Farm aid filibuster continues after three-day Senate quarrel

By JIM DRINKARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Negotia-tions to end the three-day filibuster by Democratic senators seeking more aid for hard-pressed farmers broke down early Saturday as leaders traded accusations over who was to blame

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole declared in the early minutes of Saturday as the session ran past midnight: "We are not going to make any more deals."

"We've been quarreling about nothing for three days," Dole com-

And the Kansas Republican promised non-stop Senate sessions next week until the chamber votes on the nomination of Edwin Meese III to be attorney general.

"Rest up over the weekend...Starting next Monday, we're going to stay all night," he added before sending the Senate home and setting an all-day session to start in the midmorning.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia replied that the Democrats were ready to vote, but for the GOP position.

"Apparently there is a decision now that we are going to play hardball and we'll just stay with Mr. Meese and let the farmers go to hell....(that) what the administration has offered is enough," Byrd said.

Byrd, contending Democrats had acted responsibly in their four-day filibuster that has blocked Meese's confirmation, said the breakdown signals the start of poor relations between Senate Republicans and

"This is a bad way to get started," he said. "All we have in this body is courtesy, understanding, comity, else the Senate will deteriorate and will become the laughingstock of the nation. ... Passengers escape

Jet hijacked in Beirut

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) - A lone hijacker early Saturday com-mandeered a Middle East Airlines jet a Beirut airport and forced the crew to fly the plane to Cyprus, authorities said. The plane took off again, returned here 10 minutes later, then took off a second time, apparently headed back to Beirut.

Officials in Beirut said all 109 passengers aboard escaped before the Middle East Airlines Flight 203 took off from Beirut International Airport, Lebanese officials said. The hijacker threatened to blow up the plane.

Police in Beirut said one police officer and one or more civilians were wounded in a gunbattle on the ground before the plane was airborne.

The plane, bound for Paris and London, took off from Beirut with its emergency chutes dangling and its doors open after the gunfight, said airport officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified.

The passengers aboard the Boeing 707 escaped down the chutes before takeoff, the officials said. The 10-member crew apparently remained on board.

One airport source in Beirut, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said one passenger, identified as Tawfik Hamada, 65, fell to the ground from the aircraft and was

Officials said two or three of the escaping passengers suffered minor injuries sliding down the chutes.

The red-and-white Lebanese airliner landed about an hour later at Larnaca, Cyprus, some 125 miles west of Beirut, and was ringed by armed Cypriot police as it parked at the end of the single runway.

At Larnaca, the flight engineer jumped out of one of the open doors, according to Cyrpus sources. Immediately after his escape, the aircraft's doors slammed shut and the jet taxied for takeoff.

It lifted off with a emergency chute dangling from its rear door and flapping in the wind, then returned here 10 minutes later. It then took off again, apparently for Beirut.

Walcott bus-driving task becomes a joy

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

Maxine Brown started driving the Walcott School bus 27 years agomostly because it was a job that had

But somewhere along the years, the twice-a-day task started to grow

"Any more, I kind of enjoy it," she admitted in her soft-spoken way. "I miss my kiddos in the summertime."

One can tell that Maxine is a Walcott Brown, because she uses the word "kiddos" the same as her husband Eldred and the rest of the Brown clan. Children are cherished by this pioneer farm and ranch family, and nobody has contributed more to Walcott School than the four generations of Browns living within its district boundaries.

Two years ago, Walcott School Superintendent Eddie Derr thought

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's a real problem to keep up with people who are trying to keep up with you.

A good newspaper and Bible in every house, a good schoolhouse in every district, and a church in every neighborhood-all appreciated as they deserve, are the chief support of virtue, morality, civil liberty and religion.-Benjamin Franklin.

The monthly Blood Bank campaign comes to Hereford Wednesday, and donors are urged to contribute blood between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Community Center. The Coffey Memorial Blood Bank crew will be here to collect contributions for the Hereford "bank."

Now and then, we should say thanks to the people who serve on city commissions, school boards, hospital boards, water district boards, and a lot more. Either by election or appointment, such men and women are giving of themselves to serve their communities.

To one degree or another, they are subjected to the political spotlight. The actions they take become news to be reported, discussed, argued, mininterpreted and maligned. They are subjected to phone calls and coffee-shop encounters that often have nothing to do with their real responsibilities.

To one degree or another, they subject themselves to use and abuse by anyone and everyone who has some kind of axe to grind. Most of them put up with it in fine fashion; they do what they're supposed to be doing, and it's a lot to ask of people who don't get paid.

The reward might be the satisfaction of service; it may be an ego trip; they may get a little more respect from their peers, but the price is heavy. Ego can be crushed by the next decision, the next election. respect can be temporary and elusive, and a plaque may be the only physical evidence of service.

You may have guessed that the pressures now being exerted on the Hereford School Board members got us to thinking about this subject. I'd like to thank the trustees for doing a thankless job. Now, it's your turn. We all ought to thank them whether we agree or disagree with what they do. If you disagree, how about telling them so but let them know you respect them for tackling the job at all?

The Amarillo Sunday News-Globe was kind enough to send us an advance copy Friday of the section "Nuclear Waste, From Here to Eternity". We thought it was well done and rounded up much of the information on the controversial subject into

In this area, it was particularly interesting to read the two middle pages on what is happening and what people had to say in the other two preferred sites in Hanford, Wash., and Yucca Mountain, Nev.

The section had some good graphics and it is easy to discern that much work and research by a large staff of reporters went into the effort.

Children cherished by pioneer farm family it would be fun to figure out how many miles Brown had logged behind the wheel. Multiplying the length of her route (usually about 80 miles a day) times 175 school days per year by the 25 years she had driven-well that came to well over a million miles!

Brown is thankful to be able to say. she has not had an accident despite all those miles on the road. Probabaly the most exciting thing that ever happened was nearly 10 years ago when the brakes went out on her bus as she was headed south toward Bootleg Corner.

"I just angled the bus over to the side of the highway, and it finally slowed down. The brakes were making a terrible noise."

Like any other school bus driver, Brown has had to be the boss as well as the chauffeur. She won't deny that discipline was once a problem, but the 20 or so children she has now are model passengers most of the time.

"They're better than their parents were," Brown laughed. She should know: the mothers and fathers of several of her current riders were on the route years ago.

Brown's rules are pretty easy to live with-and a reflection of the kind of person she is. "I make them stay in their seats, leave the other kids' things alone, and talk nice to one another." The veteran bus driver doesn't mind all those mornings of being up and ready to leave the house by 6:30 a.m. "I like to get up. You feel better if you get up earlier."

The first two students board at 6:45 every morning. Their mother, a teacher's aide at Walcott, rides the bus as well.

It's barely daylight when the bus gets to school at 7:30, just in time for breakfast. Classes begin at 8 a.m. The children are quiet during the early morning ride in the dark, but by 3 p.m. it's a differnt story.

The girls board the bus first, grabbing seats close to the front. The young men head for the back, to make car noises and talk about other exciting things.

The driver says hello to each child individually as he climbs the steps of the yellow 36-passenger vehicle.

About a mile south of the school the bus turns west onto one of the many dirt roads that make up most of the 40-mile route. Even in February, the sun shines hot through the thick glass windows. Straight ahead is a prime example of western Deaf Smith county scenery. Pastureland to the right, heavily infested with the cholla cactus that is picturesque to everyone but the landowner. To the left, wheat fields being grazed by contented cattle. Crooked fence posts lining the dusty road point the way to nothing but big, blue sky. Not until the bus nears a homestead does so much as a tree dot the horizon.

For 27 years Brown has rolled along those same narrow roads-the same spacious panorama spread before her.

"Look around," she comments a few minutes down the road, "you

Jury fines couple $5

HOUSTON (AP) - Jurors have fined a Katy couple $5 for violating the state's compulsory school attendance law by teaching

The couple, Jack and Dorothy Clayton, were convicted Thursday in the court of Justice of the Peace Bill Yeoman of teaching their son, Jeffrey, 9, at home instead of sending him to a public school in the Katy Independent School District.

The Claytons were the fourth fundamentalist Christian couple convicted this week of ignoring the state's compulsory school attendance law. A fifth couple also has been charged, but has not yet been

The Claytons said they took their son out of Hutsell Elementary because he was bored with his classwork and because public schools do not teach Christian values.

Clayton said he was at first skeptical about home schooling, but eventually became convinced it was the best for his son.

"We feel that God holds us absolutely responsible for the education of our children," he said.

The Claytons said they were concerned about the moral values taught in the public classrooms.

"Rather than a God-centered life, it (public school) is 'I' centered," Mrs. Clayton said.

Mrs. Clayton is a state-certified teacher who once taught in San Antonio, and her husband had once been allowed to teach in public schools on an emergency basis.

Mattox jury hears phone tapes

AUSTIN (AP) - The jury in Attorney General Jim Mattox's commercial bribery trial has heard tape recordings of phone conversations in which Mattox accused a Houston lawyer of waging a "personal vendetta" against him.

