Demo race for Sheriff to be determined Tuesday

Balloting set here in GOP, Demo primaries

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A single local political race will be decided Tuesday by Deaf Smith County voters who will join others in Texas in "Super Tuesday" primary elections.

The only contest on either Democratic or Republican ticket in Deaf Smith County is between Sheriff Joe Brown Jr. and a former deputy, Fidel Reyna Jr.

Polls will open at Tuesday 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. for both political primary elections. Nine polling places will be open for Democratic voting. Republican voting will be located at Hereford Junior High for all precincts.

Prospects are not good for a big turnout for the party primaries. Friday afternoon shortly before the deadline for early voting, only 261 Democratic ballots had been marked and 175 ballots had been cast in the GOP election.

If experience of prior years can be used as a measuring stick for this year's election, less than 40 percent of the 9,269 eligible voters in Deaf Smith County will vote in primaries.

With the light early vote, observers are apprehensive that the total will reach 30 percent this year.

In 1994, when top state offices were up for grabs and a hotly-contested governor's race attracted attention, only 35.8 percent of Deaf Smith's 8,987 voters cast primary ballots. The same year saw contests for several county offices, also.

In 1992, a Presidential primary year, the total vote in both party primaries was 34.8 percent of the 8,423 eligible voters in the county.

The early vote in 1990 was 39 percent of eligible voters, 9,088.

Texas is one of several states that will conduct Presidential primary elections Tuesday.

Most of the election excitement has waned this year with the GOP presidential nomination practically locked up by Sen. Robert Dole. His Texas opponent, Sen. Phil Gramm, dropped out of the race earlier to concentrate on re-election to his Senate seat.

David C. Young and Henry C. (Hank) Grover are opposing Gramm for the GOP nomination.

On the Democratic ticket, Jim Chapman, John Will Odam, Victor M. Morales and John Bryant are vying for the Senate seat nomination.

Closer to home, U.S. Rep. Larry Combest of the 19th District is unopposed for the Republican nomination. Two Democrats, Michael G. Cleannan and John W. Sawyer, are seeking the Democratic nomination.

State Rep. John Smithee of the 86th District is on the GOP ballot to return to office. There are no Democratic candidates for the position.

Several judicial seats will be filled in elections this year. Another statewide election is for Railroad Commission. Democrats have no

Industry group likes House health care reform proposal

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The health insurance industry is praising a House Republican plan for providing health care coverage to more Americans, but the enthusiasm isn't shared elsewhere on Capitol Hill.

"It sounds far superior to the Senate plan. We see in this proposal a number of ways to slow down the rate of increase in insurance costs," said Bill Gradison, president of the Health Insurance Association of America.

But Senate leaders and House Democrats criticized the proposals, unveiled at a news conference Friday, as overly ambitious.

"We need simple, straightforward insurance reform," said House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., sponsor of a simpler health insurance reform bill in the Senate, contended that if her House colleagues aren't cautious, "they could jeopardize the chances that any reform would pass this year."

Her bill would extend coverage to about 25 million Americans who cannot now get health insurance, she said.

President Clinton and 50 senators from both parties support Kassebaum's bill, but provisions added in the House could put a wrinkle in the drive for changes in the health care system.

House committee chairmen, with no Democratic input, got together with Hastert, who is House Republican deputy whip, and agreed on legislation that would:

- Guarantee that workers covered by a group health insurance plan continue coverage uninterrupted when they change or lose their jobs.

- Allow self-employed workers and small businesses a tax deduction of up to 50 percent of their health insurance costs.

- Allow small businesses to group together to reduce the cost of providing health insurance to their employees.

- Change medical malpractice laws.

Arellano, Torbert planning runs for HSD board seats

It's official -- there WILL be an election this year for the Hereford ISD board of trustees.

With the filing of the second candidate in the race for the District 2 trustee seat on Friday, a new state law allowing cancellation of the election if all candidates were unopposed was rendered moot and the May 4 trustee election became official.

Charlie Arellano, 37, an employee of the Texas Department of Transportation on Friday filed paperwork to get on the ballot for the District 2 seat currently held by Raul Valdez.

Valdez has already filed for re-election.

Also Friday, insurance agent Jeff Torbert, 39, filed documents placing him on the ballot for the District 7 seat currently held by Board President Jim Marsh.

Marsh has picked up paperwork for filing for re-election, but as of Friday had not turned those documents in. He previously announced he would seek a second term on the school board.

The District 2 race between Arellano and Valdez is the only contested race to date.

Torbert is the only official candidate for the District 7 seat, while Lloyd Ames -- who filed earlier -- is the only candidate so far for the District 5 seat formerly held by Joe Flood and now vacant.

Nobody has filed yet to get on the ballot for the District 4 seat, which is currently held by Ron Weishaar.

Weishaar has announced he will not seek re-election.

People interested in filing for school board may do so through 5 p.m. March 20 in the school administration office, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

Under new state law, the school office will be open three hours a day next week, even though the district will be closed for Spring Break.

Executive secretary Carolyn Hiltbrunner will be on duty in the office from 9 a.m. to noon daily in the foyer of the school office specifically for people interested in picking up or filing election documents.

No other district business will be conducted at that time.

Early voting for the May 4 election -- which also is for the city commission and hospital board -- will be held April 15 through April 30 in the County Clerk's office.

Cowgirl Hall to close March 27, moving collection to Fort Worth

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The time has come for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Hereford to close and make ready for the move to Fort Worth, it was announced Friday afternoon by Wenonah Barringer, the center's office manager.

"The last day we'll be open for tours is Wednesday, March 27," said Barringer. The center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The actual move has been a long time coming. The CHOF announced in April 1994 that it would be moving to Fort Worth, selecting that site after more than 35 cities expressed interest in serving as the home to the center.

Margaret Formby, founder of the Hall of Fame and former director, said she could not answer questions about specific plans for the center, "since I am no longer in the loop." She has been voted as a lifetime member, however.

She added that the new board said it is planning to use the collection in some manner, not just put it all in storage. They have mentioned a traveling exhibit, as well as some displays in temporary offices.

Formby is more optimistic after the Fort Worth group scrapped plans to house the museum at the stockyards. In January, Kit Moncrief, new president of the group, announced plans to construct a $5 million, 20,000-square-foot structure in the cultural district near the Kimbell Art Museum. Estimates are, however, that it will be 1999 before that building has a groundbreaking.

Formby said the board felt it needed to have the collection available so that the design team will know exactly what they're working with and can plan the floor space, exhibit and display areas. "That makes sense," she said.

"Maybe their motivation is to create a presence for the center in Fort Worth, even though they are still three years away from having a building," said Formby. "I think they are really on track now, but a lot of time has been wasted and I believe anyone would have some doubts about that."

What will happen to the building, located at 515 Ave. B in Hereford, is not known. "The building belongs to the Hall of Fame. We hope to have some input into the new board's plans for the disposition of the building here."

Formby said the move will be "bittersweet." She is happy that the hall is going to be in the cultural district where it can have its own identity. "It's in the right location, but I'm sad for Hereford--more than anyone would know."

When the local directors announced moving plans in 1994, they said the hall didn't have the financial resources to expand as needed, and it had outgrown Hereford's ability to support it.

Some local board members, as well as honorees, have expressed disenchantment with the way the Fort Worth group has handled the transition. An archivist from Fort Worth came in late 1994, measured the files and had them loaded on a truck and moved within 48 hours.

There were hurt feelings that the wealthy new directors in Fort Worth had given a "cold shoulder" to the local directors and its founder, Formby. More bad feelings arose when the new board unveiled plans to move the collection to a warehouse in Fort Worth.

Local Roundup

Schools dismiss for Spring Break

All Hereford schools will be out of session this week as they celebrate Spring Break, the last major holiday before the end of the school year. School offices also will be closed, although the HISD office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday for the sole purpose of allowing candidates for school board to file their candidacy papers. School will resume on regular session on Monday, March 18.

County, school meetings off

Deaf Smith County Commissioners, normally scheduled to meet Monday, will not this week because of Spring Break. Another meeting canceled is Monday's regular discussion session of the Hereford ISD board of trustees, which is normally held on the second Monday of the month.

Closed meet for hospital board

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District will hold a special meeting beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the only agenda item being an executive session of the board. Purpose of the closed meeting is to consult with the board's attorney on a matter which could lead to litigation, and to confer with some employees of the hospital to receive information or to ask questions.

Shuttle makes safe Florida landing a day after homecoming postponed

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—After a day's delay, space shuttle Columbia and its crew returned to Earth today, ending a 16-day voyage marred by a landing-system failure and the loss of a tethered science satellite.

Columbia glided through high, wispy clouds and landed at Kennedy Space Center just before 9 a.m.

The seven astronauts were thrilled to be back -- they cheered and yelled "All right!" after the shuttle rolled to a safe stop.

"We copy your elation," Mission Control said. "Welcome back."

NASA had promised commander Andrew Allen and his crew a touchdown on one coast or the other, after cloudy skies scuttled Friday's landing attempts. The shuttle had a failed computer circuit, dictating a quick return.

Because of that failure, NASA had to break one of its own rules to keep Columbia aloft an extra day. The circuit, which has three identical backups, relays commands to the wing flaps, rudder and brakes.

Even though only one of the four circuits is needed for a safe landing, agency rules require that a flight end as soon as possible after a failure. Yet NASA decided against sending Columbia on Friday to the backup site at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., in hopes the Florida weather would improve.

Mission operations director Lee Briscoe said the longtime flight rule is ultraconservative, and officials had considered easing it long before this week. "The rules aren't written to cover every single case," he explained.

Flight directors passed on this morning's first try after thick clouds rolled in. The clouds later scattered and, at the last possible moment, Mission Control gave Allen the go-ahead.

Touchdown on the 15,000-foot concrete runway appeared to go well. It ended a journey of more than 6 million miles that fell far short of its goal -- unreeling a satellite on 12 miles of cable, generating electricity with the system for two days and then bringing it all back.

The tether broke without warning, less than five hours into the experiment, and the satellite drifted off.

Columbia was launched Feb. 22 with the half-ton Italian satellite and other, much less dramatic, science experiments.

Scientists hoped to prove that tethered satellites can generate electricity while sweeping through Earth's magnetic field. Astronauts released the satellite on Feb. 25 and nearly had extended the tether its full length when the slender, copper and nylon cord snapped.

The astronauts watched helplessly as the $400-million-plus satellite slipped into the ether as nothing more than space junk. The spherical craft and its 12-mile tail are expected to burn up in Earth's atmosphere in two weeks or less.

Until the split, the tethered satellite had produced up to 3,500 volts of electricity and 1,000 watts of power.

Gudgell loses final appeal

Official notice that a petition for review of the trial of Donna Gudgell has been denied was received Friday by 222nd District Court Judge David Wesley Gulley.

Gudgell was convicted in June 1994 on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting death of her husband in September 1993 and sentenced to 35 years in prison.

An appeal to the Seventh Court of Appeals to reverse the conviction was denied last November.

The notice received Friday was from the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, the final step in the state's appellate system.

Gudgell and Chris Don Barron, a foster son and farm worker, were both convicted in the death of Bill Gudgell. Barron testified in the prosecution's case against her. In a plea bargain, he also was sentenced to 35 years in prison.

Bill Gudgell was shot once in the head while sitting at the kitchen table in the couple's farm home in northwest Deaf Smith County. He was airlifted to Amarillo where he was pronounced dead.

A jury in 222nd District Court heard testimony in the five-day trial of Donna Gudgell before returning a guilty verdict and assessing the 35-year prison sentence.

Judge Gulley presided in the trial in June 1994.

Focus on Your City

By BOB JOSSERAND
Mayor, City of Hereford

One of the most pleasant and rewarding experiences I have had while serving as your mayor occurred last Monday afternoon at City Hall. It was my distinct privilege to receive from the youth in our public school system a most generous contribution for the "Build on the Dream" campaign for the Hereford Aquatic Center Park.

There was representation from Kindergarten through high school as well as several faculty advisors that made the contribution so special. It was simply an outstanding example of why those of us in the older generation need not have any fears about where our youth are headed.

Each school campus, with faculty help, decided what the school's fundraising approach would be. Some were as complicated as raffles, others held king and queen contests, but at each campus there was originality and expression of my favorite thought that "EACH OF US CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE."

With approximately $5,200 already reached by our public school kids and more coming in from there, there surely is a big-time challenge to us adults. The last time I checked, we were about $26,000 along toward our goal of $40,000 to develop the Aquatic Center Park.

I would challenge each and every citizen of Hereford and Deaf Smith County to be a part financially of this opportunity to have a truly outstanding example of community development for all of the State of Texas.

Let's face it folks: there isn't another community in all of the Panhandle that already has an aquatic facility like ours. The Aquatic Center Park can only make the whole area a better place for all of us.

Recently, I have heard several questions. I would like to try to answer some of them.

First and foremost has been the question of whether contributions may be made to recognize someone in the form of a memorial or to honor someone presently living. The answer to that question is most decidedly "YES!"

We encourage you to recognize those among us or those who have departed by make a donation to the park.

The second most frequently asked question is related to acknowledgment of donations. We probably will have several different means of recognition but the most lasting will be at the park. We'll begin very shortly on installation of a permanent recognition display. We will centralize the recognition of all donors in a principal area.

The third most-asked question is why monies from the voluntary park fund are not used for this purpose. The answer is very simply that we have committed those funds for a three-year period to our other parks. If we postpone those efforts by using those funds at the Aquatic Center Park, it puts us further behind in upgrading our existing facilities for a better quality of life for all of us.

I know that many of you have not made your contribution yet to the Build on the Dream campaign, and the opportunity is certainly still there to send your donations to City Hall, or drop a contribution at either bank, or stop any campaign volunteer and write a check. It is tax deductible, it is making a difference and it is certainly showing all the world that Hereford and Deaf Smith County is a community of caring individuals. I urge you to make a difference for the park.

If you haven't driven by the park recently, please take the time to do so. You will see a sizeable number of trees already planted, a few picnic tables on site and a picnic shelter rapidly moving toward completion. Benches are in place. I have been told that already reservations have been made by some of our class reunion groups for use of the Aquatic Center as well as the picnic area. Folks, it will be an area for all of us to enjoy.

Finally, before I leave the subject of the Aquatic Center Park, I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to all the volunteers who have offered to solicit funds for the park. I know several of you have not yet completed all of your calls, and

I encourage you to move forward as quickly as possible "You are making a difference."

A special thanks to Bobby Owen and Jeff Torbert for co-chairing the drive, and also to Don Cumpston for really showing all of us what our youth are capable of accomplishing. Thanks again to all of you.

Ranger recalls time he was a pioneer in unit

Rodriguez gained distinction as first Hispanic member of crime-fighting group

EDITOR'S NOTE - From within and without, the Texas Rangers of the 1990s have been challenged about the agency's acceptance of women and minorities. But almost three decades ago, there was another pioneer.

"It's a miracle that I ever became more than a common laborer." - Art Rodriguez.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - On a sultry afternoon in 1969, state trooper Art Rodriguez daydreamed at his South Texas home of a change in his humdrum crime-fighting career. He was not optimistic. He had gunned down no dangerous criminals nor captured any notorious bandits. Given the history of the Texas Rangers, he fretted also that an Hispanic applicant would not even be considered for the elite, historic organization.

"But what the hell," he remembers thinking at the time. So he marched one day into the office of a tough and widely feared Texas Ranger named A.Y. Allee to inquire about a job he was convinced he would not get.

"They said back then that Capt. Allee had Mexican blood," Rodriguez recalled. "On the tips of his boots."

Allee peered across his desk at the sturdy, brown-haired, nervous, young trooper and declared: "I would be very happy and proud to have you work for me."

As Rodriguez sat speechless, he watched Allee telephone Austin and instruct his superiors to place his name among the list of applicants.

And that's how Arturo Rodriguez Jr., then 31, became the first Hispanic to serve as a commissioned officer in the oldest crime-fighting agency of its kind in North America.

"It was the greatest thing that ever

"I came across a lot of 'Jacks' during my next 25 years of law enforcement."

Art Rodriguez

happened to me or will ever happen to me," he told a reporter recently. Later, he would add with a shrug: "Leaving the Rangers was my greatest regret."

... Growing up in Uvalde above the Texas-Mexico border, young Rodriguez saw many of his young friends settle into menial jobs, and he was determined to avoid a similar fate.

"My English was very limited and uncertain, and I was intimidated by the Anglos," he admits. "But I wanted to do something and be something."

Against prevailing odds, he chose law enforcement. It was a choice that would take him through volatile 1970s South Texas towns as Crystal City and Carrizo Springs, across the Rio Grande Valley and to a strange interlude with George Parr, the infamous "Duke of Duval County."

There would be other stops in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and Eagle Pass, in California and Mississippi, and in Mexico and the Caribbean.

It was a memorable odyssey, though it began and ended in disillusionment.

