Hereford man killed in farming accident

A farming accident 3½ miles west of Milo Center claimed the life of a Hereford man Friday evening after he apparently was caught between the bed of a truck and the frame.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine pronounced Jose Olegario Soto, 41, dead at 11:45 p.m. Friday. Soto lived at 127 Ave A.

Sheriff's Deputies, Department of Public Safety officials, and firefighters were dispatched to an apparent accident when they found Soto's body lodged between the bed of a dump truck and the frame of the vehicle. Turrentine said that Soto had apparently accidentally hit a lever activating the hydraulics on the bed, bringing the load down on him.

Turrentine said Soto had been planting wheat just prior to his death.

Services for Soto are pending with Rix Funeral Directors of Hereford.

The worst solitude is to have no real friendships.—Francis Bacon

Following the opening of school this year, we were drinking coffee with one teacher who remarked that kids are getting smarter each year.

He said a third-grader turned in an essay on the subject of useful animals. He wrote: "Chickens are the most useful animals because you can eat them both before and after they are born."

As usual, the first week of school is spent in trying to develop a routine for the students. One teacher was informing her class that anyone who needed to go to the restrooms should raise two fingers.

One puzzled youngster asked, "How's that gonna help?"

There is a sharp difference between journalism in America and that in the Soviet Union. In the USSR, all journalists are servants of the state and the Communist Party.

In Russia, a journalist would never report anything the Soviet government didn't want reported. In America, journalists delight in reporting things which are embarrassing to the U.S. government. In

Daniloff out of prison but remains Soviet hostage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says Nicholas Daniloff, out of a Soviet prison after 13 days, is still a hostage and warns that a drive for better U.S.-Soviet relations will remain off course until the American reporter heads for home.

"We are so relieved and happy that Mr. Daniloff is out of that 8-by-10-foot cell, which he was sharing with someone we think was an informant, and that he won't be subjected to four hours of interrogation every day," President Reagan said Friday after Daniloff was released to the custody of the U.S. Embassy.

He is "our hostage in Moscow,"

Reagan declared.

Daniloff, Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, held on suspicion of espionage, was freed to the custody of the U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union and allowed to return to his apartment. Under the arrangement, a Soviet physicist, Gennadiy Zakharov, held on spy charges in New York was freed to the custody of the Soviet ambassador.

But both men still face trial on the spying charges, and Daniloff must report daily to Soviet authorities and may not leave Moscow. "I'm not a free man, but I'm changing one hotel for a better hotel," he told reporters as he left Moscow's Lefortovo Prison.

As a result, the administration continued telling the Soviets that the case could disrupt the delicate attempts to improve relations on several fronts.

"Of course it damages the relationship, and of course it damages the ability to move forward on other things," Shultz said.

As discussions on arms control and preparations for a possible U.S.-Soviet summit meeting this year proceed, the Daniloff case will be pressed vigorously, Shultz said.

The next major opportunity to do that will be next Friday and Saturday, when Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is scheduled to visit Shultz and prepare for the summit.

Pleas to the Soviets to let Daniloff leave the country are also expected from the U.S. participants, including key administration figures, in a American-Soviet conference scheduled to open on Monday in Riga, the capital of Latvia.

After Daniloff's release from prison, U.S. organizers of the Chautauqua Conference on U.S.-Soviet Relations prepared to fly to the Soviet Union over the weekend, ending their threat to cancel the meeting.

Shultz insisted that the arrangement under which Daniloff and Zakharov were freed was not a trade and was taken solely to better Daniloff's conditions.

"These two people, Zakharov and Daniloff, are in no way comparable," he said. "And we are not going to trade them off against each other."

City holds special Saturday election

Hereford voters who live in the new Place 2 and Place 4 voting precincts were going to the polls Saturday to elect city commissioners. All voters were to cast ballots at the Community Center from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The unique September city election resulted from a suit that was filed to contest the city's voting system, alleging that it discriminated against minority voters. The suit was settled with the addition of designated areas for commission seats as well as at-large seats.

Incumbent Emory Browlow was challenged for the Place 2 seat by Rinaldo Garcia. R.W. "Bud" Eades was unopposed on the ballot, but he drew a last-minute write-in opponent Friday. J.R. Nunnally, 51, announced he would be a write-in candidate even though it was too late to file as a formal candidate.

City Atty. Earnest Langley said it was too late to file for a place on the ballot, but pointed out that voters can write in anyone they desire. Nunnally, a longtime city resident, said he decided to become a candidate because the present commissioner was not accessible to the voters.

Joe Paetzold producing alfalfa sprouts

Hereford farmer trying new crop without benefit of tractors, dirt

Alfalfa sprouts. Now that's diversification.

"We are farming. It's just a different form of farming," says Joe Paetzold. "It's just trying something different and new."

Without tractors or dirt, Paetzold harvests Hereford's newest crop—LifeSprouts—twice a week.

Each Monday and Thursday Paetzold scoops out about 400 pounds of curly alfalfa sprouts from a rotating drum. After threshing the hulls off in a bubbling bath of water, he spins out the excess wetness in a Maytag washer, oversees the packaging and ships them to market.

Inside the cool, damp sprout room at MW Carrot is the whole farm.

Seeds purchased in California are put in a quarter-sectioned drum which rotates to cause uniform sprouting. The first two days the seeds incubate with lights off, then the last two days lights are turned on. The temperature is kept at 68 to 72 degrees. From each pound of seed planted, 10 pounds of sprouts grow.

Harvest is on the fourth day when sprouts are raked and hosed from the drum into a short trough that routes them to a tub called the bubbler where, for five noisy minutes, the sprouts are threshed in a Jacuzzi bath to separate hulls from the sprouts. (Part of the sprouts are pulled from the drum and grown in plastic cups for consumers preferring the hulls.)

When the hulls have been skimmed from the top, Paetzold puts a load of sprouts into his Maytag washer for a few seconds to spin out excess water. He said washing machines are common in the business and many sprout growers use the Maytag because it is durable and can be modified by removing the piece on the drive shaft inside the tub.

After those two simple steps the sprouts are ready for packaging by the half dozen workers Paetzold has

Four arrests made Friday

The Hereford Police Department arrested two people Friday on pending warrants. Arrests were also made for minors in possession of alcohol, and driving with a suspended drivers license.

Police heard reports of burglary of a vending machine in the 400 block of Main, criminal mischief in the 700 block of South 385, criminal mischief in the 800 block of South 385, Burglary of a vehicle in the 100 block of Northwest Drive, criminal mischief in the 400 block of Sycamore, juvenile problems in the 100 block of South Centre, children sniffing paint in the 300 block of Lawton, and an attempted suicide in the 100 block of Hickory.

Police also issued 27 citations Friday.

Commission to meet Monday

Hereford City Commissioners will be holding a regular meeting Monday night at 7:30 in City Hall.

- Zoning change requests in the 600 block of West Third.
- A possible permit for roofing.
- Voter returns from Saturday's election.
- Transfer and assignment of a lease on the Russell Farm.
- Authorization to submit bid proposals for a new truck for the sanitation department.
- And a consideration for a new rate structure where out-of-town users of the city landfill would be charged a set fee at the gate.

School Board Meets Tuesday

The Hereford Schools board of trustees convene Tuesday at 6 p.m. for a regular monthly meeting in the administration building.

In addition to routine reports and business the agenda includes items about the school calendar, contracts on roofing, football insurance, district appraisal procedures, an insurance committee report, purchase of computers, English honors class policy, approval of shortened class periods, approval of private music tutors in the schools and an executive session concerning West Central personnel.

Another Load

Maytag washers are common in the sprout industry. Paetzold, like other sprout farmers, use the domestic machines to spin out excess water before packaging.

hired from the Satellite Center. "One of our objectives in the business is to be able to use them (Satellite clients)," Paetzold said. "They really like it, they enjoy the job."

Paetzold does most of the other work himself—unless helped by his family—and has visions of expansion. Another drum is on order and thoughts are moving toward transportation. Currently MW Carrot is his broker and Larry Malaman of that company is a stockholder in the sprout project.

"A lot of it's on faith that we are expanding now," Paetzold says. He has intentions of going fulltime with sprouts so he can exit conventional farming.

A lot of the new venture is marketing, though. He found out a lot about the market for sprouts through the Texas Department of Agriculture and picked up on the growing awareness of health food.

The product is sold to wholesalers who know where to distribute it, but Paetzold hasn't ruled out later going to the public.

"Take anything to the people enough and they'll start buying it. Look at the hula hoop," he said.

He guesses that probably fewer than 100 folks in Hereford eat alfalfa sprouts. (The sprouts on the grocery shelves, thanks to the American way of middle men, have been shipped to distributors, then trucked back to their hometown.)

"But Hereford's not our market, we can't depend 100 percent on Hereford," he says. "Arrowhead Mills and Ramirez don't depend on just Hereford."

Scoffers who may consider sprouts a sissy food don't bother Paetzold. Since he started harvesting in May, he already can say he probably provides 90 percent of the sprouts served in Amarillo restaurants.

First Step of Harvest

Joe Paetzold scoops out part of the 400-pound harvest of alfalfa sprouts from a drum used as a seed incubator. Each seed produces 10 times its weight in sprouts.

Preparing for Shipping

Workers from the Hereford Satellite Center bag, weigh, and seal packages of LifeSprouts which will shipped to Amarillo, Lubbock, and Albuquerque.

High-pressure system brings precipitation

By The Associated Press

A high-pressure system extending from the Ohio Valley into the Southern Plains brought scattered thunderstorms to Texas on Saturday, and forecasters expected precipitation to continue later.

A few rain showers fell in Southeast Texas along the weak frontal boundary. Mostly fair skies prevailed elsewhere except for low clouds covering the Hill Country and southern portion of North Texas.

Winds were returning to a southerly direction over much of West Texas where speeds were 5 to 15 mph. Elsewhere, a light wind was noted.

Early-morning temperatures were in the upper 50s over the Northwest Plains while the rest of the state had readings in the 60s and 70s. State temperature extremes ranged from 59 degrees at both Amarillo and Lubbock to an 80 degree mark at Laredo.

The National Weather Service said it should be fair to partly cloudy with some morning cloudiness over the Hill Country by tonight. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms will generally be confined to the Hill Country and Southeast Texas through tonight.

Showers and thunderstorms should be more numerous and heavy in mountainous sections of West Texas.

Widely scattered thunderstorms were expected in the southwest early tonight and in western sections on Sunday, with lows tonight from 64 to 70 and Highs Sunday to be 90 to 95.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

We want to thank these civic clubs: Ambucs, Golden K Kiwanis, Kiwanis, Lions', Pilot, Rotary & Whiteface, for their participation in U.W. kick-off dinner Sept. 9 and cancelling your regular scheduled meeting for W. B. Sept. 7.

Food, fellowship & sitting could never have been better. A special thanks to those decorating the auditorium, Rose Ann Smith, Betty Owen, Jean Dowell, Clovis Seago, John & Amy Gilliland, Helen Langley, La Jean Henry, Marjorie Mims, Leona Kimball & Helen Eades.

We were fortunate to have had Roy Meyer as our featured speaker. He formerly coached at SMU & N.E. Patriots with prior coaching assignments. His enthusiasm will enhance this community.

Our local motivator, Coach Don Cumpston introduced Mr. Meyer to the volunteers. We are looking for a 10-0 season.

Again, thanks to the agencies, volunteers and supporters of the United Way. If you missed the event, the enthusiasm & motivation was great for those in attendance.

Also, a big thank you to the media for their great support.

Russia, a reporter probably doesn't know the meaning of the word "scoop." In America, some reporters will overlook facts and their credibility to obtain an exclusive story.

The United States has the best media in the world, operating under the best freedom of speech in the world, but we are not without our faults. Maybe you heard or read about Joe Mauri of New York who starred in a Soviet documentary, "The Man from Fifth Avenue" last spring. Mauri was portrayed as an unemployed homeless citizen. He was then taken to Russia, at Soviet expense, to tell his story in person.

American TV networks and major magazines picked up on the story which was presented by Nikolai Setounski, New York bureau chief of the Soviet news agency, TASS. But when the New York Times and the New York Daily News revealed that Mauri was fraud—an allegedly homeless and unemployed man who had two separate residences and a job that paid him over $35,000 a year if he chose to work five days a week, the TV network news shows, Time and Newsweek and many others in the press showed little or no interest in the story, according to AIM (Accuracy in Media).

The Daily news dubbed Mauri as the "Con Man of Fifth Avenue", also reporting that he lived in a New York residential hotel and has another rent-controlled apartment, subsidized by taxpayers to the tune of $182 a month.

"It is safe to say," reports AIM, "that Mauri will not be exposed by the Soviet media. AIM's criticism of his case to that of an American journalist similarly under suspicion in Moscow."

Gennadiy F. Zakharov smiled broadly and said he felt "OK" as he was handed over to Soviet officials in Brooklyn about 12:25 p.m. Friday, about the timereporter Nicholas F. Daniloff was freed from Lefortovo Prison in Moscow.

As part of the deal, Zakharov, 39, is in the custody of Soviet diplomats, must check in regularly with U.S. marshals, cannot stray farther than 25 miles from the United Nations building and must show up for his trial.

U.S. Marshal Charles Healey said the Soviets who accompanied Zakharov were "all in a jovial mood" as they went to the basement garage by elevator.

"They all shook our hands and thanked us," said Healey. He said Zakharov asked, "Marshal, are you the one I have to call?"

"I said 'You better,'" Healey reported.

