WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director David Stockman, conceding "problems in many places" in President Reagan's 1986 budget, is challenging a skeptical Congress to try to devise a fairer plan.

"There aren't many good alternatives and I think Congress will discover this," said Stockman. He was arguing the case for the president's $974 billion budget before the Senate Budget Committee today. Republican House and Senate leaders have made it clear they're not about to swallow the president's $974 billion budget whole and will use the document more as a starting point in their own deficit-reduction efforts.

At least two major programs spared from Reagan's budget knife — defense and Social Security — will be "on the table" along with other federal spending, budget leaders in both chambers said Monday.

But Stockman said that, while he anticipated "a very noisy debate on defense," the administration felt it had already gone as far as it could go on Pentagon spending restraint.

"Our plan is balanced and it's fair," Stockman told a press briefing. "I have no doubt political resistance and opposition will be strong. And maybe that is an understatement. But there are no alternatives."

Stockman was the only witness before the panel as it began a full week of hearings on the president's budget.

Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said that neither Reagan's defense budget nor the president's vow not to touch Social Security benefits was sacred.

However, even with further cuts in defense spending and even if Congress goes along with a freeze on Social Security cost-of-living benefits, "we still have to find a big chunk of domestic spending," said

Domenici.

"There's going to be problems in many places. The politics of this are going to be difficult," Stockman told reporters after he met Monday with House and Senate budget leaders.

Asked whether the administration would be willing to reduce its Pentagon spending request, Stockman said the increase in the budget is "what we think is needed. It's too early to say what we're going to give on."

Reagan's budget, which would abolish, freeze or slash scores of familiar federal programs, found few outright champions on Capitol Hill, even among Reagan's usual allies.

House Republican Leader Bob Michel described the plan as a "starting point," and said, "I do not endorse every recommendation."

Democrats, who earlier this year had kept a low-profile on budget matters, came out swinging.

"A dream come true" was uttered more than once by speakers Sunday afternoon at the ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new Hereford YMCA facility, located at 500 E. 15th St.

Mayor Wes Fisher joined YMCA President Charles Hoover and past presidents Rick Brown and Sid Shaw in the dedication ceremony, and the chamber's Hereford Hustlers con-

More than 800 persons registered for prizes during the 2-5 p.m. open house, but Weldon Knabe, executive director, estimated that 1,500 or more visited the new "Y" facility Sunday.

"It's a dream come true for all the people who worked on this project," said Mayor Fisher. "On behalf of the City of Hereford, I commend all those who helped make this fine facility possible. I am glad the city had a part, in providing the site, for such a community asset."

Reagan mentions 'revival' in report

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a "told-you-so" message on the economy, President Reagan is reminding Congress about the two-year-old recovery and promises an even better performance if lawmakers and the Federal Reserve Board would only help.

Reagan, in his annual Economic Report of the President sent to Capitol Hill today, takes full credit for "the strongest recovery in 30 years," mentioning the severe recession that preceded it only long enough to blame the Federal Reserve for making things worse than they needed to be.

Other references to the Federal Reserve provide two of the very few new policy suggestions in Reagan's brief message and in the report's 200 pages of economic analysis by his depleted Council of Economic Advisers.

The president himself says the administration expects "to cooperate closely with the Federal Reserve in defining and carrying out a prudent and predictable monetary policy" — a provocative statement in light of other officials' suggestions that the board's independence be curtailed.

Snow falls from El Paso, across Permian Basin

By The Associated Press
Light snow fell in the El Paso area and light rain, mixed with sleet and snow, fell across an area ranging from the Permian Basin to near Wichita Falls early today.

No major storms were reported in the state, the National Weather Service said.

Widespread patches of drizzle and freezing drizzle were reported across a wide area of North Texas during the early morning hours. Snow was expected during the afternoon and tonight across portions of North Texas.

Fog was widespread across the state from the Panhandle to the Lower Rio Grande Valley early today. Visibilities were limited to less than a mile in most areas.

A travelers advisory was in effect during the early morning hours for northern portions of North Texas, a travelers advisory for snow-packed roads was in effect for the mountains of West Texas and a travelers advisory because of dense fog was in effect for West Texas east of the mountains.

Hwy. 385 work set, Moreman to 16th St.

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The City of Hereford Monday approved the widening of Hwy. 385 from Moreman north past 16th Street and, at the same time, annexed 10.3 acres located on the north and west of 15th Street and Hwy. 385.

The annexed land is the site of a new shopping center announced by Smith Food & Drug Co., headquartered in Salt Lake City, Utah. With Hwy. 385 being widened, curb and gutter and storm sewers will also be installed.

The eventful session also saw the commissioners study the 1985-86 budget, which includes plans for a new fire station. The present building, which dates back to 1926, will be razed and a new $270,000 building will be erected at the same site.

In other business Monday night, commissioners set closed sessions this week with two city manager applicants, put off an appointment to the Planning & Zoning Commission to the next meeting, and held a public hearing on revenue sharing funds.

City Mgr. Dudley Bayne said the city would need $610,879 for the storm sewer project on Hwy. 385. The Texas Highway Department will be responsible for the paving work, while property owners will be assessed approximately $51,468 for the curb and gutter. The city will use revenue sharing funds for the storm sewers. Utility companies will be liable for moving utility lines.

Bayne said the state hopes to get the highway work in with its July bid letting, and the project could get underway in August or September. The city manager said the curb and gutter work and the new storm sewers should alleviate some drainage problems in the area.

City annexes land, makes plans for new fire station

Commissioners will start looking at floor plans for the new fire station and hire an architect in the near future. The new building will be one and one-half larger than the present building. More space and facilities for washing trucks will be among the prime benefits. The city is considering alternative arrangements for operating the department while construction is completed. Bayne estimated the work could get started this summer. The old building was once a feed store, was used temporarily as a district courtroom while the courthouse was being remodeled, and formerly was the site for Gebo's.

The new budget is estimated to total $3,946,000—an increase of about $500,000 over last year. Bayne said the budget will not call for any tax increases. The city will have another work session on the budget, and a public hearing will be held at the first meeting in March.

The commissioners considered a replacement on the Planning & Zoning Commission for Armon Lauderback who recently resigned. They decided to contact prospects and announce the appointment at the next meeting.

The city has had 14 applicants for the city manager's position. Bayne will be retiring in June and commissioners hope to appoint a new man before that time. Two applicants will be interviewed this week, and commissioners could select one of those.

No one was present for the public hearing on revenue sharing funds. The city had funds of $446,973 available, and commissioners approved using the funds on the storm sewer project. The city will need $163,905 from general funds to complete the project.

All members of the commission were present: Mayor Wes Fisher, Bud Eades, Joe Reinauer Jr., Emory Brownlow and Ed Coplen. Also attending the session were Marie Griffin, Tom Simons and O.G. Nieman.

Combest on three ag committees

U.S. Congressman Larry Combest has been named to three agriculture related subcommittees, following his recent appointment to the House Agriculture Committee.

The Lubbock Republican was named to the Subcommittee on Cotton, Rice and Sugar; the Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts; and the Subcommittee on Department Operations, Research and Foreign Agriculture.

"These appointments enable me to be very involved in all areas of farm legislation and farm negotiations," Combest said. "I am looking forward to speaking out for the agricultural interests and for the farmers of West Texas, because I believe it is critical that the 19th District have a strong voice in Washington during the drafting of the 1985 Farm Bill."

Pecan trees still available

Orders for pecan trees are still being accepted at the local office of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The trees cost $9 each and are ordered from Las Cruces, N.M. Orders close Feb. 12 with the trees expected to arrive four to eight days later. The telephone number at the SCS office is 364-0533.

Drunks cause problems for police

Hereford police made six arrests for driving while intoxicated and five for public intoxication over the weekend.

Investigated were the thefts of tools from a pickup parked in St. Anthony's parking lot, and a Honda three wheeler worth $500 missing from the home of Richard Rickman.

