KEY LAWMAKERS MAKE PITCH TO REIN IN IRS WASHINGTON (AP) - Two key Republicans leading the legislative fight to rein in the Internal Revenue Service made another pitch for the bill today, promising it would finally make the agency work for the taxpayer, rather than the other way around. 'The time has come to get the IRS off the backs of the American people,"

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Bill Archer, R-Texas, said in the GOP's weekly radio address. The comments came a day after fellow congressional Republicans kicked off a national tour to build grass-roots support for abolishing the current income tax system Archer said the IRS overhaul bill would expand the rights of taxpayers and assign new people to run the agency. While it will not get rid of the IRS completely, it will help deal with the agency until the country finds a better way of handling federal taxes, he said.

Also appearing on the broadcast, Rep. Rob Portman, R-Ohio, said the bill will put "new people in charge who will hold the IRS" feet to the fire and ensure that this powerful agency begins to work for the taxpayer."

CLINTON FIRM AGAINST LAND-MINE BAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The awarding of the Nobel Peace prize to a group advocating a land mine-banning treaty has not swayed President Clinton's opposition to an immediate ban on mines. 'The president is absolutely rock-solid confident that he's got the right approach," White House press secretary Mike McCurry said when asked if the award given Friday to American Jody Williams and her International Campaign to Ban Landmines might change Clinton's mind.

McCurry said the administration continues to believe a treaty must provide some exceptions - including allowances for the use of certain land mines on the Korean Peninsula - to protect U.S. troops.

NTSB SETS HEARINGS ON TWA 800 DISASTER

WASHINGTON (AP) - The TWA Flight 800 disaster will be examined at December hearings by the National Transportation Safety Board in Baltimore.

"This hearing will provide the public with an opportunity to hear firsthand about the exhaustive scientific testing the safety board and others have undertaken to find the cause of this tragedy," board Chairman Jim Hall said Friday.

The hearing opens Dec. 8 at the Baltimore Convention Center and is expected to last five days.

TWA Flight 800 exploded July 17, 1996, shortly after taking off from New York's Kennedy International Airport en route to Paris. All 230 people aboard the Boeing 747 died.

The NTSB and the FBI have conducted parallel investigations of the disaster, the most extensive such inquiry in the nation's history. Investigators say the blast was caused by an explosion in the plane's center fuel tank, but the trigger for that explosion remains undetermined.

Mechanical problems, a bomb and even the possibility of a missile have been studied, but no hard evidence has been produced to rule out any of the three.

CONSERVATIVES PLEDGE TO OVERRIDE VETO

WASHINGTON (AP) - Conservatives are mobilizing for what one activist calls the "mother of all veto-override battles" following President Clinton's latest rejection of a ban on a type of late-term abortion.

One Republican lawmaker said Clinton had earned the title "Abortion

Clinton, who signed the veto papers privately and without fanfare Friday, chastised Congress for ignoring his oft-stated demand that the partial-delivery procedure be allowed in cases where a woman's health was endangered.

'As a result of this congressional indifference to women's health, I cannot in good conscience ... sign this legislation," the president said in his veto message to the House.

Clinton acknowledged that the procedure "appears inhumane." But he said that "to eliminate it without taking into consideration the rare and tragic circumstances in which its use may be necessary would be even more inhumane.'

CLINTON LAUDS ANTI-DRUG CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton called attention today to a planned high-profile media campaign to hammer home to children that 'drugs are wrong, drugs are illegal and drugs can kill you.

Images are important, said Clinton, who criticized messages being spread "too often" by the entertainment industry, "warped images of a dream world where drugs are cool."

To combat that, he said in his weekly radio address, a spending bill he signed Friday contains $195 million for "an unprecedented, high-profile, prime-time media campaign to reach every child in America between the ages of 9 and 17 at least four times a week." He urged business leaders across America to match the funds to expand the program

Clinton, who has been accused by Republicans of failing to pay enough attention to America's drug problem, said, "Of all the investments we can make in our children's future, none is more important than our fight against the greatest threat to their safety - illegal drugs.'

