So. Association Approves Renewal Of Local Schools

That Hereford's application for renewal of membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has been approved this week announced by George Graham, superintendent.

The notice came from the Texas Education Agency and was made by Gordon Worley, chairman, Texas Executive Committee.

"However, the Southern Association instructed me to advise you that the physical plant and facilities are inadequate," Mr. Worley said. "The Association hopes that this condition will soon be worked out in conformance with the standards."

The Hereford Schools are members of the Association of long standing, according to Mr. Graham.

Q. How can I remove the paper label on a bottle?

A. It can be readily removed by first wetting it and then holding it near a flame of the stove. This will prevent cracking without injuring the goods.

Q. How can I preserve soft rubber goods?

A. Suspend the articles, or rest them on a rack, several inches from the bottom of an enclosure, in which place a small quantity of kerosene. The vapor arising will prevent cracking.

Q. How can I aid digestion of food?

A. The slow chewing of food cannot be too strongly emphasized. Chew slowly, no matter what you are eating and this will aid immeasurably in the proper digestion of the food.

Q. How can I improve obstinate cigarette stains from the fingers?

A. Try using well-soaped pumice stone and hot water. The lighter stains can be removed with plain lemon juice.

for receipts used in the Hereford Brand Cook Book in 1942, and recently several requests for Bulgarian Chicken have come in. Mrs. Seth B. Holman gave us the recipe for the cook book. She had gotten it from a friend in Waco.

Mrs. Homer Fox hunted up the recipe for us and here it is. It can be company fare or as a special dish for the family, for a filling luncheon or evening meal.

Bulgarian Chicken
INGREDIENTS—Place 1 large onion chopped fine in bottom of roaster. Place on top enough quartered young chickens to cover bottom of roaster. Season well with salt and pepper and make red with paprika. Add ¼ pound of butter, margarine may be used, 2 or 3 cups of stock or water. Cover and place in hot oven. When chicken is brown turn and let brown on other side or about one hour, (chicken should be done). Remove chicken and add 1½ cups of well washed rice to mixture in roaster. Add enough hot water for rice to cook, return to moderate oven and cook until rice is done. Place chicken on top of rice the last few minutes of cooking to heat thoroughly before serving.

Serve on large platter, making mound of rice in center and laying chicken around it. Garnish with parsley.

The Four Freedoms And Their Final Outcome

"Freedom of Religion, Freedom of Speech, Freedom from Want and Freedom from Fear."

The above "Four Freedoms", as outlined by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt were recalled here this week by Dr. James P. Cornett, president of West Texas State College, when he spoke in Hereford. He ignored the first two freedoms as basic, attacking the last two as being foremost among the causes of our troubles in America today.

People who have lived through the depression years of 1931 and 1932, thence into the current boom period since World War II will probably be the first to agree. Since 1941, the United States has complacently drifted toward a Utopian life. Government price controls and subsidies have attempted to establish a "Freedom from Want"; Social Security and Unemployment Insurance programs have attempted to create a feeling of "Freedom from Fear."

The result: America never faced a more dire economic situation and, worse still, America never in history had more to fear.

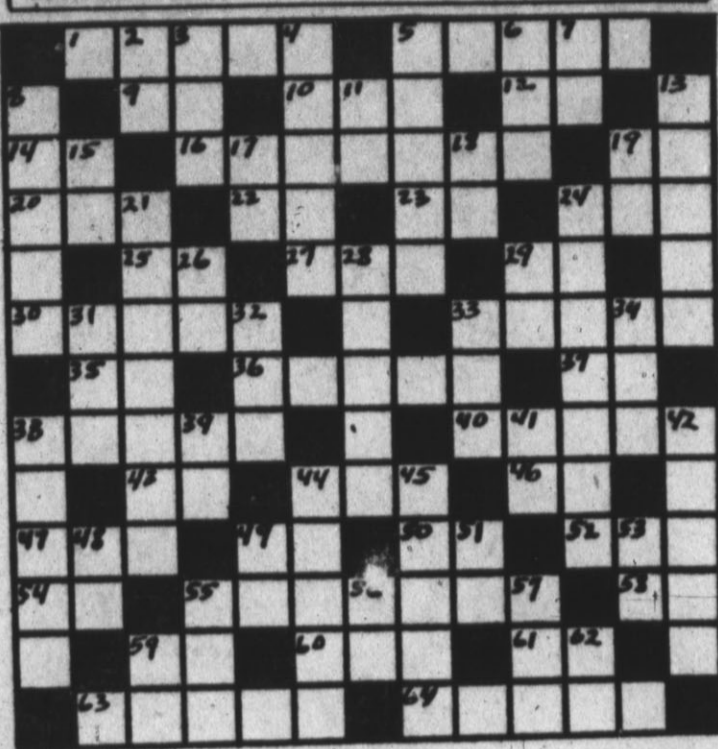

In line with Dr. Cornett's talk was a recent news item concerning four domesticated white ducks which caused quite a stir back in New York State.

The ducks, having lost the vigor possessed by their wild cousins, were frozen in a thin sheet of ice as they swam on a river near Staradale.

