions. What better way to put everyone at ease than to applaud and laugh a bit?

Dear Ann Landers: I believe you were wrong to put down that middle-aged woman who kept a 5-by-7 picture of herself on her office desk. You said it was in poor taste. I believe the woman is just plain insecure.

The picture was undoubtedly a flattering one and she wanted everyone to see her at her very best. It reminded me of cousin of mine who, to this day, carries in her purse a photo of herself taken 25 years ago. She frequently shows it to people so they can see that she was once slim and beautiful. What do you think of that, Ann Landers?—Defender Of The Underdog In Alabama

Dear Defender: Same thing. Pathetic.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1195, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

And other disturbances

Arthur joined by tropical depression

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Arthur churned slowly toward the Leeward Islands today as forecasters said the thick of the 1984 Atlantic hurricane season had arrived "all of a sudden."

Meanwhile, a new tropical depression formed in the central Atlantic Ocean and two other areas of disturbance attracted weather-watchers' attention, the National Hurricane Center said.

Before this week, only three tropical depressions and no tropical storms had cropped up during the first three months of the season.

"This is getting to be the time of year when you expect a lot of tropical activity to be in the Atlantic," said hurricane center forecaster Bob Case. "It seems to hold off, then all of sudden bang, you're in the thick of it."

Arthur, born Wednesday afternoon of the season's fourth tropical depression, was expected to cross the Leeward Islands and emerge into the warm waters of the northeastern Caribbean by early today, bringing with it thunderstorms and gusty wind, forecasters said.

At 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday, Arthur was about 300 miles east-southeast of Antigua, part of the island group that separates the Atlantic from the Caribbean.

It was moving northwest at 5 mph with gale-force winds of at least 38 mph extending 75 miles from the storm's center, the Coral Gables-based hurricane center said in its latest statement.

The storm's last reported coordinates put it near latitude 15.0 north and longitude 58.0 west. Highest sustained winds were estimated at 45 mph, and "little change in strength" was expected through this afternoon, according to the statement.

Satellite photos Thursday showed the "poorly defined center of a tropical depression" had formed about 1,000 miles east of Barbados in the Atlantic.

B-1 bomber co-pilot 'Professional airman'

JEFFERSON, Texas (AP) — Doug Benefield piloted all kinds of aircraft, and never stopped dreaming in his quest to find the edge of "human and technological endurance."

Benefield quest ended when a B-1 bomber prototype, which he was co-piloting, crashed in the Mojave Desert. Benefield was killed and the pilot and flight engineer were hospitalized.

Benefield joined the elite test pilot program at Edwards AFB in the 1950s and had a decorated career that included testing of the super-sonic Concorde passenger plane. He also was featured in the April issue of Life magazine.

Life called the 55-year-old Benefield and four others "the best of the breed" whose heroics in the early days of the Edwards test program were part of Tom Wolfe's novel "The Right Stuff." He was one of the last active test pilots trained in the 1950s.

"The guys were getting killed like flies out there," Benefield recalled in the Life article. "It got so bad you didn't want to get close to anyone because tomorrow, he might be dead."

But the Air Force, which is continuing its investigation, seemed to play down the image of the "The Right Stuff," a book about the early days of flight testing.

"These (the crew) are not daredevils, they're not hot-rodgers," said Edwards Air Force Base spokesman Col. Alan Sabsevit. "They're professional airmen. They don't do anything dumb... 'The Right Stuff' is the image of the '50s. But these men are engineers."

As family members grieved in this small East Texas town, they remembered Benefield's accomplishments.

"Doug was a very strong person of high intelligence," said his sister-in-law, Suzanne Benefield. "He was one of the top test pilots in the entire world."

Benefield began flying the Pentagon's new B-1 bomber prototype in March 1983, pushing the aircraft to its limits.

"We're flying everyday because we're kids who've never stopped dreaming," Benefield said. "We're always looking at another frontier, whiskering up to the edge of human and technological endurance."

During the past 34 years, Benefield logged more than 6,000 hours flying time. He joined Rockwell's B-1 program in 1974.

Benefield, a retired Air Force colonel, was born in Rison, Ark., and graduated from Jefferson High School and Texas A&M University, where he studied aeronautical engineering passionately. Mrs.

Benefield said.

Benefield joined the Air Force in 1950, saw duty in Korea, completed the service's test pilot program in 1955 and worked with flight test operations at Edwards.

He flew combat tour in Vietnam in 1967-68 and then worked for the Federal Aviation Administration for four years as a test pilot.

Benefield received several military honors and awards during his career, including the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics Chanute Flight award.

He was the son of Thelma Benefield and the late Allen Benefield of Jefferson. Other survivors include Benefield's wife, Suzanne, of Lancaster, Calif.; sons, Terry of San Diego and Tommie Jr., a U.S. Navy pilot stationed in Jacksonville, Fla.

Air Force officials said the three-man crew escaped in an escape capsule that landed near the crash site. The other two aboard survived with injuries.

Listed in stable condition at Antelope Valley Medical Center in Lancaster, Calif., were Maj. Richard V. Reynold, the pilot, and Capt. Otto J. Waniczek Jr., the flight engineer.

The four-engine plane was engaged in "extremely low-level, extremely low-speed" tests on its 127th test flight, a 3-hour, 45-minute mission, said Air Force Lt. Col. Ron Greer in Washington.

Benefield's family planned a memorial service at 11 a.m. Saturday at the United Methodist Church in Lancaster, Calif.

Insurance board considers rate increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurers who write workers' compensation coverage in Texas want higher premiums because they say the economic downturn drove business costs out of sight.