WorkSmart a team effort

By DONALD M. COOPER Brand Editor

What Gary Phipps does now can help keep people from having to end up at the place where he used to work.

Phipps, who is director of the Hereford Regional Medical Center's WorkSmart program, is a former funeral director at Rix and Gilliland-Watson funeral homes.

As director of the WorkSmart program, Phipps spends his days conducting safety training sessions, wellness clinics, and other sessions that are designed to help keep people on the job - and out of the hospital or funeral parlors.

Phipps has been director of WorkSmart since December 1994, taking over from the program's first director, Mark Collier.

Collier, who now is a member of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District's board of directors had resigned to accept a similar position in Amarillo.

The program was initiated as an industrial occupation program, assisting companies achieve compliance with federal workplace guidelines, particularly those administrered by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The three-person WorkSmart team - Phipps, Mike Watts and Diane Reyes - conduct drug screenings, hearing examinations, administer flu and hepatitis B vaccines, and conduct safety meetings as part of their daily operations.

Phipps said the program has a medical director (at the hospital) who oversees the various immunization programs, with all vaccinations requiring the doctor's authorization.

The program also conducts first aid classes, focusing on emergencies in the workplace, Phipps said. "We call the program the 'First

Five Minutes' because the first five minutes after an accident are the most critical" in assuring the victim has the best chance for survival, he said. "We've had 14 classes, with about 200 people," Phipps said, noting the WorkSmart team coordinates its efforts with the Hereford Emergency Medical Services to conduct some classes at the EMS building. The WorkSmart program operates over a vast area - eight Panhandle counties, ranging from the Clovis, N.M., in the south to Amarillo in the Among the companies that contract with WorkSmart for classes, immunizations, handbooks and seminars are Pepsi-Cola, Mayflower Movers and feedyards in Kansas and Colorado.

So far this season, Phipps said more than 2,000 flu shots have been administered, coordinated with Hereford Home Health Care and the Phipps said the WorkSmart team enjoys the job, which he said is also very tiring because so much time is spent on the road, because the program "is providing a needed service to the community.

"It is a very important service to the community when we can go out to the businesses," he said. "I like to go out and do things for the community."

Gary Phipps and Diane Reyes, members of the WorkSmart team, stand outside the entrance to the program's headquarters at Hereford Regional Medical Center. Mike Watts, another team member, was unavailable for the photograph.

The WorkSmart program goal is to helping companies get into compliance with the various occupational health guidelines - and maintain that compliance. When the feds do an audit and the audit goes in favor of the client, then we know we've done our job," Phipps

Phipps praised Watts and Reyes, saying they are not subordinates in the department, they are part of the and vice versa, because we bring in

'We couldn't have the department without them. We all work together; we enjoy working with each other,'

He also said the WorkSmart program is helped considerably by the various departments at the hospital.

"If it weren't for the other parts of the hospital, we couldn't function, revenue for the other departments" that otherwise not be available, Phipps said. The X-rays, blood draws and physical examinations are conducted locally, he said. "We try to keep everything in

White House ponders 70 projects for line-item veto

WASHINGTON (AP) - Setting the stage for renewed battle with Congress over defense spending, the Clinton administration is studying a list of 70 military prejects as possible candidates for another round of line item

The list, prepared by the Pentagon and obtained by The Associated Press, totals about $300 million in projects - ranging from funds to help convert two military installations in California to civilian purposes. to development of a new military "space plane."

The list "is going to make everybody white-hot mad," Deputy Defense Secretary John Hamre conceded Friday in a confidential memo to the House and Senate Appropriations committees accompanying the document.

At issue is a $248 billion defense spending bill that Congress sent to President Clinton late last month. He must decide next week whether to exercise his line-item veto powers on the measure.