As most people know, wild ducks who must take care of themselves or perish, avoid such traps by paddling with one foot, even while sleeping. The fat, domesticated ducks, however, long soothed by a "Freedom from Want" and the "Freedom from Fear", became too soft for survival and were thus trapped by nature. They were saved, yes! Saved by the government, subject also to the whims and fancies, the dictates and the mercies of their rescuers.

Too much dependence, it seems is no more beneficial to many ducks than to many people. Both appear to lose perspective when confronted with "Freedom from Want" and "Freedom from Fear". We admit, though, that the duck's plight is usually more easily recognized.

I'll Never Forget

By Mr. and Mrs. Ira Ricketts

I'll never forget the spring and summer of 1902 when my father, A. J. Hughes, had a case of wanderlust and made a trip to Deaf Smith county and returned home in Navarro county informed the family he had purchased a section of land and we were moving to Hereford in the fall. Being sixteen at the time, I thought it was the end of the world for me. At that time the nearest conception I had of this country was it was the jumping off place and inhabited by jackrabbits, outlaws and fleas, especially fleas as we had really heard tall tales about the huge fleas here.

But father had such a glowing account of the pure atmosphere and lack of flies we tried to think it would be adventurous to say the least and as it had been uncommonly unfavorable in Central Texas that year our plans went forward for our move in the fall.

On the first Tuesday in November, 1902, Dad and my oldest brother, Frank, left Frost, Texas with our stock, household and farm possessions in an immigration car. Dad had wanted to vote so did just before starting on the move. Mother and the rest of the children stayed with grandmother until December when we left Mertens for our new home. The rain there that fall had been terrible and there seemed to be no bottom to the soil. We rode in the caboose to Hillsboro a distance of sixteen miles. The roadbed was so soft the track would spread and allow the car wheels to leave the rails and a halt would be made so that the crew and men passengers with the aid of crow bars and other implements might assist the wheels back in position then we would resume our westward journey.

On arriving in Amarillo after dark we started out for a place to stay all night. A cousin, Allan Hughes, had made the trip with us. After stopping at three or four rooming houses and being told no room was available we finally found a one horse rooming house with one bed and made pallets where we spent the night but didn't do much sleeping as there was open saloons on every corner near and more noise than we were used to.

We arrived in Hereford December 12, 1902. I spent the night with a former classmate, Clara Thomas, in Hereford and during the night a snow fell which was something I was unaccustomed to.

Dad and Frank with the help of neighbors had built a barn and shed which we occupied until the residence was finished and with the rest of our neighbors we gathered and used prairie hay (Cow-dung) for fuel. We had a large kettle we used fuel oil in for soaking the chips which made a very hot fire. Dad decided as there was a prairie dog town on our farm he'd try some prairie dog steak. They reminded him of squirrels and he thought they having no trees to climb had gone underground. Going underground must have been harder work for them as no amount of cooking could get them tender enough to eat.

I attended school in Hereford the rest of that school term. I stayed at my uncle, George Hughes, and attended school with my cousins at the present site of Central School.

In the summer of 1903 what is now Frio community began with the building of the first school building there. It was built by the first patrons of the school. We used cane bottom chairs and our fathers built individual desks from apple crates or some such material and our first teacher was Miss Laura V. Hanner, a lifelong friend of Mrs. Maggie Stanley, a pioneer of Frio community. In the summer of 1903 my family let me return for a visit to my former home, which made me better satisfied with my new home.

When we first came to Hereford the herds of wild antelope furnished sport for hunters who didn't mind punishing their horses by running them down. There were very few fences to bother. We had severe sand and wind storms but not as much blowing dust as there is now for there was very little ground broken out.

The winter of 1902-03 was a very severe one. Many suffered from snow blindness and snow burn. It was very easy to get lost and wander for hours in the wind blown snow.

Ira Ricketts came to Hereford with his family in the fall of 1900. They came by covered wagon from Ellis county, Texas and were on the road three weeks. It rained on them continuously from Quitaque to Hereford and the water was running from one lake to another.

Despite the fact that Terry County bank deposits for the year 1952 continued their post-1950 boom slump, business as a general rule through the year held steady or was slightly better than in the preceding 12 months. The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher has a proposal on the tax subject this week, the value of which you can decide for yourself.

Dear editor; If it's not one thing it's another. Here we are just getting over the crest of Christmas and what happens? Congress meets. Not only that, but the Texas Legislature is getting underway.

Understand, I'm not opposed to these legislative bodies meeting, that's their job, but I would like to remind em of a few things. Take Congress. The Republicans are in control in Washington now, but I'd like to remind em that Republican taxes are just as hard to pay as Democratic taxes. A lot of people voted for a change, but I think what they were voting for wasn't a change in tax collectors but a reduction in tax collections, although I think it's my duty to let em in on the news that if taxes come down it'll be so little you can't feel it. It'll probably be about like the relief that comes from getting stung by four red ants instead of five.

But I have a proposal to make to Congress. While everybody knows candidates have been opposed to high taxes ever since Jim Ferguson thought up the slogan, everybody also knows taxes have been going up all the time, regardless of who's in. And it hasn't been the politicians' fault altogether. Everybody is in favor of reducing public expenditure everywhere except in his own area, and when you multiply that by every area in the United States, you're back where you started from.