Police also looked into complaints of family problems, criminal mischief and the loss of a purse containing $377 in cash.

They also took a woman to the hospital who was reportedly drunk and then swallowed a handful of tranquilizers.

Volunteer firemen make 3 calls

Hereford volunteer firemen saved a doghouse from burning early Saturday morning at 141 Beach Street. Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain said only the blankets were lost in the blaze, started by hot bricks.

Sunday, firemen washed down a gas spill at a local truck stop after a customer pulled away with the gas hose still in his tank.

A pan on fire caused a smoke scare Monday at Lynette Apartments. Spain said there was no damage to the apartment.

Amended water bill may pass

AUSTIN (AP) — Passage of a proposed water bill is in sight as lawmakers filled the loopholes during a four-hour session in which $200 million was added to please coastal areas.

The House Natural Resources Committee on Monday reviewed about 40 amendments and a vote to send the bill and constitutional amendment to the House is expected on Tuesday.

"It pretty well gives something to everybody in the different areas of the state," bill sponsor Tom Craddick, R-Midland and committee chairman, said.

The committee raised the water package's price tag to $800 million worth of bonds, $200 million more than the original proposal put together by the state leaders. The additional money would be earmarked for flood control projects, especially in coastal regions.

"It will help considerably in those areas," said Craddick, adding that the money could help the package win voter approval in coastal regions where water supply isn't a problem, but flooding is.

The water package was crafted by Gov. Mark White, Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. Lewis was on hand for part of Monday's session and participated in some quiet huddles with committee members.

In previous years, voters in water-rich areas of the state have rejected plans they fear would send their water to West Texas.

The constitutional amendment portion of the package would be on the November ballot if approved by the Legislature.

Eight die in commuter plane crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A commuter aircraft with nine people on board crashed and burst into flames while making an instrument approach in bad weather, leaving eight people dead and one missing, authorities say.

The twin-engine Beechcraft Queen Air went down at 8:20 p.m. (12:20 a.m. EST) Monday about one mile east of Soldatna International Airport, according to Paul Steucke, Federal Aviation Administration public affairs officer for Alaska.

The plane carried seven passengers and two crew members, according to James Michelangelo, Alaska director of the National Transportation Safety Board. The bodies of eight people were found and another was missing and presumed to be inside the wreckage, he said.

Weather conditions near the airport were described as poor with freezing rain.

The plane was owned and operated by North Pacific Airlines of Anchorage.

It was en route from Anchorage to Soldatna on a flight that normally takes 30 minutes, according to Steucke.

Senators want spending cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposed budget would leave too big a deficit by not cutting enough from the Defense Department's shopping list, according to Texas' two senators.

"I think the president's budget is tough and somewhat of a bitter pill," said freshman Republican Phil Gramm after the document arrived on Capitol Hill Monday. "But the problem we face in the deficit, which imperils recovery, which put seven million people to work and brought inflation to a standstill, is still a problem."

"The president's deficit for next year is $180 billion, and that's too much," said Democrat Lloyd Bentsen. "Democrats and Republicans in the Congress must work together in a bi-partisan spirit to make deeper cuts."

"As one who has been a strong supporter of defense, I believe at this time the Pentagon and (Defense Secretary Caspar) Weinberger must accept a stretchout of the defense buildup," he said.

Bentsen said the Department of Defense would have to accept cuts, because "national security must include a sound economy."

Gov. Mark White was reserving comment Monday until he could look more closely at the budget, said a press aide. Analysts in his Office of State-Federal Relations here gave a quick appraisal to the

Guerrillas protest Papal visit

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Guerrilla saboteurs blacked out Lima's airport shortly before Pope John Paul II's plane landed, and then cut power to the sprawling capital of 5 million, police and airport control tower officials said.

Moments later, a huge hammer and sickle — the symbol of the Maoist Shining Path Movement — was set ablaze on a mountainside north of Lima.

The show of sabotage appeared to be a dramatic rejection of the pope's call for an end to violence in Peru.

In the fourth and final day of his visit to Peru, the pope was going today to the shantytown of Villa El Salvador and the Amazon city of Iquitos. He then travels to Trinidad-Tobago, the last stop on his 12-day, four-nation journey.

Police tightened security after the Monday evening incidents which started, according to police and airport control tower officials, after two explosions occurred northeast and east of the city as the pontiff's twin-engine jet returned from northern Peru.

The officials said the runway lights went out at 8:45 p.m., but the pontiff's plane landed safely in the darkened military section of Lima airport. They said power at the airport was restored almost immediately by a back-up generating system.

Shining Path guerrillas have caused blackouts in the past by blowing up utility poles.

Ribbon-Cutting Ceremony For YMCA

Hereford YMCA directors and Hereford Hustlers stand behind the ribbon, joined by a throng of well-wishers, as the new "Y" facility was formally opened here Sunday afternoon. The public was invited to tour the facility during "open-house" festivities. Mayor Wes Fisher called the 26,000-square-foot facility "a real asset to the community." More than 1,500 persons toured the YMCA Sunday afternoon.

Military spending cut in Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Defense in its proposed Fiscal Year 1986 budget asked for $290 million for new or improved facilities in Texas, about $5 million less than the government spent in the state on military construction in fiscal 1985.

Texas would fall to third behind California and Georgia if Congress approved the budget, sent to Congress on Monday. In fiscal 1985, Texas was second to California.

The proposed budget showed an increase in construction at facilities for active forces of $2 million, but a decrease of $6 million for facilities for the national guard and reserves.

Army spending would increase but the Air Force and Navy had less proposed construction in Texas under the fiscal 1986 spending plan.

There had been rumors that the military was considering phasing out Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock, but they appeared unfounded since DOD proposed spending $3.2 million on construction at Reese in fiscal 1986.

The decrease in construction in Texas was not considered significant by congressional aides, who said it is hard to compare construction budgets year-to-year, because figures are skewed by large, one-time construction budgets for some new facilities.

The biggest decrease in military construction spending in Texas during the next fiscal year would be at Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene. DOD budgeted $54 million for construction at Dyess in fiscal 1985 because of a new B-1 bomber facility. In fiscal 1986, the department wanted to spend $17 million more on training facilities.

There was a proposed $42 million appropriation for construction at Kelly Air Force Base, which had no construction money in the fiscal 1985 budget. The Air Force Reserve asked for another $20 million for construction at Kelly.

The Army proposed to spend a total of $113 million at five facilities in fiscal 1986 after spending $103 million the previous year.

The Navy had no plans for construction at two of its three air stations in Texas, Chase Field and Kingsville.

54 miles of paving set in Deaf Smith

Missouri Petroleum Products Company of St. Louis, Missouri, has been awarded the contract to seal coat 117 miles of Texas Panhandle highways, including 54 miles of Deaf Smith County Farm to Market Roads.

Missouri Petroleum's bid of $1,244,700 was the lowest of eight bids received on the contract by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

FM 809 will be seal coated on U.S. Highway 60 in Dawn north 19 miles to the Oldham County line. FM 1058 will be seal coated from Hereford west 35 miles to the New Mexico state line.

"Texas' recent growth has put pressure on the State's roadway system" according to A.L. McKee, Amarillo District Engineer of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT).

In the state agency's efforts to upgrade the deteriorating network, McKee said the DHT has mobilized its staff to design and construct improved highway facilities as rapidly as possible.

McKee said forty projects, including this seal coat work, were let for bids to construction last month. The seal coat work in the Panhandle is expected to begin late this spring and conclude by the end of the summer.

Statewide, the majority of the projects involve some form of maintenance and rehabilitation, rather than new construction. Included are such things as resurfacing, resealing, rehabilitation of existing bridges and upgrading of sign systems.

"A seal coat rehabilitates and protects the riding surface of a highway and extends the useful life of a roadway," McKee said.

