It's long way from Jerusalem

WEEKEND Profile

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

There aren't many similarities between Jerusalem and Hereford, but one local physician has been able to call both home.

Jerusalem, a holy place to three faiths, is one of the oldest cities in the world, where there are buildings that were ancient even before the United States was born. Hereford, on the other hand, is still a young city, not even a century old.

Dr. Nadir Khuri has been in Hereford about 15 years, moving to the Panhandle from Jerusalem, where he had practiced medicine for about five years on the occupied West Bank.

The Palestinian physician earned his medical doctorate from the American University in Beirut, then did his residency in New York and West Virginia, where he later would serve on the staff at the West Virginia University teaching hospital.

Now, Khuri is on the staff of the Hereford Regional Medical Center and, with his wife, Sylvia, established the Deaf Smith County Healthcare Foundation, which recently purchased a new respirator for the Hereford Emergency Medical Services. The $36,000 piece of equipment will be used primarily on an EMS ambulance, but it also can be taken directly into the hospital trauma room and used as a backup for the hospital's respirator.

Khuri came to Hereford because of friendship. A friend who lived in Hereford suggested that Khuri relocate here.

Fifteen years later, Khuri is still here, but his friend now lives in Georgia.

After his years of practicing medicine both in the United States and in Palestine, Khuri said the U.S. medical profession is hampered by government, which is constantly issuing new regulations, and the insurance companies, which are only concerned with cutting costs.

"Sometimes it's hard to do your job as you believe it needs to be done" because of all the regulations and paperwork, he said.

By comparison, practicing medicine in Arab East Jerusalem and the West Bank was left up more to the physician, largely because the Israeli authorities, who had begun a military occupation of the area after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, paid little attention to the Palestinian doctors, leaving the physicians to practice medicine with little interference.

While practicing in the Middle East, Khuri actually saw most of his patients in Ramallah and was on the staff of a private hospital in Jerusalem.

The Khuris try to visit their homeland every two or three years, noting their mothers still live in Palestine.

However, they haven't been back since the Palestinians received some autonomy and established the Palestinian authority in Gaza and in areas of the West Bank, so he said he's not really aware of what changes may have taken place in the area.

"It's a matter of time, because I'm so busy (with his medical practice)," Khuri said. "When I'm interested in something, I look on the Internet - you can't listen to the news here, because the Israelis don't allow journalists into the area."

One of the reasons that Khuri has been so busy has been the establishment of the Vein Disorder & Laser Center as an addition to the Khuri Surgical clinic.

He recently completed training in Oklahoma on state-of-the-art Aura

Texans to take lawmaking into own hands

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN - OK, Texans, the Legislature has gone home and, once again, left you with a bit of lawmaking to finish up.

On Nov. 4, voters will decide the fate of 14 proposed constitutional amendments, including one that would end the state's century-old ban on home equity loans.

Such voting is nothing new. Since it was written in 1876, the Texas Constitution has been amended 365 times.

The voting isn't even new for this year. A constitutional amendment already went before voters on Aug. 9, when they ratified the plan to raise the homestead property tax exemptions and provide $1 billion in tax relief over the next two years.

Many of the 14 amendments up for consideration now are governmental housekeeping.

Proposition 4 would tidy up by eliminating duplicate numbers and obsolete provisions in the constitution; Proposition 5 would allow the Texas Supreme Court to hold sessions outside of Austin; Proposition 14 would let the Legislature set official qualifications for constables.

The proposal that has gotten the most attention would eliminate many of the restrictions that have kept Texans from borrowing against the equity in their homes.

Texas is the only state that doesn't allow general home equity lending. The Constitution allows home equity loans only to pay for taxes or home improvements.

Opponents of expanding equity lending argued that the limits have protected Texans from losing their homes. Supporters say the proposal includes numerous protections while giving homeowners access to what's really their own money.

"A person's home is often their largest single investment, and soon they may be able to leverage that investment to meet (other) financial needs," said Rex Rucy, president of Beneficial Texas Inc., a consumer lending company.

Echoing the arguments of legislative backers, Rucy said passage of the amendment would allow Texans to borrow for a child's education, consolidate bills or pay for medical expenses.

"You can install a swimming pool (with an equity loan) but you can't send your son or daughter to college under the current rules," he said.

During the legislative debates, opponents said the state's current prohibition on home equity loans had served Texas homeowners well. They also voiced fears that another economic bust - like the devastating one that hit Texas in the 1980s - could result in many more foreclosures, forcing people out of their houses for defaulting on debt unrelated to the home itself.

Under the proposal, a homeowner's total debt - including original and second mortgages - couldn't be more than 80 percent of the home's market value. First mortgages could continue to be as high as lenders are willing to put up.

The measure also includes a "non-recourse" provision. That means if someone defaulted on a second mortgage, only their home could be taken

U.S. DROPS PLANS TO BAR JAPANESE SHIPS FROM PORTS

WASHINGTON (AP) - American officials dropped their plans to block Japanese cargo container ships from U.S. ports, averting at least temporarily the disruption of billions of dollars in trade between the world's two largest economies.

The Federal Maritime Commission reversed its order to bar vessels from Japan's three biggest shipping lines after U.S. and Japanese officials announced Friday they had reached an agreement in principle to give American shippers freer access to Japanese ports.

The ban had been scheduled to take effect at midnight Friday. Commission Chairman Howard Creel said the panel will meet Monday morning to review details of the completed agreement. If no concerns are raised and the Japanese shipping firms agree to pay the $4 million in fines they owe, the commission will permanently drop its threatened ban, he said.

FUEL-EFFICIENCY NOT HIGH ON MOTORISTS' PRIORITIES

WASHINGTON (AP) - Automobile fuel economy is running in place. New-car fleets have not had any noticeable fuel efficiency gains in a decade and new passenger vehicles overall use more fuel now than they did in the mid-1980s, government figures show.

Despite talk of global warming and energy conservation, motorists - seeing cheap gasoline and a robust economy - show little interest in conserving when it comes to their love affair with the automobile.

So far this year, American drivers have burned record amounts of gasoline, reaching a peak of 356 million gallons a day last July and averaging 330 million gallons a day over the first eight months, the highest ever, according to the federal Energy Information Administration.

But gas guzzlers also are being sold in the nation's auto showrooms - especially sport utility vehicles, minivans and small trucks, all of which are subject to less-stringent fuel economy requirements and use more fuel than most conventional passenger cars.

FORMER DICTATOR PROMISES UNITY, FREE ELECTIONS IN CONGO

BRAZZAVILLE, Republic of Congo (AP) - As his looting soldiers swaggered through a capital gutted by civil war, a former dictator promised to bring to Republic of Congo what it never had when he was last in power. "We are going to offer Congolese people national reconciliation," Gen. Denis Sassou-Nguesso said Friday as he proposed forming a national unity government followed by "free and democratic elections."

Sugar and smoke

Hereford Volunteer Fire fighters responded to a structure fire at the Holy Sugar plant Friday morning. Firefighters arrived to find a pulp dryer had overheated and caught on fire. Firemen were kept busy spraying down the dried pulp and the machinery. Firemen had a long stretch to get the flames in the overhead dryer brought completely under control.

City commission

Members of the Hereford City Commission will consider appointing a replacement to complete the unexpired term of Joe Soliz Jr., who resigned several months ago.

The commissioners will take up the matter when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber at Hereford City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

In other business, the commissioners are expected to:

- Consider a request from the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA for financial assistance;
- Consider appointments to the city's Planning & Zoning Commission and the Board of Adjustments;
- Consider an agreement with Gary Traylor & Associates for grant administration of TCDP funds; and
- Hear a report from the Hereford Economic Development Corp.

Alliance sets meeting

Hereford Health Care Alliance will meet at noon Tuesday in the Hereford Regional Medical Center board room. Items on the agenda include a presentation by Pat Stone and an update on the current fund-raiser. The public is invited to attend.

Fund established

A medical fund has been established for Ray Sanders at FirstBank Southwest to help defray medical expenses following heart by-pass surgery. Mr. Sanders, a longtime resident of Hereford who is without medical insurance, is in need of additional surgery.

JURY CLEARS FOLEY'S IN LAWSUIT

HOUSTON - Allegations in a $33 million lawsuit that three girls were improperly strip searched by Foley's department store security personnel have been dismissed by a jury.

Two of the girls were 13 and 14 when they were detained in a shoplifting investigation at the Foley's in West Oaks Mall on April 4, 1996. The suit was filed by the girls' families.

Guard Gloria Lopez was accused of taking each one separately into a small room and having their clothing removed for an inspection of their private areas.

Jurors in state District Judge Tony Lindsay's court deliberated for about four hours.

"Although our policy is not to comment on litigation, we are pleased this matter has been concluded and would only reiterate that Foley's will vigorously defend those lawsuits we believe to be without merit," said company spokeswoman Elise de Compiegne.

POLICE, COLLEAGUES DIFFER OVER MURDER

TEMPLE - The shooting death of a Temple emergency room physician and the apparent suicide of another Temple man resulted from a relationship that had gone wrong, police said.

Temple Police Chief Ralph Evangelous declined to describe the nature of the friendship between Dr. Steven McDonald, 32, and Jayston Kuberski, a 22-year-old unemployed high school dropout.

"They were friends," Evangelous said during a Friday news conference. He said it would be "irrelevant" to elaborate on the relationship.

"We've documented they were friends since June 1995. There were clearly problems there. (The friendship) deteriorated, and there were signs Kuberski was becoming obsessive. He was a very troubled young man," Evangelous said.

Friends and colleagues of McDonald's at Scott & White Memorial Hospital in Temple, where McDonald worked, disputed police accounts of his relationship with Kuberski. They said McDonald knew him only casually and that they were never friends.

EX-PRIEST WAIVERS EXTRADITION

SAN DIEGO - A former Catholic priest accused of sexually abusing Dallas-area altar boys will not fight extradition and is being held without bail pending the arrival of Texas authorities.

Rudolph "Rudy" Kos, 52, waived extradition Friday and will be held under protective custody in San Diego County jail until he is transported to Texas.

Kos was arrested on Wednesday in San Diego bar on eight warrants charging him with aggravated sexual assault and indecency with children, police said.

It is not clear when or where the alleged crimes occurred, but Kos' attorney, Brad Lollar, said earlier this week that the charges likely stem from allegations of at least 11 altar boys - who are now grown - who had filed a civil suit against Kos.

Kos appeared before Municipal Court Judge Gale Kaneshiro Friday.

COCA-COLA CHIEF DIES OF LUNG CANCER

ATLANTA (AP) - Roberto C. Goizueta, who fled Communist Cuba and became a kingpin of capitalism as the highly successful chief of the Coca-Cola Co., died of lung cancer today. He was 65.

Goizueta, a heavy smoker, was diagnosed with lung cancer in September and resumed working as he began radiation treatments. However, he was readmitted to the hospital at Emory University Monday with a throat infection that left him in critical condition because of his chemotherapy-weakened immune system.

"Roberto was a man of incomparable wisdom, vision and compassion," said James B. Williams, chairman and chief executive officer of Sun Trust Bank and a member of Coca-Cola's board of directors. "Those qualities benefited not only the company, but the community as well. Roberto was my friend and neighbor and I will miss him greatly."

M. Douglas Ivester, 50, has been viewed as Goizueta's likely successor since he was made the company's No. 2 executive three years ago.

The Cuban-born chemical engineer was a surprise choice to take over the soft-drink company in 1981 and through his tenure showed a willingness to keep surprising. At a company that had become comfortable, he shook up the culture with new products and daring strategies.

Realities of laws leave much to be desired

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

New laws concerning registration of sexual offenders often sound very good to the general public, but fail to measure under when put under the microscope.

New state laws mandate that individuals convicted since 1972 of a sexual offense against a child register with the county in which they reside.

Registration requires law enforcement agencies to provide information to local newspapers and public schools about child sex offenders living in the area.

Information will give the name of the street where the offender lives, but not the specific house number; the zip code; age; gender; and the offense.

The first problem cited by law enforcement officials stems from the time period. Individuals who successfully complete their sentencing, whether it was a prison term, parole or probation, before the effective date of the law - Sept. 1, 1997 - cannot be forced to register.

There are exceptions, such as offenders who were discharged from supervision, but were required to register for up to 10 years.

Hereford Police Cpl. Terry Brown said anyone who has been convicted since 1972 must register regardless of the charge or the outcome. This includes individuals placed on deferred adjudication.

Charges can range from indecency with a child to aggravated sexual assault to a minor under 17 years old. This portion of the law also causes problems. For example, a 19-year-old boy who gets his 16-year-old girl friend pregnant still can face life under the stigma of the label of "registered child sex offender."

If the girl's parents file charges, or if she applies for Medicaid or food stamps, he can be charged and forced to register.

In this circumstance, Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul said, the youth can get out of registering if two sexual-assault counselors and a sexual-assault psychologist say the boy is not a threat to the community.

"Right now, these laws are still so new that we're still trying to figure out all the ins and outs," Saul said.

"The laws are good, even if a little too broad," he continued. "But for the biggest percentage of the offenders, the laws are just."

New laws have installed child safety zones, which bars offenders from schools, playgrounds and jobs where there are children.

As of Oct. 14, 1997, Deaf Smith County had 86 registered child sex offenders. The numbers have gone from 14 in 1991 to 30 to date this year.

Not all years have seen an increase in the number of registered offenders, but in the last three years the numbers have steadily increased.

Brown says one reason for the increase is because children are reporting sexual offense more often, and prosecutors have been given usable, workable laws.

"There's still a long way to go," said Brown. "But these laws are a good first step toward protecting the kids."

Fans say goodbye to pop singer

AURORA, Colo. (AP) - Under sunny blue skies high in the Rockies that were John Denver's muse, hundreds of people crammed into a church to pay tribute to the fabled folk singer.

A standing room-only crowd packed the 2,000-seat Faith Presbyterian Church on Friday for a two-hour memorial service, and more than 100 other people stood outside to listen on speakers.

"His music sprang from his feelings of love," said Hal Thau, Denver's longtime manager. "His songs resonated with the people."

A large photo of Denver, clad in folksy leather jacket and blue jeans, stared down from a bank of lilies, carnations, sunflowers and roses.

The 53-year-old singer, known for songs like "Sunshine on My Shoulder" and "Rocky Mountain High" and the movie "Oh God," died Sunday when his homebuilt ultralight plane crashed in Monterey Bay, Calif.

Although many who gathered to remember him wept, the emphasis was on a celebration of his life as his mother, Erma; two former wives, Annie and Cassandra; and three children, Zak, Anna Kate and Jesse Belle, watched.

Some of his songs were played, including "High Flight," and more than once speakers drew laughter recalling the enthusiasm that Denver, born Henry John Deuschendorf Jr., never lost.

Jerry Jampolsky, who brought Denver's ashes back from California, told one of Erma Deuschendorf's favorite stories of her eldest. When younger brother Ron was born, John ran around the neighborhood saying his brother had been ordered from a Sears catalog.

Ron himself played a message John had left on his answering machine a week ago: "This is God calling. Just wanted to see how you were doing." Denver was heard to say, unable to restrain his laughter.

In recent times his brother "was very excited, very happy. He'd had a couple of rough years but things were starting to come around," said Ron.

Two drunken-driving arrests and his second divorce had been a sort of epiphany, friends have said. A few days earlier, he had played them a newly written song that seemed upbeat and had commercial potential.

Denver wrote in his autobiography of being painfully shy, and unable to express himself until his grandmother gave him a guitar.

"John struggled with his life," friend Tom Crum said, choking back tears. "John had a lot of pain in his life. We all have pain. It was real deep for John."

But Denver was always at home in the wild.

"Something happened with him and nature. He always had a little boy's quality," Crum said. "St. Francis of Assisi would have been proud of him."

They do pile up

Sugar beets at local piling stations rapidly piled up as producers began the annual sugar beet harvest. The pilers are kept busy from early morning to nearly dark unloading the beets from outlying areas, piling the beets in long rows then transferring them to larger trucks to be delivered to the sugar plant.

Judge dismisses Philadelphia suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Since the 1980s, every doctor Williams Barnes has seen for high blood pressure has told him to stop smoking. One doctor would throw away Barnes' cigarettes every time he came for an office visit.

Because he and four other people kept puffing despite a longtime knowledge of the dangers, they let the statute of limitations run out for seeking redress, a federal judge ruled. Their major class-action lawsuit against the tobacco industry was thrown out Friday.

The private lawsuit was filed by a group of smokers on behalf of some 2.1 million cigarette-addicted Pennsylvanians who started lighting up as youngsters. It would have been the next major tobacco trial had it begun as scheduled Nov. 4.

Instead, the state of Minnesota's huge lawsuit to recoup smoking-related medical costs from the industry is next. It is scheduled to begin in January.

Aside from its sheer size, the Pennsylvania case was important because it took a novel approach. Instead of asking for money, it demanded that the tobacco companies provide medical monitoring for all of the state's smokers and ex-smokers to diagnose and treat smoking-related diseases early.

The smokers' lawyers said cigarette manufacturers are committing a "continuing harm" on the smokers by making their products as addictive as possible and suppressing research showing smoking to be harmful.

In Pennsylvania, the statute of limitations for bringing a liability lawsuit is two years, and District Judge Clarence Newcomer ruled that the clock starts running as soon as plaintiffs know, or should have known, a product was harmful.

Thus Barnes, the lead plaintiff, should have sued by 1992 instead of 1996, the judge said.

Newcomer applied this reasoning to five of the representative plaintiffs, including Catherine Potts of Fairfield Hills, who learned decades ago that cigarettes were unhealthy but continues to smoke, despite coronary artery disease and hypertension - and her doctor's warnings.

The judge barred the claims of a sixth, younger plaintiff on other grounds: that she would not need any more medical monitoring than someone else.

Newcomer also said there were too many individual issues for the plaintiffs to be considered a class.

Philip Morris associate general counsel John Mulderig hailed the decision.

