TASB blasts audit showing $185 M in school savings

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A state audit identifying $185 million in cost-savings for school districts is off-base and unhelpful, says a spokeswoman for the Texas Association of School Boards.

"School districts are always looking for ways to run the most efficient programs possible, especially in these times of fiscal constraint," said Olga Garza, assistant director of governmental relations for association.

"We would hope that the auditor would turn his focus to figuring out how school districts can get more state dollars instead of shifting the focus away from the state, which is underfunding education to local districts," she said.

The report, released Tuesday, says school districts could save at least $185 million a year by improving management outside the classroom.

The audit examined 17 school districts across the state. It cites excessive staff sizes, generous fringe benefits and "serious" weaknesses in purchasing decisions.

"The current public education system does not ensure that tax dollars are spent efficiently," said State Auditor Lawrence F. Alwin.

According to the report, school districts could save an additional $45 million by controlling textbook costs, reducing tax collection costs, and forming statewide insurance purchasing pools.

Release of the audit came just hours after the state presented its latest school funding reform plan to a state district judge for review.

Ironically, Edgewood school district, which brought the original court challenge to equalize school funding, was one of 17 districts reviewed in the report and scrutinized for not cutting costs.

Auditors said Edgewood could save $1.2 million by downsizing its police department and spending less to maintain its facilities.

Two other school districts - Benavides and LaPorte - were singled out in the report as having "serious" management problems. In addition, auditors identified Sundown school district as having an "extravagant" spending system. The report said that district could save $500,000 annually by cutting travel expenses.

"These districts do not have sufficient controls to prevent questionable and inefficient use of tax dollars," the audit states.

Other recommendations in the report include more oversight of school districts by the state.

"Education excellence, based on student performance, is the focus of the current system. However, given limited state and local resources, additional emphasis on efficiency is needed," the report states.

Auditors also found that dropout rates appear to be understated throughout the state and recommended changing the procedures for reporting dropouts.

According to the report, 13 of the 17 districts examined had under reported their dropout rates.

Law constitutional until challenged

Poor districts vow to sue over new law

AUSTIN (AP) - State officials had expected a court challenge to the latest school funding reform plan, and it wasn't long in coming.

Lawyers for the state no sooner presented the measure to a judge Tuesday than attorneys for property-poor school districts announced problems with it and said they intended to continue their court fight.

"We represent ... districts that have never had what they needed to put on a good education for their kids. And this is not a battle that we can likely leave until we feel that we have brought about real long-term equality for all of our students," said lawyer Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin said he would presume the new law is constitutional until challenges are filed, then set a hearing. He is allowing state aid to flow to school districts this summer.

If lawmakers hadn't come up with a plan by Tuesday's court deadline, they faced a cutoff of state education aid to schools, which rely on state money and local property tax funds. That would have started the process of school closings, leaders had warned.

The Texas Supreme Court ordered lawmakers to find a way to even out funding available to school districts with differing property wealth. The new plan gives property-rich school districts several options for sharing some wealth with poorer ones.

McCown, who oversees the long-running school finance case, said it is likely that schools will operate under the new plan over the next school year because of the time needed for courts - and if necessary, lawmakers - to act. He said challenges should be filed by July 15.

But lawyers for property-poor school districts want quicker action. Kauffman said he planned to file his challenge June 9 and hopes that a hearing will be scheduled promptly.

He and other lawyers for poor districts cited as a top concern the way state funds are to be distributed beginning next school year.

Under the measure, richer districts could keep their current per-student spending level with a small local property tax increase or even a decrease, Kauffman and lawyer Rick Gray said. Meanwhile, many poor districts would face large increases to stay even.

They also criticized the law for not providing funds for classroom construction, and said that it would allow a gap of at least $600 per student in funding between rich and poor school districts.

Their complaints came even though they acknowledged that there is significant progress under the new plan, which aims to ensure that none of Texas' 1,048 school districts has per-student wealth of more than $280,000.

"This is the best foot forward on the road to equity that the Legislature has ever passed," said Gray.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, said that's a key point.

"They're not attacking the basic equity structure ... They're basically attacking little things that they would like adjustments to," said Ms. Hunter. She said such adjustments could be pursued through the Legislature.

Under the new law, districts that exceed the maximum wealth level can choose among several options for giving away some wealth: Merging tax bases with one or more poorer districts; sending money to the state; contracting to educate students in other districts; consolidating voluntarily with one or more districts; or moving some property to another district's tax rolls.

If school districts don't choose an option under the plan, the state education commissioner will order commercial taxable property to be moved. If that's not enough, there will be forced consolidation.

Lawyers for property-rich school districts said they need to consult with their clients to decide whether they also will challenge the measure.

The latest court skirmish was watched by Demetrio Rodriguez of San Antonio, a parent who in 1968 led in filing the original school funding lawsuit. He said the process hasn't been easy.

"It's frustrating that we have solved the problem of sending men to the moon, and we can't solve a problem of school funding," Rodriguez said. But he added, "We're going to keep on fighting until we prevail."

Guatemalan president removed from office

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - Guatemala's army has ousted President Jorge Serrano, promising to restore the constitutional rule he had abandoned. But it's far from clear whether the military - a powerful institution in a country with a long history of soldier-dictators - will keep its promise.

"Responding to the clamor of the people, we hereby restore constitutional rule to Guatemala," Defense Minister Gen. Jose Domingo Garcia Samayoa said on national television Tuesday. The defense minister appeared to be directing events, though he said the vice president was taking over.

Garcia Samayoa was flanked by fellow officers, politicians, businessmen and trade unionists who had all reportedly pressured the president to step aside.

Serrano had been widely criticized for declaring one-man rule on May 25, saying he was forced to dissolve

Congress and the Supreme Court and impose press censorship to combat corruption.

He told the Mexican television network Televisa in a telephone interview from his home Tuesday that he was deposed in a military-backed "coup d'etat."