Two large, gray cars and a dark station wagon, all with diplomatic plates, were waiting, said Healey. Zakharov got in the back of one car between two men and both cars drove off, he said.

Daniloff, a veteran correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, was seized and accused of spying in Moscow on Aug. 30, seven days after Zakharov was arrested in a New York subway station.

As Americans, we need to recover a profound belief in the democratic process. The media can help by being more explanatory than accusatory, by reporting events factually even if they don't scare people to death and earn the commentator a top rating.

An editorial in the London Telegraph put it clearly: It's time America's friends spoke out with some nasty questions to...the press, sections of Congress, television commentators, comedians, university pundits and a lot of other people who think there is a dollar to be made out of denigrating their country's institutions and leaders."

No wonder the British poet and critic, Stephen Spender, exclaimed that Americans are "the most anti-American people in the world."

Spy suspect released to diplomats' custody

NEW YORK (AP) — A Soviet physicist accused of spying is back with his comrades, released from jail in a deal that has officially linked his case to that of an American journalist similarly under suspicion in Moscow.

Gennadiy F. Zakharov smiled broadly and said he felt "OK" as he was handed over to Soviet officials in Brooklyn about 12:25 p.m. Friday, about the timereporter Nicholas F. Daniloff was freed from Lefortovo Prison in Moscow.

Restaurant business drops in wake of infections

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Restaurant business in the Permian Basin has plummeted in the wake of a contagious bacteria infection that has left more than 100 people ill in the Midland-Odessa area, a restaurant group official said.

"And it's getting worse instead of better," said Sid Clark, Permian Basin Restaurant Association president.

Clark estimated Friday that business at various restaurants has fallen anywhere from 40 to 90 percent since the areawide outbreak of shigellosis, which causes symptoms such as diarrhea, headaches, nausea and stomach cramps.

Kathy Wythe, community relations coordinator at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, said Friday that more than 140 people have visited the hospital emergency room to report the symptoms. Of 140 stool samples, 40 came back positive for shigellosis, she said.

As of Friday, the Health Department said 102 people in Midland and Ector counties were confirmed to have contracted shigellosis.

San Angelo health officials reported two shigellosis cases since Sept. 1 and Fort Stockton health officials reported one case on Thursday.

Local health officials said they could not find the source of the disease, which spread in the Permian Basin last week.

A statement jointly released Friday by Dr. James Humphreys, Midland Health Department director, and Dr. Robert Rowntree, Odessa-Ector County Health Department medical director, said:

"At this time, the data collected so far cannot definitely implicate a food distributor, a restaurant, or even lettuce."

Health officials said lettuce is considered a prime carrier of the shigella bacteria.

Fred Phillips, regional manager of Taco Villa fast-food restaurants, on Friday placed losses to the chain at "hundreds of thousands of dollars" because of rumors concerning the source of the infection.

Phillips emphasized "it is safe to eat" at Taco Villa restaurants.

"If a restaurant was serving unsafe food, it would have already been closed," Phillips said.

Boots 'n Tattles

By Jeri Curtis

I think I'll have my phone taken out. Not the one at home. The one at work.

"We shoulda had a picter," says the lady on the other end. "Folks don't read nothing 'lessen there's a picter."

Here in two short sentences is the implication that it is The Brand's fault that an organization has had a poor turnout at some event and that our subscribers are too simple-minded to read anything without an illustration.

The caller may admit, too, that the organization did have a newsletter, an article in the paper, put posters out and gave away free tickets. But, it's still our fault.

Amends are made quickly, the other line is blinking.

A lady from a public relations firm wants names of highbrows from Hereford who might want to retire in an exclusive village that might be built west of Amarillo. I tell her that I really didn't feel comfortable invading anybody's privacy with unwanted solicitations to hear a sales pitch. She tells me that she was in journalism once and had "had a cause when she was young." I tell her it's no "cause." I just figure most folks here will inherit the farm and retire here.

Then there's the salesman from New York who asks for Mr. Curtis after reading my name from some media directory.

The best ones are rip-off parts salesman who ask for the model number of your copy machine. Methods of riddance vary. "What for?" is the quickest way to get them to hang up. You can just put them on eternal hold, then tease by telling them you are "still looking" every 10 minutes. Speedy just tells them that if they were really our parts rep, then they would have the number.

Last week the phone rang about 47 times with information that Rita Clements or Linda Gale White would be in town. One Republican called weeks ago and it was all under control for Rita. But, about 14 others form the same party called to remind me. And ditto for the Democrats. From Deaf Smith County delegates to state headquarters.

Then a local political fanatic called.

"It was in Sunday's paper," I said.

"Well, yeah," he said.

"Since I've already gotten 47 phone calls about it I've decided that if that's as organized as either of the campaigns are, I'm not voting this year," I said.

"Well, do you want to interview the ladies and do a feature," he asked.

I knew they wouldn't have time for anything in-depth, wouldn't want to waste time talking about themselves while out campaigning for their husbands, and they should spend time with the hordes of 10s that would show up. But my smartmouth tooted out, "So what. They married politicians."

Fortunately my friend understands my sense of humor.

But, keep those calls coming, even if we don't get as enthused about your pet project as you do. We'd rather have 47 people call than none. It's hard for five people to keep up with what the other 16,000 are doing.

Just remember that we're awfully busy down here answering the phone.

Actually, it's kind of fun.

At Community Center

Public hearing set

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland will be holding a public hearing Tuesday, Sept. 16 at the Hereford Community Center to discuss the possibility of the county converting from paper voting ballots to automation.

"We will be asking residents of the county how they will feel about using the voting machines," said Ruland. "There may also be a possibility of reducing the number of polling places across the county."

During the last county commissioners meeting, Ruland told the commissioners of a plan to purchase automatic tabulators and reduce the number of voting boxes.

Under Ruland's plan the county would purchase eight tabulators and reduce the polling places to eight. Currently the county uses 12 polling places.

If Ruland's plan is approved by commissioners, residents of Dawn and the north and west areas of the county would be forced to drive into Hereford to vote in all elections.

Sales Tax Refunds Mailed

Hereford will receive $46,905 from the one-percent sales tax on sales made in July, it was reported this week by State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office.

The state sent out checks totaling $54.8 million to the 1,002 cities that levy the one-percent sales tax. Payments in 1986 are down by one-half of one percent, the comptroller's office reported. Hereford's 1986 payments to date of $463,879 are 2.38 percent ahead of last year's total.

Other Panhandle and West Texas cities' payments to date for 1986, along with the increase or decrease from 1985, include: Borger $740,677 (down 22%), Pampa $1,077,240 (down 11.4%), Dumas $45,240 (down 0.7%), Perryton $460,421 (down 15.2%), Dalhart $235,259 (up 1.2%), Levelland $561,498 (down 19.7%), Plainview $882,644 (up 6.5%), Littlefield $186,784 (down 6.7%), Dimmitt $140,067 (up 19.5%), Canyon $265,510 (up 9.3%), Amarillo $9,125,440 (up 3.4%), Lubbock $9,835,479 (down 0.7%).

Business includes a report on the marketing survey, physician insurance requirements, reports on operating, and on medical staff and approval of minutes.

Swimsuits get super results at Miss America Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Common sense says that swimsuits bare all flaws. Ada Duckett, swimsuit maker to three Miss Americas, knows better.

Mrs. Duckett created the so-called supersuit, which pageant superstition says increases a contestant's chances of winning swimsuit competition.

Nine Miss America Pageant contestants this year purchased Mrs. Duckett's custom-made, $150 Lycra and cotton suits, with white being the overwhelming favorite color. In the past year, Mrs. Duckett and her assistant, Ann Bogart, made about 200 suits for pageant contestants in 25 states.

Countless other contestants wear suits closely modeled after Mrs. Duckett's and stitched by seamstresses in Mississippi.

Of the 17 women in Wednesday night's preliminary swimsuit competition at the Miss America Pageant, 10 wore suits in the distinctive supersuit style.

"There's not one girl I fit I can call perfect," Mrs. Duckett, a war bride from Italy who now lives in Arlington, Texas, said during an interview here this week.

But by altering a seam, tightening a strap, or raising the suit's plunging back by fractions of an inch, Mrs. Duckett said she can compensate for what months of dieting, hours of intensive workouts, and nature have missed.

The result is a shape in the Miss America mold.

Mrs. Duckett boasts amusedly that it took her seven hours of work, but she was able to make one woman's bust appear two sizes smaller in the suit.

"Sometimes you put it in, sometimes you take it out," said the seamstress, who also has inserted padding for contestants.

The supersuit is simple with a V-neck and a rounded V-shape low back. The original had a bar strap across the back and attached to each of the shoulder straps. A variation without the bar strap is now available, too.

Underneath the bust is a band of material about two inches wide at the side seams, gradually narrowing toward the center.

Mrs. Duckett said she doesn't know who dubbed it the supersuit.

Debra Maffett was the first woman to wear a supersuit while competing in pageants in Texas. She moved out of the state, and in 1982 was crowned Miss America while representing California.

Miss Maffett, who lived with Mrs. Duckett's family for seven months, wore a suit the seamstress bought off the rack and altered. She did a second one, and for five years those two suits, sizes 8 and 10, were handed around the country to be worn in countless pageants.

Last year, the first new suits were sewn, said Mrs. Duckett. Of the five women who wore them in last year's Miss America Pageant, all made the top 10, a wearer won each of the three swimsuit preliminaries, and one, Susan Akin of Meridian, Miss., became Miss America 1986.

Contestants this year groped to explain why they chose a supersuit style.

"They say it's made out of special material. It pulls your body in," said Miss West Virginia Shannon Renee Barill, 23, of Charleston.

"That strap that looks so funny in the back — it makes your bustline look nice," said Miss Kansas Heather Lynn Clark, 23, of Benton.

But it's not for everyone.

"I didn't even want to try one," said Miss Colorado Carol Janson, 21, of Boulder. "It has certain connotations."

Mrs. Duckett said she has been involved in pageants for 25 years, largely designing and sewing evening gowns and costumes.

Sometimes she isn't paid. In most cases, she sells the gowns for $800 to $1,500, much less than they would cost in stores.

Mrs. Duckett said she is fond of the young women who pursue rhinestone-studded crowns and considers her work with them part of her efforts to give something back to the country that welcomed her.

"I don't say 'no' too often because people didn't say 'no' to me," she said.

The finals of the Miss America Pageant will be broadcast live Saturday by NBC-TV starting at 10 p.m. EDT.

Drug shows get good ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Awareness is the key to winning the drug war, says Nancy Reagan, and television was at its informational best last week with two documentaries about crack and cocaine that ranked in the Top 30.

CBS News producers and correspondents went undercover one summer weekend, examining how metropolitan New York dealt with its drug crisis. The resulting two-hour program, "48 Hours on Crack Street," ranked 12th among 62 shows last week, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

The program's 17.0 rating was the best for a news special since 1980. Nearly 15 million homes watched the broadcast, which had contributions from Dan Rather, Bill Moyers, Ed Bradley and Diane Sawyer.

NBC News' "Cocaine Country" special, in which Mrs. Reagan was interviewed by anchor Tom Brokaw, had a 12.5 rating — nearly 11 million homes — and ranked 30th for the week.

NBC returned to its accustomed No. 1 ranking for the week of Sept. 1-7, after CBS had registered its only summer triumph the week before. NBC placed five shows in the Top 10 — its usual slate of Thursday comedies and "The Golden Girls" from Saturday night.

Many new shows will be introduced before the 1986-87 prime-time season officially begins Sept. 22.

The evening news competition tightened last week. "CBS Evening News" with Rather and "NBC Nightly News" with Brokaw tied with 10.6 ratings. ABC's "World News Tonight" with Peter Jennings averaged a 10.2.

Scout night Tuesday

A "School Night for Scouting" is planned for Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 7 p.m.

Interested boys wanting to join Boy Scouts of America, and their parents, are asked to attend different schools in their area for registration.

Aikman and Bluebonnet Intermediate School students should meet at Bluebonnet school at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Northwest, West Central, Shirley, Tierra Blanca, and St. Anthony's schools will all be open at 7 p.m. to inform parents and boys what the scouting program has to offer for the coming year.

Beat a little water into eggs when making an omelet, instead of milk or cream for more tender result.

There is a Way!

This could be the year! The United Way volunteers of Deaf Smith County are committed to the job of reaching the campaign goal in 1986, and we believe the UW board and the workers are enthusiastic about doing the job right.

What remains to make the campaign a success is the involvement and participation of the rest of the community—especially those who don't need help. Thankfully, the majority of us fall in that category.

The great thing about the United Way is that it's a flexible system that has responded and adapted to changing social conditions and human needs. United Ways have a commitment to assessing community needs and directing funds where they are needed the most, always balancing the cost with community benefit.

A United Way is an organization made up primarily of volunteers who work to support a broad range of programs and services in their community. In Deaf Smith county, there are 10 agencies funded by United Way. This is why United Way ranks among the most efficient of all charitable organizations—volunteer workers, low expenses, and most of the money is put to work right in the community.

Next to government, United Ways support the greatest variety of human services in the country. And the UW supports services for people from all walks of life and all income groups.

Your United Way gift does more things for more people in this community who really need help than any other single gift you can give. And, thanks to YOU, it works for all of us!

No magic about 55

President Reagan has said it might be time to take another look at the national speed limit of 55 mph. If Congress gets around to looking, it should take care to separate the issue into its two components.

The first component has to do with a state's right to use its good sense to regulate its own affairs.