So here's my proposal: of the Republicans in Washington will forget about reducing taxes and just hold the fort when it is, that'll be something. Don't waste any time trying to reduce taxes, just don't raise em any. Just stopping the trend with out reversing it, will be such a feat-most people will consider the campaign promise to reduce has been fulfilled. A man driftin out to sea may not be out of danger of drownin just because his driftin has been halted, but it's least would be encouragin.

You understand of course this does not apply to a pension I have slated to come my way, to any project which will improve this area. What Congress wants to do is eliminate the inefficient projects, and we ain't got no like that around here.

As for what's gonna happen in the Texas Legislature don't be lookin at me for the answer. It's hard enough to tell what they've done after they're through, not to mention before they've started.

Yours faithfully
J. A.

Russian Peace Talk Clouds Real Motive

Premier Joseph Stalin's latest assurances, in answer to a series of questions put by a New York Times writer, are an example in the field of propaganda. The Russian dictator has, on other occasions, issued statements which sounded reasonable enough to the unsuspecting. However, the peaceful words of the Dictator have always turned out to be a cloak of a brutal aggressive policy, followed by the Soviet Union.

There is no reason at this time to suspect that the Russians have changed their policies and there is little hope that Stalin's latest answers are to be valued more highly than previous propaganda statements. President Harry Truman, commenting on the Russian dictator's latest expressions, says the Soviet Union would welcome a stepped-up war in the Far East, which would give that country a freer hand in Western Europe.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, the President-elect, has had no comment on the statement as this is written. Secretary of State-designate John Foster Dulles has responded to the Stalin statement by announcing that the United States was always ready to cooperate in settling international problems and that the proper channels, such as the United Nations, were always open to any Soviet overtures.

The Soviet Government newspaper, Izvestia, has said that Stalin's answers meant that the Soviet Union was prepared to solve, by means of conferences, all outstanding unsettled international questions including the Korean question. However, the editorial discussion in both Izvestia and Pravda made it clear there was a wide difference between the Moscow and Washington viewpoints and stressed the fact that Stalin's statement in no way indicated a willingness by the Russians to compromise their previous positions.

If the Russians are unwilling to compromise their previous position on outstanding international questions, there is little reason for any conference or any follow-up of Premier Stalin's propaganda overtures. The major result of the questions put to Premier Stalin will probably be the tremendous amount of publicity given the Russian's replies, which publicity will help to becloud the real designs of the Soviet Union.

SUNDAY CURRENT QUESTION

Auditorium, Youth Center, Housing Project Cited As No. 1 Needs Here

As a resident of the community, what one thing do you think would help Hereford most?

Mrs. R. A. Fullwood -- 206 McKinley

I think a youth center is the nicest thing that Hereford could have. I have some grandchildren coming on that would certainly make good use of one. I think we need one.

Mrs. R. E. Greathouse -- 313 Avenue C

I guess it is a pet peeve of mine but I think something should be done about the way the Hereford people are shut out of the lettuce sheds. Some arrangement where the local people could learn to take care of the lettuce would be a big help. There is too much money going out of Hereford because of the migratory labor.

Lyle Blanton -- 701 East Third

We need a sportatorium that is big enough to take care of the community at large.

Mrs. Wayne Edwards -- 113 B Avenue

A new civic auditorium.

Mrs. Sam Nelson -- 236 Avenue J

They need a good teenage youth recreation program.

There is nothing for the teenagers to do,

Mrs. C. J. Patton -- 127 Avenue B

One thing I think Hereford needs most is a youth center. Something for the teenagers to do. Somewhere they can all go and have a good time.

Mrs. O. M. Dickey -- 611 Miles Avenue

I believe a modern public housing project is our greatest need, since we have so many transient workers coming here during seasons. We need to provide living quarters for them. We would get a better class of people and we need to provide better housing for them to live in.

Buster, our fifth grader, was almost as proud of himself as if he had really won the big money on Groucho Marx's program "You Bet Your Life" last Wednesday night because he knew the correct answer.

He made a special report on the planet "Pluto" last year in Mrs. Braddy's science class and her teachin' must have been pretty effective for him to remember it a whole year.

We don't know who puts up the safety markers along our county roads but after the wreck at our pump house corner last Sunday afternoon in which the Cartwright boy of Dimmitt was so seriously injured we would like to recommend to the Safety Council that they recommend to whoever is responsible that some "Slow" or "Danger" signs be placed at this corner.

Within the past couple of years at least three cars have overturned at this little jog in the road and a number of others have missed the culvert and had to be pulled out of the ditch.

Why do our dry goods merchants have to make a display of such pretty prints that make us want to stay in the house and sew when every time we look out all we see is cotton stalks and maize stubble that has to be plowed under.

Mamie's hairdo probably won't do anymore to change styles in Washington than our President-elect's choice of hats. Murray for a leader who has the courage to make up his own mind.

We Aren't Peeved

We all like to brag a bit. Maybe even stretch things once in a while. A little polish here and there will help almost any true story, but if you carry things too far it can easily become ridiculous.

Such, we believe, is what the Canyon News this week did to Hereford's population figures. A News editorial declares that Hereford's population is 9,000.

Actually, the figure is more likely 6,000. The government in 1950 counted us at 5,207. The Chamber of Commerce, even when bragging a bit, has never exceeded 6,250, and this figure was estimated to include surrounding areas not incorporated within the City Limits.

