Weary Clinton wants probe to end real estate questions

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton, taking stock of his presidency at the one-year mark, said he hopes an independent investigation of his real estate dealings a decade ago will quiet the controversy and allow him to "just go back to work." He shrugged off the bad days, saying, "that's part of life."

A sometimes somber Clinton, clearly tired after a grueling start to the new year, appeared Thursday on CNN's "Larry King Live" program and fielded questions from a national TV audience that reflected the achievements and setbacks of his first year.

He touched on subjects from the earthquake in California to the bloodshed in Bosnia.

"I like the job," he said in a simple summation. "I'm grateful for the opportunity to serve. The bad days are part of it."

It was a bitter irony that the anniversary of Clinton's inauguration was the same day that Attorney General Janet Reno appointed a special counsel to investigate his 1980s dealings in a failed Arkansas real estate venture. Clinton, interviewed in the White House library, pledged full cooperation with the investigation of Whitewater Development Corp. by former U.S. Attorney Robert B. Fiske Jr. and indicated that he and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton would submit to questioning.

"The main thing I want to do is to just have that turned over to him so we can go back to work," Clinton said. "I just want to do my job. I don't want to be distracted by this anymore. I didn't do anything wrong."

Acknowledging that he had been caught off guard by the intensity of questions about his role in Whitewater, Clinton said it was "a much bigger story ... than I had anticipated."

He insisted he had done the "bend-over-backwards right thing" in connection with the real estate deal.

Fiske is to investigate allegations that Clinton improperly benefited from his business partnership with James McDougal, operator of a now-failed Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan. Investigators are trying to determine whether depositors' funds were diverted from Madison to help retire Clinton's 1984 gubernatorial campaign debt and whether S&L money was improperly deposited in the Whitewater account.

The president abandoned plans to extend his appearance on the King show from an hour to 90 minutes as the strain of his recent schedule became apparent.

"Are you happy?" the talk-show host asked Clinton.

"Oh, yes," he said without emotion.

Reporter says Davidians fired first shot during raid

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A newspaper reporter who witnessed a federal raid and shootout with Branch Davidians says he believes the first shots were fired from inside the sprawling home ruled by David Koresh.

"Based on what I saw and heard, I believe whoever was inside the building fired first," said Marc Masferrer, a reporter for the Waco Tribune-Herald.

Masferrer testified he, another reporter and a photographer from the newspaper observed the start of the firefight from a country road about 225 yards from the compound.

Defense attorneys, who claim their clients acted in self-defense, attempted to show the reporter was too far away to get a good look and had no training in determining bullet direction.

The reporter's testimony Thursday in the federal murder trial of 11 Branch Davidians was the first from a witness who is not a law officer.

Prosecutors followed up by calling three agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms who described a barrage of gunfire that killed and wounded their fellow agents.

The defendants are accused of killing four federal agents in the Feb. 28, 1993, gun battle in which 16 agents were wounded and six Branch Davidians are believed to have died.

Koresh and about 80 followers died April 19 after a 51-day standoff amidst a fire that engulfed the compound.

The 11 defendants face up to life in prison if convicted.

Masferrer said gunfire erupted after a group of ATF agents poured out of one of two cattle trailers and headed toward the front of the compound.

Under cross-examination, Masferrer said he did not know whether agents had begun to unload from the other cattle trailer when he heard gunfire.

Other ATF agents who took the witness stand described the gun battle.

Outstanding beet growers from the area were also recognized at the meeting by Dennis Printz, ag manager at the Holly plant.

Another highlight of the banquet will be the presentation of the "Man of the Year in Agriculture," sponsored by The Hereford Brand. Three directors are to be elected to the TSBGA board.

The banquet is open to the public and tickets are $7.50 each.

Formby saluted for record of 12,000 radio programs

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

"Well, hello. How are you this morning?"

That's the way Clint Formby started off his first "Day by Day Philosopher" radio program on KPAN in the first week of October, 1954.

This morning, he used those greetings for the 12,000th time--making his program the longest running produced by an individual in the history of broadcasting.