The administration's signaling the likelihood of more vetoes comes amid growing criticism from congressional Republicans over 38 projects Clinton struck earlier this week from a separate military construction bill.

The Defense Department has conceded it gave incomplete information to the White House on about a half-dozen of those projects, leading for more calls for Congress to cancel the vetoes - or even to repeal the line-item veto that GOP-led Congress gave Clinton just last year.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry told reporters Friday that the president relied on information from 'the Pentagon in deciding which projects to veto. He suggested "a handful of projects" hit by the earlier vetoes might now be reviewed to see if they should be reauthorized.

Clinton is the first president to use the power, which enables him to strike individual projects or "items" from spending and some tax bills without vetoing the entire measure.

But critics have accused him of making excessive use of the power.

Hamre, in his memo to top staff officials of the two congressional spending committees, said the Pentagon didn't "want to repeat the mistakes" made in providing Clinton with information for the first round of vetoes.

Hamre broke his list of roughly 70 "items for a potential veto" into two categories: items not included in either the original House or Senate bills but added to the legislation by House-Senate negotiators and items "we don't understand very well" and on which the administration needs additional information.

MONARCH BUTTERFLY MIGRATION STALLS

ABILENE (AP) - Think of it as a long butterfly layover. The first wave of black-and-orange monarchs migrating to Mexico has stalled out in Texas because of unseasonably warm weather and unfavorable winds, researchers say.

The butterflies that arrived in late September are stuck on a roughly southwest-to-northeast line from Fort Stockton in West Texas through Dallas, said Tom Harvey, a spokesman with the Texas Parks and Wildlife

That means monarch viewing is excellent in areas along and behind the line, in the northern one-third of the state, said Bill Calvert, who heads the Texas Monarch Watch for the department.

They ride the wind currents so they will be leaving when the wind shifts around to the north," Ruth Addington, a butterfly enthusiast, told the Abilene Reporter-News.

INVESTMENTS BOOST BUSH'S INCOME

HOUSTON (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush had $576,683 in income in 1996 and paid $172,940 in federal income taxes, according to just-released income tax filings.

His income was up from $419,481 in 1995, when he paid $115,061 in

The governor's tax report was released Friday. The Internal Revenue Service earlier in the year granted him an extension for filing.

He reported $410,831 in capital gains on his personal investments during 1996, an increase of $179,070 from the capital gains he reported earning on his investments in 1995.

In 1994, the year before he took office, Bush reported losing $3,000 on his investments.

His press secretary, Karen Hughes, said the source of last year's capital gains is kept secret from the governor and the public because most of his investments are in a blind trust managed by his accountant, Robert McCleskey of Midland.

TSU BOARD REPLACES REGENTS

HOUSTON (AP) - Former Houston Astros infielder Enos Cabell is out and Willard Jackson is in as chairman of the Texas Southern University board of regents.

The board made a change on Friday in a terse meeting. The Rev. Gene Moore, who lost the chairmanship to Cabell in 1995. accused Cabell of "a lot of superficiality and rhetoric," then nominated business executive Willard Jackson.

Jackson beat Cabell by a 6-3 vote. "The bottom line is, students aren't the recipients of what they should be getting," said Moore, a Baptist minister.

'If you want something you have never had, you have got to do something you have never done. I feel regent Jackson can carry us through the next millennium on the right track. He will surround himself with people who will work with him. Anthony Lyons, a regent who supported Cabell, blasted opposing regents for a "destructive, insulting" outcome.

Some in the TSU community questioned Cabell's 1995 election because of his credentials. Cabell never finished college. He played first and third base for the Houston Astros in the 1970s and in another stint in the 1980s. He's now a car dealer.

The Austral airlines jet, a DC-9, crashed about 11 p.m. Friday near Nuevo Berlin, a town on the banks of the Uruguay River, which separates the two countries.

"There were no survivors," said Brig. Juan Manuel Vazquez, secretary-general of the Argentine air force. "The plane hit the ground with a heavy impact and is scattered over a very wide area.'