"It sends a clear message across the country that class actions just do not work in tobacco cases because they inevitably turn on individual issues of fact and law," he said.

The plaintiffs' attorneys said they would appeal.

"Every other judge in the country has ruled that if tobacco companies lied, smokers could sue," said John Coale, a Washington attorney for the plaintiffs. "This really shows the necessity for the national settlement."

A $368.5 billion national tobacco settlement was reached in June between state attorneys general and the tobacco industry. The agreement is awaiting approval by Congress and President Clinton.

AMENDMENTS

to cover the loan.

Borrowers would have 12 days after applying for a loan and three days after getting it to terminate the deal without penalties or charges. That "cooling-off" period also would be applied to home improvement equity loans.

State Comptroller John Sharp is urging Texans to ratify another amendment, Proposition 13.

That amendment would make the Texas Tomorrow Fund - the state's program for prepaying future college tuition at today's prices - a constitutionally protected fund.

This would prohibit the Legislature from raiding the fund to pay for other programs and put the state's full financial backing behind the fund, Sharp said.

More than 65,000 families already have tuition contracts, which can be purchased for newborns to high school seniors.

Here, according to the secretary of state's office and the House Research Organization, are explanations of the proposed amendments:

Proposition 1: Allowing a person to hold the position of municipal judge in more than one municipality.

Proposition 2: Permitting the Legislature to limit the maximum average annual increase in homestead appraisal valuations to 10 percent or more for each year since the most recent tax appraisal. Also would permit school districts to retroactively apply the 65-and-over property tax freeze to a person's new homestead.

Proposition 3: Allowing counties, cities, towns and other local taxing entities the power to grant exemptions or other property tax relief on property where approved water conservation initiatives have been implemented.

Proposition 4: To update the Texas Constitution to reflect amendments to federal law, delete obsolete provisions and renumber provisions with duplicate numbers.

Proposition 5: Allowing the Texas Supreme Court to hold sessions at any location in the state.

Proposition 6: Repealing prohibition on Texas Growth Fund investment in companies that fail to disclose investment in South Africa or Namibia.

Proposition 7: Allowing the Texas Water Development Board to consolidate existing voter-approved bond authorizations for water supply, water quality, flood control and other programs into a new fund.

Proposition 8: Allowing home equity loans.

Proposition 9: Permitting Harris County rural fire districts to increase tax rate.

Proposition 10: Dedicating the crime victims' compensation fund and its auxiliary fund only for victim-related compensation, services or assistance.

Proposition 11: Prohibiting the Legislature from authorizing additional state debt payable from general revenue if the resulting annual payments would exceed 5 percent of the average general revenue available over the past three years.

Proposition 12: To require the Texas Supreme Court to rule on a motion for rehearing within 180 days of its filing or have the motion deemed denied.

Proposition 13: Backing the Texas Tomorrow Fund prepaid college tuition program.

Proposition 14: Authorizing the Legislature to establish qualifications for constables.

Laser System, with Star Pulse technology, to expand the services he offers through the clinic.

The $70,000 piece of equipment enables Khuri, who already was treating varicose veins surgically, to perform procedures that he had been unable to carry out because he didn't have the equipment needed to do the tedious and difficult work.

The addition of the new laser equipment now enables him to remove age spots, spider veins, birthmarks, tattoos and brown spots.

The new laser equipment brings to Hereford something that isn't even available in Amarillo. The physician who had been doing the same type of procedures recently relocated from Amarillo to Lubbock.

Khuri has had many calls about the new procedures that are available in his clinic, so many that he now offers free consultations.

"People will call and ask how much it will cost to remove an age spot," he said, but he said people have to set up an appointment for the consultation.

Also, the best time to undergo the procedures is during the winter, he said. Because exposure to the sun should be limited after the procedure, Khuri said winter, when people are more likely to remain inside, is the best time to have the work done.

IRS bill revised to avoid conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House bill to revamp the Internal Revenue Service and strip the president of the authority to appoint the IRS commissioner is being rewritten to avoid a potential conflict with the Constitution.

The overhaul bill, scheduled for a vote next week in the House Ways and Means Committee, will be rewritten so the president will retain authority to hire and fire the commissioner, subject to Senate confirmation, said the committee chairman, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas.

The bill's sponsors also intend to drop a provision that would have extended the April 15 filing deadline by one month for people who file their returns electronically, according to sources familiar with the legislation.

Separately, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee provided a preview today of key issues in next week's confirmation hearing for Charles Rossotti, President Clinton's nominee for IRS commissioner.

"Let me be very clear: Mr. Rossotti's confirmation by the Finance Committee will happen only with a powerful and undiluted commitment to reform," Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., said in the Republicans' weekly radio address.

Rossotti is chairman of American Management Systems Inc., a Fairfax, Va., technology company. The Treasury Department is touting Rossotti's technology and management experience as skills the IRS needs to turn itself around.

Roth also spoke of the reforms he expects at the IRS following hearings his committee held last month into alleged abuses of power, which led the acting IRS commissioner to issue an unusual public apology.

"No law-abiding American should ever fear the IRS," Roth said. "Toward this goal, this Congress will remain a committed and vigilant ally."

In its original form, the House IRS reform bill would have created a nine-member board of private citizens that could hire and fire the IRS commissioner.

But the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation, which provides technical advice to Congress on tax matters, raised several constitutional questions to that approach, compelling Archer to change the bill.

"Based on their legal research and analysis, we felt we'd be on safer ground to have the president make the appointment," he said in an interview.

Last month, the staff of the joint committee issued a detailed report questioning whether the bill could run afoul of Article II of the Constitution, the appointments clause. That generally refers to the president's powers to appoint "principal" officers in the executive branch.

The Clinton administration, particularly Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin, has strongly opposed this bill, saying a board of private citizens would pose potential conflicts of interest in overseeing the tax agency.

The bill's authors, Rep. Rob Portman, R-Ohio, and Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., defend it on grounds the president would appoint and remove board members, subject to Senate confirmation, and that the Treasury secretary would have a permanent seat on the panel. Such a powerful outside panel is needed, the authors contend, to stabilize IRS management and help it tackle complex long-term projects such as computer modernization.

Clinton responded with a set of IRS changes, such as opening telephone lines around the clock by 1999 and improving taxpayer grievance procedures.

Rig count up

HOUSTON (AP) - The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide jumped by 13 to 987 this week, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.

There were 845 rigs operating in the United States during the same week last year.

Of the rigs running this week, 579 were exploring for natural gas and 404 for oil. Four were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The tally peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986.

SW Bell raises pay phone ccost

AUSTIN (AP) - The owner of most of the state's pay phones is raising the price of local calls made from its booths.

Southwestern Bell on Friday announced a 40 percent price increase from the well-known 25-cent charge to 35 cents per local call.

The company owns about 100,000 of the state's 150,000 pay phones and will begin reprogramming phones for the higher charge next week.

Ron Jennings, a SWB vice president, said the increase is the first since 1979 and is meant to help the company meet the higher costs of providing pay phone services.

"Rate increases are never popular, but they are necessary," Jennings said. "We remain committed to providing the best overall value in pay phone service for our customers."

We were happy to see Cleveland capture the American League championship Wednesday night. I've been an Indian fan since 1950 when I was stationed in Cleveland with the U.S. Coast Guard. I was there about a year and saw some of the Indian games. Now that Mike Hargrove of Perryton is the Cleveland manager, I'm an even stronger Tribe fan.

Both Cleveland and Florida overcame the odds to reach the World Series. There were some great playoff games in both leagues, and we hope that sparkling play continues in the Series!

Would you believe that less than one-third of U.S. high school seniors can fully comprehend the information presented on the front page of their local newspapers?

Sounds unbelievable, but one of the nation's foremost educational test publishers released those findings recently. By contrast, the sports pages fell within the reading ability of about 50 percent of the 12th graders.

Touchstone Applied Science Associates, Inc. (TASA), produces "Degrees of Reading Power" tests used in statewide testing programs in thousands of U.S. school districts. Included in TASA's database are studies of USA Today; The Wall Street Journal; four major metropolitan Texas dailies; nearly all dailies in New York state, and newspapers in several other states.

"Under no circumstances should our findings be interpreted as a call to editors to dumb down the materials," said the TASA chief executive officer. "Rather, it is our intention to lend support to those who are calling for higher academic standards and expectations for all students in our nation's schools."

Reflections

By Don Cooper

This postcard was popular in Berlin during the 1960s

'The Wall' made everyone hostage during Cold War

Ghosts from my past continue to catch up with me via the Internet.

Not long after I went "on line," I stumbled across a former Army buddy from my days with the Army Security Agency unit in Berlin. Within days, other "ghosts" resurfaced via E-mail and there was even a "Berlin Reunion" last fall in Monterey, Calif., where most of us who were linguists studied German or Russian.

Renewed contacts with the Hairy Ranger, Chief, Grumpy John, Papa and Fang have triggered old memories about those days when Berlin was a Cold War battlefield and "Die Mauer muss weg!" (The Wall must go!) was a rallying cry for 4 million Berliners.

For nearly three decades, West Berliners spraypainted that slogan on their side of the concrete block wall that cut from north to south through the city, dividing neighborhoods and families.

And, in 1989, 28 years after it was erected through the heart of Berlin, the rulers of the German Democratic Republic, or East Germany, relented and the winds of change blew holes through the Wall.

For the people on both sides of Berlin, the Wall was the focal point of their lives since the first sections were erected in August 1961.

None of the principals, both East and West, involved in the erection of the Berlin Wall still are alive. President John F. Kennedy, who sited the world in June 1963 with his declaration that as a free man "ich bin ein Berliner," and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev, are both long dead, as are West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, East German leader Walter Ulbricht and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

Presidents and prime ministers came and went, but the Wall remained.

For those of us who lived and worked in Berlin, the Wall was always there, often an unseen but never forgotten presence. Not only did that concrete barrier trap 1.5 million East Berliners inside the city, it also held 2.5 million people hostage in West Berlin.

I spent three years - 1966, '67 and '68 - in West Berlin.

It was an exciting city, filled with art and music and politics. But the dominating presence still was "die Mauer."

We couldn't escape it. Its presence was always there, creating a sense of claustrophobia with the knowledge that you could get in a car and drive just a few kilometers and you would have to stop because of the Wall.

Take a ride on the subway under the city streets and you would notice the U-bahn didn't stop at Friedrichstrasse - that was in East Berlin and the exit was blocked.

For someone like myself who grew up in southwest Arkansas and who was accustomed to being able to get in a car and drive for miles and miles in any direction, the knowledge that I was behind a concrete barrier that I could not pass through whenever I wanted made the huge city seem smaller and smaller with each passing month.

From my own experience in Berlin, I know the sense of confinement that the Berliners, East and West, felt for 28 years. Because of my vivid memories of that sense of confinement, I can also feel the sense of joy that many Berliners must still feel, even though the Wall has been gone for nearly eight years.

What Others are Saying

By The Associated Press

Here are excerpts from editorials in newspapers in the United States and abroad:

Florence (S.C.) Morning News, on Chrysler verdict:

If the laws of the land are used recklessly as weapons to hold up the rich with no regard for what is sensible and fair, everyone will suffer, including the poor.

For an example of how we are all so endangered, you need look no further than what a jury did in South Carolina. ... It awarded $12.5 million in compensatory damages and $250 million in punitive damages to the family of a 6-year-old boy who was killed in an accident supposedly because Chrysler Corp. was knowingly manufacturing defective rear latches in some of its vehicles.

But the boy would never have been thrown from the minivan and suffered a fatal fractured skull if he had been wearing his seat belt. He wasn't, and that's not Chrysler's fault. Also, the accident happened after the driver of the car ran a red light. And the Chrysler Corp., which plans to appeal the verdict, says the boy was not even ejected from the rear lift gate of the Dodge Caravan in which he had been riding. It maintains he fell outside a side window as the vehicle rolled over in the 1994 crash. ...

As much sympathy as we all may have for the family of the child who died, it's hugely destructive to social and economic stability when loose-cannon courts assess multi-bucks penalties without regard for reason. ...

Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal, on Sen. Jesse Helms:

After blocking William Weld's nomination as ambassador to Mexico, Sen. Jesse Helms threatened to hold up the nomination of William Kennard as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission unless Kennard helps Asheville (N.C.) broadcaster Zeb Lee get a new FM radio license worth an estimated $3 million to $6 million.

As a senator, Helms can block any nominee's confirmation on the floor as long as he is supported by the Senate's leadership - and he has repeatedly shown his willingness to do so.

In what was described as a "very, very cordial meeting," Helms apparently got what he wanted from Kennard, and the nomination will proceed.

When such means of persuasion are used outside the Senate, the process is known as extortion. However, within the confines of the Senate and its archaic rules, such tactics are legal and, for Helms, a very effective way of getting what he wants. ...

It has gotten to the point that every

Pets are major responsibility

The Real World

By Dianna F. Dandridge

One more time, they've done it again. Now mind you, I don't know who they really are, but I doubt very much if I like them and I would probably tell them off (or tear them apart), if I knew their names.

You see, I ran over one of their castoffs the other day. It was kind of a cool gray autumn day and as I backed out of my driveway, I felt my wheel go thump.

Wondering what ball I had just squashed, I got out of my car and to my horror I found it was not a flattened ball. No, it was a black and white puppy, a puppy which I can only assume had crawled up under the car to get warm and failed to make himself known before I began backing out the driveway.

I disposed of the body before my kids saw it, but still I felt terrible all day.

That unnamed puppy never asked to be born into an unloving world and it sure never asked to be thrown out to face the world alone at about nine weeks old. I definitely never asked to be the hapless driver who unwittingly took its life.

One more time, when I say "they," I am referring to every pet owner who allows a dog or cat, which is supposed to be a member of the family, to breed indiscriminately.

Granted, at one time what are now domestic pets were once able to survive on their own, but through centuries of living with man they have come to rely on men for their very being.

Before dogs and cats were pets, the natural death rate took its fair share of animals, which is as it should be. But now, the worst predator of the pet dog and cat is the motor vehicle.

I wish someone could give me just one good reason why they let pets breed indiscriminately. Don't tell me it makes them better pets to let them have one litter, because it doesn't. It just adds to the unwanted pet population.

Don't tell me that it's not their problem if one of their male pets also adds to the pet population, because it is.

When a person takes on the responsibility of a pet, they take on the responsibility for that pet as well as any offspring it may produce.

Pets are a privilege, not a right, or whim or a joke. They have to be fed, watered, doctored, cared for and - most of all - loved. Part of that love involves guaranteeing the health, safety and well-being of the pet by having it spayed or neutered.

So as the holiday season rolls around, I hope that anyone considering a pet as a gift for a friend or family member will keep a few things in mind.

Make sure the recipient of the gift actually wants not only the pet, but the responsibility for it. To get the pet and the new pet owner off on the right start, provide the recipient with a gift certificate from a local vet for all or part of the cost of neutering the animal.

Don't let it breed just to be thrown away and killed by a most unnatural predator.

Pets are a privilege, not a right, or whim or a joke. They have to be fed, watered, doctor, cared for and -- most of all -- loved. Part of that love involves guaranteeing the health, safety and well-being of the pet by having it spayed or neutered.

federal nominee needing Senate confirmation must report, hat in hand, to Helms. No single senator should be so powerful that he can block the business of an entire federal agency to benefit one individual from his home state....

The Sacramento (Calif.) Bee, on increase in college enrollments:

In higher education circles, it is referred to ominously as "Tidal Wave II." In plain English, it's the crush of students - the children of the baby-boom generation - that in the next two decades will begin seeking entry to California's public universities and community colleges. The institutions are nowhere near ready, either financially or in terms of infrastructure, to accommodate them.

Though the anticipated enrollment increases have been striking fear in the hearts of university administrators for some time now, a recent report by the Rand Corp.'s Institute of Education and Training, commissioned by the California Higher Education Roundtable, ought to bring the problem into sharp focus....

Rand warns that the school-age population is growing so fast that by 2005 and throughout the decade following, state colleges and universities must prepare to educate about 2 million students annually, up from 1.3 million today. Unless two things happen - public funding increases and the institutions find ways to economize - thousands of low-and-middle-income students who have traditionally depended on public colleges and universities for a leg up may instead find themselves locked out.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, on Attorney General Janet Reno:

The timing alone defies credibility: On Oct. 3, Attorney General Janet Reno, under legal deadline, ruled that evidence was lacking to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate Bill Clinton's fund-raising role at White House "coffees." The very next day, the White House released videotapes of the president schmoozing with wealthy donors at 44 "coffees."

Reno says she is "mad." But she won't change her closed mind and investigate. That should make voters mad enough to demand an attorney general who is not humiliated by the president and embarrassed by newspaper reports that are miles ahead of her gumshoes.

If such "smoking-gun" evidence does not persuade Reno to investigate, she will never persuade us that she has the credibility and integrity to enforce the law.

The Philadelphia Inquirer on the presidential line-item veto:

It was one thing to give presidents a scalpel called the line-item veto, but it's another thing for Bill Clinton to pick it up and use it! That's how pols reacted last week when the President used his new veto to whack $287 million in projects out of a military construction bill.

Suddenly, this power - a routine thing for most governors - has terrorized the insiders on the Hill. Emotions were especially high at the appropriations committees, where members are accustomed to tucking pet projects into spending bills.

The grand pooch-bah of spending in the Senate, Alaska's Ted Stevens, sputtered, "We are not eunuchs."

There, there, senator... you're not a eunuch, but now that there's a line-item veto, you're not Samson, either. Get used to it....

The Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, on the presidential line-item veto:

President Clinton took a step in the right direction when he used the new presidential line-item veto power to trim Congress' spending on the military.

Lawmakers, mostly with an eye to spreading the money around their home turf, added nearly $1 billion to the amount the Pentagon had requested for construction projects.

Clinton cut 38 items worth $287 million in 24 states but still left more than $500 million of extras that Congress tacked onto the administration's plan for $8.4 million in spending....