"It's no big deal to me. It's like saying a man got up and put on his trousers for the 12,000th time, said Formby Thursday. "It just became a part of my life--something I got disciplined to doing."

When he started the program--giving listeners a 10-minute dose of philosophy, advice, commentary and humor--he never dreamed it would continue for 39 years. He changed the program to a 5-minute show about 20 years ago, "not because it was easier but it fit our station schedule better."

The program is broadcast Monday through Saturday, and Formby is quick to admit the only way it stayed as a long-running show was due to being able to tape the shows. As Formby got involved with ownership in other radio stations, and in service with state and national broadcasting associations, he was on the road frequently.

"Sometimes, I'll tape two or three shows on the weekend. I usually try to have local commentary on Monday's show," added Formby, "and I borrow or steal from various sources for material and ideas." He subscribes to a number of daily newspapers (he mentioned The Hereford Brand and The Wall Street Journal) and national magazines.

"When we started the program, it was with the idea that the station needed something besides music and news," said Formby. He said

Friday's program will probably include some reminiscing about shows through the years.

"Captain Billy has made a big deal out of this, so I'm not sure what's going to happen Friday," remarked Clint. Captain Billy, alias Bill Anderson, is KPAN's morning disc jockey who has been entertaining listeners with a folksy hometown approach to his air time each weekday morning.

"I've had a lot of guys introduce my program over the years, but never anyone as unpredictable as Captain Billy," said Formby. There's no telling how many ways he has introduced my program!"

Captain Billy probably helped get the word out about the monumental broadcast of the program, and congratulations started pouring in this week, from Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and Sen. Phil Gramm, from County Judge Tom Simons and Mayor Bob Josseland, and from a host of friends.

Formby said the longest-running-show-by-an-individual title is based on information from the National Association of Broadcasters and the Texas Association of Broadcasters. There may have been some shows on the air longer, but not produced by the

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says a perfectionist is a person who takes infinite pains...and gives them to others.

"We live in an age in which the imagination of the novelist is helpless against what he knows his is going to read in tomorrow's newspaper."--Philip Roth

Is it true that the much-traveled Clint Formby has stayed in more hotel rooms than the Gideon Bible?

So, the Old Philosopher has been producing his radio program for 39 years...what's the big deal? It only proves that Clint Formby has taken a beating and has gone on ticking!

Seriously, we join others around the area, state and nation in offering congratulations to Formby--not only for his record-breaking show, but for his contributions to the community.

We interviewed the Day by Day Philosopher Thursday and that article is in today's paper. We had scheduled the talk for Wednesday, so that the story would be in advance of the Friday-morning broadcast, but Clint wasn't feeling too perky.

Doing a broadcast six days a week, even if it's just five minutes, is not an easy thing. As a writer who does a "Bull" column every Sunday, and sometimes in between, I know that you don't always have the inspiration to sit down and write. And, in Clint's case, it may be more difficult to do five minutes than 15.

So, from one media type to another, we extend best wishes to Clint today. Thanks for being a "friendly competitor," and thanks for helping make Hereford a better place to live, work and play.

And, if you'd change the time of your program, I might even listen to the Old Philosopher once in a while!

Lynn Brisendine, a native of Hereford and now publisher of The Brownfield News, wrote the following notes this week about a sales tax for economic development:

"The South Plains became a lot stronger this past week. Voters in both Littlefield and Lamesa chose to begin collecting a one-half cent sales tax for economic development. Both communities had declined the option in past elections.

"This influx of capital will make both of these neighboring cities competitive in the development field. Levelland and Brownfield have already been collecting the tax and using its proceeds to enhance their growth potential for the past few years.

"The war chests both communities will gather through the tax will make their membership in the West Texas Alliance even more potent.

"We will remain competitors, naturally, but one must remember that strength comes in numbers. And should a quality company be lured to the area due to the group's efforts, then we will all be the stronger for that move.

"I congratulate the voters and the civic leaders in both communities for showing a farsighted attitude. Now let's all get to work."

Coming in Sunday's Brand

If it's January, then it must be Stock Show Time!