We'll make it though, within a few years. Meanwhile, we aren't a bit peeved. Did you ever hear of a girl, no matter how homely, getting mad when a fellow told her how pretty she looked?

The Ricketts family bought a section of land in the Jumbo community with money they brought with them in a wooden box from their home in Ellis county. This place was fourteen miles from Hereford and at that time there was no fences between there and Hereford. The first school there was a small one room building known as the Ricketts school where they went to school until 1908 when the place was sold and they moved to town.

In 1906 Annie Hughes and Ira

Ricketts were married and we can never forget the many changes that have taken place in Deaf Smith county since we first came here having seen it come from what was then considered a desert to the garden spot of the world. We remember the blizzards of 1906. The first one of the season descended on us in the night of October 21 and by morning some late peaches had the north side covered with half an inch of ice, still made good pies.

We had pretty weather then until November 18 when we had a three-day snow and blizzard with snow drifting to where they had to shovel snow off sheds to save the stock from smothering. Then we had another blizzard on April 21.

In the fall of 1906 we remember the many prairie grass fires. One, especially had one started in New Mexico and burned to within a short distance of Hereford. All the men would go with brooms, plover, gunnysacks, and anything they thought might help stop a fire.

We'll never forget the hard winter of 1918-19, the dust bowl days of the thirties or the wonderful changes we've experienced in the fifty-odd years since we first saw Hereford.

Mrs. Ira Scott and Mrs. Elmer Combs have been elected as the new Sadie Lee Oliver 4-H leaders. The girls were fortunate in getting these two leaders to take the place of Mrs. C. A. Saulley, who resigned recently.

Mrs. Ira Scott has been leader of the Happy Homes 4-H group in the past and is well qualified for the job.

Mrs. Elmer Combs, even though she is new at the job, will make an excellent leader for the girls. She has two sons who are members of the Plains 4-H club and her husband serves as leader for the group.

A few of the new duties of Mrs. Combs and Mrs. Scott will be as club advisors. They will work closely with the 4-H club officers and will help members carry out the plans made by the club.

We know that these two women will do an excellent job with the club.

Paste for Tin
A paste which is effective for attaching labels to tin can be made of four parts shellac, two parts borax, and thirty parts water. Boil until the shellac is dissolved. Usually, new tin has a greasy surface and should be cleaned with an alkali or benzine before attempting to apply any labels.

Clogged Basins
To open clogged wash basins, mix a handful of salt with a handful of soda and force it down the pipe; leave for about one hour, then rinse the pipe thoroughly with boiling water.

Nerves
If the nerves are tired, try placing a hot water bottle at the base of the spine. This is also an excellent remedy for insomnia.

Black Leather
To renovate all small black leather articles, beat the yolks of two eggs and the white of one egg with one tablespoon of alcohol and one teaspoon of sugar. Stir in enough powdered ivory black to make a thin paste. Rub well into the surface of the article.

Gravy Hints
Lumpy gravy can be smoothed

by beating with an eggbeater until the lumps disappear. If it is hot brown enough add a tablespoon of strong coffee. By adding a tablespoon of cream to brown gravy you will make it a delicious brown.

Scorched Spots
Scorched spots can be removed by wetting the spots with water and covering with borax or cornstarch, rubbing it in well. Let it dry before removing it.

Chilled Banana Cream
Whip a cup of heavy cream. Stir into it a tablespoon of gelatin dissolved in a little warm water, a teaspoon of lemon juice, a pound of peeled bananas rubbed through a sieve, and two tablespoons of sugar. Put into a mold or bowl and place in the ice box until set.

Streu's Diary

January 16, 1953

DEAR DIARY:

You've had a few week's vacation, but believe me, I haven't! Can't remember when I have had so much to do and so little time to do it. What with inventory here and Dimmitt, with moving Dimmitt stock to this store and getting it sorted out and put away—and with studying this Television business and getting sales and service set-up for it, I have been busy as a one-armed potato sorter.

I have taken a bunch of kidding about obstructing the wheels of progress on this TV business—but—we're just about ready to go—have been attending schools and shows and learning all that we could about the stuff before we jumped into it. Will have an announcement soon regarding the only honest to goodness 1953 models of TV on the market. It will pay you to wait a few days. Meanwhile, if you are interested, see Wendell Burdine—he is the lad who will be selling the finest TV in the world—RCA Victor!!!

News of interest to the ladies—we have accumulated literally scads of odds and ends—broken lots—close out patterns and things and stuff—all of which will be featured in our stupendous 29th Anniversary sale to be announced soon. Start saving your odd pennies for this annual event. I'll guarantee that you can buy enough bridge prizes—wedding gifts and next Christmas gifts to last you for the year—and at give-away prices. Watch the Brand for date-and items.

For the two-or three listeners who enjoy Streu's radio program, we will be back on the air at 2:20 P. M. starting January 26th.

I am a sad sack, indeed—that John Estes beat me in a golf match a few weeks ago—a thing that should never happen, but did. I will probably never live it down—and will hear about it periodically for the rest of my natural days. Woe is me! Should Jimmy Gillentine beat me, I believe I'd just quit the game.

Truman's ordering of the tide-lands oil to the Navy Department reminds me of a small boy going out and throwing rocks at the chickens because he got a whipping.