Asked if he still considered himself president of Guatemala, he said "legally yes, but in fact, no."

"I imagine that (the military) is going to come and try to negotiate my resignation with me," he told interviewer Jacobo Zabudovsky. "They haven't done it yet."

Serrano said his family was with him, and he remained defiant. "If I had it to do over again, I would do just as I did," he said.

Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro said late Tuesday in Managua that she would grant Serrano asylum.

April notes slight rise in indicators

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government's chief economic forecasting gauge rebounded only a feeble 0.1 percent in April after taking its worst plunge in two years the month before, the Commerce Department said today.

The barely perceptible rise in the Index of Leading Indicators, following a 1 percent plummet in March, fits with the views of the more pessimistic economic analysts who see little chance the economy will soon break out of its lethargic growth pattern.

Few analysts see any chance the economy is on the brink of another recession. At the same time, growth has been so painfully slow that the nation's unemployment rate, stuck at 7 percent since February, may even tick up during the summer, they warn.

"It's certainly not any kind of boom situation," said economist Lynn Renser of First Interstate Bancorp of Los Angeles. "Companies are still remaining very cautious about adding to payrolls."

In advance, economists were looking for a somewhat stronger gain in the index of 0.3 percent or 0.4 percent.

The leading index is designed to predict economic activity six to nine months in advance. Three consecutive monthly movements in one direction, up or down, are considered a good, but far from certain, sign of whether the economy will be expanding or contracting.

So far this year, the index has fallen in January and March and risen in February and April.

823 ballots cast in early voting for Senate race

When the 5 p.m. deadline passed Tuesday to end the early voting period for Saturday's special senatorial runoff election, 823 ballots had been marked by Deaf Smith County residents.

Voters in the election will choose between Kay Bailey Hutchison, Texas treasurer, and Bob Krueger, serving as interim senator.

Despite the number of early voters - 683 ballots were counted in early voting in the May special election - County Clerk David Ruland said he expects the turnout Saturday to be light.

"It's hard to tell, but I feel that the timing has a lot to do with the turnout," said Ruland. "Since it's vacation time, lots of people have come in to vote because they're leaving town."

Statewide, the prediction has been for a light vote in the election to choose a new U.S. Senator, filling the post formerly held by Lloyd Bentsen. He resigned to join the Clinton Administration as Secretary of the Treasury. The unexpired term ends in January 1995.

Although the special election was not conducted along party lines, the results were partisan. Hutchison is a Republican and Krueger, a Democrat. They were the two top vote-getters in a field of 24 candidates in the May election.

Girl sings 'Jesus Loves Me' as she is rescued from well

LIBERTY CITY, Texas (AP) - A 6-year-old girl has escaped with only a bump on the head and a few scratches and bruises following her plunge into a 50-foot deep water well.

Chelsey Jordan sang "Jesus Loves Me" with her mother as rescue workers tried to free her from the well late Monday at her great-grandmother's home.

"She's doing fine," said Chelsey's mother Regina Jordan.

Chelsey and her 9-year-old sister, Jessica, were playing outside her great-grandmother's home when the accident occurred.

Ms. Jordan said her daughter was jumping up and down on a piece of plywood when it broke, plunging her down the well into 3 feet of water.

"She had no idea it was over a well," her mother told the Longview News-Journal Tuesday.

Jordan ran to the well's edge and saw her child standing at the bottom of it.

"We said a little prayer and starting singing, 'Jesus Loves Me,'" she said.

The song calmed the child, so mom and daughter kept singing off and on during the rescue.

T.H. Anderson of Kilgore Rescue Services, said rescue crews rigged a rope and pulley system to raise the child from the well. To protect Chelsey from falling debris, crews lowered a firefighter's helmet and a life jacket.

Clinton highlights budget cuts, not increased taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Standing on an old fire truck in a middle-class Milwaukee neighborhood, his polished size-13 shoes hanging far over the running board, President Clinton shook his finger like an angry school marm and fired back at protesters.

"I see all the signs that say, 'More spending cuts.' Where were you when the cuts were made?"

Again and again Clinton is reminding audiences that his $500 billion deficit reduction package would do more than raise taxes: It cuts spending too.

"I dare say that most of you've heard about the fight or fights over taxes but didn't know how much spending was cut," Clinton told a crowd at a Milwaukee civic center Tuesday before heading to the blue-collar neighborhood to visit a pharmacy.

Clinton promised to accept deeper budget cuts and less tax increases to get his package through the Senate, although he urged restraint.

"The initiative has to come from the Senate," said spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers. "They'll come to us and we'll work with them."

While the Milwaukee appearances underscored Clinton's willingness to compromise on the budget, they also and were part of a renewed effort to define himself as a moderate Democrat in touch with the middle class. He harped on the themes of his presidential campaign: welfare reform, family leave, community service and health care reforms.

He even dug up a broken campaign pledge, saying he intends to propose middle-class tax cuts "before I'm done."

In an interview with the Cincinnati Enquirer published in today's editions, Clinton said "I cannot recommend this year, although I expect to recommend in this term, tax relief for middle-income families, especially those with children."

In his 45-minute civic center speech, Clinton used the phrase "middle class" at least 10 times.

"This is, in my mind, the president getting back to the vision and values of the campaign," said political strategist Paul Begala, who traveled with Clinton. The president and his advisers are trying to reverse the damage a Hollywood haircut and charges of cronyism did to his populist image.

"I was sent to the White House, I think, to take on brain dead politics from either party, or from both," Clinton said in the civic center speech.

Judging from the reaction on the road, some Americans are not sure Clinton has worked very well at becoming the kind of president he promised to be.

"Taxaholic. Abortaholic. Liar," read one sign at the pharmacy stop. "Take the liar home," said another.

In the Enquirer interview, Clinton said recent criticism of his having Hollywood celebrities at the White House and his $200 haircut on Air Force One, delaying air traffic at the Los Angeles airport, had damaged his image.

