Farmer saves water, still gets good yield

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE Staff Writer

An area sugar beet farmer uses a low-energy irrigation system to conserve water and produce a quality crop. Low-energy precision application (LEPA) irrigation systems have been proven to reduce irrigation needs, in some cases, by as much as 30 percent. Gary Schumache, who farms 1,300 acres in Deaf Smith County, produces not only sugar beets, but also corn, cotton and wheat, using the LEPA irrigation

One half-mile pivot circle irrigates approximately 100 acres of beets and another 100 acres of cotton. Water is applied with the use of plastic sleeves, in place of the spray nozzles, which slide over the drop tubes and drag along furrows to distribute water evenly and efficiently. "My goal is to grow as much as I can using the least amount of water and do it without sacrificing yield or acreage," said Schumacher.

"With the LEPA program, I've found that sugar beets will respond just as well even though I'm using less water," he said. Schumacher considers irrigation as a supplement to rainfall and by using furrow dikes, he is more able to maintain a consistent yield.

"More and more farmers are seeing the benefits of using some sort of LEPA or other low-pressure irrigation system to produce good beet crops," said Stan McCabe, an agricultural consultant with Holly

Flexibility of LEPA systems provide a variety benefits for the crops, the soil and the producer.

McCabe says that by dragging hoses in turrows, water moves into the seed bed more efficiently during germination and prevents soil crusting.

During later stages of development, beets grown using LEPA systems suffer less wind damage and trauma caused by water evaporation.

Producers using LEPA systems have experienced less incidence of Cercospera leaf spot, because soil level watering helps keep the plants drier. Schumacher uses furrow dikes on every other row. The dikes cam up the rows about every 3 feet, and prevents excessive runoff from irrigation or rainfall. About 1 inch of water is required for every ton of beets that a field is expected to yield per acre, according

A field which is expected to produce 25 tons per acre will need between 16-18 inches of irrigation as well as any rain received during the growing season.

McCabe said Schumacher applied about an inch of pre-irrigation water to get his crop started and has added only another 14-15 inches during the summer. "This year, there are about 18,000 acres of sugar beets, which are all contracted for by Holly Sugar," McCabe expects sugar beets to be big money makers because high prices of consumer demand.

In another agriculture news, several million acres of Panhandle-South Plains farmland could possibly be saved from the effects of erosion and blowing dust storms, according to U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. Combest is urging land owners to make good use the newest U.S. Department of Agriculture information regarding competitive CRP proposals during the upcoming sign-up. The National Conservation Resource Service will issue specific guidelines for the region on Sept. 15 "Anyone with highly-erodible land should carefully consider how to package their best CRP bid, according to USDA's new conservation goals," said Combest. "USDA's new approach in the fall CRP signup provided the Panhandle-South Plains a new opportunity, with an improved scoring system from what was used in the spring signup.'

Combest said the rural region of the South Plains will receive higher scores in recognition of their quality benefit of farmland that is covered and not plowed

Landowners should be aware their bids can earn an additional 10 points for not seeking USDA cost-share assistance and an offer to accept a lower CRP contract payment can count for a maximum of 15 more points for every dollar under the maximum county rental

Combest has pushed the USDA officials into providing very specific guidelines on the type and the amount of grassland cover that will score the most favorable consideration for winning a CRP contract.

The USDA will continue to help with 50 percent of a landowner's cost on setting new seedings.

Acceptable ground cover types and the amount of acreage planted in covering will be set Sept. 15, by the State NARCS.

Landowners should not use last signup's 259-point eligibility level as a yardstick because the USDA will have set a different cumulative point goal for CRP contract offers this fall.

Dry spell doesn't affect corn

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite a spell of dry weather in early August across parts of the Corn Belt, the nation's corn harvest forecast was virtually unchanged from last month at 9.27 billion bushels, the Agriculture Department reported today.

Although the corn acreage to be harvested remained nearly the same at 74 million acres, yield prospects for Indiana and Wisconsin decreased slightly. The September corn prediction was about 8.2 million bushels lower than the August figure.

Corn yields were predicted at 125.2 bushels per acre, slightly less than last month's estimate and down 1.9 bushels from 1996. Price projections from this year's corn crop were expected at between $2.45 and $2.85 a bushel.

The corn crop was progressing ahead of normal nationwide, despite persistent dry weather in early August that stretched from Missouri to New York. Later in the month, widespread rain brought relief to the dry fields.

The news for corn was not entirely positive: USDA predicted that exports would be down 25 million bushels this year because of increased competition from China.

Soybean production was forecast at 2.75 billion bushels, a bit higher than last month's estimate but 15 percent more than 1996. If realized, the soybean crop would be a new record.

Yields for soybeans were estimated at 39.3 bushels per acre, 1.7 bushels more than 1996. Soybeans are expected to bring between $5.60 and $6.70 a bushel.

Production for all types of wheat was forecast at 2.51 billion bushels, a 1 percent drop from the August estimate but 10 percent over last year. The projected yield of 39.5 bushels per acre would equal the all-time

Durum wheat and other kinds of spring-planted wheat both will have lower yields this year, but the winter wheat crop was 225.4 million bushels ahead

The forecast for durum wheat, used in making pasta, was 90.1 million bushels - down from 115.8 million bushels last year - while other spring wheat was down almost 19 percent at 561.5 million bushels, USDA

Cotton crop estimates of 18.4 million bales would be the fourth highest harvest on record but still down 3 percent from 1996. Yields are expected to average 658 pounds per acre, down 49 pounds from last year.

The cotton forecast was 4 percent above the August prediction, largely because of rain that raised production forecasts in Texas by an estimated 400,000 bales, as well as by 110,000 bales in Arkansas.

Wholesale prices record moderate gain in August

WASHINGTON (AP) - Breaking an unprecedented string of seven monthly declines, prices paid to factories and other producers climbed a moderate 0.3 percent in August, pushed higher by rising vegetable and gasoline costs.

The seasonally adjusted increase in the Producer Price Index for finished goods, prices paid by wholesalers, was both the first and worst since December's 0.5 percent rise, the Labor Department said today.

Even with the August jump, which was expected, the index still was falling at an annual rate of 2.2 percent this year. It had posted declines ranging from 0.1 percent to 0.5 percent from January through July, the most consecutive drops since the government began compiling the index prices and a 0.3 percent rise in foods. Core prices excluding the volatile food and energy sectors inched just 0.1 percent higher in August after a decline of the same amount the month before. In another report today, the Commerce Department said retail sales rose

The streak was broken primarily because of a 1.4 percent jump in energy

0.4 percent in August, topping off a three-month summer rebound after a cool spring had kept shoppers at home. Still, that was a bit less than predicted. Also, the Agriculture Department left its corn harvest forecast unchanged at 9.27 billion bushels, despite a spell of dry weather in early August across parts of the Corn Belt. Soybean production was forecast at 2.75 billion bushels, a bit higher than last month's estimate. The price and sales reports were welcome on inflation-sensitive Wall Street. The yield on the 30-year Treasury bond, which moves in the opposite direction from prices, fell to 6.63 percent this morning from 6.69 percent

Private economists, Wall Street traders and Federal Reserve policy-makers have been watching the producer index and other price measures closely for signs that strong economic growth and low unemployment are pressuring businesses to raise their prices faster than before. So far that hasn't happened. Service inflation has remained contained and goods inflation has all but disappeared. That's permitted the Federal Reserve to hold short-term interest rates steady since late March. And that, in turn, has helped fuel record stock market gains.