In 1965, after four years in the Marines, Rodriguez signed on as the first Hispanic deputy sheriff in Uvalde. But he quickly realized he was no more than a glorified "gofer."

That initial foray into crime fighting was a "total disappointment."

In 1966, Rodriguez talked his way into a job with the Uvalde police department, which treated him decidedly better. But he saw a darker side of law enforcement.

"One of my biggest complaints against fellow officers was that some were discourteous and used excessive force when making an arrest, especially with Mexican-Americans. Most offensive was a loudmouth, arrogant officer he called 'Jack'

"They said back then that Capt. Allee had Mexican blood on the tips of his boots."

Art Rodriguez

who would taunt his targets, call for a backup and then, with his quarry in handcuffs, beat and kick them.

Rodriguez often clashed with the fellow officer and they nearly fought on occasion.

"But," he would say ruefully, "I came across a lot of 'Jacks' during my next 25 years of law enforcement."

One day Rodriguez met a Texas Ranger named Joaquin Jackson, who was stationed in Uvalde and on his way to becoming a legend. Jackson would change his life forever.

"We would work together, hunt together and drink together," Rodriguez said. "He inspired me to believe in myself. He brought out the best in me."

Jackson encouraged Rodriguez to join the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Rangers' parent agency, and supplied the application, which the two of them "embellished the hell out of."

It worked.

"I became the first Mexican-American to graduate as a bona fide highway patrolman," Rodriguez says. "I owe Joaquin Jackson a world of gratitude."

Rodriguez spent a year and a half as a DPS trooper in Duval County where he and partner Oren Moore mostly chased speeders, confiscated drugs, arrested minor felons and pursued dope peddlers.

Early on, he and Moore visited the courthouse to meet county officials.

"I was approached by a small-framed man of about 55 or 60 years who spoke fluent Spanish and acted liked he owned the courthouse," Rodriguez recalled.

"Who in the hell are you?" George Parr asked.

Rodriguez introduced himself.

"I didn't think they let any Mexicans in the highway patrol service," Rodriguez quotes Parr as saying.

"They must have made a mistake..." Rodriguez replied.

The meeting ended cordially, and Rodriguez, in a book he is writing off and on, would touch floridly on Parr:

"The South Texas Robin Hood: the political boss that changed the course of history; the protector of the poor and menace to the rich; the man who made political heroes out of some and goats of others; the man who could appoint judges, elect senators, and even help Lyndon B. Johnson attain the highest elective office of the land, the presidency of the United States of America - this man would also have an influence on my law enforcement career."

Rodriguez and Moore soon learned that no matter the number of arrests, convictions were rare, dismissals commonplace. A bit reluctantly, they confronted Parr, who was surprisingly responsive.

At a subsequent meeting, Parr told

"The Anglos questioned my ability to perform to the level demanded by the history and tradition of the famous Texas Rangers and the Mexican-Americans were accusing me of being a traitor to my own people, a Mexican that had defected and joined the enemy."

Art Rodriguez

the officers: "I have instructed my JPs to cooperate with you, and if they don't, let me know and I'll take care of it."

Says Rodriguez now: "From that day on our conviction rate increased 100 percent and the dismissal rate plunged."

... The Texas of the Sixties was a turbulent era for both law enforcement and Hispanics, and Art Rodriguez's Ranger career may have been doomed from the beginning.

The Rangers had a reputation as anti-Hispanic, none more so than Allee, who was repeatedly accused of brutality by striking South Texas farm workers.

Rodriguez found himself scorned not only by Anglos and Mexican-Americans but also by a growing Hispanic political organization, Raza Unida. The party's headquarters was practically in his own back yard.

He says leaders of the group were shouting "Kill the gringos!" and he was caught right in the middle: "I was damned if I did and damned if I didn't."

They branded him a tyrant and a "coconut": brown on the outside, white on the inside.

The timing of the Ranger appointment was awkward for Rodriguez, but no more so than his ties to the controversial Capt. Allee.

"The Anglos questioned my ability to perform to the level demanded by the history and tradition of the famous Texas Rangers," he recalls, "and the Mexican-Americans were accusing me of being a traitor to my own people, a Mexican that had defected and joined the enemy."

Was in fact he somehow "used" by Allee?

"I don't think so. He knew me through Joaquin and he knew the work I was doing in Crystal City as a DPS patrolman."

Besides, he chuckled, Allee was not one to play politics.

"Capt. Allee was his own man. He wouldn't appoint me or anybody else to pacify anyone."

Despite the pitfalls, Rodriguez, according to some of his old colleagues, eventually earned the respect of the Hispanic community and most of the Texas Rangers.

And with minor reservations, he came to admire Capt. Allee.

"The whole country was changing, and bless his heart, Cap tried to change," Rodriguez said. "But he was from the old school and he didn't know how to."

"Still, he was a man among men."

A hard-nosed traditionalist, "Cap" Allee frequently admonished Rodriguez to never surrender his weapon. "Don't ever shame us," Allee insisted. "Don't ever lose your gun."

That advice may have saved his life.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says women-like to shop in pairs because when they have money to spend, they like to have someone watch them spend it.

Since most doctors no longer make house calls, you have to be in pretty good health to find out what's wrong with you.

Congratulations to Dr. Milton Adams on being named "Citizen of the Year" for 1995 at the annual Chamber Banquet Thursday night. Unfortunately, Dr. Adams was in the hospital in Lubbock and unable to be present for the recognition.

As has been the case at a few other banquets, the award for Adams might more clearly be termed "Citizen Through the Years." Milton has been an asset to the community in many areas of civic life since 1946.

Two other awards--to Mike Carr and Lajeane Henry--were also in recognition of years of service. Both are making career changes. Carr, executive vice president, was honored for 18 years of service to the chamber.

Carr recently announced his resignation to enter an auto dealership with John Stagner. And Lajeane, who sold the Pants Cafe, was presented a plaque for her leadership in the retail business sector and the chamber for many years.

Banquet goers had high praise for the special entertainment--the Satin Strings, a Permian High School group. With the number of awards presented, the banquet program worked out well to have a short musical performance.

About 30 local business firms cooperated in decorating tables for the banquet, adding a colorful and unique setting. Gifts, or "favors", were placed at the tables for each person.

It used to be somewhat of a compliment to be called an "average Joe." After reading a study released last week on the composite Mr. Average, we're not so sure.

First of all, he weighed 172 pounds and was 5-9. Well, we're above average at 6-2, but we're close on the pounds.

The average guy makes love 10 minutes at a time and has been with 5 to 10 partners during his lifetime. (I'm below average on those numbers, and I wonder if Joe is bragging a little!)

The average guy, according to the March issue of Men's Health, has downed 11 beers in the past week, buys frozen pizza four times a month, can run a mile in minutes, and do 33.5 situps in 60 seconds.

Mr. Average can bench press 88 percent of his body weight, watches 28 hours of TV each week, and gets 7.5 hours of sleep each night. He makes just under $30,000 a year and saves about $3,000.

Well, statistics don't always tell the true story, do they?

A stress survey among editors recently revealed that respondents reported more stress in their jobs, stress taking a bigger toll on their health and more stress among women.

That's the bad news. The Associated Press, reporting on results of the survey, said the good news is that you can cope, even in the newsroom.

A panel of experts offered tips on coping with stress at a national press convention. The tips included:

--Monitor yourself to avoid self-destructive habits. Seek balance in your personal and professional life. Find things you enjoy during outside of work.

--Exercise. It may be cliché, but it's hard to find a better stress management tool. Just don't overdo it. Excessive exercise can do more harm than good.

--Develop coping skills. Avoid blaming others for your problems. We must learn to accept criticism and even failure, while learning to maintain composure.

--Watch what you eat and drink. Vitamins can be useful but aren't a substitute for a balanced diet. Watch your cholesterol and other bad stuff. Don't smoke. Drink in moderation.

As one panelist advised: "You can have anything you want; you just can't have everything you want."

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

When the wind blows and Gene Autry's tumblin' tumbleweeds do their dance across the landscape, there's a tendency among human beings to get a little edgy and cranky.

At least, that's my observation of the reaction among friends and family.

With the wind howling at 30 miles per hour and the tumbleweeds blowing at least that fast, or faster, a return of the Dust Bowl appears imminent. Always seems like every cloud that looks promising of producing rain is blown away.

Since my life was barely underway when the Depression and Dust Bowl combined to make life miserable in the 1930s, I have little real experience of the two. As many others, I have a tendency to couple them in my mind.

Whether Dust Bowl and Depression were really related I'd hate to say. But the fact is the Depression put lots of men out of work and the Dust Bowl didn't help any.

Maybe what makes us edgy and cranky when the wind blows is a deep-seated fear that the Dust Bowl may return.

Since tumbleweeds often are notorious for their size, there have been tall tales about the weeds' deeds. Such as bowling over children and small animals, denting vehicles when crashing into them and piling up to block sidewalks and streets.

But, some creative people have found uses for tumbleweeds that are either attractive or utilitarian, or both.

For instance, a man I knew who was noted for being able to squeeze a nickle to death decided he could save money by building a Christmas "tree" from tumbleweeds, instead of buying a traditional fir or pine.

By the time he was through with his project, his wife was ready to strangle him. But, the miracle of the ages, as it developed, was his tree looked pretty good. He collected quite a few wisecracks, from the town wags, when he was seen hauling tumbleweeds in a trailer.

Nearly everyone knows how to do it but, to explain, my friend elevated stacking tumbleweeds to an art. He spray-painted the weeds, then hung ornaments on the whole thing.

He admitted, later, that he'd never do it again. It took a while to pick the stickers out of his hands and the paint costs was exorbitant.

The neatest use of a tumbleweed in my experience occurred when a friend in West Texas shipped a box of nostalgia to me in The Bronx, New York.

Summoned to the main entrance of the apartment building by the doorman, I was astonished to see this box about four feet long, three feet wide and a foot deep, waiting for me. My first reaction was there was no way I could carry that box back to my apartment.

Then, I reached for it and discovered, as I lifted it, that it weighed only a few pounds. What, I wondered, was my friend up to? I could hardly wait to open the box. Mind you, this was just days before Christmas. We were hundreds and hundreds of miles from home territory and plain old homesick. Not to mention two kids really sick.

With scissors, I cut open the end of the box, then rammed my hand into it. Ouch.

Gingerly, I pulled my hand out as it clutched a small tumbleweed, studded with some other gems of the prairie and desert. I hadn't a clue what to do with these treasures, although that would come later.

There were yucca pods, devil's claws, dried sticks of cactus and two small tumbleweeds. (In reality, it may have been one tumbleweed that got broken up in the mail.)

Some time later, I bought some spray paint and gave that old tumbleweed a good dousing, in a silver color. Then, I took blue paint to the other items and when I got through, I had a centerpiece for a dinner party. For a non-artist, the end result was quite attractive. (At least the dinner guests said as much.)

But when the box was first opened, that tumbleweed drew a tear or two (not because of sticking my hand) as we remembered our roots in West Texas, far from the hubbub of the Big Apple.

Some last-minute election information

Well, with the primary election just a couple of days away, I thought I'd give you a summary of what some people think about this year's candidates.

I don't know how much, if at all, this will help you on Tuesday, but either way, please be sure to get out Tuesday and vote for someone you think will be the best for the job.

AARP
The American Association of Retired Persons has published a voters guide that asks each of the four current candidates -- Bill Clinton, Bob Dole, Pat Buchanan, Steve Forbes -- and four former GOP hopefuls a series of questions about their stands on five issues.

They asked the candidates about Medicare, Social Security, tax reform, long-term care and campaign finance reform. The guide makes no conclusions about the candidates, but instead allows senior voters the chance to read about the candidates and their stands.

As expected, the AARP guide focuses on issues important to senior citizens.

For example, the question about long-term care says, "What steps will you take to ensure that affordable long-term care, including nursing home and home health care, is available to people of all ages and incomes who need it?"

An AP news analysis

Why not everyone is climbing on the train

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - When the campaign train is pulling out, as one of Bob Dole's new passengers said, it's best to climb aboard. That's sound politics, and it can provide a ticket to a role in a Republican administration, should there be one next year.

But guidelines like those don't influence the two challengers Dole still faces in his all-but-assured quest for the GOP presidential nomination. For Pat Buchanan, this isn't about winning - he virtually concedes that to Dole. It is about a cause, and about enforcing his conservative views.

Nor do the restraints of conventional politics apply to Steve Forbes, still pressing his campaign and his flat tax cause. He has the money to make himself heard - $1 million-plus in television advertising, for example, in his final push for Thursday's 93-delegate New York primary.

Dole swept New York, had the state GOP organization on his side, and had with the impetus of his eight-state presidential primary sweep on Tuesday. That led two candidates, former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander and Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar, to withdraw and endorse Dole on Wednesday.

"I made the decision that the train was moving down the track too fast for me to stop it and turn it around," Alexander said in quitting the race and pledging full support to Dole, whom he'd been calling the wrong man for the times and a candidate without ideas.

Alexander and Lugar both said they'd listened to the voters long enough to get the message. And both gave the classic, evasive demurrals to the question of whether they'd accept second place on a Dole ticket.

Either man would, but it never does to say so.

That fits the standard script. What

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

The group stresses that it is non-partisan and does not support or oppose candidates for public office or any political party.

LIBERTY TREE
Liberty Tree, a non-profit corporation the has as its goal fighting voter apathy, has published "A Guide for the Politically Challenged," in advance of the Texas Primary.

This guide includes a variety of information about voting, plus has a breakdown of the planks in each party's platform.

This analysis focuses on agriculture, education, energy, environment, family issues, health, immigration, labor, law and justice, religion, rights and responsibilities, taxes and economy, welfare reform and other.

For example, under agriculture, this guide says, these are the supporting statements of each party:
Republicans -- "Movement toward a free market economy in Agriculture."

Democrats -- "Establishing minimum price support levels, utilizing marketing quotas and market management programs adopted through producer referenda, maintaining national reserve, establishing labeling standards for genetically engineered products. Large number of family farms rather than large corporations and conglomerates, and better upkeep on farm-to-market roads."

There is a "Bottom Line" to the section, which notes that, "There is a myth that the platform is put away in a drawer and forgotten for the next four years. Many of these issues become legislative agenda items for your party to enact into law."

This guide is even less partisan than the AARP guide, because it doesn't mention any candidates, only how the process works.

TSTA
The Political Action Committee of the Texas State Teachers Association has issued its endorsements for president, senate and other races. Big surprise here -- they like President Clinton for president and Democratic challenger John Bryant for Senate.

As for U.S. Congressional races, state House and Senate races and State Board of Education, they overwhelmingly endorse Democrats over Republicans, with only six Republicans gaining TSTA-PAC endorsements.

Suffice it to say, they didn't endorse U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, or State Rep. John Smithee, R-Amarillo.

CHRISTIAN COALITION

This group has sent out its Congressional Scorecard, where it rates all U.S. Representatives and Senators on their votes on issue critical to the family.

A score is given based on 14 House votes and 10 Senate votes.

Officially, the Coalition does not endorse or support any candidate or party.

However, their voting guide is designed to make voters aware of how their congressmen vote on particular issues.

Combest, the Christian Coalition determines, scored a 100 percent, as did Sens. Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchinson.

Guest Editorial

The Marshall News Messenger on a day without divorce: Let's hope "A Day Without Divorce" catches on.

Citizens in the Beaumont area organized "A Day Without Divorce," which was celebrated last Thursday. For one day, eight family law judges in Jefferson, Orange and Hardin counties granted no divorces during what was described as a "day of reconciliation."

"This says that God and biblical values and morality haven't been forgotten by those who administer the law," said District Judge Bill Beggs. "Couples need to be fulfilling their commitments to each other and remembering their vows; you know, 'until death do us part,' and not 'til I don't feel like being married to you."

Not for a moment would we advocate forcing couples to remain in relationships where there is abuse and an absence of love, affection and personal growth. But we'd have to agree that too many people regard divorce as a relatively simple solution to deeper problems.

It takes hard work by both parties for a marriage to be successful. Marriage should be for the long haul and is not for the foolish or faint of heart. People forget that even the most successful persons run into problems now and again. Every winning football coach has lost big games, or may have had a run of losing seasons. Every Fortune 500 corporation president can tell about a job he or she didn't get, or about businesses or products that failed.

Problems crop up in marriages every day. Yet, millions of couples can and do work through such monsters as major physical and mental illnesses, child rearing, poverty, differences over money and politics, troublesome in-laws, adultery, gambling addiction, alcohol or drug abuse, leaving the toilet seat up, or the failure to have supper ready.

Discuss problems patiently. Take a deep breath. Think things through. Obtain help from family, friends, clergy or family health professionals.

Working through life's problems and enjoying its rewards - together - is the thing that makes life worth living. The same can't be said for a series of meaningless relationships abandoned without struggle. Divorce should be a last resort.