The tapes played in court Friday also revealed that Mattox and an aide said "no general embargo" had been placed on public bonds the Fulbright & Jaworski firm had pending in Mattox's office.

The tapes were made by Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer Thomas McDade on June 20, 1983 - three days after Mattox allegedly told another Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer he would withhold his legally required approval of their bonds.

McDade said he recorded three conversations between himself and Arthur Mitchell, who at the time was special counsel to Mattox. He also recorded conversations involving himself, Mitchell, Mattox and Wiley Caldwell, chief of Fulbright & Jaworski's bond work.

Texas law permits recording phone calls without telling the other

The more than two hours of tapes revealed sometimes heated arguing between McDade and Mattox.

'You've gone off into your own little personal vendetta," Mattox told McDade. "You've all of a sudden got an attack on the attorney general, his staff and his family."

McDade responded, "All I want is the records and the information

... I'm not out trying to pick on your family." And Mattox said, "I want the attacks stopped. I want you to treat us in a professional-type fashion."

In June 1983, Mattox was accusing McDade of being unprofessional in handling a lawsuit that wealthy South Texas rancher Clinton Manges and the state had brought against McDade's client, Mobil Oil.

In a letter due to be published Monday, Reagan urges newspaper readers of advice columnist Abigail Van Buren to send contributions for the March of Dimes directly to the charity and not to the White House, as "Dear Abby" had recommended.

"This will alleviate any delay in those contributions reaching the March of Dimes, and it will also solve the tremendous logistical problems that arise when monetary items of any kind are sent to my attention at the White House," the president said in a letter dated Feb.

"Your readers' cooperation in this request will make my staff much happier, and it will also allow the March of Dimes to get to work immediately on the vital activities your readers are supporting," Reagan added.

The dimensions of Reagan's problem were obvious Friday as he stood in front of 20 sacks of mail sent to the White House at Ms. Van Buren's suggestion.

Reagan said the White House was receiving an average of 2,000 letters a day and had collected more than $41,000 for the March of Dimes since Ms. Van Buren used her column Jan. 30 to urge that contributions for the March of Dimes be sent to Reagan on his 74th birth-

Proposed fund called too small

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration's proposal to more than triple the "Superfund" toxic waste cleanup program is being criticized by Democrats and environmentalists who say it doesn't contain enough money to do the job.

Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., author of the 1980 Superfund law, said the administration proposal unveiled Friday does not "provide the resources necessary to keep the commitment to the American people that we are serious about cleaning up hazardous wastes." Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said at least $10 billion was need-revised program of $650 million or more in loan guarantees for farmers in financial trouble does enough to help those farmers with the greatest chance of ultimately surviving.

The latest snag in efforts to end the filibuster developed late Friday when the two sides could not agree on an arrangement for bringing an alternative, more liberal farm-credit bill to the Senate floor for a vote next week. Democrats were seeking a vote to put senators on record for or against a bill similar to one now working its way through the Democrat-controlled House.

Weary senators, many of whom had canceled weekend engagements in their home states to remain in Washington, trooped from meetings to the Senate floor as the filibuster

As the hours passed, the wrangling became less over substantive farm credit matters than over politics. "This is all 1986 election stuff," the library plans to begin circulation of books on tape, formerly used only inside the library, and purchase more of them.

The Friends of the Library, which will meet Sunday at 2 p.m. in the library Heritage Room, is an organization of library patrons whose $2 membership fees are used to fund special projects. Included in the fee is a newsletter and library calendar which keeps members posted of new books and services at the library.

Last year, the library began a collection of large print titles. The local library received 12 to 15 titles every two months and is part of a rotating loan group through the Amarillo library system.

Any other book available in the Texas Panhandle Library System may be borrowed here in Hereford, also, according to Mrs. Pierson. Currently, the local library is recording on computer all of its volumes for that exchange.

Service has become a more important part of libraries this generation. Summer reading clubs for kids, story hours, and special programs have become "regulars" for most libraries, Deaf Smith included.

With all the books around, libraries have somewhat gotten the reputation of knowing everything - or at least knowing where to find it.

"There's a certain knack to taking reference question," according to Diane Pierson, Deaf Smith County Librarian. She says the key is communication. One young fellow was sure a librarian was joking when she told him she couldn't find anything on "sea mice." Telling him that they must not even exist. She soon had her intelligence questioned by the boy. He went on to describe what he was looking for a book about.

"Semi, you know, like big trucks," he explained.

Sometimes the request isn't even in English. Recently, Arrowhead Mills managers were stumped by an order they received. With a trusty French-English dictionary the library staffers were able to figure out the letter.

When someone else wanted to know what day Nov. 3, 1980, fell on, librarians dug out old calendars they had been saving for bulletin board decorations.

When librarians were trying to research what a dog run was for a young student doing a school report, they were not sure where to look. That time, a library patron over heard the request and gave a verbal reference.

All the research isn't for hard core homework, either. Persons prescribed medicine can look up the drug in the Physician Desk Reference to see if there are side effects or allergic ingredients.

The Texas registry gives a weekly report of all state governmental proposals, appointments, public

Area author surprised by fate of his book

It's ironic that Perryton, Texas, autor John R. Erickson never intended for his book Hank the Cowdog to be a children's story - ironic because he has just signed a contract with CBS Television that will allow the network to make it into a 30-minute animated cartoon program.

In Hollywood, the Hank story will become one of 13 programs in a new series that will debut in March. The series, called "CBS Storybreak," is described by CBS as "an attempt to upgrade our children's programing by bringing classic works of children's literature to Saturday morning cartoon time." The entire series will be narrated by Bob Keeshan, better known as Captain Kangaroo.

Hank the Cowdog, as you may know, is Head of Ranch Security and the star character in a series of books written by Erickson and published by Maverick Books of Perryton. Hank thinks of himself as a detective, a hero, a protector of his

Among young readers, he has become the most popular dog to come out of Texas since Old Yeller, yet Erickson says he never would have predicted it.

"My wife was the first to read the manuscript, and her first comment was, 'This is a great children's story.' It made me mad because that wasn't my intention."

But as he watched the sales figures climb and saw the book go through four printings, he got over his anger. Instead of arguing, he brought out two more Hank episodes, and Maverick Books has scheduled the fourth and fifth books for release in

"We're a small press, located n a rather unlikely place, and for CBS to recognize the quality of our books gives us a tremendous boost. All at once we don't seem quite as small."

He was also pleased to learn that one of the aims of "CBS Storybreak" will be to encourage children to read the stories they have watched on

"That impressed me," says Erickson. "To be honest about it, I had reservations about turning my book over to television. I worked long and hard to build up an audience, and during our contract negotiations with CBS, we talked a great deal about maintaining the quality and integrity of the material.

"After talking with several of the people involved with 'CBS Storybreak,' I got the feeling that they were just as concerned about quality as I was. That was a relief."

The first "CBS Storybreak" episode will air on Saturday morning, March 30, at 10 a.m. Central Time. Hank the Cowdog is tentatively scheduled for Saturday May 4, at 10 a.m. Central Time.

That falls right in the middle of Erickson's writing schedule, which he follows every day, seven days a week. Will he take time off to watch Hank's Hollywood debut?

"You bet I will!" And with him will be his three children, ages two, seven, and ten.

Phoenix Banquet scheduled

The West Texas State University Alumni Association has announced plans for its 22nd annual Phoenix Club Banquet. It will be held Saturday, April 27, at 6 p.m. in the East Dining Hall on the WTSU campus. Executive Director Mark Hobgood stated that the Phoenix Club Dinner is used by the Alumni Association to present the University Excellence Award and the Distinguished Alumnus Award. The association will also present ten alumni scholarships to outstanding high school graduates.

The Alumni Association is urging all of WTSU's family and friends to contribute nominations for this year's awards. "West Texas State University has a good reputation for producing outstanding graduates in all fields of study," said Hobgood.

The two selection committees have set April 1 as the deadline for nominations. Criteria for the Distinguished Alumnus Award include prominence in the individual's field and recogntion of his/her education at WTSU.

Information regarding nominations or the academic scholarships can be obtained from the WTSU Alumni Association, P.O. Box 2833, WT Station, Canyon, TX 79016. Or call (806)656-3421.

Banquet tickets must be purchased by April 23. Tickets are $10.00, and reservations may be made through the Alumni Association office.

Your retirement plan shouldn't have to be complicated to be effective. Security Federal has several retirement plans that make it easy for you.

As little as one hundred dollars can start your Individual Retirement Account. And you can put in the amount you want, when you want.

Your I.R.A. from Security Federal is insured safe, and it earns money market interest. That interest is tax deferred till you retire. You also get real tax savings each year on what you deposit.

There's really no reason to wait on starting a retirement plan. You can do it right now. And it's as simple as walking into your nearest Security Federal office.

When you think about retirement, think Security.

When the state director of Texas Rural Legal Aid came to Hereford and thumbed his nose at the community, the Legal Services Corporation and the U.S. Congress, we got a lesson in government from a smart lawyer who knows how to operate within the system.