Only in the last six weeks have stocks faltered as traders have become increasingly nervous about prospects for inflation, interest rates and corporate

In August, energy costs were led higher by a 5.9 percent jump in gasoline prices, the largest in 16 months. Fuel oil rose 1.8 percent and residential natural gas, 0.7 percent. But residential electricity declined 1 percent.

Report: Diana's bodyguard unaware of deaths

LONDON (AP) - The bodyguard who survived the crash that killed Princess Diana, Dodi Fayed and their driver doesn't yet know they are dead, according to a published report today.

The Mirror newspaper quoted doctors treating Trevor Rees-Jones at a hospital in Paris as saying he is still too ill to be told, and may not be informed for a few more weeks.

Rees-Jones, 29, who was Fayed's bodyguard, was the sole survivor of the Aug. 31 crash in a Paris tunnel. He suffered severe chest injuries and is still recovering from 10 hours of surgery a week ago to reconstruct his face.

In Paris, Le Figaro daily quoted an unidentified source close to the investigation as saying Rees-Jones may not even be able to remember the Rees-Jones had received heavy doses of anesthesia, which could have caused partial amnesia that wiped out his memory of the crash and the hours immediately beforehand, the source said.

Investigators hope that Rees-Jones will be able to describe what happened that night

ALBRIGHT MAKING LAST PUSH

RAMALLAH, West Bank (AP) - Secretary of State Madeleine Albright was wrapping up the main part of her Middle East mission today, making one last push to cajole Israelis and Palestinians back toward peace.

Albright was expected to talk with Yasser Arafat a final time to drive home the message that America expects him to crack down on Islamic

She was then scheduled to leave Israel for Syria, where she will try to get Israeli-Syrian peace talks restarted after a 11/2-year freeze. Israel's Channel 2 TV said she would carry a written message from Israeli officials, but gave no details.

Albright's first trip to the Middle East as secretary of state appears to have been a somewhat frustrating exercise so far.

HELMS STILL REFUSES WELD HEARINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) - His prospects pegged at "slim to none" even by supporters, William Weld's bid to be ambassador to Mexico was getting another rebuke today as Sen. Jesse Helms exerted his nomination-blocking

A day after the White House rejected Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott's call to withdraw the nomination, Helms was holding a "special meeting" of his Senate Foreign Relations Committee to explain why he will not hold a hearing for the former Massachusetts governor.

A bipartisan group of committee members forced Helms to hold the special meeting and a majority of the panel urged him in writing this week to schedule a nomination hearing. But the North Carolina Republican known by the nickname, "Senator No," refused to put Weld on the agenda.

As committee chairman, Helms designed the meeting to last 30 minutes, allowing him to limit debate - if he even permitted it. He invited Senate parliamentarian Bob Dove in case anyone challenged Helms' authority to control the meeting.

'No way, Jose," Helms' spokesman, Marc Thiessen, said Thursday when asked if Weld would ever see his nomination brought up for consideration. Weld, who resigned as governor of Massachusetts in July to pursue the Mexico City job, planned to be on hand - most likely outside the meeting in case his name was called. He said he had no plans to withdraw.

SATELLITE IN ORBIT AROUND MARS PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - With the Mars Global Surveyor in brbit, NASA scientists hoped to get a bird's-eye view of the red planet to go along with the worm's-eye view that Pathfinder has been providing since it landed on the boulder-strewn surface. The Surveyor spacecraft fired its main rocket Thursday and went into orbit around Mars for a mapping mission intended to yield the best understanding yet of Earth's neighbor. The success of the mission continued a new era of Mars exploration for the U.S. space agency, which plans to dispatch pairs of orbiters and landers to the red planet every 26 months. "We are at Mars to stay," Wesley T. Huntress Jr., NASA's space science chief, said at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

LIFE ABOARD MIR DETAILED

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Despite their peppy appearances, the first Americans to live on Russia's space station Mir endured more hardships than previously thought - hardships only now being revealed. They labored in sweltering conditions for months, inhaled air with increased levels of carbon dioxide that made them woozy and put up with the constant smell of garbage. Also, they have a dangerous ignorance of the Russian escape capsules that they might have to steer home in an emergency. National Aeronautics and Space Administration Inspector General Roberta Gross described some of the problems in a letter to the chairman of the House Science Committee, Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner Jr. Her remarks come just two weeks before NASA's next shuttle flight to Mir, when a sixth American will be left on the station.

'We are aware that the Russians have successfully surmounted serious problems on the Mir," Gross wrote in a letter dated Aug. 29. "Nevertheless, ongoing problems on the Mir are occurring at a time when the Russian government may not be in a position to provide adequate financial and technical support to enable the aging space station to operate safely.

SCOTS OK CREATION OF PARLIAMENT EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) - Delivering resounding approval to creating their own Parliament, Scots embarked today on a path of home rule, stretching 290-year-old ties to England.

Thursday's vote to establish a Scottish Parliament means Scotland's nearly 4 million voters - just under 10 percent of the British electorate will take control of most of their own domestic affairs. It marks the most significant change in the United Kingdom since Irish independence in 1922.

With results counted in all 32 districts today, the vote for the Parliament was 74.2 percent in favor, with 63.4 percent supporting a separate question giving the Edinburgh body tax-raising powers. Voter turnout was 60.1

"I am absolutely delighted that the Scottish people have backed our plans," Prime Minister Tony Blair declared today.

COUPLE MAKES FEDERAL CASE OUT OF SPEEDING TICKET

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - Debra Jean Donoghue and Kurt Garrison of Wichita Falls are suing because, they say, the city has illegally prosecuted her over a traffic ticket. Their lawsuit seeks $1.665 million in damages, alleging a city judge's refusal to allow Garrison to speak on Ms. Donoghue's behalf violated her due process rights and their freedoms of speech and religion. Ms. Donoghue would not comment Thursday on the lawsuit. Federal court records show that she was given a ticket on March 18 for traveling 49 mph in a 30-mph zone.

An Air Force major, she didn't mail her fine in or go to court within 14 days so Municipal Judge Larry Gillen issued a warrant for her arrest. She said she mailed in $152 under protest at that time because she feared going to jail, not because she was guilty. She appeared in court on May 28, but refused to be sworn in or offer a plea. When Garrison, an engineer and law student, tried to speak on her behalf, Gillen refused to hear him. Instead, the judge entered an innocent plea on Ms. Donoghue's behalf and set a jury trial for June 24.

CHARTER SCHOOL BEING AUDITED AUSTIN (AP) - A proposed charter school that has received more than $240,000 from the state without opening is being audited by the Texas Education Agency before officials decide whether to revoke its contract.

The Cypress Youth Lodge Charter, proposed for East Texas' Caddo Lake, is the only one of 20 free-standing charter schools approved by the State Board of Education that isn't up and running. State-funded charter schools operate independently of local school districts, may be run by private entities and don't have to follow numerous state regulations. Charters are granted by the state to the schools.

The chief operating officer for the school's foundation, Ed Palmer, said it took the money in good faith and plans to repay it after opening.

Lawmakers demand resignation of prof Prof said some cultures accept failure

Hispanic lawmakers are demanding the resignation of a University of Texas law professor who said blacks and Mexican Americans come from cultures in which "failure is not looked upon with disgrace."

But UT officials defended the professor's constitutional right to say "even these offensive and painful words.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, is chairman of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus. He said future UT funding could be jeopardized if constitutional law professor Lino Graglia does not leave the school.

"It seems we're in an era where the Ku Klux Klan does not come in white robes but in the robes of academe," added Sen. Gregory Luna, head of the Senate Hispanic Caucus.