When Republicans occupied the White House, a Congress dominated by Democrats several times approved budgets that were smaller than the administration drew up.

Can it be possible that the Republicans, fond of labeling themselves conservatives, can't manage to do the same when the tables are turned?

Congress has eight of 13 spending bills remaining on its agenda. Lawmakers should learn a lesson from the vetoes of portions of the military-construction bill: Subtract, don't add.

Journal Star, Peoria, Ill., on religious freedom in Russia:

There is nothing accidental about the placement of five particular freedoms together in the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States: religion, speech, press, assembly and petition. When it comes to setting forth the extra-governmental conditions integral to maintaining a democracy, that just about says it.

And so it is with great dismay that the United States must view Russia's decision to take away from its people the power to worship freely. Last week President Boris Yeltsin signed legislation enshrining the Russian Orthodox Church as the country's pre-eminent religion....

Proponents said they wanted to protect Russian citizens from foreign cults. That is the kind of argument we in the United States sometimes hear applied to disturbing ideas or practices, speeches or printed materials. More than two centuries of democracy have taught us that the best protection against a bad idea is a better one....

It is hard to see how a nation limiting the freedom to be faithful will be able to keep itself from placing similar limits on other freedoms: speech, press, assembly, and the right to petition. The right to worship freely is simply another manifestation of the right to speak freely. The forefathers understood that right to be the glue that knits this amendment together....

The Register-Guard, Eugene, Ore., on Sputnik's anniversary:

By today's standards, the Soviet's launching 40 years ago of a beach-ball-sized beeping satellite was no big deal. But it was a huge deal at the time.

Sputnik launched the Space Age that, over the intervening years, has produced manned space flight, moonwalks by earthly astronauts, high-tech and productive probes of the universe and a bilaterally sponsored manned space station capable - when all of its parts are in working order - of long-term scientific experiments by Russian and American cosmonauts and astronauts.

It's been so long since Sputnik was sent soaring into space as the first manmade object in Earth's orbit, and so many technical and scientific advances have occurred since Oct. 4, 1957, that the little round ball's importance is sometimes forgotten. But it got the world's attention on that October day and set in motion a vigorous race between the Soviet Union and the United States to see which nation would be first to place a man on the moon....

The Financial Times, London, on the Middle East:

Mr. Netanyahu is leading his people, and probably the region, towards disaster. Unlike the late Yitzhak Rabin, a soldier as well as a statesman, he seems unable to understand the necessary limitations on the use of Israel's military superiority. If the Arab armies cannot defeat us, he reasons, we can impose our peace terms and keep their land.

In fact, the alternative to a negotiated solution is the irregular warfare Israel now appears impotent to counter: the ruthlessly effective tactics of Hamas, or Hezbollah in Lebanon. They feed on Mr. Netanyahu's intransigence and have dented the aura of invincibility which Israel managed to build up over 50 years.

In these circumstances, Mr. Arafat is entitled to refuse to negotiate except on the Oslo land-for-peace formula. And President Bill Clinton, Israel's chief ally and peace facilitator, should take up the remarks of his departing ambassador to Israel, Martin Indyk. He warned that the U.S. would not 'come in and save Israel in spite of itself.'

The Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald, on the Malaysian prime minister's anti-Jewish remarks:

Dr. Mahathir Mohamad is more than just recalcitrant. The Malaysian prime minister is a dangerously irresponsible racist and a major threat to the stability of the Southeast Asian region. His outrageous slur that the devaluation of the ringgit (currency) could be the work of Jews who had "an agenda" against Malaysia must be firmly rejected by all countries, including Australia, if confidence is to be restored to the currencies of the region....

The Business Times, Singapore, on Wall Street:

Alas, the state of blissful ignorance on the part of investors cannot endure much longer.... Will it be an orderly adjustment, as many believe, or is this just wishful thinking?

A bull market of the magnitude and duration that Wall Street has enjoyed has never been followed by a soft landing and there is no reason to believe that this one will be any different....

Be prepared, therefore, for a steep and protracted decline on Wall Street - one that will be worse for the fact that it has been so long delayed by investors' refusal to accept that this bull market is no different from others (in so far as it has resulted in equities being fundamentally overvalued)....

Analysis: Rising debt can be a threat to U.S. economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK - There's no way in which you can squeeze the entire U.S. economy into one panoramic picture, but here's a snapshot of just one small aspect of it:

The net worth of households has risen this year, thanks to equities prices and a statistical upward revision by the Federal Reserve. At the same time, overall liabilities seem to have stabilized or fallen.

Before you conclude that all is well and getting better, take another look at the snapshot. The rise in net worth isn't uniform. While one group builds assets the other builds liabilities.

If only the liabilities belonged to the asset-builders, such as holders of stocks and bonds and owners of small businesses, the situation might be considered healthy, because assets would cover liabilities.

Alas, pictures may misinform: Many of the liabilities belong to those households with the least assets - households that haven't benefited from the rise in equities. Their legacy seems to have been rising debt.

Economist David Wyss points out that almost all the increase in the number of households using credit-card debt has been among those earning less than $25,000 a year. And that too tells only part of the story.

Earlier this year, Wyss reported that 27 percent of families with income below $10,000 have credit-card obligations exceeding 40 percent of income, while fewer than 5 percent of $50,000 families are so burdened.

Inability to repay is the predictable result. No surprise then that second-quarter figures show credit-card delinquencies rose to a near-record high 3.69 percent of accounts. And Christmas shopping is approaching.

Further evidence of trouble is shown in the personal bankruptcy figures, which reached a record of 1.26 million during the 12 months ended June 30, and in auto-loan delinquencies, which also have been rising.

The suggestion here is that the divide between the haves and the have-nots has widened, and that it poses risks for both. If the low-income borrowers can't repay, then lenders must get it from those who can.

There is a further warning: While home-mortgage delinquencies have actually fallen of late, it is well known that much of that debt has been used to support stock purchases. What happens when stock prices fall?

Still another concern involves the lenders, who have flooded the mails with billions of credit-card solicitations during the past three years, and continue to do so while proclaiming stricter standards.

Lenders, bankers if you choose, have a decades-old record of creating their own problems, which often if not usually become problems for the entire economy. These problems usually involve lax lending standards. Lenders don't often see it that way.

Commenting on the delinquencies, an economist for the American Bankers Association said that "unfortunately, the strong economy has seduced some consumers into thinking that high debt levels are acceptable."

That's as ominous as the delinquencies themselves.

Postal service sets holiday schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's not Thanksgiving yet, or even Halloween. But at least for some people, it's time to start mailing Christmas gifts.

Monday is the suggested deadline for parcels being sent to Africa via surface mail, the Postal Service says.

Letters and packages destined for other areas can wait a bit, but the deadlines will be coming soon.

Help in calculating postage costs can be found on the post office Internet site at www.usps.gov.

And the agency reminds mailers to use complete addresses, including apartment or suite numbers and ZIP codes.

Here's a rundown of the mailing dates, by destination, that the Postal Service suggests for Christmas delivery:

- Africa: surface mail, Oct. 20; air parcels, Dec. 1; air cards and letters, Dec. 1.
- Australia and New Zealand: surface mail, Nov. 3; air parcels, Dec. 1; air cards and letters, Dec. 8.
- Canada: surface mail, Nov. 24; air parcels, Dec. 12; air cards and letters, Dec. 12.
- Caribbean: surface mail, Nov. 10; air parcels, Dec. 8; air cards and letters, Dec. 8.
- Europe: surface mail, Nov. 10; air parcels, Dec. 8; air cards and letters, Dec. 8.
- Far East and Southeast Asia: surface mail, Nov. 3; air parcels, Dec. 8; air cards and letters, Dec. 8.
- Middle East: surface mail, Oct. 27; air parcels, Dec. 8; air cards and letters, Dec. 8.
- Central and South America: surface mail, Nov. 3; air parcels, Dec. 1; air cards and letters, Dec. 1.
- APO-FPO mail to ZIP codes 090-098, 340 and 962-966: surface mail, Nov. 1; space available mail, Nov. 21; parcel airlift, Nov. 21; priority, Dec. 1; air cards and letters, Dec. 1.
- U.S. domestic military mail: space available, Dec. 1; priority, Dec. 5; air cards and letters, Dec. 12.

Kids know what USPS doesn't

ENFIELD, Conn. (AP) - Most schoolchildren know that President Clinton lives at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. in Washington. Someone at the U.S. Postal Service apparently does not.

Eleven-year-old Christina Reveruzzi's letter to "President of the United States, Mr. William Clinton," at that address came back to her this week stamped: "Moved, Not Forwardable."

The Enfield girl printed the address clearly but admitted she didn't post it with a ZIP code. That may have been the problem, a Postal Service spokesman said.

White House spokesman Jon Murchinson said letters to the president often arrive without even a street address, "although it takes longer without the ZIP code."

For the record, Murchinson confirmed that Clinton is still a resident at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. and "expects to be until early in 2001."

Business Briefs

FirstBank Southwest, NA, with headquarters in Perryton, was recently ranked as one of the Top 10 Texas Ag Banks. FirstBank Southwest of Hereford is one of the company's banks.

The September issue of The Cattleman, published by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, contained an article on "The New Breed in Banking," and listed the top 10 ag banks.

Boatman's First National of Amarillo topped the list with almost $197 million in total farm loans. NationsBank of Texas, NA, Dallas, was a distant second at $95.7 million. Amarillo National Bank was fifth at $80 million, and FirstBank Southwest, NA, was seventh at $67.5 million.

The article also discusses the major changes in banking the past 10 to 15 years. It pointed out that federal and state lawmakers have changed banking rules, causing equity and character to be replaced on loan applications by profitability and cash flow.

The good news for farm loans, according to the article, is that there is no credit crunch in the foreseeable future. The USDA reports ag producers' debt-to-asset ratio is about 14.6 percent, compared with 16.5 percent in 1991. The level of this indicator of solvency has changed markedly from 1985, when the debt-to-asset ratio stood at 23 percent.

Special counsel not always answer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Special prosecutors aren't supermen, and should there ultimately be one in Democratic campaign fund-raising cases, it won't speed the pace of an investigation Republicans now call glacial.

They want an independent counsel, and Rep. Henry Hyde, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said the average American does, too.

They want answers, in plain language, about the Democrats' tainted contributions in the 1996 campaign, and the roles of President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore.

Hyde told Attorney General Janet Reno that her Justice Department investigation of alleged fund-raising wrongs involving her own administration bristles with conflicts of interest. She said not.

"I can assure you that nobody in the White House has said boo to me about anything to do with this investigation," Reno said.

That did not and will not placate her critics.

The independent counsel system set up by Congress is intricate, arcane and not a route to simple judgments. Or swift ones.

One special prosecutor spent more than six years on cases involving two Republican administrations. Kenneth Starr has been on the Whitewater case for going on four years.

Reno has taken initial steps under the law for inquiries to determine whether there's reason for the next step - a request to a federal court panel to choose an independent counsel. The deadline for that decision is Dec. 2.

Washington Today

The preliminary inquiries involving Clinton and Gore are narrow ones, on the question of whether they violated an 1883 law against soliciting campaign funds in federal buildings by telephoning donors from the White House. The law was written before there were telephones, and hasn't been enforced since.

There is no magic weapon in all this nor is there, so far at least, a smoking gun pointing to illegal acts by Clinton or Gore. No case is closed, Reno said.

She hasn't and won't say much more than that, telling Congress that she can't go into the details of a continuing investigation without compromising it. Frustrating, Hyde said at a marathon, 7-hour hearing on Wednesday. She agreed, saying it was frustrating to take criticism when she cannot disclose things that would answer it.

"The average citizen has a right to ask what's taking you so long," Reno said. "The answer is simple. We need to do it right. Justice is not served if prosecutors cut corners."

It's been nearly 11 months, and not without missteps. Reno ordered a shakeup of the investigating task force on Sept. 16. She told the House committee that decisions on investigative strategy aren't being made without the concurrence of FBI Director Louis Freeh.

But she'll make the independent counsel call. Should she decide to go ahead, a panel of three federal judges would choose a prosecutor, who then would have to set up shop, hire a staff, and pick up the case.

All of which takes time and money. A special prosecutor spent more than six years and nearly $48 million investigating officials of the last two Republican administrations. Starr's Whitewater inquiry is ongoing.

Independent counsels are supposed to insulate these high-profile cases against politics and conflicts of interest. They don't. Should Reno say no, Republicans will demand her ouster. Otherwise, it will be Democrats who protest.

"Who wants another Ken Starr? Raise your hand?" Rep. John Conyers of Michigan asked at the House hearing. "I mean, here is a fellow loaded with conflicts of interest" who has spent more than $30 million.

There's no taking the politics out of cases as politically charged as these.

Hyde cited public opinion polls reporting majority support for a special prosecutor in the fund-raising cases as evidence of lost confidence in the Justice Department handling of the investigation. He said polls shouldn't determine how to investigate, but should be considered in deciding who does the job.

She disagreed.

"You say you don't want to politicize it too much," she told another Republican congressman. "I say I don't want to politicize it at all."

Studies: Secondhand smoke increases risks of cancer

LONDON (AP) - Breathing secondhand smoke increases the risk of lung cancer and heart disease by about 25 percent, according to two papers published in the British Medical Journal.

In one paper, published in today's issue, scientists analyzed published studies of heart disease in lifelong nonsmokers, comparing those who lived with smokers to those who didn't. It concluded secondhand smoke increased risk by 25 percent.

"The effect of environmental tobacco smoke is not trivial, as is often thought. It is a serious environmental hazard and one that is easily avoided," said the team from St. Bartholomew's Hospital and the Royal London School of Medicine.

The second paper, which analyzed epidemiological studies of lung cancer in nonsmokers, concluded "all the available evidence confirms that exposure to environmental tobacco smoke causes lung cancer."

It said a woman who has never smoked has an estimated 24 percent greater risk of lung cancer if she lives with a smoker.

They also reported that tobacco-specific carcinogens are found in the blood and urine of nonsmokers exposed to environmental tobacco smoke.

"The studies reinforce the already compelling case for reducing smoking rates," British Minister for Public Health Tessa Jowell said today. "We are determined to tackle these rates, especially for the two-thirds of smokers who want to give it up and for the most vulnerable group - young teen-agers - who are smoking in increasing numbers."

She said the government would release a white paper later this year spelling out how the government intends to reduce smoking levels "for the health benefit of all." Plans include a tobacco advertising ban and promoting more smoke-free public places, she said.

Marjorie Nicholson, director of the Freedom Association for the Right to Enjoy Tobacco, accused the government of actively promoting discrimination.

Early voting opens

AUSTIN (AP) - Early voting for the Nov. 4 constitutional amendment election may begin as early today. But state officials worry that not many Texans want to take part.

"The right to vote, once a patriotic duty, has become as important to some people as a weekend chore that never seems to get done. Yeah, yeah, I'll do it - if I get around to it," Secretary of State Tony Garza said Friday.

Fourteen amendments will be decided in this November's balloting.

A 15th amendment proposed by the 1997 Legislature - raising the homestead exemption to provide $1 billion in property tax relief - was ratified in an August election noteworthy mostly for its lack of interest.

Only 6.9 percent of Texas' 10.6 million registered voters bothered to cast ballots in August - an all-time low for an amendment election.

"That dismal turnout should be a wakeup call for all of us," Garza said.

"Granted, voter turnout for a constitutional amendment election is historically bad. It generally hovers around 12 percent to 15 percent. And it's pretty pathetic when even a 15 percent turnout starts to look good in comparison."

The Legislature passed a law this year to begin early voting 17 days before an election. That law also allows county clerks to decide when to open this early balloting period, said Lisa Glass, spokeswoman for Garza.

So depending on the county, voting may begin today, Sunday or Monday, she said.

IN BRIEF

Herd pounds Randall

From staff reports
AMARILLO -- The Hereford freshman "A" team pounded Randall 41-3 Thursday night. Gilbert Hernandez got the Whitefaces out to a fast start, returning the opening kickoff 103 yards for a touchdown. Joe Mendoza scored on a 77-yard run to give Herford a 14-3 lead after the first quarter. Herford racked up 21 points in the second quarter. The Whitefaces scored on a Ramiro Zambrano 35-yard run, a 40-yard pass from Travis Nash to Slade Hodges and a 32-yard pass from Nash to Nathan Horrell. Herford led 35-3 at halftime. The Whitefaces scored their final touchdown on Nash's third touchdown toss of the night, a 13-yarder to Chayse Rives. "The opening kickoff was a big play for us," said coach James Salinas. "We played well in all phases of the game the first half... Basically, the game was over at half."

NCA season ends

From staff reports
AMARILLO -- Amarillo Home School defeated Nazarene Christian Academy 15-7, 2-15, 15-11 Tuesday in volleyball action. Alyssa Hill led the Lady Eagles with 14 service points. Carlie Henson added six and Erin Noland had five points for NCA. NCA ends its season at 10-4.

Eagles lose

From staff reports
AMARILLO -- Amarillo Home School ended the season of Nazarene Christian Academy on a down note, handing the Eagles a 32-12 defeat. Teel Merrick threw a pair of touchdown passes, one to Josh Casey and the other to Nathan Cole. The Eagles finished their season at 1-9.

Cowboys scrambling to get out of trouble

IRVING (AP) -- In going from rags (1-15 in 1989) to riches (three Super Bowl victories in the last five years), the Dallas Cowboys have faced plenty of critical moments and usually found a way to succeed. Just six weeks into this season, the Cowboys are once again trying to scramble out of trouble. Dallas is 3-3, not playing well and possibly headed toward its most forgettable season of the 1990s.