The State Board of Insurance took the appeals under consideration.

The National Council on Compensation Insurance asked the three-member board Thursday for a 28.7 percent increase although the board's staff has recommended a 10.6 percent increase.

Spokesmen for 16 trade associations said they were not sure the fund paid by employers to finance payments to injured workers needed even the 10.6 percent.

All the recommendations include a mandatory 2 percent increase ordered by the 1983 Legislature after it raised maximum weekly payments to those injured on the job from $189 to $203.

"You need a total rate that will be adequate for the worsening experience in this type of insurance," said Anthony Grippa, vice president of the National Council of Compensation Insurers.

Grippa, speaking for Texas sellers of workers' compensation insurance, first asked for a 25.4 percent increase based on 1982-83, then switched to 28.7 percent to include the first six months of 1984.

Charles Porter and Gaylon Daniels, actuaries for the Insurance Board, recommended an increase of 8.6 percent for the statutory classes of the insurance plus the mandatory 2 percent hike.

The increase among the statutory classes would include 5.2 percent for manufacturing, 12.3 percent for contracting, 8.5 percent for oil and gas employment, and 8.8 percent for other types.

"In my opinion this would be adequate and reasonable according to past and prospective experience," said Porter.

For the first time, the proposed staff rates took into consideration insurance prospects, as well as past performance. Porter said his figures include a "trend factor" for the 29 months after Sept. 1, 1985.

Grippa said most of the difference between the staff recommendation and that of NCCI is the allowance for profits and contingencies. The staff recommendation would cut the present level by 8.2 percent while the NCCI wants its increased 3.2 percent.

Grippa said including the 1984 experience added almost 4 percent to their request. More workers' compensation cases are being appealed to higher courts, costing insurance firms more money, and medical costs are still rising. He said the medical part of each compensation claim has risen from 43 percent in 1979 to 47 percent in 1983.

"The more current you get, the worse the experience looks," Grippa said.

Beach cleanup ends

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Scattered patches of oil still stain Galveston beaches, but efforts to clean up what's left of the tar-like mess that washed ashore Aug. 3 have been halted because "you'll never get it squeaky clean," a Coast Guard spokesman says.

By the end of the week, Mayor Jan Coggeshall said, only one cleanup crew will be on call. Scores of teams scoured the beaches in the weeks after the spill.

Sand on the island's beaches still has an oil content of between 1 percent and 4 percent, Coast Guard Lt. Larry Clark said Thursday.

Ordinarily, Clark said, the sand contains no oil "except right where there's a tarball." But "natural processes" will break down the remaining oil, Clark said.

"You'll never get it squeaky clean," he said. "You'll never get it as clean as it was before the spill."

The British tanker Alvenus spilled about 2.8 million gallons of oil into the Gulf of Mexico July 30 after it ruptured south of Cameron, La.

The 690-foot vessel is now docked at Todd Shipyards in Galveston, awaiting repairs, Clark said.

He said he was uncertain how much the cleanup had cost.

Between 80,000 and 100,000 cubic yards of sand have been removed from the island's beaches since the spill, Ms. Coggeshall said. But she said the loss "isn't going to make that much difference" to the environment, according to a report by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Cleanup efforts of the city's seawall will continue, Clark said.

City officials had asked that that cleanup also stop for enough time to let the oil weather on the rocks.

"They've tried about seven different things, different kinds of water blasting, sand blasting, (chemical) dispersion, but because this is such a crude oil, they're having a difficult time figuring out how to get it off the rocks and the seawall," the mayor said.

Jose Marin of Spain walked a record-breaking 17 miles, 881 yards in two hours on April 8, 1979.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations.

Tele-Help has the answers

"My phone's not working... who should I call? What can I do to save money on my phone service? Why are there so many pages in my phone bill? How do I pick the long distance service company that's right for me?"

These are some of the questions I've been getting from many of you since Southwestern Bell Telephone became an independent company on Jan. 1.

Last year we anticipated many of these questions and began telling our customers about the changes in our business using advertising, bill inserts, news stories, brochures and public talks by our employees.

But we found that people aren't likely to listen until the message directly affects them. Our research shows that only about 17 percent of our customers fully understand the changes brought on by the Bell System split up.

We're concerned about this confusion. That's why we've started a new informative program to help you. It's in the public interest. You've been good customers too long. We split from AT&T, not you.

The new program is called "Tele-Help," and it will give you more information about your phone service, what to do, when and how. Perhaps you've already seen and heard some of the advertising. It's all designed to help clear up any confusion and make sure your phone service remains as useful as we can make it.

You can still "call on us" for help

Tele-Help is our way of saying we hope you'll still "call on us." Just as you've turned to us in the past, we want you to continue to do so in the future.

In talking with you, we identified six major areas that most of you want to know more about. These topics comprise the first six Tele-Help booklets: phone service in general, phone bills, repair, telephone sets, long distance service and money-saving tips. Other booklets are in the works, and I'll tell you more about them in subsequent columns.

We feel the booklets are easy to understand and they're available at no charge. You can order the entire set if you like.

Super Bowl rematch headlines NFL slate

By The Associated Press

The Washington Redskins meet the Miami Dolphins in a rematch of Super Bowl XVII opponents as the National Football League opens its regular season on Sunday.

Since beating Miami in the NFL's championship game 27-17 two years ago, the Redskins have played the Dolphins once in an exhibition game that resulted in a 38-7 victory for Miami last year.

"They are among the elite — a well-coached, disciplined team that doesn't do anything fancy but out-execute you," said Washington assistant coach Richie Petitbon of the Dolphins.