Here's a man threatening to sue the hand that feeds him, Legal Services Corporation, and stating that LSC is not a "parent company." Therein lies another problem in our system: Congress creates bureaucratic agencies, appropriates money to them, then cuts them loose from the apron string and can't control their actions.

We agree with President Reagan that he got a mandate from the people to cut out waste in government, and we think there is plenty of waste to cut in our bureaucratic wasteland.

A Congressman told us recently that the bureaucrats sit in their offices and laugh at the men on Capitol Hill who think they're running the government.

The only way to do away with the bureaucrats who think they can spend our tax money without answering to anyone is to cut off their funds. Now is our best time to get this done, because the administration is receptive to the idea.

On abortion

The arguments for abortion are startlingly similar to the arguments that once were made for slavery.

The Dred Scott decision by the United States Supreme Court in 1857 ruled that although a slave may have a heart and a brain, and may be a human life biologically, a slave is not a legal person.

The Roe v. Wade Supreme Court decision of 1973 argued that although the unborn baby may have a heart and a brain, and be a human life biologically, the unborn child is not a legal person.

The 1857 decision was that a Black man becomes a legal person only when he is set free. Before that time we should not concern ourselves about him because he has no legal rights.

The 1973 decision was that a baby becomes a legal person only when he is born. Before that time we should not concern ourselves about him because he has no legal rights.

In 1857 people argued that if you think slavery is wrong, you are entitled to your opinion. Nobody is forcing you to be a slave-owner. But don't impose your morality on someone else.

In 1973 - and today - the argument is the same: If you think that abortion is wrong, you are entitled to your opinion. No one is forcing you to have an abortion. But don't impose your morality on someone else.

In 1857 the Supreme Court ruled that a man has a right to do what he wants with his property.

In 1973 the same court ruled that a woman has a right to do what she wants with her body.

Finally, in 1857 people argued that slavery was merciful. After all, they said, a Black man has a right to be protected. Isn't it better never to be set free than to be sent unprepared and ill-equipped in to a cruel world? So said free people.

Today some pro-abortionists argue that abortion is really something merciful. After all, they say, every babyhas a right to be wanted. Isn't it better never to be born than to be sent alone and unloved into a cruel world? So say some pro-abortionists who were not aborted themselves.

The U.S. Supreme court eventually, under the crush of public pressure, changed the infamous Dred Scott Decision. One day, please God, the same court will, under public pressure, reverse its infamous Wade vs. Roe decision.

The Penultimate Word

THE SUPER PREACHER

Several years ago a great orator-type preacher told a story on himself that has a great deal of meaning. He was preaching to a bunch of sheep herders in Montana. The sheep herders were rough-hewn men who lived in the open with their sheep. The preacher was waxing eloquent with beautiful truths falling from his lips like dew from the stems of shaken lilies.

One sheep herder turned to another and said, "Man, can that guy preach!" The other said, "Yeah, but I bet he can't gut a goat."

There are no super people in this world. Some folks have great talent. They say Einstein could not remember whether or not he had eaten lunch. Since he was a genius, we tend to dismiss his lack of memory as being eccentric. He was not eccentric. In this area he was dumb. Anyone should know whether or not they have eaten lunch.

We have developed our own caste system. It seems there are some folks who are super people and the rest of us are the peons. The super people get all of the gold and all of the glory. They are worshipped by all of us peons. The peons never see value in the areas of their own talent. So the peons grovel in a world of valuelessness.

Last week I appeared on a T.V. show for one of the super preachers. The caste system seems to work especially well in the world of religion. We lesser folks gathered to wait breathlessly for the super to arrive and strut for us.

Arrive he did, in all of his finery. Strut he did, while we lesser folks paid homage. There were lackeys there to be sure his every need was met. No matter how well he was cared for, he grew impatient at delays and any sign of our failure to realize how lucky we were to have him in our presence.

I was impressed, to say the least. Here was the epitome of the great man of God. What he lacked in humility, concern, love, and the other attributes of the Man from Gallilee, he made up for in sheer charisma.

I was about to get caught up in the whole worship game and then I thought, "I'll bet he can't gut a goat", and I was alright. Between giggles, I taped the show.

Bootleg Philsopher

People are always talking about the ethical standards in Washington. They say it's a scandal about the way politicians accept big campaign contributions from certain people and then always keep them in mind when they vote on measures those people are interested in.

Investment in a Washington politician, it's said, frequently pays better returns than stocks and bonds.

Therefore there's a certain amount of puzzlement in an article I read in a newspaper the other day about a man who was up for appointment to a high government job. Seems he had been rather free and loose about borrowing money from people in his home state and then helping them get government jobs.

But, he said, "I have a much higher sensitivity to these matters now than I did before I arrived in Washington."

That astounded me. Here's a man who had to get to Washington to improve his ethics. What they were before he got there sort of taxes the Puzzled, I re-read the article and now have a clearer picture. What he said also was he "promised to be more alert to appearances of impropriety."

Now he's on the right track. He has mastered the Washington ethic. It's all right to do a favor for somebody who invests in you, whether it was by a campaign contribution or an interest-free loan, but be quiet about

But there's something about this I resent. The very idea that you have to go to Washington to learn about political ethics! It's an insult to every state in the union. Why practically any Governor knows the way to award a friend who's a big contributor is to appoint him to some honorary job, say a place on the board of regents of a university. If the contributor isn't interested in an honorary job but in a tax bill affecting his business, there's a nonpublic way to go about that.

Washington has grabbed power over lots of things, but when it comes to State's Rights over political ethics, the states and their legislatures are holding their own.

Yours faithfully,

Paul Harvey

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

There has been a lot of discussion about racism in our town lately, but nothing about prejudism against Yankees. So I want a hand count of how many Yankees reside in Hereford, are closet Yankees or have a Yankee somewhere out in the wood

Being a Yankee myself, I've been subjected to just about every Yankee joke, including the classic - Do you know the difference between a Yankee and a damn Yankee?-to the extent of feeling like a cross between an Aggie and an immigrant of

Just because one of my German ancestors decided to settle in the cold, wet winters of the North and one of yours settled for the hot, dry, windy summers of the South, shows no peculairities, but rather a common bond of a lack of foresight in

I have noticed at public gatherings any speaker no matter his previous subject or his poor deliverly can instantly be rewarded a round of applause by simply placing the blame on damn Yankees and thereby uniting the entire audience into a fighting unit. A fighting unit to fight what may be the next question. To fight injustice, City Hall or maybe the Civil War.

Regardless of regional differences, we are all Americans and must remember when you poke fun at a Yankee, you just might be poking fun at one of your ancestors.

Ernest Ponderings

Dear editor:

I noticed in a recent article in the Amarillo Sunday Globe News that the Buffalo Lake Water Board has indicated that it again will seek taxing revenue of $200,000 or more.

In the same article board member Enoch Henderson was quoted as saying that we need Buffalo lake because it would provide a convenient and economical fishing facility.

Of course such statement is misleading. Anyone knowledgeable about Buffalo lake with any common sense knows that reasonable and feasible future use plans of the lake do not include fishing. (At least on a large scale - the lake has insufficient water inflow, and the lake bed is highly organic.)

However, in case one thinks that Mr. Henderson, is the only member of the Water Board with questionable judgment, consider another board member, Garth Thomas of Hereford. Mr. Thomas has publicly campaigned in favor of the nuclear repository being located in Deaf Smith County. He recently has even had a letter authored by him published in the Amarillo Sunday Globe News, wherein he argued strongly in favor of such nuclear repository being located in Deaf Smith County.

Would you want a man with such anti-conservation and anti-Panhandle sentiment managing approximately $200,000 of your tax monies, ostensibly for conservation

Moreover, the Buffalo Lake Water Board has no clearly defined purpose for the use of such tax revenue.

Lest the wrong impression is cast by the foregoing, I want to make it clear that I am one of Buffalo lake's biggest supporters. This is confirmed by my arguments before the Randall County Commissioners in 1976 for the acceptance of federal money for the renovation of Buffalo lake. my legal representation in 1978 of the group of concerned citizens who authority so that it may receive tax fought in federal court the draining strong affection for and interest in migratory birds of the central fly way and the Panhandle.

The only useful purpose of the Buffalo Lake Water Board at his time is to keep public attention focused on Buffalo lake, and generally serve as a liaison between local citizens and the federal government. The real power and authority pertaining to Buffalo lake rests with an agency of the federal government, the Department of Interior, through its Game and Fish Department.

Also, on a more practical level, there is no indication that the federal government will or should transfer such facility to the state of Texas, and certainly no indication that there is state or local money available to repair the spillway, or develop the site, or purchase the 7,663.93 acres.

One should never lose sight of the fact that Buffalo lake is first and foremost a wildlife refuge. Recreational activity should be provided to the extent feasible, but such recreational activity should not interfere with the wildlife management.