The other component, whether 55 represents the maximum safe highway speed, is more complex. As it stands now, many Texans, if not a majority, routinely exceed the speed limit. By doing so they endanger both themselves and slower drivers who stay within the speed limit.

On the other hand, the 55 mph limit has clearly saved lives by drastically reducing the number of highway fatalities.

Since highway and driving conditions vary greatly from state to state, it seems logical to let the states resume their responsibility for regulating the speed limit. There is nothing magic and everything arbitrary about the number 55.

Mankind wins one

Mankind wins one.

The decision of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to refrain from interfering with the Stacy Dam project understandably was greeted with great expressions of relief by West Texas community leaders.

Fish and Wildlife had insisted previously that the dam be moved or the project be abandoned because it threatened the continued existence of the rare Concho River water snake...

But now, thanks no doubt to the intercession of U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Fish and Wildlife has reconsidered and will not try to block the project, if the dam sponsor takes steps to protect the snake.

An expert on reptiles must be hired to work for the snake's survival. And that could mean some extra costs and some plan alterations.

That is a small price for residents of Odessa, Big Spring and other communities in the region to have more and better-tasting water.

Tax and clash

House Speaker Gib Lewis may be right that the easiest thing to vote for in Austin is a tax increase, while the hardest thing is spending reductions.

But right or wrong, that doesn't change anything. It should be apparent by now, as the Legislature embarks on a second special session with big revenue shortfalls still looming ahead, that only a combination of judicious cuts and temporary tax hikes will rescue Texas from the current fiscal year's budget crisis and allow the next legislature to deal with the situation on a more lasting basis.

What does lend hope to the proceedings is Lewis' newly expressed willingness to compromise, to go part way if not halfway to meet the Senate, Lt. Gov. Billy Hobby and Gov. Mark White.

SEND CLINT

There is a great celebration going on in Russia. They are dancing around the May Pole in September. I called a source in the Soviet Union and asked what happened to cause such joy. I was amazed. He said they were celebrating Clint Formby's cancellation of his trip. I asked him why a trip by an owner of a small radio station in West Texas could be so important to a nation like Russia.

He said it was evident we did not know who Clint Formby really is. We see him in his street clothes. The rest of the world sees him after he has ducked into a nearby phone booth and put on his cape. The guy said we must not know what we have living in our little city. He said Clint has been on every board of directors in the U.S. except two. He has been chairman of the board for almost everyone of the boards he has served. He is currently president of the Associated Press Broadcasters. He said we must be out of touch or we would readily know how happy Russia would be if Clint canceled his trip.

I was embarrassed, to say the least, so I tried to defend myself. I told him I certainly did know how important Clint was. Matter of fact, I was involved in a campaign to erect a sign on the outskirts of town that says "Home of Clint Formby". That sounded a little pompous so I changed the plan for the sign to simply say "Clint lives here, sometimes". I started by campaign by contacting Clint's friends. One of them said we should wait until he passes and have him stuffed. The other one said he already was stuffed. I recognize we are fortunate to have such a man in our community. I cannot understand why the Russians would be so happy for Clint not to visit their country.

My contact explained. They were having a hard time getting all of their weeds cut. They knew old Clint would come in with his guns loaded, ready to let them know how negligent they were. They were also having a hard time getting enough Christmas lights to satisfy. They did not want the whole world to know about their failure. It seems the Russians are a little touchy about someone pointing out their faults.

The whole incident is unfortunate. Clint needs another trip. We have been robbed of hearing about the event. A trip like this one could be fodder for conversations for months. It may be for the best. With Clint's luck there is no telling what weird things would happen. He never has a normal day. He never has an uneventful trip. I was looking forward to what one of Clint's trips could do for our relationship with the Russians. I do not know what would have happened but I do know nothing would have ever been the same.

This does give our Government a new bargaining tool. We can always tell foreign countries if they do not shape up we will send Clint for a visit. If they are smart they will shape up.

Warm Fuzzies,
Doug Manning

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Let's take pride in America

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President

WASHINGTON — "The best minds are not in government," Ronald Reagan said in 1976. "If any were, business would hire them away."

The passage of years has not diminished his bias against bureaucracy. When President Reagan wants something important done, such as restoration of the Statue of Liberty, he turns to the private sector.

We are fortunate that he does. Many have complained about the so-called commercialization of Miss Liberty, but private initiative did a marvelous job on the grand old lady, and got her ready in time for her 100th birthday party. Does anyone really believe a government agency could have done that?

Come on now. You and I know full well that if the bureaucrats were in charge, it wouldn't be done by next Christmas. And I shudder to think what the cost would have been.

Now President Reagan is turning to the private sector again to help preserve and protect our heritage. Our nation's public lands afford us irreplaceable opportunities to enjoy nature and savor America's natural beauty. But with more than 700 million acres to supervise, Uncle Sam simply cannot watch over everything.

Over the years, too many of our priceless resources have been littered, vandalized, looted, burned and otherwise misused. Many natural, historical and archeological resources have been lost forever, and others are in danger.

In his "Take Pride in America" program, the President is calling on private businesses and volunteer groups to assume responsibility for preserving our heritage. As happened with the Statue of Liberty, the response is enthusiastic. Major corporations—such as Exxon, Kodak, Goodyear, Mobil and Monsanto—are donating money, resources and time to clean up our public parks, protect endangered species, and educate the public about our heritage and the need to protect it. Private associations and clubs are donating their time and energy for similar worthy projects.

Of course, some will say the government should do all these things. But there could never be enough bureaucrats to protect our natural resources from the capriciousness of those who are indifferent and careless. "Take Pride in America" will not only produce tangible results at minimal cost, it will foster the notion that public lands belong to all citizens, and that we all share responsibility for preserving them.

That will be the grandest achievement of all.

Bill is a Chicago businessman. It distressed him that at his company's South Side Chicago plant many applicants for employment could not read well enough to fill out the application properly.

And if he hired them anyway, they could not follow written instructions, eventually had to be weeded out.

Then one recent day, following his midday exercise hour, he was sitting in the steam room of the East Bank Club draped only in a towel.

He could not see the source of the voices he overheard but recognized one as District School Superintendent Hamilton McMaster.

The superintendent was explaining the difficulty of getting enough competent teachers for inner-city schools.

Bill spoke up. "Any way I can help?"

McMaster suggested the first thing he should do is to visit Chopin School on West Rice Street, a school with a new principal who needed all the help he could get.

Bill went for what he expected to be a cursory visit. He was stunned by what he saw. The vandalized library had few books left. A third of the window panes were gone. Some were stuffed with rags.

The mostly Hispanic students appeared utterly disinterested.

Bill left the schoolhouse, went outside to his car, sat behind the wheel—and cried.

And then...

Bill—with more than enough responsibility in his business world—nonetheless volunteered to teach a day a week at Chopin School and his offer was eagerly accepted.

He teaches literature with the enthusiasm of a lover of literature...

He drills his students on vocabulary words, prods them to explain what's been read. But also he manages to impart to his seventh and eighth graders the lessons history has to teach about the hard-work way to a better life.

Mostly, he is seeking to make literature so much fun that students can't wait to learn to read for themselves.

Bill says he will be satisfied if even a fraction of his students make it "over the wall", out of the bleak barrio, graduate and go on to college.

Bill bones up five hours every Sunday to teach his one-hour classes each Monday — Shakespeare—Dickens.

And he has not missed a class since this school year began last October.

You and I would like to help our public schools but we can't afford the time. Bill is William K. Kellogg, great-grandson of the founder of Kellogg cereals. He can't afford the time either.

Bootleg Philosopher

(Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek examines a crime problem this week, more or less.

Dear editor:

Some people say the law of supply and demand is not working in some areas, but I know one area where it's going full blast. It's working in crime.

It's working so well that states can't supply penitentiary cells fast enough to meet the demand. In fact, the demand for cells far exceeds the number available, but criminals keep on showing up as though the supply was unlimited.

This has put a heavy financial burden on states throughout the country, and I think I have discovered why.

According to some statistics I read the other night, the average cost of a maximum security prison cell is $70,000. Now why a 12x12 cell, or whatever size one is—I've never sampled the accommodations there—should cost $70,000, is hard to say. You can build a whole house for that, including planting grass in the yard and graveling the driveway.

The only explanation I can think of is that Defense Contractors must be building them. You reckon they use their favorite cost-plus system: figure up what crime is costing the public and add that on to the cost of the cell?

Even so, criminals are hard to please and they still try to break out of those high priced cells. I can't understand this. Why would a murderer-rapist go to the trouble and risk of breaking out when, if he waits a little while, he'll be turned out on parole?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Terrorism, different cultures found while living in Italy

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Ever wonder how Americans fit in while living in other countries like Italy?

According to U.S. Air Force fighter David Moreno, 23, the ethnic cultures seem to mesh together but one can always pick out the Americans.

The former Hereford resident is stationed at Aviano Air Base in Italy, located 45 minutes from the Adriatic Sea and the Venice resort, and five minutes away from Piancavilla Ski resort in the Swiss Alps.

"We live up north two hours away from Austria, an hour and a half from the Yugoslavian border, four or five hours to Germany, and six hours to Switzerland," Moreno said. "In-side Italy you can travel Milan, Pisa, Florence..."

Moreno has also learned that world affairs affect how one is treated in another country.

"The English people really are the radical types, they have different attitudes about people," he said. "And the people in Greece don't like the Americans because of what happened with Libya. They thought we were just starting trouble that wasn't really going to be solved."

Moreno remembered the bombing in Libya. He said there were sometimes demonstrations at the gate of the base at the Europeans chanting "Yankees go home."

"They'd have banners and everything but you couldn't understand them because it was in Greek," said Moreno.

He said there are terrorist attacks all the time over there, that it's not uncommon to hear about Americans getting blown away.

"In the past two years approximately 300 American cars have been bombed but you don't here about over here.

"They also bombed an American club called Bobby's II with only a few wounded," said Moreno.

"When I went back home (to Italy) they kind of looked at us like we were going to cause trouble. They think the Americans can't leave everybody's problems alone. But if they think we were going to just sit back and let everyone push us around not doing anything about it..."

Moreno thought back before the big bombing actually happened in Libya. "Gadhafi has threatened any American base overseas and Italy is only 600 miles from Libya. So we knew something was going to happen."

"We were under a code red and the next morning we were told by our base commander to be alert of any suspicious people; to not leave cars under dark, unlit areas; and that there was a curfew in base until midnight and if you didn't come home by then, they'd lock the gates," recalled Moreno.

"There were armored cars and vehicles with submachine guns pointed at the gates. The base commander had gotten a direct call that the Libyans were going to retaliate on our base and that any American they saw they were going to do something about it," he said.

The airmen were instructed to stay away from American clubs and to stay out of discos that were overcrowded with Americans because a bomb could be planted so easily.

"The first thing you did after work was to read the newspapers and watch the news, and try to think what could help the situation," he said. "Not only our base but other American bases were being placed under security orders and were being watched."

"After about two weeks things, kind of faded away and it was safe to go out again," said Moreno.

Moreno said the airmen felt bad "because we couldn't do anything about the terrorists. They're in disguise." He remembered several bombings over the past couple of months.

"An American GI, his wife, and his little boy were getting into their car when a terrorists' bomb went off."

"And when we heard about that guy that got killed in the disco in Berlin, the same feelings came all over again. It would never stop, we were just kind of edgy," said Moreno.

"After that there was another bombing at the base's exchange store which wounded 14 people but this time no one was killed."

"It was the terrorists again. No one would claim responsibility of the bombings but it was still Libya related," he said.

"A bus load of Spanish cops were killed right in the middle of the shopping area with the windows being shattered and all," said Moreno.

"There are still bombings going on in Spain, Paris, France. But, like I said, we don't hear about them in the states."

Although closer to terrorism, Moreno said Italy was a neat place to live, that he'd learned a lot.

"The Europeans wear panty-type bikinis (speedos) at the beach and they bare a lot of skin. The girls don't wear a lot of tops. But you can always tell who the Americans are; they always wear the regular swim trunks like we wear here," said Moreno.

"At the beaches you meet all kinds of people; English, Scandinavian, the Iceland people, Finnish, France, Swedish, German, Austrian, Yugoslavian, Bulgarian, just people from all over," said Moreno.

"In Europe especially, they don't mind showing skin. They think the body's beautiful. The families don't mind when you're walking down the beach and everyone's topless. The little kids and the moms are used to it, even Dad minds his own business," said Moreno.

"They really are used to it, I am too now," he confessed. Moreno, a bachelor, said "When we first got here all we could do was stare and they'd ask 'what are you looking at?' To them, it's nothing—a body is a body."

DAVID MORENO

Moreno said women of all ages, even octogenarians, leave tops off trying to get some sun. "They don't mind," he said, "they look at you and think of you as another human being."

Sunshine and sunbathing beauties are not the only scenes in Italy.

"Especially in the discos, you meet a lot of different girls. All kinds. And they have names like Hele from Iceland and they have different ways of dressing."

"Like in the states, we have western styles, but the Europeans wear loose fitting, baggy clothes. The people from England dress punk; different colored hair, one side shaved off and the other side long, a ponytail right in the middle of their forehead," Moreno said.

"They wear bright colored makeup with zigzag designs on their eyes and they wear a lot of bracelets made of plastics and leather on their arms," he said.

Moreno said, "The Italian girls are really something. They love these white designed boots that Italy has, paired with a mini skirt."

He also said the Italians stay to themselves but that they do get along well with the Americans.

