

Residents Urged to Learn of MX Ramifications

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor

A representative of the Sane Nuclear Policy Committee (SANE) was in Hereford Wednesday urging local residents to oppose the deployment of an MX missile system in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico.

David Cortright, executive director of SANE and author of several articles on military affairs, cited statistics from the environmental impact statement filed on the MX missile project by the Air Force in urging local residents to fight the possibility of the missile ever being deployed in the area. He faced some tough questions from a gathering of approximately 30 local residents who appeared well-informed on issues relative to national defense, however.

Cortright's stop here was in conjunction with a speaking tour of the High Plains region of Texas and New Mexico. He spoke Monday at West Texas State University in Canyon.

The MX missile system was originally proposed for areas of Nevada and Utah and involves a veritable "shell game" concept of a limited number of land-based missiles on a transport facility moving them over tracks to various launching positions.

According to Cortright, each of the missiles in the system would require 23 shelters, or a total of 2,300 shelters for the 100 missiles in a split system.

Mention of locating half of the proposed MX missile system in the High Plains area was made after opposition to locating the entire project in Nevada and Utah grew to formidable proportions.

Cortright claimed in his presentation to local residents Wednesday that location of an MX missile system here would have a considerable bearing on local agriculture land, water facilities, and the economy in general, and that a definite "bust" would follow the "boom" likely to be noted with the construction of such a system.

"The Air Force examined the High Plains area of Texas and New Mexico in 1978 and found the area generally unsuitable. It chose the Utah-Nevada region because that was where the least opposition was expected," claimed Cortright.

There is considerable opposition in that area now, however, with resident pressure having an impact on Nevada and Utah legislators who produced a split basing amendment. That amendment requires the Air Force to seek an alternate location for half of the system," he continued.

The SANE spokesman reported that two options are available in the High Plains area, one providing for location of a central MX base in the Dalhart area, which would have a bearing on the northern Panhandle, and the second option involving a central MX base in the Clovis area, with what Cortright termed "considerably more impact on this local area."

Cortright presented what he called "basic facts and figures" concerning the bearing the basing of an MX system here would have on the local region.

Citing statistics from a 12-volume environmental impact statement filed by the Air Force, Cortright stated that the building of a series of tracks and launch points for an MX missile system would involve an influx of some 27,000 to 28,000 new construction workers in the region.

"Considering families, there could be a total in-migration of 45-50,000 people. From the aspect of potential economic benefit through new jobs, only one of five workers would be locally hired, so actually there would be little impact on local unemployment," he stated.

He also pointed out that 11,700 additional housing units would be required by 1987-88, and that with an additional projected student enrollment of 11,600 another 494 teachers would be required along with a beefed up police and fire protection force and additional health personnel.

"This could amount to another $18 million in additional expenditures for local government, and we have been unable to clarify if these projected costs include capital outlay, which would involve additional spending," said Cortright.

The SANE spokesman also zeroed in on a point he felt was of particular concern for Deaf Smith County.

"A total of 43,000 acres of prime cropland would be disturbed if the MX system is built in this area. As much as 50-55,000 acre-feet of water would be required during the construction phase and an additional 100,000 acre-feet would be required during the 20 years of operation," he remarked.

Massive water requirements became one of the major factors turning public sentiment against location of the MX system in the arid stretches of Nevada and Utah.

Cortright also claimed that the figures concerning displacement of farmland could change considerably depending on the system of security the Air Force chooses to employ in the area around the MX sites.

"Area security is much more desirable from the aspect of protection of the secrecy of the system but area security would make a much greater impact on agriculture. Area security would make active agricultural production impossible. The impact on agriculture in the area could range from severe to total," he claimed.

Cortright also explained that a substantial amount of private land would be taken over with up to 3,500 people and 1,000 buildings displaced.

"Construction of an MX missile system would have an immediate boom effect on the economy of an area but a colossal bust would also follow," he maintained, adding that the majority of construction personnel for the project would depart the area by 1992 and that the tax base for expanded services would then dissolve.

Cortright explained that the primary concern of his organization is centered on defense issues and that the SANE group maintains that the MX missile is not needed for national defense, "and in fact, will make us more insecure."

He claimed that the U.S. has 9,000 nuclear warheads, with the MX system bringing 2,000 more into the arsenal.

"This is a tremendous overkill capacity in warheads. If we can destroy the Russians 35 times over instead of 32, are we any more secure with the MX," he quizzed.

"The MX is unnecessary, wasteful and not needed for national defense. A lot of the funds that would go into the MX could be better directed toward strengthening conventional forces to improve their readiness. If we devoted the effort that will be needed for the MX toward developing energy alternatives we could enhance our own security by reducing our energy dependency on foreign countries," stated Cortright.

Iranian Parliament To Get Hostage Issue

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A leader of Iran's revolutionary regime indicated that the hostage crisis will go back to the Iranian Parliament because the U.S. government can't immediately meet some of the terms for release of the 52 captive Americans.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the president of Iran's Supreme Court and head of the Islamic Republican Party, Iran's biggest party, said Wednesday the Majlis (Parliament) "would have to meet if one or two of the conditions set by Iran for the liberation of the American detainees cannot be legally fulfilled by the United States," the Algerian news agency reported from Tehran.

The U.S. response to Iran's four conditions was delivered to the Iranian government earlier Wednesday by Algeria, which handles Iran's relations with the United States. The contents were not made public. But U.S. officials said in addition to the pledge of non-interference in Iranian affairs demanded by Iran, it included an explanation of the legal obstacles to speedy fulfillment of the other three conditions.

The other terms, which were announced in October by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, and approved by the Majlis on Nov. 2, are the release of more than $3 billion in frozen Iranian assets in U.S. banks and their foreign subsidiaries, cancellation of all American legal claims against Iran and the return of the fortunes which the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his closest relatives transferred abroad.

An official in Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai's office in Tehran said a Cabinet meeting was scheduled to discuss the American reply, but he did not know when it would be held.

Tehran Radio had no immediate comment on the American response.

The Algerian news agency reported that the speaker of the Majlis, Hojatolislam Hashemi Rafsanjani, said

Iran had presented its terms and would make no new moves. But a top Algerian official said it remained to be seen whether that would be the reaction of Khomeini and other leaders of the regime.

The U.S. response was delivered to the Algerian government Monday by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who flew to Algiers to give the Algerians a detailed explanation of the American position for transmission to the Iranians.

President Carter, after meeting Wednesday with Christopher and Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie at the White House, told reporters progress toward ending the crisis is "up to the Iranians. I think it would certainly be to their advantage and to ours to resolve this without any further delay."

He said Christopher's mission was a success because it enabled the United States to transmit its position.

"I would say we definitely accomplished what we set out to do," Christopher told reporters. "Where we go from here will depend on the reaction of the Iranians."

Today was the hostages' 376th day in captivity.

Planes, Armor Duel at Abadan

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi warplanes and artillery hammered Abadan, but Iran claimed it drove the invaders farther back from the northeast side of its besieged refinery city as the Persian Gulf war entered its 53rd day.

The Tehran command said residential areas of Abadan came under renewed attack from Iraq's long-range artillery Wednesday, and that six policemen were killed in an Iraqi air attack.

It said Iraqi troops northeast of Abadan were forced to retreat from the palm groves on the Iraqi-held side of the Bahmanshir River. It claimed 50 Iraqi tanks and personnel carriers were seized in the fighting.

The Baghdad command said 32 Iranians and eight Iraqi troops were killed in the Abadan area, an Iranian vessel was sunk in the Karun River to the north and that three Iranian jets and three helicopter gunships were shot down over Iraq.

Abadan is the last Iranian stronghold on the Shatt al-Arab estuary, Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf. Iraq invaded Iran Sept. 22, primarily to regain sovereignty over the east side of the estuary.

Iran's Pars news said Iranian artillery killed or wounded about 235 Iraqi troops in day-long fighting around Ahwaz, capital of oil-rich Khuzistan Province 75 miles north of Abadan.

Eleven Iraqi tanks and 40 other vehicles were destroyed in the fighting, Pars said.

Air Force Plane Crashes in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet transport ferrying equipment to Egypt in the first overseas test of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force crashed and exploded in a "fireball that lit up the night sky" in the desert near Cairo West Airport, killing all 13 Americans aboard, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman said it was unclear whether the fireball was caused by exploding fuel or weapons carried aboard the aircraft.

It was the second fatal crash of a U.S. Air Force plane near Cairo in three months. An F-4 Phantom fighter went down southwest of the Egyptian capital on Aug. 16, killing both American crewmen. They were taking part in maneuvers with the Egyptian air force.

The four-engine C-141 Starlifter was coming in on the final leg of its approach to the Egyptian military field 20 miles west of Cairo, when it crashed just before midnight Wednesday among barren dunes about four miles north of the runway, the embassy spokesman said.

Pinpointing Area

David Cortright, executive director of SANE, the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy pinpoints the projected location of an MX missile system in the local area on a large map during a presentation to a gathering of local residents yesterday. Cortright was in Hereford as part of a speaking tour in the Texas Panhandle and Eastern New Mexico urging area residents to inform themselves about the MX missile issue and to take a hand in determining whether it will indeed come to the region. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

Air Force Set to Move Ahead With Planning for MX at Clovis

Despite claims that the controversial MX missile system will not be located in the Texas-New Mexico area the Air Force is moving ahead with plans for contracting some $14 million worth of preparatory work for location of a portion of the MX missile system on the Texas-New Mexico border.

That work is to include planning for support bases at Clovis and Dalhart, with the work at Clovis holding the potential to have considerable impact in the western portion of Deaf Smith County.

According to a statement issued by the Air Force, the work proposed for contracting will include planning for "base facilities and function as well as construction camps and initial railroads, roads and utilities for the MX system."

The Air Force statement indicates, "Under Air Force contracts whose estimated value may be almost $14 million, commercial architecture, engineering and planning firms will do the comprehensive planning for MX support bases in early 1981 at Clovis, N.M., Beryle and Milford, Utah, and Coyote Springs, Nev. Planning for Dalhart, Texas, Delta, Utah and Ely, Nev. will occur later."

A spokesman for Rep. Kent Hance's office maintaining, however, that the latest move by the Air Force is "part of an ongoing process of planning and studying our area" and that it remains doubtful that an MX missile system would actually be placed in the Texas-New Mexico border area.

Hance aide Don Richards reported that the proposed site for the missile system in Utah and Nevada is on public land, while locating the missile in the local region would involve displacement of productive farmland and also affect residents in an area more densely populated.

According to Richards, property in the local area would cost from $1,000 to $1,200 per acre and add at least $3 billion to the cost of the missile project, already projected to run as high as $100 billion.

According to Richards, the Senate Armed Services Committee will have a great deal to say concerning the eventual location of the MX system, and word from some circles indicates that studies will show location of a missile system in this area is not practical.

Public hearings are yet to be conducted near the proposed missile sites and following those hearings Air Force officials will recommend how the missiles should be deployed. That recommendation will be considered by the President and then passed on to Congress.

Considerable uncertainty faces the proposed MX missile system, however, since it remains to be seen how President-elect Reagan will deal with the MX missile issue upon assuming office.

Lame Duck Demos Block Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lame-duck Democrats in Congress, firing a parting shot at victorious Republicans, are blocking GOP efforts to enact a Ronald Reagan-style tax cut before the president-elect moves into the White House.

Democratic leaders decided to call it quits by Dec. 5 after sharply pruning the congressional agenda for the post-election session that began Wednesday.

Among the items jettisoned was a proposed $39.8 billion tax reduction for 1981 backed by Reagan and congressional Republicans.

"We felt Mr. Reagan ought to have his time at bat," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the outgoing majority leader.

The tax cut fashioned by the Senate Finance Committee differs from the 30 percent reduction over three years proposed by Reagan, but the president-elect has said it would be "fine" with him if Congress went ahead and passed it.

But the Senate plan had little support in the House, and Byrd said he changed his mind about seeking immediate action on it after conferring with Democratic colleagues and President Carter.

Carter told Byrd and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. he would veto the tax-cut bill if it reached him in his remaining nine weeks in office. And at an impromptu White House news conference, (See LAME DUCK, Page 2-A)

East-West Coast

Flights Going Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The skies are becoming less friendly for passengers flying between the East and West coasts.

Fares on the heavily-traveled New York-California routes, which dropped to as low as $198 for a round-trip ticket this summer, will rise to above $300 on Jan. 1, Eastern Airlines said Wednesday. Other carriers are expected to match the sharp increases.

"It's bringing it back to a realistic level from an unrealistic level," said David Frailey, a vice president of American Airlines.

Eastern, which entered the transcontinental markets June 1, dove down the fares and was the first to announce the sharp increase. The move is seen as a declaration of peace in the fare wars that have helped cause most major airlines to report losses so far this year.

"We've just really pretty well bludgeoned one another," said an airline official who asked not to be quoted by name. "We're going to have to settle into economics."

Airlines have been raising base fares rapidly for more than a year, responding in part to sharply increased fuel bills. But deep discounts on many routes have held down the increase in profits. This summer, according to a trade association, two-thirds of the passengers on major airlines were using discount fares.

Last winter, fare wars broke out on some popular routes from the northeast to Florida. An Eastern Airlines official said it appeared such low fares will not prevail this winter, but cautioned that it was too early to tell. The Eastern move on the California routes may encourage other airlines not to slash fares on the Florida ones.

The latest in the general round of price hikes will take effect Tuesday, when most airlines impose increases of 6 percent in basic fares, bringing the total increases so far this year to 51.7 percent.

Death Postponed

By Court Delay

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Assistant State Attorney General Gerald Carruth says a prolonged delay in a court reporter's paperwork actually helped a death row inmate because it postponed the man's date with the executioner.

Attorneys for John W. McCrory told U.S. District Judge Eldon C. Mahon that they were forced to wait 20 months for typed court records necessary for an appeal, and because of that delay their client's civil rights had been violated.

Defense attorney M.P. Duncan III said the state offered no excuse for the delay and that an appeal could not be filed until a typed record was provided.

During the first day of a hearing on McCrory's civil rights suit Wednesday, Carruth testified that defense lawyers had slowed the process of transcribing court records by moving for extensions.

He said one reason for the delay was the length of the trial: The typed report filled 6,000 pages.

Carruth also said the transcripts were available Jan. 15, and the defense could have filed an appeal then.

McCrory, 28, was sentenced to death Feb. 7, 1979, for the murder of 17-year-old Jeana Walker of Roanoke in June 1978.

Holly Hanks Mobley, the court reporter for McCrory's murder trial, said the delay in paperwork was due to an overload of cases she had to transcribe before the McCrory case.

Blind Man

Charged in Death

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Murder charges have been filed against the blind boyfriend of a state employee who was bound, doused with a caustic substance and apparently forced to swallow sulfuric acid.

Co-workers found the victim's nude, acid-burned body face up on the bed of her mobile home after she failed to report to work Monday.

Charged was Larry Townsley, 30, who has been declared legally blind. The victim was Pauline Blair, 40, an employee of the Texas Commission for the Blind.

Townsley's bond was set at $100,000 on Wednesday.

Until recently, he had operated a food-service concession stand in San Angelo.

Police Lt. Robert Wisian said Townsley had met the British-born woman about nine months ago and had been living in her mobile home off and on since then.

Wisian said an autopsy established Ms. Blair was still alive when she swallowed a caustic substance Sunday night. A preliminary laboratory examination showed it to be sulfuric acid.