Since Buffalo lake also is now serving as a flood control device, future decisions will have to be made pertaining to the defective spillway design so that proper flood protection will be provided to downstream

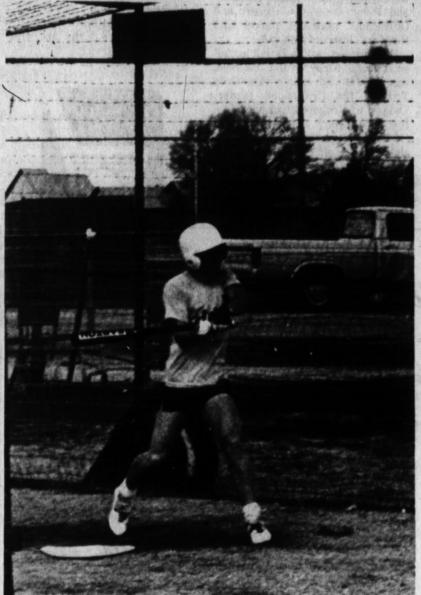

In general, people of the Panhandle care greatly for the lake. Such care should be manifested by such people maintaining contact with their Congressman, Beau Boulter, and other elected officials, who should responsibly and enthusiastically articulate such concern for the lake.

Very truly yours, Ronald E. Walker, Jr. Amarillo, Tx.

Boys basketball review

Smaller Hereford team suffers

By DENNIS BALL

Sports Editor Hereford High School boys basketball team entered the 3-5A race Dec. 11 with a non-district record of 3-3.

The Whitefaces later would win a second-place trophy from the Clovis Tournament and a third-place trophy from the Borger Holiday Tournament. Games played in the tourneys upped the Herd's non-district record

But it was in district play that Hereford came up short - literally. The Herd managed just three loop wins against 13 losses in 1984-85, but floored one of the league's smaller teams.

"The way we played in preseason and the way we had to play in district changed quite a bit," coach Mike Fields said last week. "We started playing teams in district, and our press didn't work as well as it had been. We couldn't run, and that was didn't have a lot of height."

The Whitefaces had wins over Levelland, Dimmit, El Paso Jefferson, Clovis, N.M., and Portales, N.M., and two wins over Plainview. With the exception of Jefferson, those clubs are "town teams" and not city squads, according to Fields. "If you look at the whole year, we were able to compete well with the town teams," Fields said, "where they have the same kids playing all sports. But in the city schools like Lubbock and Amarillo, the kids play straight basketball. That makes it kind of tough.

"We can't do that here or we wouldn't be any good (if players had to pick a sport in which to compete). But I think that playing every sport will make kids more rounded when they get out of school. It's better for them.

Fields added that his club's win over Jefferson was one of the biggest of the year. Jefferson was the defending regional champion and appeared to be headed for another shot.

"It also made me feel good that our kids beat Clovis in their own tournament to get to the championship," he said, "and beating Plainview by one point in the Borger Tournament."

Kevin Redus, a 6-2 senior, paced the Whitefaces for the season with 374 total points. He averaged 13.8 points and 6.2 rebounds per game.

Also averaging in double figures for the Herd was Bobby Baker with 11.4 points. Rodney Torres scored 9.8 points per contest. And both Baker and Torres will be back next year.

"Our second and third leading scorers will be back," Fields said. 'That will give us something to build on, but we've got quite a few seniors who will be difficult to replace."

In total, seven players off the 12-man roster will be lost to gradua-

But Fields, only in his first year as varsity coach, already has learned to play without someone he could count on - Lee Brockman. Brockman had ankle surgery early in the season and passed up the year. Fields said Brockman's absence could have made a difference in some league ball games. "I think in those non-conference games, we were able to get by not having Lee," Fields said. "But when we played some of the district teams, it hurt not having a big man inside.

"I've never thought about the biggest disappointment of the year,' Fields continued when asked for season highs and lows. "I know it was a loss for me not to get to coach Lee. He's a good athlete.'

Fields also commended the coaching by assistants Mark Turner and Jim Fish. He said the two men got along well with the players, something necessary to keep their interests in basketball.

have to throw, too." Senior Mike Scott is a returning pitcher who saw quite a bit of throwing time as a sophomore, but held back last year because of a sore arm. From the 1984 J.V. squad, Rodney

Baylor basketball boss resigns

WACO, Texas (AP) - Baylor University head basketball Coach Jim Haller always accepted the fact that his career with the Bears would end sooner or later - but not coaching as well.

"I've always said I probably wouldn't last at Baylor past 40," said Haller, 39, who turned in his resignation Friday after public disclosure of a taped conversation about payments to a player and steroid drugs.

Haller's resignation was accepted by University President Herbert Reynolds, who said he had been investigating the basketball program since last week.

Reynolds said Haller, who became Baylor's coach eight years ago, would continue the job through the Southwest Conference tournament, March 8-10.

"It hurts when you know you're not going to do something the rest of your life that you love doing," the coach said. "I was not pressured into resigning. I truthfully decided I just needed to do something else," he told The Associated Press. Haller's resignation was announced at a press conference at the Heart O' Texas Coliseum following Baylor's workout Friday afternoon, which had been closed to the press. No replacement was immediately named, and some team members said they were considering transferring to other schools. The Bears are 9-15 overall this season and 2-11 in the conference.

Television station WFAA in Dallas broadcast on Thursday night a secretly recorded conversation in

Player Relations Committee

Arbitration changes proposed

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports

NEW YORK (AP) - Owners are being "whipsawed by the combination" of salary arbitration and free agency, says management's top labor negotiator, and they intend to make an issue of the subject in collective bargaining.

Lee MacPhail, former American League president who has taken over the same role with the owners' Player Relations Committee, says that by the end of the month, the PRC will make formal proposals to change arbitration.

Mark Belanger, a former player and now a special assistant at the Major League Players Association, says the union believes arbitration is "working properly." The players consider the system a necessary alternative to free agency, Belanger said. Of the 98 players who filed for went to hearings. The rest settled early. Six players won their arbitration hearings; seven lost.

But, of the six that won, two $1 million salaries were awarded, and an arbitrator's judgement in favor of Tim Raines of the Montreal Expos broke new ground in the area of such awards. Raines, the last of the players to have his case heard, on Thursday was granted his request of a $1.2 million salary in 1985. It was the largest such award granted in the 10 years salary arbitration has been in effect. It eclipsed the $1 million awards granted to Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles in 1983 and Wade Boggs of Boston this year.

"I don't think anyone ever contemplated salary arbitration awards of $1 million and over," MacPhail said of the system's evolution since

The first arbitration hearings were held in early 1976, some nine months before the first free-agent re-entry

"When it orginally went in, it was when there was a reserve system in place," MacPhail said. "Subsequent to that, we had free agency on top of salary arbitration ... our feeling is that it's just not working the way it was intended. It's working unfairly for the clubs."

Belanger, however, pointed to the salary arbitration this year, only 13 low percentage of players actually going through the hearing process as an indication the system is working.

> "I think maybe both sides can say that they lost some awards they should have won, but overall I think the process is working," he said. "There were a lot of settlements, and I guess that's part of the reason the system does work."

"In a way, it's a substitute for free agency for players," Belanger added. "At least if you can't agree on a salary, you can get an impartial arbitrator to decide one way or the

In order to file for arbitration, a player must have two full years of major league experience. The player picks a figure; the club picks a figure. And the the arbitrator, after listening to arguments, picks one of the two. The decisions are binding, and the contracts are for one year.

Kite overcomes stroke to tie

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

MIAMI (AP) - Despite a selfimposed penalty shot, Tom Kite managed to coax a hard-won 70 from difficult winds and moved into a tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, who had an opening

76, turned his tournament around with a 68 - the best round of the day - and moved into contention at 144, even par and only three off the pace.

"I hit the ball very well," Nicklaus said. "I've improved with every tournament this year. I just need to play several good rounds in one tournament, have a good tournament and get a little more confidence."

Kite reached the tournament halfway point with a 141 total, three shots under par on Doral's Blue Monster course which was raked by 25 mph winds that gusted up to 35

He shared the 36-hole lead with former Doral winner Mark Mc-Cumber and Gary Hallberg, Mc-

Cumber had a second-round 71 and Hallberg shot 70.

While not in contention, U.S. Open champ Fuzzy Zoeller achieved his goal of making the cut. Zoeller, making his first start since major back surgery last year, said before the tournament that he hoped only to qualify for the final two rounds of play. He did that with a 73 and a 147

A single shot off the lead at 142 were Gibby Gilbert, Morris Hatalsky and Peter Ooterhuis. Gilbert and Oosterhuis matched par-72 and Hatalsky closed up with a 69.

Bill Kratzert, with a 73 that included a double-bogey on the 18th hole, was at 143. So was rookie Greg Twiggs, the first-round leader. Twiggs, who bogeyed four holes in a row at one stretch, finished with a 75.

PGA champion Lee Trevino, a single stroke off the pace after the first 18 holes, went to a 75 and finished 36 holes at 144.