"I like to go to the movies; I like music," he said.

Dawn man hurt when vehicle falls from jack

Dawn resident Eugene Guynes, 66, was hospitalized in critical condition today for injuries suffered when a vehicle fell on him on Tuesday.

Sheriff's Deputy Robin Ruland said rescue workers were called to Guynes' home at about 4:50 p.m.

The call was initially made as a traffic accident, but was later amended to a residential accident.

Guynes, Ruland said, was working on the vehicle in his barn "and the jack slipped."

He was rushed to Deaf Smith General Hospital by ambulance and Ruland said he was then transferred to St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo at about 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Hospital spokeswoman Mary Barlow said Guynes was listed in critical condition in the hospital's Intensive Care Unit.

Welfare reform may limit benefits

Removal of healthy parents from rolls considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's overhaul of the welfare system is likely to include limits on the time a healthy parent can collect benefits, experiments with guaranteed child support payments and greater efforts to collect such support.

"Our assistance programs should help people become economically self-sufficient, not locked on welfare doing nothing," says David Ellwood, a former Harvard University professor tapped to help draft the reform.

Ellwood, in an interview Tuesday, detailed the options under consideration.

The main focus of Clinton's reform is on healthy recipients of Aid to Families With Dependent Children, a $22 billion, state-federal welfare program for single parents and a small number of unemployed couples.

The program reached a record 5 million families in March, according to the Department of Health and Human Services.

"When we see a record-high AFDC caseload, it should be a wake-up call," Ellwood, the new assistant secretary for planning and evaluation at HHS, said. "We need to stop taking the business-as-usual approach of the last 12 years. Our economy and our welfare system both need help."

Ellwood said reform would expand opportunities for child care, education and training to help people prepare for "real-world jobs."

"And we need to call on individuals to take more responsibility. In particular, we need to insist that absent parents support their children," he said.

As a candidate, Clinton promised to "end welfare as we know it," saying recipients should be required to work after two years on the rolls. He estimated the costs of providing education, training, jobs and possibly child care at $4 billion a year.

Some members of his still-named welfare reform task force have just been confirmed to their government posts and others are awaiting Senate confirmation. But Ellwood has said work on the overhaul is under way and a plan should be ready by year's end.

Reform will concentrate on four main areas, Ellwood said:

-Experiments with government-guaranteed child support payments and efforts at stricter enforcement of support settlements.

Clinton has not endorsed the suggestion that the government guarantee a child support payment when the absent parent refuses or is unable to pay. But Ellwood argued that if single parents could count on child support payments, it could be possible to work part time at the minimum wage and be better off than on welfare.

-Work incentives such as child care, health care for all workers and an expansion in the earned income tax credit.

-Expanding education and training programs. According to Carolyn Colvin, secretary of Maryland's Department of Human Resources, many welfare recipients never finished high school and lack the skills needed to "get a job that pays a livable wage."

-Limiting the time a recipient can receive benefits. Now, people can receive AFDC payments until their youngest child turns 18 or finishes high school.

Bitter campaign for Senate seat drawing to close

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

The U.S. Senate runoff candidates are swapping accusations at a furious pace as Saturday's election nears.

Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison says interim Sen. Bob Krueger is slinging mud; Krueger says Mrs. Hutchison is unfit for the office.

Saturday's voting will determine who completes the final 1 1/2 years in the seat vacated by Lloyd Bentsen when he became U.S. Treasury secretary.

Krueger said Tuesday that recent newspaper reports have called into question the performance of Mrs. Hutchison as state treasurer since 1991.

"In the last eight days, respected journalists have raised serious questions on whether or not Mrs. Hutchison violated the Texas Open Records Act, offered a state job for an endorsement, which, if committed, is a felony and covered up the results of her own lie detector test," Krueger said.

"After reading in the last eight days (of) published reports by respected journalists in newspapers across Texas, I believe that Kay Bailey Hutchison is unfit to be our United States senator," he said.

Dave Beckwith, a spokesman for Mrs. Hutchison, called Krueger's barbs outrageous.

"These scurrilous and slimy charges are typical of what Krueger hurls in the closing stages of a losing campaign," Beckwith said.

At an appearance in Lubbock, Mrs. Hutchison attacked Krueger for making last-minute personal attacks as he made in previous losing bids for the Senate. Krueger lost to Republican John Tower in 1978 and failed to make the Democratic primary runoff in 1984.

"Texans are tired of dirty politics. We have run a highroad campaign based on the issues and our differences on the issues. Bob Krueger is in the mud, just like he always is when he gets behind," Mrs. Hutchison said. "Every time he gets behind he starts throwing mud and trash. Just remember that, in the next week, as you see Lord knows what coming out of his mouth," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison led Krueger by 99 votes in the 24-candidate May 1 special election that put the two in the runoff.

A Dallas Morning News poll published last week showed Krueger, appointed by Gov. Ann Richards, trailing Mrs. Hutchison by 19 percentage points, 54 percent to 35 percent.

Krueger issued a statement Tuesday referring to several recent newspaper stories.

He cited a report that some records of a phone line at the Treasury used for political purposes were removed from state documents. Mrs. Hutchison has said she paid the state for use of the phone and that its records aren't covered by the open records law.

Krueger noted reports that Tom Bowden, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for treasurer in 1990, later was hired by the Treasury in exchange for his endorsement of her. Bowden and Mrs. Hutchison's campaign say there was no connection and that Bowden, a former San Saba county judge, was highly qualified for the post as liaison with county judges and sheriffs.

And Krueger referred to a newspaper story in which one polygraph examiner said he couldn't make a conclusion about a lie detector test Mrs. Hutchison took in April. The treasurer says other examiners reported that the test backed up her statements that she never struck a former Treasury office employee.

"I urge Texans to read these published reports. When they do, I believe they will come to the same conclusion I have. She is unfit to be our United States senator," Krueger said.