Pathologist Coleman de Chenar told investigators death was caused by "ingestion of a caustic material."

The woman's hair had been crudely hacked off, and marks on her wrists and ankles showed she had been tied shortly before her death.

Police said Ms. Blair recently had been to Houston to see her parents — Mr. and Mrs. L.M. Pobey of Bournemouth, England — catch a flight home. The parents had just completed a two-week vacation throughout the United States with their daughter.

Jeanne Loses Hurricane Status

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Jeanne, weakened by the cool waters of the Gulf of Mexico, was forecast to turn toward the northwest today as forecasters said high tides would occur along the Louisiana and Texas coast.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami downgraded Jeanne from hurricane to tropical storm status late Wednesday when top winds dropped from 75 to 70 mph. A tropical storm must have sustained winds of 74 mph to reach hurricane status. At 11 p.m. EST Wednesday, Jeanne's center was slightly more than 400 miles south of New Orleans, estimated near latitude 24.0 north, longitude 90.5 west. It was moving toward the west at 5 mph, and forecasters here said the rare November storm probably would lose strength today.

"We think it's going to weaken, because it's completely surrounded by dry air from a front that's pushed from behind, plus the water temperature is rather cool," forecaster Gil Clark said. Even so, tides were forecast to range up to two feet above normal along the Louisiana coast and up to four feet above normal along the Texas coast, raising threats of beach erosion.

The hurricane center advised small craft from Brownsville, Texas to Tarpon Springs, Fla., to remain in port. It said marine interests in the Gulf should monitor the storm's progress.

Jeanne, the first Atlantic-area hurricane to form in November since 1966, was farther north and west than any November tropical storm ever recorded by the Hurricane Center.

"We've had a few in the Gulf before, but never one that's made it this far north and west. Our records go back to 1886," Clark said.

He said the last November hurricane was Lois, which developed in the Atlantic Ocean in 1966. The last tropical storm was Laura, which developed in 1971 in the western Caribbean.

Gale-force winds extended outward 150 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south as Jeanne and a large high-pressure system over the eastern United States combined to cause very rough seas over the north-central and northeast Gulf, an area dotted by oil rigs.

Chevron USA Inc. said it had evacuated 1,000 offshore workers by Tuesday night. Other oil companies said they were closing down some operations and bringing in all but the minimum number of workers required to keep other operations going.

Exxon said it had evacuated 700 workers, Gulf reported 610 evacuations, Shell 400, and Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. 350. Texaco said it had moved 70 workers from the Gulf.

The last November hurricane to hit land struck Miami on Nov. 4, 1935, said public service forecaster Alvin Samet. One hit the Tampa Bay area on Nov. 30, 1925, and one swept across the Florida Keys on Nov. 15, 1916. All three were minimal hurricanes, Samet said. He said there have been other November hurricanes that did not reach land.

The 1980 Atlantic hurricane season ends Nov. 30.

Carter Still Sniping At Tax Cut Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, hitting anew at the economic policies of his successor, says the only way Ronald Reagan's advisers could find 6 percent of the 1981 federal budget to cut would be to devastate programs to aid the nation's disadvantaged.

"It's easy to say you can eliminate 6 percent, but you can't eliminate 6 percent of veterans' benefits, 6 percent of Social Security payments, 6 percent of defense capability," Carter said Wednesday during a surprise appearance in the White House press room.

"If you talk about 6 percent of the total, you are talking about 35 to 40 percent of things that can be cut and that's an extraordinary reduction on things like Head Start.

"So I doubt the accuracy of that figure," he declared.

Head Start provides services for low-income preschool children and money for research and demonstration projects. The Carter administration has requested $825 million for the child-development program in 1981, an increase of $90 million over 1980. Edwin Meese III, head of Reagan's transition team, said earlier Wednesday the president-elect's advisers have drawn a list of possible government cutbacks totaling almost 6 percent of the 1981 budget.

Meese said a spending-control task force drew up the list so that Reagan could fulfill a campaign pledge to cut the budget by 2 percent.

Reagan will "sift and choose from among the recommendations...and then we'll announce what revisions he feels are necessary in the budget to accomplish a 2 percent reduction," Meese said.

The areas where the cuts would be made were not disclosed, although Reagan has indicated the defense budget would not be cut.

Democrats on the House Budget Committee challenged Reagan to honor his promise of a 2 percent cut by voting Tuesday to set a budget ceiling that would force the president-elect to slash spending by $17 billion, or about 2.5 percent, from the current budget drafted by the committee's staff.

A budget reduction of 6 percent would equal almost $39 billion, enough to wipe out the entire deficit projected for this fiscal year.

Meese said most of the proposed savings would come from "specific tightening up, specific cutting of administrative overhead rather than cutting of whole programs." But he said "some minor programs" may be eliminated altogether.

At his impromptu news conference, Carter said a 2 percent overall cut is "within the realm of feasibility," but he added: "Whether it's practical, I don't know."

"I think a 6 percent across-the-board cut would be very, very excessive," he said.

with Kuwait, and said Iranian jets struck at four cities in central and northern Iraq, wounding four civilians.

Kuwait said an unidentified warplane fired two rockets at its northern border crossing with Iraq at Abdali. A Kuwaiti government spokesman said there were no casualties or damage.

It was the first reported incident in which the Iran-Iraq war spilled over the border of a neighboring nation.

None of the battlefield reports could be independently confirmed because Western reporters have been barred from regular visits to the war zones.

Olof Palme, head of Sweden's Socialist Party and a former prime minister, was preparing to fly to Tehran and Baghdad next week at the request of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Palme told a news conference in Stockholm his mission would be "an investigative rather than a mediating or negotiating one."

"It is an immensely difficult mission as there are deep-rooted differences between the two sides," Palme said. "One should not expect any speedy results."

Previous mediation efforts by the Non-Aligned Movement, the Islamic Conference and the Palestine Liberation Organization produced no results.

Lame Duck

Carter said, "To try to hammer out a major tax cut would be inappropriate and I would do everything I could to discourage it."

Senate Democrats decided earlier in the day against even considering the tax cut during the lame-duck session, leaving the issue for the Reagan administration and the new 97th Congress.

While Republicans were still expected to press for enactment of a tax cut this year, the action by Senate Democrats seemed to make their quest a moot issue.

Byrd and O'Neill, meanwhile, met privately Wednesday and decided to make the lame-duck session as brief as possible, handling only essential money bills and some issues already well on their way to passage.

Republicans were no more eager than Democrats for a prolonged session.

The lame-duck session is a last stand for 17 senators and 65 House members, many of them Democrats swept out of office in the Reagan landslide.

Republicans will hold a 53-47 majority in the new Senate, reversing 25 years of Democratic rule. Democrats will retain control of the House, but by a sharply reduced 243-192 margin.

O'Neill will be his party's highest-ranking elected official once Carter leaves the White House, and he said he hopes to have a major role in picking a Democratic national chairman to rebuild the party.

"I don't intend to be speaker of the House and allow my party to go down the drain," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

Crash

"We don't know the cause," he added.

The plane carried six crewmen and seven passengers.

The crewmen, from the 62nd Airlift Wing at McChord Air Force Base, near Tacoma, Wash., were identified by base spokesman Master Sgt. Mike Pidding as Bradford B. Hirsh and Patrick A. Welch, both captains; Glenn R. Williams, David L. Harer and Gary T. Rayne, all staff sergeants; and Tech Sgt. Ronnie G. Hoyer. Their ages and hometowns were not released.

The passengers were no immediately identified.

"It was carrying supplies for the rapid deployment exercise, and that's why there were so few on board," said the spokesman. The Lockheed C-141 can carry 154 troops.

The spokesman said the transport had taken off from a base in Europe. But a Navy spokesman in Washington said the crew was from McChord and the plane was assigned to a unit stationed at Travis Air Force Base, outside San Francisco.

About 1,400 Army troops and airmen are to take part in a joint training exercise with Egyptian forces which begins Friday. Called Bright Star, it is the first foreign test of the new American Rapid Deployment Force being trained for use in the Persian Gulf if Western oil supplies from the Arabian peninsula are threatened.

The main body of the U.S. force consists of a battalion and supporting units from the Army's 101st Airborne Division based at Fort Campbell, Ky. The operation is designed to provide training in the harsh desert conditions that were a factor in the failure of the attempt in April to rescue the 52 American hostages in Iran.

Cortright also claimed that the U.S. has a considerable edge on Russia in military capability, particularly in multiple warhead capacity of its ICBMs and that the U.S. also has a powerful triad of nuclear capability including land-based missiles, a bomber force and nuclear missile firing submarines.

His claims of a strong edge for the U.S. in military power prompted tough questions from local residents, however, concerning the age of the U.S. bomber force and the present status of the American submarine fleet.

One member of the audience also pointed out that at least three High Plains cities that have already gone through boom and bust economic cycles are actively seeking the location of the operations center for the MX missile system in proximity to their communities.

"We've talked with military officials and their figures don't show us ahead of the Soviets militarily as yours do," claimed one member of the audience.

"Are we really behind when each leg of our triad system is so powerful that we have the capability to destroy the Soviet Union many times over, even if three quarters of our force is destroyed," Cortright responded.

Cortright claimed that inter-service rivalry is one reason why the MX missile concept is being pushed, although he claimed basing MX missiles on the new Trident submarine would accomplish the basic concept outlined with the proposed land-based MX system at considerably less expense.

"One Trident sub would have 400 deliverable nuclear warheads and one submarine would have the capability of destroying the entire Soviet Union," said Cortright, adding that subs at sea are difficult to locate.

The SANE spokesman emphasized his opinion that the effort being concentrated on nuclear weaponry should be redirected toward projects such as alternate energy sources for the county.

"It's my personal opinion that we already have enough nuclear weaponry with what is in our arsenal now and no more is needed. A third of our most talented people are working not on energy but on nuclear weapons. We need to get that talent working on issues that are really threatening this nation," he said.

"It's my hope that people in this area will continue to remain informed on the MX missile issue and that they will apply the political pressure necessary to stop this waste and this system," he concluded.

Burglary Reported To Police

Hereford police are investigating an apparent burglary which occurred at McRight Garage sometime last night or early this morning.

According to Hereford police Capt. Ray Morgan, a patrolling officer discovered the break-in at 3 a.m. today and upon further investigation at the location of the break-in at 642 East Second found that a soft drink machine had been rifled and the drawers of a desk inside the business torn up.

The owners of the firm were taking inventory today to determine what had been taken.

Mike Spangler of 300 Sunset informed police that he parked his car in the 600 block of Lee yesterday and 25 stereo tapes and his car keys were taken from the vehicle.

A 10-year-old Shirley Elementary student informed police that three boys began hitting her yesterday after she refused to give them a football trading card.

The girl was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital and subsequently released. Police are continuing to investigate the incident.

George Huereca of 305 Lawton informed police that someone broke into his house and took a piggy bank in which he had hidden a large amount of money, and also took a watch valued at $300 yesterday.

Don Nielson of 411 Centre informed police that someone put a garden hose in the gas tank of his car last night and left the water running all night, resulting in undetermined damage to the car.

Two tire slashing incidents were reported yesterday, one at the R.C. Anderson residence at 430 Westhaven and the other at the residence of Cindy Smith, 147 Hickory.

Police received two reports of harrasing phone calls yesterday and investigated two minor accidents, one in the 100 block of West Park and the other at the Sugarland Mall parking lot.

Officers issued two traffic citations yesterday.

In Politics is One Term Enough?

Before each election I have correctly predicted the outcome in advance — since and including the so-called "Truman surprise" of 1948. Customarily, I have delivered my post-election synicated newspaper column to editors five days in advance of the election.

I cannot claim any uncanny insight; rather it is because I travel widely each election year and listen to you.

This year, because of the extraordinary "hostage situation," I waited until the day before the election to deliver my sealed "prediction" to the American Broadcasting Co.

While pollsters were saying the election was "too close to call," I was predicting a Reagan win.

In American politics, incumbency is no longer the advantage it once was.

Starting with L.B.J., Americans have begun voting "no" for president.

Americans have begun telling officeholders: "You've had your chance; now let's give somebody else a crack at it."

Historically — in the beginnings of our nation — political office was not intended to be self-perpetuating.

Political office was a one-term public service. Americans would take time out from their professions, their businesses, their farms, and give a few years to public service.

True, some statesmen were called back by their constituents because they had become especially effective spokesmen for a particular region, cause or issue — for example, Henry Clay, Stephen Douglas, Daniel Webster...

But even these accepted reelection reluctantly. It would never have occurred to the Washingtons, the Adamsons or the Jeffersons to fight to stay in office.

Even counting F.D.R.'s several terms, on average, U.S. presidents have served in that office less than five years.

Politics did not become a profession until this century, specifically about 1890.

Now since 1969 it appears Americans are reverting. During the recent campaign there were in evidence many cynical bumper stickers reading: "DON'T RE-ELECT ANYBODY!"

Americans have rediscovered that the political animal is likely to develop an insatiable hunger for fame, prestige, power and money.

While incumbents try fervently to convince the electorate that they are indispensable, each election evidences a further disenchantment with that premise.

And if recent generations of political leaders have been inclined to promote a foreign crisis so that they could urge us, "Don't change horses in midstream..."

That doesn't work any more.

Voyager I Moves in for Saturn Mission Finale

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After aiming its cameras point-blank at the huge moon Titan — and taking pictures of an orange smog concealing its surface — Voyager I hurtled on today toward the climax of its mission — a close-up look at the golden, ringed planet Saturn. The unmanned space probe, which sailed within 2,500 miles of the moon late Tuesday, headed into Saturn's clouds at 38,000 mph to take photographs of the shimmering rings and at least five other moons before leaving the planet's realm. Meanwhile, earthbound scientists were disappointed that only hints of Titan's surface detail emerged through the moon's natural smog. Computer wizardry was expected to enhance photographs of the features below the haze. "I don't think there's any evidence we are seeing the surface," said David Morrison of the Voyager camera team. "But we are clearly seeing some cloud structure. The streaks and things (vaguely seen in the clouds) aren't showing up very convincingly in the raw images" from Voyager. Amid the excitement, scientists already were feeling sad that the close encounter with Saturn was so fleeting.

"This near encounter is happening so fast and some of us have worked so long on it that we wish we could slow time down," Deputy Project Manager Esker Davis said. "We wish we could revel in this excitement and this joy...in learning all these new things. But we can't slow time down, so it will be over all too quickly." Fast approaching the end of its three-year mission, Voyager skimmed past Titan at 9:41 p.m. PST Tuesday, but radio messages signaling its success took more than an hour to cross the more than 1 billion miles of space.

Its equipment also recorded data on the composition and density of Titan's methane atmosphere and its actual size. The moon's unseen surface may even hold puddles or lakes of liquid methane or nitrogen, said project scientist Ed Stone.

Accurate surface measurements also may show whether it really is the solar system's largest moon. Titan's diameter, 3,400 miles, has included the clouds around it. Voyager pierced Saturn's magnetic field late Tuesday afternoon after covering 1.24 billion miles since leaving Earth on Sept. 5, 1977, crossing what is known as the bowshock — the point where Saturn's magnetic field deflects the solar wind, a stream of electrically charged particles emitted by the sun.

Photographs earlier Tuesday revealed at least two eccentric, irregular ringlets among the planet's 100 or so narrow, circular rings of icy particles. When Voyager 1 leaves the sixth planet, it will head out of the solar system to begin an endless journey among the stars. Voyager 2, a sister ship, will reach Saturn next August and travel on to the planet Uranus in 1986 and Neptune three years later.