And British Open champ Seve Ballesteros of Spain opened his 1985 season in frustrating fashion. Ballesteros, who represents Doral on the American tour, had a 76 and a 154 total. He failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Kite would have had the lead alone but for the penalty on his 13th hole. He missed the green on the par-3, removed a leaf from behind his ball, addressed it, then saw the ball move a fraction of an inch. He called the penalty. "Then I chipped it in for a par," he said later.

That save kept him close, and he regained a share of the lead with a 15-foot birdie putt on his 16th.

from a confidential source outside the university.

A voice identified by the station as Haller told Wheeler on the tape that "I had a check processed for you. So I want you to take this check to the bank, you give it to the bank, and you tell them this is for January, February and March. "Give it to them right now and you won't have to worry about it until April," the tape continued.

Haller told the AP that it is normal practice during the Christmas break, when the dorm is closed on campus, to give all the players on the team a check for meals. "I gave him a check for $172, which would cover quite a few meals. But then I found out that he was not there during the entire period. But I elected to give him the check anyway," said Haller. "It was wrong. I admit it was wrong. But I felt sorry for the kid and I feel sorry for him now," the coach said.

He said Wheeler had some car payments for $50 a month and "I suggested that he use it for something like his car payments. It is a nitpicky situation, but it is still a violation of the rules. I knew better. I have to listen to the music."

The man identified as Haller on the tape also told Wheeler he knew the player had been using steroids, a substance used to improve athletes' performance, for about seven mon-

The player was told that the deaths of two Clemson University athletes were attributed to steroids, which are illegal without a doctor's prescription.

(Traces of the anti-inflamatory drug were found in October in just one Clemson athlete who died of congenital heart disease.)

"I wished I didn't even know you were taking them," the voice identified as Haller said on the tape. "I'm out of that. Not because I don't want to help you; because I'm scared to death of it."

Haller, in an interview with the Waco Tribune-Herald, denied any involvement by Baylor strength coach Bob Fix in the alleged dispensing of steroids to Wheeler.

"The steroid thing really bothers me, because I know nothing about those things. I have discussed the pros and cons with the players," Haller told the AP.

The Rangers have a new minority owner (Gaylord Broadcasting), a new general manager (Tom Grieve), a new starting catcher (Don Slaught), and some new pitchers to help the team that finished dead last in the American League West in 1984. Manager Doug Rader had predicted a pennant last year, but the Rangers finished 25 games (62-92) below .500. Same old sad cellar song.

They were 141/2 games behind champion Kansas City in the worst division in professional hardball.

The franchise came to Arlington in 1972 and the Rangers still haven't won a pennant with the end of the century getting close

The Rangers reached one of their all-time lows in 1984

They were the 10th worst fielding team in the American League with the shortstops contributing 44 league-leading boots.

Their catching was a laugh with 32 passed balls and 16 errors, dead last in major league baseball.

If you tried to steal a base against Ned Yost, Mary Foley and Donnie Scott, you had an 81 percent chance of making it.

Incredibly, only 19 per cent of all base thieves were gunned down.

The Rangers have traded for Slaught of Kansas City, who had respectable hitting and fielding marks with the Royals. Slaught only threw out about 25 percent of the runners, but that would be a big improvement for Texas catching which automatically turned walks into

The pitching plans include sending Dave Stewart to the bullpen where the Rangers hope he will sparkle like he did with the Los Angeles Dodgers two years ago.

The Rangers are also gambling on Burt Hooton and Dave Rozema, two journeymen newcomers, as potential

The Rangers should be able to score some runs with the likes of Buddy Bell, Larry Parrish, Pete O'Brien, Gary Ward, and Johnson in the lineup. Bell's 315 average was the third best in the AL and Ward came on strong in the second half of the season after a stumbling start.

will tell us a lot about this club. But I'm confident we're a much better club than at any point last season." He said of the difficulty of containing the Express' quarterback, "A guy like Steve Young really looks more dangerous running the ball than passing. But let's not underestimate his passing ability. When he sees a running lane, he makes the running game go a good as any running back.

Although Houston's offense still figures to be wide-open, the Gamblers have a new offensive coordinator. John Jenkins has succeeded Mouse Davis, now the head coach of the Denver Gold.

While the game shapes up as an interesting, high-scoring affair, it may be less than a popular success. The Express, currently being kept financially affoat by the USFL, has sold only 6,000 season tickets and the opening crowd figures to be relatively small in the 92,000-seat Coliseum.

The Express, which averaged 19,000 per home game in 1984, rapidly went through two owners - its second and third of the now 3-year-old franchise - since last season

Bill Oldenburg gave up the club after he ran into personal financial trouble following the end of the 1984 campaign, then Jay Roulier, who had been part owner of the Gamblers, was brought in as the new owner. But Roulier recently returned to his ownership of the Gamblers and the league assumed financial control of the Express.

shaky — the vital up-the-gut, heart-and-soul of any baseball team.

You don't hear any brash pennant talk from the Rangers this year.

No catchy phrases like "catch a winner at Arlington" or other mean-ingless mottos dreamed up by the Ranger braintrust.

Rockhard reality has the Ranger brass saying such things as: Grieve: Our goal is to be around .500. That would be improving 25 games over last year.

Rader: "I'm staying away from predictions. I'll just say we'll be a lot better than last year."

If the Rangers just breath hard, they should improve over 1984. You'll recall that on the last day of the season California's Mike Witt pitched a perfect game against them. Maybe we'll see a Ranger pennant

Trade balance at lowest level in six years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hopes for to record levels for 12 consecutive ome recovery in U.S. farm com- years, peaking at $43.8 billion in some recovery in U.S. farm commodity exports have faded again, leaving the nation's agricultural trade balance at its lowest level in six years, says the Agriculture Department.

New projections issued Wednesday put the export value for this fiscal year at $35.5 billion, down 7 percent from $38 billion in 1983-84.

The new forecast was also down $1 billion from the $36.5 billion projected last Dec. 3. Farm exports rose 1980-81 before starting to slide.

After reaching a low of $34.8 billion in 1982-83, exports did rise to the $38 billion level last year before slipping again this year.

"Contributing to the reduced forecast are sluggish world demand for soybeans, lagging wheat sales and a continued shift away from U.S. corn in major Far Eastern martkets," the report said.

"These developments have stemmed from the continued slow recovery from the 1982-83 world recession, record foreign production of most commodities, and the continued strength of the U.S. dollar against foreign currencies."

Imports of agricultural products, meanwhile, are expected to be worth a record of $19.5 billion this fiscal year, up from $18.9 billion in 1983-84. In December, imports were forecast at $19 billion.

Thus, the U.S. agricultural trade balance - the difference between exports and imports - is expected to decline to $16 billion, the lowest since it was $15.8 billion in 1978-79, said Steve Milmoe of the department's Economic Research Service.

However, six years ago exports were booming and the annual export balance was on its way up. It rose to a record $26.6 billion balance in 1980-81.

The report said the actual quantity of U.S. commodity exports is expected to be 145.5 million metric tons this fiscal year, up slightly from 143.6 million tons in 1983-84 but still far below the peak years when shipments were more than 160 million tons annually.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block told Congress earlier Wednesday that world economic conditions "have begun to improve" but that the strong U.S. dollar has hurt, along with increased world competition and economic problems in many importing countries.

Block, who testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said in his statement that the existing farm programs also "have contributed to the problem by providing price floors through our price support program which cause us to become uncompetitive" in foreign markets.

"In addition, our continued reliance on acreage reduction programs has sent a strong signal to our competitors that we are going to unilaterally reduce our production capacity," Block said.

The Reagan administration wants new farm legislation that will be more "market oriented" so that prices can move more freely - and make farmers less reliant on supports and government payments. Anadministration bill is in the works but no firm time has been announced for its introduction in Congress.

puters are becoming more commonplace in farming, ranching and agribusiness operations, escalating the need for in-depth training.

To enhance the profitability of microcomputers as management tools, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station is offering a number of seminars and short courses in the coming months for farmers, ranchers, agribusinessmen and others interested in such training.

Three-day short courses are being offered at the Stiles Farm Computer Training Center, Thrall. The Stiles Farm is about 6 miles east of Taylor on U.S. 79. Dates and topics of these short courses are as follows April 16-18, "Performance Records and Decision Aids for Beef Cattle;" April

Cotton, Inc. selects directors

DALLAS - Cotton Incorporated's Board of Directors have agreed that holding steady to a successful market-building course is essential for U.S. cotton producers if they are to navigate the stormy waters facing agriculture.

Re-elected to new one-year terms at the board's annual meeting were growers J.S. Stephens of Litchfield Park, Arizona; chairman; Jack Hamilton of Lake Providence, Louisiana, vice chairman; Lawrence Petersen of Danevang, Texas, secretary; and Hugh Summerville, Jr., of Aliceville, Alabama, treasurer.

Rounding out the slate of board leadership are five other growers who will serve on the executive committee during the coming year. These producers, and the operating budget committees they will head, are G. Ray Sawyer of Hillsboro, Texas, agricultural research; James H. Sanford, Prattville, Alabama, textile research; Vernon W. Scott of Tillar, Arkansas, marketing; Harold C. Weeth of Coalinga, Calif., international marketing; and Fred L. Starrh of Shafter, California, finance.