The Redskins' growing injury list — which includes defensive linemen Dave Butz (back) and Darryl Grant (knee), cornerback Darrell Green (thigh) and offensive linemen Joe Jacoby (ankle) and Russ Grimm (leg) — remained a primary concern heading into the season opener.

"The injuries will play as great a part in planning our game plan as what Miami does," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs.

The Dolphins don't have as many injury problems as the Redskins — only linebacker A.J. Duhe is missing due to lingering knee and shoulder problems. Quarterback Dan Marino bounced back from a dislocated finger to throw for 204 yards against Tampa Bay in last week's exhibition game.

In other action Sunday, the defending NFL champion Los Angeles Raiders — who walloped the Redskins 38-9 in last year's Super Bowl, open on the road at Houston. Also Sunday, it's Atlanta at New Orleans, Kansas City at Pittsburgh, New England at Buffalo, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, St. Louis at Green Bay, San Diego at Minnesota, San Francisco at Detroit, Tampa Bay at Chicago, Cincinnati at Denver, and the New York Jets at Indianapolis.

Cleveland plays at Seattle in a Monday afternoon game and Dallas visits the Los Angeles Rams in the first of the weekly Monday night games.

The Cowboys open the season with a new quarterback in Gary Hogeboom, who is supplanting Danny White. They also have 12 rookies on a 49-man roster that lost five players to retirement.

Most of the Dallas newcomers are replacing a group of blue-chip retirees — Harvey Martin, Drew Pearson, Billy Joe DuPree, Pat Donovan and Robert Newhouse. The last time the Cowboys lost as many players, in 1975, they went to the Super Bowl.

Coach Tom Landry's vote of confidence in Hogeboom, however, is not overwhelming.

"This could be a one-week thing. We're playing it game by game," he said. "I'm not sure which quarterback will take us to the Super Bowl, Hogeboom or White, time will tell. I hope Gary will live up to it, but who knows?"

The Rams will try to repeat their 24-17 triumph over Dallas in the National Football Conference's wild-card playoff game last year.

The Jets-Indianapolis game will be played in the new Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, where the Colts have moved from Baltimore.

The Colts, whose only preseason victory came in their only preseason game at the Hoosier Dome, will be greeted by a capacity crowd of 61,000. Mike Pagel will direct a ground-oriented offense featuring running backs Curtis Dickey and Randy McMillan against the Jets, who will have six-year backup Pat Ryan at quarterback in place of Richard Todd, traded to New Orleans.

"I would have to say this is the biggest opportunity of my career," said Ryan. "My fate is in my own hands now."

Ironically, Ryan probably would not be making his first regular-season start in the pros if not for Ken O'Brien's brush with the law. He and defensive end Mark Gastineau have been on trial in New York on assault charges and as a result have not been able to practice regularly with the team for the past two weeks. Gastineau, however, will start against the Colts Sunday.

Witherspoon defends crown tonight

By TIM DAHLBERG AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tim Witherspoon, his World Boxing Council heavyweight crown on the line for the first time tonight against undefeated Pinklon Thomas, says he's hoping for an early ending to the fight.

"I'm looking for it to go no further than five rounds," Witherspoon said. "I want to let people know I am the true heavyweight champion."

The 26-year-old heavyweight, whose only loss was in a controversial split decision to Larry Holmes, enters the ring tonight billed as a heavyweight champion for the first time. It is one of three different heavyweight titles currently promoted, the others belonging to Holmes and World Boxing Association champion Gerrie Coetzee.

Witherspoon is a solid 2-1 favorite, according to the betting line on the Las Vegas Strip, but Thomas says he's not impressed.

"I don't see Tim as a great fighter," said Thomas. "I see him as a good fighter, but I know I can beat him. He says he'll knock me out, but I've never even been knocked down."

Witherspoon earlier in the week threatened to pull out of the fight unless he could be guaranteed more money, but said he put that behind him in final preparations for the fight.

Witherspoon weighed in Thursday at 217 pounds, one pound heavier than Thomas's 216, and proclaimed himself in great shape.

"I'm feeling real good, I've been running a lot and my weight is down," he said. Witherspoon weighed 220 when he won the title Holmes vacated last December in an elimination fight against Greg Page in March. He won a unanimous 12-round decision over an overweight Page.

Thomas brings in a 24-0-1 record with 20 knockouts to the fight while Witherspoon is 18-1 with 12 knockouts.

The only blemish on Thomas' record is a bruising 10-round draw with Coetzee.

Witherspoon will receive $400,000 plus $50,000 in expenses for the fight, but claimed earlier he would be lucky to end up with $50,000 after taxes and his manager, promoter Don King's son Carl King, gets the half he is contracted to receive. Thomas will receive $100,000.

Page, in his first fight since losing to Witherspoon, takes on undefeated

David Bey in another 12-round bout on the card, this one for Page's United States Boxing Association title.

Two former WBA heavyweight champions now on the comeback trail are also in action. Mike Weaver fighters Billy Thomas of New Orleans while Michael Dokes takes on Mike Jameson of San Jose, Calif. Both fights are 10-rounders.

Home Box Office will telecast the card from the Riviera Hotel beginning at 6 p.m. PDT.

Athletic programs placed on probation

SILVER CITY, N.M. (AP) — Western New Mexico University's football and men's basketball teams have been suspended from participating in post-season games for a year because of eligibility infractions, a published report says.

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics also placed all other WNMU sports on probation, the Silver City Daily Press said Thursday.

That probation ruling would mean those programs still would be able to advance to post-season play and are eligible for any of the NAIA's sponsored tournaments.

All football games won last year and two victories by the women's basketball team also will have to be forfeited, the newspaper said.