Answer to Who Shot J.R. Ewing Puts CBS on Top in Prime Time

NEW YORK (AP) — To thousands of "Dallas" fans, "Who Shot J.R.?" may be the most burning question of all prime-time — and CBS is dragging out the answer with ratings points as the big reward.

The network whetted viewers' appetites for the denouement in the week ending Nov. 9 and came out in first place in the prime-time ratings race, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

Each of four episodes of the prime-time soap opera finished among the week's 10 highest-rated programs. In fact, CBS listed nine of the Top 10 shows and 12 of the first 13 to win the networks' ratings competition for the second straight week.

CBS' rating for the week was 22.2, to 17.9 for ABC and 14.8 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 22.2 percent of the homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

The "Dallas" series focuses on the wheelings and dealings of the Ewing clan. J.R. Ewing, perhaps the meanest man on TV, was shot and seriously wounded last season, but the culprit has not been fingered.

Sunday night's episode, the last of the four broadcast in the week, was the most-watched show in the period, with a rating of 40. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 40 percent saw at least part of the Sunday night show. Fans of "Dallas" will have to wait until Nov. 21 for the solution to the mystery that has become an international fascination.

NBC maintains its programming for 1980-81 began Sept. 15, with the miniseries "Shogun," and by that standard, NBC leads in the race by more than two points over No. 2 CBS. Both CBS and ABC say the season, delayed by the 10-week actors' strike, began Oct. 27.

ABC's "Love Boat" was the only non-CBS show to crack the Top 10.

An episode from CBS' new series "Ladies' Man," was 11th in the ratings, and a movie, "Love at First Bite," also from CBS, was 12th. Two other new series, "It's a Living" and "I'm a Big Girl Now," both from ABC, fared well — 26th and 27th.

Ten of the week's lowest-rated programs were paid political announcements, broadcast before Tuesday's election. The exception was "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley," No. 58 of 60 shows rated. The networks' evening-long elections coverage, which was not sponsored, was not included in the ratings.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," Sunday, with a rating of 40 representing 31.1 million homes, "Dallas," 10-11 p.m. EST Friday, 38.2 or 29.7 million, "The Jeffersons," 32.1 or 25 million, "Dallas," 9-10 p.m. EST Friday, 31.8 or 24.7 million, "Alice," 31.2 or 24.3 million, "60 Minutes," 29.7 or 23.1 million, "One Day at a Time," 29.2 or 22.7 million, "Archie Bunker's Place," 27.6 or 21.5 million, and "Dallas," Thursday, 24.7 or 19.2 million, all CBS, and "Love Boat," 24.4 or 19 million, ABC.

Titanic Searcher Wants Piece of Ocean Floor

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A Texas oilman who has spent a fortune scanning the ocean floor for the wreck of the Titanic now intends to dig a little deeper in search of wealth beneath the North Atlantic.

Jack Grimm said he and a group of other Texas oilmen will try to claim the mineral rights to 10,000 square miles of seabed beyond Canada's 200-mile territorial limit.

The Abilene adventurer, who also has sponsored expeditions seeking Noah's Ark and the legendary monster "Bigfoot," revealed his plans Tuesday during a speech on the progress of a research team looking for the wreck of the Titanic.

He described the ocean floor as a "no man's land" and said anyone "big enough to mine it and hang on to it" should have a right to claim it as long as they produce in the area.

"With our technology we should be able to go out and lay claim to it," said Grimm. He said the project would set an international precedent because on one has made a seabed claim before.

The Texas investors are looking at a portion of the continental shelf at an undisclosed location off the coast of Newfoundland which measures between 600 and 800 feet deep.

Grimm said the seabed is rich in oil, natural gas and minerals that should be claimed by enterprising Americans.

He said he didn't go along with a proposal by Third World nations that lands beyond territorial waters should be controlled by the United Nations' International Seabed Authority.

And Grimm contended there is no legal basis to stop him from claiming portions of the ocean floor.

The 55-year-old oilman already has spent more than a $1 million searching for the "unsinkable" Titanic, a British luxury liner that struck an iceberg and sank on its maiden voyage in April of 1912 with a loss of about 1,500 lives. Seven hundred people were rescued.

The ship sank about 380 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The research team announced last summer that it believed it had found the ship. Although several scientists on the team disagreed, Grimm said he was confident the wreck of Titanic had been located.

He said Tuesday the team would return to the area next June 15 and would remain until July 1.

Originally the team planned to locate and film the wreckage. But Grimm has said since that the group will attempt to recover the ship's safe, which he maintains could hold $200 million in diamonds.

He said any salvage effort would depend on whether the wreck was in a position that would allow access by submarine.

Grimm told his Abilene audience Tuesday that he also is interested in the $10 million plan of an unidentified Houston company for raising the Titanic.

T V, Schoolwork Negative Mixture

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A news item making the rounds last week reported a negative correlation between television watching and schoolwork. The more a kid watched TV, a California survey found, the worse he or she did in school.

"The verbal dialogue that goes on in many of those commonly watched programs is of very low quality," state Schools Superintendent Wilson Riles said. "And the educational value would be nil."

Being of a skeptical nature, I determined to test the superintendent's conclusion.

I chose as my subject an episode of "The Dukes of Hazzard," a CBS series said to be hugely popular among school-age viewers.

The test episode happened to be the pilot show for a new CBS series, "Enos," based on the exploits of "the best danged deputy Hazzard County ever had," as Enos was described by the "Dukes" narrator.

"Course," he offered in qualification, "bein' the best in Hazzard County ain't necessarily the same as bein' the best somewhere else." Hmm. A commendable affirmation of duties ably performed, tempered by a healthy sense of perspective. So far, so good.

As the story unfolded, it was revealed that Deputy Enos wanted to leave parochial Hazzard County for the challenge of big-city police work. Alas, he had as commendation only the trivial accomplishments of rural law enforcement — recovering a citizen's lost overalls, chasing a cat out of a tree, deeds of that nature.

"You know folks," the narrator offered, "I'll bet ol' Abe Lincoln's qualifications didn't look too good when he started out, either."

Ah, fine employment of allegory, with reference to American history. Good, good.

When the avaricious and tyrannical Boss Hogg, who runs Hazzard County, learns of Enos' ambitions, he fires the deputy.

"You are hereby dismissed, discharged, disassembled and discontinued," Hogg shouts.

You'll notice the use of alliteration, and the employment of two polysyllabic words.

Circumstance deals Enos a golden opportunity. The Duke Boys' leggy cousin, Daisy, is kidnapped by desperate bank robbers. She had inadvertently photographed the robbers at the scene of the crime.

Daisy puts up a fight and the antagonists quickly learn, as the narrator notes, that "Tanglin' with sweet Daisy is 'bout like tryin' to put socks on a rooster."

A pregnant epigram, that, with strains of feminism as well as valuable instruction in animal husbandry.

In the end, Enos comes through and is accepted for employment by the Los Angeles Police Department.

Low quality verbal dialogue? Nil educational value? Bah.

CHICAGO (AP) — Gloria Swanson stepped off the Broadway Limited with an armful of red carnations and a fur coat draped over her designer suit to face a hometown welcome and a special tribute at the Chicago International Film Festival.

Asked about her health and longevity, the 81-year-old actress said: "When you were young, did doctors fill you with pills and stick injections into you? No, of course not! You grew up all by yourself. The body is smart enough to manage its 7 trillion cells all on its own, and, if your body is clean inside, it can heal anything. But if you feed it with junk food, what do you expect?"

Her Chicago appearance Monday coincided with the release of her autobiography, "Swanson on Swanson," which touches on a love affair she said she had with Joseph P. Kennedy, patriarch of the Kennedy family.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — It's been a long time since he plunged into a lake as the movies' jungle king, Tarzan, but 76-year-old Johnny Weissmuller is up to a stroll around his Acapulco pool several times a day.

Weissmuller, a swimmer who won five Olympic gold medals, is "improving all the time," his wife Maria said Tuesday. "Any reports that he is dying are just terrible and not true."

Six months ago, she had reported her husband wanted to be left alone, was not lucid, talked very little and was waiting to die.

Weissmuller came here in May 1979 after he was removed from an old age home in California where he had begun making "Tarzan" yells in the middle of the night. He suffered a series of debilitating strokes in 1977 and spent months in hospitals.

The Weissmullers' house is only a few miles from the site where Weissmuller's last Tarzan feature, "Tarzan and the Mermaids," was filmed in 1947.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — In a $7,500 thank-you to Arizona voters, Sen. Barry Goldwater promised "enthusiasm and dedication" in his fifth term of office.

Full-page advertisements purchased by his campaign committee appeared Monday in the Tucson Citizen and Tuesday in the Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette and the Arizona Star. "The election is over...but the job is just beginning," Goldwater's ads said.

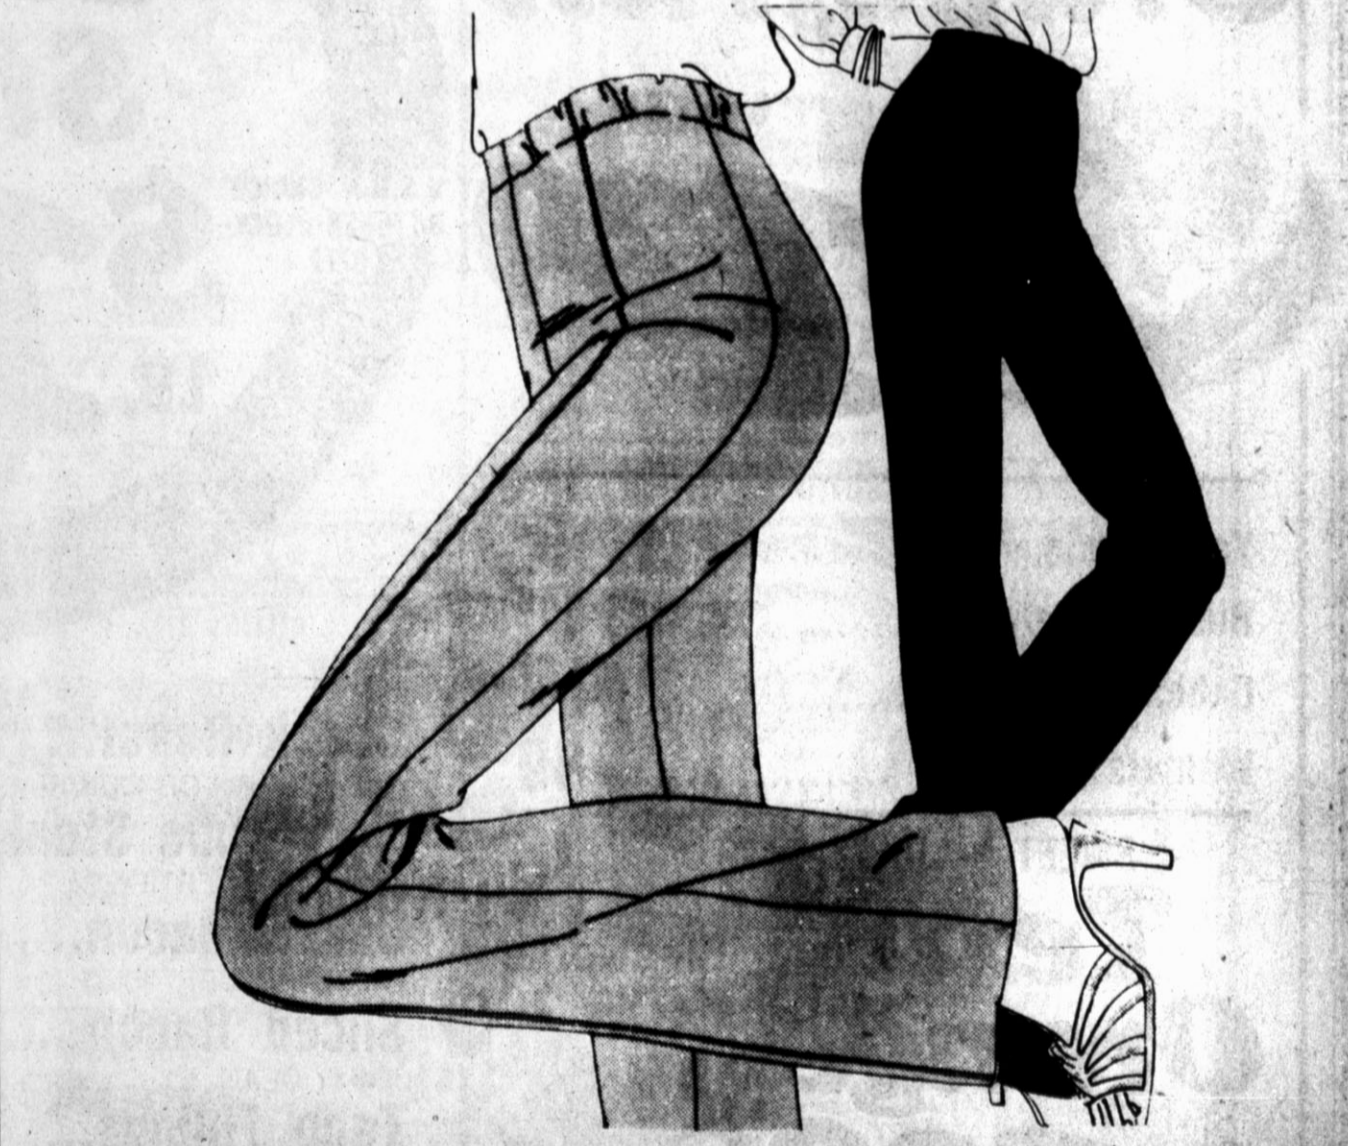

The ads followed an apology from the Republican for his tone at a news conference last Thursday.

Sex-Seekers Continue to Harass Homeowners

CHICAGO (AP) — Patti and Frank DiNunzio dismantled the peep-show cubicles in the kitchen, painted over the orange walls, posted two dozen no-trespassing signs and moved in. But their home's reputation as a house of ill repute lives on.

"We didn't think it would still be this bad," said Mrs. DiNunzio, 28. "Never a day passes that we don't get at least one caller. We have to keep the door locked or they walk right in."

Despite the irrepressible sex-seekers who pound on the door of the DiNunzios' rented home at all hours, the couple plans to stay in the one-time bordello.

"We've done a lot of work here, the rent is low and the house is roomy. We can save enough in a couple of years to buy our own home," Mrs. DiNunzio said.

She and her husband, a 27-year-old self-employed carpenter, got a low rental deal from a real estate company in exchange for remodeling the house's interior. Located in an unincorporated part of the northwestern Chicago area, it previously had been rented by an "artist" who advertised it as "The Professionals."

"Before we moved in last January, Frank would be working in the house at night and there would be knocks on the door as soon as the lights went on," she said. "In the first month after we had moved in, we would get an average of 10 cars a day and as many as two dozen on Sundays.

"They still come, paying no attention to the 24 signs we have posted in the front yard, on the garage, on trees down the long driveway and on the front door, showing it is now a private residence," she said.

"Our daughter, Catrina

Marie, is only 6 months old and I remember getting up at night with her and seeing cars parked with guys staring at the house," said Mrs. DiNunzio. "They would still be there at sunrise. They couldn't believe the signs my husband put up."

Inside, DiNunzio painted most of the four-bedroom, ranch-type house white and built scores of shelves for his wife's 200 house plants. Mrs. DiNunzio loves the house and is philosophical about the callers, "especially since it's finally dying down some."