That's right, the annual Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show kicks off its annual run next week, with 259 young people from five counties displaying 552 steers, sheep and hogs.

But before you head out to the Bull Barn for the show, grab a copy of Sunday's Brand and check out the special Stock Show section, which recaps last year's show and introduces this year's participants.

Quake victims waiting in long lines

Help may not come for weeks after interviews

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Thousands of tired, desperate and sometimes angry earthquake victims stood in line and waited, waited and waited some more to apply for help from the government.
 At Northridge, the killer quake's epicenter, lines were so long Thursday that some people were bused to other Federal Emergency Management Agency centers. Hundreds of those who showed up got nothing more than an appointment, days or even weeks from now.
 When the center finally closed for the day late Thursday, 40 people were still waiting.
 "Give us some information!" Tom Fiore yelled, banging on a door. "That's all we're asking! Don't shut the door on us and treat us like cattle!"
 As National Guard members in riot gear edged closer, a worker took names and promised a place on the front of today's line.
 Inside the center earlier Thursday, those needing help were interviewed by FEMA workers, a process that takes 20 to 30 minutes.
 No one got a check on the spot, but the interviews put applicants in the pipeline for loans and grants. Applications must be verified, and in some cases an inspector will have to visit damaged property.

 At the housing desk, workers weren't even accepting applications, just handing them out. Earlier Thursday, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Henry Cisneros backed off a pledge to issue housing vouchers immediately.
 "There were quite a few people that were quite a bit confused about what the policy was," FEMA spokesman George Thune said. "They were of course disappointed, because they were led to believe something different from what it really was."
 FEMA urged people to use its 24-hour telephone line. As of Wednesday, the telephone system had processed 6,910 applications and was taking 250 applications an hour. At Northridge, some complained that the lines were busy.
 "The real problem is getting more people to handle the claims," Gov. Pete Wilson said, visiting another jammed center in Santa Clarita. "We need more people."
 Applicants who needed immediate assistance, such as food and housing vouchers, were referred to the Red Cross.
 Some people in Northridge waited up to 12 hours in a line that stretched three blocks. On Thursday, 342 applications were taken.
 There was some minor pushing and shoving at the front of the line when the place opened. Lourdes Pagano, a FEMA official, yelled herself red in the face through a bullhorn, then a police car's loudspeaker, as she gave instructions in English and Spanish to people confused about the process.
 Across Los Angeles, an estimated 20,000 people are still without a place to live. The city is forming teams of priests, social workers and psychologists to urge people to leave parks and cars and move into shelters. Red Cross officials and police are doing the same.
 The National Guard planned to set up tents to shelter 6,000 people, many of whom are now in makeshift camps, possibly as soon as today.

In other fallout from Monday's 6.6-magnitude quake:
 - The death toll rose to 55. Officials said a 59-year-old doctor died minutes after the earthquake in an accident at an intersection where traffic lights were out; four other deaths were reported, but the causes weren't immediately released.
 - St. John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica was evacuated and may be closed for three months. Two wings of the 500-bed hospital may have to be demolished.
 - About 36,000 households and businesses remained without water, 2,300 without electricity and 35,000 without natural gas today.
 - Thousands of displaced Spanish-speaking immigrants posed a challenge for relief agencies, which put out a call for Spanish-speaking counselors and tried to provide information in Spanish.
 - President Clinton released $100 million for repairing local, city and state roads.
 - FEMA said the Army Corps of Engineers has begun providing a million gallons of water daily at 10 distribution centers.

There have been so many programs, Formby can't pick out any favorites. "I remember a few that really got a big response from listeners. One was a contest to find the 'Ten Most Unusual People' in the listening area. It was not a 'Citizen of the Year' type thing, but just folks that have unusual hobbies, do unusual things, and so forth."

And, not long ago, the station ran a Cleanest Alley Contest. "You never know if anyone will respond to some ideas, but we really got the reaction on that one," added Formby. And, he found a lot of folks who could relate when he started talking about his grandchildren. "Some of them have demanded equal time," quipped Formby.