Battle Lines Drawn For Capitol Fracas

WHEN Dwight D. Eisenhower takes the oath of office next Tuesday, the GOP will be in control at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue for the first time in 20 years. The 83rd Congress, which has been marking time since it convened Jan. 3, will be able to get down to the business of lawmaking in earnest.

Among the first items up for action will be the new Federal budget submitted by outgoing President Harry S. Truman last week.

The Truman budget for fiscal 1954—the year beginning July 1—calls for the heaviest spending in history except for World War II. There is plenty of sentiment in Capitol Hill for making a big slice in the 78.6-billion total but Eisenhower advisors are cautious in predicting just how much can be cut.

Democrats Organize

The Democrats, meanwhile, assigned key committee posts to liberals in the party in a move to counter balance Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wisc.), chairman of the Committee on Government Operations, and to strengthen the internationalist wing on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Democratic Steering Committee, headed by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, party floor leader, assigned Senators Henry M. Jackson of Washington, John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri to McCarthy's committee. All three are new Senators known as strong party fighters and members of the liberal faction.

Nervous over the expressed interest of Sen. Taft in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Democrats appointed two of the most ardent internationalists in Congress—Senators Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Mike Mansfield of Montana—to that group.

Taft said he was interested in exerting a "conservative influence" on the Foreign Relations Committee. The men who joined him as newcomers on the Committee make it seem more like an "isolationist influence." They are:

Sen. William Langer of North Dakota, the only man still in the Senate who voted in 1945 against the Charter of the United Nations.

Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, who has been closely allied with Taft on many world problems.

Sen. William F. Knowland, of California, one of the most persistent critics of the Truman Administration's policy in China. He generally is regarded as opposed to the Europe first concept, but not necessarily to the ideas behind the Western defense community.

Purge

Anti-Semitism in the Kremlin

Moscow's announcement that a group of Russian doctors—mostly Jews—had been arrested for "medical sabotage" could be the beginning of the long-expected Jewish purge in the Soviet Union.

The doctors were arrested on charges of killing two top Russian leaders and plotting the deaths of others on instructions from British and American intelligence services and Zionist organizations. The announcement said the doctors "admitted" killing Andrei A. Zhdanov, a leading member of the Politburo until his death in 1948, and Alexander S. Scherbakov, chief political administrator of the Red Army until he died in 1945.

The official Moscow announcement made it clear that more arrests were yet to come.

Charges of Zionist espionage directed by the United States filed Moscow papers and closely paralleled similar charges that have been repeated in the Soviet press since the trial of Rudolf Slansky in Prague. There was no doubt after editorials appeared on the subject in Pravda and Izvestia of the bitterly anti-Zionist attitude of the Soviet government.

In Washington, State Department officials saw in the purge reflections of an "extraordinary and growing sense of internal insecurity."

In London, authorities on Eastern Europe discounted the theory that Moscow was bent principally on winning over Arab converts by attacks on Israel and on Jews. They pointed out that the current Kremlin policy has gone far beyond this. They believe Stalin evidently considers it now is expedient to blur the distinction hitherto drawn by Communist apologists between anti-Zionism and anti-Semitism, and to use the Jews as scapegoats for Eastern Europe's political and economic shortcomings. This was essentially the same basis the Nazis used for their extermination campaign against Jews.

FOCUS ON THE CHANGE OF COMMAND

Internal Security

WASHINGTON observers expect a new effort by Congress to rake Reds out of the teaching profession in the wake of a Senate Internal Security subcommittee report that hundreds of American school teachers are Communists.

In a 13-page document, the subcommittee recommended rooting out Communists in U.S. schools "to protect future generations."
"Despite the unquestioned loyalty and self-sacrificing devotion to duty of the preponderant bulk of America's teachers," the report said, "there are yet many hundreds of teachers who are Communists."

Communist Not Fit

These subversive elements in the educational system, the report went on, spread their influence widely in the community. It added:

"A Communist is not a fit person to be placed or retained in a position to influence the minds of the youth of America."

The Senate group specifically proposed that state legislators "probe the situation, as was done in New York in 1940-42. In addition, the subcommittee recommended that it be empowered to continue its own inquiry in the educational field.

Sen. Taft of Ohio said he was not in favor of investigating individual teachers, but that he did favor a search for subversives in colleges where there was evidence of organized Communist groups. Taft, the Senate majority leader, will work out how Congressional committees will divide up the investigative chore.

U.N. Probe

In another action, the subcommittee blasted the U.S. State Department again for its handling of the job of screening Americans employed by the United Nations and called for further investigation to fix responsibility.

It is clear the issue of U.S. Reds employed in the U.N. is far from dead. The probe is almost certain to be renewed as the subcommittee chairman, Nevada Democratic Sen. McCarran, has recommended the emphasis in any new investigation should be expected to be on the responsibility of the outgoing Administration.

President Truman has issued a new executive order which provides for a new system of checking on the loyalty of U.S. citizens on the U.N. staff.

The U.N. and the State Department have been seeking to shift to each other the responsibility for not removing U.N. employees deemed unfit. U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie has declared he encountered delays and difficulties in getting information from the State Department about employees.