Cowboys veterans recognize that they're once again facing a make-or-break situation heading into Sunday's game against Jacksonville (5-1). "Every season has a point during the year that's difficult and you have to come out fighting," quarterback Troy Aikman said. "We can either quit or we can fight and do what we can to salvage this season." Tight end Eric Bjornson has only been around since 1995, but he's still seen his share of crises... enough, at least, to understand the team is facing another one right now. "We've started questioning how good we are after having not done well for the last few games," Bjornson said. "We've definitely got the ability. It's just a matter of getting it done." Judging by Dallas' schedule, that won't be easy. After hosting the Jaguars, the Cowboys travel to Philadelphia and San Francisco. Then Dallas returns home to play Arizona and Washington (both of whom have already beaten the Cowboys this season), followed by a trip to Green Bay. Dallas was also 3-3 last year, but the mood then was pretty upbeat because Michael Irvin had just returned from a five-week suspension. Things aren't as positive now because the Cowboys had been 3-1 before losing two in a row. They haven't had an impressive victory since the opener, seven weeks ago. "When we started out last year 1-3 and battled back to 3-3, everyone felt good about what we'd accomplished," fullback Daryl Johnston said on Tuesday. "This year, starting out 3-1 and being 3-3 now is

Nazareth upsets No. 3 Springlake-Earth, 20-7

Cameron McLain was running, says Nazareth head coach Rick Price, "like a man possessed." McLain rushed for 172 yards on 21 carries as the Swifts ended the regular-season winning streak of Springlake-Earth, Class 1A's third-ranked team, at 16 games, 20-7,

Friday night. Standing in the shadow of your own goalposts against the Springlake-Earth defense is not recommended. But Nazareth made it work, putting together scoring drives of 95, 99 and 93 yards. Elsewhere on Friday night, all the No. 1-ranked teams in Texas high school football continued to roll.

-- in 5A, top-ranked Tyler John Tyler beat Nacogdoches 24-6, while No. 2 Austin Westlake stunned Austin Crockett 42-0 and No. 3 Longview stopped Tyler Lee 42-25. -- in 4A, Denison celebrated its first week out of the rankings by racing past Burkburnett 66-0. No. 2 Sweetwater beat Fort Stockton 37-14, and third-ranked Calallen beat Kingsville 34-7. -- in 3A, it was Sealy over Edna 40-0, Commerce over Princeton 40-0 and Crockett over Teague 42-0. -- in 2A, No. 1-ranked Elysian Fields beat Harmory 74-0, but No. 2 Alto had an ever larger margin, whipping Joaquin 75-0. Third-ranked

Randall holds off Hereford

By BOB VARMETTE
Staff writer
CANYON -- It wasn't pretty, but a win is a win. And the Canyon Randall Raiders will take it. Randall overcame five turnovers, several botched snaps and two missed field goals to earn a 27-20 District 1-4A win over the Hereford Whitefaces Friday night at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium. "It was not the best looking win," Randall head coach Alan Cornelius said. "But no win is ugly. It's like the Miss America contest -- they're all good."

Despite their inopportune mistakes, the Raiders dominated the game. Randall (5-2 overall, 2-1 District 1-4A) outgained Hereford (2-6, 1-3) 382 yards to 136. "They whipped us up front," Hereford head coach Craig Yenser said. "Especially, and this was surprising, with their defensive front. That had to be the telling tale." The Raider ground attack dominated their counterparts on the Hereford defense. Randall racked up 275 rushing yards on 48 attempts. The Whitefaces were able to rip off some big plays, a concern coming into the game voiced by Cornelius. But the Randall defense also threw the visitors for 51 yards in losses.

Blackhawks continue losing ways

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Hockey Writer
The Chicago Blackhawks are making history these days. So are the St. Louis Blues, but they're having more fun. With a 2-0 victory at Chicago on Friday night, the Blues continued the Blackhawks' early-season frustrations. The loss dropped Chicago to 0-7-0, matching the 1947-48 team for the worst start in franchise history. "It's getting to be a familiar scene, a familiar feeling and it's a sick feeling," said Chicago coach Craig Tarsburg, whose Blackhawks remain the only team in the NHL without a point this season. "The effort has been there, but then we make mistakes and the puck ends up in the

net. We don't have the resolve at that point to come back." It's a different story for the Blues, who at 6-1-0 are off to their best start since entering the NHL in 1967-68. "It's a long season and there will be tough stretches, but right now we're off to a great start," said Blues coach Joel Quenneville, whose team moved past idle Detroit into first place in the Central Division. "We can look at all the key areas -- special teams, timely goals, our defense has been playing extremely well and our goaltending has been excellent." In other games Friday night, it was Montreal 5, Buffalo 1; Pittsburgh 4, Tampa Bay 1; Ottawa 4, New Jersey 2; Boston 2, Vancouver 0; Calgary 6, Colorado 5 in overtime; Los Angeles

5, Philadelphia 1; and Anaheim 2, Edmonton 1. Grant Fuhr made 28 saves and Geoff Courtnall and Harry York scored for the Blues. "The guys are doing a great job," Fuhr said. "They're keeping the shots to the outside and getting all the rebounds." The Blackhawks, shut out for the second straight game at home, have not scored in 179 minutes, 32 seconds. Chicago, which has a league-low six goals so far, has been blanked in three of its last four games. "Not every goaltender can be good against us," Blackhawks captain Chris Chelios said. "It has to be something we're not doing."

Alfredsson leads women's World Championship

SEOUL, Korea (AP) -- Sweden's Helen Alfredsson, the runner-up last year to Annika Sorenstam, shot a 6-under-par 66 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead after the third round of the World Championship of Women's Golf. "Sometimes it's hard to explain good rounds because it just happens," said Alfredsson, who had nine birdies and three bogeys in the round for a 9-under 207 total on the Lakeside Country Club's West Course. "I played pretty solid, knocked a few shots close."

The two-time LPGA tour winner made a 21-foot birdie putt on the par-4 18th for the one-stroke advantage over American Chris Johnson. Johnson, the LPGA Championship winner, had six birdies

It's time for playoff prognostications

With the advent of shorter days and cooler nights, only one thing should be on the minds of Texans. Who's going to make the playoffs? By now, everyone has at least started their district schedules. In some cases, teams are in the middle of those schedules. So it's time to take a look at the state of football in West Texas.

In Class 5A, there is the distinct possibility the 1997 playoffs will see neither Odessa Permian or Midland Lee in the playoffs, strange territory for both programs. Permian's loss to Abilene Cooper Friday night in Odessa all but sealed the fate of the Panthers in District 4-5A. And Permian must still face district nemesis Lee and resurgent Abilene High. Right now, it looks like the three teams coming out of that district would be Cooper, Odessa High and San Angelo Central. Moving northward, the District 3-5A crown will be decided between Amarillo High and Lubbock Coronado, although Amarillo High had trouble with lowly Lubbock High Thursday night.

That makes me think there may be problems with the Sandies. Should Amarillo High, Coronado and Amarillo Tascosa all qualify, Coronado will go Division I. Division I will present the only chance for a 3-5A team, Coronado, to get past bi-district. But only if District 4-5A sends them San Angelo Central. If Lee makes it as the third District 4-5A team, Coronado gets Odessa High. Writer's picks for Class 5A: Division I -- Killeen Ellison; Division II -- Tyler John Tyler.

In Class 4A, Sweetwater, currently ranked No. 2 in Class 4A, will definitely make the playoffs. It's a certainty they'll go Division II, no matter who else qualifies out of District 4-4A. With an ADM of 809, they're one of the smallest 4As in the state. The other two teams out of District 4-4A look to be Big Spring and Andrews. If that's the case, Big Spring would go Division I and Andrews would go Division II with Sweetwater. Big Spring should have no trouble disposing of the team that goes Division I out of District 3-4A, probably El Paso Ysleta or El Paso Bowie. That would set up a regional-round game for the Steers, a big improvement from being 2-8 in 1996. Wolfforth Frenship out of District 2-4A would be their most likely opponent. Frenship should be able to get by District 1-4A's Division I qualifier, probably Canyon Randall.

In Division II, look for District 1-4A to send Dumas and Borger to match up with Lubbock Estacado and take your pick from Snyder, Levelland or maybe even Lamesa. Once you get past Frenship and Estacado, 2-4A gets really thin. We'll say Dumas annihilates Levelland, and Estacado should beat Borger. Now if Plainview were to make the playoffs (big, huge if), they would be the Division I qualifier from District 2-4A, which would put Frenship into Division II. That would all but guarantee Randall a spot against Big Spring in the regional round. Sweetwater's a pretty good Division II bet to get out of Region I, possibly avenging their 7-0 loss

Raided

It was a tale of two halves for the Whiteface offense. In the first half, Hereford aided by a 65-yard touchdown run by tailback Mark Rodriguez, was able to gain 105 yards on 21 attempts.

The second half, Hereford was limited to minus-20 yards on 13 rushes.

"In the second half, we got more upfield pressure from our tackles," Cornelius said. "Coach (Mike) Lozano did a great job of making that adjustment."

The loss of starting quarterback Cody Hodges didn't help matters for Hereford. The freshman reinjured his left shoulder chasing after a high snap in the second quarter.

"I felt good until Cody went down," Yenzler said. "We struggled real bad after that."

Hodges was 0-for-6 with one interception before he left the game. His replacement, junior Pedro Hernandez, finished the game 7-for-14 for 51 yards and one touchdown.

"Anytime you got to play your number three quarterback, there are going to be mistakes. It was like a comedy of errors. That happens sometimes," Yenzler said.

Hereford also could not escape the turnover bug, suffering from three turnovers of their own.

"They played with a quarterback that was not their normal quarterback," Cornelius said. "Our kids did a good job of getting pressure on him."

"That fact was not lost on Yenzler. In Pedro's defense, we didn't help him much. That's a good point to make. . . . We had a complete mental lapse offensively," Yenzler said.

The Raiders took a 14-10 lead into the locker room at the end of the half, and Hereford had to feel lucky their deficit was only four points.

Not only did the Whitefaces turn the ball over three times, but they had a high snap on a punt and a punt partially blocked. And, miraculously, it only cost them seven points.

"Darn right we felt lucky," Yenzler said. "I told them it could've been a lot worse. And we remained positive. I felt good about that."

Hereford got the first points of the game on a 41-yard field goal by senior Stevan Perales with 8:14 left in the first quarter.

The scoring drive started on the Randall 46-yard-line after senior cornerback Anthony Lopez intercepted the first of his two passes of the game, raising his district-leading total to seven for the season.

"I was supposed to be in zone coverage, but my instincts told me to cover this guy coming across," Lopez said. "The quarterback (Brian Evans), he didn't throw it right. It looked like a wounded duck. I just stepped in front of him and took the ball."

Lopez returned the interception 11 yards. The Whitefaces scored six plays later on Perales' field goal.

The Whitefaces extended their lead to 10-0 when Rodriguez ripped off his 65-yard run with 1:23 remaining in the first quarter. Jose Martinez added the extra point.

"They got us on the reverse play," Cornelius said. "We were yelling, 'Reverse, reverse.' We just overpursued on that play."

The Raiders got the points back quickly, though: On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, Shand Stumbo burst up the middle and outran the Hereford defense to the end zone from the Randall 28-yard-line.

That closed the Hereford lead to three, 10-7.

Randall got the lead with 25 seconds remaining in the first half when Evans connected with tight end Brad Cheyne from eight yards out, capping a nine-play, 50-yard drive.

In the third quarter, Hereford closed to 14-13 with a 27-yard field goal by Martinez. But it could've been and should've been more.

Lopez made his second interception and returned it 23 yards to the Randall seven-yard-line.

"It was a tipped ball," Lopez said. "I just saw the guy crossing and I was kind of trailing him. I guess I got lucky. He tipped it into my hands."

"I saw nothing but end zone. Then I saw a guy and I tried to sidestep him, but he knocked me out of bounds," Lopez said.

The one-point deficit was as close as Hereford would get. Randall fullback Jacob Wilson rumbled 25 yards late in the third to give the Raiders a 21-13 advantage.

Randall then sealed the game when Stumbo scored his second touchdown of the night on a one-yard run.

The Whitefaces got a scare in the fourth quarter when senior tight end Clay Brown collapsed on his way off the field after a punt. Preliminary reports could not determine the extent of his injuries, but it was believed to be a concussion.

The win keeps alive Randall's hopes for a trip to the playoffs, while all but ending Hereford's.

"I feel disappointed," a frustrated Lopez said. "I'm glad our team hung in there to the end. . . . I'm happy I was able to help (with the interceptions), but I still play for the team."

"It was a good win for our kids," Cornelius said. "It was a must win for us to be playoff contenders. . . . That's our goal. We accomplished part of that tonight."

Italy beat Axtell 52-0

-- in 1A, No. 1 Wink and No. 2 Runge advanced to 7-0. Wink beat Fort Davis 60-0 and Runge beat Agua Dulce 27-7.

There were several upsets. Highland Park, ranked fourth in 4A, suffered its first loss, a 37-8 shellacking to Grapevine.

Things looked pretty good for Springlake early in the second half against Nazareth. James Williams gave Springlake-Earth a 7-6 lead when he returned the second-half kickoff 90 yards.

Nazareth then muffed the ensuing kickoff, fumbling out of bounds at its own 1. But after a pair of rushing first downs, junior quarterback Mitchell Brockman hit senior tight end Barry Hoelting on a 61-yard pass.

Four plays later, Brockman scored from the 4, and Matthew Kern's two-point conversion run put Nazareth ahead to stay.

Sophomore running back Gabriel Cantu went 51 yards to the Nazareth 16 with less than four minutes, but the Swifts stopped Williams a yard short on a fourth-and-four play at the Nazareth 10.

McLain sealed the win with a 46-yard run and then a 45-yard touchdown run with 58 seconds left.

Playoffs

to Stephenville in 1996. In Division I, Big Spring's on a roll. They get the nod to the quarterfinals.

Writer's picks for Class 4A: Division I -- Texas City; Division II -- Denison.

In Class 3A, Friona looks strong out of District 1-3A. But watch out for Dimmitt, decidedly improved from last year's 5-5 squad.

Friona and Dimmitt would appear to be headed for bi-district showdowns with Denver City and Seminole out of District 2-3A. Friona gets by Seminole, but Denver City should take care of Dimmitt.

For the Chieftains, that sets up an area-round rematch with Monahans. The same teams bring the same result -- Friona advances to the regional round.

The Chieftains were something of a surprise last year, reaching the semifinals before losing 48-21 to Tatum. Vernon will be ready this year, and better.

Writer's pick for Class 3A: Sealy.

The best Class 2A team out of West Texas, without a doubt, is Stanton. But the second-best 2A team in West Texas is Iraan, also out of District 6-2A. Their late-season showdown will again determine who's the top seed and who's second.

Stanton will be out to prove they should have gone farther in the 1996 playoffs than their heart-breaking 32-31 loss to Shallowater in bi-district. Winning District 6-2A will mean a rematch with the Mustangs, who'll finish second in District 5-2A to Seagraves.

Look for Stanton and Iraan to win their bi-district games. Both teams also look primed for winning their area-round matchups.

Lockney out of District 3-2A and New Deal out of 4-2A may figure into the equation, but neither should keep Stanton and Iraan from meeting up again in the quarterfinals.

Writer's pick for Class 2A: Elysian Fields.

In Class 1A, West Texas has its share of teams that figure to play a major role in the playoffs. You can start with No. 1 Wink from District 4-1A and No. 3 Springlake-Earth out of District 2-1A.

Both should dispose of their bi-district opponents. The teams could be facing each other in the semifinals.

Writer's pick for Class 1A: Wink.

In six-man, the question is, can anyone stop Gordon? They have to be considered the favorites, along with Panther Creek, Trinidad and Borden County.

Here's a darkhorse candidate for the six-man title -- Grandfalls-Royalty from District 8. But it would be a tough road for the Cowboys.

Writer's pick for Six-Man: Trinidad.

And that's the way it will be. Then again, maybe not.

and a bogey in a 67.

"The conditions were good today, almost no wind," Johnson said. "I hit the ball well. I missed a couple shots like the drive on No. 18 and my shot into the green on No. 14."

Kelly Robbins was four back at 211 after a 68, and fellow American Donna Andrews shot a 66 to move into fourth place in the 16-player field at 212.

Sorenstam, a five-time winner this year who leads the tour's money list with a record $1,055,039, shot a 67 to top a four-player group at 213.

England's Alison Nicholas (71), American Juli Inkster (72) and Australia's Karrie Webb (72) also were 3-under. English star Laura Davies, a playoff loser to Sorenstam two years ago at Cheju Island, shot her second straight 71 to fall into an 11th-place tie at 215.

The winner will receive $131,000 from the $525,000 purse.

disappointing."

On Thursday, the Cowboys got more disappointment when they learned that Johnston's nagging neck injury may threaten his career.

Johnston will undergo surgery to repair a bulging disk in his neck and miss the rest of the season, according to several media reports. However, team spokesman Doug Hood said Friday that Johnston was still talking to the medical staff.

Although running back Emmitt Smith is in the midst of a career-long, eight-game touchdown drought, he's not ready to panic.

"I know deep in my heart, my God-given talent is still there," he said. "Y'all can formulate whatever opinions you want, but my ability, my talents, my drive, my determination, my love for the game is all the same."

Smith said he expects his teammates to have that same attitude.

"We as players believe in each other and believe we can get it done," he said.

Bulls in finals

PARIS (AP) -- The Chicago Bulls advanced to the finals of the McDonald's Championship after an 89-82 victory over stubborn French champions Paris-St. Germain and became the first NBA team in the 10-year history of the tournament to score under 100 points.

Michael Jordan, whose presence has drawn 1,000 reporters to Paris -- more than for the NBA final -- finished with 28 points and got wild cheers even for the unspectacular.

The Bulls were to take on European champion Olympiakos, 89-86 winners over Argentina's Atenas de Cordoba in the other semifinal.

OU players face charges

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) -- Two Oklahoma football players face charges in connection with a disturbance that started at a sports bar and spilled over to a university-owned apartment complex last week.