Graglia spoke Wednesday during the announcement of a new UT student organization that supports a federal court ruling outlawing

To remove a tenured professor, a university would have to show cause," Flawn said. "An expression of extreme views, opinions that are running contrary to those of his colleagues; those are not sufficient."

Flawn added that Graglia's opinions don't represent the school. "The university administration strongly supports diversity on our campus," he said.

Law School Dean M. Michael Sharlot said the freedom of speech race-based admissions policies in also applies to unpopular opinions.

"The First Amendment is part of the nation's heritage and brings with it the problem of protecting the right of many people to say things that are intolerable to many other people," Sharlot said. "I'm not an expert in constitutional law, but I would not think there would be any basis for disciplining Professor Graglia for

"He should not continue to represent the state of Texas or educate the future leaders of our state," Berlanga said. "We do understand First Amendment rights, but at the same time, the University of Texas must ensure that their professors are rational and competent in their classrooms and in public."

UT System Chancellor William Cunningham called Graglia's comments an affront to the entire university community.

"I strongly disagree with the comments of Professor Lino

The professor did not return a telephone call from The Associated Press Thursday.

Fifty law school faculty members issued a statement saying, "While Professor Graglia has a right to hold and express his views, we feel an obligation to express our disagreement and our deep regret for the offense to our alumni, our students and prospective students."

In 1986, former president Ronald Reagan pulled away from appointing Graglia to the U.S. 5th Court of Appeals after complaints about his remarks regarding affirmative action.

Text books mean big bucks for districts

AUSTIN (AP) - With a potential pricetag of $1.8 billion over the next six years for new school textbooks, it may be time to look instead at buying students laptops and software, State Board of Education Chairman Jack Christie says.

"We're talking big numbers there, and the price of this technology ... is coming to where it approaches that level," Christie, a Republican from Houston, said Thursday.

"Why wait for the rest of the nation? Let Texas be spearheading this and be the example for the rest of the nation.

Christie said he believes computer companies would be willing to give the state discounts and donated services for the chance to serve 4 million school children. Once the investment is made, computer software could be easily and cheaply updated, he said.

"Why wait for six, seven, eight years to update history (textbooks)? They (students) need it today," he

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Junell, however, said he has "some real reservations" about projected textbook costs and would move more cautiously in the area of high technology.

In the next two-year budget period, which will be funded by the 1999 Legislature, there is a projected $602 million cost for new textbooks in subjects including English, U.S. history, science health, math and world history.

The State Board of Education in November is scheduled to decide whether to approve a textbook money necessary to spend on what proclamation that would account for $419 million of that cost.

Education Commissioner Mike Moses said he would want to get direction from state leaders about available funds before that list is approved. The estimated textbook cost for the current two-year budget period is $361 million.

learning to students.' Senate gives Clinton testing approval

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's plan for national math and reading tests got a stamp of approval from a Senate that also handed him a big headache by cutting the Education Department's spending

By an 87-13 vote Thursday, the Senate gave the national tests the go-ahead but said they must be governed by an independent board instead of the department. But by a 51-49 vote, the Senate approved an amendment to convert several aid programs for schools into grants for local school districts.

to the administration," tion Secretary Richard W. Riley. White House spokesman Mike McCurry called the amendment "a back-door attempt to abolish the Department of Education.'

And although the Senate did approve the testing plan, an expected House vote was put off until Tuesday at the earliest. An alliance of liberals and conservatives was poised to deny funding to carry out the tests.

"Rather than spend $100 million on more tests, House Republicans and many Democrats would rather send federal dollars directly to the classroom, bolster basic academics and seek ways to increase parental involvement," said Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., the lead testing opponent and chairman of the House Education and Workforce Committee.

A group of conservative Republicans opposed the testing plan in the Senate, even though a bipartisan agreement called for having the independent National Assessment Governing Board oversee the voluntary tests of fourth-grade reading and eighth-grade math.

Some conservatives view the tests as leading the way to federal control of what children learn.

The existing board would be reworked to make it more bipartisan and the appointments less political. The narrow vote on control of about $13 billion out of $20 billion in Education Department aid to schools from Kindergarten through grade 12 was clearly partisan. The sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., said he was trying to save paperwork costs and put money in local classrooms.

"I am convinced that our school boards, teachers and parents do know more than the bureaucrats here in Washington, D.C.," about how to spend the money, Gorton said.

The money would be given to districts based on population and "This amendment is unacceptable wealth. In the case of Title I, the aid to low-income areas would be based on the number of poor children. Title I accounts for $8 billion of the $13 billion.

The overall amount currently going to a state could not be reduced,

Money for special education, more than $5 billion, would be exempt from the block-granting.

Riley said the Gorton amendment would possibly wipe out many very important programs" because the aid could no longer be targeted to special

He said bilingual education, computer technology, charter schools, vocational rehabilitation, Indian education and Goals 2000, a program to help states raise standards, could all lose money. Even money for the national tests would be eliminated.

Even Title I help could be moved from areas with the highest concentration of needy students, the department says.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said the lack of controls means the money could be spent on football uniforms or swimming pools. "There is nothing to prevent a state or town from merely reducing state support for education and spending more money for other worthy things like roads and bridges," he said.

Why Sunday School?

By REV. JEREMY GRANT First Presbyterian Church

When I was a little boy, my Sunday school teacher gave us stars on chart for learning things like the Lord's Prayer and John 3:16. Little did I know that she was helping to lay the foundation of knowledge which God would use to bring me to faith.

We sang songs occasionally in Sunday school. I can still remember many of those songs..."The B-I-B-L-E, yes that's the book for me..."
"Jesus love the little children..." "Jesus loves me, this I know..." They went with me on the playground. They carried me to sleep. They helped the time go more quickly on long road trips. Who would have thought that God's promises were becoming embedded in my heart through music in Sunday school?

In sixth grade Sunday school, where I met my future wife by the way, I had a wonderful teacher. He looked at me with such interest, such caring. He listened to me attentively. He laughed at my jokes. And, once in a while, he brought donuts! I don't remember what we studied that year. I do remember that at the church I met people who really valued me. I remember that, with his attention, I received something I hungered for.

My mother had just remarried. My step-dad had two children: one a year older than me, one a year younger. It was a big change for a boy who had been an only child for 11 years. My Sunday school teacher gave me the space to figure out who I was in God's eyes. He let me know that the folks at church loved me. More importantly, he let me know that God my Father loves me.

Finally, in high school, my Sunday school teachers introduced me to a new excitement for the Bible. In a class called "Love Letters from God," we would explore what God was telling us and how that told us of God's love for us in Jesus Christ. I had never had such fun studying the Bible. This middle-aged couple brought a fresh perspective on our study! I began to hear the Scriptures as God's very important message to me and my church today.

In short, my Sunday school years as a child and youth shaped my life in ways that I may never completely fathom. At Sunday school, I received personal attention from those who were eager to love me. I was guided in the knowledge of God and of myself, the foundation which the Holy Spirit used to draw me to faith in Jesus Christ. I was given direction for the ways in which I felt about myself, the things I did, and the way I treated Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone had such an experience? Will you make sure to bring a child or youth to Sunday school this week? Please attend your Sunday school or one of the many fine offerings in this community.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am at my wit's end about my mother. She constantly orders things from magazines in order to enter their sweepstakes and contests. Mom is almost 80 and has more unread condensed books, unopened videos, unopened cassettes and ines than she will ever use if she lives to be 100. Some magazines are on child care, pets, biking and things she has no interest

I've told Mom that the sweepstakes clearly state that you don't have to buy something to win, but she received. -- Mom in Santa Barbara feels she has a better chance if she does. Is it true that your chances of winning are the same whether you buy something or not? I'd like to convince my mother that she doesn't need to spend so much money. -- Her comforting people who are in various Daughter in Minneapolis

Dear Mpls.: A person need not buy anything to win, but buying something enhances their chances because every time they order, they get additional mailings and more chances to enter. If you never buy anything, eventually, you're off the mailing list.