The radio man says he has used the topic of education on a number of programs, and that's another topic that gets response. "There are a lot of pros and cons on that subject."

As the years have passed, Formby says he has noticed that some people are prone to blame the messenger instead of the message. "Times have changed with the media, especially with the advent of television, and I think people blame the media too much for all the ills of the world. People need to learn to accept how news is presented, and perhaps the media needs to learn how to present it better."

SAN JOSE CATHOLIC CHURCH

This Sunday at 6 p.m., the Hereford Ministerial Alliance will sponsor its annual Week of Christian Unity Service at San Jose Church. Anyone attending the service is asked to bring a container of water which will be poured into a baptismal font to symbolize our unity based in a common baptism in Christ. There will be a hospitality and fellowship time after the service in the church hall. All guests are invited to attend. Our parish will be changing its system of tithing envelopes for the Sunday collections. We will change from envelopes that are mailed to homes every two months to boxed sets of envelopes for the entire year. If you would like a box of envelopes, please sign up at the church or let the parish office know by Jan. 31.

T.Y.M. mini-courses are now in session for teenagers. There are many exciting subjects offered including Old Testament and New Testament Bible courses, church history, being a Christian witness, etc. If you want to participate, be out at the Mission School from 7-8:15 p.m. Wednesday.

On Saturday, Feb. 12, there will be a "True Love Waits" Valentine Banquet at the Hereford Community Center. This banquet will be for all T.Y.M. members and all teens of different denominations in the community. The cost for the event is $2 and it will begin at 7 p.m.

Put your heart on the line

What's the best way to tell your valentine "I love you?" Here's an affectionate look back at the history of Valentine's Day customs.

Then: Some historians trace the custom of sending verses on Valentine's Day to a Frenchman named Charles, Duke of Orleans. Imprisoned by the British during the Battle of Agincourt in 1415, he sent his wife a rhymed love letter on Valentine's Day from his cell in the Tower of London.

During the 1700s, gloves were a popular gift for young men to give their valentines. Wealthy men gave fancy-dress balls to honor their sweethearts. The first commercial Valentine's Day cards were made in the early 1800s. Many early valentines were hand painted, with satin ribbon or lace trim.

Now: A delightful and novel way to send your sentiments to your valentine this year is with a new service called Send-A-Song. Through the use of a touch-tone phone, you can send a 20-second personalized voice message and an original recording - chosen from a list of almost 200 songs - to your loved one at a specified time. Valentine's favorites are I Just Called to Say I Love You by Stevie Wonder, I Had To Say I Love You in a Song by Jim Croce and Whitney Houston's I Will Always Love You.

Customers can place their orders 24 hours a day, seven days a week. And, songs can be delivered immediately for forgetful valentines, or scheduled to be sent up to six months later.

If your intended isn't home, a message will be sent along with an 800 number to call and retrieve the musical greeting.

Johnson guarantees win Cowboys' coach vows victory over 49ers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson has taken a page from Joe Namath's book. He guaranteed a victory over the San Francisco 49ers in this weekend's NFC Championship game.

"You can put it in three-inch headlines: We will win the ballgame," Johnson exclaimed Thursday night during a radio talk show on Fort Worth's WBAP-AM.

When program host Randy Galloway told Johnson the 50,000-watt station can be heard in parts of California, the coach said: "They can listen to me. Let's do it."

He sure did it, all right.

"We're ready to go. I really believe it's going to be a fantastic ballgame. The only thing the crowd has to understand, we could get down by a touchdown or two early, but that doesn't make any difference because we can come back."

"And, we can get up by a touchdown or two early. That doesn't make any difference either because we will win the ballgame," Johnson said, pausing between each of the last five words to accentuate the statement.

Johnson's bravado partially can be traced to the fact he has Troy Aikman at quarterback and the Super Bowl MVP is 4-0 as a playoff starter.

One thing Aikman is unlikely to do is utter victory guarantees like another young quarterback - Namath - did before the 1969 Super Bowl. Namath backed up his prediction by leading the upstart New York Jets to a 16-7 victory over Baltimore.