He said "extremely difficult weather conditions" may have caused the crash." There was no immediate information on the identities or nationalities of the Argentine and Uruguayan rescue teams rushed to the crash site on a large farm in an area dotted with marshes and hills, about 280 miles north of Buenos

Small, shattered parts of the plane were scattered across fields by a main road. There were no reports of casualties on the ground.

Roberto Lemos, who was traveling by car from the Uruguayan capital, Montevideo, to the nearby town of Fray Bentos at the time of the crash, said he saw what seemed like "a big flash of lightning."

five crew members were aboard the flight from the northern Argentine city of Posadas to Buenos Aires, said Santiago Garcia, commercial manager of Austral, a subsidiary of Aerolineas Argentinas.

The plane had last made contact with Buenos Aires municipal airport about 40 minutes before the crash and reported it was changing its course to avoid heavy rain and hail near the capital, air force official Jorge Carnevalini said.

In Uruguay, an air force official told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity that the plane entered an area of heavy turbulence. Other planes in the area also had reported severe conditions at the time, he

Dictionary publisher asked to pull racial slur

DETROIT (AP) - In March, a computer operator from a Detroit suburb cracked open a Merriam Webster's Collegiate Dictionary to look up the Delphine Abraham of Ypsilanti was shocked to find that the definition -"1: a black person - usu, taken to be offensive" - treated the word "nigger" as a synonym for blacks, with its derogatory nature mentioned secondarily. Her indignation has launched a debate over the word, its meaning and whether it belongs in dictionaries. "I think people are really surprised to see that it's in the dictionary in 1997," said Ms. Abraham, 37. "I don't want my nieces and nephews thinking that they're niggers because it's printed that way in the Merriam-Webster's

After reading the definition, Ms. Abraham drafted a petition calling for the word's removal from the dictionary and has collected about 2,000 signatures and sent them to Merriam-Webster.

Frederick Mish, editor in chief of the Springfield, Mass.-based company, said he did not know what the company would do in response to the criticism.

'As dictionary makers, we do not believe that we can make offensive words go out of existence by leaving them out of the dictionary, any more than the media can make racism go away by failing to report about it," the company said in a statement. "People do not learn these words from the dictionary, nor would they refrain from using them if we left them out."

Kathryn Williams, curator of the Museum of African American History in Flint, also has been gathering support for her efforts to get the publisher to change the definition or delete the word altogether.

Although only 50 miles apart, the two women have never met. But their efforts have not gone unnoticed.

Hundreds of people contacted Merriam-Webster after its definition of the racial slur was printed in the September issue of Emerge magazine. That prompted the 150-year-old dictionary maker to issue its statement.

We have tried to make it clear that the use of this word as a racial slur is abhorrent to us, but it is nonetheless part of the language, and as such, it is our duty as dictionary makers to report on it," the company said.

"To do less would simply mislead people by creating the false impression that racial slurs are no longer part of our culture; and that, tragically, is

Clinton inks lawmakers' pay hike bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton on Friday signed a $12.8 billion spending bill that includes pay raises for members of Congress.

The 2.3 percent pay raise in the bill covering the Treasury Department and other agencies will lift lawmakers' salaries from $133,600 to $136,672.

The measure includes $131 million for combatting violent crime and $195 million for a national media campaign against drugs, Clinton said in a statement, which does not mention the pay raises.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich supported the pay increase and worked with Democratic leader Dick Gephardt to throw his support behind it. However, Gephardt gestured a thumbs-down and voted against it when it became clear that a majority of Republicans would reject the bill. It passed the House 220-207, with Democratic support. In the Senate, it was approved 55-45.
"Speaker Newt Gingrich got exactly what he wanted," said Gary Ruskin of the Congressional Accountability Project, a watchdog group affiliated with Ralph Nader. 'He wanted to take advantage of the taxpayers to give himself and his overpaid colleagues a raise, and they're going to get it."