On the other hand, officials in Washington declared the State Department filed derogatory reports with the U.N. on 41 employees since 1949. They said 10 of these employees still are on the U.N. payroll. The officials said the U.N. on the average lagged 15 months between the time it received adverse reports and the firing of employees.

In Short

Predicted: by key members of the House Armed Services Committee, that Congress will press for early action to break the Korean stalemate if President-elect Eisenhower does not do so.

Pledged: by Egypt's Premier Mohammed Naguib, that "only over our dead bodies" will British troops remain in the Nile Valley. The outburst shocked British diplomats in the midst of negotiations on the Sudan and Suez Canal Zone with Naguib.

Invested: by Pope Pius in solemn ceremonies at the Vatican, 24 new Cardinals including one American, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles.

Issued: by Japan, with U.S. approval, a warning that Japanese and U.S. warplanes will take steps to repel any future unauthorized flights over Japanese territory. The warning, although no country was named, was clearly directed at Soviet Russia.

Sidelights

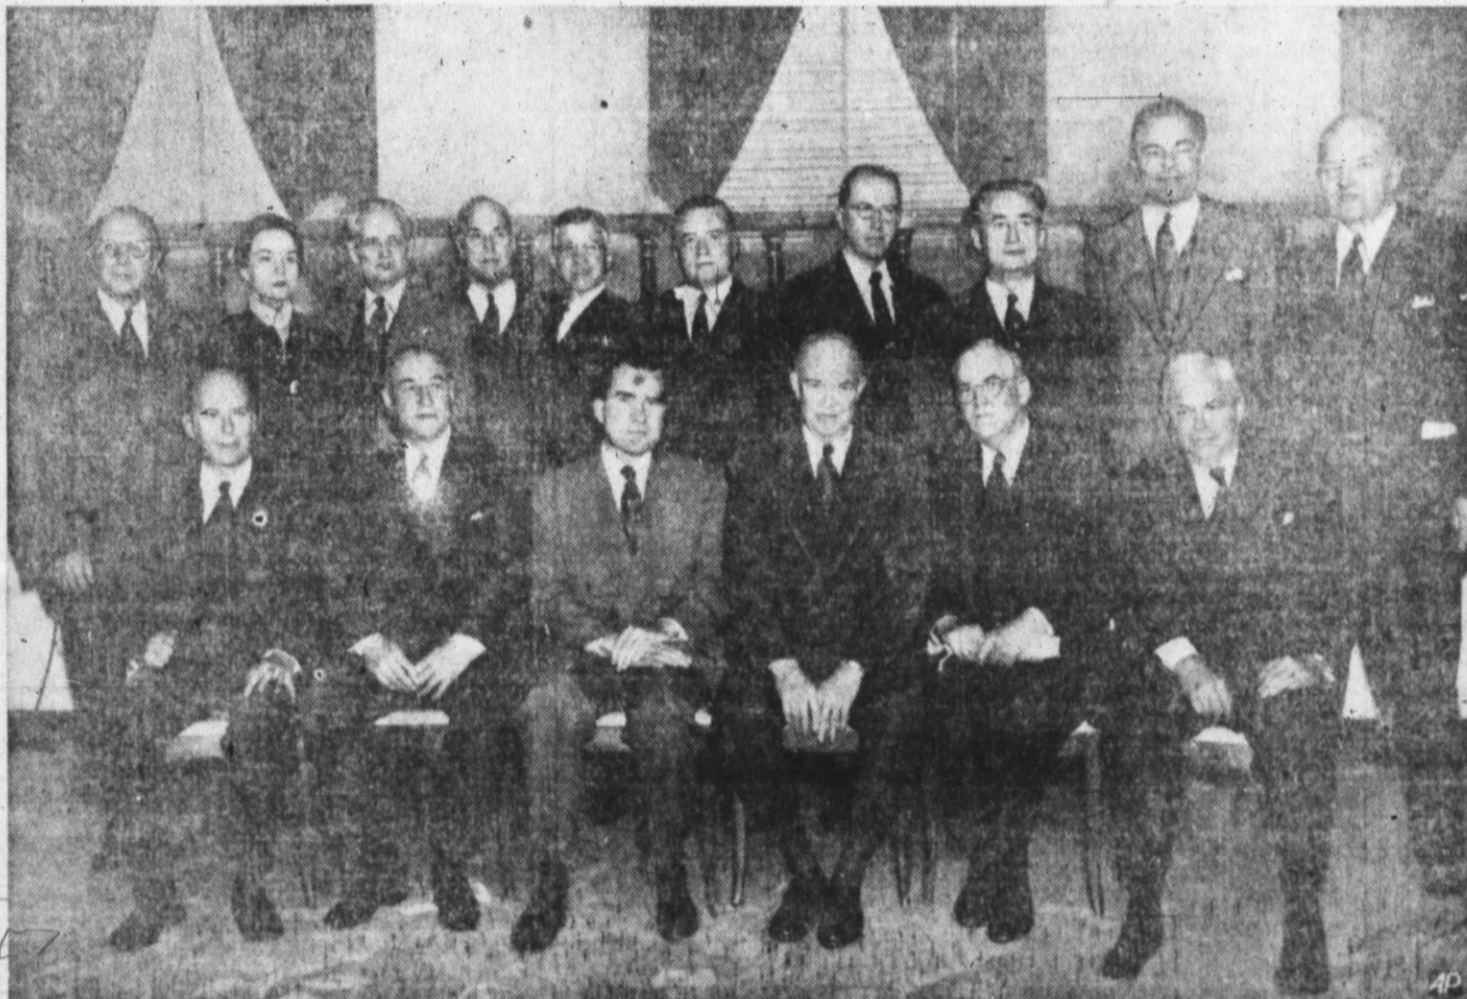

● In Washington, Republicans announced one big inaugural problem has been solved. Housing accommodations for their mascot, a "Queen Elephant" named Miss Burma, have been found—the paint shop of the District of Columbia Fire Department.