Robert J. Boslet, the veteran Cotton Incorporated executive who was named a year ago to direct Cotton Incorporated's staff of professionals, was unanimously re-elected as president and chief executive officer.

HARVEST IS TOUGH ON EVERYTHING: The producer, the equipment AND the corn! According to recent research, nearly half of the grain the producer hauls in from the field can be chipped, broken or bruised by the time it reaches storage. Worse, about 80% of the kernels can suffer stress cracks that lead to breakage during later handling operations. The research followed Nebraska corn through harvest, transport, drying and conveying operations. The corn in the study was studied from harvest through combining, hauling on a straight truck from farm to storage where it was augered into an automatic batch dryer where it was dried from its original 19 and 24% moisture levels to 14% using 170 degree drying air. It was then cooled in the dryer, augered out and into a series of two 6 inch diameter augers which moved it to final storage.

Treatment for head injuries given

TEMPLE - There are many misconceptions about home treatment for a head injury in children according to Dr. Kenneth U. Hackney, Chairman of the Scott and White Department of Emergency Medicine in Temple.

'Parents often think they cannot allow the child to go to sleep after suffering a head injury," he explains. "It's okay to let the child sleep, because he will probably be exhausted from the trauma of the injury or accident. But the child should be awakened or aroused gently every hour or two for the first 10 hours following the head injury until he is obviously conscious. Then it's fine to let him go back to sleep."

For the first 24 hours after a head injury, a child should eat a light diet, have limited activity, and should not be given pain medications unless prescribed by a physician, says Dr. Hackney. "Aspirin or Tylenol is probably acceptable. Try to avoid products containing alcohol."

"Apply ice packs for 15 to 20 minutes to facial or head injuries, and repeat after 15 to 20 minutes," Dr. Hackney suggests. "Apply direct pressure to facial or scalp cuts."

If signs of a serious head injury are present or develop later, the child should be seen by a physician at once, according to Dr. Hackney.

Some signs of a serious head injury may include uncontrollable projectile vomiting, persistent headache, dizziness or blurred vision, an enlarged pupil in one eye, loss of hearing, facial weakness or drooping of the eyelid.

Further signs may include clumsiness or weakness, paralysis or numbness in the arms or legs, slurred or confused speech, irregular breathing patterns, a bulging soft spot on the top of an infant's head, loss of consciousness or convulsions.

Sinuses cause only trouble

Sinuses seem to have no useful purose. They probably did at one time, but now these air spaces in the bones behind the nose seem only to make many people miserable

Problems arise when the mucous membranes of the sinuses become inflamed, a condition called sinusitis, says the Texas Medical Association

The trouble usually begins whan a common cold-a viral infection-is joined by a bacterial infection. These organisms move easily from the nose into the sinuses because the mucous membranes of the nose extend into and line the sinuses

Most often affected are the pairs of sinuses in the forehead slightly above and between the eyes and in the cheeks.

Symptoms of sinusitis occur several days after a cold has begunabout the time it should be clearing up. The blockage in the nose may worsen and a greenish discharge may increase.

The discharge may stop if the passages between the nose and the sinuses become blocked. If that happens, the nose is more stopped up than ever. Breathing through the mouth becomes necessary, speech becomes nasal, and a generally ill feeling sets in.

Depending on which sinuses are affected, a person may have a headache over one or both eyes, and one or both cheeks may hurt. The lower portion of the forehead just above the eyes may feel tender.

Sinusitis is common, but some people never get it. Others get it whenever they have a bad cold. Some people get sinusitis by jumping into water feet first. Damage to nasal bones or a foreign body caught in a nostril can lead to infection and Self-treatment involves staying in a room with a fairly constant temperature and a vaporizer to add moisture. Blow your nose gently. To relieve pain, inhale steam from a sink of hot water.

A physician may prescribe an antibiotic, decongestant tablets, nose drops, or a nasal spray. Though further treatment is usually not necesary, a minor operation with local anesthesia can createa new passageway between the nose and sinuses to relieve the blockage.

Schustik to perform March 11

Hereford Community Concert will present Bill Schustik March 11 at 8 p.m. at Hereford High School

Schustik, who travels the highways and by-ways of the United States, sings songs, tells stories and accom-panies himself on the guitar, banjo and harmonica during his concerts. He mesmerizes audiences with his rich baritone voice and uncanny ability to bring American history and love to life through ballads, folksongs

In addition to being chosen as official chanteyman for "Operation Sail '76," Schustik has starred in the Broadway production of "Billy," and the off-Broadway production of "Love and Maple Syrup." He has performed with Andre Kostalanetz at Lincoln Center and narrated the documentary "Paths to Rebellion."

Schustik has also starred in the television docu-drama "Song for Louisa" and performed some of his Civil War repertoire for the "Ford's Theatre Tenth Anniversary Gala."

Other talents of this renaissance man, as he is frequently described, include innovative costume designs, pen and ink drawings and delicate model ships. Each summer he steals away to fulfill his role as chanteyman aboard the 158-oot topsail schooner, Shenandoah, which sails out of Vineyard Haven.

Schustik's performance is the last Community Concert production scheduled this spring. Performances are open to members only. For membership information, contact Mr. or Mrs. Ernest Langley at 364-3486, or Mr. or Mrs. Ted Panciera at 364-0311.

Gen. Paul X. Kelley has been the commandant of the Marine Corps since July 1, 1983.

The major industries of Pakistan are textiles, food processing, chemicals and tobacco.

Infant apnea meeting scheduled for Friday

Infant apnea, a disease affecting young infants and children, will be the topic of the conference "Infant Apnea: Evaluation, Treatment and Relationship to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome" scheduled for Friday at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC).

"Infant apnea is a temporary cessation (ceasing) of breathing, usually only lasting about 20 seconds. We usually find infant apnea occurring in premature babies in the first one or two days of life and generally disappearing before they are released from the hospital," noted Edwing Conreras, M.D., assistant professor and director of neonatology in the Department of Pediatrics at TTUHSC.

Contreras also said, "Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) is seen with more frequency in premature babies, with an incidence of about 10 cases in 1,000 babies in the premature, compared to in 1,000 in the full-term.

Contreras said that Sudden Infant Death Syndrome is a serious problem, being the most frequent cause of death in infants between one month and one year of age, with about 6,000 thriving, well-cared for infants dying of SIDS in the United States every year.

The purpose of the conference is to acquaint physicians with current information on diagnosis, identification and treatment of infant apnea and its relationship with SIDS.

One part of the program will discuss the Home Monitoring Systems. This system allows parents of high risk babies to monitor breathing patterns and alert them in the event of breathing problems. "The Home Monitoring System tends to be one of the methods of preventing and monitoring infant apnea problems, thereby decreasing the risk of death from SIDS," Dr. Contreras said.

Conference speakers include William W. Fox, M.D., medical director of the Infant Intensive Care Unit at Children's Hospital, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania; and Shelley Allbright, pediatric program coordinator, Foster Aid Medical, Inc., Lubbock.

Credit hours will be awarded in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association. For more information contact Sue Williams at (806)743-2929.

Air pollution inside causes health hazards

Making homes airtight for winter has become increasingly popular due to the high cost of fuel. So the American Lung Association of Texas-The Christmas Seal Peopleask: Is your home making you sick? Most people try to keep the warm air in, but are you aware that pollutants are also being kept in? Researchers have found that air pollution can be greater inside than outside.

Whether a dwelling is an apartment or a house, indoor pollution from sources such as microwave ovens, charcoal burning stoves, gas ranges, aerosol cans, and insulating materials can emit toxins that cause potentially dangerous health hazards. The following are just a sample of the many ways to cut down or eliminate indoor air pollution, make sure flame tips from range burners are blue not yellow, and don't use a microwave oven if the door doesn't shut completely.

This has been a winter of recordsetting cold spells, don't allow your attempts to keep the house warm cause serious indoor pollution.

The following suggestions are given to help keep the home free of air pollutants: (1) Don't use your gas oven to heat the house; (2) Use the hood fan over the stove while you are cooking; (3) Have gas appliances such as, stove, water heater, furnace and clothes dryer inspected by a qualified maintenance man each year; (4) Make sure stoves and heaters are vented to the outside and make sure they are crack-free; (5) NEVER cook with charcoal inside the house; (6) Never use a kerosene heater in a closed room or overnight, be sure the heater is vented; (7) Kick the cigarette habit. Refuse to allow smoking in your home when it is closed up; (8) Never leave a car or lawnmower engine running in an attached shed or garage; (9) Have adequate ventilation before using aerosol containers of household or personal care products.

Remember to take care of your lungs. It's. "A Matter of Life and Breath."

For more information about taking care of your lungs contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 N. Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78752 or call tollfree 1-800-252-LUNG.

Texas Frontier fashions described in book of a Texas frontier woman hampered feminity, but women still concerned themselves with clothes, fashion and "making a decent appearance."