Lawmakers passed a measure in 1989 granting themselves annual cost-of-living increases like other federal workers.

Rep. Swinford is from Dumas and is in the grain handling/elevator business. He has been very active in agricultural associations in the Panhandle. He has been a member of the House since 1990 and has been active in the Ag and Livestock Committee, as well as the House Appropriations

Rep. Chisholm of Pampa entered the Legislature in 1989. He chairs the House Committee on Environmental Regulations and also serves on the County Affairs Committee and House Administration Committee.

These elected officials have a considerable amount of influence in Austin on behalf of our area. We hope a large number of residents help welcome them to Hereford.

The Real World

What's in a word?

Sometimes, although not very often, my heart goes out to individuals who are trying to learn the English language.

I've heard that Oriental languages are harder to read and write, but sometimes I realize how truly difficult our language is. Think about it a minute. If the plurals of "louse" and "mouse" are "lice" and "mice," why doesn't "house" become "hice"? Is "sheep" one animal

How does a new student of the language tell the difference between "does" (plural for female deer and rabbits) and "does" (the third person singular of verb "do")?

Another thing is the problem with prefixes and suffixes.

The prefix "dis-" is defined as separation, negation or reversal; while the prefix "un-" is defined as not, lack of, the opposite, indicating a reversal of action. To me, they are very closely related.

Reflections

By Don Cooper

We need our downtowns

"When you're sad,

And life is making you lonely, "You can always go - downtown!"

"Downtown" always has been a magical word to me. I love downtowns - always have loved 'em.

My fascination and love of downtowns started when I was a youngster growing up in southwest Arkansas. Nashville, Ark., is not a city by any stretch of the imagination, the population's only about 3,500, but when I was a kid, its downtown, which stretched along Main Street, was alive with activity on Saturdays, as farmers came in to buy seed, feed and just visit with their friends over cups of coffee at Joda's, a diner that was housed in a converted railroad car. All of the Main Street stores, from Burkhart's Grocery to the "five and dime," were open and generally packed with customers, who would stop on the sidewalks and chat as they moved from one store to the other. Another Saturday fixture on Main Street during the summer was the sidewalk preachers.

Back then, the members of that faith were called "holy rollers," although now that term's been replaced with Pentecostal, and the preacher, usually accompanied by some of the church's congregation, would set up camp under the awning outside a store on the east side of Main Street during the morning; during afternoons, the group would move across to the west side of the street. This meant the sidewalk revival would always be shaded from the summer sun.

Most shoppers paid scant attention to these sidewalk revivals, just stepping around the little group, as they moved from one store to another.

However, after 15 or 20 minutes of the preaching, usually delivered at the top of the minister's lungs as if the Pearly Gates could be forced open by sheer volume, the merchant would call the city marshal and the revival would move to a spot outside another store farther down the street - still remaining in the shade.

When I was a teen-ager in Texarkana, the downtown also was active - even after sundown. There were restaurants near Union Station, where train crews and passengers could get coffee or a meal while waiting for the train, several movie theaters, hotels and stores that were open until the buses stopped running about

But with the advent of the shopping malls, its downtown died; the loss of full-time rail service killed the restaurants and hotels - and now Texarkana's downtown is a collection of banks, insurance offices, bail bond companies, pawn shops, and boarded-up

I've never lost my love of downtowns. I know that times and things change, but I think a community is better when it has a good downtown.

Walking around downtown Hereford one weekend evening, Annette and I lamented the lack of a coffee shop or restaurant in the downtown where people could just congregate after work and have a cup of coffee instead of sitting in front of the television.

It's not just Hereford; it seems like most cities' downtowns now are just a collection of banks, insurance agencies, government offices and a few stores that shut their doors at 5 o'clock.

Still other towns are like Daingerfield, the little East Texas town where we lived before moving to

In Daingerfield, there are more buildings in downtown that are abandoned than occupied, and - thanks to some "helpful" arsonists - the place looks more like a collection of buildings just scattered across the landscape than a real town.