"A lot of guys must take awful long lunch hours. Mostly the older ones — all well-dressed — show up about then. The younger ones, some in their teens, arrive at night. Sunday mornings are our busiest times. The older men make their calls then. They must be dropping their wives off at church first," she said.

If she is taking it in stride, her husband "has a temper and sometimes he lets loose," his wife said. Recently, DiNunzio was walking the family dog in front of the house as Mrs. DiNunzio watched from the doorway.

"A young man came up and refused to believe the prostitutes were gone. He looked past my husband and saw me. 'What about her?' he asked. My husband let go the dog and hit the guy several times."

DiNunzio has a court date Monday to face battery charges, she added.

Playwright Eugene O'Neill was the first American to win the Nobel prize for literature.

Incidence of Brain Cancer Tied to Refinery

HQUSTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute has linked increases in brain cancer to work at oil refineries, citing the deaths of 33 male employees at three large Texas petroleum companies.

The findings confirm a "hypotheses-generating" study released in May 1979 that suggested refinery workers are exposed to increased risks of cancer — with the largest increase being brain cancer — according to the report.

"Scientists at the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health have found an apparent association between increased risk of brain cancer and employment in the oil refinery industry, said a NCI fact sheet obtained Tuesday by The Houston Post.

However, NCI researcher Terry Thomas cautioned, more studies must be conducted before any correlations can be drawn.

Gulf officials dispute the findings, saying preliminary results of an in-house study show "no increased risk of employees developing or dying from brain tumors" at its Port Arthur refinery.

The company further contends "undue publicity" given the findings has "caused needless anxiety and concern among our employees."

Three years ago, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union opened its membership records to NCI who examined an unspecified number of workers exposed to petroleum and petroleum products. The OCAW represents more than 20,000 petrochemical workers in Texas.

Scientists reviewed 1,008 deaths at Texaco, 729 at Gulf and 396 at Mobil over a 35-year period.

Researchers examined death certificates and used the data to compute the frequency of fatal diseases among the workers. Those figures were compared the number, to deaths from all types of cancer among all males in the United States.

Of the 2,133 deaths examined, the NCI said, researchers found 27 brain cancer cases, or about 12 more than normally expected. The other six deaths were caused by brain tumors, scientists said.

The 33 workers — all members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union — were employed between 1943 and 1978 at Texaco and Gulf refineries at Port Arthur and the Mobil refinery at nearby Beaumont.

The three plants are the largest operated by each of the three companies. The Texaco plant employs more than 5,000 workers, Gulf 3,500 and Mobil 2,200.

At Texaco, scientists found 16 fatalities, compared with an expected 7.5. Ten cases were discovered among Gulf employees, 3.5 more than normal. Seven fatalities were found at Mobil, or four more than anticipated.

The NCI's preliminary findings were presented Oct. 28 at a New York Academy of Sciences meeting in New York.

At that time, Gulf released the results of its in-house study, billed as the "largest study of refinery employees ever reported in North America."

Gulf scientists, however, used a different statistical methodology and reviewed death certificates of 4,766 employees between 1935 and 1979. They found 30 brain tumor deaths, compared with an expected rate of 31.

Crooked Sportswriters - Small Potatoes

THE GOLF MATCH WAS PROBABLY not to be considered as one of the most extensive forms of covert action administered in the U.S. up to date, and unlike Nixon's Watergate or the vast majority of big college athletic scandals, we were never caught at our game.

Mauri Montgomery

Actually no one cared whether the deed was successful or not. The Boy Scouts weren't even touching this one. This was merely a small potatoes operation.

NO COKES, HAMBURGERS, TRANS AM'S or better grades were ever passed out under the counter. We had only the available resources at hand to negotiate and deal with - ourselves and our outdated wooden golf clubs. Those two combined didn't provide the most tantalizing bargaining powers.

And that was the underlying reason behind these memoirs - there wasn't any self satisfaction derived from keeping a secret, the hidden truth, the prevailing mystery of the unknown all to yourself even if it would never rank up there with the Ellenbergers of the University of New Mexico or the Frank Kushs of Arizona State. AFTER ALL, THAT'S WHY one moved to Hereford rather than Washington. You came to this community in order to unload skeletons piling up in the closet. Knowledge of bad golf rounds and secrets overburdened telephone circuits - loose lips flapped like close-lined linen in a West Texas wind.

Even so, this nickle and dime outfit went unnoticed. On lookers perceived it for what it was or appeared to be - either two Gerald Fords looking for unsuspecting Spiro Agnews to tee off on, or a golf cart polo match.

NEVER HAD TWO SPORTSWRITERS played for higher stakes. The match amounted to more than a simple matter of who would win the chicken fry and free salad bar afterwards. In a word, we were playing for the outcome of the district 4-5A grid championship.

Together, Chuck McDonald (not his real name) of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and I (not my real name) would twist the league's proceedings to fulfill our own selfish motives.

AND STRANGELY ENOUGH, THE SCAM was simple in its own complexity.

It was set up like this:

1. I represented Hereford's eventual outcome in the conference and could either win or lose the match. No matter how good or bad my game was that day, Hereford would beat the Coronado Mustangs that evening. You see, that's the way superstitions worked. You could mold them into anything you wanted.

2. Chuck represented the voodoo doll for all the Lubbock Schools (Lubbock Monterey and the 7th ranked Mustangs were in the running while Lubbock High held only a chance in a thousand in gaining post season honors). He could either win or lose also. If he won the match, that would simply mean the Mustangs would let that afternoon's superstitious golf victory go to their heads and would go into that night's clash over confident. If Chuck lost, Hereford would dismiss over confidence and would eventually overturn the top-ranked Mustangs and roll on to bi-district.

3. In essence, the golf match didn't matter at all. We were only kidding ourselves - superstitions were only as good as the witch doctors prescribing them, and we were both terrible golfers. It could go either way.

WE WEREN'T ABOUT TO LET that stop us though. We were determined to do our part for the respective team's win. Simply writing about it took a back seat to actually participating in our own crooked way. Sportswriters were competitors too for crying out loud.

SPORTS

If the Mustangs could have only seen the performance presented by McDonald at dusk that day, they would have been proud. Coach Quarles would never have said another bad thing about his football coverage and his picture would have been posted on the CHS lockerroom bulletin board. He was a fighting Mustang that day.

THE OBSESE WRITER (only exceeded in size by his rampant ego) had overcome his reckless game for this one opportunity and held a two stroke advantage going into the final hole of play.

He outplayed and outcheated his way to victory for the yellow and red, but don't forget superstitions could be molded anyway one desired.

The Mustangs went into that clash over confident (much as the nickle and dime operation had anticipated) and lost the clash 24-11.

THAT WIN BOOSTED THE HERD'S overall mark to 8-2 (the highest ever since 1973), and nudged its season ledger to 3-1 for what seemed to be at least a share of the district's reign.

But the only thing we hadn't planned on, was Plainview going unmolested through league play.

In our hast to corrupt the conference with our golf play, we had overlooked the Plainview Daily Herald's sports editor Bobby Hall.

Had McDonald only invited the Angry Red Writer for a round on Lubbock's Meadowbrook Golf Course the day of the CHS vs. PHS tilt, who knows how the conference race might have ended.

I GUESS CHUCK AND I WILL never find out, but everyone knew superstitions and bad golf games could be twisted for their own selfish and greedy motives - that is until you got caught at your own game.

Denver's Armstrong Advised to Quit Football

DENVER (AP) - He once was among the most feared runners in the National Football League, a darter with breakaway speed who also possessed tackle-busting power in his enormous thighs. A league-leading 1,407-yard rushing performance in 1974 was testimony to that.

But in subsequent seasons, the Otis Armstrong promise was never quite fulfilled. Injuries robbed him of his most productive years, although he did manage to gain 1,008 yards in 1976, and Coach Red Miller's system of rotating backs limited his playing time in later seasons.

Fate dealt Armstrong the cruellest blow on Wednesday, when Denver Bronco physicians advised he should not play football again because of a congenital spinal condition which exposes him to the risk of paralysis.

Armstrong was placed on injured reserve by the Broncos, but the eight-year veteran said he would seek a second medical opinion from his own physicians before deciding whether to retire from the game.

"If they give the same advice as the Bronco doctors, I don't see how I can play again," said Armstrong. "It would be too risky. I'm prepared to accept their decision."

Armstrong added he was gravely aware of the dangers associated with playing with the spinal condition. One of his closest friends is his former roommate at Purdue, Darryl Stingley, the New England Patriots' wide receiver who was paralyzed in a pre-season game in 1978.

"I spent some time with Darryl at the Super Bowl," said Armstrong. "I had to put his clothes on him, to feed him, to put him to bed. I couldn't believe what that was like. I don't want people to have to take care of me for the rest of my life."

On the other hand, Armstrong says football has been his life for the past 16 years, and he's reluctant to give it up unless he's sure of the diagnosis.

While Armstrong could conceivably have a future with another NFL team, assuming he could pass their physical, his career as a Bronco clearly is over, given the team's medical report.

Broncos General Manager Fred Gehrke informed Armstrong of the team's decision about his playing status on Wednesday. "I told Otis this was a blessing, a warning," said Gehrke. "I told him he had had eight great years, but it was time to hang it up. I said, 'You've been smart, you've saved your money, now it's time to take care of your family.'"

Armstrong, 29, was a first-round draft choice in 1973, out of Purdue. He is Denver's second leading all-time rusher, behind Floyd Little, and holds the Bronco record for most rushing yards in a game (183).

He had regained a starting role this fall after several injury-plagued seasons, and is the team's leading rusher this season with 470 yards on 106 carries.

Chamber of Commerce To Sponsor Playoff

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday it will sponsor the Class 3A Bi-District game between Perryton and the winner of the Muleshoe vs. Littlefield game November 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium.

Perryton's opponent in the bi-district affair will be decided Friday night as the Muleshoe Mules under the direction of former HHS and West Texas State quarterback Mike Wartes travel to Littlefield and pair off against the Wildcats.

Tickets for the bi-district affair are slated to go on sale Monday morning at the Deaf Smith C of C. Cost of admission is $4 for adults, and $3 for students. For more information concerning the tilt, contact Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee Chairman John Stagner.

Brett Surprised With Jolting Season

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - It was early May and George Brett was off to a terrible start, barely hitting .240.

"I don't think I'm a .240 hitter," said the Kansas City Royals third baseman, whose lifetime average stood at .310. "I still don't think there's any reason I can't hit close to .329 like last year."

As it turned out, Brett finished 61 percentage points away from .329.

He wound up at .390, the highest total in the major leagues in 39 years. He also led the American League in slugging percentage (.664) and on-base percentage (.461).

In the meantime, he reeled off a 30-game hitting streak, averaged an RBI per game, and captured the interest of baseball fans around the world with his quest to hit .400.

In no surprise, Brett was an overwhelming choice of a nationwide panel of sportscasters and broadcasters as The Associated Press American League Player of the Year.

Brett's storybook season was marred only by sporadic injuries that kept him out of more than 40 games and a hemorrhoid condition that threatened to sideline him in the World Series.

The way the 27-year-old All-Star handled the reaction to his he'ttas vintage Brett. His problem became known after the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Royals in Game 1 in Philadelphia. The next night, he reached base three times in three plate appearances, but took himself out of the game in extreme pain.

Comedians made jokes. Players made jokes. Everybody was laughing, it seemed, but the horribly embarrassed Brett.

But minor surgery on the off-day relieved the pain and pressure. He came back with a smile on his face.

Bear Not Excited About Clash

Tide, Irish Battle

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The only person connected with Alabama football who isn't outwardly excited about Saturday's long-awaited clash with Notre Dame in Birmingham is Coach Bear Bryant.

"Notre Dame is without doubt the biggest name in football and I'm happy to be playing them in Alabama," Bryant said Wednesday. "From a national standpoint I'd rather beat them, but locally I'd rather beat Auburn."

"I don't think Alabama-Notre Dame will be as important as the Auburn game, but that's what people think, the people who buy tickets and write about it. A conference game is more important to us than an intersectional game."

Bryant is probably the only one in these parts who feels that way. Notre Dame sticks in Alabama's craw like a blocked punt. In 1966, despite a 10-10 tie with Michigan State, Notre Dame beat out an unbeaten-untied Alabama team — perhaps Bryant's best ever — for the national championship.

The Irish edged Alabama 24-23 in the 1973 national championship Sugar Bowl showdown and they spoiled the No. 1 Tide's title hopes the following year k-11 Orange Bowl triumph.

"I lost that first game two or three different times," Bryant said. "Either team could have won the second game, too, even though neither team played like Alabama and Notre Dame usually play. I blew that one, too."

The only other head-to-head confrontation took place in 1976, with Notre Dame winning 21-18 in South Bend. That makes Alabama 0-3 against the Irish — by a total of six points.

"We had a second-and-goal at the 4-yard line in the fourth quarter and we had a receiver wide open but we threw an interception," Bryant recalled. "My record against Notre Dame certainly isn't outstanding."

The crusher came in 1977 when fifth-ranked Notre Dame whipped No. 1 Texas in the Cotton Bowl — runnerup Okost — and vaulted to the national crown over Alabama, which trounced Ohio State in the Sugar Bowl.

"The fans certainly let you know about it," said running back Major Ogilvie. "We know that Notre Dame cost Alabama about three national championships in a period of five years. That gives us a little bit of motivation."

"The losses to them were not just losses because they beat us out of so many national championships, so this game means a lot," says Gary DeNiro, a defensive end.

Knicks Snap 76er Streak

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Since falling from powerhouse status in the National Basketball Association in the mid-1970s, the New York Knicks have lost with big-name, high-salaried players and with youth. Now they are winning regularly and gaining respect in the process.

The Knicks, 11-3, snapped the Philadelphia's 12-game winning streak Wednesday night with a 125-113 victory — on the 76ers' home court.

"New York has the makings of a great ball club," said Julius Erving, who scored 34 points in a losing cause for Philadelphia, which lost for the first time since Oct. 14. "They must be respected. They've come a long way. For us, it is disappointing to lose at home."

Despite missing one of their youthful stars — Michael Ray Richardson was sidelined with a sprained ankle — the Knicks relied on two other young players. Guard Ray Williams and center Bill Cartwright both scored 24 points, and Campy Russell, a forward acquired in a trade just before the season started, pitched in with 22.

"We are maturing," said Knicks Coach Red Holzman. "We're fortunate to have made some good deals, for instance getting Cartwright in the draft and getting Campy Russell. Our guards are improving, but we have to pay attention. I know we have a long way to go."

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics beat the Washington Bullets 93-86, the New Jersey Nets tripped the Denver Nuggets 118-111, the Milwaukee Bucks bombed the Detroit Pistons 122-98, the Houston Rockets edged the Los Angeles Lakers 107-104, the Phoenix Suns nipped the San Antonio Spurs 130-127, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Kansas City Kings 111-101 and the Utah Jazz stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 114-106.

Celtics 93, Bullets 86
Cedric Maxwell scored 25 points and Boston scored 15 straight points to erase Washington's only second-half lead and end its four-game winning streak.

Wes Matthews, who led Washington scorers with 23 points, scored with 1:54 left in the third quarter to give the Bullets their final lead at 85-64. But they didn't score for the next 7:17 as the Celtics bolted into a 79-65 lead.

Nets 118, Nuggets 111
Rookie forward Mike O'Koren scored 16 points in the first seven minutes of the game and finished with 28 to lead New Jersey over Denver. The Nets also got plenty of help from their other rookie starter, center Mike Giminski, who scored 26.