"The Italians love basketball besides their national sport, soccer, which is the biggest thing ever in their life," said Moreno.

He said they don't like football because "they think it's too rough, a bunch of big guys out there killing themselves."

"They have baseball, too, but they're not as good as it as the American teams are, but they try."

Moreno said the Europeans also love American T-shirts with universities, teams, or other sayings on them. "They'll do anything to have something that has Snoopy or Mickey Mouse on it," he said.

And Europeans greatly admire the cowboy boot. Moreno said they think that cowboy boots are the slickest shoe made. He said it would be easy to get in a fight at a club over a pair of cowboy boots, but the girls love them.

"The English people are real partiers. And the Italians and other Europeans sometimes refer to them as Americans," said Moreno.

When leaving a club and going to a restaurant to have a meal, Moreno said shop owners sometimes won't serve the Americans if they are very loud. "They know who the Americans are because of the short hair cut. If you go in a group they'll spot you right away and can be a little touchy," said Moreno.

He explained that the shop owners don't always like how the Americans dress. "Sometimes Americans are not dressed to their taste. They wear tennis shoes, jeans, T-shirts. But if you speak Italian or even try to speak their language, they'll be kind to you," said Moreno.

Moreno said that in Italy there are some restaurants that are owned by Italian-Americans who formerly lived in the U.S.

He said that food is another thing the Italians like. "The one thing they like—they love their own food," said Moreno. "Anything, pasta, spaghetti, pizza, veal parmesan, cordon bleu. A large pizza here costs $16 but you get the same size with all the toppings for $3 and $4 in Italy. But it's made different though."

Moreno said the pizzas in Italy are cooked in a chimney-type oven that is made of stone. He said they really just knead the dough, that he hasn't ever seen a chef toss the dough up in the air and catch it like on television.

Other common dishes in Italy include creamed spaghetti with bacon and eggs. There is also one kind of pizza that is best described as a flying saucer with all the fixings piled high inside and covered on top with dough.

Moreno said that baby squid is also served. It is fried and tastes like french fries.

The fresh produce has a better variety in Italy but the fruits and vegetables are small compared to the U.S. "Our onions are about the size of a softball but over there the onions are little. Their fruit isn't as big as ours either."

According to Moreno everything is little in Italy; their cars, their narrow streets, their houses, and their buildings.

For all the Americans who dream about owning a small foreign sports car Italy is the place to be. Cars in Italy range from Ferraris, Lamborghinis, Fiat Spiders, Launcha Alpha Betas, Alpha Romeros, Centrons, and Mazaradis. A small Fiat in Italy costs about $5,000, but is much more expensive in America.

"All the Americans like to own BMW's, Audis, and you're usually a captain or a major if you can afford a Ferrari," said Moreno. He also said that people in the armed forces overseas come back to the states to discover that maintenance and parts for the foreign cars are extremely expensive.

The cheapest car in Italy is the Mini. "It's about the size of a match box and runs close to $300 at the most for a nice one. It also gets about 31 miles to the gallon," Moreno said.

On the streets in Italy a driver can be flagged over by a policeman simply to check if the driver has the mandatory insurance, or to check for a tritortco, a certificate verifying that the driver has paid his road tax and the car is registered in his name.

"When they stop you the policemen wave these little red popsicle sticks. They stop anybody they want to and if they stop you, you had better stop—otherwise they'll get you," said Moreno.

Moreno has learned a lot about people while living in Italy. He said there is no mafia up north where they live, but the best jobs are up north where it's peaceful, quiet country with good, clean air.

"The girls from Scandinavia are the finest I've ever seen. But the ones from Sweden, Holland, Finland, Iceland, Spain, and Austria—they're all nice-looking too," he grinned. "But then again, I live in Italy and the Italian girls are the best, they're really beautiful too."

Out on the JOB WATCH UP FOR POWER LINES

Out on the job, power lines bring needed electricity to the site. But they can be dangerous... if you don't watch up! You need to be especially careful when you are handling re-bar, pipes, scaffolding, or tools that are long enough to contact overhead lines. Contact with power lines is also a potential danger to operators of front-end loaders, dump trucks and any other equipment of unusual height.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

Revenge is sweet' for Herd

Whitefaces run all over Wildcats, 42-0

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Revenge is said to be sweet, and the Hereford Whiteface varsity football team took revenge in a big way against Clovis Friday night, walloping the Wildcats 42-0 at Whiteface Stadium.

The revenge was for a 30-21 loss at Clovis during the 1985 season, frustrating non-district loss for the Herd. But this year it was different, with the Whitefaces rolling over the Wildcats.

Herd running back Mark Artho, who scored three touchdowns, had more offensive yardage than the entire Clovis offensive unit.

The Whiteface defense intercepted three Wildcat passes and also recovered one Clovis fumble. All this made Friday's game the second time in a row this season in which Hereford had an outstanding effort on both offense and defense.

The victory gives Hereford, 11th in class 4A in last week's Harris Rating System state rankings, a 2-0 record going into next Friday's District 1-4A opener at Pampa—set for 7:30 p.m. at Harvester Stadium.

The game began as a defensive battle with neither team scoring with its first two possessions. Hereford lost the ball in its second possession when a pass was intercepted by Clovis.

The Whitefaces' third possession began on their own 23-yard line. Thirty-two yards rushing by Marcus Brown, 25 yards rushing by Artho, plus a personal foul against Clovis, helped Hereford drive to the Clovis 11-yard line.

Artho ran the final 11 yards for a touchdown with 2:03 left in the first quarter. The extra-point kick failed, and the lead remained at 6-0. The Whitefaces used 10 plays in that scoring drive.

The Wildcats fumbled the ball when returning the kickoff, and Johnny Beltran of Hereford recovered the ball at the Clovis 28-yard line.

Hereford was unable to get a first down in that possession, and then the Herd defense did not allow Clovis a first down in its next possession.

Hereford then lost the ball one a fumble at the Clovis five-yard line early in the second quarter. Again, the Herd defense did not allow Clovis a first down.

After a Clovis punt and a 10-yard punt return by Marcus Brown to the Clovis 16, Hereford needed four plays to up its lead to 12-0. Artho carried the last two yards for the touchdown.

Todd Shire ran for a two-point conversion to make Hereford's lead 14-0.

Clovis achieved some first downs for the first time in the game in its next possession, but it was a shortlived possession.

Whiteface cornerback Robby Collier, who intercepted a pass in the Andrews game, made it two games in a row picking off an opponent's pass. This time he intercepted a pass at the Clovis 25-yard line and returned it 16 yards, with 5:24 left in the first half.

Hereford drove to the Clovis 39, but was forced to punt. Clovis then moved from its own 20 to the Hereford 35.

Clovis quarterback John Ainsworth went back to attempt a pass, but before he could even get off a pass, Brent Berry of Hereford jarred the ball loose and fell on it at the Hereford 45, with 1:24 left in the half.

Herd quarterback Todd Shire completed a pair of passes to Bobby Baker for 55 yards and to the end zone. The second pass was 45 yards for the touchdown with 1:02 left.

A fumble in the extra-point attempt left the score at 20-0, which was the halftime score.

Clovis received the second half kickoff, moved from its own 37-yard line to the Hereford 28, but failed to get a first down in a fourth-and-six play.

Marcus Brown gained 10 yards in a pair of carries to put the Whitefaces at their own 38. In the next play, Artho broke loose for a big gain and had just one Wildcat defender to beat for a touchdown.

Vincent Brown made a great block between the Clovis 30 and 40-yard lines to keep the path clear ahead for Artho, who scored with a 62-yard run with 6:44 left in the third period.

Marcus Brown rushed for the two-point conversion to give Hereford a 28-0 lead.

The Whiteface defense then stopped another Clovis drive by intercepting a pass. The Wildcats had moved from their own 33 to the Hereford 41.

A pass reception was nullified by a penalty for an illegal receiver downfield, and Clovis had a third-and-fourteen play at the HHS 46-yard line.

Ricky Ruiz, Hereford strong safety, intercepted a pass and returned it 18 yards to the Clovis 49-yard line. A clipping penalty in the runback put the ball back at the Hereford 36.

Three good runs—32 yards by Artho, 13 yards by Vincent Brown, and 11 yards by Marcus Brown enabled the Whitefaces to reach the Clovis 15-yard line.

Artho carried just two times in the second half, but those carries were for 100 yards even.

A personal foul called on Clovis put the ball at the eight-yard line. Darin Barrow gained five yards to the three.

A fourth-and-two play opened the fourth quarter, and Vincent Brown carried for a three-yard touchdown run with 11:56 left in the contest. Artho's kick made the score 35-0.

Each team had one possession without scoring, and after that, Clovis began a possession at its own 25-yard line.

Herd linebacker Donnie Rieves intercepted a pass and returned it five yards to the Clovis 36. Two plays later, Bobby Medina rushed for a nine-yard gain to the 22-yard line.

A personal foul on Clovis put the ball at the 11, and Clovis head coach Eric Roanhaus stormed out onto the field arguing with the referees.

Two flags were thrown against Roanhaus, with the penalties moving the ball to the three-yard line.

Vincent Brown carried for his second three-yard touchdown run of the game. The touchdown, coupled with Artho's successful kick, gave the Whitefaces a 42-0 lead with 8:05 left in the game, the final margin over the Wildcats.

The Whiteface defense limited Clovis to 65 yards rushing and 97 yards passing. Clovis did not penetrate inside the Hereford 20-yard line, getting once to the 35, once to the 28, and in the last play of the game, getting to the Hereford 30.

Led by Mark Artho's 164 yards rushing, Hereford piled up 311 yards on the ground. Hereford had 68 yards passing for a total offense of 379 yards.

Artho carried the ball 12 times for an average of 13.7 yards per carry. Marcus Brown rushed 16 times for 95 yards, a 5.9 average; and Vincent Brown had 42 yards in 10 attempts, a 4.2 average.

Hereford averaged 8.3 yards in its first down plays, and was successful in five of 11 third down conversions. In comparison, Clovis averaged 2.9 yards in its first down plays, and was three for 11 in third down conversion attempts.

Todd Shire completed four of eight passes for 68 yards, one touchdown, and one interception thrown.

Rushing leaders for Clovis were Danny Dameron with 45 yards in 11 attempts and Vorado Silivongkay with 36 yards in 13 attempts. John Ainsworth completed 10 of 21 passes for 97 yards, and had three passes intercepted by Hereford.

After two games, Hereford is averaging 35 points a game while shutting out its opponents. The Whitefaces' total offense average per game is 361.0 yards, including 261.0 yards rushing per contest.

Just like the game against Andrews on Sept. 5, this game was marred with penalties. Twenty penalties were called on both teams, for 157 yards in all.

Finals of the Circle A Rodeo season will be at 1 p.m. today in the Circle A Arena, 8 miles west on Harrison Highway. Admission is free.

Six age groups of riders from 4 to 16-years-old will compete in barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway roping, team roping and goat tyings.

What A Night For Artho!!!!

Hereford Whiteface running back Mark Artho (20) carries for a short gain in the first half against Clovis. Artho gained 64 yards in 10 carries, and in the second half he carried two times for 100 yards. He scored with touchdown runs of 11 yards, two yards and 62 yards to help power Hereford over Clovis, 42-0. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Beltran Recovers The Fumble

Johnny Beltran (89), a defensive end for the Hereford Whitefaces, gets ready to fall on a fumbled ball late in the first quarter Friday night against Clovis. Clovis fumbled the ball when returning a kickoff, and Beltran

That Great Offensive Line

The offensive line plays a key role in its team having a good offensive night, and on Friday night, the Hereford Whiteface offensive certainly did its job. The Herd rolled to a 42-0 win over Clovis, piling up 311 yards rushing and 379 yards total offense. Starting from the center, Chad Clements (55) and going to the right are: Tim Koenig, offensive guard (61), Tommy Ramirez, tackle (71), and Casey Daniel (84), tight end. No. 13 is quarterback Todd Shire, and behind him is running back Mark Artho. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

A preview of NFL 1986 weekend No. 2

By The Associated Press
If pre-game publicity counts for anything, the clash between Mike Ditka and Buddy Ryan will overshadow the collision of the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles this Sunday.

Ditka has accused his former assistant of stealing a large part of the credit for the Bears' Super Bowl victory. Ryan has called Ditka "a jerk."

Both coaches have worked to discourage such talk this week.

"What feud?" Ryan said. "I never thought there was a feud. You guys always had the feud thing going."

"Rivalry? What rivalry?" Ditka wants to know. "We'd like to go 2-0. I'm sure the game means more to them because they're 0-1."

"You shouldn't let your personal feelings get mixed up in the National Football League," Ditka said.

With such politeness reigning, various players are making bids to replace their coaches in the headlines.

It has been known all week that Bears quarterback Jim McMahon will not play, and Mike Tomczak will take his place.

But now Richard Dent may miss the game as well. The All-Pro defensive lineman sat out practice Thursday with a sprained back, and Ditka said he will not play.

"He missed practice so he must be too injured to play Sunday," Ditka said. The coach said the Bears will "just hold him out and play the other guy" — Mike Hartenstein, a veteran and now a part-time starter.

Ditka disciplining Dent? That question got Ditka mad. "He won't play. That's enough said," he snapped back.

Philadelphia's Keith Byars will start his first NFL game. The running back and top draft choice admitted, "There is rustiness ... It's hard to say if I'm exactly ready."