Beckwith said: "The only person in the race who's unfit to be a senator is the one who is resorting to scurrilous personal attacks at the tale end of a losing campaign."

Alcohol use may negate value of eating fresh fruit, vegetables

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fresh fruits and vegetables protect against colon cancer but not if the daily diet includes two or more alcoholic drinks, scientists said today. Researchers, reporting in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, based the finding on a study of 16,000 women and 9,500 men who underwent medical screening for precancerous polyps in the colon.

Dr. Edward Giovannuci of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and the Harvard Medical School said the study found that people with high levels of folate, a nutrient common in fruits and vegetables, were much less likely to have polyps.

But the good effect was lost among heavy drinkers, he said. People who consumed two or more drinks daily were at increased risk of polyps.

"We speculate that alcohol may have an effect on folate metabolism," said Giovannuci.

The research follows two other recent studies on alcohol's effect.

Dr. J. Michael Gaziano, also of Brigham and Women's Hospital, reported last month on a study that found drinking three beers or three glasses of wine daily raised levels of the "good" cholesterol and seemed to give some protection against a type of heart attack.

Another study, also published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, searched for the reason that women drinkers tend to have more breast cancer.

It found that women who drink 30 grams or more of alcohol daily - equal to about two drinks - increase their levels of the hormone estrogen by up to 31.9 percent. High levels of estrogen have been linked to breast cancer.

In his study, Giovannuci and his colleagues used people who had been medically screened for polyps, called colorectal adenomas, that are associated with the development of colorectal cancer.

Some of the people who had this medical test had polyps and some did not. By examining the dietary differences between the group, Giovannuci said he and his researchers were able to determine a link to colon cancer and diet.

The researchers divided the people into five groups depending on their consumption of folate. The study then compared the incidence of adenomas in the top 20 percent of folate consumers and the bottom 20 percent.

Giovannuci said that among women, the group with the highest level of folate consumption had a 34 percent lower incidence of polyps when compared with women with the lowest level of folate consumption. For men, there was a 37 percent lower incidence.

Majerle's 8 treys muffle Sonics

PHOENIX (AP) - The Phoenix Suns used boxing strategy against Seattle: Dan Majerle jabbing from long range and Charles Barkley providing the body blows.

Majerle delivered the knockout punch, drilling the last of his playoff-record eight 3-pointers with 21 seconds left to power the Suns over the SuperSonics 120-114 Tuesday night.

"This was one of the biggest shots of my career," Majerle said of his last-minute 3-pointer.

Actually, Majerle and the Suns did exactly what the Sonics wanted.

"You want him to take a shot like that to try and beat you; he just hit it. It was a hell of a shot," Seattle's Eddie Johnson said.

Barkley and Majerle had playoff career games to send Phoenix back to Seattle with a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 Western Conference finals.

Barkley had 43 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists - his third postseason triple-double and first in two years - and Majerle hit 8 of 10 shots from 3-point range to finish with 34 points.

"When's he's stroking it like that, it makes everything easier for us," Barkley said of Majerle's long-range bombing. "They were doubling on me and chasing Kevin (Johnson) so much, someone was going to be open."

Being open and making the shot are two different things, Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said.

"It's tough to make 8 of 10 in the gym, by yourself, with nobody on you," Westphal said.

There were 17 ties - including 28-28 after the first quarter - and 11 lead changes, and Shawn Kemp's 20 points in the fourth quarter helped the Sonics eat up a 10-point Phoenix lead in the final six minutes.

Kemp, who finished with 33 points, made it 111-110 with a 15-foot jumper with 34.5 seconds left.

The Suns had not scored since Barkley's putback of an offensive rebound with 2:37 left gave them a 111-102 lead. From then until Majerle released his climactic shot with the game on the line, Seattle looked like the team which stunned the Suns here 103-99 in Game 2.

Ricky Pierce made a 3-pointer and a free throw, and Sam Perkins made two more free throws before Kemp's baseline jumper.

"My shots had been going all night, and we really needed that one, so I let it go," said Majerle, who broke the record of seven 3-pointers set by Indiana's Chuck Person against Boston on April 28, 1991.

"What can you say? When he sets his feet and has his rhythm, basically, he'll hit it," Seattle's Gary Payton said.

Pierce finished with 27 points and Payton 20. Kevin Johnson had 10 assists for the Suns.

Barkley hit 16 of 22 shots and was 11 of 11 from the foul line in surpassing his playoff personal best of 39 points. He had 13 points in the fourth quarter.

"Charles gives them great leadership by rebounding and pushing the ball," Seattle coach George Karl said. "He played very possessed and very aggressively, but my basketball team played very well, too."

Tom Chambers contributed nine fourth-quarter points to offset the quick-strike ability of Seattle, which had made up a 59-54 halftime deficit with an 11-4 spurt in the first 3 1/2 minutes of the third quarter.

Kemp's driving layup after Richard Dumas missed a dunk put the Sonics up 65-63. In the next three minutes, Majerle tied it three times - at 65, 67 and 72, the third time with a 3-pointer.

Chambers, who played only briefly until the fourth period, got his first points with a left-handed layup with 4:40 to play, tying it 74-74.

Back-to-back Majerle 3-pointers erased Seattle leads late in the quarter and lifted the Suns to an 84-81 third-quarter advantage.

Majerle also had seven rebounds, one better than anyone on the Sonics, as the Suns owned the boards 42-25.

Herd golf camp set for July

Dates for the Hereford Whiteface Golf Camp were announced this week by Coach Stacy Bixler.

There will be two sessions and two age groups in each camp. Cost is $60 per camper per week, which includes range balls, course usage, T-shirt, golf balls, certificates and special awards.

The first session will be July 12-16 and the second session will be July 19-23, both at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. The beginners and lower intermediates (3rd-8th grades) will be from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day. The upper intermediates and advanced group (9th-12 grades and college) will be from 2 to 7 p.m.