RODRIGUEZ

received a call from the Dimmitt County Sheriff's Office in Carrizo Springs. A wedding dance was out of control at nearby Big Wells.

When he and other officers arrived, they found a number of revelers, one of whom confronted Rodriguez and was promptly arrested. While he was being handcuffed and turned over to a deputy sheriff, an ominous crowd gathered.

"You're not going to take him!" they shouted.

As the officers struggled with other drunks, Rodriguez remembered that, in the movies at least, a shot fired into the air often restores order. Not this time.

"Only a few even noticed, and they didn't seem impressed," he said.

Then a screaming, kicking mob of 15 or 20 rushed him, pushed him against a barbed wire fence and began pawing and pummeling him. He could feel them grabbing for his pistol.

"I could hear Cap's words: 'Don't lose your gun.'" Rodriguez said.

With a flashlight and a blackjack, he hammered back at his assailants, losing his $100 hat, his tie clip, most of his shirt -- but not his gun.

"During my school years, my goal, like that of many other Mexican-American kids was just to get by."

Art Rodriguez

"I knew that if they got me off my feet they would stomp me to death," he said. "I considered getting my gun out and shooting some of my attackers, but I didn't."

The bruised Ranger and his colleagues finally escaped in a shower of rocks and debris, then called for reinforcements. Eventually, 20 persons were arrested, including 13 who were treated for head lacerations at the Carrizo Springs hospital.

"I put all of them there," Rodriguez said. Proudly.

By mid-1971, Rodriguez felt he was at the height of his Ranger career. He had established a rapport with other law enforcement agencies and had solved some major cases.

But Allee had retired, which created new problems.

"My immediate boss would often refer to Mexican-Americans as 'Meskins,' and even though I tried to explain the degrading meaning of the word, he never understood or tried to understand."

Even worse, Rodriguez said the senior Ranger captain often used the word, too.

Then came an episode which he says altered his Ranger career. He and a colleague were drinking beer in a club after a seminar in Austin when the other officer became belligerent and threatened to shut down the place.

Rodriguez hustled him out to the car, then returned and apologized.

A week later, the company commander in San Antonio insisted that Rodriguez accompany him back to Austin. He did not tell him he was being summoned by the senior captain.

"I was given the same penalty as a drunken Ranger who had abused his authority," he said, "when all I had done was help a fellow Ranger stay out of real trouble."

As upset as he was with the three-month suspension, Rodriguez was even angrier at his company commander for failing to support him.

"I felt betrayed," he said.

From his base in San Antonio, Rodriguez frequently worked with agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration. One such operation led to the arrest of notorious killer and heroin kingpin Fred Gomez Carrasco in July 1973.

A year later, Carrasco would die in a bloody shootout while attempting to escape from the state prison at Huntsville.

Impressed with the work of the

"I feel I contributed my best to law enforcement. I hope I opened the door for other Mexican-American kids and inspired them to dream and fulfill their goals."

Art Rodriguez

young Ranger, the DEA offered Rodriguez a job, which he turned down. But he soon reconsidered and accepted.

"I wish it never happened," Joaquin Jackson says now. "I think he'd been better off if he'd stayed with the Rangers. He was a good man, a good worker and a damn good peace officer."

Disenchantment with Ranger leadership figured in the decision, of course. But Rodriguez confided later that he also welcomed the element of danger and adventure in the DEA.

He got both with the DEA, a job he would hold from 1974 until 1986.

In the summer of 1983, Rodriguez and DEA agent Albert Castro flew to New Orleans to kick off an FBI "sting" operation that called for them to pose as Colombian drug dealers.

The target was a purported Dixie Mafia chieftain named D.J. Venus III. Deeked out in expensive clothes and jewelry, they met Venus one day in their $300-a-day hotel suite. And as the group sloshed down vintage whiskey, Venus told them the best area for a cocaine air drop would be his Mississippi ranch. He said local law enforcement officers would provide protection.

The undercover agents next met with Venus on his remote ranch near Biloxi, where they were introduced to Venus's associates. One of the host's sons was high on drugs or alcohol and waving around a semiautomatic weapon. Also present was a deputy sheriff.

Rodriguez, admittedly nervous, was relieved that he had refused an FBI demand to wear a recording device into the meeting.

The group washed down thick steaks with beer and whiskey as Rodriguez and Castro worked out details of the scheme. Rodriguez retrieved $5,000 from his rented Lincoln Town Car and handed it to the deputy as a "gift" from his Colombian drug lord.

A third meeting was arranged before the drop date and this time the sheriff himself appeared. Rodriguez gave him $15,000 as a "token of good faith" for his protection.

A subsequent Associated Press story would report:

"BILOXI, Miss. (AP) - A sheriff who was first elected on a pledge to clean up county corruption was arrested along with his chief deputy by undercover agents who had contracted to air drop a load of cocaine."

The article told how the sheriff, the deputy, Venus, his two sons and four other men were charged with conspiracy to import cocaine. Bonds ranged from $50,000 up to $500,000 for Venus.

"To my knowledge," says Rodriguez, "all were convicted and had to serve some time in a federal institution."

Over breakfast one morning in a San Antonio hotel, Rodriguez looked back on his law enforcement career with a mix of pride, pleasure and profound regret.

In 1983, he and a DEA partner were sent to "clean up the office" in the Mexican border town of Eagle Pass, which he says they did. But because he considered it a temporary assignment, Rodriguez left his wife Lily and three kids in San Antonio.

He said his supervisor assured him he would be relocated there.

But that supervisor was transferred to Washington, and the best his successor would offer was Corpus Christi or Austin. Rodriguez demanded San Antonio or nothing.

"They called my bluff," he sighed. "I got on my high horse and quit. I thought I'd hurt the DEA, but in fact I just hurt myself and my family."

Back in San Antonio, he worked as a private investigator, conducted inquiries for criminal attorneys, ran a beer and barbecue place and started on his book.

He felt his historic experience as a Texas Ranger and his adventures later with the DEA might provide a positive influence on young Hispanics.

After reading of the current Ranger turmoil over women officers and other minorities, he suggested to a reporter that his own story might shed light on the issue.

Now 57, Rodriguez recalled as a child the difficulties of growing up Hispanic in the 1950s in a small town where the social line was clearly drawn.

"You had to remember your place or you would be emphatically reminded."

His father never quite got the hang of parenthood, leaving for World War II and remaining on the go when he returned to the states.

"He was born with Gypsy feet," Rodriguez said. "My mother had the task of raising three boys and an adopted daughter alone."

His two older brothers left home in their mid-teens and young Art stuck around to get a high school diploma only because of his mother's insistence and encouragement.

"During my school years," he says, "my goal, like that of many other Mexican-American kids, was just to get by." He realizes now that he barely escaped becoming "a common laborer."

He would offset any shortcomings with grit and luck.

"I feel I contributed my best to law enforcement," Rodriguez said. "I hope I opened the door for other Mexican-American kids and inspired them to dream and fulfill their goals."

He would come to miss the Texas Rangers terribly.

"Doors had opened to me because I wore the silver star on my chest," he once wrote in a moving farewell to the crime-fighting agency. "And people no longer rejected me because of the color of my skin."

He could hunt and fish the best spots in Texas, and he could rub shoulders with the rich and famous at social functions.

But maybe most of all he would miss the "glitter of admiration in the eyes of a young Mexican-American kid telling me that he wanted to be like me when he grew up."

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) - Hey dad - get with it!

That was the gist of first daughter Chelsea Clinton's nudging to get the president to tune in to a little of the Grammy Awards show.

"Chelsea joked I've missed 20 years of music and I need to get my head right," Clinton told Newsweek in the March 11 issue. "I was trying to become somewhat less irrelevant to my own daughter and the other teen-agers of the world."

Clinton conceded that he doesn't get to watch much television, and his taste runs toward "specific movies or sporting events or news."

So how did he like the music? "Now I know all about who Seal is - is that his name? And I thought he was quite good."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Trumpeter Clark Terry got his engraved flugelhorn back.

The antique horn, valued at about $10,000, was recovered at a local pawn shop after the Feb. 20 heist from a locked bellhop's closet in a downtown hotel.

Isaak Valinkevich, of Lev's Pawn Shop, said he bought the horn a day after it was stolen. After hearing about the theft in news reports, the engraved name convinced him he had the horn in question.

Is Your IRA Ready For April 15th?

If not, the good news is—there's still time to beat the April 15th deadline!

Many people are eligible for a full or partial deduction on their taxes. And at Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, you'll find a friendly, helpful Retirement Investments account representative, Gail Golden, who will offer you valuable assistance in opening or adding to your IRA.

"IRAs are still one of the best tax deals around," Golden said. "They're easy to open, they're flexible, and they help you save for retirement with tax-deferred earnings."

Tax benefits aside, "Some people don't realize that IRAs are accounts that employ many different types of investments—certificates, money market funds, mutual funds and so on," she said. "For example, you can move money into more-secure investments as you get closer to retirement," she said.

If you're not already making IRA contributions, consider what you're paying in taxes on earned interest—then consider what you could be saving with tax-deferred earnings in an IRA.

Why miss out on a full year's tax-deferred earning, or a possible tax deduction for 1995?

Call or stop by our credit union office today...or at least before April 15th.

Haney resigns as Hereford football coach

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

After five years as Hereford's head football coach and 20 years living in Hereford, Danny Haney is moving on to pursue other employment opportunities.

Haney resigned Friday morning as head football coach and boys' athletic director, said Charles Greenawalt, superintendent of the Hereford Independent School District. The resignation, effective May 1, was announced at a news conference Friday afternoon at the HISD Administration Building.

"I think everyone in their professional career has to make a change if it'd be best for him and his family," Haney said. "That sometimes requires moving."

Haney didn't say to which job he was moving. He mentioned other "opportunities", but said he couldn't talk about it Friday. He may be able to make an announcement as early as two weeks from now, he said. Haney headed the Whitefaces for five seasons, compiling a 24-17-1 record. He was 3-6-1 last season. Haney led the Herd to one playoff appearance. The 1992 Herd won the District 1-4A championship, but lost to Plainview, 19-7, in bi-district. Hereford finished third or fourth in the district in Haney's other four seasons.

"I know everyone uses the win-loss deal to gauge the success of a program," Haney said. "The success of a program has to be measured by what kind of kids come out of a program, what kind of citizens they become after they graduate. That doesn't show in the win-loss record."

"I feel the program was successful," he said. "We won more than we lost, and we had a good time doing it."

Haney said he was not pressured into resigning. "There's been no pressure from the administration or anyone to resign," he said. It was "a personal decision I arrived at through my family."

Haney took over for Don Cumpton in 1991 after serving as his assistant. Cumpton was 78-31-4 in 10 seasons as the Herd's head coach. Cumpton coached Hereford for two five-year stints: from 1978-82 and again from 1986-90.

Haney was an assistant under Cumpton for all those seasons, as well as under Fred Upshaw from 1975-77. Haney was out of coaching during the three years Cumpton coached at Abilene High (1983-85).

"The most powerful memories are the memories from the 1981 and 1986, when we went to the semifinals and went to Texas Stadium (home of the Dallas Cowboys)" Haney said, "but in this business, every team is special and every young man is special."

HISD Superintendent Charles Greenawalt read a prepared statement at the news conference:

"The Hereford Independent School District regrets Coach Haney's decision to seek employment elsewhere. Coach Haney has been an outstanding Athletic Director/Coach, an excellent role model for our young people and certainly an asset to this school district and community."

"We wish Coach Haney the best of luck in his new endeavors. He will be hard to replace."

"The Hereford Independent School District will begin the process of seeking a new Athletic Director/Coach as soon as possible."

Greenawalt later said while he was sad to see Haney go, he appreciated him resigning at such an early date. "It gives us time to find the best possible applicant for the position," he said. "We'll put this out state-wide and begin seeking applicants outside the district as well as inside the district."

Coaches plan baseball clinic

The Hereford High School baseball coaches will be holding a clinic for any interested summer league coaches at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the practice barn next to the field house.

There will be no charge for the clinic.

The clinic is aimed at anyone who will coach a Kids Inc. team this summer, coach Pete Rodriguez said, but coaches from other leagues will be welcome.

Billy Conn actually weighed only 169 pounds when he was knocked out by heavyweight champion Joe Louis in 1941.

Tech men, women roll on

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The Texas Tech men's and women's teams, each ranked No. 7 in the nation, earned their shot at the final SWC tournament titles to be awarded with semifinal victories Friday.

Saturday was to be the last day for basketball in SWC history. The league will break up in July.

The 3-point shooting of Koy Smith and Cory Carr over Rice's tight zone defense carried the Tech men to a 68-53 victory over the Owls Friday night in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament.

Tech, which won the regular season with a 14-0 record, was to play defending tournament champion Texas in the championship game. The Longhorns bounced Southern Methodist 89-67 to earn the spot across from the Red Raiders.

Texas has won the last two tournaments and beat Tech in overtime last year for the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament. Reggie Freeman scored 34 points to carry Texas past SMU.

Tech coach James Dickey said defenses like the one Rice played could be commonplace against the Red Raiders in the NCAA tournament.

"This time of year teams start playing games closer to the vest," said Dickey. "Teams know we like an up tempo so they try to take that away from us. But that's OK. We can adjust. A game like this is good for us because we'll face some teams playing that way in the NCAA tournament."

The win was the 20th in a row for the Red Raiders. They have won a school-record 27 games against a lone loss in December to Eastern Michigan in the Sun Bowl tournament. Only Kentucky (26) has a longer winning streak.

Carr and Smith each hit four 3-point shots against the Owls. "This was the best defense we've played all year," Carr said. "And we kept getting good 3-point looks and knocking down the shots."

The Lady Red Raiders had a much tougher time. Freshman guard Rene Hanebutt took an inbounds pass and hit a driving layup with 1.1 seconds as the Lady Red Raiders escaped with a 77-75 victory over the Houston Lady Cougars.

Tech (25-3) was to play Texas A&M in Saturday's tournament finals. The Lady Aggies upset the No. 24 ranked Texas Lady Longhorns 75-61 for their first visit to the finals. For the Lady Red Raiders, it's their fifth consecutive appearance.

Tech coach Marsha Sharp said the close call could help her team.

"I think this could help us next week (in the NCAA tournament). Our young guards grew up today," she said.

It will be the Lady Red Raiders 11th appearance in the finals.

A&M overcame an 18-point deficit to beat Texas by 14.

"The kids didn't quit fighting," Harvey said. "Now we have a good chance to get into the NCAAs. You never know what the selection committee is going to do but I think we deserve to be one of the 64."

Krum creams Haskell

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN (AP) - Chris Arledge scored 20 points and Krum defenders wreaked havoc Friday in a 63-50 victory over Haskell in a Class 2A semifinal of the University Interscholastic League tournament.

Arledge's inside presence and consistent scoring by his teammates made up for the two-pronged attack of Haskell (28-7). Casey Burgess and Cody Cooley each scored 21, but the rest of the team only could muster eight.

In the other semifinal, Tyrone White scored 31 points as East Chambers finished strong for a 67-61 victory over Vanderbilt Industrial. East Chambers and Krum were to play for the championship Saturday, as were the semifinal winners in the other four classifications.

Things came easy for East Chambers (25-8) early on as it mounted a 47-21 lead on a Guillery 3-pointer with 5:52 remaining in the third period. But Industrial embarked on an epic comeback, outscoring East Chambers 32-10 over a 6:35 stretch and eventually closing the gap to 59-58 with 2:20 remaining.

White proved to be too much in the end, however. He responded with two straight field goals to revive the lead to 63-58, though Industrial clawed back once again on a Kenneth Herring try with 1:01 left to slice the deficit to 63-61.

Clemson shocks North Carolina in ACC tourney

By The Associated Press
Clemson does not win many games in the ACC tournament, and it never beats North Carolina in the postseason.
 Until now.
 "It was finally our night. It took Clemson 43 years to have this night. It was long overdue," Tigers coach Rick Barnes said Friday night after Clemson stunned No. 20 North Carolina 75-73 in the ACC quarterfinals.
 Greg Buckner's slam dunk with 0.6 seconds left gave Clemson its first win over the Tar Heels in ACC tournament history after 11 defeats. Buckner finished with 20 points, including the last four in the final 1:05, as the Tigers (18-9) held the Tar Heels (20-10) scoreless over the final 5:55.
 The win should be enough to get Clemson into the NCAA Tournament, regardless of how it fared against No. 12 Wake Forest today.
 "Coming in, we talked about how this was more than an ACC tournament game," Barnes said.
 The other ACC semifinal pitted No. 18 Georgia Tech against Maryland.
 Tim Duncan ripped Virginia for 19 points, 15 rebounds and six blocked shots as Wake Forest beat Virginia 70-60.