● In New York, ovens at a metal company turning out bronze medals for President-elect Eisenhower's inauguration were going so fast and furiously to beat the Jan. 20 deadline, they blew up. The production schedule was set back two days.

● In Minneapolis, police hunted for two burglars with bad hangovers—or worse. The pair made off with a pint of whiskey and a half-filled wine jug from a local apartment. The whiskey was as advertised but the jug contained straight anti-freeze.

● In Fuerstenfeldbruck, Germany, the U.S. Air Force's 36th Fighter-Bomber Wing picked its Airmen of the Month: Sgt. Gene Hittler.

● In Indianapolis, a Methodist minister, arrested twice recently for exceeding the speed limit, gave the invocation at the inauguration of Gov. George N. Craig, who has declared an all-out war on speedsters.

European Defensive Agreements Stalled

SINCE the end of World War II, the Kremlin has used every trick in the book to keep West Germany off balance.

The Soviet masterminds have promised German unification and "free" elections. They have used threats and launched innumerable peace feelers.

It has long been evident to Western strategists that Russia is more sensitive to developments in West Germany than anywhere else. Any new Western move there never fails to stir up a quick reaction in Moscow. The Russians are well aware that a vacuum in the middle of Europe works to their advantage.

The proposal to rearm West Germany under the European army project and to set up a European defensive federation right on Russia's doorstep set off another chain reaction of threats and promises from the Kremlin. For awhile, it looked like West Europe was about to make a very effective contribution in the fight against Russian aggression.

It didn't take long for the bottom to drop out, however. The French balked at German rearmament. The Germans wanted more for less. The Russians relaxed.

When he was NATO Supreme Commander, President-elect Eisenhower saw in the six-nation European army the best, if not the only, means of overcoming French prejudices against rearmament.

Despite guarantees from the U.S. and Britain, the French didn't see it that way. They did not like the idea of giving arms to Germans again, no matter what. The issue became a prime domestic political question in Paris. It caused even more instability in an already shaky government.

The French crisis over the European army plan boiled to the surface when the center parties in Parliament withdrew their support from former Premier Antoine Pinay and helped bolster rightist backers of Charles De Gaulle, a staunch opponent of the European army.

The new French premier, Rene Mayer, threw Allied officials into a quandary by announcing he would subordinate the European army project to an agreement on the Saar and new negotiations on the treaty. The dropping of Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, author of the plan for pooling West Europe's coal and steel production, also caused some consternation among Western diplomats.

It appeared that the whole European defense project was so badly snagged that only vigorous action by Eisenhower could save it.

Responsible Allied sources expressed hope that John Foster Dulles, incoming Secretary of State, will personally bring Eisenhower's plan of intervention to Europe.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, whose political career is at stake in a national election this year, sought, meanwhile, to meet with France's new foreign minister, Georges Bidault, to see what can be done about rescuing the stalled army plan.

HARRY S. TRUMAN, who took on the job of President of the United States in a dramatic hour in April, 1945, will step down Tuesday after almost eight of the most momentous years in American history.

To his Republican successor, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Truman will pass on a series of dangerous President's course, of action in dealing with them may determine whether there will be peace or war.

For Truman, the return to private life will come as a relief. Not many Presidents have felt otherwise on completing their terms in office.

The final judgment on President Truman's regime rests with history. He certainly has not been the most popular of Presidents—not the most hated. Controversies of one kind or another have raged about him almost continuously since he took the oath of office following the sudden death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Basis for Judgment

It would be a mistake to minimize Truman's impact on his times. He was

Quote

W. Averell Harriman, outgoing Mutual Security Administrator in an appeal to Congress to pass the full $7,600,000,000 President Truman asked for in his budget for foreign aid: "To make any less an effort in the year ahead—to falter or settle for half-measures—would jeopardize our security and the unity of the free world. It is essential to our joining with the entire mass of the burden of defending freedom. Much more is at stake—it would risk further Kremlin expansion by doing too little, too late."

the man who ordered the first atomic bomb dropped, the man who set in motion the doctrine which bore his name for quick aid to Greece and Turkey to halt Communism there, the man who worked relentlessly for the formation of an Atlantic Alliance, the man who ordered U.S. troops into action in Korea to halt a flagrant Communist aggression. These are the things for which Harry Truman will be remembered. Historians will base their judgments of him on them.

In a radio-television address, the President has said his personal farewell to the people. He recounted his years in the White House and declared he had done his job to the best of his ability.

Of all the problems Dwight D. Eisenhower will take over from President Truman Tuesday, peace in Korea is by far the most critical.