In the Panhandle, a total of 236 miles of highways will be seal coated at a cost of $2,525,879. While the statewide projects are estimated to total over $58 million in construction costs, two-thirds of the jobs are in the less-than-one-million dollar range.

YMCA

fund drive a success, noting it took just more than a year to reach the $925,000 goal. The building drive kicked off July 10, 1983 and was declared over the top Aug. 21, 1984.

Brown gave a brief history of the YMCA, and Shaw read a list of the major contributors to the building fund. Aside from being past presidents, both Brown and Shaw served as building committee chairmen during the drive to build a facility.

Rev. Bob Huffaker pronounced the invocation at the dedication ceremony, and Terry Bromlow, C of C Hustler chairman, led the ribbon-cutting ceremony. Several hundred people were present for the formal ceremony at 1:15 p.m. Sunday.

Construction on the 26,000-square-foot facility started last spring. Members have been using the facility several weeks. The planning and designing of the "Y" building had been going on for more than two years. Hereford has had a YMCA program since 1976, but it had been operated out of temporary facilities.

Hoover noted the local "Y" was serving about 3,000 people, "but we hope that number will be 6,000 by the end of the year."

Key Club members were on hand Sunday to give tours and help explain each area of the building. YMCA directors also helped with the open house and signed up new members. Keith Ann Gearn and Cindy Baker were co-chairmen for the open-house event.

The new facility includes a gym, racquetball courts, men and women's steam rooms, saunas and whirlpools. An exercise area includes state-of-the-art hydraulic fitness equipment. The YMCA programs include activities for all ages. Offices for Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the United Way are also housed in the building.

Other officers of the YMCA this year, in addition to Charles Hoover, president, are: Temple Abney, Roger Albracht and Darwin Manning, vice presidents; Roger Eades, treasurer; Keith Ann Gearn, secretary, and Rick Brown, past president. There are 21 directors on the YMCA board.

President

member of the council, told reporters the idea of pushing for White House representation on the board — as suggested by new presidential Chief of Staff Donald Regan, among others — has not been considered at high levels of the administration.

Pressed for elaboration, Niskanen said only, "It suggests that we may have something else in mind."

One thing, apparently, is a recommendation in the council's section of the report that the Federal Reserve calculate this year's expansion of the nation's money supply from a different year-end 1984 base than it has used. The change would have the effect of expanding the board's money growth targets this year by $5 billion.

That adjustment, arcane to most Americans, seems intended to forestall Federal Reserve monetary restraint that some officials fear could cramp the recovery.

Reagan mentions the revival often in his report, crediting it to his longstanding policies of keeping taxes down and scaling back the federal government whenever possible.

What the economy needs now, he said, is more of the same medicine, the president said.

Nutrition advice should be judged

COLLEGE STATION — Advice on nutrition has become almost as common as advice to the lovelorn in many popular magazines.

"Most people wouldn't think of experimenting with their health, yet that's just what happens when they indiscriminately follow the advice given in many of these stories," says nutritionist Dr. Dymple Cooksey.

A recent study by the American Council on Science and Health (ACSH) indicates the accuracy of information in magazine nutrition stories ranges from 20 to 95 percent.

"Unfortunately, the ACSH study also shows that some magazines with the most nutrition coverage are often the least reliable," adds Cooksey, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

So readers need to make their own judgments about the accuracy and usefulness of this nutrition advice, she says.

First consider whether the article makes inaccurate claims that certain foods or nutrients have special features.

"Particular foods or nutrients may have special features, but eating any one food in excess will lead only to an imbalanced diet," explains the specialist.

"A variety of foods from the four basic food groups of protein foods, breads and cereals, dairy products and fruits and vegetables is the only known way to achieve a healthful diet," she maintains.

Next, consider the credentials of the person who writes or acts as the source of the article, Cooksey advises.

Unless the author is a Registered Dietician or "R.D." holds an academic degree in nutrition or is a medical doctor with special training in nutrition, he or she is unlikely to have a thorough knowledge of the subject.

In many cases, she says, the nutrition advice from unqualified authors—especially celebrities—is simply personal testimony that may have no basis in fact.

"Also determine whether any weight-loss diet featured in an article is safe, sensible and effective," cautions the specialist. "A weight loss diet should be designed for gradual weight reduction, include a balanced diet and exercise, and not promote the purchase of pills, products or special diet foods."

Finally, ask yourself if the information seems to be scientifically sound and factual, suggests the nutritionist.

Even without a scientific background themselves, readers can note whether the author is associated with respected institutions or programs, Cooksey says. They can also be on guard for stories based on a single research study and sensationalized for public consumption.

Once upon a time a calling card was a social nicety instead of a means to charge phone conversations.

Diabetes seminar set

A four week seminar on diabetes is scheduled for each Thursday in February beginning Feb. 7 at 7 p.m. The course is sponsored by High Plains Baptist Hospital, the American Diabetes Association and Amarillo College, and will be held in the sixth floor classroom at Baptist Hospital.

"Living With Diabetes" is a course for persons with diabetes, their family members and health professionals. The program is intended to provide information on the latest developments in diabetes management. Cost for the four session program is $25.00 (family members may attend with diabetic at no additional charge).

On Feb. 7, Dr. Tom Nichols, M.D., will discuss current and changing concepts in the medical management of diabetes. On Feb. 14, discussions will include equipment and procedures in blood testing, urine testing and foot care, as well as insulin and oral drugs.

On Feb. 21, registered dietitians will discuss meal planning for home and restaurant, as well as exercise.

On Feb. 28, Dr. Leonard Dodson, M.D., will discuss insulin reactions, ketoacidosis and vessel diseases.

For further information, contact the High Plains Baptist Hospital Department of Health Education at (806) 358-5699.

Planning A Business Expansion?

In the 1800's, if a person wanted to open a large retail store, he might need five or six thousand dollars for merchandise. If he was contemplating from three to eight new stores, he could figure on needing fifty thousand dollars.

While the amount of capital may be a little different today, the overall need for money is still there. And that's where we can help.

We're the bank with the pioneer spirit. We understand what it takes to get that business off the ground, and how to expand your existing one. We invite you to come in and let us get to know you - and your business. That way, we understand how to serve you better.

It's this kind of dedication to you and your business that makes us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

All provisions said covered

Heisman winner has no trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie, armed with one of the most lucrative contracts in sports history, doesn't have to worry about the solvency of the United States Football League.

Calling the Boston College All-American's $7-million contract with the New Jersey Generals "the most difficult one I've ever done," sports agent Bob Woolf said Monday night that Flutie is protected against all contingencies.

The five-year contract covers everything from injuries to a possible merger between the USFL and the National Football League, Woolf said. "We're in pretty good shape. Every provision has been covered as to every eventuality."

The document was 50 pages long and attorneys for the two sides took 10 days to hammer out the final details.

"Because of the newness of the league and all the contingencies that could happen, I had to make sure that Doug was protected," the Boston-based attorney explained. Though he refused to divulge terms of the contract, Woolf admitted speculation about its length and value was "quite accurate."

Woolf, who has negotiated more than 2,000 sports contracts, said the agreement he reached with Generals' owner Donald Trump was "a contract that is deserving of a Doug Flutie. I've always said that it's something that should be in the vicinity of a Herschel Walker or a Steve Young and that's what it is."

Young, who preceded Flutie as the All-American quarterback, for Brigham Young in 1983, signed last year a contract said to be worth $40 million over 43 years with the Los Angeles Express. Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy-winning running back from Georgia, signed in 1983 a four-year contract with the Generals for an estimated $6 million.

With Walker, Mike Rozier and Flutie, who could not be reached Monday night for comment, the USFL now has the last three Heisman winners under contract. Rozier, an All-American at Nebraska, played for the now-defunct Pittsburgh Maulers last season. He is now with the Jacksonville Bulls.