 Georgia Tech rode Stephen Marbury's 23 points and 21 from Matt Harpring to a sixth straight victory over North Carolina State, 88-73.
 Taking advantage of Duke's depleted ranks, LaRon Profit and Mario Lucas led Maryland's assault of the reserves, running up a 44-3 edge over the Blue Devils subs in an 82-69 victory.
 In other tournament action, Massachusetts finally found a way past George Washington, the only team to beat the Minutemen this season.
 The Colonials had won four straight over the Minutemen, but fell 74-65 in the Atlantic 10 semifinals. UMass made the tournament final for the fifth straight year and will play Temple, which handled Rhode Island 64-52.
 Top-ranked Kentucky, which dominated the Southeastern Conference during the regular season, did the same in its first game of the league tournament. Antoine Walker scored 21 points as the Wildcats (27-1) beat Florida 100-76 for their 26th straight victory.

In other SEC quarterfinals, No. 25 Mississippi State defeated Auburn 69-58, Arkansas took South Carolina 80-58 and Georgia beat Tennessee 74-63.
 No. 3 Connecticut moved into the Big East final by beating No. 13 Syracuse 85-67, and will play No. 6 Georgetown, which defeated No. 9 Villanova 84-76.
 Eighth-ranked Cincinnati advanced to the Conference USA tourney final with a 92-81 decision over No. 22 Louisville. No. 21 Marquette surprised No. 14 Memphis 72-60 on the Tigers' homecourt in the other semifinal.
 Fifth-ranked Kansas routed Colorado 88-55 in the first round of the Big Eight tournament. Kansas State edged Oklahoma State 58-55, while No. 23 Iowa State defeated Nebraska 62-60, and Missouri beat Oklahoma 92-88 in overtime.
 No. 7 Texas Tech took Rice 68-53 in the Southwest semifinals and will play Texas, which defeated SMU 89-67.
 New Mexico needed three overtimes to subdue Fresno State 104-99 in the Western Athletic semifinals. The Lobos will play No. 10 Utah, which edged Colorado State 71-69.
 Monmouth squeezed past Rider 60-59 to win the Northeast Conference's automatic bid.
 Eastern Michigan downed Ball State 87-71 in the Mid-American semifinals and will play Toledo, a 75-55 winner over Miami, Ohio.
 In the Big West semis, it was Utah State 70, Nevada 65, and San Jose State 77, Pacific 57.
 In the Big Sky semifinals, Weber State eliminated Boise State 77-70, then Montana State took Idaho 91-66.
 North Texas beat Texas-San Antonio 80-71 in the Southland semis, while Northeast Louisiana took Stephen F. Austin 92-73.
 The Southwestern Athletic semifinals saw Jackson State over Grambling State 60-57, and Mississippi Valley State 83, Southern 76.

SOUTHEASTERN
At New Orleans
 No. 25 Mississippi St. 69, Auburn 58
 Marcus Bullard scored 19 points as Mississippi State (20-7) won its second SEC tournament game in 10 years. Pat Burke had 16 points and 11 rebounds for Auburn (19-12).
 Arkansas 80, South Carolina 58
 Pat Bradley scored 23 points and broke a conference tournament record with seven 3-pointers for the Razorbacks (18-11). They got Kentucky on Saturday.
 Georgia 74, Tennessee 63
 Georgia (19-8) opened the second half with a 10-0 run to put away the Vols and win for the eighth time in nine games, stretch its lead to 44-25.
BIG EAST
At New York
 No. 3 Connecticut 85, No. 13 Syracuse 67
 Ray Allen, the conference Player of the Year, rebounded from a 4-for-17 shooting game the previous day to score 29 points and tied a tournament record with seven steals. Doron Sheffer had 22 points as the Huskies (29-2) pulled away from the Orangemen (24-8).
 No. 6 Georgetown 84, No. 9 Villanova 76
 Victor Page had a career-high 34 points and backcourtmate Allen Iverson scored 38 for the Hoyas (26-6). Page, a freshman, got 20 points in the first half and then came through with 10 in a 12-1 run as Iverson sat on the bench with four fouls.
CONFERENCE USA
At Memphis, Tenn.
 No. 8 Cincinnati 92, No. 22 Louisville 81
 The Bearcats (24-4) hit four of their first six 3-pointers against the Cardinals (20-11). Darrell Burton and Danny Fortson each had 21 points in leading Cincinnati, which had five players in double figures.
 No. 21 Marquette 72, No. 14 Memphis 60
 Marquette (22-6) broke Memphis' 34-game home winning streak, the nation's second-longest. Anthony Pieper finished with 23 points, including four 3-pointers. Memphis (22-7) never led, missed its first nine shots and hit only one of 11 3-pointers.

BIG EIGHT
At Kansas City, Mo.
 No. 5 Kansas 88, Colorado 55
 Raef LaFrentz had 22 points and eight rebounds for Kansas (25-3), which beat the Buffaloes (9-18) for the third time this year. Jacque Vaughn, the Big Eight player of the year, helped shut down Colorado star Chauncey Billups, who was 1-for-12 from the field.
 Kansas St 58, Oklahoma St 55
 K-State (17-10) won a battle of mistakes as both teams shot 38 percent and committed 18 turnovers. Oklahoma State (17-10), a Final Four team last year, must hope for an at-large invitation to the NCAAs.
 No. 23 Iowa State 62, Nebraska 60
 Kelvin Cato scored 16 points, blocked two shots and hauled in a key rebound in the final minute for Iowa State (21-8).
 Missouri 92, Oklahoma 88, OT
 Derek Grimm's 3-pointer with 10.2 seconds left in overtime lifted Missouri (17-13). Jason Sutherland, who had seven 3-pointers in scoring 26 points, hit one with 1:04 left in overtime to produce an 87-87 tie.

WESTERN ATHLETIC
At Albuquerque, N.M.
 New Mexico 104, Fresno St. 99, 3OT
 In a classic WAC battle, New Mexico (26-4) outlasted Fresno (20-10) as Charles Smith had 29 points and scored twice in the last minute.
 The game was tied at 74 at the end of regulation, at 83 after the first overtime and at 92 after two overtimes.
NORTH EAST
Monmouth 60, Rider 59
 Quincy Lee hit two free throws with four seconds to play and host Monmouth earned its first NCAA berth. Monmouth (20-9) made only 19 of 33 free throws.
MID-AMERICAN
At Toledo, Ohio
 E. Michigan 87, Ball St 71
 Brian Tolbert scored 17 points and four teammates also hit double figures for Eastern Michigan (23-5), the regular-season MAC champion. Toledo 75, Miami, Ohio 55
 Craig Thames scored 16 of his 27 points as Toledo (18-13) shot 73 percent from the field in the opening half to upset Miami of Ohio.

Knicks falter after Nelson gets fired

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer
 It was a good night for favorites, except in the case of Jeff Van Gundy.
 The better team won most of the 12 NBA games Friday night, but the New York Knicks lost to the Philadelphia 76ers a few hours after Don Nelson was fired as head coach.
 He was replaced by Van Gundy, a favorite of the Knicks players, but the result was reminiscent of Nelson's last days as coach.
 New York was outrebounded, turned the ball over more than the Sixers and failed to score enough second-half points in a 100-92 loss at Philadelphia.
 "I felt a couple times we weren't as prepared as we should be. Any time you lose, it's not a pleasant feeling. It's my responsibility to get the team to win," said Van Gundy, 34, who spent seven seasons as an assistant coach under Rick Pitino, Stu Jackson, John MacLeod, Pat Riley and Nelson.
 "They killed us on the boards and we turned it over too much. We're a better team than them and we should have beaten them. We're going to work and try to get things back on track," said Patrick Ewing, who had a sloppy game with seven turnovers despite his team-high 24 points.
 Jerry Stackhouse scored 29 points and Vernon Maxwell had 21 as Philadelphia snapped a four-game losing streak.
 In other NBA games, Orlando edged Charlotte 117-112 in overtime, Seattle beat Minnesota 132-112, the Los Angeles Lakers routed Phoenix 119-97, Utah crushed Houston 109-89, San Antonio beat New Jersey 115-100, Portland defeated Sacramento 117-105, Miami beat Toronto 109-79, Indiana stopped Vancouver 94-80, the Los Angeles Clippers edged Washington 92-89, Atlanta tripped Milwaukee 94-91 and Cleveland outlasted Boston 96-91.
Spurs 115, Nets 100
 At San Antonio, David Robinson scored 44 points to come up one short of his season-high. Robinson had 18 points in the fourth period as the Spurs outscored the Nets 40-29. San Antonio led only 75-71 going into the quarter.
Jazz 109, Rockets 89
 At Salt Lake City, the Jazz evened the season series at 2-2 against the team that has eliminated them from the playoffs the last two seasons.
 John Stockton made his first nine shots of the game and finished 11-of-12 from the field with 25 points and 15 assists.
Magic 117, Hornets 112
 The Magic won their 38th straight regular-season home game to match the NBA record set by the Boston Celtics from December 1985 to November 1986. They can break the mark Sunday against Phoenix.
 Shaquille O'Neal scored four of his 36 points in the extra period and shot 16-of-21 from the field. Anfernee Hardaway scored 31 and Dennis Scott 18.
 Hardaway, Scott and Nick Anderson each made four 3-pointers as the Magic set an NBA record by hitting at least one for the 210th consecutive game.
SuperSonics 132, Timberwolves 112
 At Minneapolis, the SuperSonics had their highest point total of the season and Gary Payton matched his career-high with 33 points.
 Detlef Schrempf scored 25 points and Sam Perkins had 21 for the Sonics, who stretched their winning streak against the Wolves to 20 games over five years.

Lakers 119, Suns 97
 Nick Van Exel scored 28 points, Cedric Ceballos 23 and Eddie Jones 18, while Magic Johnson had 12 points and eight assists as Los Angeles won for the 10th time in 11 road games.
 The Lakers led 66-46 at halftime and 87-70 after the third quarter, then coasted from there.
Trail Blazers 117, Kings 105
 At Portland, Rod Strickland returned to action with 19 points and 12 assists and Arvydas Sabonis, in his first start since the season opener, had 23 points and a career-high 17 rebounds for Portland.
Heat 109, Raptors 79
 At Miami, the Heat scored 17 of the game's first 19 points and led by as many as 40. It was the second straight blowout victory for the Heat, who beat Minnesota by 41 points Tuesday. Toronto lost for the 10th time in 11 games.
Pacers 94, Grizzlies 80
 Rik Smits scored 24 points on 10-of-13 shooting, including the first regular-season 3-pointer of his career, and had 11 rebounds. Reggie Miller did the rest of the damage with 20 points as the Pacers improved to 16-16 on the road.
Clippers 92, Bulls 89
 Rodney Rogers hit a spinning baseline layup with 16 seconds left to break an 89-89 tie at Washington, and the Clippers held on for their fourth victory in six games.
Hawks 94, Bucks 91
 At Atlanta, Christian Lactner scored 17 points and put the Hawks ahead for good on a driving shot in the lane with 1:10 remaining.
 Craig Ehlo led Atlanta with 19 points, and seldom-used reserve Matt Bullard added 14 and made a key steal on Vin Baker in the final minute.
Cavaliers 96, Celtics 91
 At Boston, the Celtics went on a 23-2 run in the fourth quarter to erase a 16-point deficit, but the Cavs scored the game's final nine points.

Rangers aim for first playoff trip

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) - Doug Melvin is trying to give Texas Rangers fans some different things to talk about. He'd like to get them talking about starting the season with healthy power hitters Juan Gonzalez and Dean Palmer, the acquisition of ace Ken Hill, or the Rangers' new team-oriented theme. But the Rangers general manager knows none of that will matter to the fans until the Rangers end the stigma of being the only team in the American League that's never made the playoffs. "We hear all the time that we've never been to the playoffs and we're going to hear that until we go out and do it," Melvin said. "We can talk about improvement and all that but it won't matter until we get into the playoffs." In 35 seasons, 11 as the Washington Senators and the rest as the Texas Rangers, the franchise has never been in post-season play. The three-year old Florida Marlins are the only other team in baseball without playoff experience. Melvin worked hard in the off-season to replace key players. Hill will replace Kenny Rogers as the No. 1 pitcher. Darryl Hamilton will play center field in place of Otis Nixon. Still, the stigma won't go away. "I think it's good and bad," Hamilton said. "It's bad because we need to get the monkey off our backs and it's good because it gives us a lot of incentive to be the first club to make it to post-season. It's a great opportunity." Pitcher Roger Pavlik, who has been in the organization 10 years, would like to be on the team that breaks through. "It's something that's going to be there until we get past it," Pavlik said. "Seattle got rid of it last year so maybe it's our turn. It's not an embarrassing thing. It's just something we haven't done yet." Melvin also worked hard with manager Johnny Oates to convince players to park their egos and develop a much-needed team concept. "The culture, the makeup of the clubhouse has changed," Melvin said. "We've got the type of players we want here. We want players who go play hard, hustle, be friendly with the fans. "And, we want winning players." Injuries, an unfortunate Rangers legacy, are another area Melvin and Oates attacked this season.

"The nature of some of the injuries we've had have been unavoidable," Oates said. "We could go out here and run sprints until the cows come home and we wouldn't stop a torn rotator or tendon. "The thing that we're trying to do is eliminate the nagging 10-day things, the hamstrings. Things of that nature, we can prevent through conditioning." The Rangers led the major leagues in 1993 with 1,373 player games lost while injured. The figure dipped to 612 last season but the losses of Gonzalez (back) and Palmer (torn bicep) much of the season were big losses. They studied last season's injuries, trying to determine which were accidental and unavoidable and which were based on a poor conditioning. "Dean's was accidental and Juan's could have been conditioning based on the weights he lifted but that may not be totally correct," Melvin said. "You live in fear of injuries. When you lose front line players for two to three months that's tough. When that happens, your best laid plans go down the tubes."

Writer picks all-time SWC team

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - By popular demand, we've been asked to pick an All-Time Southwest Conference basketball team. Any such list will be automatically nipped to death by fans of the soon to be departed league. Complaints will range from not enough oldtimers to such and such from such and such school should be there. Since picking just five players would automatically leave out some schools, the attempt here will be to select the top 15 all-time players, or three good teams filled with guys who loved the game. Even then there will be a perceived miscarriage of justice or two. Remember, this is my team of talented men who were also "team players." Pick your own team should this one miss your tastes. No letters please. So here goes: Houston - Two near-national champions for Guy V. Lewis and what team would be complete without Clyde Drexler and Hakeem Olajuwon, who once blocked 16 shots against Arkansas? Drexler, who still has the SWC record for 11 steals in one game, may have been the most athletic of all the league players. And was there a better shooter than Otis

Birdsong? Not before these eyes. Arkansas - Although the traitorous Razorbacks defected to the SEC, they still left a great SWC legacy. Could you have a team without Sidney Moncrief? No way. Remember the duel between him and Larry Bird? Baylor - Vinnie Johnson, who tied an SWC record with 21 field goals in a game, certainly makes my list along with oldtime Jack Robinson, who played on a team that almost won the NCAA title. TCU - Dick O'Neal, who once scored 49 points in a game with his sweeping hook shot, makes my team even if he did play in the 1950s. Texas A&M - Bennie Lennox, who still has the SWC record with 53 points in a game, makes the roster as does John Beasley who averaged 22 points per game. Texas - Slater Martin, the great guard of the 1940s, makes the team. Like Johnson, he once hit 21 field goals in a game. Texas Tech - Rick Bullock, a tireless competitor, plays for me any day as does Will Flemons. Rice - Ricky Pierce, a scoring machine, can't be ignored. He's still going strong in the NBA. SMU - Gene Phillips of the late 1960s is all over the SWC record book which has just become a collector's keepsake. Jim Krebs was a great one from that era. Some honorable mentions include (personal favorites), John Moore and Joey Wright of Texas, Alvin Robertson of Arkansas, Sonny Parker and Carroll Broussard of Texas A&M, Terry Teagle of Baylor, Bubba Jennings of Texas Tech, Ira Terrell of SMU and Clyde Littlefield of the Longhorns. Littlefield? Yeh, he made the first two All-SWC teams in 1915 and 1916 and became one of the best track coaches in the nation. Coach - The late E.O. (Doc) Hayes of SMU. You would want your son to have played for him from the 1940s to the 1960s. Won six out of every 10 games his teams played and had eight SWC titles. MVP - Olajuwon. Plays both offense and defense, a specialty lost by many selfish players in this day and time. Defensive MVP - Olajuwon. Has there ever been any better? It was a lot of fun for 81 years.