Morning camp objectives will be to teach basic fundamentals and rules for the game of golf. Campers will be grouped by ability level to ensure that each camper receives the most benefit possible during instruction.

Individual instruction will be given to each camper on the grip, stance, alignment, and swing mechanics for chipping, putting, irons and woods. Contests and games will follow the instructional periods.

During the afternoon camp, emphasis will be on learning the correct mental processes, course management, special shots, trouble shots, approach and short-game needed to lower scores and play competitive golf.

Instructors will be high school golf coaches, the golf pro and assistants, and HHS golf exes. Registration forms will be available at all Hereford schools, Pitman Golf Course, or Coach Bixler.

Martin shoots age

Don T. Martin, 79, shot his age Tuesday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

He performed the feat five days after his 79th birthday. On his birthday, May 27, he shot a 76 at Pitman.

Bruguera ousts No. 1 seed Sampras from French Open

PARIS (AP) - Sergi Bruguera capitalized on Pete Sampras' errors and serving troubles to oust the No. 1 seed from the French Open in their quarterfinal match today.

For Bruguera, the No. 10 seed from Spain, the 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 victory was a moment of glory - his best-ever showing in a Grand Slam tournament. For Sampras, it was another frustration in his attempt to prove he can be a champion on clay.

Sampras made 60 unforced errors, compared to only 24 for Bruguera, and was able to connect on only 49 percent of his booming first serves.

Despite Sampras' higher seeding, the outcome was not a total surprise; Bruguera beat him in straight sets two weeks ago in their only other meeting.

In the women's semifinals Thursday, Graf will play eighth-seeded Anke Huber in an all-German match, and No. 2 seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain will play fifth-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez.

Fernandez staged a spectacular comeback Tuesday against third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini, recovering from a 1-6, 1-5 deficit to win 1-6, 7-6 (7-4), 10-8 in three hours, 35 minutes, the longest women's match in modern Grand Slam history.

Knicks glad to be back in New York

NEW YORK (AP) - By winning 27 straight games at Madison Square Garden, the New York Knicks have had plenty of time to ponder the reasons for their success at home.

"When I go through someone else's door, it's different than when someone comes through my door," the Knicks' Rolando Blackman said Tuesday. "If you understand that, you understand homecourt advantage."

New York and the Chicago Bulls each have won twice on their home floor in the first four games of the best-of-7 Eastern Conference finals, which resume tonight at Madison Square Garden. The sixth game will be Friday night at Chicago Stadium, and Game 7 would be in New York Sunday night.

The Knicks, who haven't lost at home since a defeat against Atlanta on Jan. 28, earned the extra home game in the series by winning 60 games in the regular season, three more than the Bulls.

John Starks, victimized by Michael Jordan's 54 points Monday, said the Knicks built their self-respect by winning 37 of 41 home games in the regular season and seven straight in the playoffs.

"When you're on your home court, you're a different team," Starks said. "We've accomplished a lot at home. We up the ante for the other team because the crowd gives us extra energy."

Knicks point guard Doc Rivers also was ready with an answer when asked why homecourt advantage seems more valuable in basketball than in football or baseball.

"I think baseball and football players feel safer on the road than basketball players do," Rivers said. "Baseball players have a bat in their hands. Football players are wearing helmets and all that equipment, and all we have on is a pair of shorts."

New York coach Pat Riley, who overcame homecourt disadvantage twice to win titles for the Los Angeles Lakers, said tight officiating on the road has plagued the Knicks for two seasons, especially Patrick Ewing.

"We have a superstar in Ewing who shot 14 free throws in two games, and their superstar, Michael Jordan, has 36 free throws in two games," Riley said. "We don't want an advantage. We just want the calls to be consistent. In Chicago, Patrick isn't allowed to play his game."

"We've been playing against a stacked deck for two years because we have to fight the perception of this team as being too physical. We don't get any breaks at all. We don't whine and complain about it, we just try to overcome it. At home, the free throws are usually about even and we always shoot 10 or 12 less free throws on the road."

The Bulls went different routes to get their two victories in Chicago. Jordan scored 22 points despite 3-for-18 shooting in Game 3, then scored 54, the most points against the Knicks in their playoff history, on Monday.

"We could have tried to run at him and jump at him a little more, but he has the ability to hit the open man when he's double-teamed, and they have the ability to relocate him," Riley said. "He took 30 shots and 18 of them were contested."

Mets waste good performance by Young, fall to Chicago, 8-3

By The Associated Press
Anthony Young didn't lose this time. Unfortunately for the Mets, he didn't win either.

Young, who has lost 19 straight decisions, pitched six shutout innings against the Chicago Cubs and left with a 1-0 lead Tuesday night. But he failed to get a decision as the Cubs rallied to beat New York 8-3.

"Anthony Young is the best 0-19 pitcher I've ever seen," said Rick Wilkins, who singled in the Cubs' first run. "He kept the ball down all night and we were helpless against him."

The Cubs weren't helpless in the seventh when Young was lifted for a pinch hitter in the top of the inning. Chicago scored four runs off Mike Draper (0-1) and Mike Maddux to take a 4-1 lead.

"I was in the clubhouse when Wilkins tied up the game," said Young, who made his first start of the season after 17 relief appearances.

"All I did was curse, not at anyone, but people in general. ... I pitched a good game. Unfortunately, we lost."

Young, 0-5 this year, gave up three hits, struck out four and walked three. Elsewhere in the NL, it was Philadelphia 6, Cincinnati 3; San Diego 2, Atlanta 1; Montreal 2, Houston 1; Los Angeles 11, St. Louis 6; and Pittsburgh 8, Colorado 6.

Florida split a doubleheader with San Francisco. The Marlins won the opener 7-3 and lost the nightcap 4-3.

