County Gets First 1973 Revenue Sharing Check

BY O.G. NIEMAN Publisher

Deaf Smith County Commissioners, in regular session Monday, purchased a new car for the sheriff's department, approved advertisement of bids for a new maintainer, canvassed election returns for county school trustees, and voted to relinquish a contract with the VFW for caliche in Veterans Park.

County Judge H.C. Williams also announced the receipt of a $59,309 general revenue sharing check, representing the county's share for the first quarter of 1973. The county had in two payments, and now will receive quarterly checks.

None of the funds have been spent as yet, and county clerk B.F. Cain said that more than $2,400 interest has been added to the first two checks-giving a total of some $263,702. Commissioners are currently studying plans for constructing a new county library with the funds.

The county received three bids on the sheriff's department car, and commissioners accepted a low bid of $3,200 from Jones Motor for a Plymouth. The county traded in a 1971 Plymouth. Other bids were

Local CowBelles Leader Gives Recipe For Beef

Women's Editor

SHE MARRIED INTO THE cattle industry, but since Mrs. Bob Josserand's husband has been associated with many of its phases she is familiar with the interests of most members of the CowBelles, the organization she was elected to head when a branch was formed here last year.

It wasn't even a new 4 tb. fat organization to her as it was to most of its members; she had belonged to a group in Kanaas before moving to Hereford two years ago.

Nationally, CowBelles promote the use of beef in American menus, and the Hereford CowBelles president is leading members in urging people to eat more beef in April, a Texas Grain-Fed Beef Month, especially to counteract protests in some sections over a rise in the price of meat.

BEEF IS A FAVORITE MAIN dish for Mrs. Josserand, who likes to prepare gourmet dishes for guests or good solid meals for her own family.

Two recipes she likes have appeared in a cookbook published by Kansas CowBelles, similar to one which National CowBelles are preparing now. Both are for dishes that would star in a special company meal, yet they use less expensive cuts of beef.

He has been associated with the cattle business in several aspects, as county agent, banker, feedlot operator and now in feed manufacturing.

The Josserands lived in Satanta, Kan., before moving here. The family includes a daughter, Joan, in the ninth grade, and three sons, Douglas, also in Junior High as a seventh grader, John and Barry in elementary school.

BOTH NANCY AND BOB Josserand believe in getting into community activities where they live. The family is active in First United Methodist Church where Mrs. Josserend is now a unit chairman in the women's organization.

In addition to the CowBelles, she is a member of Bay View Study Club and a bridge club. She works in such drives as Community Concert Association and United Fund campaigns, with Republican women's activities, and in parental organizations for the various interests of her children, such as the Little Dribblers who are just closing a

She lived in the Frio and Westway communities, Olga Tannahill tells me, and has friends in those sections as well as Hereford itself.

She lives now in Grannis, Ark., and will be making her first visit here in about 30 years.

Her daughter, Wanda, is to come with her and of course wants to see her friends too. I didn't learn Wanda's married name, but people who knew her when she was growing up here, probably don't know it either so they can ask her at the dinner.

IN A REPORT OF THE funeral of a former longtime Hereford resident, O.T. Bailey, last week we failed to name his brother, Fred Bailey of Fort Worth, as a survivor. After the death about four years ago of his wife, he made his home with the brother in Fort Worth.

Mr. Bailey came to Hereford in the World War I time, and lived here a number of years. His wife was the former Gertrude Gentry. He is survived by three sisters, including Mrs. Abe Martin and Mrs. Bonnie Martin of Hereford.

Rights of Unwed Father

Does an unwed father have any right to the custody of his child?

As a rule, in case of dispute, the law gives preference to the mothèr. Two arguments are generally

2) that the mother's kinship to the child is more certain than the suppose the mother is out of the picture—perhaps uninter-ested in the child, perhaps unfit, perhaps dead. Then, may the un-wed father insist on custody if he

The question arises in conflicts with the mother's relatives or with a community agency. The tendency in recent years—perhaps re-flecting greater attention to the role of the unwed father—has been for the courts to rule in his favor.

For example: In a custody fight between an unwed father and the maternal grandmother, the court awarded the child to the father. The court felt that, other things being equal, the closer relationship should make the difference. Of course, the father himself may be disqualified by his own failings. In another case, an unwed father filed suit to gain custody of his two young daughters. They had been entrusted by their mother to her aunt. However, the court decided that the children were better off where they were, with the aunt.

The court pointed to evidence that, on several occasions, the father had been guilty of "cruelty and depravity"—hence, was not likely to provide a proper home for the girls.

As one judge put it:

The Bull Corner In UIL Contests

In the past, the motion picture industry has had a council made up of clergymen and other interested citizens to rate movies. This same council has made ratings in order to give the public an idea of the moral quality of the picture.

A 'G' rating means the picture is for the general audience while a 'GP' rating is for parental guidance. An 'R' rating is given those movies which are restricted, and the viewers must be 17 years of age or accompanied by a parent or guardian. The 'X' rating is given to movies where no one under 18 is admitted. The enforcement of these above ratings are flexible with regard to individual cities' standards.

Some people feel that the rating system is unjust, while others feel it is necessary for the protection of minors. Therefore, the Whiteface staff has asked the students their opinions on this issue.

The question was, "Should movies continue to be rated for viewers discretion?"