The NAIA issued the ruling after investigating reports of an ineligible football and basketball player at WNMU last school year, the newspaper said.

WNMU officials received the NAIA decision by registered mail Wednesday afternoon. They refused to release the contents because of NAIA policy that the decision not be disclosed until 10 days after Aug. 27.

"All I can tell you is that we have a rule that prohibits a university from officially releasing any matters pertaining to eligibility for 10 days," said Harry Fritz, NAIA president.

"So nothing can officially be announced until Sept. 7, either by us or by Western New Mexico," he said.

Eloy Gonzales, WNMU's public information director, said university officials did not leak the letter to the Silver City newspaper.

"I'm not denying the letter has arrived," he said. "But we've been told by the NAIA we can't release its contents for 10 days. I didn't see the letter. I have no idea what's in it."

Mark Benedetto, WNMU's interim athletic director, said the letter had arrived in school president Mervyn Cadwallader's office. But Benedetto said, "I don't have any idea what was in it."

Hereford, Estacado coaches pleased with tune-up

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

For Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor and Estacado coach Louis Kelley, the 40-minute delay in beginning Thursday night's scrimmage was worth the wait.

Estacado came out on top two touchdowns to one in the tune-up affair.

Taylor and Kelley were in agreement that the contest proved to be a "clean game" with no one getting hurt.

"It was a good scrimmage," Taylor said. "There was no mouthing among the players. Both teams conducted themselves well."

Taylor added that the Whitefaces got a brief reprieve from playing intra-squad with the chance to "play somebody we didn't know."

"We enjoyed it," Kelley said. "We weren't real intense all of the time, but the main thing is no one got hurt."

The Estacado club, from District 1-4A, needs to be in better condition, Kelley said.

"In time," he said, "both teams will be good football teams."

Hereford took the ball first for 20 plays beginning on its own 30, running from the veer formation. No serious scoring threat really was evident as the Herd managed to cross enemy territory by only 15 yards.

The Herd reached the Matador 35 on the 19th play of the drive. And even then, a defender from the Matadors sacked Herd quarterback Mike Scott for a 12-yard loss to squash hopes.

The scoring play for Hereford came on a fourth down call from the Estacado 17-yard line. Second-team quarterback Stefan Hacker tossed to Sammy Suarez in the left corner of the end zone under man coverage.

Hereford's defense looked strong throughout the night in Taylor's 5-2 setup. After allowing Estacado to get into a position of second-and-goal at the two, defenders proved up to the task, turning the Mats away.

"I thought they (defensive players) played very well all night," Taylor said. "We had a couple of guys who had to step in for injured players, and I was pleased at their play."

Taylor named juniors Curtis Cotton and Patrick Phibbs as defenders whose play pleased him.

The Herd defense looked even stronger the second possession for the Mats. The Whitefaces stopped Estacado from making a first down until the 17th play. The Mats accomplished that on a sweep right which picked up 18 yards.

Hereford defenders intercepted Matador quarterbacks twice with good chances for at least another one. On the other hand, Herd quarterbacks threw no interceptions.

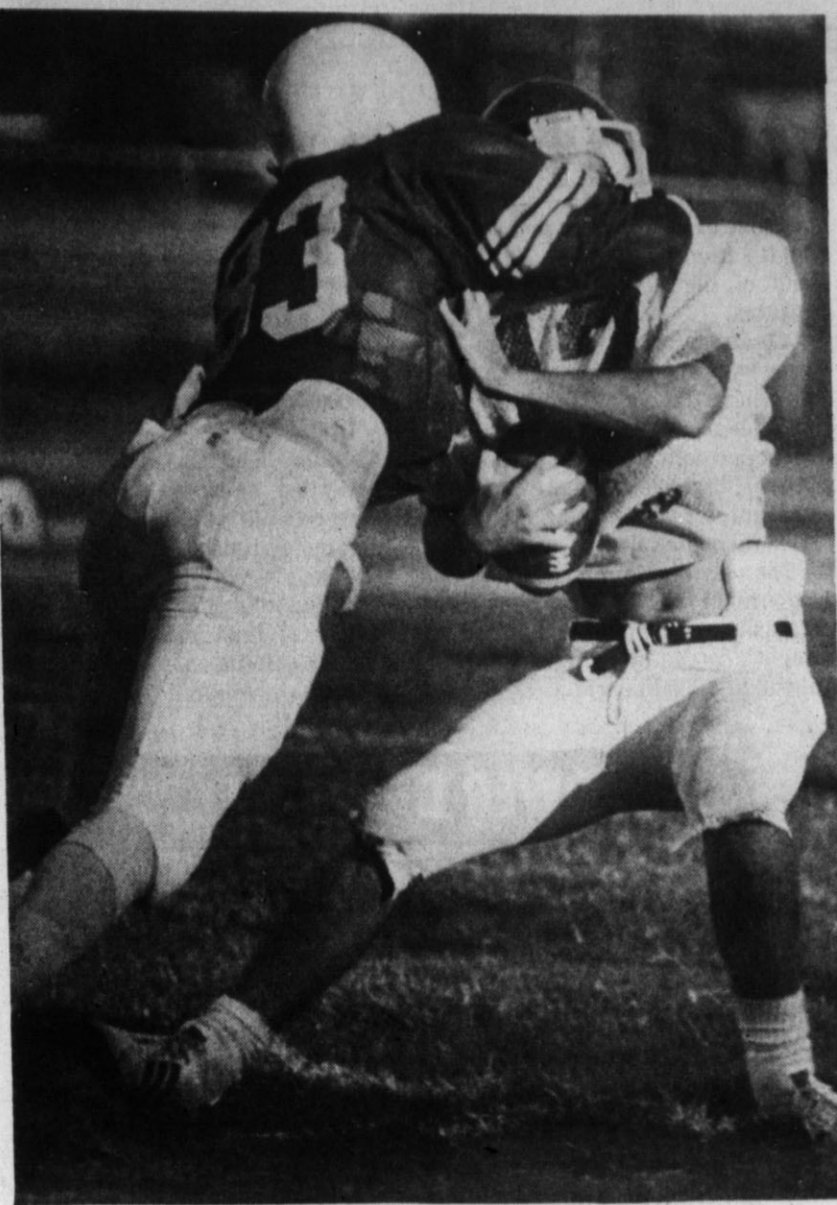

Estacado scored twice while running goal-line offense from the I-formation.