Woolf, whose clients include some of the nation's top professional athletes, said Flutie's contract would be the most significant with which he had ever been involved. "It could be very historic. It could be like Joe Namath coming to the American Football League."

Namath's signing by the New York Jets 20 years ago was credited with giving the AFL the credibility that led to an eventual merger with the National Football League.

Flutie, who at 5-foot-9½ is thought by some to be too short to be effective in pro football, was flying today to the club's training camp in Orlando, Fla.

Flutie has said he does not expect to start as quarterback just because of his salary. And Generals Coach Walt Michaels said he would not give Flutie any special treatment.

"I'll do what is fair," Michaels said at the Generals' camp. "I want every player to be the same."

Pistons end Bucks' win streak in OT

By The Associated Press

To win in overtime, a team must first get there, said Detroit center Bill Laimbeer in explaining how a third-period resurgence helped the Pistons snap Milwaukee's 11-game National Basketball Association winning streak.

"We weren't hitting the boards in the first half and that was hurting us on offense," said Laimbeer. "But we started getting more aggressive in the third quarter and that turned the game around for us."

The 113-111 overtime defeat of the Bucks on Monday night brought the Pistons within three games of Milwaukee in the Central Division, which made the game doubly important, according to Laimbeer.

"We could have gone five games down. Instead, it was a two-game swing for us," said Laimbeer, who scored 32 points and grabbed 17 rebounds.

In other NBA action, it was Cleveland 121, Washington 112; Philadelphia 106, Atlanta 92; San Antonio 114, Golden State 109 in overtime; and the Los Angeles Clippers 115, Indiana 96.

Milwaukee led 54-50 at halftime, but Detroit's renewed strength on the boards brought the Pistons an 87-78 advantage early in the final quarter.

Milwaukee did some regrouping of its own, scoring the next 12 points to take a three-point lead. It was close the rest of the way, with Terry Cummings' basket with five seconds remaining drawing the Bucks into a 103-103 tie and forcing the extra period.

Laimbeer scored the first four points in overtime and, after Milwaukee tied it at 111-111, Laimbeer hit the winning basket with 42 seconds to play.

John Long had 22 points and Terry Tyler 17 for the Pistons. Paul Pressey had 27, Cummings 26 and Sidney Moncrief 26 for Milwaukee.

Cavs 121, Bullets 112
John Bagley scored 35 points, his career high, as Cleveland took charge in the first half against the

The first father and son duo to play for the same team in the National Football League were the Waltons. Frank Walton played guard for the Washington Redskins in 1934 and 1935. His son, Joe, was a tight end for the Skins from 1957 to 1960.

Movement of teams

Leagues may control

By GENE GRABOWSKI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Professional sports commissioners say they want a law, but no regulatory meddling from Congress, to help them inhibit the movement of big league teams from city to city.

"It is the leagues themselves, and not the federal government or a regulatory board, that are best suited to weigh the variety of competing considerations and balance the numerous relevant factors involved in a proposed relocation," National Basketball Association Commissioner David Stern told a Senate panel Monday.

"What is needed is simply legislation that will enable professional sports to make these judgments," Stern said.

The commissioners, testifying before the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, endorsed major provisions of a bill that would allow leagues to control team location. But they flatly rejected another measure that would give that power to a federal board.

Controversy over the moves of sports teams has arisen because some owners have relocated their teams despite league objections, and others are threatening to follow suit.

Stern, and the commissioners of the National Football League, the United States Football League, the Major Indoor Soccer League and a representative of major league baseball, testified before the committee on two bills that would prevent professional sports teams from leaving a city unless they are losing money or playing in an inadequate arena.

All of the professional sports spokesmen said they favored the less restrictive bill sponsored by Missouri Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton, a Democrat, and John Danforth, a Republican, that would allow leagues final say in restricting team movement.

The other measure, sponsored by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and several House members, contains the same basic provisions as the Eagleton-Danforth proposal — but it would create a federal arbitration board to make final decisions on franchise movement.

Gorton's bill also requires the NFL to expand by two teams in 1988, and that one of those teams be located in Baltimore. By 1990, the bill says, the league must expand by two teams again — and one must be located in Oakland, Calif.

"We want to pick our own cities when we expand; we want to pick our owners," National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "I don't know of any business where the government can tell a company to expand, by how much, and in what years."

Harry Usher, the new USFL commissioner, attacked "the anti-expansionist policies of the National Football League" which, he said was a root cause of franchise instability.

"The NFL teams, because of the league's policy against expansion are able to extract large concessions from taxpayers either in cities that want their teams to stay or from cities that are attempting to lure such teams," Usher said.

He added that there is a need for pro football teams "in many cities that do not feel part of the NFL power circle."

Pressure for a federal law limiting team relocation started building three years ago when the Los Angeles Raiders of the NFL moved from Oakland, Calif. When the NFL lost its three-year legal battle to block that move, other football and basketball teams began citing the case as a precedent supporting their relocation.

Last year, the NFL's Baltimore Colts moved to Indianapolis, and the NBA's San Diego Clippers moved to Los Angeles. This year, the NBA's Kansas City Kings have announced their intention to move to Sacramento, Calif., and the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL are considering a move to another city.

Junior High Notes

Road games disastrous

The Stanton Junior High girls teams closed out their road seasons Monday night against Clovis Yucca, losing three times.

The final game of the season for the seventh-, eighth- and ninth-grade teams is scheduled for next Monday against Gattis here.

The ninth-graders saw their season record drop to 8-7 at Yucca. The Clovis team won that game 41-32. Cindy Tice scored 13 points for Stanton, and Crystal Ball added 11.

In the eighth-grade contest, Carmen Brockman pumped in 12 points for Stanton, but the Dogies fell, 30-19. Oralia Gamez scored four Stanton.

Linda Cera and Alicia Redmon each scored four points for Stanton's seventh-grade team. However, Yucca defeated Stanton, 23-14.

Ninth-grade Mavs lose

La Plata's ninth-grade boys lost their first game of the season Monday night in Plainview, to that city's Blue team.

The Mavs now sport a record of 14-1, dropping a 51-49 decision. La Plata's Derrell Page burned the cords for 20 points, and Kevin Hansen scored nine. Rodney Mc-Cracken tallied eight in a losing effort.

The eighth-grade turned the tables, beating Plainview Blue 31-29. In that game, Roger McCracken scored nine for La Plata.

No individual scoring summaries were available from the seventh-grade game, but Plainview Blue won by the score of 32-27.

La Plata has games scheduled with Plainview Red next Monday.

LP girls win two

The girls at La Plata Junior High won two of three basketball games from Plainview Blue Monday night, dropping only the ninth-grade affair.

In that ninth-grade contest, Kim Edelman scored a team-high 13 points for La Plata, but the Mavs lost 39-31. Amy Coneway was commended for her defensive effort by La Plata coaches.

La Plata beat Plainview Blue in the eighth-grade game, 33-29, behind the 14-point performance of Shea McGinty. Jamie Victor led the team in assists.

The Mavericks also won the seventh-grade encounter, beating Plainview Blue 29-23. Krystal Sims scored eight points for La Plata, including going four of four from the free-throw line. Stacy White added seven for La Plata.

Title bout set April 15

Hagler, Hearns already talking

By WALTER HENRY
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The war of words has begun between undisputed world middleweight champion Marvin Hagler and challenger Thomas Hearns.

Moments after promoter Bob Arum said their April 15 title fight "needed no hype or name-calling," the two boxers engaged in a verbal sparring match here Monday.

Hagler was introduced, stepped calmly to the podium, then grabbed the microphone wildly and went into a loud promotional pitch for the Las Vegas, Nev., bout, telling the small audience to "come there and watch me knock out Tommy Hearns within three rounds. That's the one thing I want to say — Tommy Hearns is going out."

Hearns spoke softly and said "Marvin confuses me at times. He spoke in San Diego this morning and you could hardly hear him. We see Thomas and he sounds like Mr. T."