For years, I've been telling my readers to stay away from these gimmicky games, and I want to repeat that advice. Their ads entice the elderly, who can least afford it, and the chances of winning are about the to know. -- Mobile, Ala., Mom same as finding that proverbial needle in a haystack.

Dear Ann Landers: I am so sick of seeing parents holding their children on their laps in the front seats of cars. I must see this at least three times a week in my neighborhood alone. It's mostly women holding babies or toddlers.

Isn't there a law against this? I'm only 16, but I know this is irresponsible and even a minor accident could get one of these children killed. Please print my letter so parents who drive like this will know how dumb it is not to put their kids in car seats or at least seat-belt them in the back. -- Worried in Southern Maryland

Dear Worried: You have a good head on those 16-year-old shoulders. I hope mothers of babies and toddlers will pay attention to what you've tailback Adrian Ervin on Thursday won back a year of eligibility lost to injuries in 1994, a decision that fortifies one of the Red Raiders' most questionable positions.

Tech tailback wins fifth year of eligibility

Ervin backed up superstar Byron Hanspard for the last two seasons. He ran for 446 yards on 60 carries in the 1995 and 96 seasons, but his NCAA eligibility expired at the end of last season. It was extended Thursday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -- A new coach for Vanderbilt, same old result for Alabama.

The 15th-ranked Crimson Tide beat Vanderbilt 20-0 Thursday night, extending its winning streak to 13 straight at the expense of Woody Widenhofer, the Commodores' third coach this decade. Alabama is 36-2 against Vandy since 1960.

Alabama (2-0 overall, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) ruined Widenhofer's chance of becoming just the second Vandy coach since World War II to win his first two games despite an offense that gained only 120 yards through three quarters.

Warren Foust blocked Joe Webb's punt in the first quarter and Steve Harris recovered at the 22. That set up Freddie Kitchens' 17-yard touchdown pass to Ed Scissum with 53.6 seconds left in the first quarter, all the points the Crimson Tide would need.

Rose suspension mulled

Rose applies for reinstatement, baseball officials said Thursday they are in no hurry to consider lifting his lifetime ban.

Rose's lawyer, Gary Spicer, met with Robert DuPuy, the lawyer for acting commissioner Bud Selig, and discussed the process baseball's career hits leader would need to follow if he wishes to lift the permanent suspension Rose agreed to in August 1989. That penalty is preventing Rose from appearing on the Hall of Fame ballot.

"It was more exploratory than preliminary," DuPuy said. "He said, essentially, 'What's the deal?' "

DuPuy said he told Spicer that if Rose had anything he wanted baseball's ruling executive council to consider, he should have Spicer give it to DuPuy, who would forward it to the council members.

A. Bartlett Giamatti sought the ban on Rose after an investigation betting. Giamatti, the baseball commissioner at time, concluded Rose bet on baseball, although no

"We discussed the current status of Pete's business and personal relationships and his desire to get back into the game," Spicer told the Cincinnati Post of his conversation with DuPuy. "We reviewed the present state of the leadership of the game. We also discussed the current procedure and what information baseball would like to review. I think Pete would very much like to be employed within the game. And everyone acknowledges he has a great deal to offer."

Baseball officials, speaking on the condition they not be identified, said they have no urgency to deal with Rose, who was manager of the Cincinnati Reds at the time he agreed to the ban. None of the 14 other people given lifetime bans ever were

Baseball's investigator, John Dowd, concluded Rose bet $2,000 per game on his Reds and other baseball teams during the summer of 1987. The following April, Rose pleaded guilty to two counts of filing false incomes taxes by failing to report $354,968 in income from autograph appearances, memorabilia sales and gambling. He repaid the IRS at least $366,000 in back taxes, interest and penalties, and served five months at a federal prison in Marion, Ill. Rose then spent three months in a halfway house and performed 1,000 hours of community service.

Not having a commissioner makes reinstatement more difficult for Rose. The Major League Agreement gives the commissioner power to reinstate players. In the absence of a commissioner, the power goes to the executive council, which currently league game," Toledo said, having done his homework to find some positives amid the gloom.

"This season is not over, and we weren't playing Sisters of the Poor in our first two games. Sometimes, when you get so close and you had it in your grasp, it's tougher."

In UCLA's loss to Washington State, the Bruins went for it and failed on fourth down at the Cougars' 1 late in the game rather than kick a field goal and force overtime. Toledo used the next week of practice to chew out his team.

In the wake of the Bruins' loss to Tennessee, in which UCLA failed on a fourth-and-3 pass play at the Volunteers' 20 with 27 seconds to go, Toledo said he would "be the upbeat guy" in preparation for Texas.

While dismissing the notion of a moral victory following the Tennessee game, Toledo said he isn't worried about the morale of his team which rallied from a 27-6 deficit at the beginning of the fourth quarter against the Volunteers.

Toledo said. "It hurts. I'm in pain, and I don't like it. But I'm not going to let them get down.'

he will prepare his team with the notion that UCLA could just as easily

Grapevine for 11 years before becoming Hertiage's first coach last year. "Our kids have put in countless hours training in the offseason, and I think that's the reason for the turnaround."

Azle, though, went into the opener keying only on Redmon. For much of the game, nine Azle defenders were committed to stopping him.
The strategy backfired as Heritage threw for two touchdowns against the two-man secondary. Consider wider passing lanes another benefit that comes with having someone like Redmon.

The 6-foot, 175-pound senior still had his moments, such as carrying the ball on all five plays of a 43-yard scoring drive, capping it with an 18-yard touchdown run.

He finished with 139 yards rushing (the first 100-yard game in school history), 47 yards receiving and 37 return yards, most of it on a blocked field goal that nearly set up another

"He was able to find the holes that the offensive line made," Carmichael said. "With our scheme, if we can get our bodies on their bodies, he can make things happen.

Redmon made a lot happen for Grapevine last year, rushing for 941 yards and gaining another 490 on receptions in seven regular-seasongames. He then had another 962 yards and 11 touchdowns in five playoff games, including 239 yards and two scores in the 34-19 championship victory over Hays Consolidated.

After Redmon's transfer, it would've been easy for him to walk into Carmichael's office expecting the coach to kiss his cleats. Instead, he has been nothing but humble.

"He's really special in that regard," Carmichael said. "He never gave off the attitude he was going to be our savior and turn our program around. He's basically blended in. He has really become a part of what we're doing here."

The problem with penalties is one with which Yenzer can relate. His Whitefaces were flagged nine times last week against Amarillo Tascosa in a 6-0 loss to the Rebels.

We're getting better," Yenzer said. "We've worked hard this week at putting the kids under pressure. And with the added pressure they've handled it well."

Yenzer now hopes it will translate to fewer mental mistakes during game situations.

"All the penalties, those are mental mistakes," he said. "You're going to make more earlier in the year, and when you're young, you're going to make even more. . . . We're still young, kind of like Hereford."

But both teams have the opposing coach approaching this game with apprehension.

"Hereford scares us," said Culwell. They've always had a good passing attack (and) a good scheme. Against Hereford, you have to defend the whole field. It's not like against Plainview last week, where they were primarily a running team."

Ditto for Yenzer.