This Super Bowl will be the 25th anniversary of Namath's proclamation and he'll be on hand for the coin toss in Atlanta Jan. 30. Sunday's game against the 49ers will determine whether Johnson will be there.

"I think we're going to have a very, very tight ballgame for about three quarters," Johnson said. "Then, before it's over, I think we're going to wear them out. I think we're going to beat their rear ends and we're going to the Super Bowl. That's my personal opinion."

The statements didn't surprise Aikman.

"We understand Jimmy and what winning means to him," Aikman said. "I think right or wrong, one of the things that makes Jimmy so successful is that unlike most head coaches, Jimmy is not afraid to come out and say what he thinks."

That outspokenness caused some tenseness early in their relationship. The arrival of offensive coordinator Norv Turner helped the coach and his quarterback get on the same page.

"Norv relaxed Troy," wide receiver Michael Irvin said. "He was perfect for him."

Now Aikman and Johnson are friends, with Aikman recently going over to Johnson's house for advice on raising tropical fish.

Johnson's latest remarks are sure to be posted in the 49ers' locker room and likely will draw retorts from San Francisco players, turning up the heat on the Cowboys and Aikman.

Herd to host Harvesters

Hereford's basketball teams will host Pampa for a boys/girls varsity doubleheader tonight in Whiteface Gym. The girls play at 6 p.m.; the boys at 7:30.

Pampa comes in with its usual powerful boys team (2-0 in District 1-4A, 15-8 overall), but the Lady Harvesters are struggling at 3-16, 1-3 in district. Their district win is over Caprock, which is 1-22 for the season.

The Lady Whitefaces could use a win after falling to Dumas Tuesday. The Hereford girls are 1-3 in district and 8-14 overall.

Hereford's boys (1-1, 7-15) are on a bit of a roll, having given Borger a run last Friday, then beating Dumas 67-49 Tuesday.

There will be no girls' JV game because Pampa has canceled its girls' JV schedule. The sophomore boys will play at 4:30, and the JV boys will play at 6.

Montana's supporting cast isn't bad

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) - Enough of this Joe Montana and the 10 dwarfs stuff. The Buffalo Bills aren't buying it.

"I think it's kind of funny, everybody trying to put the limelight on Joe when he has 10 other talented players," Bills linebacker Darryl Talley said Wednesday about the Kansas City Chiefs, whom Buffalo plays Sunday in the AFC Championship game. "He has a Hall of Fame halfback in Marcus Allen. He has a huge offensive line and good receivers."

"He's probably sitting there and loving it ... because if you pay too much attention to Joe, 10 other guys will beat you to death."

That's pretty much what the Chiefs did to the Bills on Nov. 28, a 23-7 victory at Kansas City in which Montana threw for two scores and the Chiefs blanked the Bills for the final 53:56.

Montana, 4-0 in Super Bowls and looking like his old self in these playoffs, is, of course, dismissing all the talk of his personal mystique.

"One of the things those guys in there know," he said of his teammates, "is that I never speak to those terms or never even think in those terms. They know that I know that it takes 47 guys and we, by no means, are a one-man team. No one person can win a ballgame like that."

Still, there is the magic of Montana, a man Bills coach Marv Levy calls "legendary, certainly a Hall of Fame quarterback." That magic has taken the Chiefs exactly where they hoped when they traded for the 37-year-old Montana - to the verge of their first Super Bowl since 1970.

It's easy to get caught up in all of Montana's achievements, especially at this juncture of the playoffs. It's also ill-advised.

"We're very well aware that Kansas City is a good football team," Levy said. "Joe is a great and legendary figure in the game, so I understand the interest."

"But the Marcus Allens and Neil Smiths and Derrick Thomases, plus the guys who are not as well known, put together a real good football team. We're not being misled that this is just Joe Montana coming in."

The Chiefs who are coming to Buffalo face a difficult task. The Bills have never lost a playoff game at Rich Stadium (7-0) and their defense has been sensational in the last three conference title games. Sure, Buffalo has lost the three most recent Super Bowls by a combined 109-60, but it's won the preceding AFC crowns by a 90-20 aggregate.