"He's a very confused man. He doesn't know if he wants to be himself or be a child. But I don't agree with his knockout statement. To knock me out is impossible and if we never see him it's impossible."

Turning to Hagler, Hearns said "you better stop dreaming and come back to reality. Come April 15th, you might want to find a nice, soft pillow to rest your bald head because I'm going to be working on it all night."

"You can't hit what you can't see," Hagler shot back from his seat on the floor. "I'm going to hit your head, too, Tommy. But I'm not going to hurt anything because there's nothing up there. I'm going to destroy you. Tommy Hearns is in for the fight of his life. He's never met a person like me."

"You dream too much," Hearns said. "I'm going to break you down with body shots and then whoop that bald head of yours."

Hagler then waved people who were watching the news conference from the hallway to "come in and see Tommy Hearns make a fool of himself."

Hearns, the World Boxing Council super-welterweight champion, puts his 40-1 record with 36 knockouts on the line against Hagler, who stands 60-2-2 with 50 KOs.

Both boxers are guaranteed at least $5 million for the scheduled 12-round bout at Caesar's Palace. It'll be Hagler's 17th title defense, three short of Carlos Monzon's record.

Sox DH announces retirement from playing

NEW YORK (AP)—Greg Luzinski will be calling the shots rather than hitting them.

One of baseball's most feared sluggers over the last 15 years, Luzinski said Monday that he was retiring and would become freshman baseball coach at a New Jersey high school.

"The realization was nobody wanted me," Luzinski said in an interview with USA Today.

Luzinski, who became a free agent last November after four seasons with the American League's Chicago White Sox, was selected only by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the free-agent draft.

"No team offered him a contract," said Jack Sands, Luzinski's agent. "Because of investments we have made, he will receive $200,000 a year for the rest of his life."

Luzinski, who lives in New Jersey, said he had been appointed freshman baseball coach of Holy Cross High School in Delran, N.J.

The 36-year-old Luzinski finished with a lifetime batting average of .276, hit 307 home runs and drove in 1,128 runs. Last season, he batted .238 with 13 homers and 88 RBI in the role of designated hitter for the White Sox.

And Away We Go

Hereford's Sammy Suarez (32) and Coronado's Alvin Morriel wave their arms as if pointing to a new stage act. However, the high school basketball players were battling for a loose ball during Friday night's District 3-5A basketball action in the HHS gym. Bobby Baker and Rodney Torres (12) also look ready to make a chase for the ball for Hereford. The Whitefaces are to be in action tonight in Lubbock when they play the league-leading Monterey Plainsmen in the MHS gym. Girls varsity begins at 6 p.m., as does the boys junior varsity. The boys varsity and girls junior varsity play at 7:45 p.m.

Tennis tourney may feature 63rd rerun

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The setting is new, as is the tournament. There are no defending champions in the $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships.

But when this inaugural two-week tennis gala winds down, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd are expected to meet for the 63rd time in their careers — the longest-running show in tennis history.

"I wish we would end up even, believe it or not," Navratilova said after beating Lloyd in the women's final at Wimbledon last year. "It's a shame someone has to be considered better between us."

That clash on the grass courts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club was their 60th meeting — and Navratilova's 13th straight victory over her archrival.

The native of Czechoslovakia who became an American citizen in 1981 defeated Lloyd for a 14th straight time in the title match of the U.S. Open in September, her sixth consecutive Grand Slam tournament crown. It was a crowning achievement in a year that saw Navratilova hand Lloyd her first-ever professional defeat on Florida clay.

But, two weeks ago in Key Biscayne, Fla., Lloyd defeated Navratilova for the first time since the 1982 Australian Open, and brought their head-to-head series even again at 31-31.

"I finally played the kind of match I wanted to against her," said Lloyd, who comes into this tournament riding a 17-match winning streak. "I played my game and just kept her in the backcourt."

Both Navratilova and Lloyd will make their LIPC debuts on the hardcourts of the Laver's International Tennis Center on Wednesday, Navratilova meeting Molly Van Nostrand and Lloyd playing Corinne Vanier of France.

Tonight, the men's No. 1 seed, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, will take on Larry Stefanki on the stadium court. Neither John McEnroe nor Jimmy Connors, ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the world, respectively, are playing here.

Ann Landers

Follow through with help

Dear Ann Landers: Six years ago my sister married a guy we all thought was terrific. He was great-looking, had a swell sense of humor and was the top salesman in a small chain of stores.

Last year they had twins. Joe seems to have flipped out when the babies were about 6 months old. One day he thought he was Jesus, the next day he was Muhammad Ali, two days later he was Prince Charles. This week he thinks he is head of General Motors.

My sister has decided to divorce him. I feel this is her business and nobody should butt in, but the whole family has turned against Joe and everyone is treating him like shit. I honestly think the man is sick. I tried to explain to the relatives that they wouldn't turn their backs on Joe if he got cancer. They say, "Sick or well, he is impossible to be around and we don't want to have anything to do with him."

I am in trouble with everybody because I refuse to turn my back on the guy. They say I am being disloyal to them. Am I? -- SUFFERING IN SEOUL (KOREA)

DEAR SUFFERING: No -- you are being sensible, kind and considerate. It should be obvious to your family that a man who thinks he is Jesus, Muhammad Ali, Prince Charles and the head of General Motors is mentally ill. I admire you for standing by him. Now, will you please see that he gets some professional help?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 20-year-old single mother and would like to say a few words to anyone who will listen: Please don't go ahead and have a baby because you think it will put an end to your loneliness and chase away the blues.

A couple of years ago I decided to get pregnant for that reason. I was sure a child would change my whole life. I had so much love to give I just knew it would make up for the fact that the baby wouldn't know its father.

I had sexual intercourse with a guy who was just looking for a good time. What a selfish, unfair thing that was! I brought a child into this world knowing that the father had no interest in marriage or helping me raise her.

I have discovered that motherhood is not a game you can play for a while. There is no finish to it. I feel trapped and guilty. I also feel that I have cheated myself out of some wonderful teenage years. There is no turning back the clock. I now have adult responsibilities and feel 50 years old even though I am barely 20.

I am writing this letter because I wish I had read one like it three years ago. Maybe I wouldn't have paid any attention to it, but I hope someone will pay attention to mine and profit from it. No name or city, please. Just sign me -- REGRETS IN OHIO

DEAR OHIO: Your letter is sure to produce a load of responses from single mothers who will disagree with you and say they are happy as larks and wouldn't have it any other way. More single mothers will agree with you, however, even if they don't write and say so. My sentiments are with them.

Ann Landers' new booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior -- where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. Feb. 8 — Gary Coleman (1968-), the actor who is the star of the popular "Different Strokes" TV sitcom, which began in 1978. He has also starred in several made-for-television movies.

Feb. 9 — Carole King (1942-), the singer and songwriter whose hit songs include "It's Too Late," "So Far Away" and "Tapestry."

Feb. 10 — Pat Benatar (1953-), the rock singer whose hit recordings include "Hit Me with Your Best Shot," "Treat Me Right" and "Love Is a Battlefield."

Feb. 11 — Thomas Alva Edison (1847-1931), the inventor of the first electric light bulb and over 1,000 other items. He made major contributions to the development of motion pictures, telephones and electric generating systems.

Feb. 12 — Bill Russell (1934-), the sports broadcaster and former Boston Celtics star who revolutionized basketball by stressing defense. He was chosen the NBA's MVP five times.