Expos 2, Astros 1

At Houston, Frank Bolick singled in the go-ahead run in the ninth inning. The victory prevented Doug Drabek (5-6) from winning his third straight game in the Astrodome. Delino DeShields led off the ninth with an infield hit, was sacrificed to second by Lou Frazier and scored on Bolick's full-count single. John Weteland (3-0) pitched the final two innings for the victory.

Padres 2, Braves 1

At Atlanta, Derek Bell hit a two-run homer for San Diego and Doug Brocail won his first major league game.

Bell hit his 11th homer in the fourth off John Smoltz (4-5) after Gary Sheffield opened the inning with a double.

Marlins 7-3, Giants 3-4

At Miami, center fielder Darren Lewis ended Florida's home-run binge and kept the Marlins from sweeping a doubleheader against San Francisco. Greg Briley drove in three runs with two homers to help Florida win the opener. Lewis helped the Giants gain a split by robbing Geronimo Berroa of a two-run homer in the second game. The Marlins, who have hit the fewest homers in the majors, had four in the first 12 innings of the doubleheader. San Francisco's Robby Thompson had his 21-game hitting streak snapped in the nightcap.

Belle rings up 2 HR, 4 RBI

By The Associated Press
This is no time for Albert Belle to have to stay out of the ballpark.

Belle, leading the majors in homers and RBIs, homered twice and drove in four runs Tuesday night, leading the Cleveland Indians past New York 15-6 at Yankee Stadium.

Belle's three-run homer highlighted a five-run first inning. He connected again in the sixth, giving him 17 home runs and 48 RBIs.

He had an appeal of a three-game suspension heard by AL president Bobby Brown in the morning. Belle was penalized on May 18 for charging Kansas City's Hipolito Pichardo after being hit by a pitch six days earlier.

Brown was expected to announce his decision today.

"I hope I'm able to play," Belle said. "Even if I'm not, this was a good game to get in."

If Brown upholds the suspension, it's uncertain whether it would begin tonight, when Cleveland again plays at Yankee Stadium.

"It's been a real bone of contention around baseball that anytime someone gets suspended, they come into New York to appeal it, and the Mets or Yankees get to reap the benefits of someone not being available," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said.

Carlos Baerga homered, tripled, doubled and drove in three runs for the Indians.

Cliff Young (1-2) pitched four scoreless innings of two-hit relief. He took over in the fourth inning after Jose Mesa could not hold a 6-0 lead.

Mike Witt (3-2) began the game with consecutive walks. One out later, Belle homered to deep left field. Paul Sorrento followed with a line-drive single off Witt's right elbow and the pitcher left with a bruise. X-rays were negative and Witt will be re-examined Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was

Chicago 4, Detroit 2; Kansas City 4, Boston 3; Minnesota 7, Texas 5; Milwaukee 10, Seattle 0; Toronto 8, California 0; and Oakland 4, Baltimore 1.

Twins 7, Rangers 5

Brian Harper's pinch-hit three-run homer in the eighth inning rallied Minnesota over Texas at the Metrodome. Kirby Puckett also drove in three runs for the Twins.

Harper hit the second pitch from reliever Brian Bohanon (2-1) over the left-field fence, making a winner of reliever Pat Mahomes (1-4).

Royals 4, Red Sox 3

Kansas City kept rolling on the road and Chris Haney (3-0) stayed unbeaten since being recalled May 19 as the Royals edged Boston at Fenway Park.

George Brett's 303rd career homer and fifth of the year, a two-run shot, sparked a three-run third inning against Paul Quantrill (2-4).

A&M, UT seeded high in CWS

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer

The paths to College World Series glory for Texas A&M and Texas may have many familiar stops - with a final showdown that could pit the two longtime Southwest Conference rivals.

Top-seeded Texas A&M, making its first visit to Omaha, Neb., since 1964, opens its hunt for a national title in Friday's first game against CWS newcomer No. 8 Kansas (45-16).

In their bracket, the Aggies (52-9) also have No. 4 Long Beach State (43-17) and No. 5 LSU (49-16-1).

The third-seeded Longhorns will open their record-extending 24th CWS appearance, and 17th under coach Cliff Gustafson, in Saturday's late game against No. 6 Oklahoma State (43-15).

UT's possible future opponents include traditional national power Arizona State (46-18), seeded second, and No. 7 Wichita State (55-16). The Shockers and Longhorns last met for the 1989 title, with Wichita State winning.

"Any way we go we're playing a familiar old foe," Gustafson said.

Should both SWC teams survive their brackets, they would meet for the national title a week from Saturday.

"I think it'd be a real healthy statement for the conference," said Texas A&M coach Mark Johnson. "We're not afraid to play them and I don't think they're afraid to play us."

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) - Austin O'Brien, the 12-year-old who stars with Arnold Schwarzenegger in the soon-to-be-released "Last Action Hero," says playing a kid who meets his film idol was easy.

"I always loved Arnold. I knew he was a great guy, and I liked all his movies, especially 'T2,' 'Twins,' and 'Kindergarten Cop,'" Austin said.

He said Schwarzenegger is now "like a second father to me. This is all like a dream come true."

Austin, who lives in Costa Mesa, won the role over hundreds of other youngsters.

"There was a chemistry between the two, a star quality that had an immediate impact on everybody in the room," producer Steve Roth said. "Last Action Hero" opens June 18.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about my brother, "Rob," who is 31, a terrific guy, a successful professional, extremely personable and smart, except when it comes to women.

Rob went with "Linda" for two years. She was a leggy blonde who, to use a phrase from your column, "has oatmeal where her brains belong." She also has the morals of an alley cat. He gave her a big engagement ring, and the wedding was planned for Christmas.

I was not happy about this turn of events, because Linda's reputation for sleeping around was well-known. I felt I should tell Rob what I had heard, and I did. He said he had heard "a few things," too, but Linda swore she would be faithful, and he trusted her.

