Vandals struck a control house at a Southwestern Public Service Co. substation here last night, about 6:30, flipping switches in a crucial central power distribution point that plunged Deaf Smith County and portions of three other local counties into darkness for about 30

Emergency Units Cope

Auxiliary power systems, portable generators and walkie-talkies helped Hereford police, the county sheriff's department and other emergency personnel as well as the local hospital to cope with the power blackout here last night.

According to Detective Sgt. Vernon Hope of the Hereford Police Department several units were called out when the power failed about 6:35 p.m. last night.

"We had all our cars out on the street patrolling the downtown area and directing traffic at the main intersections in town," Hope said.

Intersections controlled by traffic lights included Highway 60 and Highway 385, Highway 385 and Park Ave., and Highway 60 and Main Street.

"We went immediately to these main intersections to direct traffic and there were no problems," he said.

Although the police switchboard lost all power, officers used walkie-talkies to communicate.

Hope said officers are trained to work in a situation such as last night so there were no problems in the operations.

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department answered the emergency by setting up portable generators at the banks and saving and loan offices in order to keep lights on the business.

Hope explained the procedure is handled by the fire department because of their portable generators.

"That is their assignment, to go to the banks to get the lights going as soon as possible. They had one generator operating and were starting a second one when the power was restored," Hope said.

Burglary Reported At CPA Office

Even with a 28-minute power blackout, Hereford police officers had a relatively quiet night answering two calls unrelated to the power failure.

Officers answered a call at William B. Allen, CPA, 614 E. Park Ave., at 11:10 p.m. last night for a burglary report.

Apparently someone broke the back glass door of the office to gain entry about 10 or 10:30 p.m.

Items taken included a five-inch portable television, a stereo unit and a wrist watch. Before leaving the building, the burglars placed several

Board of Realtors To Install Officers

James T. Sawyer, executive vice president of the Texas Association of Realtors, will install the Hereford Board of Realtors 1980-81 officers tomorrow night at the Hereford Country Club during their annual installation banquet.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Jeanne Sawner

Because the blackout extended throughout Deaf Smith County all 18 reserve deputies from the sheriff's department were called out to patrol several areas.

Reserve officers patrolled Easter, Dawn, Adrian, Vega, Wildorado, Ford, Simms and Westway.

A spokesman for the department said walkie-talkies were used because the switchboard was out of use.

"We did not have any problems switching to the use of the walkie-talkies," the spokesman said.

Officers had the county under patrol within a few minutes after the power failed.

"Our reserves are very good. When something happens they are ready to go to work," the spokesman said.

Deaf Smith General Hospital lost only six seconds of power as they switched to a diesel operated auxiliary unit at the hospital according to Jim Bullard, administrator for the hospital.

"The only problem we had is we lost our paging system, because they are connected to the switchboard. If the telephones are out, our pagers are out," he said.

Telephones were out of services last night due to the large number of phone calls made which overloaded the backup system. The local utility's backup equipment is only able to handle one-third of the Hereford population.

The hospital's ambulance service operates on the pager system. When it is inoperative personnel switch to walkie-talkies.

"We were very fortunate and did not have any ambulance calls to make. In fact, everything was fairly quiet at the hospital so we didn't have any problems," Bullard said.

records and files on a desk and set fire to them.

A portion of the carpet was burned from paper falling to the floor, and the building had an extensive amount of smoke damage.

Officers have no suspects at this time.

About 7 p.m. yesterday Ray Barber at Hereford High School reported two white males threw a rock through the window of the auto mechanics building. Estimated damage is $20.

Officers issued 3 traffic citations Tuesday.

Robertson, humorous speaker originally from Graham, N.C. Mrs. Robertson is a member of the National Speakers Association.

All members of the Board of Realtors are invited to attend the banquet. Happy Hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the banquet set for 7:30 p.m.

The outage affected the entire city of Hereford and all of Deaf Smith County with the exception of a small area east of Dawn that has power supplied via Canyon, according to Troy Waddell, SPS manager here.

The FBI was notified following the incident of vandalism last night.

The outage also affected distribution lines for Deaf Smith Rural Electric Cooperative, leaving the area of Oldham County south of Vega without power, as well as the Adrian area.

Eastern Farmer County and the northern portion of Castro County in the Easter vicinity were also without power during a 28-minute period as SPS officials worked hectically to penetrate the darkness with renewed light.

The power outage knocked out traffic control lights and security lighting at businesses across the city and sent Hereford police officers, Deaf Smith County sheriff's officers and reserve deputies scurrying to handle a sudden emergency brought on by the darkness.

The incident of vandalism will likely prompt SPS to reconsider security facilities at its power substations, according to Waddell.

Bill Bankston, general foreman with SPS here was working in a warehouse across the street from the vandalized substation on East New York Ave. last night when the city's lights went out and an alarm sounded at the substation.

Bankston crossed New York Ave. and went into the substation yard, immediately investigating transformers and overhead wiring for some problem.

The SPS foreman may have missed spotting the individuals responsible for the vandalism by only a matter of seconds, according to Waddell.

According to Bankston, the individuals responsible for the vandalism apparently scaled a chain-link fence topped with strands of barbed wire on the north side of the substation to enter the yard.

The vandals then threw rocks through a window on the north side of the control house and used a piece of timber lying in the yard to finish breaking out the window before entering the control house.

Once inside, the vandals began flipping switches and in seconds the entire area was plunged into darkness.

SPS and police officials were speculating that junior high or high school-age youths were responsible for the vandalism.

Hereford police dusted the panel inside the control house for finger prints last night and also took other items of evidence.

The path of departure of at least two vandals could be traced through the snow to a portion of a pole trailer in the substation yard which the individuals apparently climbed onto before scaling the fence once again.

"The FBI was notified because it is a federal offense to tamper with electrical transmission facilities," commented Waddell.

"The response from the FBI was that if the local law enforcement officials desire help the FBI will come into this case. Otherwise, since the offense did not actually involve interstate transmission of electricity, the FBI will not have jurisdiction," he added.

According to Waddell, power for the Hereford facility is generated at Amarillo and Earth.

"Power was still being fed to the substation here last night but was not going through the transformer," Waddell explained.

The vandals struck the control panel inside the control house with a number of rocks they threw while breaking out the window, and according to the local SPS manager, both the utility and local customers were fortunate that the projectiles did not strike other instruments on the panel or many customers would have been without power for a much longer period of time.

As it was, damage inside the control house was minimal. SPS personnel from Amarillo arrived here quickly last night and began investigating for possible damage to technical equipment.

According to Waddell, the control house which was vandalized holds $250,000 to $500,000 worth of technical equipment.

"SPS will look at this Hereford incident and will probably re-evaluate the security systems around its power substations, particularly from the aspect of where people could gain entry," said Waddell.

"Anytime anything like this happens, the security is going to be investigated," he added.

The SPS manager pointed out that last night's incident had the potential for disaster for several reasons.

"I don't think the vandals realize that they were in danger from high voltage themselves. In addition to hurting other

Problem Point

Troy Waddell, Southwestern Public Service Co. manager in Hereford examines the switches in the electric company's control house just off East New York Ave. which vandals flipped to deprive most of Deaf Smith County and portions of Oldham, Parmer and Deaf Smith counties of power Tuesday night. Vandals broke a window on the north side of the control house to gain entry and then came to this control panel, where they tampered with switches and plunged the entire city of Hereford into darkness in a matter of seconds. Those responsible for the incident could face both state and federal felony charges and the FBI has been notified concerning the incident. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

Nevada-Utah Still MX Choice

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor

The Air Force has announced that its preferred basing area for the MX missile system is in the Nevada-Utah area, Rep. Kent Hance informed The Brand Tuesday afternoon.

The Air Force schedule for studying proposed sites calls for a Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) to be released in mid-December, but no final decision will be made until the summer of 1981.

Hance added that the Air Force is studying eight alternatives, and the first six options are all in the Nevada-Utah locations. The seventh option is the placing of the full system in Texas-New Mexico, and the eighth option is split basing-100 missiles in Nevada-Utah and 100 in Texas-New Mexico.

Don Richards, a Hance aide, said the Congressman's office had received a number of inquiries from people in West Texas "who think they're already breaking ground for the system."

Richards said if there is any activity in the area, it is concerned only with the environmental impact study. Some citizens have started petitions in the Hereford area to protest the proposal of locating the system in Texas and New Mexico.

Following the DEIS release in December, there will be a 90-day public comment period in the four states under consideration. The Air Force would make a final impact statement as soon as possible after the public hearings, and the final decision is expected no sooner than early summer of 1981.

Hance said the Air Force is beginning an intensive study of two locations—Coyote Spring, Nev. and Milford, Utah.

The seventh alternative to put the entire system in the Texas-New Mexico area would include designated assembly areas at Dalhart and Canon AFB. The split basing proposal (No. 8).

Elected officials from Texas have said they doubted the MX system would be located outside of Utah and Nevada. Public lands are available there and the cost of land in Texas and New Mexico would be extremely high.

Sen. John Tower, the Texas Republican in line to become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he thought the Pentagon would conclude that the Nevada-Utah desert is the only appropriate location for the entire system.