Bucks 122, Pistons 98
Sixth man Junior Bridgeman scored 27 points, including 19 in the first half when Milwaukee took an insurmountable lead. The Bucks hit 60 percent of their shots and Detroit 34 percent in the first two periods as Milwaukee grabbed a 65-41 margin.

Rockets 107, Lakers 104
Houston overcame a 19-point deficit to beat Los Angeles as Calvin Murphy scored 19 of his 28 points in the final two periods. The Rockets trailed 78-59 with 6:48 remaining in the third quarter before Murphy and Mike Dunleavy, who had 10 assists in the second half, led a charge that saw them outscore the Lakers 24-8 in an eight-minute span.

Suns 130, Spurs 127
Phoenix took a 2½-game lead in the Pacific Division over the NBA champion Lakers as Walter Davis scored 31 points against San Antonio.

The Spurs were led by George Gervin with 29 points, while Alvan Adams supported the Suns with 25.

Warriors 111, Kings 101
Lloyd Free scored 31 points in 28 minutes of playing time to spark Golden State, unbeaten in nine games at home, over Kansas City.

The Warriors stayed ahead the entire fourth period after outscoring the Kings 31-20 to take an 87-77 lead after three quarters.

Jazz 114, Sonics 106
Adrian Dantley scored 34 points and Darrell Griffith added 26 as Utah fought off a determined Seattle rally in the second half.

Networks Vie for Bowl Audiences

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Television has us right where it wants us on New Year's Day — too hung over to leave the house. With a captive TV audience, the networks know the importance of the Jan. 1 bowl games. They also know that four games on three networks afford the best opportunity to compare the merits of the sports presentations on ABC, CBS and NBC.

Sugar Bowl
ABC has this one for 1981 and '82, with options the next two years. The Sugar Bowl is the cheapest New Year's game at $2 million, even though it's been kingmaker three of the last four seasons, crowning Pitt No. 1 for 1976 and Alabama national champion in 1978 and '79.

One spot automatically goes to the winner of the Southeastern Conference. Alabama qualified the past two years when Georgia was knocked out of contention by Auburn. That tickled ABC because Alabama, a bigger football name, owned a higher ranking.

This time, the spiked shoe is on the other foot. ABC would love top-ranked Georgia to overcome its Auburn jinx and win Saturday. The scenario then would have Georgia and the winner of Saturday's matchup between No. 5 Alabama and No. 6 Notre Dame traveling to New Orleans for a possible national title game Jan. 1.

Kickoff is 2 p.m. EST, creating an audience split with the Cotton Bowl starting at the same time. The Sugar Bowl was played New Year's Eve from 1972-75, but not many people realized it. Even the Alabama-Notre Dame national championship game in 1973 was a ratings bust, losing to all three games the next day.

Dec. 31 was created for a lot of things, but not football.

Cotton Bowl
CBS is rooting for Georgia to lose. That would mean unusing Mississippi State or Louisiana State goes to the Sugar Bowl. But CBS isn't singing any hallelujahs over its expected home team in the Cotton Bowl, Baylor.

For Baylor to clinch the Southwest Conference's host spot in Dallas, it merely needs to tie Rice Saturday or Texas the following week, setting up a Jan. 1 game against Alabama, No. 3 Florida State or Notre Dame.

Baylor isn't a big TV draw and the bowls don't think Florida State can carry a national broadcast like two-time defending champion Alabama or legendary Notre Dame, the team immortalized by Ronald Reagan, cast as George Gipp in "Klute Rockne-All American." But the Cotton Bowl is wary of Notre Dame still losing to Southern Cal.

CBS, doing its 24th consecutive Cotton Bowl, almost lost the game to NBC two years ago. NBC, with the Orange and Rose bowls, suggested the Cotton hop aboard so NBC could "bowl America over."

Rose Bowl
One good turn deserves another. Now CBS is trying to take the Rose Bowl from NBC, which paid $2.25 million in 1975 and has been paying $3.3 million since 1978. Meanwhile, rights fees for the other three games have tripled over the past five years, making the prestigious Rose Bowl red-hot and red-faced.

So the Rose Bowl, playing catch up, sought bids from the networks for the 1983 game. CBS, calling the $3.3 million figure artificially low, won the first round with a one-shot $7.2 million bid with no future options. NBC had until today to match the CBS bid. Sources said NBC can't afford to lose this property and would strike a deal.

ABC and NBC were appalled at the more than 100 percent bid increase and were concerned about how the offer would affect negotiations for other events. Given the projected sports advertising sales rates for 1983, CBS would lose money. But, then again, it would gain prestige for having the Rose Bowl and for taking it away from the competition.

Rep. Says Exemptions Need to Be Increased

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A legislative pioneer in Texas property tax changes says homestead exemptions must be increased to meet the rise in inflation.

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, commented Tuesday in reply to the report of a researcher for Texas House members who said the 1981 Legislature must change the new property tax laws or a "California-type" tax revolt is likely in Texas.

"I don't know about a revolt but I do think some changes must be made in the law," said Peveto, a sponsor of the Property Tax Code who has been trying to reform property tax laws since 1973.

"Of one thing I'm sure," Peveto said, "I think the Legislature must increase the $5,000 homestead exemption ... I don't have any definite figure yet but we are playing with the idea that it should be a percentage figure rather than a flat figure."

Peveto said inflation had shifted the effect of the property tax changes from other taxpayers to homeowners and must be corrected.

A report of the House Study Group — an unofficial research group supported by some House members but with no connections with any state or legislative body — issued a long report Monday designed to guide House members in their debate during the 1981 session. The report has not been presented to or acted on by any state or legislative body. The House Study Group is headed by Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, a candidate for speaker in 1981.

"Rising residential property values and taxes may be leading Texas toward a California-type property tax revolt," said the report written by Dan Brody, research director. "The relief provided (by legislation passed by the 1979 Legislature) helped only certain groups and the benefits will diminish over time. Unless economic conditions change drastically or the Legislature takes decisive action, property taxes will continue to rise sharply. How the state's taxpayers will react remains to be seen."

In one part of the report, Brody said many speculators and land developers benefit from the new law taxing land on productivity instead of value.

"In the Dallas metropolitan area, development corporations are seeing their taxes on not-yet-developed land fall by 90 percent or more," he said. "In Travis County, the House Study Group found numerous examples of land formerly valued at $1,000 to $4,000 an acre that is now on the rolls at $40 to $150 an acre. ... Similar findings have been reported in Port Arthur, Corpus Christi and Houston."

One bill passed by the 1979 Legislature allows school districts to be reimbursed for taxes lost due to the new provision giving each homeowner a $5,000 exemption on property taxes.

"In some school districts, the exemptions have totally removed all houses from the tax rolls," Brody's report said. "In other districts, half or more of all residential value has been exempted. These high exemptions occur because the district have been appraising their property at only a small portion of its true value."

Gas Wells Force 1,000 To Evacuate

HOUSTON (AP) — An inactive well spewed methane gas over a residential area in South Houston, forcing firefighters to evacuate about 1,000 people from a trailer park, authorities said.

Fire department spokesman Bob Kuyn said the well erupted about 3 p.m. Tuesday as workers tried to plug it, but the incident was not reported until 2½ hours later.

Kuyn gave no explanation for the delay or what caused the well to blow out.

Efforts continued through the night to cap the well, he said.

There were no injuries and no fire. However, authorities ordered the evacuation of Kings Row Mobile Home Park as a precaution.

The residents were allowed to return to their homes about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday after the wind shifted, but gas and electricity remained off, Kuyn said.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—Issues such as agricultural labor, alien land ownership, gasohol, and brucellosis are included among the topics in the recently completed report of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Texas House.

The committee members, investigating and working with charges made to them at the beginning of the interim period, have studied the issues and developed a set of recommendations.

One of the most controversial of these issues deals with agricultural labor. After investigating agricultural labor legislation in other states, the committee recommended the following: 1) no employee should ever be forced to join any labor union to retain employment in Texas, 2) harvest time strikes should be prohibited and severe penalties levied for property damage associated with strikes, 3) no union shall negate the trespass laws of this state which protect all rights of private property owners.

Another issue that is causing much concern among citizens of Texas is that of alien land ownership. Among committee recommendations relating to this matter are: 1) that Texas adopt legislation requiring nonresident aliens to disclose true ownership of all holdings, 2) aliens should be that cattle that have been properly vaccinated against brucellosis and identified by ear tags or tattoos be exempt from further testing and allowed free movement within our state.

Many of these committee recommendations will be drafted into legislation and acted upon during the upcoming legislative session. Prohibited from purchasing and owning agricultural land except for a special reciprocity provision offered to Canada and Mexico, 3) aliens would be required to obtain U. S. citizenship within five years after disclosure of land holdings, with failure to do so resulting in voluntary divestiture of land to the U. S.

Gasohol, which is becoming increasingly important in our nation's energy picture, is another area in which the Agriculture Committee members have made several recommendations. These recommendations include: 1) gasohol and alcohol fuels be exempted from the five cents per gallon excise tax if the fuel contains alcohol manufactured in Texas, 2) funds be appropriated for alcohol fuels research and modification of state vehicles to be operated on straight alcohol, 3) funds should be appropriated for the alcohol fuels state loan program for construction of small plants, 4) mandated use of gasohol in state owned vehicles to the extent possible on the basis of availability and competitive pricing.

The state brucellosis eradication program, which is of much concern to cattlemen across our state, is also a subject of committee recommendations. The central recommendation in this area is in Scotland

Scotland occupies the northern 37 percent of the island of Great Britain plus the outlying Hebrides, Orkney and Shetland island chains. Three-quarters of the population of more than 5 million resides on one-tenth of the land — the industrial lowlands just north of the English border. Scotland was a separate kingdom from 1018 until 1707, when it united with England as the United Kingdom.

Bankers Note General Decline in Peso Value

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas border bankers are noticing a gradual decline of the value of the peso, but they discount the possibility of a major devaluation of the Mexican currency similar to the 1976 drop.

The peso's value has dropped 75 centavos, 3.4 percent, in relation to the American dollar in the past five months. The gradual drop in the peso's worth has occurred in several "mini-devaluations" of 1 or 2 centavos at a time, four in the last two weeks. The peso has been allowed to "float" on international money markets since the dramatic 50 percent devaluation on Sept. 1, 1976.

The latest drop was last week when Banco de Mexico, equivalent of the U.S. Federal Reserve System, began buying $1 (U.S.) for 23 pesos and selling $1 (U.S.) for 23.20 pesos, a 2 centavo decrease in the peso's value. It was preceded the previous week by one 2 centavo and two 1 centavo drops.

Carlos Cruz, head of the international exchange department of Union National Bank in Laredo, predicts there will be several more of the tiny declines in the pesos, 2 to 3 centavos each, for the rest of 1980.

"I expect it from now to the first of the year because they (Mexicans) have a dollar drain because of people coming to the United States to shop during the Christmas season," Cruz said. "Some Mexican banks don't have the dollars. That's when Mexicans bring pesos across the border."

"If they change the pesos to dollars across the border, it's better for them because some stores on this side take the pesos at 24 to 25 for the dollar."

Securities broker Mike Gomez of Laredo, however, said he sees the gradual decline, from 22.45 to 23.20 pesos for the dollar over the last four to five months, as a gradual devaluation begun by administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo because of burgeoning inflation south of the border.

Gomez speculated Mexican officials might gradually decrease the peso's value to avoid a repeat of the sudden devaluation. The 1976 drop was preceded by the flight of millions of pesos from Mexico at the end of President Luis Echeverria's 6-year term in office.

Prior to that devaluation, millions of Mexican pesos were brought across the border, changed for dollars and deposited in U.S. banks or used to buy property in the United States to avoid the loss when the value of the pesos slipped from a longtime 12.5 pesos to the dollar down to 26 pesos to the dollar before it leveled off at about 22 pesos to the dollar. And Americans who converted dollars to pesos to take advantage of higher Mexican interest rates also lost.

"They're disguising it (devaluation) somewhat," Gomez said. "Four years ago the 50 percent devaluation lost a lot of people virtually half their money."

Public Ponders What Carter Will Do Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — What do you do after you've worked at the White House?

Since President Carter's defeat, several hundred people are pondering that question. To help them find an answer, job recruiters and so-called head hunters probably will be brought in for after-hours seminars.

Arnold Miller, director of the presidential personnel office, said recently that several White House aides with contacts in the private sector have been thinking of ways to help their fellow employees find new jobs.

"Some of our people would benefit from a chance to just talk at length with a job counselor or someone from a search firm, so we will try to do a little of that," Miller said.

"People who've served in a variety of capacities are at a point in their careers when they might want to take a minute and see what they want to do."

Many White House aides, of course, will find jobs on their own. Some are thinking of returning to their home towns and others would like to stay in Washington.

A couple of days after the election, White House press secretary Jody Powell called a meeting of his staff and told them he wanted to help in any way he could, according to one aide who was present.

He also asked his staff to let him know if any of them find employment so there would be one less person for him to worry about.

Powell also was the one who broke the news of Carter's impending defeat to many of his staff early on election night. He thanked them for their efforts and said they could always be proud of the work they had done for Carter.

Powell, who has spent the last four years trying to publicize the good aspects of Carter's presidency and keep his boss from misspeaking, said that before Ronald Reagan's first televised press conference as president-elect he was curious to see whether he would be rooting for Reagan to sidestep any "traps" by reporters, or rooting for the reporters to corner him.

After the press conference, Powell divulged that he had found himself cheering for Reagan and happy whenever the former California governor handled a potentially tricky question with diplomacy.

Bergland Bellyaches over Impending Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outgoing Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland thinks it will be difficult for President-elect Ronald Reagan to keep his campaign pledge of ending the partial embargo on U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

In fact, Bergland said Thursday, it would be "dumb" for Reagan to do so.

Bergland added that lifting the grain embargo would be a grim development for poor nations in light of anticipated food shortages next year.

During a post-election interview with reporters, Bergland also ruled out any move by President Carter to lift the embargo before Reagan takes office Jan. 20.

Reagan said during the campaign that he favored lifting the embargo, and the Republican platform on which he ran also called for its end.

"I know people believe he will and he said he will, but I don't think he will — not without a 'quid pro quo,' some response from the Soviet Union," Bergland said.

"I don't believe Mr. Reagan will suspend the embargo ... because it would be dumb," Bergland said.

"Give it (the embargoed grain) all away to the Russians? The Russians need this grain and for him (Reagan) just to unilaterally suspend it and give up all that leverage is just inconceivable," Bergland said.

Carter imposed the ban on grain sales above previously negotiated levels in retaliation for the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. But the action became the target of many farm groups that said the embargo was more damaging for American producers than for the Soviets.

Bergland said that if Reagan removes "the restraints on Soviet purchases of grain without gaining concessions on Afghanistan, 'You can ask all kinds of rhetorical questions. Like, 'What about Poland?'"

"When confronted with the facts that the Russians have the world's largest reserve of gold and that the crop conditions in the world don't look very attractive at the moment, I can't imagine that any president of the United States would allow the Soviet Union to corner the world's grain reserve," Bergland said.

"And that's what he (Reagan) said he would do. He said it time after time."

Bergland said bad planting conditions worldwide mean there will be food problems next year. In addition, the Soviet harvest this year is falling below expectations.

"Would it make sense for Mr. Reagan to let the Russians get their share now ... and take care of themselves at the expense of the Third World" countries, which don't have the money to purchase the grain they need.