Assistant District Attorney Irby Taylor said Friday that outside linebacker Anthony Davis and starting linebacker Dale Boyd Allen Jr. were charged with misdemeanor malicious injury to property for damage at the apartment complex.

Oklahoma coach John Blake suspended Allen from the team. Davis already had been suspended. Blake also suspended defensive end Shaq Brown and cornerback Pee Wee Woods for today's Baylor game for violating curfew, the university said. Three players sat out last week's Texas game in Dallas for curfew violations.

Allen and Davis have been given until Monday to surrender to authorities.

Four windows were broken out and the front door was broken at an apartment early Oct. 10, a short time after Norman police had been called to the disturbance at the sports bar.

Davis, who was injured in a fight at the sports bar, was suspended indefinitely last week because of the fight. Blake did not indicate the length of the suspension for Allen.

University police had spent the past week investigating the disturbance at the apartment complex. Taylor said the university's police department presented the case to the district attorney's office.

He said Davis and Allen also lived at the apartment complex.

Taylor said the charges carry a maximum sentence of up to a year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

Norman police Lt. Paul Swenson said last week that police were called to the sports grill about 2 a.m. Oct. 10 because a private party had gotten "a little out of hand."

Davis apparently cut his arm by pushing it through a glass door. He was treated and released at Norman Regional Hospital.

No one filed charges in connection with the fight.

University police answered a complaint at the apartment about a group of men who pounded on a door in an attempt to contact someone who had been involved in the earlier altercation. The person wasn't home.

Police returned to the apartment about an hour later because a man had tried to get into the apartment by beating on the door with a hammer. Four windows at the front of the apartment were broken and the south window was broken.

"I am disappointed in the behavior of the young men involved," Blake said. "Their conduct is unacceptable and they must be held responsible for their actions."

"Unfortunately, a few undisciplined players have hurt the entire team and the university. We must learn discipline both on and off the field."

"The vast majority of the members of our football team meet the highest standards of behavior both on and off the field," University President David Boren said. "Those outstanding players should be able to expect the same kind of behavior from all of their teammates."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

LONDON (AP) -- The World League of American Football announced Frankfurt will stage the league's 1998 championship game on June 14, with the winner to play the Canadian Football League's champions in the "World Classic Bowl" to be played in Canada a week later.

The World League also announced it was scrapping its split-season format, under which the winner of the first half of the season hosted the World Bowl against the winner of the second half. The 1998 World Bowl now will be contested by the top two teams in the standings at the end of the league's 10-game schedule.

The U.S. team got steady efforts from Mark O'Meara, Justin Leonard and Brad Faxon in its easy win over Japan and can advance to the semifinals from Group 1 with a victory over England today.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) -- The United States swept past Japan 3-0 to move one victory away from the final-four at the Dunhill Cup.

Zimbabwe managed to defeat Spain 2-1 despite Nick Price conceding his match to Miguel Angel Jimenez after 12 holes because of a muscle pull in his chest.

Jets fined $10,000

NEW YORK (AP) -- The New York Jets were fined $10,000 for violating the league's policy on the reporting of injuries, the NFL announced.

Jets starting center Roger Duffy injured his knee in practice on Thursday, Oct. 9, and did not play in last Sunday's game against Miami.

NCAAP supports definition revision

BALTIMORE (AP) - The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is backing calls for Merriam-Webster to revise its dictionary definition of the word "nigger."

The Merriam-Webster dictionary's 9th and 10th editions defines the word as "a black person ... usually taken to be offensive."

NAACP President Kweisi Mfume said that definition "doesn't say, 'Once used to describe a black person, a slur.' It says, 'A black person.'"

"The NAACP finds it objectionable that the Merriam-Webster would use black people as a definition for a racist term," he said.

The Baltimore-based NAACP said it would lead a boycott against the publisher if the word's definition is not revised. The (Baltimore) Sun reported, "Two Michigan women began the push earlier this year to have the word banned or its definition revised. One, Delphine Abraham, drafted a petition calling for the word's removal from the dictionary."

Hundreds of people contacted Merriam-Webster after its definition of the racial slur was printed in the September issue of Emerge magazine. The publishing company said in a statement that it was "reviewing our treatment of this word to see if there are better ways to present this information."

"We have tried to make it clear that the use of this word as a racial slur is abhorrent to us, but it is nonetheless part of the language, and as such, it is our duty as dictionary makers to report on it," the company said.

In Merriam-Webster's most recent edition, a paragraph was added, saying that "nigger," although used by writers like Mark Twain, Joseph Conrad and Charles Dickens, is perhaps the most offensive and inflammatory racial slur in English.

TV launches new products

NEW YORK (AP) - When Kellogg Co. launched its new Cocoa Frosted Flakes, the company didn't unveil its product in a supermarket cereal aisle.

Instead, Kellogg's took its new product to television retailer QVC, where it promoted the crunchy chocolate cereal during a two-hour morning program and sold out of 3,000 boxes in 10 minutes.

"We showed the cereal, talked about it, tasted it," Kellogg's spokeswoman Karen Kafer said. "What better publicity can you get?"

With the costs of traditional advertising and marketing soaring, companies consider television retailing a viable launch pad for new merchandise. The attraction of this relatively young medium is a low overhead and huge viewership potential that can't be matched.

"TV retailers are a great alternative to sell and publicize to consumers, especially when you can reach millions of people virtually free of charge," said Al Ries, a marketing consultant at Ries & Ries in Great Neck, N.Y.

Just a few years ago, television retailers like QVC and Home Shopping Network were best known for offbeat merchandise. Super mops and car cleaners were more likely to be found than Fendi shoes and IBM computers.

While these home shopping stations generated millions of dollars in sales, most mainstream manufacturers steered clear, continuing to offer their merchandise in traditional retail outlets. That, however, is changing as more companies test the benefits of selling on QVC and HSN, which both reach over 60 million homes through cable service operators.

In this era of downsizing and tight profit margins, cheap publicity is a highly sought-after commodity. There are no fancy lighting, scripts or special effects in television retailing, just the product and the hosts promoting it.

Microsoft Corp. launched two of its products on QVC. In 1995, 17,000 units of the much-awaited Windows 95 software were sold in three hours. Last August, 6,000 of its new Animates Barney, an interactive plush doll, sold out in 36 minutes.

Also on QVC, Eastman Kodak launched its Advanced Photo System technology last year, selling nearly $1 million in film and cameras in 24 hours.

Poet laureate makes video book

WASHINGTON (AP) - Robert Pinsky, the nation's new poet laureate, is making videos of President Clinton and 99 other Americans reading their favorite poems.

Blending the traditional and the modern is nothing new for Pinsky. He's poetry editor of the online magazine "Slate" as well as a translator of the Italian poet Dante.

"My theory is that there's a very deep personal, intellectual and physical effect from what a person says aloud," he told a news conference as he took over his new post.

He will use readings by legislators, officials and people from all walks of life in the videos, he said. The president would not lead the list, he added, but would certainly be included.

"They can pick a poem in Chinese or Navajo or Spanish if they want, as long as they furnish a translation," he said - but he won't let anyone read his or her own work.

Pinsky pointed out that many poetry sites exist on the Internet, and some let the reader click on a title and hear a poem read aloud.

That could help bring back the ancient tradition - still alive in some countries - of poetry being something you listened to in a big audience, not what you sweated over in a dull textbook.

"For most of my friends - which isn't saying much - I'm considered something of a computer maven," Pinsky said.

As laureate, Pinsky gets $35,000 and an office from the Library of Congress for a year's work as consultant on poetry. He's paid largely by private gift.

On Thursday night, he lectured at the library on "Digital Culture and the Individual Soul."

His videotapes will be part of the library's 200th anniversary celebration, which began with a $2,500-a-plate fund-raiser Tuesday night.

Pinsky, 56, also teaches creative writing at Boston University and has a book about poetry coming out soon, in addition to his five books of verse and three collections of essays.

Local sugar beet production sweetens more than desserts

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Brand Staff Writer

Mounds and mounds of sugar beets poured into the holding yards of Holly Sugar this week as the annual sugar beet campaign got under way. Sugar beets produce sucrose, the same as sugar cane, which is an important nutritional source of dietary carbohydrates, a sweetener and a preservative.

"Sugar beets can be grown nearly anywhere," said Dennis Printz, Holly Sugar agriculturist. "What makes them profitable is the availability of the sugar processing plant."

Sugar beets are grown predominantly in Texas, California, Idaho, Colorado and Wyoming. The U.S. sugar industry, unlike most other agricultural commodities, operates at no cost to the government or the consumers. Most sugar producing countries use support programs of one kind or another.

U.S. sugar producers grow enough beets and cane to produce nearly two-thirds of the yearly national sugar consumption.

The local Holly Sugar plant will take in about 380,000 tons of sugar beets which are grown in a 100-mile radius of the refinery.

"We get about 200 pounds of sugar for every ton of beets," Printz said.

That means the Hereford plant will produce approximately 1.2 million cwt of sugar for cookies, canning and ice tea.

Sugar beets are delivered to a piling site, where they are weighed, lightly cleaned and piled to be picked up and delivered to the plant in larger quantities.

Tony Edwards, an on-site agriculturist at the Farmers' Corner piling site said that at peak harvest the Holly Sugar plant can process about 325 tons of sugar beets per hour.

At the processing plant, the buoyant beets go into a wet hopper, up the beet pump and on to the grab rollers.

The grab rollers clean off the remaining dirt and the beets are piled into the slicer known as a cossett. "The sliced beets resemble shoe string potatoes," said Edwards.

The sliced beets are then run through a diffuser which pulls out the sugar. After a series of purification processes, thin juice is produced.

A combination of heat and evaporative processes thicken the syrup. A final heating in a vacuum vat produces the sugar crystals.

The remaining pulp from the beets is run through the process until all the sugar is extracted and the leftover goes into molasses and cattle feed.

Sugar beets are usually planted between March 15 and April 15 with harvest beginning somewhere around the middle of October and running through December.

Processing at Holly sugar takes about 36 hours from the time the beets hit the piling station to the finished product, according to Edwards.

For a product which is only noticed by most people during the last four months of the year, sugar beets pack an impressive punch.

The 18,000 planted acres from 220 growers are expected to produce 380,000 tons of beets.

These beets and the processing puts $14 million into the local economy. Holly Sugar employs 100 people year round and 250 seasonal workers.

Concerteen officers

Concerteens begin season

Hereford Concerteens met recently to plan for the coming concert season of the Hereford Community Concert Association. Plans for the year and election of officers highlighted the meeting for the youth.

Concerteens are junior or seniors in high school who are children of concert members. The youth serve the Hereford Community Concert Association during the concerts by serving as attendants, ushers and assisting with concert needs of the performers.

Representing the Concerteens as officers for the 1997-1998 year will be Jacque Bezner, president; Holly Weishaar, vice president; Diana Detten, secretary; Jaime Steiert and Amy Ruland, publicity chairmen; Lisa Riley, Jessica Wuerflein and Lisa Huckert, telephone committee; Kristin Carnahan, Erin Auckerman and Kate Denison, scrapbook; and Kyle Flood and Mark Dodson, concert technicians.

Other youths that will serve as Concerteens include Andrew Carr, Laura Ontiveros, Zack Wall and Carrie Cox of Friona.

Sponsors for this years Concerteens include Hereford Community Concert Association board members Nancy Denison and Beverly Harder.

Food and Family

Lawrence Headley, R.D., L.D. TAKING A CUP

How to tell when your baby is ready to go from a bottle to a cup

Your baby is ready to take a cup. This should happen around five to seven months of age. Around this time, your baby will be able to sit with support in a high chair.

His or her head and neck control will be much better than it was a few months ago. Your baby can hold a bottle--and may be trying to feed himself with his fingers. This is a good time to introduce a cup.

From seven to nine months, your baby actually starts to reach for a cup. And while he might be able to lift it, spills are frequent. As your baby's motor skills develop, he'll be using the bottle less and the cup more. Learning takes time...and patience! But watching your baby master this skill will be one of many rewards of parenting.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: After so many years of writing the column, I'll bet you think you've heard everything. Well, you haven't. This item from Psychology and Health Update was taped to the bulletin board at the hospital where I work. It was pointed out to me by a nurse who said, "This made my day." Here it is:

"U.S. Patent No. 5,163,447 was recently issued for a 'force-sensitive sound-playing condom.' Yup, it's a prophylactic that whistles 'Dixie.' During intercourse, a sound unit is supposed to sense movement and reward your efforts with a melody. We are not exactly sure why anyone would want his apparatus singing show tunes, but it's nice to know the innovative spirit is still thriving in America."

I hope you enjoy this. -- Dottie Oberdorfer, R.N., in Jacksonville, Fla.

Dear Dottie: Thanks for a most unusual item. Since nothing surprises me anymore, I only have two questions: How are sales north of the Mason-Dixon line, and how the heck does that thing work?

Dear Ann Landers: You've given me a priceless gift -- peace of mind -- and I want to say thank you. It was a Gem of the Day, a simple line that performed the magic: "It's better to be alone than to wish you were!"

I had been in a relationship with a man who was driving me crazy. He was judgmental, super-critical, negative and just plain mean. I don't know why I got hooked on him, but I did. I was afraid to break up for fear no one else would have me. In the middle of a heated argument (about politics, of all things), he shoved me against the wall. I had read your column that very day and remembered your Gem of the Day. I ordered him to leave and not call me again.

I now feel liberated and confident. I'm also proud of myself. Thanks, Ann, for the Gem that changed my life. -- Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear L.A.: Most of the Gems come from my readers -- so thanks for reminding me to ask for more. My supply is diminishing. It's good to know they are taken seriously.

Dear Ann Landers: Within the last two days, I have gone to an upscale restaurant and an R-rated movie. At both places, parents thought it was OK to bring babies. At the movie theater, the woman next to me gave the fidgety child her key ring, which the kid rattled during the entire film. At the restaurant, someone's baby screamed for a solid hour.

Are these people inconsiderate or just clueless? -- Lill in Manassas, Va.

Dear Jill: Probably both of the above. In a movie theater, you can move or ask an usher to intervene. In a restaurant, suggest to the parents that they give the baby something to play with. Don't be surprised if you are rewarded with a dirty look.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "No Name in San Bernardino," who has a problem with cats on kitchen counters and dogs drinking out of toilets.

I've been around animals all my life. They've slept in my bed, traveled alongside me in my car, sat on my furniture and walked across my kitchen appliances. Our pets have always been clean and free of fleas. I've known people who are a lot dirtier than my pets.

Having my dog and cat curled up next to me in bed makes me feel secure. They are my friends and my family. So if "No Name" has a problem with this, he shouldn't come over to my house. -- Animal Lover in Pittsburgh

Dear Pittsburgh: Pet lovers everywhere will applaud your letter. Thanks for your feisty response.

Military Muster

Ricky D. Rieves has been selected for promotion in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of staff sergeant.

Rieves is a helicopter maintenance crew chief with the 1st Helicopter Squadron at Andrews Air Force Base, Camp Springs, Md.

He is the son of Don and Alice Rieves of Hereford.

His wife, Dora, is the daughter of Herman and Maria Marquez of Hereford.

The airman is a 1989 graduate of Hereford High School.

Navy Seaman Recruit Ricardo J. Cortinez, a 1993 graduate of Hereford High School, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Cortinez completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis is also placed on physical fitness.

Cortinez and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values -- honor, courage and commitment -- and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct. Cortinez joins 55,000 men and women who will enter the Navy this year from all over the country.

Men and women train together from their first day in the Navy just as they do aboard ships and at shore commands around the world. To reinforce the team concept, Cortinez and other recruits also were trained in preventing sexual harassment and ensuring equal opportunity.

Even as the naval service gets smaller over the next few years, highly motivated young people like Cortinez are still finding an opportunity to improve their knowledge and education as they become part of the most highly technical naval force in history.

MR. AND MRS. AARON DOMINGUEZ
...united in marriage

Evening wedding held

Christina Flores and Aaron Dominguez were united in marriage Oct. 4 in an evening ceremony in the gazebo at the E.B. Black House.

The bride is the daughter of Rebeca Flores of Hereford. The groom is the son of Juan and Leticia Dominguez of Hereford.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine officiated at the ceremony. Hope Rodriguez, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor.

Karla Dominguez, sister of the groom, was the ring bearer.

The couple was honored with a reception at the E.B. Black House.

Following a wedding trip to Albuquerque, they are at home in Hereford.

The bride is employed by the Hereford Brand in the advertising department.

The groom is employed by the City of Hereford.

Genealogy society meets on Monday

The Deaf Smith County Genealogy Society will meet at 7:00 p.m. Monday in the Hereford Community Center Game Room.

The Rev. Jim Bozeman will give a program on researching Family History at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints of the Mormon Library in Salt Lake City, Utah. He has recently returned from Salt Lake City and will give his views of the library along with hints on how to prepare before visiting the library. This will be a very informative program for genealogists.

This meeting is for members and anyone interested in genealogy who wishes to attend.

Matinee added to music show

A 2 p.m. matinee performance, in addition to the 7 p.m. performance, has been scheduled for "The Texas Music Jubilee" on Nov. 8 in the Hereford High School Auditorium.

The show, which is sponsored by Sheriff Joe C. Brown Jr. and the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department, is a country gospel music and variety show.

The show will headline Wanda Jackson, star of television, stage and records. Also appearing will be Jeanette Lunsford, guitarist "Cody Dillinger and the Tule Creek Country Boys", for Bluegrass fans "Now and Again", the "Top of Texas Cloggers" and comedian Mike Kelly with "Mike and the Monkey."

Tickets are available at the Sheriff's office and from participating merchants. For more information, call Jan at 364-2311.

Long-time resident to be honored on 90th birthday

Mary Elizabeth Valentine Fraser will be honored with a public reception from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 25 at King's Manor in celebration of her 90th birthday.

Mrs. Fraser was born Oct. 28, 1907. She has been a long-time resident of Hereford, living at 301 Union for more than 50 years.