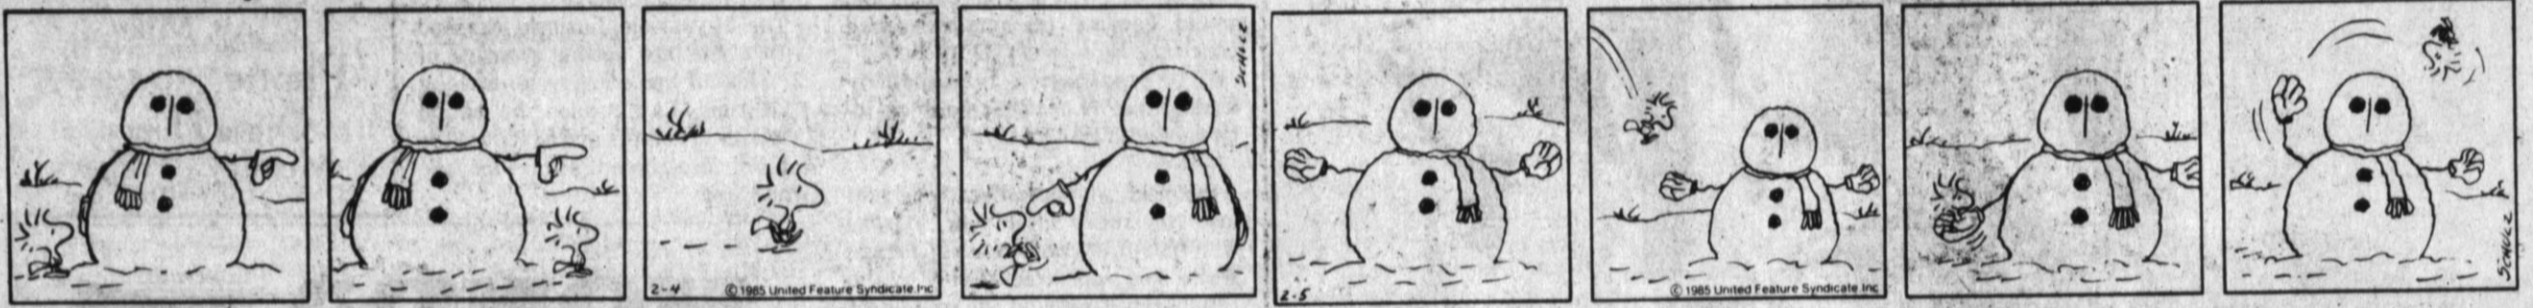

Feb. 13 — Grant Wood (1892-1942), the artist who is remembered for his depiction of Midwestern rural life of the 1930s. He is best known for his "American Gothic."

Feb. 14 — Jack Benny (1894-1974), the comedian whose radio program was broadcast regularly for 23 years. To his audiences he was an awful violinist, sour, miserly and vain -- for decades he claimed to be 39 years old.

Feb. 15 — Susan B. Anthony (1820-1906), the social reformer who was a leader in the temperance, anti-slavery and women's right's movements. She headed the National American Woman Suffrage Assn. from 1892 to 1900.

Fat stock show survives weather

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show attracted nearly 770,000 visitors and set a barrow hog record despite ice, snow and cold winds that plagued a third of its 12-day run.

A total of 669,700 people visited the show through Sunday, the last day. Last year's 737,400 remains the record, but that show also had the warmest and driest weather in show veterans' memories.

What officials believe is a show record was set — $4,500 paid by James Rainbolt of Tarrant Concrete Co. for the grand champion barrow (market) hog shown by Ronda McVey of Midland.

And despite the new state law limiting student absences for extracurricular activities that cut into the number of students participating in the 1985 show, money paid for animals at auction topped last year's total.

Rainbolt is one of the 130 sponsors who support the annual buying spree of the Downtown Stock Show Auction Syndicate, a group of 39 accountants in the Fort Worth area.

At their sixth show Saturday, syndicate members and sponsors bought 136 of the 208 steers auctioned, along with two hogs. They laid out $307,109 of the record auction ring total of about $436,600 paid for 208 steers, eight lambs and two hogs. Last year's tally came to about $385,000 for 140 steers, eight lambs and two hogs.

Show spokesman Delbert Bailey said the 1985 show's average of $2,002 paid per steer is a record. The syndicate's steer average came to $2,206 a head, said syndicate chairman Frank L. Neve, a Fort Worth accountant and part owner of Commercial Computer Services Inc.

Exhibitors of the champion lambs were Wayne Morgan of Bryan, champion Southdown; Teddy Mathis of Conroe, medium wool; Brad Harrison of Lipan, fine wool crossbred; and Ronda Yates of Boerne, fine wool.

Kenny Gibbs of Winters had the reserve grand champion hog. The reserve champion lambs were shown by Cheryl Elledge of Uvalde, fine wool and fine wool crossbred; Lacey Marquart of Comfort, medium wool; and Reid Stultz of Eden, Southdown.

This year's $50,000 winning bid on Awesome, the grand champion steer shown by Tommy Schroeder of Taylor, remains second to the $52,000 paid for the 1979 grand champ.

The $50,000 bid put Awesome at $40 a pound on the hoof, as cattlemen say. The grand champion barrow sold for almost $20 a pound. The champion lambs ranged between $10 and $25 a pound.

Market prices on steers stand around 66 cents a pound; on barrows, 50 cents a pound; and on lambs, 66 cents a pound.

Even the bids on reserve grand champion steers have been pumped up in the last seven years — from the $7,000 level to $19,000 this year.

The Downtown Syndicate had vowed more than five years ago to raise the average prices on the junior steers. At that time, many lower-placing steers were selling for 80 cents to $1 a pound in the auction.

What began as an idea among 15 downtown accountants has worked to raise the averages, said Don Weeks, one of the syndicate's founders from Fort Worth.

When Weeks learned that the $50,000 bid on Awesome was $2,000 below the record, he offered: "Dang, if we'd known that, we'd have chipped in $2,000 on it ourselves."

The syndicate, chamber fund and other bidders aim to reward the youths, but their buying also reinforces show participation.

This year, the state law limiting school absences to 10 per year per student resulted in fewer young exhibitors with steers, lambs, hogs, heifers and horses. Overall, junior exhibitors' preshow entries in various animal categories were down 13 percent to 40 percent.

Of those entered, however, 67 percent to 81 percent arrived for the contests — percentages that were not uncommon for years before the school attendance rule went into effect.

The school rule may prompt the show's board of directors to reconsider its entry rules and schedules. The board is scheduled to meet in April.

Whew! It's over! The 4-H Parent-Leader Concession Stand is all wound up for another year. Thanks to the hard work on our 4-H parent's part - our county 4-H program is financially in the black for another year. And thanks to the great support of the donors, and patrons at the concession stand, our 4-H'ers will have the opportunity to attend Round-Up, 4-H Congress, the State Trap and Skeet Shoot, Electric Camp, and several other valuable and educational activities. Yes, our concession was a huge success this year. You name it and we ran out of it! Frankly, I'm kind of happy we ran out of BBQ and Chili on Saturday afternoon. I think I could live my whole life and feel very satisfied if I never saw another bowl of chili or another Bar-B-Q Sandwich!

Seriously though, this county agent is very impressed with the kind of involvement and support our 4-H program has in this county. If it weren't for those valuable 4-H parents and precious 4-H leaders, our program wouldn't be the one it is today. And speaking of 4-H leaders, let me remind them of some very important leader trainings coming up this month.

Thursday, February 7, I will conduct a 4-H Clothing Leader Training at the Community Center. It will begin at 7 p.m. & conclude at 9 p.m. All 4-H moms are invited to attend if you even think you might be interested in 4-H clothing projects. We'll cover the 4-H Clothing Project for 1985, discuss the fashion show and clothing seminar, and work on some teaching methods for 4-H Youth.

Saturday, February 16 - Mr. John Zukowski from Tandy Leather Company will be on hand to teach parents and other interested adults about the art of tooling leather. The training will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m. and will be held in the game room of the Hereford Community Center. Adults will learn to work with 4-H'ers as well as leather and by the end of the training, will have completed their own personal leather key case.

See you at the leader trainings!

War-on-drugs bill re-enacted

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has voted to re-enact a 1981 law that was part of Texas' war-on-drugs campaign.