The dress and lifestyle of the Texas pioneer woman has been studied indepth by Betty J. Mills, curator of costumes and textiles for The Museum of Texas Tech University. Mills is publishing her findings in a book, "Calico Chronicle," to be published this spring.

Mills began her research after receiving many inquiries about clothing of Texas pioneer days. She found that little was recorded about what the women wore, and for a good

Art Guild to gather

Jean Lyles of Texas Gallery will give a demonstration on painting landscapes when the Hereford Art Guild meets Tuesday in the art room at the Community Center.

Lyles is a well-known artist in Texas and the Southwest. She has given workshops and held art shows in the surrounding area.

Everyone is encouraged to attend this meeting.

Rocking chair program topic

La Afflatus Estudio Club met Tuesday in the home of Lucile Hughes and Aileen Montgomery.

After a brief business meeting conducted by Hughes, Teresa Hale gave the program on Texas Trends. She told of the history of the Texas Rocking chair which was started and built near Woodville by Hugh and Jennie Vaughn.

The main source of advertisement has always been the display of the rocking chairs in county fairs, the Houston Live Stock Show and others. According to Hall, Benjamin Franklin is said to have invented the first rocking chair.

Others attending were Lydia Hopson, Alyne Johnson and Della Stagner.

The club will meet March 5 in the home of Pet Ott with Alberta Higgins as co-hostess. Mary Williamson will present the program on Trends in

Smith to speak twice today at Nazarene Church

Today is the last day to hear Charles Hastings Smith, D.D., speak at the First Church of the Nazarene. He will speak during the 10:40 a.m. worship service and at 6 p.m. He has been speaking at the church since Wednesday.

Smith, a poet and evangelist, has been a commissioned evangelist in the Church of the Nazarene since 1940. He is a member of the Southwest Chaparral Poets Association for outstanding poets. He has appeared before numerous civic clubs, Chambers of Commerce, business dinners and banquets, high school and college assemblies to recite his original poems.

Everyone is invited to attend his services. For more information, contact the Nazarene Church at 364-8303.

Wyche discusses Presidents' month

Wyche Extension Club met Thursday afternoon in the lounge of the Community Center.

Argen Draper, hostess, opened the meeting with a discussion of February as President's month. She closed with a recitation of the American Creed. Clara Trowbridge conducted the business meeting. Council recommendations from the committees of finance; yearbook, recreation and education were approved. Carol Odom, who was appointed project chairman, announced that the club grandmother, Mrs. Richards, had fallen and is in Deaf Smith General Hospital. Odom asked members to send cards and make visits. Virgie Duncan introduced Odom who gave the program on whether to rent or buy telephones. She recommended that people make the choice to fit their own telephone use.

Others attending were Wynemia Wheeler, Novella Hewitt, Esther Thuett, Audrey Rusher, Pet Ott and one visitor, Pearl Hobbs

The next meeting will be March 7 in the Community Center with Carol Odom as hostess. Dennis Newton will give the program.

LUBBOCK - The rugged lifestyle reason. Necessity forced the women to convert garments into another useful item or the clothes were worn out. Consequently, the record is

> "Frontier women had just one good dress and one or two for everyday," Mills said. "They usually carried their good things in a trunk. A woman would take out her one good silk dress only for special occasions. The good dress had to last many

Clothing typical of the frontier woman is found in the museum's clothing collection, and the collection of everyday clothing has grown considerably since Mills began her research.

A simple indigo blue, one-piece dress made of linsey-woolsey represents the typical pioneer dress, Mills said. An apron and shawl were items almost always worn by the early settler.

Linsey-woolsey was named for the linen and wool combination in the homespun fabric. Indigo grew wild on the Texas frontier and was often used to dye homespun fabrics, Mills

For economy, clothes were simply made. Mills said. The bodice had little shaping and the skirt was plain and sleeves long and full.

Skirts often had a false hem to save fabric. Facing was sewed around the inside to give the appearance of a hem. The skirt was "fulled onto the waist," as the pioneer called gathering. Extra pieces of fabric were often sewed into the waist to make allowances for maternity wear.

After the 1890s, calico was a common fabric that was plentiful at 5 cents per yard. Calico could be purchased from a "drummer" or a traveling salesman, or it could be bought at the mercantile. One person from a settlement would often travel to a merchandising center to buy supplies for many families, Mills said. He would often have to bring back several bolts of calico.

The sewing machine was invented in the 1840s, but was uncommon in many Texas homes until the latter part of the 19th century, Mills noted. By the 1890s women could mail order

Although the frontier woman was secluded and had few resources, fashion was still important. By 1840, the woman had access to a few ladies' magazines or catalogs. "Godey's Ladies Book and Magazine" and "Peterson's Magazine" were the most popular. The fashion magazines offered the women small drawings of patterns that still had to be enlarged to life

Because cleaning clothing required major effort for Pioneers, a woman took special care of her good dress. She would wear dress shields to protect it and take the dress off to spot clean it as soon as she returned home, Mills said.

"Even in remote outposts, women cared how they looked," Mills said. "It was a mark of their upbringing to make a decent appearance."

Cowbelles gather for meeting

The members and guests of the Hereford Cowbelles met at the Caison House on Tuesday for their monthly luncheon and meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Dee Anne Trotter, president, and Charmayne Klett gave the invocation. Juanita Bowles, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report was submitted by Donna Jones.

Mama Jane Dameron introduced her guests, Mrs. June Nolan of Oklahoma City, Okla., Mrs. Dameron's daughter, and Jean Lyman.

Chris Connally, winner of the Beef First Year Showmanship Award at the Hereford Junior Livestock Show, was introduced by Lorraine An-

Amy Gililland, guest speaker, gave a book review on Irma Bombeck's book, "Motherhood, Second Oldest Profession."

Following Mrs. Gililland's book review a short business meeting was held.

The next meeting of the Hereford Cowbelles is set for March 12 at the Hereford Country Club.

Are You Ready For Retirement?

Our early settlers had one common denominator -- they all worked, and they worked hard! Everyone from grandma right down to the kids worked -- and worked -- and worked.

For all it's worth, the word "retirement" couldn't have been in the vocabulary of many of our forefathers.

Today, that word, "retirement", holds a very special and deep meaning to a lot of folks.

At our bank, we offer the new Individual Retirement Account. It's a plan that helps make your retirement years all you've worked for and more. You can deposit $2,000 a year as an individual to this program, without paying any federal income taxes on the principal or the interest, until you retire. Married couples who are both working may deposit $4,000, and one-paycheck couples may deposit $2,250.

The I.R.A. program from the Bank that's pioneering new ways of service and security for you, your family and your retirement.

DEAR LASALLE: Six pelvic examinations during a pregnancy is not excessive, especially when the patient informs the doctor of a "possible problem."

Apparently you are under the impression that the physician was getting his jollies while examining you. I assure you this is highly unlikely. Most obstetricians perform dozens of such procedures every day and they get about as turned on as otolaryngologists do when they look in an ear.

My name is unusual. It's a family name and I like it. I am sick and tired awfully hard to pronounce. Do you mind if I call you Sue?" I tell the rude bozos, "Yes, I DO mind. If I mean so little to you that you aren't willing to make an effort to remember my name, we have no friendship."

Am I unreasonable, as one woman said recently when she wanted to call me by my initials? I leave it to you.-MEXICO, MO.

DEAR MEX .: Since you did not tant to you that you be called by your given name, and you request it, your friends should oblige.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 24-year-old son returned from India, fascinated by the Hindus he saw there walking on hot coals. He wants to try it. (My husband and I are afraid he will burn himself.) Please tell us what you know about this practice. "Johnny" says it's a great religious experience.-LA JOLLA PARENTS

DEAR LA JOLLA: With proper psychological conditioning people can walk on hot coals and not be burned. This feat, however, requires enormous concentration and complete faith. If a person is not properly instructed and psyched up he could be badly burned. I do not recommend

World Day of Prayer scheduled Friday

Members of Church Women United of Hereford invite all women of each denomination to come to the First Church of the Nazarene Friday at 9:30 a.m. for the World Day of Prayer celebration.

The women will be recognizing the Christian women of India and their struggles and victories. The program will be filled with inspirational music by Susie Merrick and two Christian speakers, Janie Banner. member of Pro Family-Pro Life, and Tonya Kleuskens, representing POWER (people opposed to wasted energy repositories).

The testimonies of the two women will bring the theme, Prayer In Action, into focus.

This day of prayer combines prayer for world mission projects as well as home missions. For world missions in India, a collection will be taken which will be sent to aid the Christians in India. Four projects. have been selected in Hereford to help attain the goals of both mis-

First, CWU members will supply postcards and distribute the addresess of senators and congressmen. Second, members will distribute literature on the upcoming abortion bill. A seven-day devotional for Christians in India will be conducted as prayer support. Finally, a mini-prayer seminar will be held March 5 at St. Thomas Episcopal Church presented by Sharon Duke.

World Day of Prayer began in 1887 through the Women's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church. Soon after, other denominatons joined this day of prayer and the offerings started to aid minority groups in the United States.