Byars, whose oft-injured foot is healing, was not expected back until October or even November. "I'm 100 percent," he said. "If I wasn't, I wouldn't go out there."

Eagles rookie fullback Mike Waters called the Bears pansies. "They cause fights. They don't want to get blocked. They're pansies," he explained.

"Mike who?" asked Dent. In a Thursday night game, New England beat the New York Jets 20-6.

Tom Collins caught two touchdown passes, one on an option pass from fellow running back Craig James, as the Patriots improved to 2-0. They are alone atop the AFC East.

The 1-1 Jets also lost Freeman McNeil, who suffered a dislocated right elbow early in the second quarter. The All-Pro running back will miss 4 to 6 weeks, club officials said.

In Sunday's other games, it will be Buffalo at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Houston, Dallas at Detroit, Green Bay at New Orleans, the Los Angeles Raiders at Washington, St. Louis at Atlanta, San Diego at the New York Giants, San Francisco at Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis at Miami and Kansas City at Seattle.

On Monday, Denver plays at Pittsburgh.

The Cowboys are following up their 31-28 Monday night victory over the Giants and looking to make for last year's 26-21 loss to Detroit.

Running back Tony Dorsett's status is uncertain for the game. "Tony's ankle is sore," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "We really won't know until game time. We'll wait and see. Herschel will play in his place if Tony can't play."

Herschel Walker was a hero against the Giants, scoring the game-winning touchdown, but Lions have adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

"Herschel's the new kid on the block," Lions defensive end William Gay said. "I'm not taking anything away from the USFL, but this league is intense. You know, there are guys out here who look forward to new meat."

Landry said "I don't think there's any pressure on Herschel. He's just so unimpressed with being a star that he's really kind of amazing to me."

Jeff Kemp may play Mike Tomczak to Joe Montana's Jim McMahon Sunday. The 49ers star quarterback hurt his lower back and strained a knee last Sunday against Tampa Bay, so Kemp may start against his former teammates, the Rams.

"We're practicing as if Jeff Kemp is going to start," said 49ers quarterback coach Mike Holmgren.

But Montana's doctor said, "I think there is a possibility that he would be ready to play Sunday. I think you could call it 50-50."

The San Francisco 49ers, who have made the playoffs four of the past five years, and the defending Western champion Rams are both coming off victories. And if the first week of the season is any indication, the Rams' Eric Dickerson will be carrying the ball a lot.

Dickerson, who rushed for an NFL single-season record 2,106 yards in 1984, carried a club-record 38 times and gained 193 yards in the Rams' 16-10 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals last Sunday.

The Cardinals will be without wide receiver Pat Tilley when they play the Falcons. Tilley has a disc problem in his back.

Two of the most exciting new quarterbacks in the league will face (See NFL, page 12A)

There Goes Vincent

Vincent Brown (22) rushed for 42 yards Friday night in the Hereford Whitefaces' 42-0 victory over Clovis. He carried the ball 10 times, averaging 4.2 yards per carry. Brown scored two touchdowns, both with three yard rushes, in the fourth quarter. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Hall of Famer Jimmie Foxx played in three World Series for the Philadelphia Athletics and had a batting average of .344. His lowest mark for a World Series was .333.

Exterminator, the 1918 Kentucky Derby winner, was purchased by Owner Willie Sharpe Kilmer less than a week before the race. Kilmer only wanted to see his colors in the race.

National Football League

each other in the Buffalo-Cincinnati contest.

Buffalo's Jim Kelly, a refugee from the USFL, completed 20 of 33 passes for 292 yards and three touchdowns in the Bills' loss to the Jets. Cleveland's Boomer Esiason was 22 of 41 for 263 yards and two touchdowns in a loss to Chicago.

Kelly hopes to build on his NFL debut when the Bills visit Riverfront Stadium to try to end their 17-game road losing streak. Esiason is hoping to save the Bengals from another early season collapse by regaining the form that made him the league's second-rated passer last year.

The Washington Redskins have a lot of memories of Marcus Allen — and none of them are good.

Allen will be seeking to extend his National Football League-record streak of 10 straight 100-yard games Sunday when the Los Angeles Raiders meet the Redskins. The last time the Raiders and the Redskins faced each other when it counted, Allen piled up 191 rushing yards in Super Bowl XVIII.

Since then, however, the Redskins have only allowed a running back to exceed 100 yards in four of their last 47 regular-season games.

The defending AFC East champion

Dolphins open their final home season at Miami's Orange Bowl against Indianapolis.

Minnesota will be seeking its fourth straight win over Tampa Bay, while Green Bay hopes to get into the win column by downing New Orleans for the eighth straight time.

The Oilers will find out if they are for real when they take on the AFC Central champion Browns.

Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar threw four touchdown passes against the Oilers in two games last season. But he doesn't know what to expect of the new-look Oilers.

"We caught them at two good times last year," Kosar said. "The first game was my first start and they didn't know what to expect from us offensively, and then we got them in Cleveland in the snow and they weren't used to that."

The friendship between Oiler Coach Jerry Glanville and Cleveland's Marty Schottenheimer has survived a four-game Browns winning streak and battles over Pro Bowl earnings.

They'll be opponents again in the Astrodome Sunday when the Oilers host the Browns in a National Football League game.

Glanville, in his first season as head coach of the Oilers, thought he was doing a close friend a favor when he recommended Marty Schottenheimer for an assistant coaching position to former Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano in 1980.

But Schottenheimer took over the head coaching duties in mid-1984 and last season guided the Browns to the AFC Central Division title with an 8-8 record that included two victories over the Oilers.

Glanville thinks it's time to cut into the Browns' 20-11 series lead. The Browns have won six of the last seven games against the Oilers.

"I was hopeful that Jerry would be given the opportunity as head coach," Schottenheimer said. "We've been friends a long time and I'm glad he's got the chance."

The friendship may have blossomed because both coaches enjoy the same brand of football.

"We are similar because we like to play hard-nosed football with nothing fancy," Schottenheimer said. "We like to lay our ears back and go after people."

Glanville calls the Oiler game "smash mouth" football and says of his players "we want ours to be the ones you wouldn't let your kids play with, the meanest guy on the block."

Glanville notices similarities in the Browns and Oilers. "You'll see both of us using the running game and then throwing deep," Glanville said. "If you want to see bump and run, watch the game. Both teams will jump up in your face."

"And the kicking game is the same philosophy. Someone is going to wring your bell."

Glanville really doesn't regret his contribution in sending Schottenheimer to the Browns.

"I knew Sam was looking for someone and I asked him to consider Marty and that's how he got to Cleveland," Glanville said.

The friendship even survived the 1980 Pro Bowl in Hawaii when the two coaches were opponents.

"Our wives were there and we went out to eat together and stuff like that," Glanville said. "Since the winning team gets a bigger share, I suggested we pool our two shares and split it but Marty said 'no way.'"

The long NFL weekend began Thursday night when the New England Patriots crushed the New York Jets 20-6.

Leaping, But Fumbling

Marcus Brown (2), Hereford running back, tries to leap over and around some Clovis Wildcat defenders in the second quarter, but lost the handle on the ball. Except for this fumble, Marcus had himself a pretty good evening of ball carrying—95 yards in 16 attempts for a 5.9 yard average per carry. He rushed for a two-point conversion in the game. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

NCAA POSTER

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA mailed out a 19-by-24-inch color poster to all athletic directors, football coaches, equipment managers and trainers showing what a uniform should be like.

Among the items stressed were: all helmets should have a warning sticker attached to the back noting the risk of injury; jerseys should not tear; all players should be numbered from 1 through 99, and all numbers should be a minimum of eight inches in front and 10 in back.

Also, numbers cannot be changed to deceive your opponent.

Jimmie Foxx, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, hit 30 or more home runs each season from 1929 to 1940.

The color of the five Olympic rings set against a white flag are blue, yellow, black, green and red.

Ann Landers

Too few facts

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a unique problem that has me stumped. It started eight months ago when I began writing to an old friend from grammar school. He was my first love.

We had lost touch with each other until his name and whereabouts were made public through the media. The man is serving time for killing his wife.

The problem is this: I have fallen deeply in love with "Mr. X." He feels the same way about me.

I know he has changed a lot since grammar school, and considering where he is now, I realize I am taking a big chance. But I can't get him out of my mind. Nor do I want to. I love having a man in my life. I haven't been this happy in ages.

I weighed the pros and cons of establishing a love relationship with Mr. X and it comes out in his favor.

What I'm worried about is my family's reaction. My son is 16. I have talked with him about the situation. He is in favor of the relationship, but says he worries about my safety. I need to know from you if this romance stands a chance. I have a lot of confidence in your judgment.—D.L.W.

DEAR D.L.W.: Sorry, you've given me too few facts on which to base a legitimate evaluation. Several questions need answering. For example: How old are you? How old is Mr. X? How did he kill his wife? Did he cut her throat, was he driving a car while drunk or did he put arsenic in her coffee? Did he plead guilty or does he claim he is innocent? When will he be free? Does he have a trade or a profession? Will he be self-supporting when he gets out or are you going to support him? Have you been sending him money since he's been in prison? If so, how much? What is his marital history?

When you provide me with the answers to these questions I will be in a better position to advise you. Please send me this column with the answers and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son is completing his second year of teaching and hopes one day to be a high school principal. "Bob" told me last night that he is going to ask his 21-year-old sweetheart to marry him.

"Marcia" is a lovely young woman, attractive, kind, successful in her job as a salesperson and deeply devoted to my son. But her grammar and vocabulary are comparable to that of a 9-year-old. Example: "Me and Bob went to the park 'n' stuff. I shoulda worn a raincoat 'n' stuff."

I enjoy Marcia's company but I find myself feeling embarrassed when others are within hearing range. I keep wondering how long it will be before Bob feels uncomfortable about her inability to speak properly.

We went through the trauma of our older son's divorce last year, and I certainly don't want Bob to suffer the same fate.

Do I have the right to bring this matter to my son's attention before he makes a formal commitment? Would he consider it interference and be even more determined to marry her?

Please answer as soon as possible. My gut feeling is to speak up, but maybe I'm all wrong.—CONCERNED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR CONCERNED: Keep your lip zipped, mother. Bob is well aware of the way Marcia murders the English language. Obviously, it does not bother him. So grin and bear it, hope for the best. Que sera, sera.

Joyce Brothers to address family forum

Dr. Joyce Brothers, widely known expert in the field of family relations, will deliver the keynote address at the upcoming South Texas Family Forum on "Enhancing Family Strengths" at Corpus Christi's Del Mar College, Nov. 20.

Brothers will discuss "Building on Family Strengths—the Key to the Family Way of Life" at 9:30 a.m. general session to the college's Harvin Center. The speaker is headquartered in New York City.

Addressing the luncheon session which begins at 11:30 a.m. will be Mrs. Helen Farabee, president of the Mental Health Association of Texas. Her subject will be "Enhancing Public Policies that Support Families." Farabee resides in Wichita Falls and is the wife of State Senator Ray Farabee.

Six concurrent seminars will begin at 1 p.m. and last until 3 p.m. with program participants—professionals in family service fields—selecting one to attend. The seminars, their speakers and discussion leaders will include:

-Building Parenting Strengths, led by Diane Welch, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Welch is headquartered at College Station.

-Enhancing Family Ability to Cope with Change, Dorothy Taylor, Extension family life education specialist, College Station.

-Enhancing Quality of Life in Middle and Older Adult Years, Dr. Judy Warren, Extension family life-aging specialist, College Station.

-Hispanic Families in Crises, Dr. Guadalupe Gibson, Deputy Chairperson with the Advisory Committee.

White House Conference on Families, and author and professor emeritus at Our Lady of the Lake University, San Antonio.

-Legal Issues Affecting Texas Families, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, Austin.

-Supporting Families With Special Needs, Dr. Marian Sokol, director, Project ABC, Santa Rosa Hospital, San Antonio.

Following the seminars, a second general session at 3 p.m. will feature an address by Helen Leonard of the American Council of Life Insurance. Leonard, who is headquartered in Washington, D.C., will speak on "Families: Perspectives on The Future." She serves as director of public information for the Council.

Dr. Kathy Volanty, district Extension director, and county Extension agents-home economics for the 16-county Coastal Bend District, have arranged the educational conference which is designed for professionals in fields of family services throughout the state.

Cooperating with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in arranging the Family Forum are the Incarnate Word Academy Alumni, the Paul and Mary Haas Foundation, the Del Mar College Student Development Department and the Charter Hospital, all of Corpus Christi.

Persons desiring more information about the Forum should contact Volanty at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Route 2, Box 589, Corpus Christi, Texas 78410, or Patricia Crenshaw, county Extension agent, Box 672, Robstown, Texas 78380.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT HASELOFF

Former residents to be honored today

Former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Anton Haseloff of Rockport, Texas, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception at 3 p.m. today in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Joe Edd Andrews of Hereford.

Also, assisting at the reception will be the couple's granddaughters, Mrs. Michael Diller and Mrs. A.L. Baca, both of Hereford.

The former Mary Louise Pilgreen and Herbert Haseloff were married Sept. 14, 1936 in a sunrise ceremony in Vernon, Texas. Mrs. Haseloff is the daughter of the late Z.P.

Pilgreens of Vernon and Haseloff is the son of Hattie Haseloff of Lockett, Texas.

The couple, who also have a son, Robert Zerrell Haseloff of Canton, Miss., lived in Hereford for many years where they farmed northwest of town. They are currently retired.