NFL owners to discuss movement of franchises

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The agenda for this week's owners' meeting reflects the state of the NFL. It's dominated by franchise moves and potential franchise moves, not the usual debate about playing rules. Except, perhaps for a revival of the annual discussions on instant replay. On Monday, the owners are expected to vote on the Houston Oilers' proposed move to Tennessee. They would play in Memphis for two years before settling in Nashville. Then, in quick succession, will come discussions of Cleveland's move to Baltimore, Seattle's proposed move to Southern California, and Tampa Bay's continued search for a stadium that could lead to another move within a year. This is heavy stuff for meetings most often concerned with arcane rules changes. Sometimes there are surprises at these gatherings. Pete Rozelle shocked the owners by stepping down in 1989, and it was two years ago that Jimmy Johnson and Jerry Jones had their infamous falling out, leading to Johnson's departure as coach of the Dallas Cowboys. Barring something of that order, the relocation issue is the owners' priority. Since the end of the 1994 season, five franchises have either relocated or have sought to. Others are restless - the Bucs have promised to play another year in Tampa but give no promises beyond that. And while the league's stated policy is against moves, it has so far approved shifts by the Rams from Southern California to St. Louis, by the Raiders from Los Angeles to Oakland and Art Modell's Cleveland franchise to Baltimore. On Monday, owners will probably approve the Houston move and could amend the Cleveland agreement, which leaves the Browns' name and colors in Cleveland and assures a team there in 1999. Then the owners will get to hear from both Seahawks' owner Ken Behring and Seattle officials who want to keep his team there. "We prefer that franchises remain where they are," said Joe Browne, the league's chief spokesman. "But you can never say never. You can't say they'll be there in perpetuity." The rules changes are likely to be minimal unless some form of instant replay is reinstated. The competition committee, which makes the changes, is generally satisfied with the 1994 adjustments, which increased scoring by nearly six points a game between 1993 and 1995. Most of the coaches favor reinstating replay, which was in effect from 1986 through 1991. There is no consensus on the form replay might take. To be approved, it needs votes from 23 of the 30 teams. A return to instant replay is opposed by two of the league's most influential executives, Pittsburgh Steelers president Dan Rooney and New York Giants general manager George Young. Young is co-chairman of the competition committee. There also is expected to be a modification of the "chop block" rule to make it more difficult for offensive linemen to block defenders low. "It gets pretty technical," Browne said. "But defensive players and defensive coaches will be pleased."

Lifestyles

Workshop will provide help for those who have trouble sleeping

Have trouble falling asleep at night, sleeping restlessly or awakening frequently?

If your answer is yes to any of these questions, you are not alone. More than half of all Americans over age 65 suffer from poor sleep. The good news is that sleep problems are not an inevitable part of aging and help will be available at a workshop here Friday in Hereford Senior Citizen Center at 1 p.m.

To learn more about sleep and aging, and how better sleep can help you to enjoy a more active and productive lifestyle, attend the free program, "Sleep Well, Feel Well," Friday at the Senior Center.

No matter what your age, adequate sleep is an essential part of good physical and emotional health. Without it, daily activities can become less enjoyable and less productive. In some cases, existing medical problems can be made worse. Despite common misconceptions, older adults require the same total amount of sleep time as younger adults.

For example, older adults tend to experience more frequent short awakenings during the night and usually go to sleep and rise earlier.

The one-hour workshop features a video and interactive discussion led by Peggy Maxwell and Michael Gaylor. The program will answer questions on what causes sleep problems and now to seek appropriate treatment. It will also relate real-life experiences from others who have overcome sleep problems.

All participants will receive a free brochure on sleep and aging, and a personal sleep diary. Please call 364-5681 to register for the workshop.

Green Thumb promotes week for older workers

WACO, Texas -- Each year Green Thumb promotes Hire the Older Worker Week which spotlights our senior work force and the contributions they bring to the labor market and encourages employers to profit from their skills, abilities and experiences.

Since 1965, Green Thumb, Inc., has operated the Senior Community Service Employment Program which provides mature workers with part-time employment and training opportunities.

Funded through the U.S. Department of Labor, the program serves primarily the rural areas in 132 Texas counties.

mainstream of our state's economic and social development. Employers should invest in the skills and abilities of senior job seekers not only during Older Worker Week, but year round. Hiring experience, dependability, reliability and dedication is just good business!"

For more information contact Green Thumb, Inc., P.O. Box 7898, Waco, Texas 76714, phone 817-776-4081.

There will be a meeting for local Green Thumb workers at 3 p.m. March 15 in Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Green Thumb gives older economically-disadvantaged job seekers the opportunity of sharing their years of experience, hard work and dedication through work assignments in locally-based organizations.

Through their participation, the seniors maintain their independence as productive contributors to their communities and profit from job-skills training which allows for transition back into private sector employment.

According to Diane Cowan, program administrator, "During this important week, March 10-16, let us focus upon the important contributions of our senior work force and strengthen our commitment to assure that this important resource continues in the

Bridal shower honoree

Betzen home is site of shower which honors bride-elect of Wieck

A bridal shower in honor of Denise Detten, bride-elect of Brad Wieck, was held Feb. 24 in the home of Tommie and Cheryl Betzen.

The couple plans to be married March 10.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Judy Detten and her future mother-in-law, Carolyn Wieck.

Dianna Detten, sister of the bride-elect, provided romantic background music on the piano during the shower.

Kathy Mulloy, sister of the prospective bridegroom, and Sherri

Wieck and Anne Mulloy, cousins of the prospective bridegroom, served refreshments of cinnamon rolls, miniature muffins, poppy seed bread, assorted fruit, cheesy sausage rolls, bacon crisps, chocolate dipped strawberries, banana punch and coffee.

The serving table was covered with white battenburg lace and centered with a crystal punch bowl surrounded by a wreath of lacy fern, baby's breath and camellia blossoms. Silver and crystal appointments were accented with black and white, the bride-elect's chosen colors.

A six piece set of Revere Ware cookware was the gifts from hostesses Michelle Brisendine, Cheryl Betzen, Loretta Urbanczyk, Shelly Diller, Judy Cloud, Diane Hoelscher, Eileen Alley, Christine Marnell, Dolores Foster, Jan Weishaar, Jeri Bezner, Joan Strafuss, Donna Albracht, Nadine Berend, Annette Albracht, Donna Kemp, Nancy Paetzold, Sylvia Paetzold, Pat Simmacher, Opal Walterscheid and Marian Yosten.

Aggie Moms

Aggie Moms elect 1996-'97 officers

The Golden Spread Aggie Mothers' Club elected officers and named an honorary member during its meeting recently in the home of Shirley Wilson.

Officers elected to serve for 1996-1997 were Shirley Wilson, president; vice presidents for projects, Ginger Olson and Susan Sublett; Evelyn Lyles, secretary; Eileen Alley, treasurer; and Jan Metcalf, historian/reporter.

During other business, a report was given on the Aggie Muster which will be April 21 in the Annex. Tickets can be purchased from Alley by calling 364-2619.

The Aggie Mothers' Federation meeting will be in Lubbock March 30.

There was a short discussion on the presentation of the Aggie Moms' Scholarship to be presented to a graduating senior who plans to attend Texas A&M University.

The club honored Mary Lyles, making her an honorary member of Aggie Moms'. Lyles' father, Dr. Aikins was in small grains research from 1954-'69 at TAMU. Her husband and sons were educated at A&M. Lyles was the first president of the Agronomy Wives Club on the campus. Both she and her husband, Bill, have continued their support of activities at College Station, establishing The Bill and Mary Lyles Presidential Endowed Scholarship. Lyles carries through her support of Aggie Moms' with time, money and hosting events at her home.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to respond to those young people who keep writing to gripe about how tough things are today.

They say that we don't understand them and that we didn't have drug problems or drive-by shootings when we were teen-agers. They are right. We didn't have a lot of things they have, both good and bad, when we were growing up. I'm an old man now, but my memory is still pretty good.

We didn't have running water, we had a pump in the back of the house. We didn't have electric lights. We had kerosene lamps. We didn't have a bathroom. We had a path that led to a place that seemed like a long way off when the temperature was below zero.

And then, of course, there was the Depression, when the banks closed and millions of people lost their life's savings. Men who once owned businesses were selling apples on the street corners.

During World War II, a lot of people had a tough time getting sugar, soap, margarine, elastic underwear and gasoline (if you had a car -- we didn't). My mother and sisters wore cotton stockings. Nylon went into parachutes for the Air Force fliers, and silk was too expensive.

I was only 11 when World War II began. I had never been more than 10 miles from home. Ever time a plane went over us, we hid under the bed. We thought it was the Japanese. By the time I got to high school, the war was over. But it wasn't a time of rejoicing for those who had lost sons, brothers, husbands, fiances and sweethearts.

Things won are done; joy's soul lies in the doing.

If you were lucky, you got a job for 50 cents an hour. I knew no boys in high school who owned cars. I never saw a TV until I got married.

One woman who wrote to you said old fogies like me didn't have to put up with date rape or sexual harassment. She's dead wrong. In our day, women were hardly acknowledged, much less treated as equals. If a girl got pregnant and the boy didn't want to marry her, he would get five or six of his pals to say they had sex with her, too. She was branded a slut and sent to an aunt somewhere to have the baby. Unmarried mothers were a disgrace to the family, and their babies were put up for adoption.

My son had a different war. It was Vietnam. He didn't want to go because he didn't believe in that war. He said he had no business in Vietnam. The only thing more shameful than the 18- and 19-year-olds who died in that war 10,000 miles from home was the way the men who served were treated when they came back to the states. There was no big parade down Broadway. Some returned with drug problems -- something else they learned while serving their country.

I could go on and on, but this letter is already too long to fit in your space, if you decide to print it, which I'll bet you won't.

Please tell the people who write to you to quit complaining. They have it pretty good, what with welfare handouts and all. No girl in our day was given an apartment and food stamps if she got pregnant at age 15. Times have certainly changed, Ann, and not all the changes have been for the better. -- Chris in Heyburn, Idaho

DEAR CHRIS: Thanks for the sociology lesson as seen through your eyes. The under-35 crowd that read your letter won't be able to relate to most of what you have written, but the rest of us will -- and we thank you.

Detten, Wieck exchange wedding vows during ceremony in St. Anthony's Church

Denise Diane Detten and Bradley James Wieck were united in marriage March 10 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Ralph and Judy Detten of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Jim and Carolyn Wieck of Hartley.

Msgr. Orville Blum, of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, officiated.

The church was decorated with arrangements of red roses and tulle pew bows with roses and greenery.

Diana Detten, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Best man was Mark Wieck, brother of the groom.

Bridesmaids were Karen Ward, Leann Paetzold and Nikki Lindeman.

Serving as groomsmen were Jeff Wieck, brother of the groom, Kris Batenhorst and Jeff Bednarz.

Guests were seated by Chad Straffuss, Michael Dolle, Drue Gault, James Schniederjan and Randy Friemel.

Flower girl was Kaitlyn Wieck, daughter of Mark and Emily Wieck.

Wesley Detten, son of Doug and Krista Detten, served as ring bearer.

Readers were Doug Detten and Dennis Detten.

Organist was Cheryl Betzen and pianist was Dr. Phillip Zinser. Vocal selections were performed by Bill Sava, Julie Detten and the St. Anthony's Men's Choir.

Principal selections were Surely the Presence; I Say Yes, My Lord; Hail Mary Gentle Woman; On this Day O Beautiful Mother; and Only a Shadow.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory regal satin, sheath-style gown encrusted with pearls and jewels. The cathedral train was layered with multiple overlays of tulle.

She wore a cathedral length veil of sheer illusion which extended past the train.

The hand held bridal bouquet consisted of kalinka and ivory roses and stephanotis.

Bridal attendants wore short, fitted black dresses with beaded bodices and carried arm bouquets of red roses.

The couple was honored with a reception following the ceremony in the Hereford Country Club.

Catherine Zinser presided at the guest registry.

Denise King, Vicki Viegel and Laura DiSalvio served cake while Mary Grist and Denise Clark served punch and coffee.

Others assisting were Jamie Wieck and Sherry Wieck.

A Grecian portico surrounded the bride's table with decorations of gold and white. The four-tiered French vanilla cake was separated by crystal pillars and gold bows and draped with pearl and icing garlands. Flanking the center cake were six accent cakes with spirals of pearls. Bouquets of fresh flowers topped each cake.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas and San Francisco, the couple will be at home in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1991 graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor of arts degree in music education. She is currently employed by Amarillo Independent School District as a math teacher at Travis Middle School.

The bridegroom graduated from Hartley High School in 1988 and from Texas Tech in 1993 with a bachelor of science in agricultural engineering. He is currently employed at Enviro-Ag Engineering in Dumas.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"The louder you yell, the less likely your kids are to listen."

All students participated in the writing portion of TAAS on Tuesday. Most students seemed to be spending ample time on this task and we expect very good results.

Congratulations to Tan Nguyen! Tan has qualified for the state level of the National Geography Bee for the second year. Tan feels that he is better prepared for the competition this year which will be held on the TCU campus in Fort Worth on March 29. Tan watches the news, "Jeopardy" and any program that will help in the geography area. He also studies his notes, geography texts, atlases and uses the computer to enhance his knowledge of geography. Several students help him at times by quizzing him.

Congratulations also to Brigham Brown who will represent us in the Spelling Bee. Brigham is another young man who spends extra time for this competition.

A number of seventh graders have been working on "My American Hero" essays for a contest sponsored by the local VFW. We hope to have some to qualify for this local level which has a March 15 deadline. Several eighth graders have also written papers for this contest. Coming not as a complete surprise, many of the "heroes" are the parents of the students....and that's good!!

Yellow Team English classes are reading Old Yeller and will have project assignments relating to this classic. The advanced English class completed The Witch of Blackbird Pond and will read Old Yeller, also. Compare and contrast activities are a part of the unit for both these readings.

G/T class is beginning their focus on World War II with the reading of and projects related to The Diary of Anne Frank The Summer of My German Soldier.

All categories classes are working on multicultural activities. Sims/Allen classes are ahead of mine, but due to librarian Karen Solomon's help, my class has begun their research of their chosen country.

Thanks again to my school family, teachers and students, for their constant support during this time of my spending time with Don in the hospital. At this writing, he is much improved.

Three things that teens feel they must have in order to feel good about themselves are physical attractiveness, not to feel dumb and to measure their worth with money. When our junior high youth feel they are lacking in any or all of these areas, they sometimes feel miserable, (and often make others feel miserable in the process). Helping them to face these "problems" is a task for both parents and teachers and a task in which we need to join hands in a combined effort.

Son of Hereford couple plans wedding in May

Dale and Jenny Freeman of Amarillo announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jana Michelle, to Cory Crofford.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Dean and Billie Crofford of Hereford.

The couple will marry May 11 in Hereford.

There never was a good war or a bad peace.

—Benjamin Franklin

the Bolton Street Baptist Church in Amarillo.

The bride-elect is a 1990 graduate of Caprock High School, attended Amarillo College and is currently employed by Jack B. Kelly, Inc. in Amarillo.

The prospective bridegroom graduated from Hereford high school in 1991, and attended Texas State Technical College where he received a degree for truck driving in 1995.

Couple plans to wed in Oak Ridge ceremony

Lora Joy Matthews of Harriman, Tenn., and Andrew Ross Adzima of Oak Ridge, Tenn., plan to wed May 25 in the First United Methodist Church in Oak Ridge.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Richard Don and Judith Minchew of Hereford.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Michael and Cynthia Adzima of Plymouth, Mich.

Miss Matthews graduated from Oakland High School in Murfreesboro, Tenn., in 1988, and Middle Tennessee State University with a B.S. in speech pathology in 1992.

She is currently employed by Morgan County, Tenn., schools as a speech therapist and is working toward a master's degree in speech pathology at the University of Tennessee.

Adzima graduated from Detroit Catholic Central High School in 1987 and from Western Michigan University in 1992 with a bachelor of music degree, then received his master of music degree from the University of Tennessee.

He is currently employed by Morgan County schools as an elementary music teacher and as high school chorus and band director. He is also a percussionist with the Knoxville, Tenn., symphony orchestra.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Lightweight hiking and sport shoes have relatively thin soles and heels of a rubberlike material supported on a structure containing cavities.

In only a few months of modest hiking, the heels wear enough to expose the cavity, suggesting that the shoes would soon need to be replaced.

As an experiment, when a hole first appeared in the heel, I used my hot glue gun to fill the exposed cavity. Each exposed cavity required perhaps a stick of hot glue to fill it.

The results have been remarkably successful. The inserted plastic wears as well or better than the original heel material. I have noticed no difference in the walking comfort of the shoes.

Be careful using a glue gun, as you can get a nasty burn. Also, try and keep the tip of the glue gun away from the original heel material — it could possibly soften and damage it. — John, Gilford, N.H.

Your idea is great! It's certainly worth a try before tossing out those hiking shoes. — Heloise

PLASTIC SHOWER CURTAIN RINGS

Dear Heloise: When some of my plastic shower curtain rings became sprung and would no longer lock in place, I bought a new set. Since the second set matched the first, I decided not to toss all the old ones, but to replace only those that needed replacing and save the others to be used as needed.