The proposed MX system would move 200 MX nuclear missiles among 4,600 launching sites in a hide-and-seek pattern designed to protect them from attack.

Reagan Pledged Cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan, courting Congress with a pledge not "to throw up surprises," is being promised cooperation — but not necessarily a honeymoon — with Democratic leaders.

Reagan made a busy tour of the Capitol on Tuesday, meeting with House and Senate leaders of both parties, and was to have lunch and dinner with congressional Republicans today.

The initial reception was cordial.

"I liked him," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, who will lead the Democrats' defense when the new administration takes office in January. "He was very personable."

For his part, O'Neill said he promised to withhold criticism of the new president for six months, but he said he also let Reagan know the Democrats intend to be tough minority critics.

"I told him, 'You're in the big leagues now. Things might not move as fast as you think they should,'" O'Neill said. "I think he was a little surprised when I told him that. That's OK. It won't be the only thing that will surprise him."

In the Senate, which will be controlled by Republicans in the new Congress, Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said it was thoughtful of Reagan to meet with congressional leaders two months before his inauguration.

But Byrd added: "There has to be a healthy minority. We intend to play this adversary role in a responsive and responsible manner."

Congressional critics of President Carter have often said he did not build rapport with House and Senate leaders, paid attention to them only when a legislative crisis was pending, and as a result, saw many of his programs fail.

Reagan is trying to avoid such mistakes.

O'Neill was personally incensed when he was assigned poor seats to a Carter inauguration event in 1977 and was often ignored when senior Carter aides were drafting administration legislative proposals.

By contrast, Edward Meese III, to become a Cabinet-level presidential counselor under Reagan, has already paid a courtesy call on O'Neill.

Bloodmobile Here Tomorrow

The Coffee Memorial Blood Mobile will be in Hereford tomorrow at the Community Center to collect blood in order to replace blood supplies.

The blood mobile has not been in Hereford for two months. A spokesman for the organization said, "Because of the delays we need everyone to come out and give."

The mobile is usually in Hereford on Wednesdays, however, due to the Thanksgiving holidays the date has been changed.

Load Puts Phones Out

By DENISE SMITH
Staff Writer

Hereford residents who suddenly found themselves sitting in the dark last night following an incident of vandalism at a Southwestern Public Service Co. control house on New York Ave. did the natural thing and picked up the phone to call friends and neighbors to determine if they were in a similar fix.

They did it in such numbers that in short order the phones were not functioning.

Main power to Hereford's Southwestern Bell Telephone facilities was off during the blackout here last night and although the Bell facility quickly switched over to its backup system there was no way a system designed to handle one-third of the Hereford population could handle all the calls being dialed in the dark.

According to Carlton Richardson, a switchman for Southwestern Bell here, "After all the lights went out people all over Hereford were picking up their phones to call, which overloaded the equipment and caused the engine to lock down at the main office."

Richardson emphasized that the emergency backup capability of Bell's local system can handle only a third of the Hereford population on the phone at once. "After the lights came back on people quit phoning so much and the equipment came back on line," he added.

According to Richardson, in cases of emergency such as occurred last night, some restraint in the use of telephones might be in order until electrical service is restored.

Dresser Sues Iran For $17.3 Million

DALLAS (AP) — A $17.3 million suit has been filed in federal court here against the government of Iran by Dresser Industries, Inc.

The suit, filed here Tuesday, alleges that the revolutionary government of Iran has converted property belonging to Dresser in violation of existing contracts and without paying compensation.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has been asked to determine the liability after studying facts in the contract dispute.

In the suit, Dresser alleges the Iranian government has hindered Dresser's business dealings with other companies because of the seizure of assets of domestic corporations investing in Iran.

Named as defendants in the suit are the Islamic Republic of Iran, its political subdivisions, agencies and instrumentalities and the National Iranian Oil Co.

Job Discrimination Protection Wanted

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal court has been asked to decide if aliens with legal resident status are entitled to the same protection from job discrimination as U.S. citizens receive.

The suit, filed in Laredo, Texas, stems from the U.S. Employment Opportunity Commission's refusal to investigate the firings of Julia V. Martinez and Maricela Mollan of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, according to officials with the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

The two women told a news conference here Tuesday that they lost their jobs with a Laredo clothing manufacturer after they refused a supervisor's sexual advances.

Both women said they had been granted legal resident alien status by the Immigration and Naturalization Service and legally were entitled to work in the U.S.

If federal courts order the EEOC to investigate the case, thousands of aliens who come into the U.S. each day to work could take job discrimination complaints to federal and state agencies, MALDEF officials said.

"If this (EEOC) policy is revoked, all resident aliens working in the United States would be protected," Carmen Estrada said.

Ms. Estrada of MALDEF said 5,000 Mexican nationals with lawful commuter status cross the border each day to work in Laredo and thousands more have similar status in other border towns.

MALDEF staff attorney Norma Solis said it was the first such lawsuit in the country.

Disintegrating Drum Samples Analyzed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Authorities are awaiting test results on the contents of more than 1,000 chemical drums discovered in a mesquite thicket on the south side of San Antonio last week, state officials say.

Investigators with the Texas Department of Human Resources discovered the drums, many of them disintegrating from rust and corrosion, while testing water in a lake located just south of Loop 410.

Military markings were noted on many of the barrels, but such drums often are sold and reused, TDWR official Vernon Francis said Tuesday.

Approximately 30 drums, six of which contained highly alkaline chemicals, were discovered near the illegal dump site in July, according to Tom Milligan, TDWR public affairs officer.

Milligan said another barrel contained trichloroethylene, a flammable degreasing solvent that can cause breathing problems if inhaled.

The large cache was discovered last week when state personnel returned to the lake at the request of adjacent landowners, Milligan said.

John Latchford, the department's assistant director of enforcement, said the drums could have contaminated a major freshwater aquifer known as the Wilcox Sands, which stretches from the Rio Grande into Northeast Texas and Louisiana.

License for Offshore Supertanker Sought

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post reported today a four-company consortium plans to ask the Department of Transportation for a license to build an offshore supertanker unloading facility similar to one proposed by the now-defunct Texas Deepwater Port Authority.

The Texas Offshore Port consortium plans to apply for the license "sometime in December," the Post reported.

The four companies — Phillips Petroleum Co., Continental Pipeline Co., Dow Chemical U.S.A. and Seaway Pipe Line Co. — want to build a single buoy unit near Freeport, about 12 miles offshore in 72 feet of water, the newspaper said.

The facility would have an unloading capacity of 500,000 barrels of oil a day at a minimum rate of 40,000 barrels an hour and would supply Phillips, Dow and Conoco Inc. plants in Southeast Texas, according to the Post.

The project resembles one proposed by the TDPA that folded after its license expired Saturday and federal officials rejected a plan to scale down the original 2.5-million-barrel-a-day facility to one capable of off-loading 500,000 daily.

TDPA officials were unable to obtain use agreements from oil and chemical companies to underwrite bond sales of more than $1 billion to build the larger facility. The groups, however, obtained non-binding letters of intent from about a half dozen firms willing to import 550,000 barrels of oil a day through the proposed port.

There currently are only four members in the consortium, but the newspaper said other companies could be added later.

The consortium indicated earlier they would make no final proposal to federal officials until a final decision has been made on the TDPA application.

No Major Changes Noted In Two-Month-Old War

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran and Iraq reported more hard fighting for Susangerd and besieged Abadan but with no major change apparently in the situation on the two current battlefronts of their two-month-old war.

Iran, after reporting it recaptured Susangerd on Monday and drove all the Iraqi out, said Tuesday it was mopping up resistance near the town. But Iraq, which needs Susangerd to mount a pincer attack on Ahwaz, the Khuzistan provincial capital 35 miles to the southeast, said its forces "tightened the noose" around the town's defenders and "destroyed enemy reinforcements."

Both governments reported helicopter gunship attacks in the area, and Iraq admitted that one of its MiG jets was shot down.

Casualties reported Tuesday at Susangerd were less than those claimed on previous days. Iran said its revolutionary guards and troops killed 30 Iraqis, raising the total in three days of fighting to 880. Iraq reported 98 enemy dead and a total of 609 for the same period.

At Abadan, on the southern end of the 300-mile war front, the Baghdad command claimed 150 Iraqis were killed trying to break out of the besieged refinery city, while Iran claimed its artillery and troops drove the Iraqis back more than a mile from the Bahmanshir River, on the east side of the city.

Iran claimed 80 Iraqis were killed.

The casualty claims were believed to be greatly inflated. But none of the conflicting war reports could be confirmed since neither government allowed Western reporters to get near enough to the fighting to check on it.

Iraq also said it sank three Iranian naval vessels in the northern waters of the Persian Gulf, shot down an Iranian jet fighter that bombed the Iraqi port of Fao, at the head of the gulf, and killed 27 Iraqis elsewhere on the war front.

Oil industry sources in New York said Iraq has offered to resume limited exports of crude oil to long-term customers through the 600-mile pipeline from its northern oilfields to Turkey's Mediterranean coast. But the sources questioned whether this could be done because of the war, which has cut off all Iraqi exports and most of Iran's.