Hereford fielded 31 players Thursday. Taylor said at least six players still were out due to injury.

"We're going to keep doing exactly what we've been doing," he said. "Our blocking on the running game needs to be improved. We need a little more work."

In junior varsity action, Estacado downed Hereford three or four touchdowns to one, according to Taylor.

The Herd's play was inconsistent, he said, looking good at times and then bad. More practice time will be spent to improve those areas, he added.

Closeness Counts

Soviet Union lauds own achievements

By ALISON SMALE Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's answer to the Los Angeles Olympics, the Friendship '84 Games, ended with the hosts trumpeting their sporting achievements and taking a final blast at the Summer Games they shunned.

Sports and ceremony closed out the Friendship Games on Thursday, with the Soviets scoring a final triumph by winning the basketball championship and Soviet Olympics Committee president Marat Gramov proclaiming the Games more successful than the Olympics.

At a closing ceremony in Moscow's Rossiya Hotel, adjacent to the Kremlin, Gramov reiterated that the Soviet Union and 14 other countries, mostly its East bloc allies, were right not to go to Los Angeles.

"Boundless commercialization" characterized the Summer Games, he told an invited audience. "The atmosphere of Los Angeles once again proved the correctness of the decision" to boycott the Olympics, he added.

"In all aspects, Friendship '84 surpassed Los Angeles," a Bulgarian woman basketball player, Vanya Dermedzhieva, also told the audience.

Though the Soviets insisted their Games were not meant to rival the Olympics, Gramov, both at a press conference and at the closing ceremony, said that Friendship athletes set 18 world records, compared to "only 11" at Los Angeles, and said that 47 Olympic records were bettered, compared with 45 in the Olympics.

There were some disappointments. Soviet swimmer Vladimir Salnikov failed to beat his own world records in the 400- and 1,500-meters. But he beat the Olympic gold medal times.

East Germany, whose athletes were said by other competitors to be bitterly disappointed at missing the Olympics, proved its sporting prowess in swimming, winning 16 events.

The Soviets dominated in most other sports, sweeping aside all opposition in field hockey, track and field, gymnastics and basketball.

No world records fell in track and field, but 23 performances would have gained medals at the Olympics. All but three were in field events, a traditional strength of the East bloc.

As for the next Olympics, to be held in Seoul, South Korea, the Soviets are not saying if they will attend. Gramov said that no decision has to be made until six weeks before the Games.

Until the 1948 season, only the referee in National Football League games carried a whistle. The other officials carried horns.

Sigel fails to win third amateur title

By GIL BROYLES

Associated Press Writer
EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — Jay Sigel doubted he would win the U.S. Amateur golf championship a third straight time. He was right.

Sigel, 40, an insurance executive from Berwyn, Pa., lost 3 and 1 to Rocco Mediate of Greensburg, Pa., in the first round of match play Thursday. After two days of qualifying in record-high temperatures that soared to 106 degrees, Sigel appeared drained and out of shape.

"He didn't look like he was into the match," said Mediate, a 21-year-old Florida Southern product who was ousted in the second round by Peter Persons of Macon, Ga., 1 up.

"I'm as fierce a competitor as there is," the soft-spoken Sigel said. "I had to lose sometime and I don't mind losing to Rocco."

"He deserved to win. He played very well. He played better than I did," Sigel said.

After 36 holes of match play today, only four golfers will remain in the hunt.

The two top qualifiers, Scott Verplank of Oklahoma State and Scott Dunlap of Florida, are among 16 golfers still in the running for the 1984 title.

B.C. Open

Donaldson battles Couples

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — With a little help from a friend, Mike Donald got into the right groove for the B.C. Open. Now he's 25 percent of the way to his first Professional Golfers' Association Tour victory.

There are some formidable obstacles in the way, though, including red-hot Fred Couples, who fired a 5-under-par 66 Thursday to tie Donald for the first-round lead of the $300,000 event.

Another might be years of PGA history in which obscure golfers seem to turn up leading after 18 holes but fade to the fine print after 72. It happens in the "major" tournaments as well as the lesser-known.

The B.C. Open has a history of providing a stepping-stone to young golfers, however, and Donald, 29, saw no reason to suspect a collapse.

"I was nearly perfect on the first nine holes," he said. "I think that helps the confidence. And I've been near the lead this year — I've had a couple of third-place finishes. There's no reason I couldn't do well here."

He said he spent last week getting advice from friend Gardner Dickinson.

Lendl advances in U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — If Ivan Lendl reaches the final of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships — and Mats Wilander and a few other gentlemen might have something to say about that — it really won't matter to him who's on the other side of the net.

"I really don't care. I'd just like to get there and then have the problem of facing somebody," Lendl said Thursday night.

John McEnroe is ranked No. 1 in the world and the No. 1 seed here. Lendl, the gaunt, stoic Czech, and Jimmy Connors stand 2-3 in each case.