Meanwhile, Bergland is not pleased by the direction he sees farm policy taking under Reagan and a new Congress in which Republicans will have control of the Senate and the Democrats' majority in the House will be cut by 33 votes.

The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, which is the basis for major agriculture price support, loan and research programs, expires in 1981.

Bergland, a former congressman from Minnesota, said the Reagan administration probably will be slow to move on a new farm bill.

"I expect the Reagan people will extend the current program for a year, until they get time to get themselves organized," Bergland said.

But he has more definite ideas about the food-stamp program, especially since conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., appears certain to become chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

"Knowing Mr. Helms and conservative members of that Senate Agriculture Committee, the food stamp program is in big trouble," he said.

The food stamp program does not now have enough money to run "past May or June," Bergland said.

Helms said Wednesday that he would make trimming the food-stamp program one of his top priorities. He said it "has got to be changed so you won't have so many freeloaders on it."

Bergland said the so-called "WIC" food program for women, infants and children as well as the federal school lunch program also may have a hard time in the new Congress.

As the Carter administration winds down, Bergland said, no long-range decisions will be made at the Agriculture Department.

"We are not committing President-elect Reagan to any spending decisions at all," Bergland said.

"We're postponing every spending decision," including 1981 crop support rates and target prices, the setting of interest rates on Farmers Home Administration loans and "anything that commits money."

Bergland declined to offer what he thought might be the specifics of the Reagan farm program, beyond indicating it will involve less government spending and less government involvement in various areas of farming and marketing.

For example, Bergland said, "my guess is that government will be much less active in market development." Reagan administration officials will leave that to the grain companies and "persons of that kind."

It was pointed out to Bergland that Reagan had said he would take a "personal interest in market development."

Bergland responded:

"Yeah. ... He'll have a personal interest in seeing to it that the grain companies do good business."

During a separate interview with farm broadcasters, Bergland even estimated that Reagan may cut the Agriculture Department's $19.5 billion budget by $6 billion.

Pressed later on how he arrived at the figure, Bergland said it was based on Reagan proposals for a 10 percent tax cut, a 5 percent increase in defense spending and a balanced budget in 1981.

"He's got this magic of balancing the budget, cutting spending and increasing spending for national security," Bergland said. "I have no idea how they're going to manage all this."

Finally, Bergland said that, now that he is leaving public service, he hopes to find a job that will allow him to stay in Washington.

When asked if that meant he didn't think he could make a decent living on his Minnesota farm, he couldn't resist a final jab at Reagan: "I don't think that I can go home and make money under a Reagan administration."

Texas Briefs

HOUSTON (AP) — Evelyn P. Walker, whose home had been destroyed by fire, was somewhat surprised when she received a water bill for $205.72.

She went to the Houston Water Department and said something must be wrong. There was nothing left of the house but one wall and all of that happened three months before she received the bill.

An inspector was sent to check and said the water in question had flowed through Ms. Walker's meter and she would have to pay-up.

Wednesday, Ms. Walker took her problem to the City Council.

Public Works Department spokesman Dan Jones then admitted, "It was our error. Her bill will be adjusted so that she only pays the very minimum."

Jones said the Fire Department routinely notifies the water division when a building or a house is destroyed and then the water meter is turned off.

City records show the water division was notified about Ms. Walker's fire, but the meter kept clicking.

HOUSTON (AP) — A.E. Birdwell knew that check for $22,000 was just too good to be true.

Birdwell, a Houston marketing specialist, received the check from a local brokerage firm where he had done business in the past.

He figured none of his investments could yield such a windfall, so he called and learned the check had been meant for another person.

William Stern, an official of the brokerage firm, said a clerical error caused the financial flub.

Birdwell said he still wanted to keep the check.

"I have no intention of cashing it," he said, "but I do want to frame it as a kind of memorabilia. I will either come out with the check or a good color copy of it. Maybe next time I will get a big one for real."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The McAllen Ranch of Hidalgo County, established under a 1797 Spanish land grant by Jose Manuel Gomez and still owned and operated by his descendants, will be among the historic properties recognized in state ceremonies Friday.

The Family Land Heritage Program certifies Texas farms and ranches which have been in continuous operation by the same family for 100 years or more.

Other properties to be certified include the Berry Ranch of Fayette County and the Hogue Farm of Grimes County, both of which were established in 1835.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton will address a legislative workshop Saturday sponsored by the Texas Classroom Teachers Association. Two hundred teachers are expected to attend.

The association has announced it will seek a teacher pay raise totaling $784 million in the 1981 Legislature.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — W.A. Morrison, retired judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, is dead at the age of 76. Morrison died Tuesday.

He served 25 years on the appeals court and retired in 1976, after participating in more than 26,000 cases.

Morrison served as district attorney in Milam County and as a state district judge before joining the appeals court.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White said Wednesday a temporary settlement has been reached in a chemical pollution case in Wilson County.

White alleged that Daniel Amaya had been illegally storing hazardous chemical wastes since 1978, including water benzene and assorted solvents, in about 270 metal drums near Pandora.

Wyche EH Club to Host Council Christmas Party

It was announced recently at the Wyche Extension Homemakers Club meeting that the club would act as hostesses for the Christmas EH Council party scheduled Dec. 8 at Deaf Smith County Library, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting was held in the home of Ethel Logan and called to order by Vice President Carol Odum.

A poem entitled, "Giving and Forgiving," was read by Clara Trowbridge. Members then responded to roll call by giving an idea for a new dress for Christmas.

During the business session it was reported that the club's finances were in good condition and the nomination committee was asked to report on new members by the next meeting.

Louise Walker, county agent, presented the club's program on "Create the look you like with color." She discussed neutral and black colors and stated, "slimming colors were black, blue and brown while excitement colors were red and greens."

Each color was analyzed and tried on to suit the members hair and match fall colors.

The next scheduled meeting will be Nov. 20 in the home of Beverly Brooke, 240 Centre.

Those present were Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan, Novella Hewitt, Ethel Logan, Pet Ott, Carol Odum, Louise Packard, Clara Trowbridge, Lorena Ward and Hallie Sossamon.

Candies to be Sold

Mary Ann Shipley, chairman of the First United Methodist Church County French Bazaar candy booth, is preparing a variety of candies with the help of others to be sold during the Nov. 14 "French Bazaar" in the church fellowship hall. Among candies to be sold are peanut brittle, chocolate fudge, date loaf, divinity cherry and nut, cherry nut fudge, cream of caramels, chow mein, church windows, pralenes, Mamie Eisenhower fudge, Martha Washington, and Bom Bom bars. The bazaar will open at 9 a.m. Friday and coffee will be available all morning with doughnuts, cookies and sweet rolls. General chairman Mrs. Labry Ballard, invites the public to attend the event.

Full Gospel Business Men Announce November Speaker

The Hereford Texas Chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship will welcome J. Martin Sayer, Director of Faith City Bible Institute of Amarillo at a monthly meeting Saturday, Nov. 15 at the High School Cafeteria.

Born and educated in England, Sayer studied Theology at Bristol University and Clifton Theological College, and holds an honors degree in Theology.

Prior to his appointment to Director of Faith City Bible Institute, he was Dean of Men, teacher and counselor at Christ for the Nations, Dallas.

An ordained minister for 19 years, he has pastored churches in England and Canada, as well as being involved in youth work and Jewish outreach. He has also served in the British Army and Business administration.

Special music from Amarillo will be provided following Sayer's speech.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. with a buffet supper. Fee for the supper is $3.65. The business meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Members of the Hereford Chapter are also invited to attend a prayer breakfast once a month at 7 p.m. at Dickies Restaurant. These meetings are held the Sunday before the chapter's meeting, the third Saturday.

President of the local chapter is Jonny Cloud.

American Legion Convenes Following Pancake Supper

The Hereford Unit of the American Legion met Tuesday evening in the American Legion Hall, following a pancake supper served by the Legion.

President Beverly Jesko conducted the business session. Reports were heard from the hospital chairman Ethel Logan. She said the American Legion Auxiliary Gift Shop will be set up in the Veterans hospital on Dec. 7 and the patients will make their selection Dec. 8-9. Gifts or contributions of money will be accepted and can be brought to the American Legion and Auxiliary Thanksgiving Dinner Tuesday evening, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

Membership chairman Clara Trowbridge reported a 100 percent membership goal as being reached. The unit has 107 members at this time. Kings Manor bingo party will be Nov. 20 and Zone 2 Legion and Auxiliary will host a meeting Nov. 20 in Nazareth Legion Hall.

Homecoming activities will be held in Odessa, Nov. 22, honoring Department President Helen Holcomb who belongs to the Earl S. Bailey Unit and Department commander Harry Riggs of Plainview. Hosting the affair will be the Plainview Legion and Auxiliary and the Earl S. Bailey post and Auxiliary of Odessa.

A Grand Cross breakfast will be served Sunday morning, Nov. 16 in the Legion Hall. A menu was approved for the Holiday banquets to be served by the Auxiliary beginning Dec. 5 with the International Garment Assoc. Dec. 6 and on Dec. 13 Suits Auto Store.

The unit will be hostesses to the Ira Ott's family on Nov. 29, in celebration of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ott.

Sixteen members were present at this meeting.

California entered the Union in 1850 as a bilingual state, its constitution requiring that all laws be published in both Spanish and English.

Ethiopia is as large as Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico combined.

Study Club Plans Christmas Party

Lone Star Study Club met in the home of Mrs. Dale Tinnin Tuesday with Ms. Hilda Haven as co-hostesses. Vice President Mrs. John R. Steenson presided in the absence of the president.

In opening the meeting, Mrs. Stevenson read the club motto and then invited members to join her in reading the club pledge. In the business session, members discussed plans for their December meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. John Jacobsen, Jr., with Mrs. Arthur Dettmann as co-hostess. Members will exchange gifts at this time, and each member is asked to bring food for Christmas baskets to be presented to a family in the community.

Mrs. Jim Bookout presented the program, noting there were two days to be celebrated this month, Nov. 11, Veterans Day and Nov. 27, Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Bookout chose to discuss Veteran's Day, and she titled her program, "Let Us Remember."

Mrs. Bookout reviewed the background of World War I, stating that as far back as 1783, air power was used in battle. "This was not airplanes but balloons. Balloons were also used in the Civil War," stated Mrs. Bookout.

Mrs. Bookout reviewed the events leading up to World War I and after a discussion she continued to discuss the developments in the United States of Armed Forces. She also discussed the development of our advanced weaponry.

Mrs. Bookout closed her program by reading a poem, "Whenever I Say America," written by Nancy Byrd Turner. As she read the poem each member found themselves in soul agreement with Mrs. Turner's feelings whenever she said America, according to Mrs. Arthur Dettmann.

Additional members present were Mmes. Jim Bookout, L.N. Cox, Don R. Davidson, V.E. Dodson, J.J. Durham, H.E. Henslee, Frank H. Morgan, F.O. Naylor, G.W. Newsom, John R. Stevenson, S.S. Williams, M.H. Wiseman, C. Baker Womble, Robert Thompson and Ray Suit. Also present were Mildred Elliott and Hilda Havens.

Westway Slates Annual Bazaar

For December

Westway Extension Club has scheduled its fourth annual Christmas Bazaar for Dec. 6 at the Hereford Community Center.

According to a spokesman for the club, tables are still available for craft display. Fee is $10 for a large table and $5 for a card table. Reservations deadline is Nov. 22.

Anyone wanting to reserve a table should contact Debbie Keyes at 364-5699.

Ann Landers Reader Responds

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to respond to the 18-year-old high school senior who wrote a poem that began: "Our Father who art in Heaven, where the hell have you been? Our leaders are all lunatics and the world is full of sin." The senior thanks God for tooth decay, cancer, nuclear waste, etc.

Dear Senior: God is where He has always been.

He did not move away from man.

Man moved away from HIM.

Through disobedience, man reaped all this sin, sickness, immorality, war, tooth decay, cancer, nuclear wastelands, ad infinitum.

Still, God is merciful to those who seek Him with all their hearts, as millions can testify.

Each one of us is personal to Him, as seen in the fact that there are no two fingerprints alike. He created each of us separately.

Just think of that. - From Beaver, Pa.

DEAR FRIEND: Beautifully said.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Saw another letter in your column from a complaining woman - bogged down by two children - sorry she can't live the same kind of life as before. Travel! Fun! Such happy days! Now she is "dead-tired" and "tied down."

Then you, Ann Landers, bring up your survey again - the one where you asked, "If you had it to do over again, would you have had children?" You said 70 percent replied, "No."

I ask you, Ann, when did you survey this 70 percent? When the children were babies? One year old? Six years old? Teenagers? College graduates? Or after they had children of their own?

I found the time raising my children the most exciting and fun years of my life. I wouldn't have missed them for anything. I don't believe your survey. Anyone can publish a "survey," and the public will believe it if it is printed in the newspaper. - Suspicious In Palo Alto

DEAR PALO: That 70 percent represented parents from every group you mentioned. The majority of "No" responses came from (1) young parents with babies and (2) parents of teenagers. I am not surprised that you are suspicious about the survey. I wouldn't have believed it either, except for the evidence right there in huge piles on my desk. I still haven't recovered from it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had no idea how serious my weight control method was until I read about it in your column. I was one of those crazies who used to eat everything in sight, then force myself to vomit.

I took your advice and went to Overeaters Anonymous. Lucky for me they let me join, because I was clearly off my rocker at the time.

Thank you, Ann, for informing millions of people about that terrible psychological disorder and what to do about it. It saved my life. - Recovering In Houston

DEAR HOUSTON: Although there are many excellent weight-loss groups, Overeaters Anonymous seems to have the best results with people who suffer with bulimia. Thanks for giving me a chance to say it again.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

The neat thing about having your first baby is that you have done something that no one has ever done in the history of the world: given birth.

God only knows how all these other people got here ... maybe by bus ... but this child which you hold has actually been conceived, grown inside you, and been born by sheer miracle.

No one feels the impact of the "manger syndrome" more than Grandma. I observed a new mother at the airport the other day who was going on her first trip away from her baby, leaving Grandma holding the hope of the free world.

"Be careful now. You have to support their little necks because their muscles haven't developed yet. Here, just put your hands under it like this."

Grandma: "I remember."
"And cover her face. All these children running around here coughing and hacking like Germ City. You don't know where they've been."

Grandma: "Right."
"Did Daddy set up the crib? I hope it's not under the air return. It dries up their noses and they can't breathe. You can tell if the room is dry. If it is, just put on a small panful of water or run the vaporizer."

Grandma: "You got it."
"And don't forget to burp her after every meal. Those air bubbles are painful. She's not like other babies. She never cries ... only when something is bothering her. So check. Of course, she could have leaky plumbing if you catch my drift."

Grandma: "I caught it."
"I see absolutely no excuses in this world for diaper rash. Did you get the special diapers and special milk? And you did put the dog in the kennel? Remember, only fresh vegetables, hand mashed. Remember, Mom, they don't test them on their tongues anymore. Let's see, you've got the name of the pediatrician, my number, diaper service, hospital emergency, all-night druggist and..."

Grandma: "They're boarding now."
"Bye, sweetheart. Oh, and remember, Mother, no soap — use the cotton tips with a little oil for those fat folds in the legs, and no patty-cake at bedtime. She gets too worked up. I'll call you as soon as I get there."