"They could really cause us some problems," he said. "(Offensively), they shift, then they'll motion back off of it. They gain an advantage if you don't adjust. They've got the athletes to hurt you if you don't,"

One of those athletes is C.C. Combs, one of three returning starters in the Dons' backfield. In 1996, selection in District 3-5A, rushing for 1,018 yards on 200 carries and scoring five touchdowns.

"He's a fine athlete," said Yenzer. "Definitely. He's certainly very concering to us.

Our offense is based around our tailback, C.C. Combs," said Culwell. But we have to be able to throw the ball to run. We try to look complicated, but really we're very simple in what we're doing."

Combs is not the only player to worry Yenzer and his staff. Another of those returning starters in the offensive backfield is quarterback Aaron Lewis.

Lewis runs the I-formation attack for Culwell and last year he averaged more than 100 yards per game through the air, tossing nine touchdowns against only four interceptions.

Aaron Lewis has been starting since he was a sophomore," Yenzer said. 'His scrambling ability, his passing ability really concern me.

Lewis isn't the only quarterback in the game that has the opposing coaching staff concerned. The other is Hereford's Jeremy Urbanczyk.

We need to stop their tailback," Culwell said. "But we can't ignore their quarterback. He can hurt you. We need to pressure Urbanczyk; we need to stop Stopping opponents hasn't presented much of a problem for either the Whitefaces or the Dons. Palo Duro surrendered only 269 yards and 13 points in their loss to Plainview; Hereford is averaging 204.5 yards per game in total defense.

Stopping the big play is a whole other matter.

"Defensively, we did a pretty good Combs was a second-team all-district job stopping the run last week," Culwell said. "Except for two big plays. Those two plays hurt us."

Welcome to the Whitefaces' world. Being hurt by the big play is a recurring theme for this year's Herd. Three plays in two games may be what separates the Whitefaces from being 2-0 instead of 0-2. Both coaches say injuries shouldn't present a major problem. Yenzer reports Jay Wilson, a backup senior defensive end, will probably be missed the most.

"Losing him definitely hurts us depth-wise," said Yenzer. Wilson tore an anterior cruciate ligament and will be sidelined indefinitely.

Also scratched from the game is junior defensive tackle Abram Hill, who is still recovering from an appendectomy.

Listed as doubtful are Ulysis Tabares and Roger Gaitan.

Culwell says the Dons have some minor nagging minor injuries, but also doesn't forsee them having a major impact on the outcome of the game. One other similarity -- both coaches their programs are headed.

'We feel like we're better.' Culwell said. "We have better athletes, a better work ethic. Like Hereford, I think we're on the verge of being a solid team."

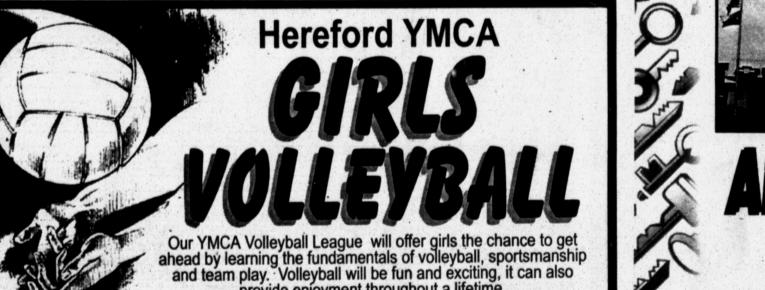

Ditto for Yenzer.

"I tried to impress upon the kids they've done everything they've needed to do this week," he said. "We had probably the best three days of practices this year this week. Now it's time to transform it to under the lights Friday night.

... It's a big game for both of our programs," Yenzer said. "You want to deep on climbing the ladder one step at time."

Molinari's making the switch from Congress to television

By DAVID BAUDER AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Thwack! In her previous line of work, no one would think of tweaking Susan Molinari right between the eyes with their fingers.

The former congresswoman is in television now, and the rules are different. Training for her debut as a morning show host, consultants tell her that whenever she's nervous, the tension is obvious in her eyebrows. So, thwack! Every once in a while she gets a reminder.

Relax.

Results of that training go on display this weekend with the debut of "CBS News Saturday Morning." The new show is sandwiched between cartoons at either 8 a.m. or 9 a.m., depending on local affiliates.

8 a.m. or 9 a.m., depending on local affiliates.

The transition from Republican rising star to television personality will then be complete for Molinari, but it's the first time the public will have a chance to see her in this role. In a sense, it's Election Day every week now.

Molinari and her co-host, Russ Mitchell, will introduce each other Saturday by profiling the other. Molinari was sent to St. Louis, while Mitchell made a pilgrimage to meet Guy Molinari, political boss and borough president.

"He's going out to Staten Island to meet my dad, Guy-tano," Molinari says in an exaggerated Italian accent, teasing Mitchell over lunch in, appropriately enough, an Italian restaurant in Manhattan.

Her father sat proudly in the audience last May, waiting for his daughter to announce her job switch from Congress to TV, then watched Susan get raked over the coals in an atmosphere as hostile as any political news conference.

Susan Molinari still feels burned by the criticism that accompanied her decision. The dividing line between politics and the media has been blurry for years now, but this seemed extreme: Someone with no journalism experience was leaving office directly for a job at broadcasting's most hallowed news division.

"It was surprising," she says, "because so many people were saying, 'Susan can't possibly be a co-anchor of the news, because she is going to be biased,' and therefore we are going to biasedly say that she can't possibly be co-anchor of the news before they ever saw me do it.

"I found a substantial amount of the journalistic community who made that attack being very guilty of what they were fearing I would do," she says.

She understands the skepticism, but makes one request: "Develop a wait-and-see attitude and give me time to practice."

And practice is what she's been doing since resigning from Congress on Aug. 1. She went to Texas for work with a television personal trainer, and has been doing daily run-throughs of the show for the past two weeks.

Molinari is no stranger to television; her appearances were so frequent on the morning "CNN & Co." - Molinari gives it a profane nickname we won't repeatit seemed like she worked there.

Learning to guide a show as host, to react to breaking news and shut up a long-winded interview subject, is much more difficult.

Molinari and Mitchell will do cooking segments, give their own opinions on books and movies and interview entertainers. The show will have medical and personal finance segments, sports, fitness and an in-depth look at the week's top news story.

"We'll use the rhythms of a Saturday morning," she promises.

It won't break the mold used by CBS's competitors, the weekend "Today" program, or similar morning news programs. Making the public comfortable with Molinari and Mitchell is more important, executive producer Hal Gessner said.

"If you can find the anchors that people find interesting, then you have an edge," he said. "Our challenge is to find a way to do those typical kinds of packages in a less insipid way than they usually get done."

Molinari's been leaning on her more experienced colleagues. Mitchell has anchored the CBS Sunday night news and worked as a Washington correspondent; Gessner won two Emmy Awards for his work on CBS's "Face to Face" and ABC's "Day One."

She can teach them how to deal with politicians who refuse to answer questions, "because I've done that."

"I'm very good at not answering the question," she says. "Every politician, and every journalist who's in television knows the game you play - your job is to answer the question you want to answer. A better journalist can sometime wear down a politician to get to the real truth."

Now she'll see if she's as good at the journalism side of tough questions as she was at the political side.

DEADBEAT PARENTS MAY LOSE LICENSES

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Deadbeat parents might as well hand over their car keys in Nebraska: A new law gives the state power to suspend the driver's licenses of parents who fall behind on paying child support.

Recreational and professional licenses - for anything from fishing and hunting to cutting hair and practicing law - also could be yanked under the law, which takes effect Saturday.