Senate sponsor Ray Farabee said the 4-year-old law to stem forged prescriptions for drugs such as Quaaludes and amphetamines had been "a very effective deterrent."

The law requires the use of special triplicate prescription blanks issued by the Department of Public Safety. One copy is kept by the doctor, one by the pharmacy and the other goes to the Department of Public Safety.

In the first year of the program, according to printed material, pharmacies showed a 48 percent decrease in prescriptions for drugs "with a valid medical excuse but a high potential for abuse-addiction." Prescriptions fell an additional 13 percent the second year.

The law would expire next Jan. 1.

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said one change in the bill re-enacting the law requires that a written prescription be delivered to the pharmacy within three days of a prescription being called in. Triplicate prescriptions would have to be filled in legibly.

Also, the DPS could keep names in its system for 12 months, rather than six months as in current law.

It was estimated that as a result of the 1981 law the state saved just over $1 million in DPS investigators, because fewer investigators could do more work.

Farabee's bill was sent to the House on voice vote Monday.

In another matter, Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, became an apparent victim of the state budget crunch as he failed in an effort to get the Senate to consider a bill that would remove a ban against spending state funds on Franklin Mountains State Park.

The 25,000-acre El Paso County park was created in 1979, and Santiesteban said $202,891 would be needed over two years. Chairman Grant Jones of the Senate Finance Committee questioned the expenditure, and the 22-7 vote was three short of the total needed to suspend the rules and debate the bill.

The money would open a few areas for public viewing, repair damages and provide security.

Santiesteban's bill would not require that money be spent but would authorize expenditures by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Senators approved, 29-0, a bill that would allow the 4th Court of Appeals to transact business at the county seat of any of the counties within the judicial district, except that all cases originating in Bexar County would be heard in the county.

In other action, the Senate approved on voice vote and sent to the House bills that would:

Extend the life of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, which was created in 1971. The bill would require that specialists in port navigation, fisheries and the environment be included on the 16-member council. Lobbyists would be prohibited from serving on the council, and the lieutenant governor and House Speaker would alternate in appointing the chairman and vice chairman. Revenue of $3,800 would be gained over two years by charging for council publications.

Reauthorize the offices of the Canadian, Pecos and Red River compact commissioners.

GOD WILL NEVER GO BACK ON A PROMISE

Now many of the Jews are enemies of the Gospel. They hate it. But this has been a benefit to you, for it has resulted in God's giving His gifts to you Gentiles. Yet the Jews are still beloved of God because of His promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

For God's gifts and His call can never be withdrawn; He will never go back on His promises.

Once you were rebels against God, but when the Jews refused His gifts God was merciful to you instead. And now the Jews are the rebels, but some day they, too, will share in God's mercy upon you. For God has given them all up to sin so that He could have mercy upon all alike.

Oh, what a wonderful God we have! How great are His wisdom and knowledge and riches! How impossible it is for us to understand His decisions and His methods! For who among us can know the mind of the Lord? Who knows enough to be His counselor and guide?

And who could ever offer to the Lord enough to induce Him to act? For everything comes from God alone. Everything lives by His power, and everything is for His glory. To Him be glory evermore.

RRC examiners favor Phillips

AUSTIN (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. has won a first-round victory in a 3½-year battle with independent producers in 11 Panhandle oil and gas fields.

The preliminary victory was made public Monday when the Railroad Commission said its hearing examiners had recommended that a commission rule defining oil and gas wells applies to the fields.

Austin lawyer Ivan Hafley, who represented the Panhandle Independent Producers Group, said the recommendation "gives Phillips everything it asked for and more" in the contested hearing.

Although the examiners' recommendation would deny Phillips' request to change field rules, a key finding favors Phillips.

Basically, Phillips asked the commission to prohibit producers from using separators at the well head to separate liquids from the gas stream and calling the liquids crude oil.

Phillips said that under present rules one gas well is allowed for each 640 acres. If a well is classified as an oil well, the rules say there may be one for every 10 acres. Phillips has mostly gas wells on 640-acre spacing.

The company claimed that some independent operators in the Panhandle are using separators to separate enough liquids to classify as an oil well and obtain 10-acre spacing. All of the wells produce some gas and some liquids.

Phillips was supported by Pioneer Corp. and two of its subsidiaries, Energas and Westar, all of which supply natural gas to Amarillo and the surrounding area.

Phillips said it was concerned because gas in the fields is being depleted rapidly under the present situation.

The independent operators contended that the rules should be interpreted so that separators can be used.

Their basic claim was that the liquids now in a gaseous form in the reservoir originally were in liquid form when the reservoir was first discovered and production and other factors have caused them to vaporize.

The hearing examiners' proposed order says "hydrocarbon liquids which are not in the liquid phase in the reservoir under current conditions, liquid in the well bore, and liquid at the surface shall not be counted as crude oil in calculating the gas-oil ratio for purposes of classifying a well as an oil well or gas well in the Panhandle fields."

The proposed order also says all oil wells in the Panhandle fields may be retested for classification purposes at any time and that future gas-oil ratio tests for classification purposes are subject to review by the commission's Oil and Gas Division.

Lobbyists fight smoking ban bill

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A state ban on smoking in most indoor public places would be an unfair burden on owners of restaurants, hotels and bowling alleys, lobbyists told a House committee.

The "Clean Indoor Air Act" authored by Rep. Erwin Barton, D-Pasadena, would allow smoking only in designated areas of public places. It would require separate smoking and non-smoking areas in workplaces.

Barton also asked the House Committee on Public Health to raise the legal age for buying cigarettes from 16 to 21.

Texas Restaurant Association lobbyist Richie Jackson told the committee Monday that small restaurants would have trouble setting aside the no-smoking areas required by the bill.

"Free enterprise incentives are the most effective means," he said, adding that many restaurants have set up smoke-free zones because it's good for business.

Herbert Wilson of the Texas Hotel and Motel Association also said the state should not force no-smoking areas on private businesses.

The committee sent the smoking-area bill to subcommittee and took no action on the cigarette purchase age. Several committee members said they would amend the bill to set 18 as the minimum age.

The American Cancer Society, Texas Medical Association, Texas Retailers Association and the Legislative Task Force on Cancer backed the Barton bill as effective measures.

There's mounting evidence that inhalation of tobacco by non-smokers increases the risk of lung cancer," said James Dannenbaum of Houston, chairman of the task force appointed by House Speaker Gib Lewis to look into cancer in Texas.

Frank Jackson of the Texas Medical Association said "anything that discourages people from smoking will save the state money."

Texas retailers back the public place smoking ban as a good way to protect merchandise. Consumers now wind up paying for goods damaged by smoke and ash, said Mickey Moore, Texas Retailers Association lobbyist. The law would be a relief for "merchants who are reluctant to offend customers" by asking them not to smoke, he said.

Texas Association of Business lobbyist Ronnie Volkening said the ban could be costly for employers who might have to hire engineers to help set up the "artificial segregation" of smokers and non-smokers.

Joe Ratcliff, vice president of the Texas Association of Tobacco and Candy Distributors, said government should not be involved in such efforts.

"In trying to regulate social policy there haven't been very many successes," he said, calling for a "courtesy campaign" to prevent smokers from bothering non-smokers.

It is pointless for legislators to pass laws mandating healthier lifestyles, Ratcliff added.

"You might as well tell the commissioner of health to tell us to fall out in the morning in our pajamas for exercises," he said. "You cannot pass a law and say 'Don't do this' and suddenly all the health problems disappear."

A ban on smoking in grocery stores would be "almost totally impossible," according to Texas Retail Grocers Association lobbyist Johnnie B. Rogers. He also testified that grocery checkers would waste time checking identification if the legal age for buying cigarettes is raised to 21.

J. Manley Head, representing the Texas Bowling Centers Association, said, "There's no way in the world we could put up non-smoking areas in a bowling house."