Toilet paper

According to The World Almanac Book of Inventions, toilet paper was invented in 1857. For a long time, however, it was considered a luxury and was not used widely.

Fall social held by Calliopian Club

Calliopian Club held their fall social Thursday evening in the home of Wilma Nobles.

The program committee, Cherry McWhorter, Wilma Nobles, Meredith Wilcox, Marjorie Mims, Marye Fraser, and Jan Furr, were hostesses. All members came dressed as a favorite character in a book.

Members received new yearbooks, which were computerized by Cherry McWhorter and Jan Furr.

The theme for this year's programs is "Yesterday's, Today's, and Tomorrow's Women". The program committee presented the first program on "Yesterday's Women". Each took part as a biblical woman based on the book "Eve's Version".

It was written by five Panhandle women who studied the Bible and got together to write the book, most of it in poetry.

Mary Fraser played the part of Eve; Cherry McWhorter, Delilah; Wilma Nobles, Noah's wife; Jan Furr, Deborah; Marjorie Mims, a virtuous woman; and Meredith Wilcox, one of David's concubines.

In closing the program Jan Walsler, as Mary, accompanied by Linda Gilbert, sang the "Magnificat" which was composed by Carla Burdett, a former Hereford resident.

Other members present were Lee Cave, Irene Coneway, Audine Dettman, Virginia Holmes, Faye Holt, Mary Sue Hull, Sue James, Sheri Kerr, Kay McWhorter, Kathlee Palmer, Kathryn Ruga, Vera Threewit.

Decorating classes planned

Sweet 'n' Fancy Cake Decorating Club members are again offering cake decorating lessons to the public.

Lessons will be held each Monday evening, beginning Oct. 6, from 7-9 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center. The cost of four lessons is $20 and may be paid at the time of the first workshop.

Those attending are asked to bring a sheetcake on a covered board, a spatula and one recipe of icing.

Decorators who complete the course are invited to join the club. For further information contact Karen Martin at 364-4223; Carol Kelley, 364-7260; Beckie Fry, 364-4954; or Alice Koenig, 364-1982.

Extension Homemaker News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E.
Celebrating National Grandparent's Day, brings to mind a six million dollar word form called "intergenerational development."

As families have become more mobile and have moved to areas great distances from their 'root' families, it has become difficult to form a strong family bond with grandparents. Young children's perception of aging and the characteristics of older people is likely to be narrow. Mass media has for years portrayed older people in a stereotype unbecoming to the older person - depicting them as hard of hearing, meddlers, grand fatherly authority figures, symbols of tradition, or sufferers in need of laxatives or denture adhesives. Older people have rarely been shown as ordinary consumers. Through education, the older person is now being shown in true light as needing some of the product or exhibiting some of the characteristics but playing heavily upon the positive side of their characteristics also.

As a population we are growing older. The 65 and older population is the fastest growing age group in the U.S. Research projects show that by the year 2000 most families will have members of four and five generations and that in some families the two oldest generations may be over age 65. This has been brought about by advanced medical technology, increasing life expectancy, and a decreasing birth rate.

To develop positive relationships between the young and aging has become a major concern. Education about the aging process and older people contribute to healthy aging, sensitivity toward older adults, and an understanding of the adjustments in later life. In helping a young person develop a respect and sensitivity to aging, parents and those working with youth need to ask themselves:

-What are my attitudes toward aging people

-How do I feel about my own aging

-What has influenced my perceptions of the elderly

-What does my behavior say to young people about aging.

Intergenerational relations can be built by helping youth develop a sensitivity by understanding the problem, benefits and implications of growing old and introducing them to the contributions these people have made to society and the community. Opportunities for older persons to share knowledge can enhance the respect of the young for the aging. In return an aging person can enhance the link to grandchild or a younger person by:

- avoiding the phrase "when I was your age."
- listening while avoiding judgment
- talk with but not at your grandchildren
- remembering children are not so different but are growing up in different times

Understand on the part of the youth and the aging can provide important support lines while promoting intergenerational development.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

To The People Of Hereford:

This letter is to explain the events which have occurred during the past two weeks and the facts behind these events. When I moved to Hereford to set up practice in Orthopedics I was given just a temporary medical license. The reason for this being that Texas laws require any specialist who has not taken their certification exam within the past ten years, be required to take another licensing exam. This licensing exam is designed for physicians involved in primary care and not designed for the physician who specializes in one special branch of medicine. This law states that in spite of licensing in other states or other post-graduate courses or training that they require that this exam be taken. I did take this exam in early summer and in the process of taking this exam, misread a portion of the instructions on the first part of the exam. This obviously lowered my score considerably on the exam. As a result of this I was two points shy of having a passing score for Texas standards. I was notified of this the first of September and told that I had two weeks in which time to close the office and that I could retake the exam but the results of that would not be available for six months during which time I could not practice in Texas. Through the hard and diligent work of the Hospital Administrative Staff, Hospital Board, Medical Staff and members of the community I have been granted another temporary license until such time as I may retake the exam and obtain a permanent license. We have, during the past week, ceased to see new patients and do any type of surgery because of our obligations to you as patients not to take on things that we could not provide further care for. Now that these problems are resolved, we will be resuming our normal practice and normal care of the people of Hereford and surrounding areas. My wife, Sandy, and I feel very fortunate that we have been able to resolve this, since we very much enjoy and like the community of Hereford and want to be able to call this our permanent home.

Sincerely Yours,

F. James Herbertson, M.D.

Club members meet for luncheon

The Draper Club met recently for a luncheon and business meeting in the home of Sandy Tarbit.
 President Sherri Blackwell presided over the business session and the T.E.H.A. prayer was recited. Secretary Brenda Pagett called the roll of which each member answered "A class I would like to take if I could go back to school."
 Several reports were given by the hostess; council delegate, Vaughn; and treasurer, Johnnie Messer.

 A club money making project was discussed and tabled until the October meeting.
 Beverly Harder, county extension agent, was recognized as a special guest. She invited members to attend a covered dish luncheon Sept. 22 at noon in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room to hear reports from the state meeting held recently in McAllen. The council meeting will follow at 1:30 p.m. Messer is delegate for the state meeting.
 Harder also announced several upcoming events. Amarillo Southwestern Public Service will host a seminar on parties, Sept. 25 at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo. Carpools are being formed for those interested in attending. Call Harder at 364-3573 for additional information.

 Another program scheduled was Festive Foods at 2-3 p.m. and 7-8 p.m. Oct. 28 at the SWP Reddy Room.
 Harder also gave a program entitled "Christmas in September."
 Anyone interested in joining or visiting an extension club is asked to contact Harder.
 The Draper Club meets the first Wednesday of each month at noon. The next meeting is planned Oct. 1 in the home of Tonie Vaughn.
 Also, present was Vickie Higgins.

Camp Fire News

Camp Fire members are starting the year off with several events for the different groups.

The Glowing Blue Birds group began their third year together with an ice cream and cookie social featuring a round of croquet. Group members attending were Cynthia Jimenez, Melissa Hammock, Becca Garza, Erica Casarez, Darcy Krinich, Courtney Boyles, Katie Bone, Cassie Abney, Raquel Villarreal, Marissa Tarr and Daniel Cornelius.

Members of Camp Fire Blue Busters group from St. Anthony's third grade have been busy beautifying the Hereford Camp Fire Lodge.

The group planted bulbs in the flower beds and trimmed bushes in the lodge park as part of their community service project.

Other Camp Fire events include a get-acquainted ice cream social that was held at president Betty Drake's house for Horizon and Discovery club members.

Altering tax returns major problem

Client requests to alter tax returns is the major ethical problem facing most certified public accountants (CPA).

Texas Tech University accounting professor Don W. Finn said, "Ethical conflict occurs when people perceive that their duties toward one group are consistent with their duties and responsibilities toward some other group." Finn said. "When an individual deals with other people sometimes the interests of self, partner, firm, client and society conflict."

Finn, along with Texas Tech Horn Professor of Marketing Shelby D. Hunt and Baylor University Professor Lawrence B. Chonko examined the major ethical problems facing accountants.

Finn said 33 percent of all CPAs surveyed indicated that questionable deductions, under reporting, requests to deduct personal expenses and deductions that were not 100 percent supportable are the most common ethical problems that the CPAs encountered.

The CPAs said, while clients were requesting that they alter tax forms, the clients were trying to reduce their taxes rather than evade taxes entirely, Finn said.

Conflict of interest and independence was the second ranked ethical problem. This category included such activities as audit of close friends and associate's businesses, client-accountant privilege when testifying and conflict of interest for not-for-profit boards, Finn said.

Client efforts to commit tax fraud was the third problem listed by accountants in the survey.

"This category included clients who include false information, cheat to reduce taxes, lie and utilize the underground economy," Finn said. "Many respondents said this was their most difficult ethical problem."

Other problems listed were client proposals to alter financial statements, fee problems, concerns over technical competence and integrity in admitting mistakes made by the firm, Finn said.

Finn said the study also found that while about 35 percent of those CPAs surveyed perceived opportunities for unethical activities within firms, only 3 percent felt that their fellow accountants actually engaged in those practices.

"We also found that 76 percent agreed that there are numerous opportunities for CPAs outside of their firms to engage in unethical activities, but only 42 percent felt accountants participated in those activities," Finn said.

United Way on its way up...

The United Way Fund Drive Campaign has officially begun with "Up, Up, and Away" as its slogan.

It was announced Tuesday that the United Way fund drive has gotten to a good start having gathered $15,000 of the $110,000 goal so far this year.

The first fund-raising event will be a car wash to be held at Sonic Drive-In Sept. 15-18 featuring a different agency every day volunteering to wash cars.

Beginning Monday, members of Big Brothers-Big Sisters will be doing the washing from 4 to 6 p.m.

Tuesday, members of Hereford Camp Fire Council will be in charge of the car wash and on Wednesday and Thursday, members of YMCA and the Hereford Boy Scouts will be participating.

Other United Way sponsored agencies include the Hereford Chapter of the American Red Cross, Hereford Camp Fire, Inc., Hereford Family Services Center, Salvation Army, Hereford Senior Citizens Center, High Plains Epilepsy Association, and the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Amarillo.

A new approach to campaigning will be the use of executive officers of United Way who are being "loaned out" this year during office hours to collect donations for the fund drive.

Loaned executive officers are Raymond White of White's Implement, Jeff Brown of Hereford State Bank, James Hull of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Bud Eades of Plains Insurance, Steve Wright of First National Bank, Steve Nieman of Gilliland-Nieman and Associates, Rocky Lee of Summerfield Fertilizer, Vance Devereaux of Arrowhead Mills, Troy Waddell of Southwestern Public Service, Wanda Cobb of Lone Star Agency, and Chuck Moore of Witherspoon, Aiken and Langley law office.

The campaign will be held throughout Oct. 10 and anyone wanting to donate can contact one of the persons listed on the coverage or call the United Way office at 364-5220.

Eighty-four-year-old teaches in China

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lola Mae Daniel, whose life-long dream of going to China as a missionary several times has been frustrated, finally is going to make it as a teacher of English there — at the age of 84.

Recently notified that her application had been accepted, she says, "I've been on cloud nine ever since. You know in China, they reverence age." The daughter of a Southern Baptist pastor, the long-time high school teacher several times had seen previous plans to get to China stymied by various reasons, most recently by age limits.

Voicing delight at being accepted to teach English for a year in Zheng Zhou, she said it's "what the Lord wanted me to do."

A Flair for Design

Design is fundamentally a matter of arrangement, a means of ordering visual and emotional experiences. Its elements are Line, Form, Color, Light, Material, and Space. These elements used in cooperation with the basic principles of Design, such as harmony and proportion, to name a few, are all needed to give unity and consistency to a work of art, or an effective interior space.

In the following weeks, we will discuss each of these "elements" and their relationship to the whole composition. Next week we will begin with a discussion of Line, its use in an interior space and its effect.

The qualified interior assistance at FINISHING TOUCHES is waiting to help you to achieve the special look you've been hoping for. Call 364-8870, or stop by 501 E. Park Monday thru Friday.

Poinsettias that burst with color

DEAR POLLY — I have a large poinsettia that was given to me last year. I've kept it growing beautifully all summer and would like to have it flower this Christmas. What care does it need to bloom? — MRS. V.K.

DEAR MRS. V.K. — When I got your letter I could hardly believe it was already time to start thinking about holiday plants, but you're absolutely perfect in your timing. At the beginning of October, it's time to start giving your poinsettia the "bloom" treatment. (Although we all know that the red "blooms" on the plant are really reddened leaves; the flowers are the tiny yellow centers.) Here's the technique.

Beginning about October 1, keep the plant in total darkness for fourteen hours every night for about ten weeks. This can be done by moving the plant into a light-tight closet or by covering it with a large cardboard box each night from 5 p.m. to 7 a.m. Remember that poinsettias are very sensitive to artificial light. Even the smallest amount of stray light will delay or inhibit the flowering process.

Night temperature should be maintained at 65 degrees F. Temperatures below 60 degrees F at night may cause a delay in blooming time.

Each morning, return the plant to a window where it will receive four to six hours of direct sunlight. Water and fertilize lightly at three- to four-day intervals.

Discontinue this darkness-control procedure when your poinsettia is coming into full bloom, which should be around Dec. 1. Household light at night will no longer affect it. If all went well, your poinsettia should have a display of brightly colored bracts for another holiday season.

Texas was admitted to the United States in 1845.

Toujours Amis Club meets recently

Members of Toujours Amis Study Club met Wednesday evening for their opening club meeting at the Energas Flame Room.