In 1890, two Baptist women visited the Orient and saw the need for foreign missions. From this visit came the support through offerings to foreign missions. The first interdenominational mission study book also came from the women's trip to the Orient.

Then, in 1919, the two separate national days of prayer for home and world missions were combined into one day of prayer for all missions.

The women of CWU encourage all church women to attend the World Day of Prayer celebration.

Jena Rawley-Whitaker, left, developer of programs for World Day of Prayer, Susie Merrick, center, and Janie Banner took time out from their preparations for World Day of Prayer scheduled for Friday at 9:30 a.m. at the First Church of the Nazarene. Merrick will sing during the program and Banner will present her personal testimony. All church women are encouraged to attend. Babysitting will be available at no charge.

St. Anthony's Hospice to open early spring

Enrichment Center, Amarillo, will open its doors in early Spring as the first independently housed, hospital-owned hospice in the Southwest.

The center was built by the people of the Texas Panhandle, for terminally-ill patients and their families.

Owned and operated by St. Anthony's Hospital under the sponsorship of the Sisters of the Charity of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, Texas, the 20-bed facility is specifically designed to care for the dying. Through special nurturing, patients can finish life's journey in comfort and with dignity while focusing on the quality of life. This is accomplished by relieving or removing such roadblocks as pain, fear and loneliness

St. Anthony's Hospice and Life Enrichment Center is a one and onehalf story brick building totaling 26,000 square feet. Completely functional for both ambulatory and nonambulatory patients, the Center is designed to lend an atmosphere of home rather than a center for medical care. State of the Art equipment and advanced medical care provide each patient with the maximum of support and comfort: Features of the facility include large patient rooms opening onto a patio garden, several family areas, a laun-

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Weight loss

DEAR DR. LAMB - My friend likes her women's health club because the machines do all the work. The electric-powered stationary bicycle pulls the teet and legs around on its ing Antivert and recently was given a pedals. One machine's revolving rollers massage the fatty areas of the body, supposedly to break up the fat so it can be carried away by the bloodstream. Three-piece tables manipulate and jiggle the body while the person lies down quietly. Do such machines have value for a physically unimpaired person who wishes to have a slender figure and firm

DEAR READER - If you have to pay so much to join such clubs that cause. It may follow an acute illness, such as a respiratory infection. In you have less money for food, they can help. Otherwise, I consider them almost useless. If you don't exert any effort yourself, you will not do any physical work and will not use any calories." You will not develop a strong muscle unless you use it. That does not mean having a machine do the work while the muscle rests.

There is no reliable evidence indicating that rollers that massage fatty areas eliminate a single calorie of fat from the body. Fat is not broken up mechanically, anyway, the fat is mobilized because of energy demands of the body.

Steam baths or devices that cause sweating only eliminate body water. That can dehydrate you and will decrease your body weight temporarily, but it won't remove any calories of body fat.

It sounds as if your friend should read The Health Letter 15-12, Exercise Wise, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband has just had a diagnosis of temporal arteritis confirmed by a biopsy. What can you tell me about this rare disease? Will taking a low dose of prednisone for an indefinite period lower his immunity to respiratory and other diseases? Can diet or exercise play a part in his recovery?

DEAR READER - An early diagnosis of temporal arteritis is very important because early treatment can save a person's eyesight. The disease is an inflammation of arteries. Since the temporal artery is frequently involved, it has been called temporal arteritis, but because the inflammation can involve many other arteries, it is now called giant-cell arteritis. This term is based on what is seen under the microscope. Because the artery that supplies the eye itself may become involved, this disease can cause sudden blindness The way to avoid this is to control the inflammatory process in the artery, if possible. Large doses of prednisone or related steroids commonly are used for this purpose. When the diagnosis is made from a biopsy, as in your husband's case, it is common to con-tinue the prednisone at high levels for four weeks before beginning to decrease the dose. There may be some risk of bone loss (osteoporosis). but that has to be weighed against the risk of losing one's eyesight.

When the temporal artery is involved, the disease usually causes a headache over the artery. The area may be tender and swollen. Pain and cramping of the jaw muscles when chewing may be a symptom of arteritis. Double vision may occur when an artery to external eye muscles is involved. The condition usually responds well to prednisone.

"We have waited a long time to open this facility," said William D. Myers, President of St. Anthony's

Plans Discussed

Doug Manning, noted speaker and author of several books, is shown making plans with Louise Walker, County Extension Agent, for the upcoming Adult Sitter Clinic, scheduled Thursday and March 7 at the Deaf Smith County Library. The clinic, which is free of charge, is designed to teach the physical care of the ill and disbled. Manning will speak on "Understanding Grief and Loss" on March 7.

Beginning Experience sets weekend retreat in March

The Beginning Experience, a weekend program to help widowed, separated or divorced persons make a new beginning, has scheduled a retreat at the Bishop Defalco Retreat Center in Amarillo for March 22-24.

The organization schedules three retreats a year, each costing $55. The payment includes meals, lodging and materials. Other weekends already set are July 12-14, Sept. 27-29, and Jan. 10-12, 1986.

The program, designed by and for Catholics, is open to all faiths. The retreats are designed to meet the emotional and spiritual needs of

SHALL I OBEY THE LAW OR NOT?

Obey the government, for God is the one who has put it there. There is no government anywhere that God has not placed in power. So those who refuse to obey the laws of the land are refusing to obey God, and punishment will follow. For the policeman does not frighten people who are doing right; but those doing evil will always fear him. So if you don't want to be afraid, keep the laws and you will get along well. The policeman is sent by God to help you. But if you are doing something wrong, of course you should be afraid, for he will have you punished. He is sent by God for that very

Obey the laws, then, for two reasons: first. to keep from being punished, and second, just because you know you should. Pay your taxes too, for these same two reasons. For government workers need to be paid so that they can keep on doing God's work, serving you.

Pay everyone whatever he ought to have: pay your taxes and import duties gladly, obey those over you, and give honor and respect to all those to whom it is due. Pay all your debts except the debt of love for others--never finish paying that!

Art lecture set Tuesday

LUBBOCK - Eleanor Kreneck, artist and art historian, will discuss painting and illumination in medieval Romanesque art at an 11 a.m. lecture Tuesday in The Museum of Texas Tech University.

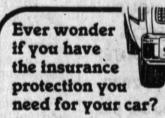

The lecture will focus on the revival of wall painting and the illumination of ancient manscripts, Kreneck said. The discussion will center on the churches of France, Spain, England, Italy and Germany in the 11th and 12th centuries.

"The fact that we're talking about wall painting is significant because it was revived during that period," Kreneck said.

The Romanesque period brought a stable government for Europe, Kreneck said. Countries settled form the migration period and began building large churches again. The wall painting is found mostly in churches of Spain, she said.

The lecture is part of the spring series of Tuesday after seminars sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Assoc Admission is $3 per lecture.

Preschool nutrition program explained

AUSTIN - A program designed to meet the special nutritional needs of preschool children has been developed by the American Heart Association in Texas. The program entitled, "Helping Children to a Healthy Heart," assists day care centers in planning breakfast, lunch and snack menues for the 370,000 children in their care each day.

The Heart Association developed this program based on the belief that cardiovascular disease may begin early in life, although symptoms usually do not appear until middle life or later. Therefore, if children develop healthy eating habits at an early age, their risk for heart and West given college award

COLLEGE STATION - Blena S. West from Hereford, senior agricultural economics major, has earned "Distinguished Student" status at Texas A&M University.

Recipients of the "Distinguished Student" honor must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio, out of a possible 4.0, during the most recent grading period. The student must also be registered for 15 semester blood vessel disease may be reduced. Some 4,800 day care facilities face. the daily predicament of providing appealing foods which help meet nutritional requirements and can be prepared easily at low cost. Because of these varied concerns, creating a heart-healthy dietary plan was not an easy assignment.

An American Heart Association volunteer task force consisting of nutritionists, physicians, parents and child care specialists was assembled. They designed a diet plan that meets the Recommended Dietary Allowance for calories, protein, iron, calcium and vitamins A,B,C,D. In addition, the plan is lower in saturated fats, cholesterol, sodium and sugar, but does not interfere with the children's enjoyment of food. The task force concentrated on substitution and modification of certain foods, rather than elimination.

The nutrition program was pilottested in Houston area day care centers. Children's reactions to the foods was given particular attention. While healthful foods are often considered bland and less appealing, the foods from the AHA menus met with surprising acceptance by the children.

The American Heart Association is now conducting workshops throughout Texas to familiarize day care center employees with the program. The workshop allows them to prepare and sample foods from the menu. Participants receive credit toward their annual Texas Department of Human Resources licensing requirements. Workshops are offered at no charge as a community

The "Helping Children to Healthy Heart" program benefits children in several ways. They will be adopting healthier eating habits now, rather than later in life-thus. lessening the risk of heart disease. An improved diet helps lower the average blood cholesterol level in children. Finally, the "Helping Children to a Healthy Heart" program can show children and parent that healthy foods need not be tasteless, but rather easy to make and fun to eat.