In unanimous votes, the committee sent to the House bills setting up a Texas Cancer Council and requiring reporting of cancer data to a state registry.

Students oppose tuition hikes

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas university students, insisting that a tuition increase would prevent some people from attending college, say the Legislature should look at the long-term effects of a tuition hike.

"The rush to raise tuition has not been a careful, deliberate study of Texas' policy. Rather, it has been treated as a revenue issue in a nearsighted attempt to balance the budget and avoid political difficulties," said John Tarbox, 25, Houston, a member of the Texas Student Lobby.

Tarbox and other members of the students' group on Monday said a proposed tuition hike for public universities could damage the state's future economy.

"The future prosperity of Texas is directly related to the education of its citizens. For Texas to emerge from an economy based primarily on oil and agriculture to a more broad-based economy bolstered by the strength of the high technology industries, education will be essential," Tarbox said.

The state is facing a $1 billion shortfall between the revenue it expects to take in during the 1986-87 budget years and the amount agencies currently spend. To help offset that difference and generate more money for universities, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby proposed raising undergraduate resident tuition from $4 per semester hour to $8 per hour in 1986 and to $12 per hour by 1987.

Tuition for other students also would be increased, and the hikes would raise about $120 million more for higher education, lawmakers say.

At present, Texas undergraduate tuition is the lowest in the country. But the students said tuition makes up only a small part of the total cost of a college education.

"The (total) cost of attending a four-year, public institution in Texas is almost identical to the national average," said Mitch Kreindler, 22, Dallas, a former student body president at the University of Texas.

The students also said it seems foolish for the Legislature to have passed a billion-dollar tax increase last summer to reform public schools, only to make it more difficult for high school graduates to go on to college.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Baldness

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 68 and am surely going totally bald. My hair has been coming out since I was 40. I had a badly needed hysterectomy at 29.

When my hair started to come out, I thought it was due to tension and possibly the use of hair coloring. I got a wiglet, then a full wig. Now I'm retired with no tension and no hair coloring, but my hair continues to come out. I don't dare appear without a wig.

Can you offer any suggestions? At least I have near-perfect teeth, but I worry about the day when I will have no hair and can't keep a wig on.

DEAR READER — By all means, see a dermatologist. You might have an underlying hormone imbalance that causes hair loss. Women do have hair loss. It can be quite extensive and is similar to male pattern baldness.

Some dermatologists claim to have gotten good results by using estrogen cream on the scalp. It will not restore the lost hair, but will stop the progressive thinning. Obviously, this treatment is not for men.

Using hair coloring will not cause hair loss. Some hair preparations, including peroxides, may damage the hair shaft, but a new hair will grow in to replace it in the regular cycle of hair regeneration.

I have discussed hair-regeneration cycles and hair loss in The Health Letter 12-6, Hair Care, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem similar to anorexia nervosa, called bulimia. I've had this problem for five years. Unlike most bulimics, who overeat and induce vomiting on a daily basis, I overeat and vomit only once a week, sometimes twice.

Am I a candidate for heart problems? Am I causing damage to my esophagus? Lately I have had a strange feeling at the top of my breastbone, as if my esophagus has an irregularity or a weak spot. This occurred after a weekend of three or four overeat-vomit sessions. Am I damaging my health in any way?

DEAR READER — Many bulimia victims do have a danger of poor nutrition and all that causes. These people, like the anorexia nervosa patient, often have a preoccupation with thinness. Starvation, regardless of how it is induced, is a health-wrecker.

You are unlikely to get heart disease. Staying thin usually protects against heart disease. Also, you are a woman, and I presume a young woman, which also means there is little chance of heart disease.

Yes, there is a danger of damaging your esophagus from forceful vomiting. Retching can lead to a tear in the esophagus, with a severe and sudden hemorrhage.

The esophagus is a muscular tube between your throat and your stomach. It contracts in a smooth rhythmic manner to propel food into your stomach. When you induce vomiting yourself, it disturbs the normal rhythm. After all, vomiting moves food in the opposite direction. This can lead to esophageal spasms, which are uncomfortable and cause pain.

You would be wise to seek professional counseling to understand why you have the gorge-vomit habit and to help you overcome it.

Pie-in-the-sky schemes will become respectable once a space bakery is established.

Polly's Pointers

Polly Fisher
Home remedies

DEAR POLLY — I'm looking for a safe way to prevent or get rid of fleas on my English sheep dog. I don't like the commercial flea collars because of their strong chemicals. With his long hair, it's a long, tedious job to go through his coat and pick them out by hand. — MRS. R.K.

DEAR MRS. R.K. — Many people say that brewer's yeast is very effective at controlling fleas on dogs. You might try adding a tablespoonful to his food once a day.

A bath of fresh peppermint is also reputed to be effective in freeing your pet of fleas. Boil four cups peppermint leaves in water for half an hour. Strain and add the liquid to two gallons of warm water, then rinse your dog thoroughly with this solution. A mint treatment once a week should be very helpful in controlling fleas.

Make an herb-stuffed pillow for your dog's bed to ward off new fleas. Recommended herbs include camomile, pennyroyal and rue. Cedar chips are also said to be effective in keeping fleas away. They'll also keep your dog's bed smelling fresh and fragrant! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — All future brides should be aware of a potential problem: When choosing a beaded bridal gown, make sure the beads are sewn on, not simply glued. Many dry cleaners will refuse to clean a gown made with glued-on beads because the glued beads will fall off in the dry-cleaning machine. You may not be able to get your gown cleaned until you've spent hours sewing hundreds of beads on your gown. I learned this the hard way! — DEBY

DEAR DEBY — As the wedding season approaches, your timely Pointer may save many brides headaches after the ceremony. Many thanks. Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book can order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 1216, Dept. 55, Cincinnati, OH 45201. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When packing for a recent trip to London, I was unable to find any kind of portable clothesline. My solution to the problem was two suction hangers (the kind used to stick stained glass decorations to glass), a 6-foot-long piece of heavy cord and small clip clothespins. When we arrived in London, I stuck the hangers on each side of the tile around the tub, tied the cord on and hung up my daily laundry. It worked very nicely and could be removed easily when we wanted to shower. — GERI

Driving course offered

Advance registration is now open for a one-day session of the National Safety Council's Defensive Driving Course, being offered Saturday, at Wayland Baptist University.

Sponsored by the WBU Office of Lifelong Learning, the course is scheduled for 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. in Room 109 of the Lifelong Learning Center at Fifth and Smythe.

Persons may pre-register for the course by calling the center at 296-5521, extension 332, or by stopping by the center during regular business hours. Persons may also register immediately prior to the beginning of class on Saturday if space is available.

The course is limited to 50 persons. Cost of the course is $20 per person and covers tuition and all materials. All persons completing the course will receive .8 continuing education units (CEU's) credit from Wayland.

To be taught by WBU criminal justice professor Leonard Valles, the course offers an additional incentive of a 10 percent discount on automobile insurance to qualified drivers who complete the course.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1985. There are 329 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Feb. 5, 1917, Mexico's constitution was adopted.

On this date:
In 1631, the founder of Rhode Island, Roger Williams, and his wife arrived in Boston from England.

In 1783, Sweden recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1881, the city of Phoenix, Ariz., was incorporated.

In 1917, Congress passed, over President Woodrow Wilson's veto, an immigration act severely curtailing the influx of Asians.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt created a storm of controversy with his proposal to appoint up to six additional Supreme Court Justices. Critics charged he was trying to "pack" the nation's highest court.

In 1958, Gamal Abdel Nasser was formally nominated to become the first president of the new United Arab Republic.

In 1962, French President Charles de Gaulle called for Algeria's independence.

In 1971, Apollo 14 astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell landed on the moon.

In 1973, funeral services were held at Arlington National Cemetery for Army Lt. Col. William B. Nolde, the last American soldier killed before the official cease-fire in Vietnam.