The door closed. The plane took off. Grandma slung the kid over her shoulder easily and said softly, "Hang onto your booties, Baby, and you and Grandma are going to have the time of our lives. How about a slice of pizza with everything?"

Cayler, Lucas Wed

Kathleen Cayler and Walter H. Lucas announced their recent marriage.

Lucas is formerly of Denver, Colo. and is retired from the U.S. Army. Ms. Cayler is a long-time resident of Hereford.

An informal wedding dinner at the Thompson House followed the ceremony with several out-of-town guests attending.

The couple is now at home at 235 Greenwood.

Charming Bluebirds Adopt Grandparents

The Charming Bluebirds met recently at Westgate Nursing Home where they adopted a grandmother and grandfather. The couple adopted by the girls was Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin.

Following their visit at Westgate, the girls discussed and prepared for their candy sale. Refreshments were served and the program was directed by Eileen Alley and Janet Betzen, leaders.

Those girls present were Gina Alley, Brenna Reinauer, Camille Betzen, Jennifer Kersh, Cari Reinart, Tricia Munoz, Cynthia Hernandez, Christine Brock and Gail Walterscheid.

Country Singles Announce Square Dancing Lessons

The Country Singles, country square dance club, invites those interested to attend their lessons being held every Wednesday night at the Community Center.

The lessons, running for 18 weeks, are held from 8-10 p.m. Johnny Gillenwater from Tulia is caller for the group. Cost of the lessons is $20. Serving as officers for the Country Singles are Glenn Boozler, president; Milton Moore, vice president; and Eve Darling, secretary-treasurer.

For further information one can contact Boozler at 364-8373, Moore at 647-4648, or Ms. Darling at 364-1301.

Club Recreates 1950's

Members of Alpha Iota Mu and their husbands recreated the 1950's when they met for a social recently at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Those attending dressed to depict the period of the 1950's. Several games were played including a mixer as guests arrived, a hula-hoop contest and charades. High school yearbooks were displayed.

Sharon Bodner and Weldon Brinkman were named the best dressed.

Those attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Jim Donaldson, Julius Bodner, Ron McNeese, Weldon Brinkman, Bob Nigh, Randy Laing, Sid Shaw, Tony Edwards and Connie Matthews and Terry Sparks.

Holiday Program Planned

Kingdom Seekers, a Sunday School class made plans for its Christmas program when they met recently at the home of Velma Carroll.

The program will be Dec. 9 at the home of Rosie Wall. During the meeting Juanita Huele offered the opening prayer and Erma Bain gave the devotional. Roll call was answered with what each member was the most thankful for in life.

Eight members were present at the meeting.

Roasting Marshmallows Not All Camp Fire Teaches Area Youth

By SUSAN OWENS
A very misconstrued idea regarding Camp Fire is that it is just a group of kids roasting marshmallows. And if this has been misconception, you need to know more about us. I want to tell you specifically about the Hereford Council.

Since 1928, there have been thousands of youngsters grow through the Hereford Council. Camp Fire had already been a national organization for girls for 18 years. The Hereford Council was originally financially supported and sponsored by the Rotarians, to whom we will be forever grateful. There have been as many as four generations of Camp Fire members from the same families here in Hereford alone. We have helped these young people grow to become responsible citizens and civic leaders in our own community. In 1975, National Camp Fire Congress voted to include boys in the Camp Fire membership. In 1978, the Camp Fire Congress voted to change the name of Camp Fire Girls, Inc. to Camp Fire, Inc.

Camp Fire reaches young people through very specialized programming. There are three basic types of Camp Fire programs. There is a specific purpose and ultimate goal for each one. Camp Fire programs may vary from one setting to another across the United States; however, nationally established standards and philosophies inherent in Camp Fire do not vary.

The first type of programming with which most people are familiar is the CLUB PROGRAMMING. The clubs are typically small youth groups which meet with an adult leader weekly. Together they plan their activities with a built-in progression of growth in responsibility. Age group levels are used to identify all Camp Fire members. Blue Birds are the younger Camp Fire members in the first through the third grades. Adventures are fourth through sixth graders; Discovery Club encompasses the junior high level, and Horizon Club members are high school sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Camp Fire's national program department develops youth program books and leaders' manuals through a careful process including input from council staff, leaders, youth members and formal field testing. Camp Fire materials are being developed to reflect Camp Fire's coeducational philosophy, using language carefully chosen to include all children.

Since 1975, Camp Fire councils have been developing innovative programs responding to youth needs locally. These RESPONSE PROGRAMS result from the Hereford Council assessing situations in Hereford and then developing the kind of program needed to best serve our young people. These response programs include such topics as drug abuse, a program entitled "I Can Do It," designed specifically for the youngster who is frequently at home alone. It teaches the child how to cope with emergency situations and simple things like how to prepare a bowl of soup. Other response programs encourage our youth to become creative in their own individual skills through the arts, music, role playing, crafts, hobbies, etc. Field trips scheduled throughout the year are included in Response Programs.

The very first Camp Fire members participated in outdoor experiences as ways to grow and develop: a child's need for OUTDOOR PROGRAMS or CAMPING, was one of the reasons Camp Fire was founded. Few experiences evoke as much emotion or create more precious memories than sharing a campfire with friends. But we believe that just enjoying the outdoors is not what really makes Camp Fire camping experiences special. Camp Fire's basic beliefs about children permeate the outdoor experience; in fact, many of those beliefs developed through the camping programs. All of the activities and relationships involved in a Camp Fire outdoor experience are not ends in themselves, but a means to enable children to acquire the skills and attitudes needed to function effectively in an ever changing and always challenging world. The Hereford Council has sponsored two camping programs in the past, a winter ski camp, and a summer resident camp. Last year due to a shortage of funds, our resident camp had to be deleted from the camping program.

Yes, we roast a lot of marshmallows. But we think growing up should be as much fun as it is challenging. Through Camp Fire programming, we feel that our "tomorrows give a reason for today."

It's Candy Sale time, again. If the Hereford Council is to continue to work effectively in providing quality programming for our youth and is to continue to uphold the standards set by National Camp Fire, we must have the funding to do so. When a Camp Fire member comes to your door, remember he or she is not just soliciting something to get your money, but is working diligently to help keep the doors of the lodge open.

The Newspaper Bible

WOULD YOU FOLLOW HIM?

Then one day Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee, and was baptised by John there in the Jordan River.

The moment Jesus came up out of the water, He saw the heavens open and the Holy Spirit in the form of a dove descending on Him,

And a voice from heaven said, "You are My beloved Son; You are My Delight."

Immediately the Holy Spirit urged Jesus into the desert. There, for 40 days, alone except for desert animals, He was subjected to Satan's temptations to sin. And afterwards the angels came and cared for Him.

Later on, after John was arrested by King Herod, Jesus went to Galilee to preach God's Good News.

"At last the time has come!" He announced. "God's Kingdom is near! Turn from your sins and act on this glorious news!"

One day as Jesus was walking along the shores of the Sea of Galilee, He saw Simon and his brother Andrew fishing with nets, for they were commercial fishermen.

Jesus called out to them, "Come, follow Me! And I will make you fishermen for the soul of men!"

At once they left their nets and went along with Him.

A little farther up the beach, He saw Zebedee's sons, James and John, in a boat mending their nets.

He called them, too, and immediately they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men and went with Him.

Men's Tie Can Coordinate Suit

COLLEGE STATION--Men's neck ties serve many purposes--especially as a key to the well-dressed look of today's fashions, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist.

"Perhaps most important, a tie 'ties together' or coordinates the suit or jacket and slacks with the shirt," she says.

Mrs. Saunders is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

A tie also extends the wardrobe, and it adds versatility, she says.

For example, garments that ordinarily would not be worn together can look dynamic when worn with the "right tie."

In making sure a tie is "right," colorwise, remember a tie "works" if it does one of the following: accents a secondary color in the suit, jacket or shirt, repeats colors from the suit, jacket or shirt.

Once you understand how to make colors "work," you can advance to additional fashion-combination techniques.

Local Couple to Participate In Moore County Arts Bazaar

The 20th Annual Moore County Arts Bazaar will open Friday, Nov. 21 for a three day run at the Community Building, 16th and Maddox, in Dumas. This year's show will feature work by 70 artists and organizations from Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, and many area towns and cities of Texas.

Among the artists and craftsmen at the Bazaar will be local residents Danny and Betty Martin of 206 Ranger. They will exhibit barnwood crafts items, mirrors; and toleware.

Among fine arts to be exhibited are oil, pastel, watercolor, goldleaf, collage, and mixed media paintings; metal sculpture; etchings, silverpoint; pen and ink, and pencil drawings; silk screened prints; and photography. Crafts include: toleware; stuffed and wooden toys; needlepoint; puppets; wheat weavings; macrame; metal crafts; wood crafts; dried and wildlife arrangements; X-mas decorations; silk flowers; corsages; ceramics and barbed-wire crafts. One exhibitor will offer homemade candies and another will show living plants with proceeds to be donated to the Moore County Arts Association.

Organizations exhibiting home arts are: Girl Scouts; Senior Citizens; Lubbock Christian College Assoc.; and the Moore County Association for Retarded Citizens.

Special feature of the bazaar includes a drawing for two watercolor paintings, by Carolyn Stallwitz, a well-known wildlife artist of Duma. Money from the sale of chances on these paintings is donated to the Senior Citizens Building Fund and the Moore County Association for Mentally Retarded Citizens. In addition the Senior Citizens will sell an afghan donated by Mabel Ritchey.

Esprit, Etc., a local civic club, will serve snack dinners, coffee, tea, candy, cookies, brownies, and soft drinks during the three days of the Bazaar. Proceeds from the food sales will go to the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center of Amarillo, the Dumas Satellite School for the handicapped, and Girlstown in Borger.

The Moore County Arts Assoc., organized in 1952 and dedicated to the stimulation and promotion of creativity has sponsored this Bazaar every autumn since 1961 in order to further an appreciation of the Arts and to give artists and craftsmen an opportunity to sell their work. It also serves as a means to support the Association's projects ... the building of an outstanding art books section at Kilgore Memorial Library ... acquisition of a permanent collection of fine arts now housed in the Galleries of the newly established Art Center as 100 West 7th in Dumas. The Art Center, supported by the Moore County Arts Assoc., provides a plane to offer artist's exhibitions, studios, art education through workshops conducted by professional artists and teachers, and an area for local artists to meet. Presently, the Art Center is exhibiting a one man show of paintings by Catherine Fry entitled "Images of Inner Space." The Center hours are Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Times for the 20th Annual Moore County Arts Bazaar are 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 21; 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 22; and 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 23. There is no admission charge.

Other artists to display their wares are Larry Geer of Frederick, Okla., will exhibit watercolors, silverpoint; Quannah Rice of Oklahoma City, Okla., will exhibit watercolors; Suzie McCord of Norman, Okla., will exhibit silk screen prints; Joan McIntyre of Plano, will exhibit watercolors; Mike McCullough of Amarillo will exhibit watercolors; Jon Birdsong of Canyon will exhibit watercolors; Malcolm Hughes of Amarillo will exhibit oil paintings; Mary Moore of Amarillo oils, pastels drawings; Carolyn Stallwitz of Dumas will exhibit wildlife paintings; and Manuel Franco of Dumas will exhibit pen and ink drawings.

The public is invited to attend this annual event in Dumas, Nov. 21-21.

IN WASHINGTON

By Robert Walters

Return to 'old-fashioned' fuel

SPOKANE, Wash. (NEA) - Marilyn Fichtenberg is a relatively recent convert to the ranks of those who heat their homes with wood stoves, but she's already an enthusiastic booster of "the old-fashioned way" of keeping warm in the winter.

"It's great. I really enjoy it — and it's economical and efficient," says Mrs. Fichtenberg, who lives with her husband on a farm outside this city. "We build up a fire before we go to bed and it heats the whole house overnight."

The Fichtenbergs are among millions of American families who have turned to wood rather than oil, gas, coal or electricity as a fuel for space heating, thus reversing a decades-long trend and helping to reduce petroleum imports.

As recently as 1940, wood was the primary source of heat for more than 52 percent of all homes here in the Pacific Northwest and almost 23 percent of all houses throughout the country.

But those figures plummeted in the wake of the post-World War II housing boom. By 1975, only 1.3 percent of all the nation's households relied on wood as their main heating fuel.

Soaring prices for "conventional" fuels, increased public concern about conservation and the growing popularity of a back-to-basics philosophy now have combined to produce a dramatic renaissance for wood-burning stoves.

An analysis commissioned by the Bonneville Power Administration shows that wood now heats 2.4 percent of all American homes, almost twice as many as five years ago. In Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, the comparable figure is 10.2 percent.

On the other side of the continent, a survey conducted by the Maine Audubon Society shows that 46 percent of all homeowners in the state burned wood in stoves, furnaces or fireplaces during the winter of 1977-78.

Those interviewed estimated they reduced their winter heating bills by an average of 44 percent or $283 per household. "With savings like that, it's not surprising that 98 percent of all wood burners intend to continue using firewood," says Audubon official Elizabeth Swain.

In the South, the Tennessee Valley Authority is promoting firewood as a fuel in a demonstration project that involves providing interest-free loans to members of a Georgia rural electric cooperative who are interested in buying wood-burning stoves.

A nationwide survey conducted last year by the Gallup Organization for the Wood Energy Institute found that 5 million homeowners now have a working wood stove and an equal number have given a "great deal" of thought to buying one. When respondents in that survey were asked what measures they had taken to reduce home heating costs, burning wood ranked fourth, behind only lowering the thermostat, insulating the house and installing storm windows and doors.

Although industrial and commercial applications remain limited, wood is used as the primary fuel at a rubber company and resort hotel in Dixville Notch, N.H., a paper mill in Gilman, Vt., a textile mill in Aragon, Ga., and scores of similar facilities throughout the country.

Wood is not a panacea for the nation's energy problems. The Georgia-Pacific Corp., one of the country's largest timber companies, estimates that wood would replace only 10 percent of all current energy sources if all new forest growth was burned every year.

Wood stoves, especially those installed or maintained improperly, can be serious fire hazards. Intensive cultivation and accelerated harvesting of timber land could produce adverse long-term consequences for the country's forests.

But wood can become a significant element in the blend of energy sources. The technology is well established, the cost is relatively low, the resource is renewable and the environmental consequences are minimal.

A well-coordinated effort to promote wood as a source of heat could reduce the country's dependence on imported oil by 2 million barrels per day or more while cutting heating costs in half for many homeowners.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 13th, the 318th day of 1980. There are 48 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 13, 1956, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled it was unconstitutional to segregate races on public buses.

On this date: Ten years ago, West Germany and Poland agreed on a treaty fixing the Oder-Neisse line as a border.

Five years ago, the World Health Organization announced that Asia was free of smallpox for the first time.

Thought for today: One can always be kind to people about whom one cares nothing. — Oscar Wilde, Irish writer (1854-1900).

STAIRWAYS TO HEAVEN? Actually, these are seating support beams for a domed stadium under construction in Minneapolis. The stadium will be the home of football's Minnesota Vikings and baseball's Minnesota Twins.

DALLAS (AP) — A tax protest organization called The TEA Party has started trying to raise money for a tax referendum campaign that will be decided in a Jan. 17 special election.

Members of the party's election committee hope to raise $30,000 so they can present their side of the argument to city voters.

They claim their proposed city charter amendment would cut the city's tax rate without a drastic reduction of services, despite claims to the contrary from members of the city council.