"They're a playoff-tested team," Allen said. "I've known those guys for a long time. They're tough physically, defensively. When it's all on the line, they play extremely hard."

"They're trying - extremely hard - to concentrate on a full lineup, not a legend."

"We can't just focus on Joe Montana," All-Pro defensive end Bruce Smith said. "I wouldn't say I think about him more than any other quarterback, any more than Jeff Hostetler last week."

"I realize what's at stake here, definitely. Something I've never done and would like to do is sack Joe. But if I get around him and pressure him, that will be good, too."

Texas Tech, UT women building rivalry

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Women's basketball games didn't used to grab much spotlight when Texas played Texas Tech.

After all, the Lady Longhorns have won 38 of those contests since 1977.

But a rivalry has developed - with Tech beating Texas five of their last seven encounters.

"It's as good a rivalry as between anyone in the country," Lady Raiders coach Marsha Sharp said Thursday.

"That's just a credit to them - for a long time they were the standard-bearer and the team everybody chased," Sharp said. "Finally, we got to a point where we could compete with them game in and game out."

The Lady Raiders won in Austin last February, 76-66, and again beat Texas at the SWC spring tournament, 78-71.

Several factors load drama upon Saturday's rematch in Austin.

No Southwest Conference team has beaten No. 4 Tech since Jan. 20, 1993, when the Lady Longhorns escaped Lubbock with a 75-74 edge.

Tech, the 1993 national champions, shared the SWC title with Texas, a perennial powerhouse.

And both teams look virtually remade from last year.

"I'm not sure my team knows there is a rivalry with Texas Tech because they're all so young," joked Texas coach Jody Conradt, who lost five starters.

"Both teams lost the nucleus, almost all scoring ability," Sharp said. "It's a situation where we've both had to reload."

Tech must reload from the loss of Sheryl Swoopes, whose 53-point performance during the conference championship was particularly sweet because she first signed to wear burnt orange. Swoopes chose the Feb. 19 game against Texas in Lubbock as the occasion to retire her No. 22.

Texas (10-4, 2-1 SWC) opened conference play this year with a 75-74 loss to Texas A&M.

The Lady Raiders (15-1, 3-0) collected their lone blemish from an unranked Minnesota squad that pulled a 92-92 overtime upset Dec. 18. But several recent opponents, including Baylor and Houston, have played Tech tough.

Both coaches emphasized that they see emerging parity in the conference. Saturday's game is big, they said, but don't underestimate any SWC opponent.

Sharp predicted a revealing test in front of an estimated crowd of 12,000 in Austin.

"Emotionally, there's not anything more difficult you have to handle," she said. "It's another step in our maturity process."

Harding's first hurdle will be the U.S. Figure Skating Association, which will formally determine the U.S. Olympic team, then submit the list to the USOC. If the USPSA bars Harding, she can appeal directly to the USOC.

Harding headed for legal battle

NEW YORK (AP) - Tonya Harding's right to skate in the Olympics next month could hinge on a set of legal issues as slippery as ice.

Assuming Harding doesn't confess to involvement in the attack on Nancy Kerrigan, and the U.S. Olympic Committee still tries to leave her behind, Harding might sue.

A judge or arbitrator would have to balance her right to skate against the USOC's right to pursue its avowed goals of good sportsmanship and gold medals.

Shepard Goldfein of the New York Bar Association's sports law committee said the dispute may boil down to this: "As evidence of her culpability increases, so does the weight given to the USOC's interests."

As for what those interests are, Dr. Leroy Walker, USOC president, has worried publicly about the effect of Harding's presence at the Olympics on the ideal of sportsmanship, on public opinion and on her teammates - particularly Kerrigan.