Before the war, Iraq was shipping more than 3 million barrels of oil daily and Iran was exporting between 700,000 and 900,000 barrels.

Also in New York, a state judge deferred a ruling on Iran's suit for $56.5 billion against the estate of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi after the State Department requested postponement of legal action until the 52 American hostages in Iran are released. He was the second U.S. judge to defer action on an Iranian suit in six days.

Today was the 382nd day in captivity for the hostages, and there still was no response to the American reply, delivered last Wednesday, to Iran's four conditions for the freeing of the captives.

The head of Iran's central bank, Ali Reza Nobari, told radio station KXRB of Sioux Falls, S.D., in a telephone interview that a special committee was working on the answer to the United States, and he indicated that this would be ready in two or three days.

But he said the four demands were "a bare minimum," that Iran was not sure how much President Carter "wants to concede to the Iranian demands," and that he thought the two governments were far from agreement.

Iran's four conditions are a pledge from the United States of non-interference in Iranian affairs, return of all assets which the shah and his close relatives transferred abroad, cancellation of all American claims against Iran and the release of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen by the United States.

The U.S. reply gave the pledge of non-interference but explained the legal obstacles to immediate fulfillment of the other conditions.

Beautify Texas Council To Convene in Amarillo

Interested citizens of the Panhandle area are invited to attend a District 4 Meeting of the Beautify Texas Council, which will be held on Thursday, November 20, from 12:30 - 4 p.m., at the First National Bank Building, 8th and Taylor Streets, in Amarillo.

The Women's Division of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will handle registration, which lasts until 1 p.m. on the sub-level of the bank. Sharon Brown, Women's Division Beautification Chairman, is in charge of the registration and meeting arrangements. There will be no registration fee.

Mrs. Carroll Sturgis of Waco, president of the Beautify Texas Council, will speak on the statewide programs and awards sponsored annually by the Council. At the BTC Annual Meeting each June, six Texas cities are awarded first place honors as recipients of the "Governor's Community Achievement Awards." Special Youth Awards and awards to senior citizens (the "Status Citizen" Awards) are also given annually by the Council. Mrs. J.B. McCray, Panhandle, the District 4 Governor for the Council, will preside at the meeting.

Benny Childs of Freeport, an executive with DOW Chemical U.S.A. is the volunteer coordinator of the Beautify Texas Council's District Governors. Childs will be in attendance to describe district work of the organization, followed by a question and answer session. He will also show the film, "Clean Community System" describing this highly successful program for litter reduction in numerous towns. Another topic will be "What Litter Costs You," and this discussion will be led by a spokesman from the state highway department.

Others on the program will be BTC District Governor Wesley Polk of Paducah, as well as representatives of the Shamrock Brownie Troop, Amarillo Girl Scout Council and the City of Plainview. All have participated in the Council's various awards programs.

Towns and organizations in the area who have entered BTC programs will be explaining how they have accomplished community betterment and cleanup. Among those included are: Paducah, a first place winner in 1979; Plainview, a runner up in 1980; the Senior Citizens Friendship Club of Darrouzet; Brownie Troop 47 of Shamrock; and the Cactus Community 4-H Club.

The Beautify Texas Council is a private, nonprofit, public service organization dedicated to making Texas "the cleanest, most beautiful state in the nation." It is supported by individual dues and civic and corporate donations. Minimal staffing is provided by the Governor's Office for Volunteer Services.

Thousands of Texans and hundreds of Texas cities have participated in BTC cleanup programs—resulting in a cleaner Texas and increased civic pride. The concluding 45 minutes of the meeting will be taken up with the discussion, "How Can The BTC Work In My Community?"

For more information on the BTC meeting in Amarillo on Nov. 20, or on any future activities of the Beautify Texas Council, please contact Mrs. J.B. McCray, Box 321, Panhandle, Texas 79068 or BTC, P.O. Box 2251, Austin, Texas 78768.

Blackout

people, they could easily have killed themselves. Also, I think the vandals were unaware of how serious an offense they were committing. People using respirators or other emergency medical equipment could have been in jeopardy last night and there is a lot of liability there particularly if someone had died. The power outage meant a great deal of expense for several businesses where a lot of time must be spent in bringing equipment back on stream if power is off for more than a few minutes. SPS did not incur any significant losses from lost revenue for the 28 minutes the power was off, but it could mean a lot for many of our customers," said Waddell.

"I just don't think those responsible were aware of just how serious an offense they were committing," he emphasized. Police were investigating some possible leads in the incident today after examining footprints and tire tracks in the area last night and observing some blood on switch handles in the control house.

Those responsible for last night's vandalism of the SPS facilities here could face both federal and state felony charges due to laws concerning tampering with public utilities according to Sgt. Vernon Hope of the Hereford Police Department.

PUC Playing Unending Number Game With Consumer's Money as Stakes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Public Utilities Commission is playing a never-ending numbers game, with your money as the stakes.

Here is how the game is played: A major utility comes to the PUC pleading poverty and asking for a multi-million-dollar rate increase. The cities the utility serves then jump up and down and tell the PUC that the utility is doing quite well, and needs only a small increase. Then consumer groups have their turn and usually say the utility doesn't deserve any increase.

The three PUC commissioners serve as umpires. The utility sends in an expert with a bucket of impressive credentials who testifies that the proposed rates are fair.

Then the cities and consumer groups send in their experts, backed by equally impressive credentials, who testify that the rates are too high. The PUC has its own staff experts who seem to agree a little bit with all the other experts.

"It's just one expert disagreeing with another expert," said John Bell, who recently resigned as the PUC general counsel. "It's pure judgment."

"It's a question of reasonableness," said George Cowden, PUC chairman.

"Everyone has a different notion of handling these numbers, and how you manage them," said Jack Sopper, a utility consultant and PUC critic, who added the process involves a "wasteland of numbers."

One thing you can be sure of at a PUC rate hearing is that all sides — the utility company that says it needs more money, the cities that say the company doesn't need that much, and the consumers who say no increase is needed — will have an expert or two to back their arguments.

It was that way in the recent Texas Electric Service Co. case. TESCO, which serves 78 North, Central and West Texas cities, wanted $123 million in rate hikes. The cities said only $24 million more was needed. The PUC staff recommended a $69.4 million hike. Consumer groups fighting the increase intervened.

PUC granted a $69.4 million rate raise, about $3 million more than a hearing examiner recommended after listening to the experts testify.

What were the $69.4 million decisions made by the commission?

Everyone involved with the PUC agreed there are three major factors in setting rates: rate of return on equity, construction work in progress (CWIP) and "elasticity."

All are judgment calls. The rate of return involves keeping stockholders happy and attracting investment capital.

"The financial community tells us there should be a return on stockholders' money of 16.5 to 17.5 percent," said George Hedrick, TESCO's manager of public information.

The PUC granted a 15.5 percent rate of return.

"It's the most subjective part of a rate case and the part that brings the hottest issues," said Bell, now an Arlington attorney. "TESCO hires an economist who says the stock market is doing poorly and the company's stock is down. The cities say everybody's stock is down and TESCO really doesn't need that much."

How did the three commissioners decide on 15.5 percent?

"They believed our expert more than they believed TESCO's expert," said Bell. Cowden said it's not precisely that way.

"It's not a matter of which expert you believe, but of hearing all the experts and making a determination," he said. "We never have had a court say we granted an unreasonable rate of return."

Bell said the staff has a good record of getting its proposed rate of return approved by the commission.

"We've been winning the battle of return, but losing some of the accounting adjustments — the nickel and dime stuff, the $100,000 here and the million dollars there."

The battle of construction work in progress also brings out the experts.

Cowden said the PUC decides how much construction the ratepayers should cover. Texas' growth requires constant construction.

Critics say consumers should not pay for plants until they produce electricity.

TESCO, in a booklet explaining its rate hike request, said:

"By placing CWIP in a utility's rate base, customers are not paying for power plants they are not using. Customers are only paying the cost of money used during construction."

In its latest rate case, TESCO wanted 100 percent of its CWIP figured into the rate base because "this will allow us to hold down the cost of electricity for our customers by paying the cost of money used for new construction as it arises."

PUC did not buy that argument. It followed the hearing examiner's report and granted 50 percent of CWIP.

The third major factor, elasticity, assumes consumers use less electricity as the cost rises. Again, a judgment call.

Companies say they need higher rates to compensate for reduced power consumption — in other words, customers have to pay higher rates because they conserved power.

"In all honesty it's hard to say there is no elasticity. History has proven there is some," said Bell. "But how to quantify it, that seems to be the question."

Cowden, looking at his personal electric bill, also said there is elasticity, but it's hard to measure. Cowden's June bill was $239.16 for 4,160 kilowatt hours.

"I said to my wife and children, 'Dadguth it, we've got to cut down,'" he said.

The next bill showed a 1,000 kilowatt hour decrease — elasticity.

Rioting Grows Worse On West Bank Area

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinian demonstrators in Jerusalem stoned Israeli cars and soldiers today, and three colleges in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan were closed following a day of riots in which 10 Arabs were wounded, Israel Armed Forces Radio said.