She was married to Alton Thomas Fraser, now deceased, and together they ran several family businesses, including Sunny Boy Flour, Fraser Milling and Fraser Farms. They were also involved in the commercial oil and butane industry, hog farming and cattle ranching.

The Frasers had one son, Jon George Fraser who married Rose Ann McAtee of Albuquerque. She has a step-daughter, Beverly Fraser, who married Raylan Evans of Hereford.

Mrs. Fraser has two grandsons, William Thomas Fraser of Austin and Michael Burns Fraser of Houston; and two great-grandchildren.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Although it is said that the unknown is what people fear most--it is what we know that really scares us!"

Junior Historians Aaron Landers, Steven Reinart and Brody McBride attended the Hereford Noon Lions meeting on Wednesday for the opportunity to hear and to meet the state legislators who represent the Panhandle in Austin.

HJH seventh grade teachers met with the Bluebonnet, Shirley and West Central sixth grade teachers at the West Central library on Tuesday. Methods of teaching, materials and expectations were discussed. Follow-up meetings will aid in vertical planning between the two grade levels.

Junior Historians will meet soon to discuss projects which include thanking veterans for serving our country. We do need your help in obtaining additional names of local veterans. Christmas cards for the VA hospital and recipes for a cookbook project are other activities that members of the group are working on.

Our HJH students are to be commended for their behavior during the HHS-HJH Pep Rally that was held at HJH last week. Although it was hot and very crowded, they participated well.

Several teachers have been working on a needs assessment plan for the future of HJH. Included in this plan is the need for renovation and beautification of our campus. The first draft was presented to the building leadership team and will be revised with additional needs and concerns.

Parents, get ready! Many of the seventh graders will be needing to make trips to the county library to further their research on their essays and projects. Most of the students have done little research, but they are catching on quickly.

As the hunting season gets underway, you are reminded that every hunter born on or after September 1971 must successfully complete a Hunter Education Training Course. With concern for our HJH students, those hunters age 12 through 16 must successfully complete the course or be accompanied by an older hunter. For additional information about the Hunter Education Course requirements contact Texas Parks and Wildlife at 1-800-792-1112.

And remember, the most dangerous part of any trip, hunting or otherwise, is the drive to and from the event! Please be very careful!

STEPHANIE ORTH, BRIAN WILLIAMS

Grandson plans to wed in Estes Park ceremony

Stephanie Anna Orth and Robert Brian Williams, both of Eagan, Minn., plan to be married Oct. 25 in First Baptist Church in Estes Park, Colo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Bill and Myria Orth of Broomfield, Colo.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Robert W. Williams of Wisconsin and Barbara and Thomas Myers of Lakewood, Colo. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Brownlow of Hereford where he has spent many summers. His mother is a former Hereford resident and 1968 graduate of Hereford High School. His grandfather, Bob Williams, was pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church in the late 1960s.

The bride-elect graduated from Broomfield High School in 1990. She graduated from Colorado School of Mines in Golden, Colo., and is a chemical engineer for Koch Industries in Eagan.

Williams graduated from Bear Creek High School in Lakewood, Colo., in 1991. He also graduated from Colorado School of Mines and is a chemical engineer for St. Judes Medical Hospital in Eagan.

Brand announces dates for county spelling bee

The Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee for 1998 will be conducted March 5-6, it was announced Friday by The Hereford Brand.

The county bee has been held in conjunction with the regional and national bees for many years, and The Brand has been the local sponsor since 1985 with Publisher O.G. Nieman serving as county bee director.

Nieman announced this week that Mauri Montgomery, Brand advertising director, will serve as county bee director for 1998. Montgomery will be sending bee information to local schools in the near future.

Preparations are underway for the 50th annual Regional Spelling Bee, with The Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas A&M University as sponsors once again. It will be held April 4 on the WTA&M campus.

Awards will be presented to local winners in the Junior and Senior Bees, and the county champion will go to the Regional Bee. The top six finalists will receive special awards, and first prize will be an all expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., to compete in the Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee.

Red Cross Update

The executive committee will meet Tuesday at noon at the Red Cross office. The audit and process for hiring a new chapter manager will be discussed.

Clothing will be given away Tuesday beginning at 10 a.m. at the office, weather permitting. Used school clothing and coats are available by appointment only. Call the office at 364-3761 to make an appointment.

Special thanks to Doris Johnson and Kerri Steiert for their work training volunteers to use the computer and for beginning the computer work.

A basic HIV/AIDS fundamental instructor class will be held at the Amarillo Chapter beginning Oct. 31 and continuing Nov. 1 and 2. Call the office in Amarillo or our office for information.

Congratulations to the students in a special program at Shirley School that is MET. The MET stands for Minor Emergency Training and students, with First Aid and CPR training, will be available on the playgrounds to help with minor injuries. Karen Fangman, R.N., F.A., and CPR Instructor is supervising and providing training for this program.

Physical therapy helps promote healthy living

National Physical Therapy Month is a good time to understand the contributions of this important health care professional, according to Jim Robinson, administrator of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

"The theme for this year's celebration is 'Physical Therapy for Healthy Living' and represents the comprehensive approach to health care which physical therapy emphasizes," Robinson said.

"Physical therapists are vital members of the health care team. Some community members may not understand the full extent of the physical therapist's training, but these are highly trained specialists who have a big impact on a patient's ability to recover full function," he continued.

persons with arthritis.

"Physical therapists also provide preventive exercise programs, postural improvement, and physical conditioning to individuals," she said.

The physical therapist works with the patient's physician to determine the best plan for treatment. Once the physician, therapist and patient have established objectives and treatment goals, they determine the best method to reach those goals.

Treatment methods used by physical therapists include therapeutic exercise, hydrotherapy, massage, ultrasound, aquatic therapy, joint mobilization, electrotherapy and activities of daily living.

Crystal Backus, PT, director of the physical therapy department at HRMC, says that the physical therapist cares for many types of patients, including burn victims to prevent abnormal scarring and loss of movement; stroke victims to regain movement and independent living; cancer patients to relieve discomfort; workers with injured backs; children with disabilities; over-stressed business executives; and older

"One of our primary goals is to teach our patients self care," Backus said. "We want the patient to maintain recovery even after they finish their physical therapy, so we do our best to educate the patient about exercise, proper postures, relaxation practice, and safety."

Others who work in physical therapy at HRMC include Angela Penton, PTA; Daphne Narrell, PTA; and Anna Lisa Castaneda, PTA, who works primarily with the home healthcare agencies.

Initial meeting set for support group in Nov.

An initial meeting for a support group for family caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's Disease and related dementias has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Nov. 13 at the Fellowship of Believers Church, 245 North Kingwood (at Moreman).

A support group is a gathering of people with common problems, needs and interests to share their feelings, thoughts, questions and experience in a combined effort to better cope with and survive the challenge presented by person with Alzheimer's Disease and related dementias.

In affiliation with the Alzheimer's Association, Panhandle Chapter, group facilitator will be Nathan L. Stone, PhD., pastoral counselor and former senior chaplain with Family Hospice of Temple and pastor of Fellowship of Believers Church.

THANK YOU

The family of Isabel Gonzales express their heartfelt thanks to all their friends who sent cards, flowers and food and for their prayers and visits.

A special thanks to the Hereford Care Center nurses and staff for their care and concern; and the Hereford Regional Medical Center doctors and nurses for their attention and care.

We would also like to say thanks to St. Anthony's Catholic Church members who participated in the funeral.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-FCS

When the work day is through, a large transition occurs in many people on their way home. The civility, the business manners, and the patience are often left at the office, and an active volcano goes home.

There are ways to keep this volcano from erupting all over the family. Try setting aside a buffer time for establishing calm. This time may be needed to decompress and reestablish bearings. Arrange a standing agreement with the family that everything that is not critical will wait until the time to unwind is over. Do something relaxing during this time and attain a sense of composure to carry through the evening.

Try reserving a peaceful and quiet place to unwind that is off limits to the rest of the family. This can signify that a little more consideration is needed and also gives a grouch a place to be a grouch by themselves.

Establishing a non-combat zone for the family is another alternative. Designate a room in the house where a permanent truce is in effect, and all arguments must be taken elsewhere. This can provide a setting for family interaction in a relatively tranquil atmosphere.

Thinking of something pleasant often helps relieve the tension, as does a show of affection. Affection often breeds affection, and everyone should benefit from it. Besides, it's hard to yell at someone you've just hugged.

Daily wear and tear are often enough to lower enthusiasm and thresholds of irritability. Try to be flexible and have some ready alternatives before spewing frustrations on your family.

Prayer, Praise & Fasting

October 19 - 6pm

Do you or a member of your family need prayer? Do you need a personal miracle from God? The purpose of Prayer, Praise and Fasting, is to draw near to God through worship, to experience His presence, and to pray for the needs of our own families as well as the needs of our Community. We invite you and your family to join us as we gather together to present our requests before God and believe for YOUR miracle!

Service begins at 6pm, but come when you can. Prayer requests are always welcome, so call 364-8303, or bring your requests with you!

We're believing God for Your Miracle, so come expecting!

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Now that the weather is getting cooler, I made a cute sweater for my puppy out of an old sweaters sleeve. I measured Honey from her shoulders to her tail and cut the sweater a little larger and hemmed both sides. I also measured where the holes for her legs should be, cut them and then hemmed them to prevent the sweater from unraveling.

It looks adorable and cost absolutely nothing, which is great because pet sweaters can be pretty expensive. — H.C., Alexandria, Va.

BOOK COVERS
Dear Heloise: I have a fun, decorative idea for covering my children's schoolbooks. Throughout the school year, ordinary book covers do not hold up through the wear and tear of book bags, etc. I use vinyl tablecloths (they are usually very inexpensive) for book covers.

I just cut out the piece to fit the book and use strapping tape and end up with colorful, creative books! I also sometimes use decorative gift bags from department stores.

The vinyl is heavier than regular book covers, and it lasts longer. My two girls just love the book covers! — Dianna Yost, Juniata, Neb.

You and your daughters both deserve a Heloise gold star for this clever idea. I have a friend who picks up plastic shower curtains and vinyl tablecloths on sale and uses them for all kinds of projects! — Heloise
PLANT CONTAINER

Dear Heloise: Here is a money-saving hint for all your gardening and plant-loving readers. After pricing planters at garden stores — the kind that are placed around the stem of an umbrella on a patio table — I made my own planter from a recycled plastic angel-food cake pan.

I carefully opened the top of the pan with a pair of scissors and put drainage holes in the bottom of the container. After filling the "planter" with potting soil, I selected small English ivy and impatiens for planting and added a bow.

I removed the umbrella from the table, placed the planter centered over the hole, and then placed the umbrella back again through both the planter and the table. — Eileen Locke, Honeoye Falls, N.Y.

Very creative idea! — Heloise

Wilson receives award for community service

Charles Wilson of Carlsbad, N.M., a former Hereford resident, was recently awarded the A.J. Crawford Humanitarian Award in recognition of his excellence and compassion in community service.

Gary L. Perkowski, mayor of Carlsbad, proclaimed the week of Sept. 7-13, 1997, as Charles Wilson Week in Carlsbad.

Wilson was born June 5, 1917, near Hereford, where his family farmed and ranched. He moved to Hobbs following his graduation from Hereford High School in 1937, then served with the 45th Infantry Division during World War II. After his release from active duty late in 1945, he served in the Army Reserves and put in a total of 31 years in active and reserve time.

He married the former Josie Mae Proffitt in November 1941 and they later had one son, Patrick.

He served two terms as the Eddy County tax assessor before starting his own chemical distribution business.

Wilson is active in many civic organizations, the Gideons, Boy Scouts, the Bill Glass Prison Ministry and organizations that provide opportunities for at-risk teenagers.

Becky's Camp Site

By Becky Camp

In the Oct. 16 edition of The Brand there was a story in the Lifestyles section about a Lemonade Pound Cake with only five ingredients made from a 25-year-old recipe.

The article contained the original recipe for the cake and detailed testing and research done to determine why this recipe that worked 25 years ago now almost always failed.

It was determined that too much mixing was causing the cake to fall when made with our more modern cake mixes.

Although the article actually informed the reader of the problem and how to correct it, the newer, corrected recipe in its entirety was not included in the Oct. 16 story.

Following is the information that was omitted previously.

Here is the recipe with the reduced beating time as well as a lower-fat version worked out by UT Professor Briley.

LEMONADE POUND CAKE
18-ounce box white cake mix
1 cup sour cream
6-ounce can frozen lemonade, thawed

3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
3 eggs

Combine all ingredients at low speed to moisten. Beat for 2 minutes at medium speed. Bake in greased and floured 10-inch tube or Bundt pan for 50-65 minutes at 350 degrees or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool for 10 minutes in pan before removing. Serves 10 at 361 calories and 15 grams fat per slice.

REDUCED FAT LEMONADE POUND CAKE

18-ounce box white cake mix
3 egg whites
6 ounces orange juice (not concentrate)

1 cup nonfat sour cream
Combine all ingredients at low speed to moisten. (This recipe omits the cream cheese.) Beat 2 minutes on medium speed. Bake in a tube pan sprayed with Pam at 350 degrees for 45-55 minutes. Serves 10 at 249 calories and 6 grams fat per slice.

(Briley preferred the flavor of orange juice to the lemonade in this cake. She did not feel the extra sugar in concentrate was necessary. To help overcome the strong vanilla flavor of the mix, she also suggests adding grated orange rind.)

I apologize for any difficulties this may have caused anyone who actually wanted to try this recipe.

I would be interested in knowing if any of our Brand readers try this new recipe and if it is successful.

Halloween safety tips

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- With witches, goblins and super-heroes descending on neighborhoods across America, the American Red Cross offers parents some safety tips to help prepare their children for a safe and enjoyable trick-or-treat holiday.

Halloween should be filled with surprise and enjoyment, and following some common sense practices can keep events safer and more fun.

"Most Halloween injuries are preventable, if parents and children prepare and take some simple precautions," said Beverly Hoover, Red Cross health and safety expert.

The Red Cross today released the following 13 important safety tips for parents to keep in mind and to share with their trick-or-treaters to prevent injuries.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY TIPS

*Walk, slither and sneak on sidewalks; not in the street.

*Look both ways before crossing the street to check for cars, trucks and low flying brooms.

*Cross the street only at corners.

*Don't hide or cross the street between parked cars.

*Wear light-colored or reflective-type clothing so you are more visible.

(And remember to put reflective tape on bikes, skateboards and brooms, too!)

*Plan your route and share it with your family. If possible, have an adult go with you.

*Carry a flashlight to light your way.

*Keep away from open fires and candles. (Keep in mind that costumes can be extremely flammable.)

*Visit homes that have the porch light on.

*Accept your treats at the door and never go into a stranger's home.

*Use face paint rather than masks or things that will cover your eyes.

*Be cautious of animals and strangers.

*Have a grown-up inspect your treats before eating. And don't eat candy if the package is already opened.

For more than 80 years, the American Red Cross has been a national leader in health and safety education. In 1996, the Red Cross enrolled nearly 14 million people in CPR, first aid, swimming, lifeguard training, caregiving and HIV/AIDS education.

A Fun Concoction for Halloween

Natural transformations can lead to the most peculiar fascinations. What better time than Halloween to create a slithery mess that appears to be a solid one moment only to ooze out between your fingers, over your wrist and down your arm seconds later.

Once you make this concoction, let the school-age kids in your home or at your Halloween party play with it. Then have a contest to give it a name. For starters, how about Sublime Slime, Halloween Shape-Shifter, October Slither Concoction or, better yet, Ectoplasmic Ick!

Here's the recipe:
In a mixing bowl, stir together 3/4 cup cornstarch and 1/2 cup water.

Nothing summons up holiday spirit quite like the delicious fragrance of favorite foods.

The tartly terrific flavor of cranberries can spice up classic holiday meals in a memorable way.

Try this fresh cranberry favorite for the holidays:

FRESH CRANBERRY ORANGE RELISH

1 12-ounce pkg. fresh or frozen cranberries
1 unpeeled orange, cut into eighths and seeded
3/4-1 cup sugar

Place half the cranberries and half the orange slices in food processor container. Process until mixture is evenly chopped. Transfer to a bowl. Repeat with remaining cranberries and orange slices. Stir in sugar. Store in refrigerator or freezer. Makes about 3 cups.

Add food coloring or liquid tempera paint for color, if you wish. Roll the goop in your hands to form a ball. You may need to add extra cornstarch or water to achieve a thick consistency. Immediately, experiment with it to discover its unique properties. Squeeze it, hit it or let it drip. Or, place it on a cookie sheet, press it flat, roll it in a ball or let it go. It's amazing!

Note: Do not pour the goop down the drain. Dispose of properly in a trash bag.

For fun, let it evaporate in the sunshine to discover cornstarch once again. Add water and you'll have another batch.

Small West Texas church known for distinctive neon sign

By JERRY DANIEL REED
Abilene Reporter-News
ANSON, Texas - Pleasant Grove Baptist Church started out telling the old, old story in a new, new way 50 years ago.

Known to some as the "Jesus Saves" church, the little church 20 miles north of Abilene, celebrated its golden anniversary Sunday with lots of reminiscing, preaching, a pot-luck lunch, old-fashioned hymn singing, and just visiting.

The church was founded 50 years ago from the merger of three small rural Jones County churches.

To the passerby, the Pleasant Grove church looks very much like any number of rural churches that dot the countryside all over America: simple square corners, steep roof, clean white sides, a steeple topped by a cross. Except for one distinctive feature: a bold, red neon sign proclaiming "JESUS SAVES."

The decision to install that sign was the church's first battle over policy, said current pastor Jeffrey Fenwick. The first pastor, the late Scott W. Hickey, and the deacons disagreed over the kind of sign the church should show the world.

"They wanted him to just put a (painted) sign up that says, 'JESUS SAVES,'" Fenwick explained. The deacons didn't want neon, perhaps because they associated it with restaurants, gas stations and - and worst of all - honky-tonks, he said.