But in the whole hypothetical legal mess, Harding's actual legal status - whether she is the "subject" of an investigation, the "target" of one, or actually indicted - is by far the most important variable.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE QUALITY OF PROPHETS

ALL OF THE PROPHETS OF THE BIBLE HAD MANY OF THE SAME QUALITIES TO MARK THEM FROM THE COMMON MAN. "THUS SAITH THE LORD... WAS THE TYPICAL STARTING POINT OF THEIR DISSERTATIONS TO THE PEOPLE. THE PROPHET WAS ALWAYS THE FIRST TO REMIND THE PEOPLE THAT HE WAS SPEAKING IN THE WORDS OF THE LORD." AND THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO THEM IN VARIOUS WAYS--SOME CAME BY IT IN THE WILDERNESS, SOME FOUND IT IN THE VAST EXPANSES OF THE SEA, SOME IN THE HUMDRUM OF EVERYDAY LIFE IN THE CITIES--EVEN AS DANIEL, TAKEN AS A SLAVE TO THE CITY OF BABYLON AND THERE IN THE COURTS OF THE KING FOUND THE PROPHETIC INTERPRETATIONS FROM THE LORD BY WHICH HE COULD GUIDE THE KING IN HIS DECISIONS. (DANIEL 2:28)

The Newspaper BIBLE

OH, WHAT A JOY IT IS!

Yes, what joy there is for anyone whose sins are no longer counted against him by the Lord. Now then, the question: Is this blessing given only to those who have faith in Christ but also keep the Jewish laws, or is the blessing also given to those who do not keep the Jewish rules, but only trust in Christ? Well, what about Abraham: We say that he received these blessings through his faith. Was it by faith alone? Or because he also kept the Jewish rules?

For the answer to that question, answer this one: When did God give his blessing to Abraham? Was it before he became a Jew—before he went through the Jewish initiation ceremony of circumcision? It wasn't until later on, after God had promised to bless him because of his faith, that he was circumcised. The circumcision ceremony was a sign that Abraham already had faith and that God had already accepted him and declared him just and good in His sight—before the ceremony took place. So Abraham is the spiritual father of those who believe and are saved without obeying Jewish laws. We see, then, that those who do not keep these rules are justified by God through faith.

Abraham is also the spiritual father of those Jews who have been circumcised. They can see from his example that it is not this ceremony that saves them, for Abraham found favor with God by faith alone, before he was circumcised.

It is clear, then, that God's promise to give the whole earth to Abraham and his descendants was not because Abraham obeyed God's laws but because he trusted God to keep His promise. So if you still claim that God's blessings go to those who are "good enough," then you are saying that God's promises to those who have faith are meaningless, and faith is foolish.

But the fact of the matter is this: when we try to gain God's blessing and salvation by keeping His laws we always end up under His anger, for we always fail to keep them. The only way we can keep from breaking laws is not to have any to break!
Romans 4:8-15

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are you still accepting "How It Turned Out" letters? I have one you might be interested in.

In 1962, I wrote and asked you if I should break up with my boyfriend. My parents were terribly upset that I was dating someone of a different religious faith, and they also saw that he was very controlling and unstable. Your advice to me was, "Please listen to your parents. A 16-year-old no matter how mature, doesn't know everything."

I wish I had listened. Instead, I ran away and got married. Because of my religion, I stayed in that marriage for 28 years. My husband wouldn't allow me to go to church or to have any contact with my family.

I had two children, and he was as cold and uncaring to them as he was to me. I knew he cheated on me from the beginning, yet he constantly accused me of being unfaithful to him. I was 100 percent loyal to my marriage vows, and those accusations were terrible to live with.

Finally, at my daughter's insistence I found the courage to get a divorce. I am by myself now, and the financial pressure at times has been a real trial, but at last, I have found peace and contentment.

If only I could have seen the years of pain ahead of me, but I was too stubborn to listen to anyone. I just hope some of your young readers will learn from my experience. The lesson is this: Parents may not know everything, but they know more about life than a 16-year-old—Lincoln, Ill.

DEAR LINCOLN: Thank you for a letter that makes the point better than anything I might say. "If youth but knew what age could tell."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm the mother of grown children who live away from home. I realize that today's lifestyles are hectic and kids can become slack about calling their parents. I've written 10 reasons why we need to hear from our children. Please publish them:

P for the PEACE of mind it brings.
L for the LONGING to know that you're all right.

E for the EAGERNESS to hear your "hello".