Dozens of Palestinians blocked an Israeli car in Jerusalem and started to heave it over on its side, but troops arrived and rescued the passengers. Meanwhile, Arabs schools in north Jerusalem were shut as students milled about in the courtyards.

Students at Al-Najar University in Nablus, in the West Bank, declared a strike to protest Israel's suppression of two demonstrations Tuesday, a military spokesman said.

After repeated warnings and "danger to the lives of the soldiers," troops fired Tuesday on students in Ramallah and Bethlehem who were stoning Israeli cars, the spokesman said.

Bethlehem University, near the site of one of Tuesday's demonstrations, was closed by order of the university president.

A government closure order against Bir Zeit University, on the West Bank, has been in force since Sunday because of Palestinian agitation there.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin cut his U.S. visit short today and hurried home to face a confidence vote and the worst outbreak of violence in the occupied West Bank in five months.

Both Begin's conservative coalition and the opposition Labor Party predicted he would narrowly beat back the parliamentary resolution of no confidence, introduced in the wake of October's 11 percent rise in the consumer price index and forecasts of a 200 percent inflation rate next year. The current annual rate is about 130 percent.

Begin, who has survived several confidence votes in the Knesset, Israel's 120-member parliament, left the United States a day ahead of schedule after telling a meeting of the United Jewish Appeal in New York: "Israel is strong. We are also the most stable ally of the free world (in the Middle East) because of the inherent stability of (our) democracy."

Begin's Likud Party predicted the no-confidence resolution would lose by 10 votes. But former Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said he might vote against the government, which would probably result in his expulsion from the party. And Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz may quit the Cabinet because his tough monetary measures have failed to curb inflation. It would be the fourth Cabinet walkout in less than a year.

Plasma Buying Booms on Border

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Ricardo Torres Martin has puncture scars on the inside of his right arm that could be mistaken for the "tracks" of a heroin addict. Actually, the marks were left by what some call "border draculas."

The marks on the teenager's arm are not from injecting any drug. They are from needles that were used to remove his blood in exchange for cash.

Martin, 16, of Delicias, Mexico, said he has sold his plasma four times for $10 a pint to El Paso Plasma Corp. clinic located about five blocks from the international border here. He said he needed the money to live.

Critics of the plasma collection centers concentrated along the Texas-Mexico border say Martin and countless other Mexican aliens who sell their plasma are being victimized by "border draculas" that prey upon the poor. Some doctors say the clinics increase the risk of hepatitis.

Many directors of the plasma centers admit they deal with Mexican aliens, but they say their clients provide life-saving fluids without causing harm to anyone.

"Does anyone ever ask where the serum come from when their sons needs a gamma globulin or a shot for tetanus, mumps or rabies?" asked John Coffey, director of the Laredo Plasma Donor Center, Inc.

Coffey's clinic in Laredo is one of at least 13 plasma collection centers thriving in four Texas cities along the Rio Grande. One El Paso clinic reported taking plasma from 1,500 to 2,000 donors a month.

They are different from blood banks in that the plasma clinics filter out and return to the donor all red blood cells, keeping only the hazy, off-white fluid — plasma — that makes up slightly more than half of human blood. Doctors say it is safe to give a pint of plasma every 72 hours.

The centers make no apologies for recruiting Mexicans — the clinics advertise in English and Spanish. Most pay bonuses for repeat donors and reward those who bring friends willing to sell their plasma.

"It is not our problem what their nationality or legal status in this country is," said Rebecca Ramirez, director of one of three clinics operated by the El Paso Plasma Corp. The centers have been frequent targets of U.S. immigration officers searching for illegal aliens.

"At times we would get large numbers of aliens out of there," said Assistant Border Patrol Chief Michael Williams. "Sometimes we've gotten 25 or 30 at a time."

Bride Honored At Linen Shower

Mrs. Don Bruessel, the former Miss Vicki Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Russell of Hereford, was honored with a linen shower recently at the Country Club.

Receiving guests with the honoree were Mrs. W.C. Russell and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Iva Russell of Borger.

Miss Elise McDowell secured names at the registry table draped in a white linen cloth. A floral arrangement in shades of burgundy, which carried out the theme of the brides wedding colors, centered the table.

In a mirrored background, Mrs. Becky Day of San Angelo, served banana nut bread with orange cream cheese, assorted fruits and sausage balls along with coffee and Mimosas from a table appointed with silver and draped with a layer of champagne satin.

In the center of the table was a silk floral arrangement in shades of pink.

Hostesses for the post nuptial courtesy were Wanda Payne, Nelda Lowder, Jan Garrett, Kathy Allison, Gloria Easley, Joan Hopper, Helen Ann McWhorter, Pat Tubb of Levelland and Vicki Green of Amarillo.

Additional out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Ray Godwin of Amarillo.

The couple were married in Joliet, L.L. Saturday, Nov. 8.

Receiving Guests

During a linen shower held recently at the Country Club for Mrs. Don Bruessel, the former Miss Vicki Russell, guests were greeted at the entry way by (from left) the honoree, the honoree's grandmother, Mrs. Iva Russell of Borger, and the honoree's mother, Mrs. W.C. Russell of Hereford. The honoree was married in Joliet, Ill. Saturday, Nov. 8.

Manning Publishes New Book

Unresolved grief can be a devastating experience, claims Doug Manning, pastor of First Baptist Church of Hereford.

In his new book, "Don't Take My Grief Away From Me," Manning says grief has led to many of our social problems because people don't know how to handle the grief experience. His motivation for the book came from a series of grief seminars where people in grief share their experiences.

"When troubled lives are explored, it seems they can be traced back to grief or trauma which was not dealt with and, therefore, not resolved. The book is an honest attempt to define the experience and the process of grief recovery," says Manning.

Manning feels it may be more important for those not in grief to understand the process of grief recovery than those who are in grief. "The major help in healing must come from friends, and the major hindrance can also come from friends," Manning points out.

"Social pressures force many people in grief to act well before they are well," explains Manning. "No one has defined widowhood. How long is she to grieve? How long before she resumes a normal social life?"

"The widow feels a double bind. If she grieves too long, she is weak; if she does not grieve long enough, she didn't love her husband. No ground rules have been provided and the widow is left in the dark."

"A teenager suffers the loss of a parent; proper grief help is not given. As an adult, the person can fear closeness and intimacy. The fear comes from the pain of losing someone close, and the feeling is: Don't get close, the pain of loss is hard to bear."

Since he is a pastor, Manning says some problems have surfaced from his book. "People expect a religious document, and they want to know why it is not more religious."

"I think the book is religious. It is not religious because of its content, nor does it sound highly religious. Maybe it's religious because it tries to help people and, to me, that's the most religious act we can do."

When asked about his book, Manning said: "I don't think this book is the last word in the field. I hope it is followed by many books much better."

Manning has lectured on college campuses in all parts of the nation and is also a popular banquet speaker. Many Hereford citizens know as an emcee of the Chamber Fun Breakfast meeting.

His newspaper column, "The Penultimate Word," appears each Sunday in The Brand and it is widely reprinted in West Texas newspapers.

The book is now available at most book stores, card shops, and is given to families by several funeral homes.

Benefit Bake Sale Set

The Women's Organization and Catholic Youth Organization of San Jose Catholic Church will sponsor a bake sale to benefit the Meals on Wheels program.

The sale at Sugarland mall will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m.

The Meals on Wheels provides meals for disabled or elderly citizens who are not able to provide for themselves.

The Newspaper Bible

JESUS LOVES BAD PEOPLE TOO!

Then Jesus went out to the seashore again, and preached to the crowds that gathered around Him.

As He was walking up the beach He saw Levi, the son of Alphaeus, sitting at his tax collection booth. "Come with Me," Jesus told him. "Come be My disciple." And Levi jumped to his feet and went along.

That night Levi invited his fellow tax collectors and many other notorious sinners to be his dinner guests so that they could meet Jesus and His disciples. (There were many men of this type among the crowds that followed Him.)

But when some of the Jewish Religious leaders saw Him eating with these men of ill repute, they said to His disciples, "How can he stand it, to eat with such scum?"

When Jesus heard what they were saying, He told them, "Sick people need the doctor, not the healthy ones! I haven't come to tell good people to repent, but the bad ones."

Applications Available For WTSU Scholarships

CANYON - Applications are available for three scholarships each of $150 which will be awarded through the West Texas State University Office of Programs for Women.

To be eligible for the Women's Program Graduate Scholarship, WTSU students must have met Graduate School entrance requirements, be enrolled in six hours of graduate work and be a member of Women Involved in New Goals (WINGS). Each woman student at WTSU who is 23 years of age or older is a member of WINGS.

Jane Kerr, director of the Office of Programs for Women, said a committee will select three recipients on the basis of academic achievement and effort, interests and special needs.

Deadline for returning the applications is Friday, Dec. 12. Applications are available in the Women's Center in the Student Union Building and the office of the Graduate School dean located in the Administration Building.

The scholarships will be awarded for the spring semester.

Are Recent Decisions Well Advised?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In your opinion, are these recent business decisions well advised?

—Beset by foreign competition, poor sales and enormous losses, the domestic automotive industry has decided it needs higher prices for its new, more fuel-efficient cars.