Why not buy two sets when I change decor, so that I will have matching replacements when one or two break or don't lock? — Betty W. Chastain, Greenville, Texas

LORA JOY MATTHEWS, ANDY ADZIMA

Red Cross Update

The Board of Directors will meet Thursday at noon in the Red Cross office. The Board will discuss the budget, disaster plan and drill, as well as other routine matters.

The Executive Committee will meet Tuesday in a joint meeting with all of the other meetings. The committee meetings will be at noon in the office. The Emergency Services Committee will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the office.

The Amarillo Chapter is hosting an Emergency Assistance to Families class on Saturday, March 30. This class will enable disaster workers to meet the emergency needs of victims following a disaster through an individual assistance process. Our chapter's disaster services needs volunteers with this training. Call our office at 364-3761 for further information.

A Garage Sale will be held Friday and Saturday, March 15-16, at the office. The proceeds from the sale will be used for disaster relief.

The Disaster Services Committee for our Chapter is looking for volunteers to train before the spring storm season arrives. Please call the office and volunteer your help.

Thank You

Eat Right America

Discover nutrition anytime, anywhere

March is National Nutrition Month and the American Dietetic Association is sponsoring the Eat Right America campaign.

As a part of this campaign, the ADA, Texas Dietetic Association, Panhandle Dietetic Association and Charlotte R. Clark RD/LD, local registered dietitian, hope to increase public awareness that you can discover nutrition anytime, anywhere, by reading the nutrition facts food label.

Look for the "Nutrition Facts" title. It's a signal to you that the product carries the new label information.

The Nutrition Labeling and Education Act (NLEA) of 1990 mandated nutrition labeling on virtually all processed foods and voluntary labeling of fresh foods -- including meat, poultry and seafood products and fresh produce.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) issued regulations in January 1993 to implement the NLEA. FDA regulates almost all packaged foods and fresh fruit, vegetables and fish and seafood.

In the spirit of harmony and uniformity the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) issued parallel regulations. The FSIS oversees the labeling of processed meat, e.g., fresh meat, poultry, and commercially prepared items such as pizza.

Nutrient Content Claims

Consumers can believe the claims on the label and use them to make wise purchase decisions. Nutrient content claims have been defined along with their conditions of use.

Nutrient descriptors include two types of claims: absolute and comparative.

The absolute claims describe the amount of a nutrient in a food. These terms are a quick and easy way for consumers to identify foods that fit into their diets.

Consumers can use terms such as free and low to help them balance their intake of calories, fat saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium.

The terms good source and high are signals to choose foods that provide fiber, protein, vitamins and minerals.

Serving Size

Serving size is now set by the government. It's based on the amounts people most commonly eat. You'll see it expressed in household measures such as cups and teaspoons so that you can easily relate it to the amount you eat.

Note that the serving size is for one serving; if you eat two servings, double the calories and % Daily Values.

Servings per Container

The servings per container tells you the number of servings included in the package. This package contains a certain number of individual items within the package.

Format

The new bold format makes it easy to find the information you need. The top portion of the label contains the nutrition information per serving. The bottom portion contains footnotes, which are the same for all food products.

Calories and Calories from Fat

In addition to calories per serving, calories from fat are required. This information gives you an additional perspective of how fat in a food contributes to your total diet.

Calories from fat should not be confused with percent (%) of calories from fat.

For a 2,000 calorie diet, 30%, or 600 of your calories, should come from fat. It's recommended that your overall diet, not necessarily any one food item, contain no more than 30% of calories from fat.

Required Nutrients

Note that the nutrients on the label have changed. They reflect a public health emphasis on preventing chronic disease.

Fat heads the list, followed by saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, carbohydrate, dietary fiber, sugars and protein. The vitamins and minerals required include Vitamin A and C and calcium and iron.

Food manufacturers may voluntarily list other nutrients.

% Daily Values

The % Daily Values help you put the nutrients in one serving of a food in the context of a 2,000-calorie diet.

Percent Daily Values let you know if a food has a little or a lot of a nutrient. The overall goal is to reach 100% of your Daily Value throughout the day by eating a variety of foods.

You can also the % Daily Values for fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium over the day or over several days.

Total Fat

Fat information is given in both grams and the % Daily Value. Don't confuse % Daily Value with percent of calories from fat.

Caloric Conversion Information

The footnote at the bottom of the label tells you the number of calories in a gram of fat, carbohydrate and protein.

Note that fat contains more than twice the calories per gram (9 calories) than carbohydrate or protein (4 calories). The footnote appears on only about 50% of food products because of package size limitation.

At this time provision of this information is optional.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

In case you haven't noticed, March has definitely blown in. There is a book salesman in Illinois that calls ever so often just to see what the weather is like here. Evidently the weather is more predictable there, because he is always surprised at how drastically our weather changes from one day to the next.

I have had my winter coat put away twice and have had to get it out again. This time I think I will keep it out for a while and maybe we will get some good weather this weekend.

I got a note from Joe Weaver this morning that said the wind Tuesday night rocked him to sleep. It also rocked him awake on Wednesday morning. In case you don't know Joe is living in a small travel trailer until houses can be sold and purchased. Living in such a small, mobil structure makes one more aware of wind and weather, especially when the morning begins with frozen water.

If you would like to send Joe a "Hang In There" note, the Moore County Library address is: 124 Bliss St., Dumas, Tx. 79029-3899. I'm sure a letter from home would be greatly appreciated.

With the wind, dirt and snow that may be in the up and coming forecast you want to make sure you have an adequate reading supply. So come on in and all of us will be happy to help you find something of interest, or maybe something that sparks a new interest.

Elise Title has a new book out entitled Romeo, and it is nothing like Shakespeare's work. So if you really don't care for Shakespeare, give Elise Title a try. Romeo is the man every woman dreams of, except of course he is a killer. Romeo goes for the successful, professional, beautiful and smart career woman. Dr. Melanie Rosen, the leading psychiatrist expert on the compulsions of serial killers was Romeo's fifth victim.

As Romeo leaves Dr. Rosen's house, he just happens to see her diary. The diary then leads Romeo to his next conquest. Melanie's sister Sarah is a fighter and because of that Romeo knows Sarah will put her heart into it, her perfect heart. Sarah, determined to stop her sister's killer, deliberately enters the trap Romeo has set.

The police promise to protect her and Sarah knows her life depends on that protection. Elise Title worked as a psychotherapist for fifteen years with inmates in high-security prisons. That experience has given Elise lots of quality thriller material.

Mrs. Pollifax is back in Dorothy Gilman's Mrs. Pollifax and the Lion Killer. If you have never read a Mrs. Pollifax mystery you don't know what you are missing. I know, some of you don't even care. Anyway, Emily Pollifax became a part-time CIA agent late in life.

While most people her age were planning and looking forward to retirement Emily began a new career. Mrs. Pollifax is a unique agent with a warm heart, nerves of steel, impeccable manners, and karate has recently been added to the list of talents. Emily is one of the Agencies top operative because no one even suspects she could be an agent.

This new adventure takes Emily to Ubangiba, Africa as a companion to her young friend Kadi Hopkirk. Sammat, Kadi's childhood friend is about to be crowned King. Proceeded by two greedy rulers Sammat hopes to help the small nation in its recovery, but there are powerful and hidden enemies.

A rash of murders have occurred in which the victims appear to have been clawed to death by lions. These are unexplainable because there are no lions in Ubangiba. The rumors say that Sammat is a sorcerer and that he is responsible for the murders.

Alone Mrs. Pollifax begins a search for the one truly responsible for the bloody terrorism. Before all is said and done, home has never looked so good, or so far away and death has never looked so eminent to Emily.

Did you know author Sandra Brown is a Texan? Well I don't know if she was born and raised in Texas, but she and her husband and two children live in Arlington, now, which has nothing to do with the rest of the review. Breakfast in Bed, Sandra's new book, is about Sloan Fairchild who owns and operates an elegant San Francisco bed-and-breakfast inn. Sloan is recovering from a broken relationship and thinks she will never be able to trust another man. When her best friend asks Sloan to board her fiancée for a month, Sloan agrees to help the couple out. Carter Madison needs a quiet place to work where he can finish his latest novel before his wedding. Neither Carter or Sloan are prepared for the feeling of attraction they have for the other. Caught between love and loyalty to her friend, Sloan must make the hardest decision of her life.

Should she love for the moment only, walk away forever, or fight to have this man of her dreams at the expense of a best friend. I bet you can't guess what happens.

The Cat Who Said Cheese is Lillian Jackson Braun's latest creation. The Great Food Expo is scheduled to open soon, introducing new restaurants, country inns and Food Specialty Shops in Pickax City.

Before the Grand Opening can take place a bomb explodes in the hotel, killing a housekeeper and causing extensive damage. Gustav Limburger, the hotel owner is suddenly hospitalized and Quill wants to know why.

Another suspect is a mysterious female guest that disappears immediately following the bombing. Quill has an appointment with a possible witness, but he man is shot before he can speak with him. Koko and Yum Yum are on the case and have also discovered a taste for Gruyere, Brie and Feta cheese.

Other titles of interest are: The Stallion by Harold Robbins. Night Sins by Tami Hoag. Fear's Justice by Marc Olden.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER

County Extension Agent/FCS Poor health and other factors that result from aging may cause some older adults to become unable to shop for groceries, to cook or even feed themselves. With these physical barriers, it is no surprise that these elders may become undernourished and unable to maintain their normal weight.

Many fail to eat what is needed every day to ensure that they are getting all the right nutrients. So, they find themselves taking a bag full of medicines and vitamin and nutrient supplements. Elders need to take a look at just how much vitamin preparations they take such as vitamin E supplements, antioxidant vitamins and herbal/vitamin preparations.

The Surgeon General's Report on Nutrition and Health recommends that older adults consume sufficient nutrients to provide energy to achieve levels of physical activity that maintain desirable body weight and may prevent or delay the onset of chronic disease. Older adults need sound nutritional advice and a balanced diet supplying enough calories to meet reduced energy needs.

From the National Screening Initiative report, the most frequently reported inadequate nutrient intakes were vitamins B6, B12 and D, folacin, zinc, magnesium and calcium in the elderly. Vitamins B6 and B12 and calcium requirements may actually increase with age due to decreased absorption or utilization, whereas requirements for Vitamin A and folacin may decrease.

Getting enough foods that contain the nutrients can be a problem when foods may be higher in calories but lower in nutritional value. The elderly require fewer calories since they have a decreased activity level, which can be challenging. They need to select foods of higher nutrient density per calorie. Careful selection should include a variety of healthful food choices from the USDA Food Guide Pyramid.

Due to reduced activity, it is difficult not to gain weight. Dietary fats and refined carbohydrates should be reduced. The elderly should increase their intake of lowfat milk and other calcium-containing foods plus breads and cereals and fruits and vegetables should be increased. Also, older adults need to drink enough liquids (six to eight cups) daily because they have less saline and digestive fluids as they age.

Older adults unable to consume adequate levels of nutrients from food sources may benefit from certain supplements prescribed by their physician. However, self-prescribed supplements in large doses may be harmful and should be discouraged. Often, those who should benefit from supplements are not the ones who take them.

Hereford has a number of excellent retail stores who make every effort to fill your needs or services. Shop at home with the local folks. They help support your church, your kids, your entire community.

YOUR EYES

Contacts... Then & Now

Cleaning out a bureau drawer, a woman we know found an old pair of contact lenses. They were hard, they were big and, she remembered, uncomfortable. Still not happy about wearing glasses, she visited her optometrist and discovered the new, more comfortable contacts!

Did you once try contacts unsuccessfully? You owe it to yourself to try again. Science has made them so much better!

The most popular new lenses are soft, soft enough to fit smoothly right over the cornea, following the natural curve of the eye. The lenses are made in a variety of shapes so that your optometrist can choose one just right for your eyes. A few vision conditions cannot be corrected by soft lenses, but even the hard lenses today are smaller and more comfortable than they used to be.

Ask the optometrist about the new options in contacts—lenses that can change the color of your eyes or adapt for bifocal vision, extended-wear lenses and even handy disposables.

Deaf Smith County needs precipitation for planting

By SHELLY SCHILLING
Staff Writer

Without significant moisture -- and none in the forecast -- the Deaf Smith County area may lose some of its wheat crops and make spring planting a nightmare.

According to Carmon McCain, information/education director of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, the five foot root zone soil profile will need at least four to 10 inches of precipitation or irrigation to get ready for spring planting.

"The only thing farmers can do at this point is practice good conservation farming," McCain said. "We don't want to flip the soil over and dry it out any more than we have to."

Dennis Newton, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, said that without some precipitation, the wheat crop will be left in very bad shape.

"I think most farmers will wait until after March 15, to see if they will disaster their wheat crop," he said. "Of course, if we receive some moisture between now and then it could pull this crop out of its dormant state."

Newton also said that the irrigated wheat has come a long way in the last two weeks.

"I've seen a lot of fertilizing and pre-water irrigation going on," said Newton. "Most farmers are in good spirits -- it is just a shame that the price of wheat is looking good and the crop is not."

As farmers begin irrigating to combat the dry year, water usage will be a concern for the underground water district.

"Of course the dry year will affect the aquifer if producers continue to pump ground water," McCain said.

LEPA systems and good irrigation practices have helped make farmers more efficient in their use of the Ogallala Aquifer.

Newton said that the sprinklers in the Deaf Smith area have been running this past week getting ready for spring planting.

The upper Panhandle south toward Lubbock has suffered several years of drought-like conditions.

With such conditions the Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 is looking at revising water district rules.

"We are gathering data to determine if the rules need to be changed," McCain said. "If the conditions warrant it, we will have to make some revisions."

With any luck the rules will not have to be changed. That is -- IF Deaf Smith County receives some precipitation.

4-H News

By VANCE CHRISTIE
County Extension Agent - Ag.
Well, I guess this will be the last article that I will write as a Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, and it is to a certain degree of sadness that I am leaving Deaf Smith County. I can only hope to have such a wonderful group of people to work with in my new county.

The 4-H members, parents, volunteers, county officials, and my fellow Extension Staff Members have allowed me to learn more while I was here in Deaf Smith County than I could have possibly learned in any other county in the State. The support by the community for the 4-H program here is overwhelming, and I hope that all members and leaders will continue to strive to have the best 4-H program in Texas.

For this final article I want to pass on a passage that was published in one of our Extension Publications. It was titled, "The Troubles of a County Agent," author unknown.

"If he talks on a subject, he is trying to run things...if he is silent, he is dumb and lost interest.

If he is usually at the office he, should get out more, if he is out when you call, he isn't on the job.

If he is home at night he is neglecting business. If he is not at home at night, he is out carousing.

If he agrees with you he lacks originality. If he does not agree with you, he is ignorant.

If he is too busy for small talk, his job has gone to his head. If he engages in small talk, that is all he has to do.

If he cannot give an immediate answer, he is dumb. If he does know the answer, that is his job.

If he is friendly, he is playing politics. If he is aloof, he should be trimmed down to size.

If he is new, he doesn't know how things are done around here. If he is experienced, he lacks fresh ideas.

If he is well dressed, he thinks he is a big shot. If he is not well dressed, he is not a good representative of his position.

If he takes a vacation...he's been on one all year!!!

These are some things to remember when "breaking in" the new assistant agent (take it easy on him).

I wish the best to each and ever one of my former 4-H members. Thank you once again for the kindness and hospitality that you have shown towards me and Kirsti. We will carry the memories of Deaf Smith County for life.

Mammals, scientists say, evolved from a group of reptiles called the synapsids about 200 million years ago.

Stock horse program set

COLLEGE STATION -- A program for horse owners interested in stock horses has been set for March 12-14 at the Taylor County Exposition Center in Abilene.

The first two days of the program will be devoted to stock horse maneuver identification and rider and horse training techniques. The third day will include evaluation of participants and their horses against the criteria set for the ideal stockhorse.

There are more than one million horses in Texas that are owned by professionals, amateurs, working and recreational horse owners, said Dr. Doug Householder, in a recent news release. Householder is a horse specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

He said many horse owners have nice, athletically-bred horses. They want to become more skilled in riding and training techniques, and they want their horse to be well-broke versatile. Also, many horse owners would like to be able to train their own horses and horseback cattle working skills, said Quarterhorse breeder and trainer, Jack Brainard.

In response to the need, a Texas Horse Industry Task Force made up of stock horse breeders, judges, trainers, educators, and horse association and industry representatives, is exploring the needs of the stock horse owner, Brainard said.

Task force members are Brainard, Roger Blackmon of Baird, Dr. Bill Jackson of Stephenville, Dennis Sigler of Muenster, Dr. B.F. Yeates of Bryan, and Pete Gibbs and Householder, extension horse specialist of College Station conduct the stock horse clinic on March 12-13. The competition classes on March 14 will include stock/ranch horse pleasure, trail, cattle handling, basic maneuvers, timed event and versatility. The cost of the program is $50.