It allows the state to suspend the licenses of parents who are at least 90 days behind on paying child support and who refuse to enter into a payment

It will be at least January, though, before regulations are adopted and the Department of Health and Human Services is ready to begin suspending licenses. It is estimated that more than $323 million is owed in past due child support in Nebraska.

Recreational licenses will be exempt initially, partly because of the daunting task it would create to search records manually to find out if a delinquent parent has a hunting or fishing license.

"ANTI-ESTROGEN" LACKS BAD SIDE EFFECTS

CINCINNATI (AP) - A study indicates that a new drug may help aging women who would benefit from estrogen, but are fearful of taking supplements of the hormone because of side effects.

The drug, an "anti-estrogen" called raloxifene, works in a manner similar to estrogen by helping increase bone mass and reduce blood cholesterol levels, said Dr. Edward Lufkin, lead author of the study.

But unlike estrogen, it avoids certain side effects such as stimulation of the uterus and breasts. Uterine bleeding was avoided and it did not cause any breast soreness," he said Thursday.

The study did not indicate what effect the drug might have on breast cancer. There has been no proof that estrogen treatment causes breast cancer, although many women fear that it does.

Lufkin, of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., presented the findings at the annual meeting of the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research. Estrogen is a natural reproductive hormone that helps keep women's hearts and bones strong. After menopause, when the body produces less estrogen, women sometimes take supplements to fight menopausal hot flashes and to prevent heart disease and bone-thinning osteoporosis.

BOSNIA SERBS END BOYCOTT

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - The Serb member of Bosnia's joint presidency ended a two-month boycott of its meetings today, showing up for a session in Muslim-dominated Sarajevo.

Momcilo Krajisnik, who is also top aide to No. 1 war crimes suspect Radovan Karadzic, had refused to attend meetings with his Muslim and Croat counterparts ever since July 10, when British troops killed one Serb war crimes suspect and arrested another.

His appearance today was the latest in a series of turnabouts by Bosnian hard-liners in recent days, following intense diplomatic pressure on them and on their patrons in Serbia and Croatia.

Krajisnik, though not indicted by the U.N. war crimes tribunal, had previously said he feared arrest if he came to Sarajevo. Krajisnik played almost as big a part in the Serbs' war effort as Karadzic, the Bosnian Serb wartime leader.

PRIVACY GUIDELINES PROPOSED BY CLINTON

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration's proposed rules to safeguard the privacy of health records are a victory for law enforcement. Police access to health records, which varies by state, would not change

The administration's proposal, presented Thursday, would bar use of health records without a patient's permission unless it were for a health purpose. There also are exceptions for the public good: to ferret out health fraud, look for public health threats and conduct academic research.

"Our recommendations represent tough choices and difficult tradeoffs," Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala told the Senate Labor and Human Relations Committee.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., who has introduced his own, stricter privacy legislation, objected. "Today's recommendations ... would allow any police officer to walk into a doctor's office and demand to see the medical records of their patients," he said.

BERGER: WHITE HOUSE RARELY CHECKED ON VISITORS WASHINGTON (AP) - During the last campaign, the White House checked infrequently with national security aides about foreign visitors who met with President Clinton and Vice President Gore, the president's national security adviser told a Senate committee New procedures are in place that require intelligence checks with the State Department and CIA before foreign visitors are admitted to the White House, Samuel R. Berger told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee on Thursday. Clinton insisted on tightening the controls, he said. The failure to check the background of a Chinese arms merchant, a Russian businessman with alleged mob ties and other visitors - admitted at the request of Democratic Party officials - never influenced foreign policy, Berger

At a closed-door briefing after the hearing, Attorney General Janet Reno and the directors of three intelligence agencies updated committee members on their investigations into whether the Chinese government sought to influence last year's election through donations to party organizations and candidates.

NEW DIANA BOOKS HIT STORES

LONDON (AP) - Cash registers will ring this week when new books about Princess Diana hit the stores.

At least 20 Diana projects - some new, some rewrites of old books are reportedly in the works. One of the first new books will be "Diana Princess of Wales," by former royal reporter Tom Corby, was to be published Publishers and booksellers insisted Wednesday they are not taking advantage of tragedy. The chain Books Etc. will give 20 percent of all Diana book receipts - roughly half of the profit margin - to charity.

ESPY ENTERS NOT-GUILTY PLEA

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, saying he is eager for trial, pleaded innocent to charges of accepting $35,000 worth of sports tickets, travel and lodging from companies his department regulated. 'Through this trial, the public will now hear my side of the story,"

Espy said Wednesday after entering his plea in federal court. Sixteen of the 39 counts against him involve Arkansas-based Tyson Foods Co., the nation's largest poultry processor. The trial of Espy, who now practices law in Jackson, Miss., probably will not start until next year.

GATEWAY 2000 BIDDING FOR BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP) - Gateway 2000 Inc., a big, mail-order seller of consumer computers, is aggressivly grabbing for business customers by offering a full line of machines that run computer networks.

Gateway unveiled its server computers as well as new business desktop computers Wednesday amid slowing consumer demand for its flagship PCs. Last week, Gateway warned of disappointing third-quarter profits. Based in North Sioux City, S.D., Gateway may be battling uphill in a business-computer market dominated by the biggest names in computing, MIAMI (AP) - American Airlines plans to hire more minorities and boost donations to Hispanic causes after a boycott threat over a company manual that depicted Hispanics as often drunken and unruly.

In an agreement announced Tuesday with the National Council of La Raza, American said it had made a commitment for "full employment parity, at all levels of the corporation, for all minorities, including Latinos."

The airline also agreed to donate air travel to community and youth groups as part of its increased philanthropy to Hispanic groups. It restated plans to review all company manuals and remove offensive references to minority

Mourners queue up for last time

CALCUTTA, India (AP) - For many, today was the last day to be close to Mother Teresa, to touch a flower to the glass coffin or to gaze at the peaceful face of a woman who had reached out to the powerful and to the poor.

Hundreds lined up despite the pouring rain today to see her lying in state at St. Thomas' Church. On Saturday, she will be buried after a state funeral attended by presidents, prime ministers and cardinals, as well as the poor and sick for whom she worked.

Viewing hours were extended for an hour to handle the crowds, but police still had to turn away hundreds of mourners at 4 p.m. Scores of the The Telegraph newspaper. "I never disappointed stormed a police barrier guessed at the time that she would be dissuaded them without any violence.

While mourners lined up outside, Mother Teresa's chosen successor, Sister Nirmala, held her first news conference outside the room that will be the famous nun's tomb.

Mother Teresa's closest relative, blue-trimmed white sari. niece Agi Bojaxhiu, and Italian President Oscar Luigi Scalfaro were among those visiting St. Thomas' today. Bojaxhiu, who grew up in Italy, first met her late father's sister-30 years ago.

"The first meeting was very moving," Bojaxhiu told Calcutta's

WORKER: TEXAS FEARED LOSING TOBACCO REVENUE AUSTIN (AP) - A worker deposed in Texas' lawsuit against tobacco companies says state leaders decided in 1990 not to discourage smoking because they were struggling with the budget and feared losing cigarette tax revenue. The Austin American-Statesman reported today that state revenue estimator Tamara Plaut said in an April 10 deposition that legislators opposed a move in Congress to increase the federal excise tax on cigarettes. "In terms of policy decisions about cigarette smoking going down, they (legislators) didn't care at all," Ms. Plaut said in the deposition. "All they cared about was getting enough money to fund the school finance proposals they were considering at the time.' Plaut also testified, however, that the decision had less to do with smoking than making the state budget work. "There were considerable budget pressures," she said. "This was not a policy decision; it was a money decision."