Though costing more, some of the new cars will be less fuel-efficient than some of the imported vehicles. They are less of a known quality than some of the imports, which now have established reputations.

The price increases come during one of the weakest recent recoveries from recession, when lenders and individuals seem more interested in correcting their finances than in expanding their responsibilities.

Moreover, and to the surprise of Detroit automakers, the International Trade Commission has declined to curb automobile imports from Japan.

Can Detroit make its price increases stick?

—Confronted with what appears to be almost constant inflation, the home-lending industry has concluded it will retire from the business of granting long-term, fixed-rate mortgage loans.

Simplified, this is its explanation: We cannot continue to lend money far into the future at what might turn out to be relatively low rates, while spending more than that to obtain the funds to lend.

Almost no one disputes the argument, nor do they blame lenders for switching to the rollover mortgage, a loan written for a 20-year or 25-year period — even more — but with interest charges adjusted for the rate of inflation each year. The procedure protects the lender.

Question: What will protect the borrower? If interest rates rise faster than the borrower's wages, for example, will the borrower be able to continue meeting payments?

If not, and assuming the lender doesn't desire to keep extending the length of the mortgage, what option is available other than to repossess the house, something in which no lender likes to be involved?

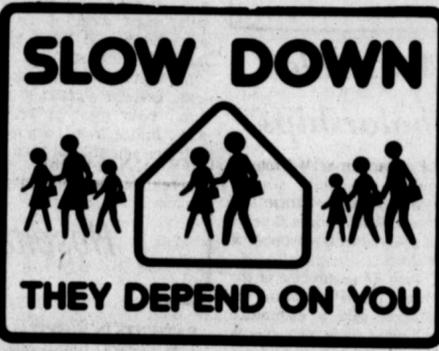

—In an effort to overcome the energy shortage, the federal government is actively working toward development of a new industry — ethanol alcohol. Ethanol is a vital ingredient in the mixture called gasohol.

The chief source of ethanol is corn, a crop for which the United States is famous, since it produces and exports more at less cost than any other nation.

Ethanol, though, represents a relatively new demand for corn, and if plans by government and industry plans are carried out it will mean a tremendous new market for the crop. What will happen to prices?

Business Week magazine suggests the possibility it will spark a corn price explosion because demand for corn is already high, because of the export demand and the developing demand for corn as a sweetener.

If the price explosion happens, you can expect the shock to be felt round the world, because that corn for cars, you certainly will recognize, is the very same corn we have customarily used as food.

Honorary CowBelle Awards Presented

Clint Formby and Speedy Nieman were presented with Honorary CowBelle awards for 1980 when the Hereford CowBelles held a regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the country club. Guest speaker for the event was Dr. Richard Donnell, executive director of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. Karen Page, president, and Nancy Josserand, hung cow bells around the necks of Formby and Nieman to signify their selection as Honorary CowBelles. Formby and Nieman, owner-managers of KPAN Radio and The Hereford Brand, respectively, were cited for their support of the CowBelle organization.

Donnell then discussed the basic steps in the Texas legislative process, distributing sheets to the CowBelles and their guests. He explained the committee process in bringing legislation to a vote and advised organizations such as the CowBelles to "keep track of the proposed legislation affecting the industry and know the committee members to contact."

As a lobbyist for the TCFA, Donnell said he concentrates on becoming acquainted with 9 or 10 state senators and about 20 House members. "You must gain their respect so that they call you for input on certain legislation."

Donnell was introduced by Charmaine Klett. The club also heard minutes of the last meeting and a financial report.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

Since it was mentioned in a really well-read Brand column last week, lots of people knew this column was missing because I had eye surgery.

So many people have asked about my welfare and wished me well in various ways, that I'm quite overwhelmed and very grateful.

One of the compensations of any sort of illness is being able to tell afterward how critical your condition was, and how much you suffered, and how much worse your case was than any the doctor had ever seen.

Anyone who doesn't want to hear about my operation may as well turn this page quick because I'm going to talk about it, and it won't be too exciting because it wasn't the worst, longest or most unusual on record.

So many people have eye surgery now and the techniques have been so refined that it's considered not much more serious than having an ingrown toenail removed.

You hear tales all time about somebody's Aunt Clementine who had a lens implant one morning, then went out to lunch with friends and to the dress shop's annual clearance sale afterward.

Nevertheless, just the thought of having someone, albeit an expert, tinker with your own eye is a little unnerving. I wasn't really worried, but couldn't believe that I wouldn't experience any discomfort.

The fact that I didn't, must be credited to the surgeon and his team but the anesthetists are due some mention too. It's great that these days they give you a shot in your hospital room and when you start to the surgery you are feeling so comfortable that you don't really care what's done to you.

The only pain I felt in surgery was the needle for the local anesthetic, and since I have no needle phobia that was minor. I might mention in passing that the only soreness I've felt since then, is where the needle went in and I have to hunt for that sore spot.

During the actual surgery I didn't feel or see anything, but could hear a few remarks, sort of floating over my head. The only time I paid any attention was when the surgeon said "Now give me that one; no, the other one" and I wondered, The other what?

But it didn't really matter, and I suppose it would have been the same if he'd said, "Where did you put her eyeball?"

You see how simple it all was—for me, not for the people who did the work. I've felt fine since I got home the day after the surgery, but haven't got around to look for any lively content for this column because my new eye doesn't quite synchronize with the other.

I don't exactly see double but a little blurry so I have to move very carefully, like the tipsy comic in the old movie comedies. That sort of slows one down.

Ann Landers

Clinging to Hope

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there any truth to the rumor that doctors have come up with a transplant for men who are impotent because of the side effects of medication for diabetes and high blood pressure — or the results of prostate surgery?

There are a lot of us who would give anything if we could enjoy life again — to the full. Please, Ann, ask around and give us the word.—Clinging To Hope In Kansas

DEAR CLING: What you heard is talk of an IMPLANT — not transplant. And I have good news for you: It's not a rumor—it's a fact.

A device called the inflatable prosthesis is implanted in the male patient—permanently. It acts as a hydraulic system and has proven highly satisfactory in rearing erections in men who were unable to have an erection for months and even years.

Dr. F. Brantley Scott, professor of urology, Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, who developed the prosthesis, has successfully implanted thousands. Ditto the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and Dr. Joseph J. Kaufman, UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles. This operation is now being performed in over 100 medical centers in the U.S.

Candidates must be evaluated. Not everyone qualifies. Anyone who is interested can write to Graeme Thickens, 3312 Gorham Ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 55426. You will be informed of the nearest hospital that does this procedure.

Those of you who have "The Ann Landers Encyclopedia" can turn to page 623 and read about it in detail. Dr. F. Brantley Scott wrote the piece.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This may not be worthy of your column, but I think there's a subtle message here that might be useful.

My neighbor is a fine young man. He returned yesterday from a day of fishing. His eight-year-old son was standing beside me as I looked admiringly at his father's catch.

I asked my neighbor if Johnny was with him. "No," he replied, "Johnny is too much trouble to take along."

I looked in awe at his lovely string of trout and said, "You are either an expert or awfully lucky!"

My neighbor replied, "It's more than luck. When I was a little tyke my father took me fishing every time he went. He taught me everything I know — and I guess it helps to be taught by someone as good as he was." End of story. —Oak Harbor, Wash.

DEAR OAK: Some people don't listen to themselves, do they? Well, maybe if he sees it in print he'll get the message.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were right when you said the mother who ran into those porno pictures under her son's mattress had no right to tear them up.

That letter reminded me of the time I was asked by a 15-year-old what to do about the pictures she found of her stepmother. They were pure porno taken by her father.

I suggested she say nothing about finding them: just put the darned things in a plain envelope — no return address — and let her wonder where they had been.

She took my advice, and not a peep was heard from anybody after that. Nobody was talking.—LA Herald-Examiner Admirer

DEAR AD: Of course not. What's to say?

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex—Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

HHS Cagers Drop Season Opener

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

Like the power failure which cast Hereford and three other counties into complete darkness, so too, did the guiding light fade for the Hereford Whiteface varsity basketball team here Tuesday night after the club shorted out in its season opener to the Amarillo High Sandies 64-39.

The HHS power outage didn't occur until early in second quarter play (both teams had seen no more than a meager two point difference in scoring up to that point), but the Sandies turned a 16-14 first quarter advantage into an overloaded 33-19 gap before halftime interrupted the massive scoring spree.

"I think the main reason we got hurt tonight, wasn't the fact that we didn't play, but rather that we were just too tired early to run our type of game," said a disappointed Dan Gilison at the conclusion of the season opener. "Our kids were giving a good effort, but with the fast breakaway game we're trying to run this year, some of them got too tired to make it work effectively."

pretty well, but when we got tired we started making some stupid mistakes.

"All of that will come around with time though. We're still trying to learn how to use this new attack, and we're just not conditioned for it yet."

The Whitefaces, alter-

ly grew under the Hereford dry spell. At the conclusion of the onslaught, Hereford faced a 14 point deficit and could do little better than slice that to a 12 point disadvantage through the remainder of the clash.

"It was just a combination of a lot of things," Gilison said. "I thought we did fairly well on defense considering we got some kids that have just come out of the football program, and to a certain extent we accomplished some things on offense, but our conditioning hurt every good thing we did."