But Hickey persisted and prevailed, Fenwick said. So the "JESUS SAVES" sign has glowed day and night for a half century from its position high above the front door of the church on the east side of U.S. 277.

And it has not gone unnoticed, especially at night when its light contrasts with the darkness. "A beacon in the night," Hickey wanted it to be.

"We have people stopping by (off Highway 277)," said Barbara Tollerson of Anson. "They might give a little offering and say, 'Keep that light going.'"

The building itself has been modified only modestly in its five decades. Vinyl siding now covers the outside walls to maintain the look of the original clapboard, and its upper walls inside have been paneled. Out back, the congregation has added a fellowship hall and Sunday school building.

"And we've added cushions in the pews," Tollerson said with a laugh.

Membership has seen its ups and downs, but now is on the incline with 66 members. Ninety-eight worshippers were numbered for Sunday morning's services, but that may not count because of the reunion and anniversary celebration. A week earlier, attendance was 64.

The "JESUS SAVES" sign has gained the church some outside renown, including mention in a November, 1990 Texas Monthly magazine article on "Vanishing Texas." But the acclaim of the world the Pleasant Grove's members try not to let turn their heads.

"The main thing (is what) the light says," said Fenwick. "The words 'JESUS SAVES' are what's important."

The Successful Family

More open and honest family communication starts with YOU--the parent. Talk to your kids and listen to your kids. Discuss the things with your kids that affect the family such as change, consequences, communication expectations, family values, cultural treasures that make them who they are and who you are, responsibility demands for them and you, feelings -- especially the ones that are uncomfortable or painful, attitudes -- good and bad, curfews and spoken and unspoken family and society rules, and what motivates you and each family member.

Some PARENT POINTERS are as follows:

- *Find time for each family member every day--including yourself.
- *Surround yourself and children with positive activities.
- *Become aware of yours and your kids interests and expand these.
- *Nurture yours and your kids interests and seek those activities.
- *Encourage yourself and your family to make their own activities.

*ENCOURAGE AND MODEL SPIRITUALITY FOR YOUR FAMILY AND NEIGHBORS.

Be firm but gentle with your kids in handling challenges of raising youngsters. Strive for a greater understanding of your family and discover how to encourage responsibility and reinforce positive values that lead to family and individual success. Motivate, encourage, help, model, and communicate with your family to make your life and theirs meaningful as a person and family.

This is not ever an easy task and you never get a vacation from this effort. However, there is relief and help available for you and your family. THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY funded by THE CHILDREN'S TRUST FUND and sponsored by HISD can offer much assistance to your whole family.

Every Tuesday evening until November 18 and January 20-March 10 you can find a crowd of caring and supportive people who are looking for answers together and finding relief and help at the HISD building, 601 25 mile. A meal is provided free of charge, door prizes are given, and a grand prize of a TV and VCR at the end of each program will be given away. If you need transportation or more information contact Tilli Boozer, program facilitator and counselor at 363-7668 or the crisis hot line 364-HELP.

The menu for the Oct. 21 session will include mole-chicken, rice, beans, green salad, hot sauce, tortillas, lemonade and dessert.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Seven Ways to Chase Away Customers

Recently, I listened to several small-business owners complain about poor service they had received. Many of their complaints, I'd also experienced in the past few months. Someone jokingly suggested I write a book titled "100 Ways to Run Customers."

I'm not sure I'd care to write the book, but it was a good idea for a column. I hope this condensed version will help even the most dense business owner get the point.

Seven proven methods

1) The "Hire-folks-who-don't-care" method. This is a sure-fire method for chasing away customers. I recently saw one airline employee cause five different customers to become angry on one short flight. This veteran flight attendant had a real attitude problem. After infuriating the customers, this employee muttered to a fellow flight attendant, "Who do these people think they are?"

2) The "Don't-keep-an-explicit-promise" method. "I'll double coat all surfaces, replace all trim and clean the brick and windows when I'm done," the painter promised. Six weeks later, some trim hasn't received the second coat, the windows still have paint on the glass and the dark brick still has splotches of light paint on it. The painter cashed the check and the job is done as far as he's concerned.

3) The "Don't-keep-an-implicit-promise" method. When you rent a car, you expect the windshield wipers to work. When you rent a tiller, you expect the engine to start. When you buy a suit, you expect the zipper to zip properly. These are implied promises.

4) The "Winning-the-argument" method. "All you have to do is follow the directions I gave you and it will work," the sales clerk said over the phone. "I have," was the frustrated reply. "You couldn't have, or it would be working just fine," argued the clerk.

5) The "Deaf-ear" method. "How was everything?" The waiter asked.

"Well, the steak was tough, the mashed potatoes could and lumpy and the salad had brown lettuce in it," the diner replied. "Would you care for dessert?" the waiter asked.

6) The "Guilt-trip" method. The store was dingy and shop-worn. The lighting was bad, the windows dirty and the floor was gritty underfoot. The inventory looked old and dog-eared though it was new.

The owner looked across the street at the full parking lot of the power retailer who'd moved in. "I've been here 35 years supporting this community," the owner said to the customer. "Why haven't they stuck by me? You'd think they owe me some loyalty after all these years." The customer looked around and wished he was across the street.

7) The "One-I'm-sorry-at-a-time," method. "I'm sorry that took so long," the clerk at the counter said as she finally hung up the phone. "Now, what can I get you?" The customer placed her order and waited patiently.

A few minutes later the clerk delivered a tray with food. "This is not what I ordered," said the customer.

"I'm sorry," said the clerk. "What did you order?" "I can't wait any longer," replied the customer. "May I have my money back, please?"

"I'm sorry," said the clerk. "No refunds. Store policy you know."

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

While looking at the assortment of new books this week I really had a difficult time selecting the ones to go out this week. Some times I look for a common theme, or time frame that each of the books may have. This week the common thread is that I want to read each of them from cover to cover.

The first one to catch my eye was Flood Tide by Clive Cussler. That particular title caught my eye because I had just had a patron request their name be entered on the waiting list. When I pulled the order card I found a couple of names already on the list.

To find out what the excitement was about I began to read the description on the book jacket. "The coin of the realm of the wealthy, insatiably greedy Chinese smuggler... is human lives; much of his vast fortune has been made smuggling Chinese immigrants into countries around the globe, including the United States."

Tracking the smuggler is Dirk Pitt, who finds himself in a race to find the ship that carried the treasure of Chiang Kaishek when he fled China in 1949. Dirk Pitt faces the most formidable enemy of his career and hopes he lives to tell about it.

Red Sky at Night by James W. Hall reminded me of the part of a poem, "Red sky at night, sailor's delight; Red sky at morning, sailor take warning." As I read this book jacket I wondered why the author/publisher chose the title.

"Eleven dolphins, part of an experiment in healing, are found slaughtered in their soft water tanks." I am already asking, "Why?" The animal lover in me wants to read the book just to make sure the bad guys get what they deserve.

Investigator Thorn triggers a vicious attack that leaves him paralyzed from the waist down and plagued by unrelenting pain. Thorn's childhood friend Bean Wilson is a doctor whose Vietnam experience has left him with a debilitating injury.

Bean is now operating a pain-relief clinic in Key West and doing research in a quest to find the ultimate painkiller. Within hours of entering the clinic, Thorn senses danger. The once childhood friend has become a ruthless doctor who will stop at nothing to cure his own twisted pain. The 11 dead dolphins were just the beginning.

Reign in Hell by William Diehl caught my eye because of the dust jacket which is about 1-1/2 inches shorter than the book. When you look at the front cover, a person's eyes are looking back at you over the dust jacket.

The review begins, "A terrorist attack on a military convoy leaves scores of soldiers dead as truck-loads of highly volatile weapons fall into the hands of an ultra-right-wing militia."

The nation is seized by fear. Brother Transgressor, a fanatic, smoke-handling preacher, joins the radical group adding fuel to the fire. No one knows who Brother Transgressor is or where he came from or his dark sinister agenda.

Martin Vail has just won a landmark conviction and gained the attention of the President. Soon Vail is the new Assistant Attorney General of the United States. His job is to find the terrorist and see that justice is done. Vail has learned from his past mistakes but is still stunned when he is once again found facing his greatest enemy, Aaron Stampier.

I know you are not supposed to judge a book by its cover, but the jacket for River Without End by Pamela Jekel looked very inviting. As I began to look through and read the book it wasn't long before the first two chapters were read.

Set in the Florida Wilderness, which covers a large swamp area, the story begins with a group of slaves meeting together to decide on an escape plan. Black John has been hunting with his master and traveled to the edge of the swamp and is pretty sure he can find the Swannee River that will take them to the Gulf of Mexico and freedom.

Peter explains, "I been waitin' all my life for Moses. I ain't never seen him yet. Guess I settle for some rickety ol' nigger who will fetch up frogs' stead o' manna." They find the marshlands alright but none of them are prepared for the Seminole war party.

White Wings by Dan Montague begins with Matthew Adams looking for an old boat that he could buy at a low price, and transform into something great. The battered hull of the "White Wings" caught his eye and Matthew knew instantly it was the boat for him.

Matthew's attempts to restore the boat sweep him into the lives of Taylor Hayakawa, the present owner of "White Wings," Taylor's beautiful headstrong daughter (I wonder why that caught my attention) and Taylor's mother, Becky, the once proud matriarch who was lost at sea.

As Matthew works to restore the boat, the story of Becky begins to fall into place piece by piece.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1997. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 19, 1987, the stock market crashed as the Dow Jones Industrial Average, amid frenzied selling, plunged 508 points - its biggest-ever one-day decline.

On this date:

In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress, meeting in New York, drew up a declaration of rights and liberties.

In 1781, British troops under Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va., as the American Revolution neared its end.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1864, Confederate Gen. Jubal A. Early attacked Union forces at Cedar Creek, Va.; the Union troops were able to rally and defeat the Confederates.

In 1944, the Navy announced that black women would be allowed into Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service.

In 1950, United Nations forces entered the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

In 1951, President Truman signed an act formally ending the state of war with Germany.

In 1977, the body of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, who had been kidnapped by left-wing extremists, was found in the trunk of a car in Mulhouse, France.

In 1977, the supersonic Concorde made its first landing in New York City.

Ten years ago: U.S. warships destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the Persian Gulf in retaliation for an Iranian missile attack on a U.S.-flagged tanker off Kuwait.

Five years ago: President Bush, Democrat Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot met in their third and final campaign debate, in East Lansing, Mich.

One year ago: President Clinton said in his radio address that states would lose a percentage of federal highway aid if they did not bar young people from drinking and driving. In the Republican radio address, Bob Dole claimed credit for putting Democrats on the defensive over their acceptance of foreign political contributions.

Pumpkin crop varies by area; prices continue to rise

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - With Halloween approaching, reports are mixed on this year's pumpkin crop. In Ohio, acreage planted in pumpkins is up. "They're gorgeous," John Bergman said of this year's pumpkin crop on his family's 20 acres near Oak Harbor. Farther south, the crop doesn't look nearly as good. A hot summer and too little rain squashed the growth in many pumpkin patches, especially in North Carolina. "The very dry weather has hurt pumpkins not only here but from Kentucky to Georgia," said Edmund Estes, an economics professor with N.C. State University. "This year, yields are likely to go down a bit, maybe 25 percent." Agronomists say many of the Southern pumpkins that have survived may be misshapen and look odd. North Carolina alone has 3,000 acres of pumpkins. Ohio has at least 3,500 acres. The acreage has been increasing for the last 15 years, said Mike Pullins, executive director of the Ohio

Fruit Growers Society. The reason: the price. Pumpkin farmers earn about $2,525 an acre, said Ron Overmyer, coordinator of Ohio State University's Agriculture Business Enhancement Center. Each acre yields an average of about 14 tons. "It's essentially the entertainment business because those pumpkins are mainly being used for pleasure and fun as compared to a commodity for consumption," Overmyer said. Pumpkins grow better in Ohio than in other Midwestern and Southeastern states because Ohio doesn't have as many problems with fungus and other diseases, agriculture officials say. Pumpkins like Ohio's rich soil, cool, wet springs and early frosts. Ohio pumpkin farmers ship their products to local markets and other states or sell directly to customers in pick-your-own patches. All that orange adds up to lots of green for agriculture. State agricultural experts say Halloween has become the second largest commercial holiday of the year.

"Consumers spend a lot of dollars decorating, celebrating and on candy," Pullins said. Like Jane Patterson, 32, of the suburb of Perrysburg. "They're so pretty," she said as she looked at pumpkins at a roadside market outside of Perrysburg. "I decorate my yard and entire house with pumpkins." Farmer James Klickman has a pumpkin patch in the Sandusky County village of Elmore, about 20 miles east of Toledo. Klickman ships his pumpkins all over the region. But every weekend in October, hundreds of people go to his "Great Pumpkin Patch" to pick their own. He also offers wagon rides, balloons and costume contests. The pumpkin patch gets bigger each year, said his wife, Marilyn Klickman. "It's like getting ready for a wedding every year," she said. And growers enjoy the holiday spirit. "It's a fun business. People are happy when they come," said Beverly Rust, whose father, Carl Hemminger, grows pumpkins near Oak Harbor.

Coffee prices fall Latin American supplies prove ample

Coffee futures prices tumbled Thursday as Latin American coffee supplies were set for shipment to roasters, assuring ample supplies during the peak consumption period. On other markets, crude oil futures rose sharply amid an unexpectedly heavy decline in U.S. inventories, while silver and platinum futures fell sharply. Coffee retreated as the world's leading coffee producers, Brazil and Colombia, prepared to send large quantities of gourmet arabica beans to Western roasters. Most of Brazil's coffee is harvested, while Colombian harvesting is under way. Other Central American nations also planned on sending large supplies of beans, as many as five weeks early, because dry weather hastened development and harvesting. "It seems clear roasters will be fairly well covered; they're not having as difficult a time getting supplies as this time last year," said analyst Judith Ganes at Merrill Lynch.

Latin American crops saw substantial shortfall last year due to bad weather, which forced U.S. and European roasters to compete for available supply, sharply bidding up the price of arabica beans. But the El Nino warming trend this year will lead to record production in some nations, offsetting a lower than expected harvest in Brazil, Ms. Ganes said. Expectations for a larger world crop helped offset initial concern about a U.S. Green Coffee Association report that coffee inventories fell a sharp 289,100 bags in September to 2.294 million bags. Each bag weighs 132 pounds. The decline was at the higher end of expectations, but investors later noted most of it was robusta stocks not used in popular gourmet blends. Arabica coffee for December delivery plunged 8.80 cents to $1.57 a pound on the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange in New York. Crude oil futures rose sharply on the New York Mercantile Exchange after the American Petroleum Institute reported inventories fell an unexpectedly sharply 1.2 percent in the past week and Iraq made threats that could cut the flow of oil from that country. Supplies fell by 3.55 million barrels to 304.65 million barrels, the industry group reported late Wednesday. Taken alone, the report may not have raised concern. But Iraq also is threatening to sever cooperation with U.N. weapons inspectors if the Security Council imposes sanctions for refusing to allow immediate access to suspect illegal weapons sites. Under U.N. resolutions approved after a U.S.-led force pushed Iraq out of Kuwait in 1991, Iraq must prove it has eliminated weapons of mass destruction before the United Nations lifts an oil embargo. Under an exception, Iraq has been allowed to ship some oil to buy food and medicine, but that deal could end if tensions continue to rise, said analyst Tim Evans at Pegasus Econometric Group.

November crude rose 40 cents to $20.97 a barrel; November heating oil rose 1.07 cents to 58.01 cents a gallon; November unleaded gasoline rose 1.48 cents to 59.68 cents a gallon. Platinum and silver futures fell sharply on the New York Mercantile Exchange under heavy selling by commodity funds. Funds had bought heavily in recent weeks on perceptions of declining stocks and increased industrial demand for the metals, but in the absence of solid figures, a selling spree began. Palladium futures prices continued sharply higher, buoyed by concern that talks set to begin in December between Russia and Japan will be fruitless, resulting in delays in shipments of the metal for use in cars, computers and other electronics. December silver fell 15.7 cents, or 3.1 percent, at $4.91 an ounce; January platinum fell $10.40, or 2.3 percent, at $429.50 an ounce. December palladium rose $8.65 to $224.10 an ounce.

Predator wasps released

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - A natural enemy of leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars will be introduced into 13 eastern Wisconsin counties as a new tool against the destructive pest. The state Agriculture Department is releasing a fungus called entomophaga maimaiga on the Mount Mary College campus in Wauwatosa - the first of 36 targeted sites. "I don't think anybody would say it is the solution to the problem," agency spokesman Christopher Batio said Thursday. "It is just a new tool we are using. It is something that will enhance the effectiveness of our whole program and enhance the aerial treatment we do each spring." The state may also release a parasitic wasp that attacks gypsy moth egg masses as part of the biological control program, he said. Gypsy moth caterpillars feed on the leaves of more than 300 kinds of trees and shrubs. Defoliation can lead to a plant's death. Until now, aerial spraying of a bacterial insecticide each spring in selected counties has been the state's main strategy to kill gypsy moth larvae. Last spring, about 40,000 acres at 24 sites in 13 counties were sprayed. Since first appearing in the United States in the 1980s, the fungus, a parasite that feeds on the caterpillar, has dramatically reduced gypsy moth numbers in heavily invested Northeast states, the state Agriculture Department said. A year ago, the fungus was found on a gypsy moth caterpillar collected in Door County. To speed along the natural spread of the fungus, the state went to the forests of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, collected dead caterpillars that contained fungus spores and ground the cadavers into sterile soil. They will spread the dirt at the 36 targeted sites in Wisconsin, Batio said. The spores will become active and airborne next spring and attack the moths, growing naturally, Batio said. "It is not an eradication technique. It is not something that is going to kill them all off. Like any parasite, it will only kill off a certain number of its hosts," Batio said.