CHURCH TO APPEAL ORDER TO RETURN TITHES HOUSTON (AP) - A judge ordered a Baytown church to return $23,000 in tithes from a legally bankrupt member, after a company sued the church to recover debts the member owed the firm.

County Civil Court Judge Tom Sullivan issued a trial verdict Wednesday for Cedar Bayou Baptist Church to surrender offering plate donations from member Leland Collins.

They are to be paid to the Houston air conditioning company of Gregory-Edwards Inc.

Church attorney Don Knabeschuh said church officials are committed to a full appeal of the judge's verdict - and will appeal all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

He said the ruling and the state's creditor law violate the First Amendment freedom to exercise religion.

U.S., MEXICO ISSUE WARNING ON GUNS

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) - U.S. and Mexican officials are warning Americans that illegally carrying firearms across the border could result in stiff penalties.

At least 21 U.S. citizens have been arrested this year in Matamoros and other nearby border cities for illegally carrying guns or ammunition, U.S. Consul George Kopf said at a news conference Thursday.

Mexican authorities arrested the same number of people during the first eight months of 1996, Kopf said.

"It shows it's an ongoing problem," he said.

Kopf was joined by the Mexican consuls in McAllen and Brownsville, Texas, in urging Americans to keep their guns at home before crossing the border. Prison sentences for possession of firearms in Mexico can be as long as 30 years, officials said.

LAKE TEXOMA MARINA OWNERS INDICTED

DALLAS (AP) - A federal grand jury has indicted the operators of a well-known Lake Texoma marina, accusing them of 32 counts of tax fraud, insurance fraud and other offenses.

Thursday's indictment named C.D. Loe Jr.; his wife, Babo Loe; their son, Blume Loe; Andrew Scott Howard; and Roger Benton Foltz. The Loe family has operated Loe's Highport Marina, on the lake's southern shore near Pottsboro since 1945.

Mike Bradford, the U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Texas, said some of the charges stem from an alleged insurance fraud, and others concern rent owed the Army Corps of Engineers, which oversees operations at the artificial lake.

AIRLINE BLAMED FOR COLOMBIA CRASH

MIAMI (AP) - Survivors and relatives of the passengers killed in the crash of an American Airlines jet in Colombia had prepared for a monthlong trial, seeking to pin blame on the airline for the 1995 accident that killed 159.

Instead, U.S. District Judge Stanley Marcus on Thursday found the airline guilty of willful misconduct after only four days of arguments, removing the airline's liability limits and canceling a trial. Marcus said that no reasonable jury could find otherwise.

'I think the truth won in the end," said Mauricio Reyes, one of four survivors of the crash and now a 21-year-old University of Miami junior.

"We haven't been able to go on with our lives because of this." The airline immediately said it would appeal the ruling. If it stands, it means survivors and relatives can seek damages above a $75,000 limit. One lawsuit seeks $1 billion.

News Digest

"Simply put, no reasonable jury could find that acts of the pilots of Flight 965 - and in particular the pilots's decision to continue their descent at night from a grievously off-course position in mountainous terrain amounted to anything less than willful misconduct," Marcus wrote in his 118-page ruling, known as a summary judgment.

The Boeing 757, en route from Miami to Cali on Dec. 20, 1995, strayed from the planned path and flew into a mountain.

"Neither the airline nor our flight crew intentionally took action that resulted in the accident," the airline said in a statement.

Colombian investigators said pilots entered the wrong codes in a flight computer, which took the plane off course, and failed to notice the error as they descended. The pilots also died in the crash.

American, which is based in Fort Worth, Texas, claims the flight computer was defective and is suing the companies that made and programmed it, Honeywell Air Transport Systems of Phoenix and Jeppesen Sanderson Inc. of Englewood, Colo.

LUNG ASSOCIATION AWARDS "PHLEMMYS"

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - "Seinfeld's" Kramer gets booted from a restaurant for lighting up, then throws a smoking soirce at his apartment. On "Cybill," Cybill Shepherd fires up a stogie during a poker game with the boys. Dennis Franz befriends a suspect on "NYPD Blue" with an offer of a cigarette. The performances may have helped the shows earn Emmy nominations, but the American Lung Association is furning to see TV role models glamorizing tobacco use.

The association bestowed its second annual Phlemmy Awards on the three series Thursday.

The Emmy week event also honors shows that put tobacco "in its true light" - issuing Pink Lung awards to "Chicago Hope," "Touched by an Angel" and "Spin City."

You don't want to be a Phlemmy winner," association president Donald Clark said. "TV stars are some of our children's role models, and when they smoke, it just encourages young people to use tobacco."

The group gave a special "dishonorable mention" to three NBC comedies "Suddenly Susan," "Seinfeld" and "Friends" - whose female leads joined the latest Hollywood fad of smoking cigars.

MEXICO OFFERS TO TAKE CONDEMNED KILLER

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Mexico has offered Gov. George Allen a deal: Spare Mario Benjamin Murphy's life, and the Mexican government will find a place for the convicted hit man in one of its prisons.

Murphy, a Mexican citizen, is scheduled to die by injection Wednesday night for the 1991 contract killing of a Virginia Beach man. The Mexican government on Thursday filed a clemency petition with Allen and offered to imprison Murphy for a mutually satisfactory term if the governor calls off the execution.

'Happily, my government is in a position to shoulder whatever small risk might be entailed by commutation of Mr. Murphy's sentence," Angel Curria, Mexico's foreign affairs secretary, wrote in a letter to Allen. Murphy's lawyers also have asked Allen for clemency and appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. They claim Virginia officials denied Murphy the right to contact the Mexican consulate after his arrest as required by Mark Christie, the governor's lawyer, said Allen will carefully consider Mexico's petition.

Mexican officials and Murphy's lawyers also have asked the State Department to counsel Allen on the international ramifications of allowing the execution to proceed.

YELTSIN CRACKS DOWN ON MOONSHINING

MOSCOW (AP) - Russians will keep drinking a lot of vodka until their lives improve dramatically, President Boris Yeltsin said today as he launched a new crackdown on illegal alcohol production.

"If the people would have good jobs, high wages and an optimistic view of the future, they will have no reason to drink, or rather, to drink hard and turn into drunkards," Yeltsin said in a radio address.

Yeltsin did not mention his own drinking habits, which his former chief bodyguard described in a recent memoir. In the book, Alexander Korzhakov said he routinely watered down Yeltsin's vodka to save the president from drinking himself to total ruin.

The main problem with alcohol in Russia, Yeltsin said, was that people were buying too much moonshine thereby leaving the government short Yeltsin noted that according to official figures, alcohol production dropped sharply last year. Drinkers have simply switched to cheaper booze produced illegally or smuggled into the country.

Birth rate not affected by law

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - Four years after New Jersey became the first state to cut off additional aid to welfare mothers who continue to have babies, a new study indicates that the law has had no effect on birth rates among such women.

In preliminary findings completed more than a year ago and released Thursday, Rutgers University researchers said the birth rate declined almost identically among two groups of welfare mothers - those who were denied benefits for additional children and those who were not.

Human Services Commissioner William Waldman, whose agency paid for the research, said Thursday his gut feeling is that the "personal responsibility" message is reaching welfare recipients.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints: --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

-- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condi-

-- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

JOHN GOTTI

MIAMI (AP) - John Gotti doodles and the poor people of South Florida

The man once regarded as one of the nation's most powerful mobsters drew the head of a roaring lion while in solitary confinement at a federal prison in Marion, Ill., where he's serving a life sentence for murder and

The drawing will go up for auction Oct. 25, along with several other sketches, in the Seventh Annual Celebrity Doodle Art Auction.