Quadruplet calves born in California

PETALUMA, Calif. (AP) - There's big moos in Sonoma County - a cow named Winonna has given birth to quadruplet calves, one in a million occurrence.

"It would be easier to win the lottery," said Jim Oltjen, a beef specialist with the University of California at Davis.

The quadruplets, two bulls and two heifers, were born recently to a 5-year-old Hereford owned by Petaluma rancher John Pagliaro.

The calves are small but healthy and Pagliaro is hopeful all will live. Because the mother can't produce enough milk for all four, he is getting extra milk from a neighboring dairy ranch.

"They all look alike," Pagliaro said. "My wife put color markings on their faces so we can keep them straight when we do the bottle feeding."

Winonna showed no signs that she would give birth to more than one, he said. She had not been given any fertility drugs and bred naturally with a bull.

"The cow had one calf when I went to bed Saturday night and there were three more calves when I got up Sunday morning," he said Monday.

Joan Rowe, a veterinarian on the faculty at the School of Veterinary Medicine at Davis, said quadruplets are very unusual in beef cows. A single calf is normal in 95 percent of deliveries among that breed.

Scientific literature shows that of the 40 million cattle born each year in the United States, there are only about 30 sets of quadruplets born.

And in the rare case where multiple births do happen, calves are often born dead or don't live long, Rowe said.

"It's a wonderful story of Mother Nature," she said.

FSA sets ACP approval date

The Deaf Smith County Farm Service Agency has set March 14, as the first approval date for the 1996 Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP).

Producers who plan to install a conservation practice on their farm or ranch between now and Sept. 30, should file an application for cost shares as soon as possible.

March 15 will be the final date to obtain crop insurance (CAT or Multi-Peril) for Corn, Grain Sorghum, Hybrid Seed Sorghum, Sugarbeets, Cotton, Soybeans, Sunflowers, Dry Beans and/or Potatoes.

Grazing CRP acreages has been authorized for the county. Check with FSA office if there are any questions.

scientists took cells from an animal, established a laboratory cell population that produced thousands of copies, and then used copies to create successful pregnancies.

Experts said if the technique can be perfected, it would be a major gain in the ability to make genetic changes in livestock for research and to quickly produce animals that give more or better milk or meat, resist diseases or display other desirable traits.

"It is a great achievement," commented Robert H. Foote, professor emeritus of animal physiology at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

The work was reported today in the journal Nature by Ian Wilmut, Keith Campbell and colleagues at the Roslin Institute near Edinburgh, Scotland. The institute does agricultural research on animals, with government and industry funding.

Currently, scientists can produce genetically identical farm animals by such techniques as breaking a single embryo into pieces and implanting each piece in a womb to form a new animal. But that approach yields fewer than 20 copies, rather than hundreds.

Scientists can already plant genes into farm animals by injecting the genetic material into fertilized eggs. But the new technique can generate thousands of cells to receive genes, giving scientists many more chances to achieve successful gene transfers.

As a result, scientists would be able to insert genes more precisely, swap new genes for old or inactivate particular genes in an animal, said animal gene expert Caird Rexroad Jr.

That would offer major advantages for studying farm animal genetics and eventually producing better banyard stock, said Rexroad, research leader at the Gene Evaluation and Mapping Laboratory at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service in Beltsville, Md.

The new work has "put us a step closer to doing that," he said.

Mass-producing hundreds of animals is still years away, Wilmut said, because the technique is currently much too inefficient. The Nature paper reports the birth of only five lambs from hundreds of attempts.

Wilmut said he believes the technique could also be used eventually for cattle. For other species, like pigs, goats and poultry, the prospects are less clear because of differences in the biology of early development, he said.

Wilmut also said he doesn't know if it would work in people, adding that many scientists would consider this application unethical.

For the research, scientists isolated cells from sheep embryos and grew them in laboratory dishes. The cells grew into colonies, which were repeatedly split up to form more and more cells.

Then the researchers took unfertilized eggs from ewes, pulled out the egg's genes, and fused the eggs to the laboratory-grown cells. These cells supplied the genes for the eggs, which were placed in ewes to grow into embryos and eventually be born.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gains in most categories of exports pushed the U.S. agricultural trade surplus to a record $25.8 billion last year. That was 37 percent higher than the 1994 surplus.

Exports totaled $55.8 billion, also a record. Imports were up 12 percent, to $30 billion, with much of the increase coming in rubber, coffee and cattle.

The Agriculture Department said sales to China and the Pacific Rim accounted for a large part of the growth. Highlights of the report:

-Beef exports rose 15 percent to $2.6 billion; half the volume went to Japan.

-Poultry shipments were up 29 percent to $2 billion; Russia bought $600 million worth.

-Cotton growers exported $3.7 billion worth, up $1 billion from 1994. China bought $800 million of the crop.

-Exports of fresh vegetables were unchanged at $3.9 billion, half of which went to Japan and Canada.

-Higher citrus values pushed up fruit exports by 16 percent, to $2.7 billion.

-Shipments of U.S. wheat totaled 32.3 million tons, up 6 percent; their value rose 34 percent to $5.4 billion.

The biggest customers were Egypt, Japan and Pakistan.

-Corn exports hit 60 million tons, up 68 percent. China, formerly an exporter, bought 5.4 million tons, and its former customers - including Korea and Malaysia - bought big shares of the U.S. crop.

-Soybean shipments were 26 percent above 1994, at 22.8 million tons.

-Imports of rubber rose 69 percent to $1.6 billion; coffee imports were up 31 percent at $3.3 billion. In both cases, prices rose because of uncertain production prospects. Cattle imports increased 23 percent to $1.4 billion. Ample supplies of fresh Mexican vegetables found their way into the United States.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Think of pure, white, fluffy whipped cream. Think of it without the fat and you could be looking at another product made from a high-protein soybean.

Scientists at the Agriculture Department have bred the new soybean and developed a refining process that could result in the whipped-cream substitute as well as amino acids so pure that they could be used in the manufacture of medicines.

The industry standard for concentrated soybean protein is about 60 percent purity. But chemist Prachau Kwanyuen of the department's Agricultural Research Service has found a way to produce a snow-white powder that is nearly 100 percent pure protein.

The high-protein soybean is called Prolina and was developed by ARS plant geneticist Joseph Burton, working with Kwanyuen at the Soybean and Nitrogen Fixation Laboratory here.

"Right now Prolina is used by tofu farmers who can earn premiums for the protein content of their seeds," said Burton. "We plan to enhance its yields to broaden its use."

The new variety has more of a special protein that is easier to whip or make into cheese substitutes and other fat-free foods.

Amino acids produced in the refining process also could supplement animal feeds or provide the pharmaceutical industry with an inexpensive alternative to synthetic acids, said Richard Wilson, research leader at the Raleigh lab. North Carolina State University scientists are working with USDA on the project.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Producers of flue-cured tobacco will be assessed 1 cent per pound of 1996 crop. Purchasers will pay 1.8 cents.

The figures, announced by the Commodity Credit Corp., represent the combined no-net-cost assessment and the marketing assessment.

Agency receives insurance award

The Shackelford Agency of Hereford recently was awarded the prestigious Premier Agency Crop Insurance award sponsored by the Cimarron Crop Insurance Servicing, Co.

The award is given to selected agencies throughout the nation that have excelled in meeting the insurance needs of the farming community.

Rich Bartlett, president of Cimarron Crop Insurance Service, said the agency's success in servicing their customers demonstrate its commitment to offering superior products, prices, and services to the ag-insurance industry.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tinkering with the genes of plants has produced a hormone that curbs the appetite of the voracious hornworm and other pests that prey on tomatoes, tobacco and peaches.

The Agricultural Research Service is seeking an industry partner for an effort to refine the technology so that it can become a useful tool for growers.

The key modified gene, developed by the agency, an arm of the Agriculture Department, has been patented as a biotechnology tactic.

When plants engineered with the gene are chewed by insects, the plants pump out large amounts of the hormone, cytokinin.

"Overproducing the hormone - at levels up to 70 times normal - jump-starts the plant's own biochemical defenses," said Ann Smigocki, a molecular geneticist with the research service in Beltsville, Md.

"Leaves of tomato and tobacco plants that carry the modified gene serve as less-satisfying meals for tomato hornworms, green peach aphids and possibly other pests," she said. Hornworms that ate the tinkered plants were not killed but ate much less than normal.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The Ethnic Niche

Once upon a time American was a melting pot. Men and women from around the world crossed our borders, learned our language, assimilated our culture, pledged allegiance to our flag and became American citizens.

Today, the picture is different. Men, women and children are still pouring from across our borders but many of these groups are resisting the melting pot concept. They prefer to have their cultural cake and eat it too. As a result, we have growing numbers of "something hyphen Americans" who choose to live in this great country, but prefer to retain most of their own cultural heritage.

This cultural diversity issue causes some interesting social and political dilemmas. Since our main focus in this column is business, I won't get into the social and political ramifications here. What I do want to address is the business opportunities these new, diverse cultural groups offer to savvy business owners.

The numbers are growing

Today, four cultural minority groups represent nearly one-fourth of the U.S. population. Men and women of African, Asian, American Indian and Hispanic descent make up these four major groups.

By some estimates, these fast-growing ethnic segments will grow to more than one-third of the U.S. population shortly after the year 2000. In Texas and California, the experts are estimating that the white, non-hispanic population will be the minority in another 15 years.

These are sobering statistics if you're a business owner creating a marketing strategy. Many entrepreneurs have virtually ignored these market niches. Yet, they represent growing numbers of the American consumers who have the magic combination of needs and money to spend.

If you are going to be successful in attracting and satisfying these growing segments, you'll have to change your marketing strategy. If you're sharp, you'll think of the cultural differences as opportunities to hammer the competition as opposed to difficulties in doing business.

Some ethnic lessons

Several large corporations focused on these ethnic groups with the hope of increasing market share. Some efforts were miserable flops, a few were highly successful and most are educationally valuable if we choose to learn from them.

To get started, remember that marketing to ethnic segments is still marketing, and that successful marketing always involves a sharp customer focus. You must know your customers and understand their needs and wants. Only then can you utilize the cultural differences to prove your benefits and articulate your advantages.

The businesses that are achieving the most success are using the native language to target ethnic segment. Advertising and store signs are a start, but having people involved in the business who speak the native language is more likely to prove profitable.

Understanding culture, social customs, holidays and traditions are also important. One-shot advertising aimed at Martin Luther King day or Cinco de Mayo probably won't win you any ethnic customers.

You may need to adjust your product mix to be successful. Your goal is to provide exactly what the customers want, just the way they want it, when they want it. If you're unsure, spend some time researching your target market. The best way to get answers, is to ask questions of people who know.

You still have to build trust and form relationships. Though this is true with any customer, Hispanics and Asian-Americans are particularly sensitive. You are more likely to influence them if they trust you than if you offer unique product features with highly-visible promotion.

Ethnic niches are good opportunities to grow your business. Move out of your comfort zone and discover that Americans come in different varieties with different needs. You may discover that these folks make good friends and neighbors, as well as customers.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am female with some weight I can lose, although my doctor says I'm fine as I am. He says we all need a fat composition. He's so busy these days that I didn't bother to ask what he means. Can you discuss this? — Mrs. G.J.

ANSWER: The meaningful gauge of healthful weight rests on its fat percentage. How much is fat, how much muscle and bone? It's no secret that you want less of the former and more of the latter.

We have several formulae and devices to learn this ratio. They range from underwater measurement to use of electrical impedance machines. These permit very precise figures, but you cannot avoid complicating variables, such as whether the person has drunk lots of fluid or was in a dehydrated state. Ultrasound is another method favored by some, who feel it provides the best picture. CAT scans have been used, although at times this might be seen as frivolous (and expensive) use.

For ordinary needs a full length mirror suffices. It doesn't lie. Its truth lies in the eye of the beholder. Most need not resort to precise fat/lean numbers. There's a simple tape measure way to determine acceptable weight status. Subtract your waist from your height (in inches). A result of 36 or higher is acceptable. Technically, if a man has 15 percent of his body as fat, he's okay. For a woman, it's 25 percent, a way of cutting her some biological slack to satisfy reproductive needs.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can you tell me about Sever's disease, a diagnosis involving a heel in my young son? — Mrs. J.D.

ANSWER: Sever's is inflammation of part of the heel. You see it in youngsters whose heelbones have not hardened sufficiently to absorb the jolting from heavy jumping activity.

This is another of those self-limited ailments, but one demanding more than mere rest. Icing the heel area along with anti-inflammation drugs and wearing of a quarter-inch heel pad will resolve the pain in about three weeks. After that, your son will have to wear the lift another three weeks. A tight plantar fascia (dense underfoot tissue) can cause Sever's. His doctor can prescribe exercise to stretch it. One is done with the person in a chair with heels planted on the floor. He reaches down, grasps the forefoot, and bends it up. When you feel the stretch, hold for five seconds. Repeat ten times, four sessions a day.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can you tell me about Legg-Calve-Perthes disease? My active son, 12, has it. I hope we didn't delay too much before getting this diagnosis. He limped for a couple of weeks before I could get him in. That was a struggle! — Mrs. K.W.

ANSWER: Legg-Calve-Perthes is a hipbone (femur) problem brought on by a localized disruption of blood flow. It is most common in children between 4 and the teen years. It involves the topmost part of the hipbone.

Yes, a limp along with mild hip pain accompanies the disorder, both symptoms worsening with activity. For the most part, the problem becomes self-limiting so far as activity is concerned.

You must rest, for the diminished blood supply causes a disintegration of the bone and you don't want to add to that. Some patients need bracing. I am glad to tell you that the blood supply does return and healthy bone is reestablished. The bad news is that the process can take from one to two years.

I doubt that your brief delay affected things materially.

Here's another childhood bone problem:

ANSWER: Sever's is inflammation of part of the heel. You see it in youngsters whose heelbones have not hardened sufficiently to absorb the jolting from heavy jumping activity.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends at housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

A LOOK OF ELEGANCE
Expanse of Glass Brightens Kitchen Breakfast Area

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

A recessed entry is embellished by a fanlight window over the door, flanked by sidelights. The foyer leads to a gallery which prevents you from having to walk through a room to reach another room.

Completely open to the gallery is an exquisite great room meant to be appreciated. Windows border the fireplace and access is provided to the rear sundeck. A vaulted ceiling completes the room.

The dining room is open on two sides and is adjacent to the great room and centrally located for convenience.

The large kitchen breakfast room combination is flooded by light from two walls of windows. An angled island with surface unit and snack bar subtly separates the eating area from the meal preparation area.

A laundry room, complete with wall cabinets and counter top is adjoining the kitchen.

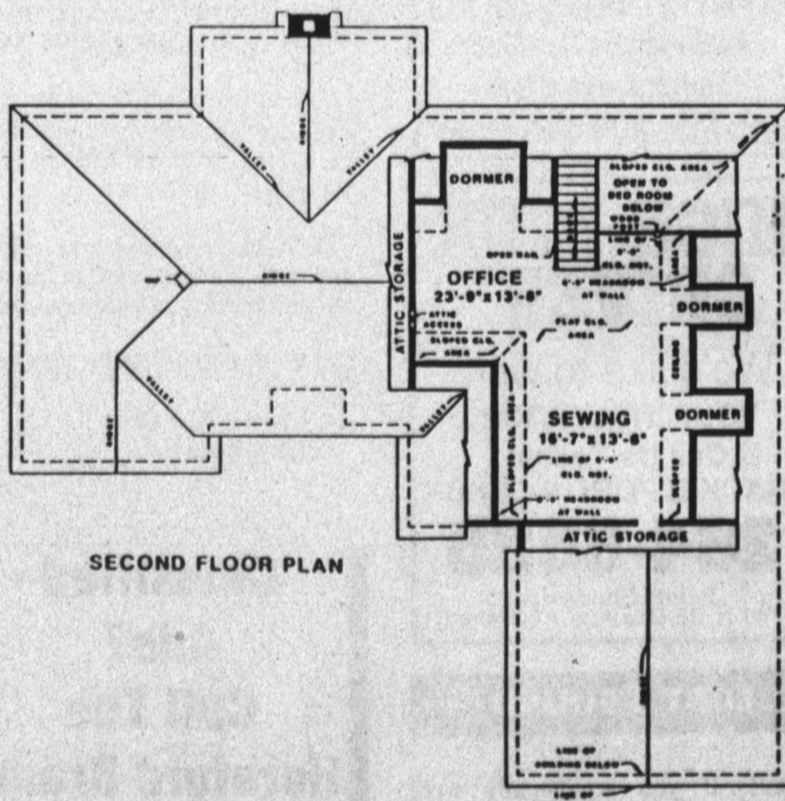

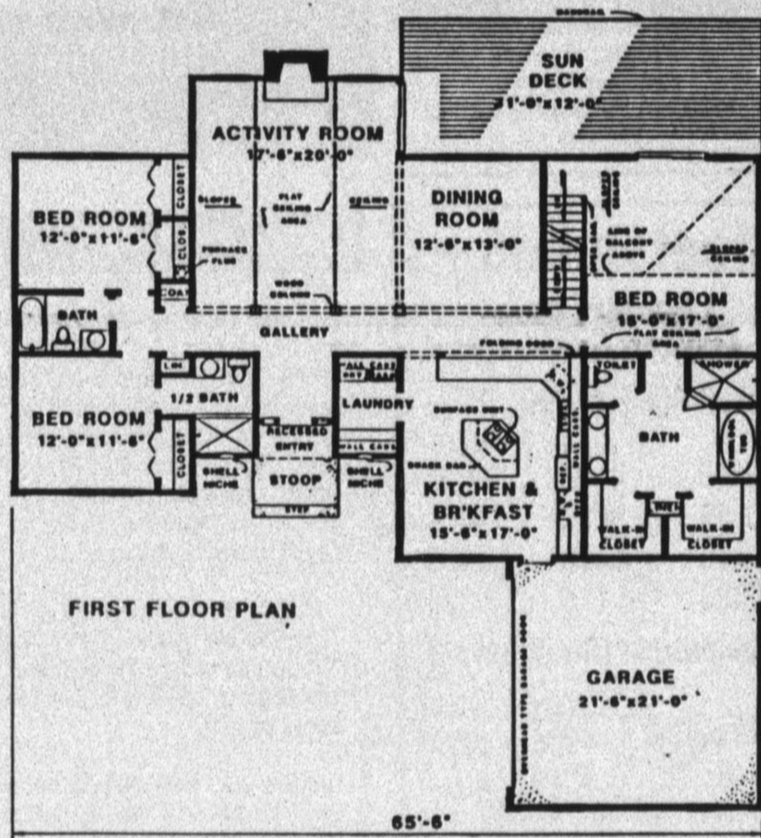

The isolated master suite of the home is located behind the garage and consists of twin walk in closets, double vanity, separate toilet and shower compartments and a garden tub. An additional feature to the master suite is bonus space overlooking the bedroom which can be used as an office or for sewing. The stair up is located in the master bedroom, with stairs going to the basement under this, and accessible from the gallery.