It was Connors who beat Lendl in each of the past two U.S. Open finals.

Conversely, Lendl handed Connors his two worst losses in recent years, 6-0, 6-0 in the WCT Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills this year and 6-1, 6-1 two years ago at the ATP Championship in Cincinnati.

And it was McEnroe whom Lendl beat earlier this year in the French Open for his first Grand Slam title.

Barring an upset along the way, Lendl will almost certainly face one of them. When asked again to make a choice, Lendl smiled ever so slightly and replied: "I would prefer to play somebody else."

Thursday night Lendl was extended in a 2 3/4-hour match before beating South African Eddie Edwards 3-6, 7-6, 6-3, 6-1 to move into the third round.

Connors and McEnroe were playing their second-round matches late today — Connors against Brian Gottfried, McEnroe against Stefan Edberg of Sweden.

The top two women's seeds moved easily into the third round with straight-set victories Thursday. Martina Navratilova defeating Andrea Leand 6-4, 6-2, and Chris Evert Lloyd beating Terry Holladay 6-1, 6-1.

Navratilova, by far the best women's tennis player today, was asked following her second-round match whether she was driven to be the greatest ever.

"It's a long-term goal," she replied. "And it's also a very subjective goal because there'll always be people who are 90 years old who'll say, 'Well, I saw Suzanne Lenglen and she was better.'"

"If you go on titles alone, then Margaret Court was the greatest. If you go on Wimbledon titles, then Suzanne Lenglen or Helen Wills Moody was the greatest. If you go on longevity, then Chris would be the greatest, and perhaps I would be right behind her. So it depends on what criteria you use."

Ultimately, though, Navratilova admitted: "It does drive me — yes."

Other seeded women moving into the third round were No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, who defeated Tine Scheuer-Larsen of Denmark 6-2, 6-0; Zina Garrison, who rallied to beat Raffaella Reggi of Italy 3-6, 6-1, 6-0; No. 12 Bonnie Gadusek, who beat Pam Casale 2-6, 6-3, 6-4; No. 14 Carling Bassett of Canada, 7-6, 7-6 over Pascale Paradis of France; and No. 16 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary, 7-5, 6-4 over Elise Burgin.

The seeded men who advanced Thursday were the fourth-seeded Wilander of Sweden, 7-6, 6-3, 6-4 over Michael Kures; No. 5 Andres Gomez of Spain, 6-0, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 over Mike Bauer; No. 8 Aaron Krickstein, who defeated Jeff Klaparda 6-5, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6; No. 10 Eliot Teltscher, who struggled past Mark Dickson, 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6; No. 12 Vitas Gerulaitis, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0 over Gianni Occleppo of Italy; No. 14 Anders Jarryd of Sweden, who outlasted Danie Visser of South Africa 6-7, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Miami wants revenge

By The Associated Press

It's payback time for the Miami Hurricanes.

Tired of bumper stickers that read "Florida 28, National Champions 3", the 10th-ranked Hurricanes tackle the 17th-ranked Florida Gators in one of Saturday night's key college football games.

The bumper stickers, of course, refer to last season's opening game when the Gators handed the Hurricanes their only loss in a national championship season.

At present, the Gators are ateam in turmoil. Coach Charley Pell has announced his resignation, effective at the end of the season, because of a continuing NCAA probe into the Gators' program, and quarterback Dale Dorminey was lost for the season with a knee injury.

The Hurricanes are fresh off last Monday night's 20-18 upset over top-ranked Auburn in the Kickoff Classic in East Rutherford, N.J. The defending national champions are led by sophomore quarterback Bernie Kosar, who completed 21 of 38 passes for 329 yards and two touchdowns against Auburn.

"We're going to play one great football team Saturday night and we have to completely forget Auburn," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson. "If we think about Auburn, we're going to be in trouble."

Said Kosar of Florida: "They humiliated us (last year). They're one of our big rivals and we'll be ready to play them. I don't think it'll be as much a revenge aspect as much as continuing on with our winning ways, hopefully."

In other games involving the nation's Top Twenty teams on this first full weekend of the college football season, Brigham Young will play at No. 3 Pitt, Appalachian at No. 4 Clemson, Western Carolina at No. 19 Boston College and East Carolina at No. 20 Florida State.

The Panthers have a pretty good idea what to expect from BYU.

"No matter who the quarterback is, you know what they're going to do — pass," said Pitt Coach Foge Fazio.

Robbie Bosco, who was 17-of-28 for 252 yards and three touchdowns as last season's backup, is the latest in a long line of strong-armed quarterbacks at BYU, following the likes of Gifford Nielsen, Marc Wilson, Jim McMahon and Steve Young.

The big name at Pitt these days and one of the main reasons for their high national ranking is Bill Fralic, one of the game's best offensive tackles.

Clemson figures to have an easy time with Appalachian. Although Appalachian did beat Wake Forest, one of Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues, in the 1983 opener, the Tigers are 30-2-2 over the past three seasons and have won 20 straight home games.

The only problem that Boston College might face Saturday is a lack of intensity, since Western Carolina might catch the Eagles looking ahead to Alabama next week. But BC

Coach Jack Bicknell warns that "Western's passing game is a threat to any team they play."

BC's Doug Flutie, who threw for 2,724 yards last year, needs 2,875 to become major-college football's first 10,000-yard passer.

In last year's game between East Carolina and Florida State, FSU prevailed 47-46 in a contest that featured 948 yards of offense. The Seminoles finished 7-5 and were 15 points shy of being 11-1; East Carolina went on to an 8-3 season and a No. 20 final ranking, the three losses coming at Florida State, Florida and Miami.