"I believe we'll look better when we get shaped up and learn a little more about how our offensive game works - it just takes some time to start something new."

The Whitefaces, now 0-1, are scheduled to host the Palo Duro Dons at the La Plata Gymnasium Friday at 7:45 p.m. in continuing efforts of the new season.

"We really never executed our offensive game to its full potential all night long because of that lack of stamina, even though our first half performance wasn't all that bad," he said. "It's pretty simple - when we were playing fresh we were doing nating a cast of players intermittently throughout the whole affair in an attempt to see which combination - height or quickness - worked the best, held the upper hand in the tilt three separate times during the first period.

Senior guard Gary Parman (HHS's only player to surpass the single digit range with a tally of 10 for the night) pumped in a couple of back-to-back 20 footers in the early going to give Hereford an 8-6 lead over the Sandies, and then Mike Fraser and Chris Schumacher dumped in a couple of their own to keep Hereford's claim of dominance at 12-10 over Amarillo.

With the exception of a quick layup by Mike Fraser, a long Alan Wartes baseline shot and the front end of a free throw attempt by Don Delozier, the Sandies went unanswered the second period.

Simms Lions Set Turkey Shoot

The Simms Lions Club will conduct a turkey shoot Saturday, Nov. 22, beginning at 12 noon at the Simms Community Building.

The location may be found by traveling 15 miles north of Hereford, then 15 miles west on FM 1412.

A turkey will be awarded to the winner of each five-shot round of competition.

Fees for the shoot will be $3 per round.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Simms Lions Club for civic projects.

Breakaway Layup

Whiteface cager Gary Parman (24) goes up for a fast break layup midway into the third quarter of Hereford's season opening clash with the amarill High Sandies here Tuesday night. Parman, a returning veteran off last year's 14-15 HHS crew, dumped in a tally of 10 points to lead all other

Hereford scorers, but the leading role wasn't enough to carry the Whitefaces through their first performance of the year as Amarillo rolled to a winning 64-39 decision. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

In 56-49 Decision

Amarillo Clips Hereford JV

The HHS boy's junior varsity cage team stumbled and lost its first decision of the year to Amarillo here Tuesday by a margin of 56-49.

The squad, basically composed of football players coming off the brief conclusion of grid warfare, fell behind early in the contest as Amarillo High took an eight point 16-8 advantage at the end of first quarter play.

But the competitive crew, led by high point men Mike Hill and Matt Collier with nine points in addition to Grady Brown and Mike Masson's seven on the evening, bounced back to within seven points of the Sandies at halftime 29-22.

Amarillo never relinquished its advantage of the contest however, as the team outscored Hereford 16-10 in third quarter play and eventually nailed the lid shut with a 17-11 onslaught in the final period.

"I thought we did pretty good generally considering we have so many on our team that just came out of football," said coach Bobby Lantelme. "It's hard on them to come straight out of football and reorient themselves for a completely different game. We only had three days to prepare before this game last night, but with time we'll come along because we've got some competitors."

Not when you deal with an Independent Insurance Agent.

When you buy insurance from an agent who works directly for one insurance company, he's probably not the person you talk to when you have a claim. Most one-company agents have nothing to do with the claims process. So if you have a claim, it's between you and the adjuster.

Your Independent Insurance Agent doesn't do business that way. He's right there ready to serve you when you have a claim... helping you reach a fair settlement as quickly as possible.

Rebound Hunting

Former football offensive end standout, Don Delozier grapples with Amarillo High cage defenders Jon Shelburne (41) and Kevin Calvin (23) very much like he did two weeks ago in grid secondaries as he awaiting a rebound of the board here Tuesday night in the HHS team's season debut against the Sandies. Delozier netted a total of seven points in Hereford's losing effort on the night. The Whitefaces are scheduled to pair off against the Palo Duro Dons here Friday night at 7:45 p.m. in continuing basketball play. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Set Season Mark at 1-1 With Loss

Whiteface Girls Lose 1st Battle

The only disappointment harbored by girl's varsity coach Larry Sowers after his previously 1-0 squad dropped its first battle of the season 82-53 to the hosting Amarillo High Sandies Tuesday night, was the mere fact that the team lost.

Gosh, things were so simple when you just considered all the facts.

"I wasn't disappointed with the way we played at all," said Sowers. "We didn't play bad at all from an overall standpoint, but I hated to lose the game."

Sowers and his crew had tied their first victory knot for the keeping Saturday night, after dumping the Pampa Harvesters 96-54 on the 'Mean Green's' home turf, but the shooting fest enjoyed on that occasion didn't pan out against the Sandies.

"For one thing, we didn't have one of our regular starters Terry Harkins in there playing for us due to illness incurred earlier this week. That hurt us a bit because we had to shuffle around our roster, but the main thing that stopped our momentum was the inability to hit the bucket like we did against Pampa. We just didn't shoot too well," he said.

"That part of it (the game) I'm not too happy with, but like I said, we really didn't look that bad. "I had mentioned earlier that I felt like we needed to play the good teams in order to learn how to compete with them - even if it meant dropping a few game down the line. I think we played a good team last night and we stayed in the game with them pretty well considering the roster change."

The Whitefaces, under the direction of Louise Mays who hit 20 points to lead all scorers along with tallies of 11 and 10 from teammates Cathy Lane and Lori Albracht, were only able to squeeze a shooting percentage of 30 out of the affair while Amarillo countered with a better showing of 46 percent on the night.

"Even though we had our troubles in the shooting bracket we still were able to function as a cohesive unit - that impressed me," Sowers said. "We had some girls come in and really give us some help when we altered the roster and positions around. Joyce High filled in for Harkins and she had some big shoes to fill. She had to come in for virtually the whole game, and she did a very good job of handling that position which was more-or-less thrust on her suddenly."

"Basically, to sum it all up, we played against a team that pressed us hard and we kept our heads in the game. I think we turned the ball over only 16 times, and that's considerably less than we did against Pampa which wasn't really the same caliber as Amarillo. That shows improvement, and I was pleased in that respect, he said.

The HHS girl's team will try to advance its currently 1-1 slate Friday as the squad travels to meet the Caprock Longhorns in a match set for 7:45.

The girls junior varsity team, also 1-1 after clipping Pampa 46-30 and afterwards slipping with a 36-30 loss to Amarillo Tuesday night, will meet Caprock at 5:45.

April Melugin, the junior varsity squad's high point player during the conflict with Pampa this past weekend with a tally of 11, also creased the limelight with her efforts against Amarillo after she drilled in eight total points in the affair to lead all HHS scorers. Sherri Ellis followed her sum with a total of seven as one of the top two Hereford scoring threats.

4-H Turkey Shoot Set

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Shooting Sports Club will hold a turkey shoot Sunday, Nov. 23 beginning at 1 p.m. at the Hereford Gun Club, located east of the Hereford Airport.

Practice rounds priced at $2 will get underway at 1 p.m. Competitive rounds will be priced at $3 for five shots and the winner of each round of competition will be awarded a turkey as a prize.

Proceeds from the shoot will help the newly-formed shooting sports club to finance initial activities in fielding teams in both rifle and shotgun marksmanship.

Elston to Start for Cougars

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston quarterback Terry Elston will put in an early appearance against Texas Tech in Saturday's Southwest Conference game. Earlier, at least, than last year, when Elston came off the bench to rally the Cougars to a 14-10 victory over the Red Raiders.

Elston, out for five games this season with a wrist injury, has been named to start for the Cougars when the two teams meet in Lubbock Saturday.

Elston was injured Sept. 27 against North Texas State and had not played until Nov. 8 when he came on in the fourth quarter in a 15-13 loss to Texas.

The Cougars were trailing the Longhorns 15-7 and Elston drove the Cougars 62 yards in five plays against for the final score of the game but Terald Clark dropped a pass for the two point conversion that would have given UH a tie. Elston ran 72 yards for a fourth quarter touchdown against Tech in last year's game in the Astrodome.

Sophomore Brent Chinn, who guided the Cougars to victories over Texas A&M, Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Texas Christian prior to the Texas loss, will play a backup role to Elston.

Freshman Lionel Wilson, pressed into duty earlier this season when Chinn was hurt, will be the second backup for Houston. Freshman quarterback Audrey McMillian of Carthage is out for the season with a shoulder injury.

Houston, which lost its bid to win its fourth SWC title in five seasons, will play in the Garden State Bowl at East Rutherford, N.J. on Dec. 14 against Navy.

It will be the 10th bowl appearance for the Cougars, who have represented the Southwest Conference in the Cotton Bowl three of the past four years.

Houston Rockets Trounce Super Sonics

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rocket Coach Del Harris, whose National Basketball Association club has struggled through a disappointing start, sounded more hopeful following his team's 138-118 win over the Seattle SuperSonics.

"We played with a lot of intensity tonight," Harris said while savoring Tuesday night's win. "We had a few defensive lapses during the game, but anytime you win by 20 points, you must be doing something right."