A for the ANTICIPATION felt when the phone rings.

S for the SOUND of your familiar voice.

E for EACH and EVERY time we get to chat.

C for the CHANCE to find out what's new with you.

A for keeping our staying in touch ALIVE.

L for shortening the LONG distance between us.

L for being able to say directly, we LOVE you.—A Mother in Chippewa Falls, Wis.

DEAR MOTHER: Beautiful. You ought to send it to your phone company.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Would you please settle an argument? A week before the wedding, it was called off. Should the gifts be returned? A steak dinner is riding on this. —Drexel Hill, Pa.

DEAR DREX: By all means. If the wedding is canceled, even if it's an HOUR before the ceremony, the gifts should be returned. It makes no sense to keep a gift for an event that never took place.

Gem of the Day: Cooperation is doing with a smile what you have to do anyway.

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I plead guilty to a longtime, ill-conceived bias against people who are overweight. It began when I was young, and I was awfully mean about it. I remember yelling at a girl I disliked in the third grade. "Fatty, fatty, two-by-four, can't get through the kitchen door."

When I was growing up, I shunned people who were overweight. All my friends were pencil thin. Although I was always skinny, I watched everything I ate. I actually believed that people who were fat got that way because they couldn't resist rich food and that they were simply gluttons who would rather stuff themselves than look good.

I know better now. What changed my thinking was a story in The New York Times. It was about an article in The New England Journal of Medicine, which reported on an eight-year study by Dr. Steven L. Gortmaker and his researchers at the Harvard School of Public Health. More than 10,000 people were included in the study. Some of the conclusions were startling. For example:

Fat people are less likely to marry. Fat women make less money than their thin sisters even though they may be better qualified. Well-qualified women who are heavy may be passed over for hiring in favor of less qualified but slimmer women.

The New York Times article also made it clear that the vast majority of overweight people cannot successfully keep their weight down and diets don't work. The bottom line is this: Being heavy has a lot more to do with genetics than it has to do with gluttony.—Janice in Pennsylvania

DEAR JANICE: Thanks for a splendid letter. I hope that what you have written will help people be less judgmental about the less fortunate who are constantly fighting (and losing) the Battle of the Bulge.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been living with a retired gentleman for about five years. I am 60. "Gerald" is 68. We have a physical relationship as well as a financial arrangement. We divide our rent and utility bills, and I pay for the food. I am still employed and intend to work until I retire at 65.

Here's the problem, Ann. When I retire, I'm going to move back home. I decided to tell Gerald about my future plans and was stunned by his response. He said, "If you move away, I will sue you for support." His contention is that I am financially secure and should support him, since he is on minimum Social Security.

Am I legally responsible to support Gerald if we have lived together for over seven years? I've heard that couples who live together that long are considered to be in a common-law marriage and all assets are common property. Is this true? Can Gerald force me to support him?

Our relationship has suffered a great deal because of this, and I'm pretty upset. Will you give me some guidance?—Trouble in Florida

DEAR FLORIDA: According to Bernard Rinella, a family law expert in Chicago, Florida has not recognized common-law marriages since Jan. 1, 1968. This means your assets are not common property, and you are not obligated to support the "gentleman."

You didn't ask my opinion, but the relationship smells like a barrel of lost herring. Are you sure you want him?

Is alcohol ruining your life or the life of a loved one? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" can turn things around. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Parents praise hospitals

For years, parents looking for quality medical care for their children who suffer from orthopaedic and burn injuries have looked to a unique group of hospitals—those run by the Shrine of North America.

Now, in a new public service campaign many of these parents praise Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, which provide their services free of charge.

In a series of four new public service announcements (PSAs), one father and three mothers of actual patients describe, in their own words, how they feel about their experiences at Shriners Hospitals.

They wholeheartedly endorse the hospitals and the expert care their children received with a gritty realism and honesty. The PSAs were edited down from longer, unscripted interviews with the parents, who described Shriners Hospitals with such phrases as "they gave me back my baby."

Distributed to radio and television public service directors nationwide, the PSAs will help other parents learn where to get help for their children in need.