The fungus poses no risk to animals or humans because it attacks the gypsy moth caterpillar exclusively, scientists said. Gypsy moths entered the United States in 1869, when a scientist transported their eggs from France to Massachusetts. Near Boston, some of the eggs accidentally blew out of a window and were not retrieved. Now the pests, while in their caterpillar stage, have infested 16 states, defoliating thousands of trees in the Northeast and West as well as parts of the Midwest. Wisconsin began spraying in 1990, but the infestation continues to roll westward across the state. Classified ads get results! ## Chemical waste disposal scheduled

The disposal of old and outdated pesticides and pesticide containers continues to be a problem with stricter regulations being placed on landfills. Many applicators have simply stockpiled old pesticides and containers in barns and around farmsteads. In an effort to help applicators dispose of the waste products, the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission, Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Department of Agriculture will accept old pesticides and metal or plastic pesticide containers for disposal and recycling on Friday, Oct. 24, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Ollie Linc center in Plainview. The center is located on Business Interstate 27 across from the Hale County Airport. Anyone who applies pesticides for production to agricultural products in Texas are eligible to participate in this collection program. There will be no fees charged, no questions asked and no signature required from any participant in this program. Collection will be conducted rain or shine. Materials to be accepted for disposal include insecticides, fungicides, rodenticides, nematocides, bactericides, growth regulators, harvest aid chemicals, pesticides used on livestock and other miscellaneous pesticides. Items exclude will be any unlabelled substance or any substance containing 2,4,5-T, commonly known as Silvex, explosives, non hazardous fertilizers or substances containing Pentachlorophenol, or compressed gas cylinders. For more information on this disposal and recycling effort contact the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573.

TAM 110 WITH GREENBUG RESISTANCE

Late planted wheat is susceptible to greenbugs in April and TAM 110 is resistant to these infestations. If you have not planted wheat, but plan to double crop behind corn, cotton, or sorghum, TAM 110 is best suited for this practice. Late planted, ungrazed wheat is more susceptible to greenbugs and Tam 110 is resistant. Lush wheat being fresh young and tender, makes it very vulnerable to heavy greenbug infestations in April. TAM 110 has also topped yield trails for both irrigated and dryland production.

Affordable Home

G-26

AN ATTRACTIVE RAILED PORCH, a gable roof and traditional shutters lend appeal to this home's exterior.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

With an open design and a modest square footage of 1,615, Plan G-26, by HomeStyles Designers Network, provides a comfortable, affordable and casual home.

A railed porch, gable roof and traditional shutters give the home an appealing exterior.

Inside, an eye-catching stone-tiled foyer ushers guests into the living spaces, where dramatic cathedral ceilings and skylights are found.

At the center of the home, the living and dining rooms merge, forming an open entertaining area under a 16-ft. cathedral ceiling.

The family room shares the 16-ft. ceiling and a three-sided fireplace with the living room. A skylight and sliding glass doors to a patio brighten the room.

There is a second skylight nearby in the island kitchen. Other features here include a 16-ft. cathedral ceiling and easy access to the garage. A cheery breakfast nook with a 15-ft. cathedral ceiling is ideal for all meals.

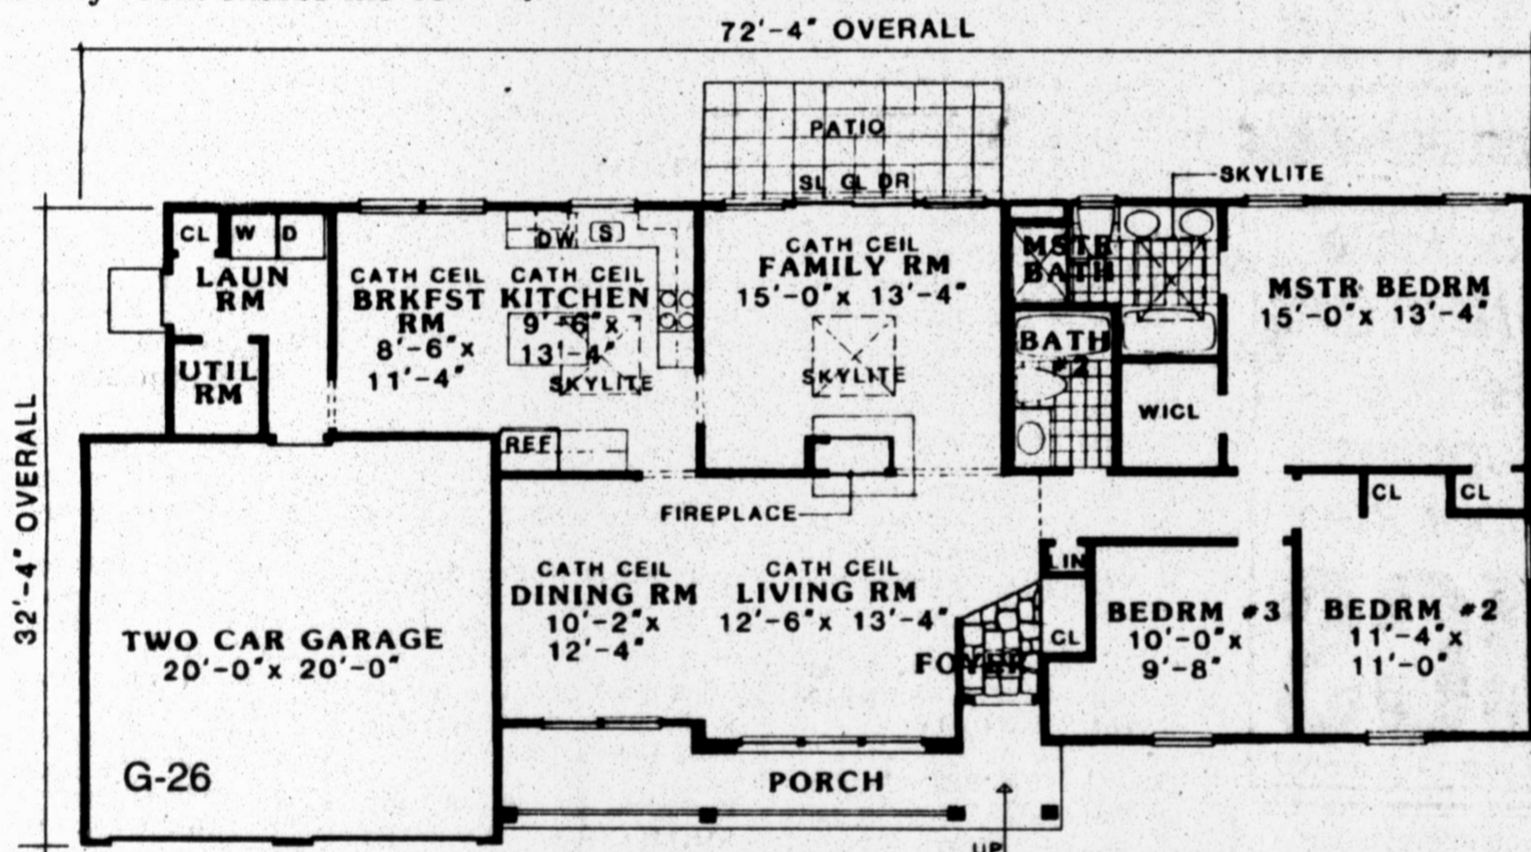

The master suite features a walk-in closet, a skylighted bath with an 11-ft., 8-in. vaulted ceiling, a dual-sink vanity, a soaking tub and a separate shower.

Two more bedrooms and a full bath complete the floor plan.

G-26 STATISTICS

Design G-26 has a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, breakfast room, three bedrooms, two full baths, a laundry room and a utility room, totaling 1,615 square feet of living space. This plan includes a daylight basement, a standard basement, a crawlspace or a slab foundation, and 2x4 exterior wall framing. A two-car garage provides 412 square feet of space.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

AN INVITING PORCH leads inside to the home's formal areas, which include a dining room and a living room, both crowned by a 16-ft. cathedral ceiling. A three-way fireplace warms this area, as well as the adjacent family room, which has another 16-ft. cathedral ceiling and a skylight. Nearby, one more skylight and a 16-ft. ceiling are found in the kitchen. Features of the master suite across the home include two closets, one a walk-in, and a skylighted bath with a dual-sink vanity.

Potts, Curry finally make it Over the Top on ABC

One hotel might not be big enough for both of them when mismatched former spouses (Annie Potts, Tim Curry) end up sharing the same space in Over the Top. The amusing sitcom makes its belated premiere Tuesday on ABC.

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

After one of the rockiest starts in recent memory, ABC's new situation comedy Over the Top makes its belated debut on Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Getting there was less than half the fun, but it looks as if stars Tim Curry and Annie Potts may have the last laugh. Over the Top is a modest delight.

Curry plays flamboyant, self-indulgent actor Simon Ferguson, who is hilariously written out of his current soap opera role via a fiery plane crash in the opening moments of the premiere. With limited options, Simon decides now might be a good time to visit his favorite ex-wife, Hadley Martin (Potts), to whom he was married for 12 days more than two decades ago.

At present, Hadley is trying to whip into shape the small New York hotel she took over six months earlier while taking care of her two children, tempestuous teen-age Gwen (Marla Sokoloff) and 7-year-old Daniel (Luke Tarsitano). Helping her, to various degrees, are Rose (Liz Torres, The John Larroquette Show), investor Robert McSwain (John O'Hurley, J. Peterman of Seinfeld) and hyperemotional Greek chef Yorgo (Steve Carell).

Under these circumstances, the last thing Hadley needs is an ex-husband underfoot, especially one with a Peter Pan complex, but when she learns of Simon's dilemma, she agrees to allow him to stay rent-free at her hotel until he gets back on his feet.

Actually, for awhile there, it looked as if Over the Top itself would never get on its feet. Industry gossip — and a cutting New York Times article — suggested the show had earned a spot on the ABC schedule mainly because at the time, Robert Morton, one of the show's executive producers, was romantically linked with ABC programming executive Jamie Tarses.

ABC had no pilot ready for TV critics to examine during their summer press tour, which only fanned the rumors that the show was in trouble.

The creators tinkered with the premise, moving it from a rural to an urban location, and an actress was fired.

In sum, Over the Top looked like Down in the Dumps.

"I think the work will speak for itself," says Potts, who has been so good in shows both lousy (Love & War) and critically acclaimed (Dangerous Minds) since her hit Designing Women went off the air four years ago.

"I think that what's been written, and what Tim and I have to offer, should stand on its own, and I don't think there is anything to substantiate that (cynical) view of it," she adds firmly.

Potts and Curry, who have been longtime friends and neighbors, have a delightful chemistry, but it's Curry who really spices up Over the Top.

Just as Emmy winner John Lithgow does in 3rd Rock From the Sun, Curry attacks every scene, every moment, with full-blown gusto, whether he's charming a hotel guest or fending off motormouthed little Daniel.

"You sound just like one of the Beatles," the child says of Simon's accent. "I'm the fifth Beatle. They call me Satan," Simon replies with a sinister smile in one of their typical exchanges.

Over the Top isn't an instant classic. Some jokes lack logic: Why is a 7-year-old making Beatles references and, in a future episode, why is Simon unfamiliar with part of the plot of Jack and the Beanstalk?

Still, Curry is a terrifically oddball leading man, and Potts is a charming foil. On troubled ABC, that's a keeper.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ October 19-25 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You feel a little rundown this week, Aries. Cancel some of your social plans, and catch up on your rest. You need it. A loved one looks to you for advice. Be honest. You meet an interesting person later in the week. Try to make a good impression, because he or she has connections.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
This is your week to shine, Taurus. Things go well for you both personally and professionally. You make significant headway toward a personal goal. Don't stop now - you've got the momentum. A close friend needs your help. Don't ignore him or her. Gemini plays a key role.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
You don't know how you feel about a romantic relationship early in the week. One minute, you're happy about it; the next minute, you're upset. Before making a rash decision, take some time to figure out your true feelings. You owe it to yourself and your significant other. A close friend surprises you this weekend.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
The week will fly by, Cancer. You'll be so busy with work and personal plans that you won't have a chance to relax until later in the week. Enjoy this well-deserved rest when it finally arrives. A loved one needs your help with a family matter. Do all that you can for him or her. Libra plays a role.

LEO - July 23/August 23
You feel like you're losing control early in the week, Leo. All of the decisions that you make seem to backfire. Don't get discouraged. You'll be back on top before Friday. Even though a close friend hasn't called in a few days, there's no cause for alarm. He or she has been busy.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
A business associate asks you to handle a touchy situation this week, Virgo. Don't shy away from the challenge; you know that you are the best person to deal with it. That special someone surprises you over the weekend. Enjoy! Aries and Sagittarius play important roles.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Let your good nature shine through when you get into a discussion with an aggressive co-worker. Don't let his or her remarks get you upset. Be the bigger person. A loved one tells you about a family problem. Do your best to help resolve it. The person you've been seeing wants to get serious. Think about what you want.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
A close friend gets into trouble during the middle of the week. As much as you would like to stay out of the situation, you have to help him or her. Be supportive, and guide him or her through this rough time. Your efforts will be appreciated. A friend reveals his or her true feelings for you.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
You really stick your foot in your mouth at a business meeting, Sagittarius. However, don't get nervous. By remaining calm, you can talk your way out of it. A loved one is feeling down. Try to cheer him or her up. Capricorn plays a key role in your personal life later in the week.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You take a giant step in the right direction when it comes to your career this week. You say all the right things in front of the right person, and a great business offer is on the way. The person you've been dating doesn't call. Don't get upset; someone better will come along.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on your own early in the week, Aquarius, and you love it. You finally can make a large dent in your long-to-do list. Even though you're working hard, you feel invigorated. Use this extra energy to enhance a personal relationship. Cancer plays a key role on Tuesday.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
A close friend needs some advice about a personal problem. Be honest, and help him or her make a sound decision. Your help is truly appreciated. A family gathering puts you in the spotlight. Try to make the event fun for everyone, especially yourself. An old friend calls you on Friday.

Q: I wrote a letter to Celeste Holm at the CBS address you gave and it was returned reading, "No such person exists." I doubt that Miss Holm would appreciate this. What can you suggest? -Helen Lay, Harrisonburg, Va.

A: Did you fail to include the name of her series? If so, sometimes a mail room employee may not connect the star with the right show.

The address should read: Celeste Holm, c/o Promised Land, CBS Inc., 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Celeste Holm

Q: I recently noticed David Hyde Pierce of Frasier in a 1988 movie called Crossing Delancey, but I never saw his name in the credits, although his part was certainly large enough to be included. Was he using a different name then or merely buried in the impossible-to-read credits at the end? -Marge via e-mail.

A: Pierce, who played a character named Mark in Delancey, made the movie while he was doing Broadway theater under the name David Pierce - which, by the way, is how he introduces himself to people. He's listed ninth in the closing credits.

The Frasier star added his middle name upon learning that another actor already was working as David Pierce. He did, however, once joke to me that when he did Oliver Stone's Nixon, he considered telling the person in charge of credits that his last name was Hyde Pierce, since it would appear higher in the alphabetical closing credits.

Q: Please help me remember more about a '70s TV series called, I think, The Smith Family starring Henry Fonda and a pre-Happy Days Ron Howard. -DG via e-mail.

A: The Smith Family (ABC, 1971-

72) starred Fonda as Los Angeles plainclothes detective Chad Smith. Janet Blair played his wife, Betty, and Howard (still Ronny), Darleen Carr and Michael-James Wixted played their children, Bob, Cindy and Brian.

Q: Who is the sports announcer married to the actress who plays Ruth on Cosby? -Ruth Woods, St. Petersburg, Fla.

A: Cosby star Phylicia Rashad is married to NBC sportscaster Ahmad Rashad.

Q: In what movie did Joanne Woodward play a college professor with Alzheimer's disease? -Frances M. Rader, Swanton, Ohio.

A: Woodward won a richly deserved Emmy for her work in Do You Remember Love.

Q: Did actor Ricardo Montalban star in The Flying Nun? -Paul Wehner, Fond du Lac, Wis.

A: No, Paul, that was Alejandro Rey who played Carlos Ramirez in Sally Field's hit sitcom.

SOAP WORLD

Molly's reception on ATWT is hardly sterling

By Candace Havens

A recent column on As the World Turns star Lesli Kay Sterling (Molly) has created quite a stir among fans. I've received hundreds of letters and e-mail messages from viewers whose opinions split right down the middle. There are those who are vehemently opposed to the sight of her, and those who think Molly should get what she wants. Well, the point is moot now that Holden (Jon Hensley) has discovered her deceptions. But it was fun while it lasted.

Dear Candace: I heard that Jeanne Cooper, who plays Katherine on The Young and the Restless, had a face lift. I know they talked about her surgery on the show. Did she actually do something in real life? —K.S., Fargo, N.D.

Dear Reader: Cooper didn't have a face lift. She did have a facial rejuvenation procedure where the top layer of skin is removed to reveal brand-new skin. Cooper says there is no surgery and it isn't painful, but it is a long process.

Dear Candace: What happened to Eva LaRue Callahan (ex-Maria) on All My Children? I didn't read anywhere that she wanted to leave. —Carol Collins, Muskogee, Okla.

Dear Reader: Callahan left to do the prime-time show Head Over Heels. The series isn't faring well in the ratings, so who knows what might happen? Maria is presumed dead, but the door has been left open for the character to return.

Dear Candace: Is it true that Amanda (Laura Moss) on Another World is turning evil? How long is this going to go on? She was always such a good person in the past. I want her to forget this plot against Carl (Charles Keating) and get on with her life. —Just Wondering in Roanoke, Va.

Dear Reader: Amanda has never been one to walk a straight line. If she thinks her family is being threatened in some way, she will do anything to stop it.

"Amanda is certain Carl is no good for her mother, and she is going to get rid of him one way or another," Moss says. "In her mind, she is doing the right thing."

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