The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for Houston and upped its record to 7-9 in the Midwest Division. Moses Malone scored 33 points and pulled down 19 rebounds to lead the Rockets. Robert Reid added 24 to the Houston attack and Calvin Murphy came off the bench to net 20.

Reid hoped his 15-point performance in the first quarter would make opposing guards a bit more respectful.

"The word is out that Robert Reid can't shoot from out front," he said. "They gave me that shot in the first quarter and I took it."

Murphy said his Rocket teammates were responsible for his hot night on the court.

"I'm a professional player. When the coach tells me that he wants instant offense, that is what I give him," Murphy said. "But the key to it is that the guys are getting the ball to me when I am open."

Rudy Tomjanovich, who scored 25 for Houston and became the 47th player in NBA history to total 13,000 points, said the Rocket offense came together Tuesday.

"We moved the ball the way you are supposed to," Tomjanovich said. "We were consistently finding the open man."

The Rockets hit 56 percent from the field in the first half to build a 68-51 lead and Seattle could come no closer than 12 points in the second half.

The SuperSonics, who fell to 9-11 in the Pacific Division, were led by Vinnie Johnson's 28 points. Jack Sikma added 20 points for the SuperSonics and teammate John Johnson tossed in 18.

Easter Lions Club To Hold Turkey Shoot

Texas Boot Business Booming in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Texans aren't the only ones who swear by their Justins, their Noconas and their Tony Lamas. Two transplanted Dallasites have found the boot business booming deep in the heart of Manhattan.
Robin Steakley and Al Martinez headed East with the idea that New Yorkers, although probably not yet ready for the flash of Cutter Bill's, might be hankering for a new look on their feet.
The boot store carries only Texas-made brands.
The Texans admit to having learned all they know about boots only since they decided to set up shop in New York, but they have used their Texas heritage to advantage in advertising and publicity.
"We became boot experts real fast," Steakley said. "The media took an immediate liking to the store, because we were sort of different from the average New York businessman."
Martinez said he designed the store to avoid the western cliches that were at the time becoming almost commonplace in New York.
"I'd gone to Saks and Bloomingdales and all of the department stores. They were still treating it as a costume," he said. "The boots themselves are western, so why not put them in a backdrop that was plain?"

The boots are the show in To Boot, a wall of them stretching from floor to ceiling.
The store opened in January 1979, and Steakley said in the first year the take exceeded $1 million.
Clothes To Boot opened late this summer.
Retailing is a new experience for both partners. Steakley said they had been tossing around the idea of moving to New York for some months before coming up with the idea of a boot store.
"We were sort of antsy to make a move," he said. "If you're going to be alive in the United States, you might as well live in New York."
Steakley said it's the challenge of it that's exciting, a feeling that a business that works in New York could be successful anywhere.
"To be successful in New York, you have to be the best at whatever you're doing," he said.
Some of the boots were designed by Martinez, including a model for men expressly made to meet the conservative demands of Wall Street. The fancy styling is at the top of the boot so it can be hidden by trousers.
The merchandise carried in Clothes To Boot also is intended to take care of New Yorkers' needs, not transplant Texas.
Looking ahead to a long New York winter, for example, sweaters take up far more space than they would in a store in Texas.
Steakley said the ratio of eastern to western wear in the clothing store is now 70-30, but the western items have had enough success for them to plan to increase the share to 50-50.
The owners admit that "Texas chic" as evidenced by hit movies and television series has played a part in their success, but they deny it is on the downturn.
"There were people who were predicting that last year, that Texas chic was on its way out," Steakley said.
He added that those people were proven wrong.
The owners keep a handwritten list on a yellow pad of their celebrity customers, and it includes Mia Farrow, Mick Jagger, John Lennon and Yoko Ono, Diane Keaton, Arthur Miller and the entire Isley Brothers soul group.
Steakley claimed the business' main problem so far has been that demand nationwide for Texas-made boots is outstripping the supply by far.
"We're down to the nubbins now," he said about To Boot's inventory. "We're literally turning people away."

Gold May Be Hedge Against Inflation

DALLAS (AP) — Want a hedge against inflation? Gold dealer Otto E. Roethenmund suggests that Americans take a cue from the Arabs.
Thousands of Arabs line up daily to buy gold as a hedge against a 20 percent annual inflation rate, says Roethenmund, a precious metals dealer who recently returned from a trip to Saudi Arabia.
"The bulk of their savings goes into small gold bars or 18 karat jewelry sold by weight," said Roethenmund, president of Deak-Perera, said to be the oldest and largest foreign currency exchange and precious metals dealer in the United States.
Here to open Deak-Perera's second currency exchange and precious metals office in Dallas, Roethenmund predicted an ounce of gold will eventually cost "thousands" of dollars, with silver following at a ratio of about 20 to one.
Roethenmund promotes gold and silver like a realtor promotes condominiums and second liens. He points to the Middle East as proof that the precious metals boom has begun among small investors.
Inflation is rampant in Saudi Arabia, he said, adding that a haircut in Dhahran costs $33.
So to protect their savings, Roethenmund said, Saudis — especially women — are buying gold daily.
"The Moslem religion allows a man to have four wives, and he can divorce one

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

You're an individual

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 4 feet 11 and have to lose weight because of high blood pressure and sugar in my blood. I'm on the borderline. My husband said I was too skinny when I got down to 104 pounds but my doctor wants me to stay around there. I got up to 106 one time and he said he wouldn't bawl me out but to watch my diet.
I go every three months for a blood sugar check and I don't think I'm skinny at that weight because I am so short.
Then I read this article in the paper that I'm sending you which said that being chubby might be healthier than being thin. It quotes the new statistics that show that people who are a little heavier than we skinny people tend to live longer. Now what I want to know is who is right — my doctor or this information that shows that being a little overweight doesn't matter?
DEAR READER — You're caught up in the human tendency to take one single observation and then extend it to encompass everybody and everything. One of my mottos is "individualize, don't generalize." Many people have very good health reasons to be skinny and from the sound of your letter you're probably one of them.
The reason, from a medical point of view, to recommend that people stay thin or lose weight is to help them lower their blood pressure when it's elevated or to help them lower their blood sugar (glucose) when it's elevated. Or as a measure to correct abnormally high levels of blood cholesterol and other blood fats.
If a person were perfect in all these regards and had no other medical problems that were adversely affected by body weight, then it wouldn't be so important.
The study you're quoting refers to a general population. Many of these people have relatively normal blood pressures, blood fat and cholesterol levels. In their case, being moderately overweight didn't make any difference. But they're normal people who have no medical reasons to limit their body fat.
As you can see from The Health Letter number 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, which I'm sending you, there are optimal levels for blood pressure. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It's probably important to you to get your pressure to more optimal levels and control of body weight is one of the biggest aids you have.
Now if your blood pressure goes down and stays down and your blood glucose goes down and stays down to nice optimal levels and gaining weight doesn't affect these in any way, then it would be another matter. But you'll have to determine that on the basis of the tests that your doctor is doing for you as part of your follow-up program. I'd like to add one other comment for other readers. Don't read an article in the paper that talks about group studies and decide that it applies to you. Everyone is an individual and their medical problems are individual matters. Do what's best for you as an individual.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do people who have large breasts and have surgery done on them get cancer from those operations? I was always flat until I had surgery. The doctors gave me estrogen and I came the big bust and out came the big rear. Since I didn't have these when I was younger, I don't need this now. It's hard getting clothes that fit. The doctors tell me I eat a lot, but I don't eat as much now as before. Why don't they admit it is their doing. I'm 5 feet 4, 57 years old and disgusted. My husband may like a big bust but he can have Dolly Parton.
HELLO DOLLY — If your secret gets out there is going to be a mighty rush of women to your doctors' offices.

I presume you have had a hysterectomy and your ovaries removed and that's why you are taking estrogen. The surgery you have had will NOT cause cancer. Incidentally, surgery neither causes cancer nor causes a cancer to spread.
Sometimes estrogen will cause a woman's breasts to enlarge. That is particularly true if she has been low on estrogen to start with. It is the estrogen that causes budding when a girl starts developing. A woman with small breasts who already has enough estrogen cannot expect estrogen to cause further enlargement. Fluid retention from estrogen will also enlarge the breasts.
You should have your breasts checked regularly and if you should develop any lumps or cysts your doctors may wish to discontinue your estrogen treatment.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Musty braided rug

POLLY'S PROBLEM
DEAR POLLY — Please tell me how to get the musty smell out of a heavy braided rug that could be wool. — MRS. R.B.
DEAR MRS. R.B. — You might try putting your rug in a tightly closed drawer or carton that is filled with lots of crushed newspaper. Do protect the rug from the newspaper. It may be necessary to put in fresh paper and repeat if odor has not gone in a couple of weeks. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Sandi that I clean my artificial flowers by soaking them for five minutes in a basin of water and a cap full of that cold water liquid suggested for delicate fabrics. Even flowers that had been used at the cemetery came out like new. Let them air dry and the colors sparkle like new. — PATRICIA
DEAR READERS — We are presuming that Patricia's flowers are plastic. — POLLY
DEAR POLLY — To avoid duplication of a lot of spices in my cupboard I listed them alphabetically so I know what I have on hand and then attached this sheet to the cupboard door. I write on each container the date of purchase so I know when they should be thrown out and replaced. It is the same idea many use in stocking the freezer and this list can be kept up to date in the same manner. — MRS. G.B.J.
DEAR POLLY — I made some very pretty and sturdy napkin rings by cutting off the plastic ends of gallon milk containers. Use a sharp knife to cut off the entire end and then trim if need be. I wrapped them with yarn to match the rest of my table setting.
(Polly's Note — A heavy cardboard mailing tube can also be cut into pieces the desired length and wound with yarn to make napkin rings.)
I use coupons every time I shop and to make it easier to find the needed ones quickly I separate the coupons into categories and put them in the pockets of a plastic photo sheet (the kind used for refills for photo albums). — TERI

The Texas Wheat Producers Board and Producers Association will hold its 30th

Income Tax Program

Set at Vega

The Oldham County Extension office is sponsoring a program on management of income taxes.