Serving as hostesses for the night was the yearbook committee composed of Shannon Hagar, Elaine McNutt, Patti Brown, Kathy Carthel, Ange Lauderback and Pam Perrin.

Members were required to come dressed in their prom dresses with the theme of the evening entitled "The Last Prom." Members were taken on a float ride and escorts were Harold Brigance, John Stagner and Jeff Brown.

A meal was served by the committee and games were played. Yearbooks were also distributed for the new year and secret pal games were drawn.

Members voted to have their annual benefit bridge tournament Nov.

Some make costly mistakes

LUBBOCK — Advertisers who think all Hispanics respond to the same advertising messages are prime candidates to make costly mistakes.

Texas Tech University marketing Professor Humberto Valencia said Hispanics are becoming a much sought consumer group as their buying power increases.

"The Hispanic market is not a homogeneous market that will respond to just one message," Valencia said. "There are many different groups that don't all eat refried beans and tortillas."

Valencia pointed to a McDonald's commercial that wasn't aired in Texas because it used the Puerto Rican term Hamburgue for delivery to a Mexican-American audience.

"The correct term for the Mexican-American audience is hamburguesa," Valencia said. "Hispanic audience won't respond or are even offended by incorrect language, just as Anglos would be offended by a foreign advertiser misusing the English language."

Valencia said Hispanics are divided not only into subgroups based on their native country but also within subgroups. He cited the Mexican people as an example.

"There are those Mexicans who have been in the U.S. for generations like those that settled near Santa Fe. Those people were of the ruling classes and had money and power," Valencia said. "Also within the Mexican group are those extremely poor people who have just crossed into the country. These two groups respond very differently to marketing techniques."

Valencia cited a lack of understanding of the language as the primary problem with most advertisements aimed at the Hispanic market.

"A copywriter can't run down the hall to a co-worker who happened to take high school Spanish and expect to get an accurate translation for an ad," Valencia said. "There is a great deal of difference in nuance and meaning between what is taught in the classroom and the slang spoken on the street."

Valencia cited a Cafe Mexico newspaper advertising as an example of poor translation. The ads promoted a new frozen food entree brand-named Burrada. While the company thought the translation was big burrito, Valencia said burrada actually means jackass mistake or statement to some Hispanics.

The Bayer Aspirin people, Valencia said, were also guilty of missing the general usage meaning of the phrase "me cuido" in their ad "Yo me cuido con Bayer."

"While they were trying to get across the message 'I take care of myself with Bayer' what they actually said was 'I protect myself with Bayer,'" Valencia said. "By not knowing 'me cuido' is an euphemism for protecting oneself from pregnancy the company ended up with a too literal translation."

The Michelob beer company attracted attention from an ethical standpoint with their translation of the slogan Up with Michelob—suba con Michelob. The translation implies that this beer makes drinkers more drunk, she said.

Valencia pointed to Pepsi Co's advertising for Pepsi Free that says it "has no caffeine and all the taste" as an example of how things that are important to Americans may not matter to Hispanics.

"Many Hispanics couldn't care less about caffeine. Cuban coffee, for example, is caffeine extract that can give you enough zip to get through the day with only one demitasse cup."

Valencia said not knowing exactly what portion of the Hispanic market will see certain advertisements is a major mistake.

"If you don't know your audience you can't know the cultural norms and language quirks," he said. "If you are advertising food in Florida, you better know that Cubans are the dominate Hispanic group and they eat black beans, not refried pinto beans."

To avoid such mistakes Valencia suggests that mass market advertisers develop regional rather than national campaigns to avoid offending one group of Hispanics with different perceptions than the intended target group.

The Kinney Shoe Co. was one that caught what could have been a mistake by pretesting their advertising. A billboard had been designed to use the tag line "Pisa con Kinney" meaning "to step on it with Kinney," Valencia said.

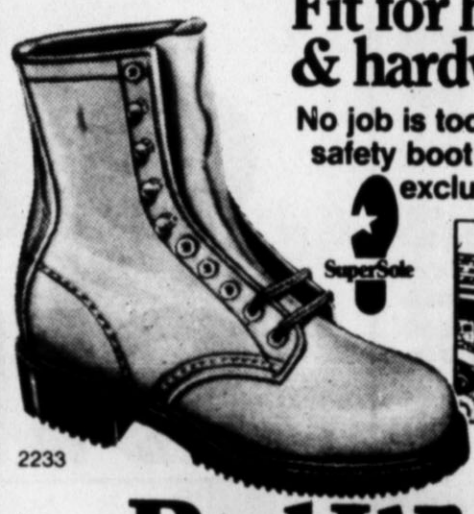

"What their pretest showed was that some Hispanics could literally translate 'pisa' as a vulgar slang for as a rooster steps on a hen," Valencia said. "After discovering the problem, Kinney's advertising agency decided to change the tag line rather than risk misunderstandings."

Valencia also suggests that Hispanics be included in the creative process and the ads be pretested with different groups of Hispanics before it is released to the general population.

Organization has openings

Membership is now open for young women who are juniors and seniors in high school to join Concerteers, an organization designed to act as the official hostesses at the Community Concert Association events held in Hereford.

The girls eligible for participation in this group are members of the association because their families hold group memberships. Among their duties is the distribution of the programs at each of the concerts as well as acting as aides to the performers themselves, helping in any capacity as requested by the visiting artists.

During the concert season, the girls are invited to various social events in their honor. Another highlight is their presentation by their fathers at one of the concert functions. They choose a formal gown to be worn at each concert to identify them to the audience.

Any young woman whose family belongs to the concert association is urged to contact Mrs. Josef Grotegut at 358-7564 or Mrs. Donald Meyer at 578-4486 for further information.

These sponsors state that the Concerteers organization is very important in the effective operation of the community concert program and that the girls will be well rewarded for their contributions as members.

Larger cars safer, less brittle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The risk of injury and potential for high repair costs is significantly less in large cars than in small cars, according to an insurance industry examination of accident claims.

The study by the Highway Loss Data Institute, an affiliate of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, shows small cars and many small or mid-size sport or specialty cars as having injury and repair costs of 30 percent or more above average.

But, according to the study released Thursday, large cars, station wagons and passenger vans, and some of the large luxury cars, typically show 40 percent to 50 percent better-than-average injury and collision claim records.

Of the 37 large cars examined, including all models from station wagons to luxury cars, 25 provided substantially better-than-average injury protection and 18 had substantially better-than-average repair costs.

But of 56 small cars and small station wagons, none showed similar substantially better-than-average injury and repair records and 19 showed at least 30 percent poorer results.

The report compared the frequency of insurance claims and average repair costs of 185 vehicles with adjustments made for factors such as driver habits and characteristics.

Among the worst comparative claim records were those for three Mitsubishi models — the Tredia, Cordia and Starion — the Nissan Pulsar and 200 SX, Ford EXP, 2-door Toyota Corolla, Mercury Capri and 2-door Chevrolet Chevette.

These all had injury claim frequencies of 36 percent to 62 percent higher than average and repair costs of 33 percent to 159 percent above average.

By comparison, the car with the least injury claims as well as the best repair history was the Pontiac Parisienne station wagon. It had injury claim frequency of 45 percent below average and repair costs of 50 percent below average.

An exception was the Saab 900, which despite its small-car status had one of the better injury loss records, although its repair costs were 31 percent to 41 percent above average, depending on whether it was a 2-door or 4-door model.

With apples, hope

Hays County farmer seeds land

AUSTIN (AP) — Apples probably won't become a major agricultural product in Texas any time soon, but Bud Burnett of Hays County is trying to make it a major crop on his farm.

While apples don't even register on the statistical scale of measured Texas-grown products, Burnett has 4,000 apple trees of various varieties that he hopes will be making him a living over the next several years.

"I am serious about the prospect of making apples a viable crop for my farm," Burnett said, "and I hope they become a better identified product in Texas.

Burnett, a retired county judge, began last month marketing the first crop of apples from his 4-year-old orchards.

The Texas apple is a fresh-market apple, as opposed to apples that are stored from a previous season and sold throughout the year. Apples from Washington, Illinois and other northern states are in the produce market all year, being distributed from cold storage as demand requires.

Burnett's apples, and other apples grown in Texas, go to the produce markets and grocery stores as soon as they are harvested. Burnett is selling most of his apples through the Safeway store in San Marcos. As his orchards age and production increases, he hopes to widen his marketing area.

"There are over 2 million people living in this immediate Central Texas area," Burnett said. "There is no reason for my apple crop, or any other fresh-food crop, going unsold. Our apples are fresh from the tree, while all other apples on the market during this time of year have been in storage 8 to 10 months."

Burnett, whose farm is near Wimberley, said his apple production is a 10-year project and includes experimenting with several new varieties of trees. He is being assisted in the program by Hays County Agricultural Agent Cliff Caskey. They have planted and root grafted about seven varieties for fruit production ranging from mid-July into September. He has another group of trees that are experimental varieties for this area.

"I have made some mistakes with the project, but I try not to make them more than twice," Burnett said with a laugh as he pointed out some trees that didn't get good early development.

Caskey said one major problem with apple production in Central Texas has been cotton root rot.

"We have been trying to solve the root-rot problem with improved varieties of apples and other means of experiments," Caskey said, "but there is still that chance of losing a tree to the disease."

A number of people have tried to start an apple industry in Central and West Central Texas, but most have fallen victim to cotton root rot. Gillespie County has five or six apple orchards today. Several growers have gone out of business there due to the root disease.

Gillespie County Agricultural Extension Agent Duery Menzies said several large peach growers tried to develop an apple industry in the county, but most were met with the same old problem: cotton root rot.

"The apples are good, and the prospects are good if continued production is successful," Menzies said, "but most growers shy away from the crop because of the prospect of losses."

Burnett and Caskey agree that the Texas apple is not the prettiest on the produce shelf, but under the peel is quality plus. Specialists point out that apples ripened under the hot Texas sun never attain the pretty color of northern apples since the red pigment needs cooler weather to form. But, they add, it certainly doesn't affect flavor and firmness.

A study cited by Extension Service horticulturist Dr. John Lipe of Fredericksburg confirms this. The study compared Red Delicious apples from Washington and Illinois, Yellow Delicious apples from Washington and Red Delicious apples grown in Fredericksburg. All were bought at supermarkets in late summer.

The qualities measured were sugars, firmness, acidity and malic acid content. In the all-important sugar content, Texas apples contained more than 16 percent, or 2½ percent more than the Washington Red Delicious and 4 percent more than the Illinois Red Delicious and Washington Yellow Delicious.

In taste comparisons, 70 percent of participants chose Fredericksburg apples as the best. Washington Yellow Delicious was a distant second with 11 percent. The Texas apple was also rated tops in texture by 52 percent. Illinois won the color rating.

Burnett, who also grows peaches on his farm, said he is satisfied with some of his apple varieties and will continue to experiment in hopes of finding some that provide even better taste and production. His Red Chief, Mollie Delicious, Smoothie, Prime Gold and Stark Crimson Red Delicious apples are producing well and are popular sellers.

Machinery show set

The ninth annual Golden Spread Antique Machinery Show will take place Sept. 20-21 at the Donald Sell farm southeast of Perryton, Texas. "It seems our biggest advertisers are people who come one year and return the following years bringing friends and relatives with them," Mrs. Richard Sell said. "We often have people express surprise at the quality and quantity of our Show," she continued.

The Show is sponsored by the Golden Spread Antique Machinery Association which was formed for the purpose of presenting the Show as a means of education and appreciation for our agricultural heritage.

Horse drawn equipment, antique tractors, cars, trucks, and steam engines are just a part of the Show. There seems to be something of interest for everybody.

A parade of the machinery actually being driven past the grandstands in review with information given on each vehicle is featured both Saturday and Sunday beginning at 1:30 p.m. The parade lasts about 2 hours and concludes with old-time wheat thrashing. John Deere is the feature tractor this year.

Food will be available on the grounds, and an all day outing for the family is encouraged. Sunday church services begin at 9 a.m.

Directions to the Sell farm from Perryton are 10 miles east on FM 377 (9th Ave.), and 5 miles south on FM 2711; or from Booker, 5 miles south on SH 23, 6 miles east on FM 377, and 5 miles south on FM 2711.

Corn harvest second largest ever, with best per-acre yield

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are harvesting the second-largest corn crop on record and producing their highest yields ever, the Agriculture Department reports.

The department on Thursday estimated the 1986 corn crop at 8.27 billion bushels, down less than 1 percent from last month's initial estimate and off 7 percent from last year's record 8.87 billion-bushel harvest.

While rains in mid-August across much of the Southeast eased drought stress and improved some corn crops, it came too late to help most areas, according to the report.

Weather and crop conditions continued good to excellent in the major producing areas of the Midwest, the department said.

Based on Sept. 1 surveys, the average per-acre yield for corn was estimated at a record 119.7 bushels, up 1.7 bushels from last year's record and down less than 1 percent from the August estimate.

The size of the crop, coupled with large stocks remaining from last year, is causing severe storage problems. Emergency arrangements, including river barges and piles on the ground, are being used in the tightest areas.

Corn is the largest and most valuable American farm crop, used as the basic feed for dairy cattle and livestock as well as adding substantially to U.S. farm exports.

Production of other major crops also is expected to be below last year's levels.

Soybean production, forecast at 1.96 billion bushels, is virtually unchanged from last month but off 6 percent from last year's 2.1 billion bushels. The record was 2.26 billion bushels in 1979.