Well, Ann, Rob caught her twice (in her own apartment), but she conned him into forgiving her. The first time, he asked for the ring back and got it. Within a few days, they reconciled. Two weeks later, he caught her again (with the security officer of her building). Again, the engagement was off. I was greatly relieved.

Today, Rob phoned to say Linda swore with her hand on a Bible that she will be 100 percent true to him from now on. He forgave her, and they plan to marry next month. I am heartsick.

Several years ago, Ann, you printed a parable about a little girl who picked up a snake on the way to visit her grandmother. Will you please run it again? That column could save my brother from ruining his life. Thank you.—Miss X

DEAR MISS X: Here's the column. I hope it helps.

A young girl was trudging along a mountain path, trying to reach her grandmother's house. It was bitter cold, and the wind cut like a knife. When she was within sight of her destination, she heard a rustle at her feet. Looking down, she saw a snake. Before she could move, the snake spoke to her. He said, "I am about to die. It is too cold for me up here, and I am freezing. There is no food in these mountains, and I am starving. Please put me under your coat, and take me with you."

"No," replied the girl. "I know your kind. You are a rattlesnake. If I pick you up, you will bite me, and your bite is poisonous."

"No, No," said the snake. "If you help me, you will be my best friend. I will treat you differently."

The little girl sat down on a rock for a moment to rest and think things over. She looked at the beautiful markings on the snake and had to admit that it was the most beautiful snake she had ever seen.

Suddenly, she said, "I believe you. I will save you. All living things deserve to be treated with kindness."

The little girl reached over, put the snake gently under her coat and proceeded toward her grandmother's house.

Within a moment, she felt a sharp pain in her side. The snake had bitten her. "How could you do this to me?" she cried. "You promised that you would not bite me, and I trusted you!"

"You knew what I was when you picked me up," hissed the snake as he slithered away.

Sexual harassment affects 4 of every 5 teenagers in schools

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - From voyeurism to assault, sexual harassment affects four out of every five teen-agers in schools nationwide, but few victims report it, said a study released today.

Conduct ranges from being spied on while dressing or showering to physical assault, said the survey of 1,600 eighth- through 11th-graders. Thirteen percent of the girls reported being forced by fellow students, teachers or other school employees to engage in sexual conduct beyond kissing.

Just 7 percent of the victims told the school about sexual harassment. And while one in five victims told a family member, 23 percent kept quiet. More than half didn't even know if their school had a policy on sexual harassment.

"Ignoring sexual harassment in schools in effect condones it," Sharon Schuster, president of the American Association of University Women, said in a statement accompanying the study results.

The AAUW's educational foundation commissioned the study, in which Louis Harris and Associates distributed questionnaires in 79 classrooms across the country in February and March.

Thirty-nine percent of the victimized girls said they were afraid in school; 8 percent of the boys said they were. Twenty-eight percent of the victimized girls said it was harder to pay attention in school, and 18 percent of the girls said the harassment made them think about changing schools.

"Sexual harassment takes a toll on all students, but the impact on girls is devastating," said Anne Bryant, executive director of the educational foundation.

Several students told The Associated Press on Tuesday they didn't think reporting sexual harassment would do much good.

Jessica Schneider, 15, a freshman at Lincoln High School in Portland, Ore., said she told a teacher about a sexual harassment incident last year, but was disappointed when the person she reported got away with detention.

"Guys take advantage of you, totally," said Yasmin Haldeman, 14, a classmate of Schneider. "All they want is sex. They use you. They'll just come up to you and grab you."

And the survey uncovered the case of a 16-year-old girl who reported sexual harassment to school authorities, but said she "was told to ignore the harassers."

"I was upset the administration didn't respond immediately after I complained," the 16-year-old girl wrote on her questionnaire.

Overall, 53 percent of the students in the study said they'd been touched, grabbed or pinched in a sexual way - but two-thirds of the girls said they had been victimized in this way. Forty-two percent of the boys said they had been.

The survey also found that: Nearly four out of 10 students who did the harassing said it's "just part of school life," that "a lot of people do it" and that "it's no big deal." Two-third of the boys and more than half the girls admitted they have sexually harassed someone in school.

One in four girls who said they've been harassed were victimized by a teacher, coach, bus driver, teacher's aide, security guard, principal or counselor.

Harassment usually occurs out in the open - in the hallway or classroom. It often occurs in the early grades, and usually more than once. One-third of the victimized students said they'd first been harassed in elementary school. Fifty-eight percent reported they'd been targeted often or occasionally.

The study has a margin of error of plus or minus four percentage points.

Arthritis drug naproxen could be sold as over-counter pain killer

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) - The arthritis drug naproxen would be sold as an over-the-counter pain killer without a prescription under a proposal under consideration by federal officials.

Food and Drug Administration advisory panels are deciding whether to recommend allowing naproxen to join aspirin, acetaminophen and ibuprofen in the multi-billion-dollar market.

A favorable recommendation today from the advisory committees on over-the-counter drugs and arthritis would leave to the FDA the final decision on whether to allow non-prescription sales.

Naproxen has been sold by prescription as Naprosyn by Syntex Corp. for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis since 1976 in the United States and is marketed in 92 other countries, the company said.

Although the financial stakes are big, the decision was not controversial because unlike new drugs, naproxen has a track record, and its safety and efficacy are proven.

Even a consumer group that has been highly critical of the pharmaceutical industry had no objection to selling naproxen without a prescription. But Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Public Citizen's Health Research Group, said the label for non-prescription naproxen should contain the same warnings as those required when the drug is sold in prescription strength.

Wolfe said the label should carry strong warnings about its use by those with certain medical conditions, especially kidney and liver problems.

The FDA said studies have shown that naproxen's side effects are few and relatively mild: Complaints of side effects were mostly digestive problems and nervousness.

Naproxen sold in non-prescription strength would be for minor aches and pains and would not be intended for children younger than 12 years old.

Syntex spokeswoman Linda Thomas said the decision to sell the drug over the counter was driven by the calendar: The company's patent expires this December.