"This is one of the best in seven years," Elizabeth Alexakis, the auction program's development officer, said Wednesday. "Gotti has so much detail. It's amazing.' Other celebrity artists include Muhammad Ali, Wilt Chamberlain, Cher,

Clint Eastwood, Bob Hope, Steve Martin, Grace Slick and John Travolta. Work by Manuel Noriega, Panama's former dictator who is serving a 40-year prison sentence for drug trafficking, is also among them.

Auction proceeds will go to a Miami-based food bank that distributes more than 1 million pounds of food to charity.

Names in the news

BILL GATES

MEDINA, Wash. (AP) - Seven years after construction began, Microsoft chairman Bill Gates and his family finally will settle into their new 40,000-square-foot waterfront home.

Microsoft spokesman John Pinette said Thursday that Gates, his wife, Melinda, and their 1-year-old daughter, Jennifer Katherine, are moving into the house this week. The mansion on Lake Washington, just east of Seattle, reportedly has cost Gates more than $50 million.

"Construction is going to continue on the house in some areas that aren't completely finished, and we expect that to be all done by the end of the year," Pinette said.

Workers still are installing some of the high-tech equipment Gates talked about in his book "The Road Ahead," Pinette said. For example, residents can wear "pins" that signal their location within the house, so heating, lighting and other comforts are automatically set to their tastes.

Among other things, the partially underground mansion features a 60-foot pool, a sauna, a 1,700-square-foot guest house, a trampoline room, a 20-seat theater, an arcade, a 24-screen video wall, a sport court, two spas and a reception hall for 100 people.

NEW YORK (AP) - Dan Aykroyd doesn't want to compete with all the cooing over the Buchman baby.

ABC says it is switching Aykroyd's comedy "Soul Man" to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays for the first month of the television season. It was scheduled for 8 p.m., directly competing with NBC's "Mad About You."

"We're giving this pivotal series the luxury to recapture its audience without intense premiere competition," ABC Entertainment President

Lost in the shuffle, at least for a month, is the new comedy "Over the Top." The show, starring Tim Curry and Annie Potts, will begin airing at 8:30 p.m. on Oct. 21. The month's delay may not be a good sign for its longevity, but Tarses said the extra promotional time will give the series a better chance to succeed.

ABC will air episodes of "Drew Carey" or "Home Improvement" in the 8 p.m. time slot for four Tuesdays.

MICHAEL DÓUGLAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Michael Douglas' hand and foot prints joined those of his father's in the courtyard of Mann's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood. "I'm very touched to think that Michael's footprints will be alongside of mine," Kirk Douglas said at a ceremony Wednesday. "I think his footprints should be much bigger than mine."

Actors Jack Nicholson, star of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," co-produced by Michael Douglas, and Karl Malden, who starred opposite Douglas in the 1970s TV series, "The Streets of San Francisco," also were

Family members, including brothers Joel, Peter and Eric, and mother Diana, cheered Douglas, who won a best actor Oscar in 1988 for his role in "Wall Street."

"It's a very special moment, Dad. And the truth is that you set the standard, and I'm so proud of being able to share this with you," Douglas said. DOLLY PARTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Dolly Parton's voice will have a prominent role in an upcoming holiday animated tale, a project that tugs at the singer's

"Annabelle's Wish," based on the farm legend about a lovable calf born on Christmas Eve and through a selfless wish brings holiday magic to a little boy, benefits the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"I was brought up in a poor mountain family of 12 children. Needless to say, we didn't have money to purchase expensive gifts," said Miss Parton, who sings "Something Bigger Than Me" and "Silent Night" in the movie.

"The one thing we did always have for Christmas, and year round, was plenty of love. We knew we would always make it with love because we also had faith that God was looking out for us;" she said. "I have always believed in something bigger than me. That's why the song by that title is so very special to me.'

'Annabelle's Wish," which will be broadcast on Fox Nov. 30, will be released on home video Oct. 21. The soundtrack released on that date also features the voices of Randy Travis, Alison Krauss, Beth Nielsen Chapman and Kevin Sharp.

WALTER CRONKITE

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) - Chalk up another honor for Walter Cronkite. The journalist will receive the U.S. Military Academy's Thayer Award, which is presented annually to an outstanding citizen whose service and accomplishments exemplify the academy motto, "Duty, Honor, Country." Cronkite, a CBS newsman for 47 years, is scheduled to receive the award

He came to be considered "the most trusted man in America" during his 19 years as anchorman of the "CBS Evening News," and his success did not end after leaving the anchor's chair in 1981. He covered CBS Reports' "Children of Apartheid" in 1987, winning an Emmy as well as the Overseas Press Club Edward R. Murrow Award for outstanding documentary. Past recipients of the Thayer Award include Dwight Eisenhower, Bob Hope, Billy Graham, Clare Boothe Luce, Ronald Reagan, George Shultz, Cyrus Vance, George Bush, Douglas MacArthur and Barbara Jordan. The Thayer Award is named in honor of Col. Sylvanus Thayer, who served as superintendent of the military academy from 1817 to 1833.

MICHAEL JACKSON

NEW YORK (AP) - Michael Jackson said he sold pictures of his baby to tabloid newspapers for millions of dollars to set the record straight. 'There were some illegal pictures out ... someone had taken pictures of a baby for millions of dollars and said here's Michael's son," Jackson said in an interview with Barbara Walters that was to air tonight on ABC's They weren't really his son, Prince Michael Jackson, born Feb. 13 in Los Angeles, Jackson said.

"So I took pictures of the baby ... they're forcing me," Jackson said of his decision to sell the pictures to the National Enquirer for $2 million and to European newspapers for a reported $1 million, even though he has pleaded for his privacy.

Jackson said he gave the money to charity.

CHARLTON HESTON

WASHINGTON (AP) - Charlton Heston turned the tables on reporters in defending the constitutional right to bear arms.

The 72-year-old actor, a newly elected first vice president of the National Rifle Association, said the Second Amendment - which guarantees the right to keep and bear arms - is under attack from many in the news media, who often invoke the First Amendment guarantee of free speech. 'The Second Amendment must be considered more essential than the First Amendment," he told the National Press Club Thursday. "This may be a bitter pill to swallow." Heston urged more media balance in reporting on gun issues.

"There can be no free speech ... without the Second Amendment to fight for it," he said. OKSANA BAIUL

SIMSBURY, Conn. (AP) - Oksana Baiul is selling her house in the Connecticut foothills community that has become home to a handful of fellow Ukrainian figure skaters.

It was unclear Wednesday whether Baiul, who at 16 won the gold medal in figure skating at the 1994 Olympic Games in Lillehammer, Norway, was moving away from Simsbury for good. She once said the area reminded her of her Ukrainian homeland. But several months after she crashed her car in a drunken-driving wreck in January, Baiul said she would like to move to New York City. The skater moved to Simsbury shortly after the 1994 games. She soon was followed by other Russian skaters, including Viktor and Nina Petrenko, and Ekaterina Gordeeva, who remains in town raising her daughter after the 1995 death of her husband and former skating partner Sergei Grinkov.

KEVIN SORBO LOS ANGELES (AP) - Muscle man Kevin Sorbo, star of the new movie "Kull the Conqueror," was hospitalized for an aneurysm in his left shoulder.

Sorbo, the 38-year-old star of TV's "Hercules: The Legendary Journeys," was treated with medicine and released Wednesday from Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. He had been at the hospital since Sept. 5.

Sorbo's day shooting "Hercules" is typically 12-16 hours, much of it running, jumping, fighting and falling. He does many of the stunts. After a day on the set, he spends 90 minutes working out, then goes for a run.