The remaining family bedrooms are on the opposite end of the home, each with access to a bath, one being a private shower bath.

A combination of stone and stucco accented with corner quoins and multiple rooflines creating interesting angles give this home a classic look. The plan contains a total of 2,840 square feet of heated space, including the bonus space above the master suite. For further information on plan number 2854, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Thin slabs of a rare kind of sandstone called itacolumite can be bent by hand because of their crystalline structure.

O'Connell slides back into Fox's lineup with series

By Amy Hibbert
©TVData Features Syndicate

Rising star Jerry O'Connell's (Sliders, My Secret Identity) identity isn't a secret anymore.

Not only does he return for a second season to portray the good-looking young star of Fox's science-fiction series Sliders, airing Fridays, he also has been busy making a few feature films and television movies.

O'Connell's career has been going full force lately, making him more recognizable, especially to female viewers. But he tries not to think too much about that.

"I choose my projects because they seem to be a challenge to me and fun to do and I don't really concern myself with that other stuff," he comments.

The actor started his career with television commercials. But his big break came at the age of 11, playing Vern, the lover of cherry-flavored PEZ, in Stand by Me.

"That was a lucky break. There was a very large call, and I just happened to look the part and be the right age," O'Connell explains.

He then expanded to television with a few series, including My Secret Identity and Camp Wilder. But recently, his career has really started to pick up.

Not only has he starred in several television movies lately, among them Fox's Blue River, he is returning to feature films as well.

"I just did a film called Joe's Apartment. It was a blast. The script is so funny," he comments. He portrays a young Iowan who moves to a city, only to learn that the cockroaches in his apartment are nicer to him than the people in the city.

O'Connell also is set to shoot a movie with Tom Cruise shortly.

And of course, there is Sliders, a sci-fi series about four travelers who slide through a gateway to parallel dimensions of Earth.

Quinn Mallory (O'Connell) is the young genius who originally finds the gateway.

He is joined by his physics professor, Maximilian Arturo (John Rhys-Davies), his good friend Wade Wells (Sabrina Lloyd) and blues singer Rembrandt "Crying Man" Brown (Cleavant Derricks), who just happened to be driving past Quinn's house at the right (or wrong?) moment.

Each world they encounter has the same times and geographical locations as the Earth they come from. However, the personal and historical situations are not always the same, giving viewers a chance to see what might have happened if, for example, America had lost the Revolutionary War, or the Declaration of Independence were no longer valid, or the hippie years had never ended.

At times, the four also encounter parallel-world versions of themselves, an aspect O'Connell enjoys.

"I get to play myself as doubles on a lot of these worlds that we go to," he says. "So I'm constantly creating characters every week. It's never dull."

"I like projects that will challenge me. That's why this show is so fun, because every week we do something completely different and crazy."

But the main character O'Connell portrays week after week is a sensitive, caring young man, an image that is attractive to most female viewers.

With a good time slot (it precedes Fox's popular sci-fi series The X-Files) and the loyal following it gathered during its brief run last spring, Sliders may find success this year. And O'Connell just might give David Duchovny (The X-Files) a run for his money and become the next sci-fi hunk.

Jerry O'Connell (left) stars as a young genius who discovers a gateway to parallel Earths and John Rhys-Davies portrays a physics professor who joins him in his scientific experiment. They and two other travelers face a new world each week in Sliders, airing Fridays on Fox.

★ ★ March 10-16 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Instead of getting caught with your foot in your mouth, think before you speak. Be aware of who you're talking to at all times this week. Remember, not everyone appreciates your sense of humor. On the romantic front, things are looking good. A new love could be on the horizon.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Take criticism with a grain of salt. Everyone has opinions, but when it comes to your personal affairs, your opinion is the only important one. At work, there could be a sticky situation regarding a past mistake. Admitting your error will gain you more respect than making excuses.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Putting in extra effort in the workplace will pay off in a big way. You won't regret going the extra mile. An old flame may try to re-enter your life. Be sure you know what you want before welcoming him/her with open arms. This is especially true if your past love is a Scorpio.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Patience will be an important virtue this week, especially when it comes to romance. Your love interest may need some cheering up and some tender, loving care. Make him/her feel loved by whipping up a special dinner and showing extra attention and affection. It will go a long way!

LEO - July 23/August 23
Something you've wanted for a long time will suddenly be yours for the asking. It will probably be easier to attain that you realized. An extra-demanding work schedule could keep you from your social obligations. Unfortunately, you will have to put fun to the side for a busy period.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Putting your trust in someone who's failed you before isn't the wisest thing to do. Although everyone deserves a second chance, you'll have to realize that some people just don't change. A conflict with a Tauran work associate could turn into battle if you lose your cool.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Whoever coined the phrase "Lazy Libra" will be proven wrong this week. Your energy level will be at an all-time high this week, so take advantage of it. Tackle complicated projects and take care of mundane tasks. Even the most dreadful chore will seem like a piece of cake. This is your week to make heads spin!

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
The week will start off like a whirlwind where you feel as if you're being pulled in a million different directions. Take heart, things will calm down as the week progresses. Good news on the home front. A family member will have a special surprise. A good diet helps you keep fit.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Something you learn early in the week will help you later on this month, so pay extra attention in all conversations this week. A frustrated loved one may try to use you as the "whipping boy." Don't let it happen. You can be sympathetic yet stand up for your dignity at the same time.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
A negative attitude will only make a difficult situation worse. Instead of focusing on what's bad, try to look at the bright side. You'd be surprised what an optimistic attitude can do for you. Advice from a Leo friend should be considered carefully. Don't just shrug it off.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Kindness and generosity are admirable Aquarian qualities. But being too nice is how Aquarians get taken advantage of and become frustrated. Don't let it happen to you. Know where to draw the line and you will gain more respect. A surprise on Friday sets the tone for the weekend.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
A busy work load and even busier social schedule is a tiring combination for the delicate fish. Before you run yourself ragged, take a break. Make sure you leave enough time for rest and relaxation. A family member may need your support with a sensitive problem. Be understanding.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Why has the great show The X-Files been repeating old episodes lately? Surely they must realize they run the risk of viewers turning to other programs. -Malcolm W. Kroeber Sr., Meriden, Conn.

A: Very few viewers realize that a full season order for a show is only about two dozen episodes (in the case of The X-Files, it's traditionally been 25).

The networks obviously want to be sure they can run fresh episodes of high-profile shows like this during the monthlong "sweeps" periods (November, February and May) when ratings are used to set advertising rates for sponsors.

Subtract those dozen or so "sweeps" episodes, and they have only about another dozen episodes left to fill out the year. The rest of the time, they either must pre-empt the show or air a repeat.

Due to its devout viewership, an X-Files repeat pulls as high a rating (or higher) as anything else they could put in there, especially since many latecomers are catching up via repeats.

It may get worse: David Duchovny reportedly wants to do three fewer episodes next season to allow him to consider other offers. Currently, he and co-star Gillian Anderson are so wrung out by their demanding work schedule they can't do anything else.

Q: If Elizabeth Montgomery of Bewitched played both Samantha and her cousin Serena, why do the credits say Serena was played by Pandora Spocks? -Samantha M., New Haven, Conn.

A: Total TV lists the name as "Pandora Sparks" (although I think you're right), but either name was the show's mischievous spin on a very old tradition in the theater. When a theater audience was supposed to be unaware the same actor was playing two roles in a play, the second role often was listed in the program as played by "George Spelvin."

In a related vein, when a director has his name taken off a film in a dispute, the credits usually will say the film was directed by "Alan Smithee."

Q: Please help me remember the name of a police series starring Dennis Farina. It started out in Chicago, but later moved to Las Vegas, and was set in the 1960s. -Connie Boose, Wakeman, Ohio.

A: Farina starred with Anthony Denison in Crime Story, which aired on NBC from Sept. 18, 1986, to May 10, 1988.

Q: I'm a big fan of Alan Autry, but I have seen different answers to this question: Is he related to Gene Autry? -P.S., Tallahassee, Fla.

A: A publicist for the Grace Under Fire co-star says the two men are distant cousins.

HIGHLIGHTS

Actor James Cromwell shares stories from the set of Babe, the Oscar-nominated pig tale, in Hollywood's Amazing Animal Actors. The special premieres Tuesday on TBS.

TBS special pays tribute to Amazing Animal Actors

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

TBS goes to the dogs - and cats, horses and pigs - to salute Hollywood's Amazing Animal Actors, a two-hour special premiering Tuesday, March 12.

It's hard to imagine anyone who won't find something to enjoy in this family offering, which has a built-in "Awwwww" factor that goes right off the chart.

Small fry will enjoy the behind-the-scenes clips from recent hits like The Mask and the Beethoven movies.

Older viewers will appreciate some of the film lore surrounding such animal stars of yore as Rin Tin Tin, Lassie and Fury.

Framed by the whimsical account of a starstruck pooch named Harry who jumps on a Greyhound (what else?) in search of Hollywood fame and fortune, Amazing Animal Actors introduces viewers to the men and women behind these stars; their trainers.

Their human co-stars, including Oscar nominee James Cromwell (Babe), June Lockhart (Lassie), Donald O'Connor (Francis the Talking Mule) and Clint Howard (Gentle Ben), also share true stories from behind the scenes.

Journalists Michael Medved and James Bacon offer valuable background on Rin Tin Tin, the dog who achieved so much success that he was nicknamed "the Mortgage Lifter" after he literally saved Warner Bros. from bankruptcy and "single-pawedly" provided the money to bring sound to the big screen.

According to legend, "Rinty," as his human co-stars called him, was discovered as a shivering puppy in a shell-blasted German dugout in World War I.

However, that dog was actually the sire of the canine who became a movie star, Bacon explains.

The first day the original Rin Tin Tin reported to the Warner studio lot, he almost immediately bit studio executive Jack L. Warner on the backside.

Muttering that he never had been bitten by an actor before, Warner immediately fired the temperamental dog and hired one of his pups to star.

Reader says ATWT is like family

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dear Candace: I've never had much of a family. As The World Turns has been a family to me over the years. I love it.

But right now I'm so angry at the writers for keeping Rosanna (Yvonne Perry) and Mike (Shawn Christian) apart. I'm going to stop watching if those two don't get married soon. The writers should make Scott (Doug Wert) and Carly (Maura West) a couple. Then Carly would leave poor Rosanna and Mike alone. -Pauline in Lansing, Mich.

Dear Reader: All families go through good times and bad times. If everything went the way viewers wanted, ATWT probably wouldn't be very interesting. Stick it out. The show has some twists and turns ahead with this story line. You'll be sorry if you miss them.

Dear Candace: Do you know if there is a number you can call for The Bold and the Beautiful? Guiding Light and ATWT both have viewer feedback lines, which I think are a great idea. I believe the writers need to know how viewers feel in order to help keep their interest.

I, for one, am mighty sick of Queen Stephanie (Susan Flannery) getting away with everything on B&B. One person wrote to you about what Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang) has done and how she should get her due. Let us not forget Stephanie started all this when she was in college and Eric (John McCook) was involved with Beth Logan. Stephanie took Eric away from Beth. She stole Eric because she was pregnant with his child.

Spiro Agnew's 1969 speech attacking the press for its stranglehold on news and public opinion was carried on all three networks.

Now all that seems forgotten. It is time for Stephanie to be put in her place. Ridge (Ronn Moss) and Brooke should be together. B&B doesn't have one couple that has stayed together. -A fan in Lewiston, Maine.

Dear Reader: B&B does not have a viewer feedback line. Bill Bell, executive producer and head writer, doesn't believe he needs to hear from fans to write interesting stories for his shows.

CHITTER CHATTER

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Saving his luxurious ranch from forced auction, Spanish singer Julio Iglesias paid $352,500 in damages to an Argentine composer minutes before bidding was to begin.

An Argentine civil court judge in 1993 ordered Iglesias to pay Norberto "Larry" Moreno damages for using at least seven bars of his song "Yolanda" in his own hit song "Marrinas."

Iglesias appealed and lost. His ranch, Momentos, is located about 250 miles south of Buenos Aires. Its value is believed to be approximately $2 million. It was slated to go on the block Friday when Iglesias paid the debt.

"I'm happy, this is like David beating Goliath," Moreno said of his five-year legal battle.

NEW YORK (AP) - Don't look for the Church Lady or her famous catch phrase "Who could it be? Saaaaaatan?" on Dana Carvey's new sketch comedy show. Keep an eye out for one of her family members, though.

Carvey, who starred on "Saturday Night Live" from 1986-1992, can legally only use characters he created independent of the NBC series.

"I can play the relatives, but not the characters," Carvey says in TV Guide. Carvey says he will replace the Church Lady with her gay nephew - who bears a striking resemblance to his prim-faced aunt. In addition, Carvey says characters called "Germans Who Say Nice Things" and the 1996 presidential campaign will be key parts of "The Dana Carvey Show."

"Steve Forbes alone could provide a whole season," says Carvey, whose ABC show makes its debut March 12.

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) - If the house is rockin', chances are Aaron Tippin is nowhere near it.

The 37-year-old country singer, whose latest album is "Tool Box," says life on the road, the subject of many country songs, is actually rather sedate for him.

"The majority of ladies I dated in the past have thought my life was one big party. The truth of the matter is, when I'm out on the road, I work," Tippin said. "I don't play around. I don't even allow females on my tour bus."

Tippin, once regarded as one of Nashville's most eligible bachelors, married Thea Corontzos last summer. It's his second marriage.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Second only to the Beatles in all-time record sales, country music's Garth Brooks still isn't a happy cowpoke.

In fact, he's even considering hanging up his hat.

The 34-year-old Oklahoma native says he's counting on a new concert tour, beginning March 13 in Atlanta, to jump-start sales of his latest "album - and his enthusiasm.

"Fresh Horses" has sold 2.6 million copies, a tepid response for an album by Brooks, who has $725 million in sales in less than seven years.

"I'm hoping the tour will make a difference, but if it doesn't we'll have to take a serious look at where we are in our career," Brooks told the Los Angeles Times in an interview published Sunday. "If the record and ticket sales don't tell me that I'm stirring things up or changing people's lives, then I think it's time for me to hang it up."

Brooks said he doesn't "want to ride that downside of the bell curve."

"You want to be remembered at your best. You don't want to be a trivia question on some cheesy game show in 20 years and see the (contestant) get it wrong," Brooks said.

DALLAS (AP) - Christopher Reeve, paralyzed in a fall while horseback riding, became an honorary "Tall Texan" on Saturday for promoting awareness of spinal cord research.

Reeve and his wife, Dana, were joint honorees of the Tall Texan Award at a gala fund-raiser to benefit nerve regeneration research at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center.

Reeve, 42, won for his "courage and determination" following the injury.

The human brain is 80 percent water, more watery than our blood.