DIALING FOR DOLLARS Teachers taught to cope in Alaska's bush

How Ma Bell's spinoffs have fared

(Source: Salomon Brothers / company reports)

NEA GRAPHIC

AT&T and its former local phone concerns fared reasonably well in the first six months after the Bell System was dissolved. But Chicago-based Ameritech did best, with the highest income and per-share earnings.

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Steve Grubis is a survival specialist, teaching teachers from the rest of the nation about life in the Alaska Bush, where problems with language and culture often make them "strangers in a strange land."

"A typical village scene is to see sled dogs tied up to a TV satellite system," Grubis said. "Or see someone sitting in their homes watching the 'Dukes of Hazzard' on TV while a herd of caribou goes by."

"It's not necessarily a case of culture shock when you go into some villages. But it is culture fatigue," he said. "The ways people organize and do things with one another are different there from elsewhere."

Grubis, 41, is assistant professor of cross-cultural education at the University of Alaska-Fairbanks. The former Boston resident aid he has worked in the Canadian Arctic and Alaska for the past 18 years, mostly in rural areas.

Teachers come from every state in the nation "plus a couple of foreign countries" for his three-semester cross-cultural orientation program, Grubis said in a telephone interview Monday.

"Some districts require it as a condition before they hire someone," Grubis said. "It makes for a more stable, more knowledgeable staff."

Turnover is high for teachers who work in remote areas. It generally ranges from 15 percent to 20 percent a year, although it can go as high as 50 percent in some rural districts, according to officials with the state Department of Education. That compares with a turnover rate of 7 percent for the Anchorage School District in the 1982-1983 school year, officials said.

"Most don't know what they're getting into," Grubis said of teachers seeking jobs in the bush.

For example, sometimes "it's just not wise" to go outside in some villages in winter, he said. Temperatures commonly range to 50 degrees below zero in some villages, with wind chill factor readings of minus 100.

"Many of the teachers who go into rural Alaska go to communities of 500 or less," he said. "There's no road system. They're isolated, without support. They're not able to visit relatives on the weekend."

"Professionally, they may have to teach five or six different subjects which they aren't credentialed in," Grubis said. "Lifestyles are a problem with some. We encourage them to get involved in community affairs, community organizations."

Some teachers have an unreal image of life in the Alaska Bush, he said.

"I've seen them walking in with a cowboy saddle to a Yupik village on the (south central) coast," Grubis said. "There isn't a horse within 300 miles."

"Some will come in and not leave the teacherage (combination school-living quarters) except to get their mail," he said.

"They roll the shades down, turn the heat up and put pictures of Florida on the wall," Grubis said. "Those are rare instances, but they happen."

"In some communities, English is not the primary language," he said. "They're strangers in a strange land."

The orientation program Grubis offers includes bringing in native teachers to talk about life in the bush, where 20 different languages are spoken and where living conditions "have jumped from the Stone Age to the 21st century" in little more than a decade, he said.

While the university's rural orientation program is not mandatory for Alaska teachers, educators must be certified to work in the state.

Alaska currently is being flooded with certification requests from non-resident teachers who have heard about the high pay and excitement to be found here, Education Commissioner Harold Reynolds said last week.

Some 50 to 90 applications are arriving daily, and the flow picked up recently when Gov. Bill Sheffield appeared on nationwide television during a Washington, D.C., visit to trumpet the virtues of working and living in Alaska.

"That, plus news coverage focusing on statistics that Alaska pays teachers about $15,000 more a year than other places, is stimulating it," Reynolds said. "We have 20,000 certified teachers on file and we employ about 7,000 in the state so we have no real shortages."

While the Education Department does certify teachers, it does not act as a job broker, he said.

"This is unsolicited," he said of the certification requests. "We are not recruiting."

Starting teachers earn about $25,000 a year in Alaska with experienced classroom instructors pulling down as much as $50,000 annually, he said.

About 2,300 of the state's 7,000 teaching slots are at villages where one instructor often works with children in grades kindergarten through 12.

Alaska is a very attractive place to become a teacher, but many people looking for jobs in rural areas have their expectations all wrong, he said.

"A classic you hear is about the teacher recruited from California for a small village who had a tennis racket with her when she arrived,"

Reynolds said. "Some of those villages don't even have telephones, let alone tennis courts."

"That illustrates the complete misunderstanding about villages in Alaska and the impressions of what it's like to live here," Reynolds said. "It's exotic all right, but exotic on the hardship, not the romantic side."

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The famed mariachi musicians of Garibaldi Square here are complaining that organized crime, drug use and violence are making their working conditions difficult.

The musicians' livelihoods and one of Mexico's main tourist attractions are in jeopardy," Cudberto Perez Munoz, secretary general of the Garibaldi Mariachis Coalition, was quoted Thursday as saying.

The English-language daily paper The News reported that Perez complained that a "mafia" is running prostitution and robbery rings in the area. He said the drug pushers and pimps "intimidate" the police.

"Although problems have existed in Garibaldi for years, they are now at an intolerable level," Perez said.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Victor Gonzalez Luna, the Mexican lawyer who was engaged to actress Elizabeth Taylor, said Thursday the romance was over and "for some time the wedding date had seemed farther and farther away."

In a telephone interview from his office here, Gonzalez Luna confirmed reports that appeared in New York newspapers saying the engagement was off.

"Despite everything we continue being the best of friends," he added. Gonzalez Luna also confirmed that Miss Taylor had returned to him a 16 1/2-carat sapphire and diamond engagement ring given her in August 1983.