An honorable peace in Korea, Eisenhower says, will be the foremost goal of his new Administration. He has not indicated what steps he may undertake to achieve it. Whatever course of action he elects presumably will be influenced by his personal tour of the war zone.

Middle East Impasse

In Western Europe, Eisenhower will face the pressing issue of West German rearmament and how to get on with it. The question is closely allied to the future success of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the problems of which Eisenhower knew intimately as Supreme Commander. In the Middle East, Eisenhower will be concerned with the tense impasse in Egypt and Iran growing out of nationalist resentment over British military and economic concessions.

In addition, both Eisenhower and his Secretary of State-designate, John Foster Dulles, are pledged to work out some strategy that will put the Soviets on the propaganda defensive behind the iron curtain.

At home, Eisenhower's number one problem will be how to avoid a recession. Economists say the present prosperity will continue for at least a year or two, but after that defense expenditures will lag and private industry may lose some of its current impetus. This could usher in a serious recession which Eisenhower's economic advisors must be ready for.

In his final economic message to Congress, President Truman said he foresees prosperity at least until 1954, but cautioned that 1955-56 will bring a very serious threat of recession.

There was some disagreement between the President's economic advisors on the possible length of present prosperity. Some saw no danger of a recession in the next few years while others were inclined to take the President's view that 1955 and 1956 will be very critical years.

Political Headaches Ahead

Despite the harmonious relations now existing between the new Republican-controlled Congress and the President-elect, there are some political headaches ahead. Eisenhower's appointment as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Capitol Hill, Eisenhower's question is: How long will the uneasy truce between Sen. Robert A. Taft and Eisenhower last?

Strong Presidents have never had an easy time with Congress, and this time the majority leaders of both houses, and many committee chairmen, are men who fought Eisenhower's nomination.

With these and other problems as a backdrop, Eisenhower met with his entire Cabinet and other key appointees. Eisenhower aides said the full-dress conferences, held in New York, amounted to a review of all these issues.

The appointment, meanwhile, of Harvard's President, James B. Conant, to be U.S. High Commissioner in Germany received a generally favorable reception in Washington.

Officials in Bonn called the nomination of Conant "a fortunate choice."

FOIBLES Fancy and Plain

By Kent Snare

See where Baylor picked Bulldog Turner, late of Hardin-Simmons and the Big Bad Bears as their line coach to replace Mike Michalske . . . They got a good'n to replace a good'n . . . I haven't heard where Big Mike is headed; who will be the line coach at Texas Aggies or the head coach at North Carolina U. altho Stuart Holcomb, present mentor at Purdue, is the latest name being circulated in that connection . . . Seems like Bowden Wyatt is definitely Arkansas bound . . . The Football Rules Committee of the National Collegiate Association really dropped a combo A & H bomb on the football world last Wednesday when they rewrote the rule, instituted in 1941, which permitted unlimited substitutions any time the clock was halted and single substitutions between plays while the clock was still in operation . . . The new regulation, roughly here, and not verbatim, since I have not seen it, states: "that players removed from a game during the first and third periods cannot be used again in those periods. Players removed during the final four minute periods of the second and fourth quarters cannot be used again during those periods. The latter paragraph, of course, means that a player can be withdrawn in the second and fourth periods prior to eleven minutes having elapsed and then can be returned in the final four minutes of those periods. Consternation and much wailing and gnashing of teeth has emanated from the coaching ranks, you'd think some of them had been stabbed . . . The Rules Committee in explaining their action which came after three days of apparently continuous deliberation on this subject alone, stated the new rule would aid the small colleges, 53 schools of that category have dropped football in recent years because they could not meet manpower demands (Just a few of them brings back memories: St. Marys of Moraga, San Francisco, Nevada, St. Bonaventure, and so on, also now is rumored Santa Clara) . . . Chairman Fritz Crisler of the Rules Committee further said, "We recognize this as not just a technical change in a football rule but one that involves the administration of college athletics and the whole philosophy behind it. I have never seen a more unselfish point of view by so many people . . . They were not thinking about their teams or their schools but about the best interests in football and its future. We were concerned about the many colleges that have been forced to abandon football because of the . . . You must remember that these chaps who rewrote this portion of the book are still coaches, and I must say, reasonably supplied with intestinal fortitude to face the repercussions that will ensue . . . In addition to disposing of two platoon football, it will minimize the insertion of specialists such as punters, passers, PAT kickers, and to my way of thinking, it will definitely cut down on the attempts at operating the offense and defense from the bench . . . This masterminding curb may be one of the unmentioned items that the tutors are pondering on, although it is debatable whether or not some of the signal calling bench-wise could be labeled as beneficial . . . Kinda like the Referee only charging the enraged coach 10 yards for side-line help, on account his type was that much inferior . . . To date the word from the University of Texas Interscholastic league in Austin, according to AP, is that the NCAA rule probably would not effect Texas High School Football . . . Among the few pros expressed to date, in the pro and con frothing, which is in progress, are two biggies, both in stature and thinking, Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth and Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, who feel the new rule is to the best interests of football, is highly workable and will, in the same guise, put some of the coaches back to work in teaching just that, football, to all their hands and not just some phases to individuals . . . There deck too, with not so many hands to induce, mayhap it will be easier to appease the North Central Association which has been looming more than somewhat, and threateningly.