On the ballot will be a proposal to force the city's tax rate downward by 28 percent, from the current 56.6 cents to 40 cents, per $100 valuation.

A separate proposition would put a 5 percent cap on the amount an individual's property tax valuation could be increased each year.

The committee's office manager, Clarence Simmons, said he hopes to send the party's information mailer to 25,000 voters before the election.

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Presidents and chancellors from 34 colleges and universities will join Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and other state officials on the podium when Dr. Frank Vandiver is inaugurated Thursday as president of North Texas State University.

Vandiver, a historian and former vice president of Rice University, succeeds C.C. "Jitter" Nolen, who resigned as NTSU president after a Texas legislative investigating committee questioned him concerning the school's handling of state funds.

Vandiver will become the 11th president of the university, and the second president of the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine in Fort Worth, which is affiliated with NTSU.

Putlitzer Prize winner Daniel Boorstin, librarian of congress, will deliver the address at the 11 a.m. inauguration.

DALLAS (AP) — A county grand jury indicted three men Monday on felony charges of running a gambling establishment, following a police raid on a veterans' post July 21.

The raid on AMVETS Post No. 4 was conducted by seven officers from a multi-city, cooperative police task force. The law officers used a chrome-plated battering ram to bash down the door of the two-story building, then made 33 arrests and seized $15,093 in cash as well as playing cards, poker chips and written records.

Those indicted were Hubert B. Inman, 54; Cory Deroyce Inman, 21, and George E. Van Buren.

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — A postal worker has filed a $10 million lawsuit against three companies, claiming his health was damaged by formaldehyde fumes from a mobile home.

Milton Ueckert, 32, claimed he suffered respiratory problems and fever after moving into the mobile home in June of 1979.

Named as defendants in the legal action filed in a Fort Bend County district court were Rose-Rich Mobile Homes of Rosenberg, Windsor Mobile Homes of Newton, Okla., and Zimmer Homes Corp. of Pompano Beach, Fla.

The lawsuit said that a test sample of the air within the mobile home showed a formaldehyde concentration of four parts per one million. The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health suggests one part per million in a safe level.

SURFSIDE, Texas (AP) — Residents of the Gulf Coast resort village of Surfside are using old political campaign signs to restore sand dunes along badly eroded beaches.

A citizens' group launched the project recently and have collected some 2,000 campaign signs scattered around Brazoria County.

Betty Clinton, president of the citizens' group, said the signs will be used to anchor Christmas trees and other debris to trap sand and rebuild the dunes.

Mrs. Clinton said Tuesday, "Hurricanes wash the sand dunes away from the beach. If we can build them back up the dunes will protect what is in the back of the area."

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Health Department Tuesday reversed an order that had banned the traditional family-style meals on the Rice University campus.

Victor Pappas, the department's assistant director of consumer health services, said he had reviewed the food serving practices in the Rice residence halls and "the family style operation can continue."

Pappas said one of the department's health inspectors was concerned "that once food is served, the portions remaining should not be served again. There is no set policy against family-style serving."

The health department official said he would inspect the facilities himself and "I might even eat dinner there."

The family-style dining started in 1957 and has become a tradition at the university.

MONT BELVIEU, Texas (AP) — Four business establishments and the post office were closed in the Chambers County community of Mont Belvieu Tuesday as a safety measure against a leakage of flammable gases.

Mayor Fred Miller said the facilities were shut down for at least two days in case the gases should reach dangerous levels.

A mixture of hazardous gases, mostly propane and ethane, have infiltrated the community from an unexplained source.

Mont Belvieu is located about 30 miles east of Houston and sits atop a salt dome which has the largest underground storage of petrochemicals in the nation.

The leakage forced the evacuation of 68 families from the area about one month ago.

TYLER, Texas (AP) — U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler says he will resign the day after Ronald Reagan takes the presidential oath.

Hannah, appointed to the post in July 1977, said he will send a letter of resignation on Jan. 21. The former state legislator said it is "usual procedure" for federal officials to resign when a different party takes office in the White House.

"I think it would be very unlikely that (the Republicans) would want to keep me, but I would have to reconsider my resignation if they asked me to stay," he said.

Hannah said he has not made future plans, "but I will probably stay here in Tyler."

QUOTE/UNQUOTE

What people are saying...

Anne Meara

"If I were Archie, I'd kick up my heels and play the field before settling down again."
— Anne Meara, who stars in CBS-TV's "Archie Bunker's Place," speculating on whether Archie will marry again now that Edith has been "knocked off."

"He said he was just going to the next cell to get a pack of cigarettes."
— Jim Balovick, officer at a San Francisco city jail, describing a prisoner who was found stuck perpendicular between the bars of his cell.

"The thought of my being able to go into space and paint a picture up there is such an exciting thought. Some people said I was crazy but I can't understand why they don't understand."
— Mort Kunstler, official artist for the NASA space shuttle, who hopes to make a shuttle trip himself.

"He was quite tall, you know. I always remember that he symbolized for me that rare bird, the tall composer. Most composers have been shrimps — Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart."
— Aaron Copland, 80-year-old composer, reminiscing on Russian composer, Sergei Prokofiev.

"Let me be the first to cry wof."
— Dee Guglielmo, of West Hartford, Conn., in a letter to the town council after an ordinance was imposed on dog owners who didn't clean up after their pets. Guglielmo demanded that equal fines be imposed on cat owners.

"He was such an unassuming guy, you didn't think of him as being any different."
— Matt Simon, college friend of Prince Reza Pahlavi, son of the late Shah of Iran, describing the Prince.

— Enrico Caruso Jr., 76, of Jacksonville, Fla., who has just become a U.S. citizen. He is the son of the late Italian tenor Enrico Caruso.

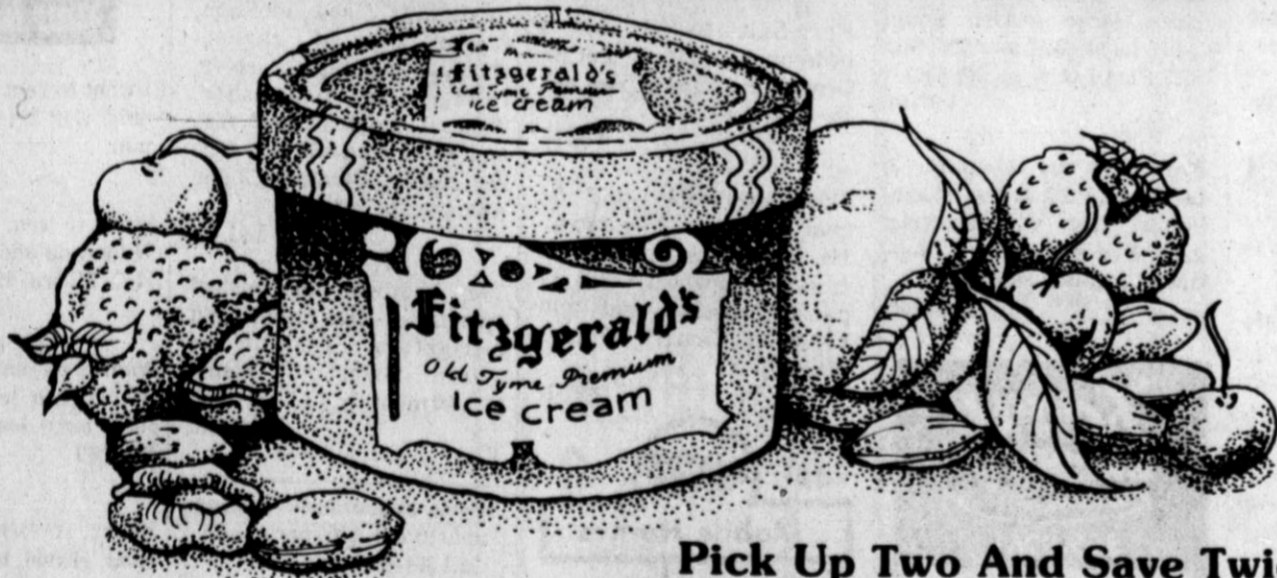

"Men stay in this business past 35; so why shouldn't women? When I'm 50 and wrinkled and gray I'll be doing the news somewhere and critics will say I got the job because of my looks."
— Jessica Savitch, news-caster, refuting the notion that television news is a beauty contest. (People)

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Reasonable weight loss

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm 47 years old and weigh 125. I'm 5-feet tall. How many calories can I have a day and still lose 25 pounds in three months? I can't take anything as I have high blood pressure.

DEAR READER - I'm glad you realize that it's not wise to take so-called diet pills or pills that suppress your appetite if you have high blood pressure. Frankly, I don't think they're good for anyone but they're worse for people who have high blood pressure or heart disease.

As a basis for a well-balanced, low-calorie diet of about 1,200 to 1,300 calories a day, you can use The Health Letter number 4-7. Weight Lossing Diet which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now if you don't lose sufficient weight on a well-balanced 1,200 to 1,300 calorie a day diet, you probably need to increase your level of physical activity. Since you have high blood pressure, a good choice here would be a good daily walking program. If you can build up to walking a mile three times a day over a period of time that would help. As your physical fitness improves, you might be able to add other exercises.

There is no set rule really that will apply to everyone as to how many calories a person should consume to lose weight. It's an individual matter. I don't approve of losing weight too fast. There can be some problems with that.

There are many health problems you can have if you try to overdo dieting or follow some of the fad diets that are available to the public today. I really prefer for people to learn to eat a well-balanced diet and lose gradually at a rate of about one pound of fat a week.

A lot of the weight loss that people have from fad diets is loss of water and not fat. That's unhealthy and the water weight comes right back because your body needs the water. That's not real body fat loss.

To lose about a pound of body fat a week, you need to have a calorie deficit of about 3,500 calories. That means that you need to reduce your calorie intake 500 calories a day. Review your diet and evaluate what you eat while your weight is stable at the present time. Then try to eliminate enough unnecessary foods such as sweets or fat so that you can eliminate 500 calories.

If you can build your exercise level up enough to use about 200 calories of exercise, you'd only really have to decrease your diet 300 calories a day.

For walking you can use a general yardstick of 50 to 60 calories per mile. If you walked three miles a day, that would be about 150 calories - a little less for someone as small as you are. That means if you would then eliminate 350 calories from your diet as well, you would be decreasing your energy balance by 500 calories a day. This should cause you to lose about one pound of real fat a week as opposed to losing muscles or body water, both of which you need.

that makes the difference. Many short-sleepers have as much deep sleep as people who sleep eight hours.

The different stages of sleep are discussed in The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia, that I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You may need to adjust your life style so that you are ready for sleep. A regular habit is important. Unwind and slow down as the sleep hour approaches. Habits that help you sleep are discussed in The Health Letter that I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Regarding bad fingernails, I'm a lay hypnotist with 10 years of practice. Of the dozens and dozens of ex-smokers I have to my credit, some had bad nails. Stopping smoking in some cases seems to have been linked to improved nail bed nourishment. Perhaps the blood circulation to the ends of the fingertips improved as a result of more oxygen in the blood and less nicotine constriction. I find that rather interesting.

DEAR READER - Thank you for sending along your observation and I agree it's interesting. One of the old studies for vascular disease was to evaluate the change in temperature in the surface of the skin after smoking. There is quite a bit of individual variation. Some people are more sensitive to cigarette smoke than others. In these people when the tiny arteries in the skin constricted, the skin temperature would fall. In any case, for those who worry about fingernail problems and also smoke cigarettes, it would be worth stopping smoking to see if it will help to improve their fingernails.

It should be added that some people's arterial system is so sensitive to tobacco that smoking is a significant factor in causing them to develop gangrene of the tips of the fingers and feet. The classic example of this is Berger's disease. There are a number of peripheral vascular diseases that are significantly influenced by smoking.

Cricket evicted

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - When threading elastic through a casing with a safety pin the pin sometimes opens and is often hard to get through the casing. So I poke a hole in the end of the elastic, attach a large bobby pin in the hole and find it much easier.

Please advise me how to get rid of crickets in the basement. - D.J.

DEAR D.J. - Crickets like warm places so they usually come inside when the weather is cold. Generously blow fresh pyrethrum powder into places in the basement where you think they could hide. Be glad they are only in your basement as they can play havoc with fabrics, rugs, etc. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - The reader who wanted something to keep her slip from "riding up" under her skirt should try spraying hair spray or that protective spray to prevent furniture spots on the underside of her slip. Just a few squirts will do. - LINN

DEAR POLLY - If you are secretary of a club or other organization with from 25 to 50 members and that sends out newsletters to its members, ask them to each bring about 15 of their own name and address labels to go on the newsletters. This assures the correct address and saves the secretary a lot of time that would have to be spent looking up addresses and then writing the names and addresses on envelopes.

When you have a lot of soap bubbles in the sink sprinkle table salt on them and they will quickly break up. - RITA
DEAR POLLY - My nephew recently told me that when he was in the service their cook wrapped such food as meat loaf, etc., in aluminum foil with the shiny side in and then finally discovered that the reason the food was never hot enough was the shiny side should have been out. They always had hot food after this discovery. - GERTRUDE

DEAR POLLY - When I use a paint tray and roller I put the tray inside a plastic bag and then adjust it with plastic gummed tape. When the paint job is finished the bag is removed and the tray is spotless.

I find it handy to keep a few grocery bags in the garage to hold a few weeds that I might pull from time to time. - MARTY

NCPA Eyeing Senators Up For Future Re-Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — One week after helping pick off four of the Senate's leading liberals, the National Conservative Political Action Committee is setting its sights on 20 senators up for re-election two years off. At the top of the list: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

also said Tuesday it may broaden its efforts in 1982 to include the House as well as the Senate. "Liberals ought to be very intimidated by the mood of the American public," said NCPAC Chairman John T. Dolan in assessing last week's election. The group spent $1.2 million this year, and Dolan said it may spend more than $2 million in the 1982 Senate campaigns. NCPAC, like other independent political action groups, can pour millions of dollars into campaigns as long as it has no contact with the candidates they're backing. Four of the six Democratic senators targeted by NCPAC in last week's elections were defeated — Frank Church of Idaho, George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana and John Culver of Iowa. Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Thomas

Eagleton of Missouri survived. In 1982, Dolan said, the group probably will pick more than six Senate races from the list of 20 to actually work for an incumbent's defeat. He said the final choice will be based on the candidates' vulnerability and voting records. NCPAC has dubbed Kennedy "the most extreme liberal" in the Senate. A year ago, when Kennedy was running for the Democratic presidential nomination, the conservative group set up a "Kennedy Truth Squad" and ran newspaper advertisements in Boston and Washington to draw public attention to its criticisms of the Massachusetts senator. Following Kennedy on the list of potential targets in 1982 are Democrats Donald W. Riegle Jr. of Michigan, Howard M. Metzenbaum of

Ohio, Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland, Harrison Williams of New Jersey and Henry M. Jackson of Washington. The list also includes three Republican senators — Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, John Chafee of Rhode Island and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut. Dolan said his group also may go after such key liberal Democrats in the House as majority leader Jim Wright of Texas, Morris K. Udall of

Arizona and Phillip Burton of California. The other potential Senate targets, all Democrats, are Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, John Melcher of Montana, Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, William Proxmire of Wisconsin, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, James Sasser of Tennessee, Howard Cannon of Nevada, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Lawton Chiles of Florida. NCPAC measured its potential targets by several criteria, including support for the Panama Canal treaties and federal aid to New York City and whether they opposed the SALT II treaty and the B-1 bomber. Yellowstone National Park includes portions of three states — Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.