"Yes, I feel that although some movies in the past have been 'misnoted' it seems to be a good system and should continue." -Doris Fangman, senior.

"In some cases, yes. I feel kids under 16 might need some guidance. I do feel after that age they need help. They are old enough to make their own decisions about movies." -Sheila Lea, senior.

"I feel that there should be ratings on movies, but I believe that by the age of 15, you know what movies you want to see and should be able to see." -Cathy Loerwald, senior.

"Yes, I like to know the type of movie my children or I plan to see." - John Claypool, aero space instructor.

"No, I think most movies should be rated easier, most of the movies are rated different according to the type of attendance. I have seen some 'R' rated movies that were fairy tales and some 'PG' movies that were gross. I feel that the movies should be rated according to the type of film that would be seen by the audience." -Denise Strange, junior. "Yes, I think it is up to the individual to what they want to see." -Patti Turrentine, senior. "No, because it keeps the little kids out of it, and teaches people what they don't already know." Richard Esqueda, sophomore. "No, because they have to learn someday."

Raymond Nolan, sophomore. "No, because after you're so old, you already know or should know everything anyway."

Truman Ragan, sophomore. "Yes, they should be more explanatory in the ratings, and be a little more stricter with the ratings." -J. Marvin Hunter, Jr., printing trades teacher. "Yes, because a lot of younger kids go to see movies. They don't care what it is about, but their parents care what their kids see." -Blanche Hernandez, junior. "They should be rated because it gives the viewer an idea of what he will be seeing." -David Crume, junior. "They should be rated, but no age limits set." -Kenneth Aycock, senior.

"In some cases yes, but a movie should not be rated according to age of people, but to the movie itself. Parents should judge themselves whether or not the movie is okay for their children to see." -Melinda Bradley, junior.

"No, movies should be left for the viewer's choice on what they want to see. Let the parents who are the kids' guardians decide if their kid should go see a movie or not." -Roy Salazar,

"Yes, should have rating system, but not as strict." -Larry Ambold, sophomore.

"I think there should be a rating because if there wasn't some parents might take their kids to the show not knowing what they will be seeing. With the rating system, it sort of braces the people for what they are going to see." -Denise Poarch, junior.

"Yes, I think it should be. Because that way you'll know what you're getting into when you go see a movie." -Diana Garcia, senior.

"Yes, I think they should. Because, people just go to the show and if they don't know what's showing, they'll think of something else to do." -Lorenza Ruiz, senior.

"No, because the ratings are not thoroughly enforced. People have the right to see the shows they want, but no one is forced to see something they don't want to." -Shari Hughes, junior.

"Yes, young children should not be exposed to xrated shows although some theaters let anyone get in. They should enforce the ratings." -Nancy

'No, because people aren't forced to something they don't want to see. People go on their own free will." -Irma Trevino, junior.

"Yes, they should continue to be rated because you need to know what to expect but there should not be an age limit put on the movies." -Debbie Hoover, senior.

TO LOVE A QUEEN

By Lawrence Schoonover Elizabeth said to Burleigh, her prime minister, "There is a touch of self-martyr in this missive . . . Let me not permit handsome young Raleigh, so pirate a poet with pearls in his ears, to bring about his own death in our service, which would accomplish nothing but his own glory; but let us rather save him for the future in our service . . . Wise Burleigh, my trusty good friend, suggests a means; least I lose him prematurely, for in the end I fear I shall lose him like all the others."

And she sighed; for the moment her hard eyes were misted over with a softness.

The spirited novel To Love a Queen is set in the England of the Renaissance, a brutal and bloody society brimming with court scandals, military coups and macabre political poisonings.

Walter Raleigh was the personification of this vigorous What a many-faceted man! Skilled in chemistry, engineering, and medicine, a ruthless cavalry leader, an explorer who envisioned English colonies in America, a courtly poet and historian, an inventor of fighting ships and a lover of all the sensous pleasures of life.

Raleigh rose from an obscure westcountry family to become the favourite of Elizabeth I. a member of parliament, later a knight; he finally ended his days disgraced as a traitor and died on the block.

The glorious reign of Elizabeth reflects her mercurial personality.

Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau is one of 18 counties in this area participating in the purchasing program, Walden said. The Livestock Purchasing Division will be operated by the Texas Agricultural Marketing and Development Association (TAMDA), the marketing affiliate of the Texas Farm Bureau. In order to participate the marketing program, producers must pay a one-time embership fee in TAMDA.

The TAMDA members in the 18 Panhandle and South Plains

So you've decided to sell your own house. Here's a little basic reading you should do first.

You might start with "Real Estate" by Husband and Anderson, 868 pages of theoretical (and rather stuffy) real estate principles. Then you really should read "The Real Estate Handbook," a definitive volume of the basic ABCs of real property sales and management. And of course "Advertising Real Estate Successfully" and "Mortage Lending" cover a few of the specialized areas that will be important to you. And naturally, if you hope to get top dollar for your home, you should at least browse through "The Power of Creative Selling."

Or, you can phone a local Hereford area Realtor. He's probably already read all these books. More important, he's practiced what they preach. It's his business to know local and state codes, salesmanship, money availability and the hundreds of other things necessary for successful real estate practice.

Think about it: doesn't it make more sense to trust your valuable property to a professional?