"I don't really have anything to add. I'm not the one who has made the official announcement. I understand journalists, but I would prefer that they don't interfere anymore in my private life," he said.

Gonzalez Luna is a 56-year-old native of Guadalajara, Mexico's second-largest city 332 miles northwest of Mexico City. The engagement was announced during Miss Taylor's critically panned and commercially unsuccessful run on Broadway with "Private Lives," co-starring with Richard Burton.

Burton, whom she married twice, died Aug. 5. The actress traveled to Guadalajara several times during her engagement to Luna but never spoke with journalists in Mexico.

The New York Post and New York Daily News published reports quoting Sam Chen, a spokeswoman for Miss Taylor, as saying that the breakup came before Burton's death.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The World Federation of Underwater Activities awarded Mexico its 1984 Golden Trident award for the country's efforts to protect the gray whale, the office of President Miguel de la Madrid announced Thursday.

The award will be delivered formally to Mexican representatives Sept. 30 in Palermo, Italy, according to the president's office.

"The prize is in recognition of Mexican legislation to protect the gray whale, as one instance of our activities to preserve the environment," the president's office said.

The Golden Trident award previously has been awarded to Greece and Japan, the office said.

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Rogelio Cantu Gomez, owner and publisher of the newspaper El Porvenir in this industrial city and one of the best known figures in Mexican journalism, is dead at the age of 67.

Cantu, who had stopped working recently for health reasons, died Wednesday of a heart attack.

The newspaper when founded by his father, Jesus Cantu, was the first in Monterrey. He started his career in journalism when he was 16 years old and took over management of El Porvenir in 1947.

Survivors include his wife, Alicia Escalante Cano, and three sons, Jesus, Rogelio and Jose Gerardo.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will invest $100 million over the next four years to improve and speed up mail delivery, the Department of Communications and Transportation announced.

Rodolfo Olavarria Moreno, director of mail for the department, said one of the main goals is to reduce delivery time by 60 percent.

He also said the government would improve service to small rural communities where service now is poor or non-existent.

Currently it takes several days to a week to send mail from the capital to other areas of the country.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Grape growers in Sonora state have had to dump some two million gallons of the juice because distillers are using sugar in their wine production.

Alvaro Santiago, a director of Banrural, told reporters that the grape growers are not in danger of bankruptcy despite the problems. He said the nationalized bank will continue extending easy credit to the growers. He blamed the current problem on distillers who use subsidized sugar in the production of their wines. Santiago said they should use the natural sugar of the grape and honor their purchase agreements with growers.

For Hispanics
Citizenship on upswing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A project aimed at promoting American citizenship among Hispanics has drawn hundreds of naturalization classes, officials say.

"Never before have so many people been in citizenship classes in San Antonio," said Mariana Scuros, director of the naturalization project for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

San Antonio is 52 percent Hispanic and much of South Texas is heavily Mexican-American.

MALDEF launched the citizenship project in March and already 577 persons have enrolled in classes and 425 have applied for citizenship. The enrollment marks a 400 percent increase over last year, Ms. Scuros said Thursday.

MALDEF will start a similar project in San Francisco in October, she said.

The project was applauded by San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, who said Hispanics have shunned citizenship for various reasons.

"They felt they might be disloyal to the mother Mexico or the benefits of society were accruing to them without their making that choice of the heart," he said during a news conference in the city council chambers.

"Now there are very strong reasons for people to take part in the citizenship drive," Cisneros said.

"What we are seeing here is an unprecedented opportunity for Hispanics to participate in the political process. Never before have we had such opportunities to elect minority people," the mayor said.

Albert Bustamante, unopposed for the 23rd District congressional seat, said he remembers when most Hispanics rejected the idea of citizenship because they planned to return to Mexico or because they feared approaching immigration authorities.

Bustamante, a Democrat, said he would work to beef up naturalization personnel at South Texas Immigration and Naturalization offices, where backlogs are cropping up because of the citizenship drive.

On the average, it takes a year for citizenship applicants to get interviews in San Antonio. In Laredo, and Corpus Christi, the wait is even longer.

INS has added four examiners in its San Antonio office and the service has beefed up its staffs nationwide because of the backlogs.

But Ms. Scuros urged more INS efforts.

"The good faith effort INS is making to increase its manpower in naturalization and MALDEF's initiative to increase the number of Hispanic citizens represent a bona fide opportunity for both organizations to work closely together in mainstreaming more people into American society. This can only benefit the nation as a whole," she said.

Willie Velasquez, who heads the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, criticized those who have opposed the immigration and naturalization of Hispanics.

"The ones that come over are the ones that want to work for a reasonable day's salary," he said.

Americans are proud of their ancestors who immigrated, Velasquez said, but not of the current crop of immigrants.

"Once this (immigration) stops, once the immigrant tradition stops, we're not going to be America any more. We're going to be like everyone else," he said.

To stimulate interest in citizenship, the project mounted an education campaign through the Spanish media to emphasize the benefits, requirements and how to go through the naturalization process.

The program also has offered assistance in filling out naturalization applications, English classes and citizenship instruction.

The world's largest breed of dog is the Irish wolf-hound, which can grow to be more than six feet tall. The heaviest dogs are the St. Bernards.

When Ladies Were Ladies

I dream of days of long ago
Of Ladies and gentlemen,
Gentlemen raised their hats and bowed
To Ladies away back when.

But now she is just a person
Without the frills and bows
With much to much in view
Just any where she goes.

And what she shows isn't very pretty
The way it is exposed,
But it was lovely back when it-
Was covered with frills and bows.

Now no man lifts his hat or bows
To persons on the street
Who look so much like hobos
With dirty, rusty feet.