"It's part of our overall strategy to manage the patent expiration," she said. Syntex estimates the annual sales of all over-the-counter analgesics at $2.3 billion.

The marketing would be handled as a joint venture between Syntex and Procter & Gamble Co. P&G would handle sales to dentists and consumers and Syntex would handle sales to physicians, Ms. Thomas said.

The advisory panel's recommendation is not binding on the FDA, although the agency usually follows such advice.

Families to get special recognition

Great heroes are not the only ones to give their lives for others. Sometimes, heroes are those who give others life, often in the face of a great personal tragedy.

The U.S. government may soon recognize these heroes, the families of organ donors, legislation authorizing Congress to mint "Gift of Life" medals to honor donor families was introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Pete Stark (D-Cal.).

The bill, H.R. 1012, was introduced "to honor organ donors and their families in the hopes of increasing awareness of this lifesaving procedure," representative Stark, who presides over issues pertaining to Medicare, said. "Not only can transplantation save lives and improve the quality of life for recipients, it may also be a less costly alternative to dialysis."

The idea for the Congressional medal came from Donnmichael Taube, a kidney transplant recipient. Believing more needed to be done to encourage donations, Taube designed a medal and spent two years writing Congress about his proposal.

"This is a reward for doing good, a recognition of merit," Taube explained. "It's my way of saying thank you. We've got to show that organ donation is a wonderful act and that it's not going unappreciated. People appreciate recognition, which has got to lead to more awareness."

Letters of support can be sent to Representative Peter Stark, 239 Cannon Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20515.

You can also help by signing a donor card yourself.

New officers installed

Hereford Study Club officers installed

Members of the Hereford Study Club met recently in the home of Mary Stoy to install new officers. Serving as co-hostesses for the salad supper and closing meeting of the club year were Hazel Ford, Morgan Cain and Gracie Shaw.

Outgoing President Gladys Setliff called the meeting to order and requested final reports from each committee. She expressed her appreciation to committee members and to the officers who served with her during the year.

Setliff installed new officers using the word "thanks" to describe each office.

Using the letter "t", Setliff installed Bessie Story as treasurer saying "t" will mean time spent, troubles solved and tolerance; "h", meaning handling all correspondence for the club and perfecting the habit of timeliness, promptness and clarity, was used for Morgan Cain who will serve as corresponding secretary; "a", representing accuracy, ableness and aptness, was used to install Barbara Allen who will serve as recording and reporting secretary.

"Also, the letter "n" was used as Addie Cunningham was installed as vice president. "N" symbolized one who will be needed to plan programs for the coming year; "k" represented Nedra Robinson who will serve as parliamentarian, one who must be knowledgeable in deciding procedure in helping with the club's constitution; and "s", the final letter in the word "thanks" represented scepter, the badge of command which was bestowed on Hazel Ford who will serve as new president. Setliff will serve as historian who vowed to serve by collecting, sorting and mounting materials for the club scrapbook.

After acknowledging her new office, President Ford appointed committees for the new club year and adjourned the meeting.

Present were Barbara Allen, Jean Ballard, Willie Braddy, Doris Bryant, Cain, Cunningham, Ford, Mildred Garrison, Betty Gilbert, Hellman, Carol McGilvary, Robinson, Setliff, Shaw, Stoy, Virginia Winget and Joan Yarbrow.

BOZEMAN, Mo. (AP) - Country-western fans began lining up at Montana State University 12 hours before tickets for a concert by Clint Black and Wynonna Judd went on sale.

Gina Best was the first in line at 5 a.m. Thursday.

"You don't get this kind of opportunity in Bozeman very often," said Best, who brought along four books to pass the time. By 11:30 a.m. she had been joined by two-dozen others willing to wait for hours to get the $23 tickets. Bruce Parker, assistant athletic director at MSU, said people from all over the country have inquired about the concert July 23 at the school.

Hints from Heloise

EMPTY TUBE?

Dear Heloise: Save lots of money by not throwing away "empty" tubes of makeup, medicines, lotions and creams. Instead, cut off the top of the "empty" tube (the screw-top end) and you'll find at least several more applications of the tube's contents.

Keep it moist by wrapping in a small piece of plastic wrap until needed. — J. Vatcher, Seekonk, Mass.

A self-sealing plastic bag would also be a convenient way to keep the contents moist. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have two herniated disks in the lower lumbar section. This was caused by moving some furniture. I have been treated with Medrol Dosepack, cortisone shots and acupuncture, which did relieve my muscle spasms. I can't stand for any length of time and when I look in the mirror I am tilted to the right. I have been doing some stretching exercises, using a moist heating pad and have a sheet of plywood underneath my mattress. What is the next step?

DEAR READER: I note you moved the furniture a year and a half ago. I am not sure how long you have been disabled. But if you have that much trouble and it began that long ago, you may want to consider surgery. You must still have spasm of muscles along the right side of your spine if you are tilted to the right. You may want to see a specialist in physical medicine to see if there is some help to relieve it; that may make a big difference.

...HMM, LET'S SEE...3, THAT'S HOW MANY EGGS I HAD IN MY OMELET... 49 IS MOM'S AGE, ALTHOUGH SHE SAYS 39... SCRUFFY IS 4, WHICH IS 28 IN DOG YEARS...OUR ANNIVERSARY IS THE 6TH—OR IS IT THE 9TH?—BETTER SKIP THAT ONE...I HAVE 8 FINGERS, NOT COUNTING MY THUMBS...

NOW THERE ARE TWO WAYS TO PLAY LOTTO TEXAS.

QUICK PICK, PLEASE.

Coming up with six numbers has always been part of the fun and challenge of playing LOTTO Texas. But now you can also let the computer pick your numbers with the fast and easy Quick Pick option. Simply ask the clerk for Quick Pick, or mark the box on your LOTTO Texas playslip.

Must be 18 years or older to play. ©1993 Texas Lottery