The program is to be held Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Oldham County Barn in Vega.

Included in the program will be details on new changes in income tax laws.

Dr. Ray Sammons, area Extension economist-management specialist will present the program.

"If you're looking for a good buy on homeowners insurance... and great service too... see me." Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Jerry Shipman
103 Ave. C 384-3161

annual Meeting Thursday at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo.

Registration will get underway at 8:30 a.m. with the program set to start at 9:30.

Leo Witkowski of Hereford, chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers board, will chair the morning session which will begin with a presentation by the Texas Department of Agriculture on "Producer Boards At Work."

Frank Hemmen, general manager of Cargill, Inc. will speak on economic functions in the grain industry and marketing and handling commodities for export at 9:45.

At 10:30 W.H. Holland, vice president, rail traffic, Producers Grain Corp. of Amarillo will speak on wheat movements under new federal rail regulations.

"World Wheat Markets Today and Tomorrow" will be the topic for an address at 11:15 by Fred Schneider, assistant to the president, U.S. Wheat Associates, Washington D.C.

A buffet luncheon will be held at the motel's garden terrace.

Otis Harman of Tulsa, president of the Texas Wheat Producers Association will be the chairman for the afternoon session.

Jack Felgenhauer, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, Spokane, Washington will lead off the afternoon session at 1 p.m. as he speaks on accomplishments of the national association and challenges it faces in 1981.

The business meeting of the TWPA will begin at 2 p.m. and will include a report from resolutions committee chairman Wiley Tabor of Quanah.

Nominating committee Chairman Delbert Timmons of Perryton will also present a report.

Crop and livestock market news and commodity information will be presented throughout the symposium by Reuters.

All interested area wheat growers are invited to attend the session and to enroll as members of the TWPA.

Strong Feedgrain, Oilseed Prices Expected

Because of further deterioration in world crops and continued strong export demand, prices for feed grains and oilseeds are likely to be stronger than earlier expected.

Although world grain production is forecast up slightly for 1980-81, this will not offset the 12-percent smaller stocks carried into the marketing year.

In early October, total world grain supplies for 1980-81 were estimated at 1.61 billion metric tons—down slightly from last year's supply of 1.62 billion.

World cotton supplies remain tight as the smaller U.S. crop has reduced total world supplies for 1980-81 by about 3 percent from a year earlier.

World trade and use of grains are expected to set records in 1980-81, with ending stocks likely to be down around 20 percent from the 192.5 million tons on hand at the end of 1979-80. However, since earlier October, indications are that grain production prospects in the Soviet Union, Argentina, and Australia may have deteriorated. If this is the case, the world grain supply situation may be even tighter than these latest figures indicate.

Next year's carryover stocks will decline to about 10½ percent of use—the same tight relationship that stocks bore to world use at the end of the 1974-75 marketing year, when the stock-use ratio reached the lowest level of the 1970's.

The improved farm prices of the second half of 1980 will offset the lower prices of the first half, leaving average prices received by farmers slightly higher than last year.

However, total cash receipts may be up 6 to 7 percent, mainly because of larger marketings. Farm inventories of corn, soybeans, cotton, and hogs are being reduced.

Net farm income in 1980 (after inventory adjustment) is still expected to fall within a range of $23 to $25 billion—down 20 to 25 percent from 1979. Before inventory adjustment, net farm income in 1980 will be down less than 10 percent from 1979.

Prospects for higher crop and livestock prices in 1981 indicate a brighter farm income situation, as cash receipts will likely rise more than costs. Thus, net farm income in 1981 is expected to increase significantly, possibly recouping all of this year's decline.

Retail food prices rose at an unadjusted annual rate of 12.9 percent during the third quarter of 1980, with higher farm prices the major factor behind the increase. In the fourth quarter, retail food prices will increase more slowly than in the third, and the year-over-year increase in 1980 is expected to be about 9 percent.

Next year, retail prices for all food categories are expected to rise faster than they have in 1980, with the overall increase averaging 10 to 15 percent.

Farm-City Week Observance Slated

COLLEGE STATION — This year's Farm-City Week focuses on farm and city people together as partners in progress as the key to the future.

Farm-City Week, Nov. 21-27 is sponsored by the Farm-City Council and Kiwanis International.

"Farm and city people depend on each other for products and services that are essential to modern business and living," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, economist in marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "One group can't live without the other. Together they make the best food and fiber team in the world."

A basic ingredient for the economic, political and social success of a country is a highly productive agricultural base, believes Anderson.

This gives a country the capacity to not only feed its own people but also to export for economic gain as well as for humanitarian purposes.

"One U.S. farm worker now produces enough food for some 45 people at home and another 25 overseas," says the economist. "At the turn of the century, one American farm worker could feed only seven people."

A dozen eggs, a sack of potatoes, a slab of bacon, a steak, a chilled fresh fryer, a carton of milk and hundreds of other items can be bought at almost any time and at a comparatively reasonable cost—reasonable, that is, compared with the cost of most other things.

"While the overall cost of living has advanced 13 percent from a year ago, food prices in the grocery store have increased less than 10 percent," Anderson explains. "Americans, on average, spend 17 percent of their income on food compared to 45 percent for people in Russia."

One out of every 25 Texans is a farmer or a rancher, yet 30 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with agricultural production and selling of food and fiber products.

Thousands of businesses are active in food and fiber production, transportation, processing, packaging, storing, advertising, distribution and other activities associated with feeding, clothing and, to some extent, housing people, notes the economist.

"In Texas, movement of food and fiber from field to factory to the family table furnishes jobs and income for about a fourth of the working force," points out Anderson.

The future for continued growth in Texas agriculture is bright, he believes.

Demand for food and fiber from countries overseas is growing. And, with good export facilities, the state's agricultural industry is ready to expand its share of the export market.

This means more jobs and income for both rural and urban residents.

"No doubt, agriculture makes a large contribution to the Texas' affluence. Because quality food is available at reasonable prices, a large part of our income is available to buy other things," notes Anderson.

Fort Worth Show Judges Announced

FORT WORTH — Judges who will decide the winners at the 85th annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Jan. 28 through Feb. 8, have been announced by W.R. Watt Jr., show president-manager.

Premiums for the various breed shows and the rodeo, which is held in conjunction with the livestock show, will exceed $350,000, Watt said.

Exhibitors are reminded that entry closing date for cattle, sheep, swine, horses, donkeys and mules is Dec. 10.

Poultry, rabbit and pigeon exhibitors have until Jan. 15. Premium lists, which outline rules, health requirements and prizes, are available at the Stock Show office, 3400 Crestline Road, or by mail at P.O. Box 150, Fort Worth, Texas 76101.

Range Management Includes Wildlife

COLLEGE STATION — One of the basic principles in managing rangeland is to balance the number of animals, both livestock and wildlife, with the amount of available forage.

Balancing the number of animals with forage produced calls for flexibility, points out Dr. B.J. Ragsdale, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In a livestock operation, flexibility can be built into the program to help overcome drought situations where forage availability drops below the number of animals which are being grazed on a range area. A rancher can buy feed or sell some animals during times when grazing is poor.

But what can be done about the wildlife situation? Law regulates the number of animals that can be harvested, and tradition has resulted in a predominant harvest of male animals, or bucks, in the case of white-tailed deer. Basically, deer and other large wildlife feed on vegetation, especially native plants, notes Ragsdale.

As deer numbers have increased, competition for available preferred vegetation has caused food supplies to deteriorate. This has resulted in low quality deer.

Both landowners and hunters have a vital role in improving the food supply and complying with the principle of balancing the number of grazing animals with forage production. Only through the manipulation of wildlife populations through harvest can the number of wildlife animals be brought back into balance with forage production. The other alternative of reducing numbers is through starvation.

With the 1980 hunting season at hand, Ragsdale advises landowners to consider harvesting surplus deer. A landowner can work with hunters who have leased his ranch for hunting to insure that does as well as surplus bucks are harvested. This will move the buck-doe ratio closer to the desired one-to-one and will reduce overall numbers.

While the recent drought has partially reduced the deer population, proper harvesting is important to reduce future waste, believes the ranges specialist.

As surplus deer are harvested, more forage will be available for remaining animals. This will improve their quality, there will be less pressure on forage plants, and rangeland and wildlife habitats will improve, contends Ragsdale.