Wheat production, including winter and spring-planted varieties, was indicated at 2.12 billion bushels, the lowest level since 1978 and down 13 percent from 2.42 billion bushels in 1985. The record was 2.79 billion bushels in 1981.

The cotton crop was estimated at 10.5 million bales, a decrease of 2 percent from August and 22 percent below the 13.4 million bales produced in 1985. The record was 18.96 million bales in 1937.

The flies are taking over—just ask any cattle operator or feedlot. And, to make the fly problem a lot worse, different species of flies require different methods of control. Horn flies and face flies are predominant in cow herds while house and stable flies create the most trouble for feedlots. To control the flies in cow herds, feed additives can be used to kill developing larvae. However, since these flies travel long distances, this method isn't always very effective. Ear tags impregnated with insecticide must be changed every year or two since the flies quickly become resistant. Oiled and dust bags work well when placed where the cattle must rub the bags when entering or leaving an area. In the feedlot, the best defense is good sanitation, eliminating areas where eggs will hatch. Use of chemical sprays, mista and fogs will help control but does not take the place of sanitation practices.

net farm income is likely to decline this year to a range of $26 billion to $30 billion from an indicated $29 billion to $32 billion in 1985.

Retail food prices are expected to rise an average 2 percent to 3 percent in 1986, compared with a 2.3 percent gain last year, the department says.

The report said the "all crops" production index as of Sept. 1 averaged 109 percent of the base year of 1977, down from the 110 percent forecast in October and off from last year's index of 116. The index reached a record high of 118 percent in 1982 before dropping to a 10-year low of 88 percent in 1983.

Soybean yields, at 33.1 bushels per harvested acre, were up from 32.9 bushels last month and down from last year's figure of 34.1 bushels.

Cotton yields were indicated at 565 pounds per acre, down from 573 last month and the 1985 record of 630 pounds.

Other crops included:

—Sorghum, 873 million bushels and 64.7 bushels per acre, compared with 1.1 billion and 66.7 last year.

—Rice, 127.4 million hundredweight and 5,463 pounds per acre, compared with 136 million and 5,437 pounds last year.

—Peanuts, 3.46 billion pounds and a yield of 2,331 pounds per acre, compared with 4.1 billion pounds and 2,810 pounds last year.

—Tobacco, 1.21 billion pounds and a yield of 1,982 pounds per acre, compared with 1.5 billion pounds and 2,196 pounds last year.

Story feted with bridal shower

A bridal shower was held Thursday evening at the E.B. Black House honoring Angela Story of Weatherford, Ok., bride-elect of Greg Bradford.

E.B. Black House site of meeting

Monday evening members of Valeda Study Club met at the E.B. Black House for their first meeting of the new club year.

Dinner was prepared by the yearbook committee including Marjorie Lasiter, Suzanne Stevens, Marcella Bradley, Ruth Fish, Donna Lindeman and Sylvia Khuri.

Club President Lasiter presided over the business session. Roll call was answered with clues as to the identity of the Texas woman in which each member was attired as.

Suzanne Stevens, vice-president, distributed the yearbooks with the theme "Texas Our Texas."

Before the close of the meeting, Marcella Bradley invited everyone to the piano to sing songs from earlier days in Texas.

The next meeting was scheduled at 8 p.m. Sept. 22 in the home of Ruth Fish.

Those present included Mmes. Lasiter, Stevens, Bradley, Fish, Lindeman, Khuri, Juanita Brown, Frances Crume, Betty Gilbert, Norma Martin, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

DR. GOTT

Sunscreens can be helpful

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do sunscreens really help prevent skin cancer? Is it OK to use a sunscreen every day?

DEAR READER — As a general rule, sunscreens block out ultraviolet radiation — the portion of sunlight that causes tanning and seems to be associated with some skin cancers. Therefore, sunscreens will not help prevent all skin cancers, only the types that are sun-related. Unless you have an allergic reaction to the compounds, it is safe to use sunscreens on a daily basis.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My 78-year-old husband has long arms, and when he walks or sits, his hand is always on his penis. This embarrasses me, but he won't tell his doctor about this dirty habit. He's been married eight times. Will he harm his health from feeling himself all the time?

DEAR READER — His physical health won't be affected, but your mental health may be. I suggest that you take the initiative and inform your husband's doctor of the problem. Perhaps there is a physical reason why your husband can't leave himself alone. In any case, I believe that efforts to break his habit would best come from a health professional. Your husband may view your constant suggestions to keep his hands above the table as unjustified nagging. Let his doctor have a crack at this.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Since menopause, I've had seborrheic dermatitis. I have a cortisone cream which I use sparingly, but it helps. Will this condition ever disappear?

DEAR READER — Seborrheic dermatitis is a common, troublesome, chronic skin inflammation. On the scalp, it is called dandruff. The dermatitis usually responds to special shampoos or cortisone cream. It may disappear by itself. The cause is unknown. Dermatologists can often help patients with seborrhea cope more effectively with the ailment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why do people get goosebumps and chills when thinking of something scary or sad?

DEAR READER — Goosebumps and chills are caused by an involuntary reaction called the piloerector reflex. The reflex is triggered by nerves in the spinal cord, causes an erection of the hairs on the skin and is probably a holdover from far-distant human history. It's one of those flight-or-fright reactions we inherited from our prehistoric ancestors.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am allergic to sulfites. How can I find out which wines and foods contain sulfites?

DEAR READER — You will have to check carefully the food you eat. Sulfite allergy can be a real problem for people, in part because the substance is widely used in edibles to retard spoilage. Many food processors are indicating on labels if sulfite has been used or added. In addition, supermarket managers and restaurant owners are becoming more willing to acknowledge when fresh food has been treated with the chemical. As far as I know, winemakers do not list sulfites on their labels.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I know of a teenager who has nausea from different food odors and chronic stomach pain after eating. She had a complete workup and X-rays at a hospital, and the physician said everything was normal and her pain was psychosomatic. When the family asked what that meant, he said, "It's all in her mind. There's nothing wrong with her physically." From that time on, the family physically beat her. They even told outsiders not to believe her if she complains of stomach pain, because she "imagines" it.

DEAR READER — Child abuse takes many forms, and the type you describe is all the more poignant because the physician inadvertently contributed to it.

Psychosomatic medicine — that is, the study of emotional problems as they are expressed in physical complaints — was very much in vogue 30 years ago. I believe that, today, responsible doctors are much less inclined to blame physical ills on the emotions. Some diseases, such as peptic ulcer and asthma, may be made worse by stress, but they do have a treatable physical basis. Saying, "It's all in your mind" often means that the physician has been unable to establish an accurate diagnosis.

We doctors really know pitifully little about disease; blaming an affliction on an emotional state seems to be a medical cop-out. Physicians who discharge patients after diagnosing psychosomatic complaints are performing a real disservice. Patients deserve better treatment than that. In my view, a patient labeled "psychosomatic" needs a referral to another physician — and maybe the doctor needs a psychiatrist to help him work on his own attitude.

Low oil prices help launch chemical firm

HOUSTON (AP) — Low oil prices may be bad for most of Houston's economy, but they are helping Sterling Chemicals Inc. get off to a good start.

"The timing is very good," said Gordon A. Cain, chairman of the newly created company. "The decline in oil prices probably made this transaction possible. The weakness in the dollar also makes this plant more competitive."

Although Sterling Chemicals is a new company, its facilities have been a landmark on Galveston Bay for more than 40 years. The company was formed earlier this year to acquire and operate the Texas City petrochemical complex previously owned by Monsanto Co. in a transaction valued at a little over $200 million, Cain said.

He estimated that Sterling will have sales of about $500 million this year. The company currently employs about 850 workers in Texas City and another 20 at the corporate headquarters in downtown Houston.

Sterling produces primarily commodity chemicals, also called intermediates, that are used in the manufacture of a variety of consumer and industrial products. It also is the only U.S. producer of two specialty products, tertiary butylamine and lactic acid, said J. Virgil Waggoner, president and chief executive officer.

The styrene unit produces 1.5 billion pounds a year, a capacity equaled in the United States only by a plant in Louisiana, Waggoner said.

Sterling has a number of advantages over its competitors, the company's president said. For one, it processes a large volume of raw materials owned by its customers, thereby cutting down substantially on inventory costs.

"We have negotiated several long-term sales and conversion agreements with major petrochemical customers," Waggoner explained. "These agreements are expected to reduce working capital and other capital requirements and eliminate the need to establish a larger marketing and sales staff, as well as provide a more stable market for our products."

Such arrangements result in much closer working relations with customers because they know you are providing a specialty service even if the product is a commodity, he said. Sterling's customers include some of the world's largest chemical companies and integrated oil companies. Monsanto is one of Sterling's top customers, he added.

Another advantage is Sterling's lower overhead compared with its competitors. Waggoner said the company paid only about 20 percent of the replacement cost of the Texas City facilities. The lower capital investment helps to keep the plant's fixed costs down.

As long as oil prices remain relatively low, the chances of other competitors building new plants is minimal, Cain said. Middle Eastern countries such as Saudi Arabia had been expected to construct more large petrochemical facilities to take advantage of low feedstock costs, such plants are no longer as profitable.

J. David Heaney, vice president of administration and corporate secretary, said the chemical industry as a whole should be strong as long as oil prices are below $25-$30 a barrel. Even if oil prices return to their former level, Sterling should have anywhere from two to five additional good years because of the lead time on new plant construction and startup.

"As long as feedstock costs are the same for all, we will be able to compete favorably," Heaney said.

Sterling is owned by a group composed of former Monsanto executives and private investors, including the Sterling Group, which holds 12.4 percent of the chemical company's stock. Cain heads the Sterling Group and also serves as chairman of Vista Chemicals Inc., a company created in 1984 from certain Conoco Chemical Co. operations that Cain once headed.

Although the company's stock is not traded publicly, some of its securities are, Cain said. Sterling may go public in the future, but probably not for at least two years.

Other directors besides Cain and Waggoner are William A. McMinn, former vice president of FMC Corp.; W. Fred Massey, previously with the Bass Brothers Enterprises; James W. Glanville, a partner with the investment banking firm Lazard Freres & Co.; James J. Kerley, former vice chairman of Emerson Electric Co.; and Gilbert Portal, president of Elf Aquitaine Petroleum.

Waggoner, McMinn and Kerley also worked for Monsanto at various times.

Bridal shower honors Lynn Bridges recently

Lynn Bridges, bride-elect of Doug Schroeter, was honored at a bridal shower recently in the fellowship hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

Using the bride's chosen colors of yellow with touches of gray, the serving table was centered with a bouquet of flowers. Small cinnamon rolls, fresh fruit, sausage balls, sandwiches, punch, and coffee were served.

Special guests were the mother of the honoree, Martha Bridges, and the grandmother of the prospective groom, Margaret Schroeter.

The hostess gift was a vacuum cleaner. Hostess included Mary

Dzuik, Sidney Kerr, Janice Conkwright, Barbara Kerr, Helen Rose, Celia Simpson, Ann Combs, Joyce Lomas, Dorothy Brownlow, Rose Brownlow, Pauline Howard, Jean Holbert, Joan Hopper, Sue Malamen, and Velta King.

Miss Bridges and Schroeter will be married Sept. 19 in the First Presbyterian Church of Hereford.

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on a minimum of 20 words. One day is 13 cents per word or $2.60 minimum. Rates below are for consecutive issues, no copy change, and apply to solid ad lines only.

TIMES	RATES	MIN.
1 day per word:	.13	2.60
2 days per word:	.22	4.40
3 days per word:	.31	6.20
4 days per word:	.40	8.00
5th day FREE

Add 9 cents per word for additional days: 10 days (2 free) is 15.20; 15 days (3 free) is 22.40; month 77.80.

Classified display rates apply for special captions, paragraphing, bold type or larger type, and ads not set with full lines. $2.60 per column inch, $2 a column inch for additional insertions, or $1.75 a column inch per month.

LEGALIS
Advertising rates for legal notices are $3.50 per column inch for the first insertion and $3 per column inch for consecutive issues.

Deadlines for classified ads are 3 p.m. daily for the next day's edition; 3 p.m. Friday for Sunday's edition.

Cash is required on advertisements under $10.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in Classified Ads and legal notices. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. In case of errors not the fault of the advertiser, an additional insertion will be given.

Legal Notices PUBLIC NOTICE: NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT BY AUTHORITY OF THE TEXAS ELECTION CODE, CHAPTER 42, THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' COURT IS PROPOSING TO CHANGE PROCEDURES BY WHICH DEAF SMITH COUNTY RESIDENTS VOTE IN TWO WAYS:

1. The Commissioners' Court proposes to change from the present "paper ballot" system to an "automated tabulating system." (A.T.S.) With the A.T.S., the voter will still be able to "mark" their own ballot.

2. By converting to an automated system, the Commissioners' Court will be permitted to consolidate County voting precincts from the present number, 12 down to 7 (or 8) so long as no one precinct has more than 5,000 registered voters. (Commissioners' Precincts will not be changed.) The new system will be more cost-effective, reliable, and give faster results on election day.

PUBLIC COMMENTS OR QUESTIONS ARE INVITED. CONTACT: DAVID RULAND Deaf Smith County Clerk Courthouse Hereford, Tx. 79045 806-364-1746

A PUBLIC HEARING WILL BE HELD AT 7:00 P.M. TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1986, AT THE COMMUNITY CENTER, HEREFORD, TEXAS. ANY INTERESTED PERSONS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND. 51-3c