There's something missing when the downtown area is vacated at sundown, and that's a sense of identity, a feeling of community.

What Others are Saying

By The Associated Press Here are excerpts from editorials in newspapers in the United States

The Register-Guard, Eugene, Ore., on the congressional pay

Congresswoman Carrie Meek, D-Fla. summed up the reasoning of her colleagues who voted for a $3,000 cost-of-living increase in congressional pay: "Soap costs me as much as it does anyone else."

That's true, but it overlooks an obvious point: Not every American soap buyer already earns $133,000 a year in base salary. Not every American worker has the luxury of being able to vote himself or herself an extra $3,000 a year in family income. And not every worker is as flush with perks (health insurance, fantastic retirement benefits, etc.) as members of Congress.

We don't as a rule begrudge cost-of-living adjustments in pay for government employees, not even for federal senators and representatives.

But given the partisanship that has almost paralyzed Congress over the past couple of years, the central question for this particular adjustment is whether is has been earned. Put that to a public vote and the answer would be a loud and clear no. ...

The Advocate, Baton Rouge, La., on raise for Congress:

You have to admire genius, and congressional leaders and members in both parties have demonstrated they have it in abundance by giving themselves a raise without ever directly voting on it in the House.

Some members ... sought a straightforward vote on the pay increase, but their efforts failed. ...

One probably has to be in Congress to understand how very difficult it is to scrimp by on an income of just $133,600 a year, plus assorted "perks" of office. But if members of Congress feel strongly that they really need and deserve more than that, they ought to be willing to make their case for it openly, put an understandable motion on the floor and vote on it.

Our objection is not to the $3,072 annual raise. The amount is not that big, and it's the first congressional raise in five years. But the cynical maneuvering employed to enact it was utterly disgusting.

Springfield (Ohio) News-Sun, on campaign financing:

In days of yore, people who wanted to plead their case before the king often had to pay a cash tribute before the king would grant them an audience.

Some things have changed since then; some haven't. These days, we don't have kings. We have senators, representatives and presidents. And, thank goodness, people don't pay tributes anymore. These days they call them campaign donations. ...

In politics, they say, money is speech. If we restrict campaign donations and spending, we restrict speech. And that would be unconstitutional. But let's take a closer look at this money-is-speech approach. If money is speech, what happens to those Americans who don't have hundreds of thousands of dollars to donate to politicians? Does that mean they don't have speech? Certainly, they have a less powerful voice than

Politicians in trouble generally ignore some good instructions

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the manual on political damage control, there ought to be a chapter warning that what's not disclosed today is only going to get worse tomorrow. So the instructions would be to tell it all, every troubling detail, and get it over with. There is no guidebook, and politicians in trouble probably wouldn't heed the lesson anyhow. Facing scandals, investigations, or just difficult questions out of the past, they almost invariably hold back. And usually suffer for it later. The "limited modified hangout" strategy, to use a Watergate phrase, is almost always a loser. Piecemeal disclosure keeps a case going, keeps the questions coming. The political instinct remains to try it anyhow.

"I think that's the history of scandal around this town," says Sen. John McCain, who had his own brush with it a decade ago as one of five senators investigated in a case involving an Arizona savings and loan operator. He said he survived it by disclosing all he knew, all at once.

Serial disclosures are the more familiar pattern. The trouble is that there is almost always a next one, and another after that.

That's been the case in the disputes and investigations of Democratic fundraising for President Clinton's last campaign.

The latest installment was the tardy disclosure of videotapes of White over to Senate investigators on Oct. 3, a step Clinton said he ordered as soon as he became aware of their existence. There are more to come, of similar Democratic events.

House coffees attended by Democratic donors. Forty-four were turned

The videotapes were made routinely by the White House Communications Agency, and Clinton said it was an inadvertent oversight, "just an accident" that they weren't given to the investigators earlier.

Washington Today By Walter R. Mears

There's nothing to suggest otherwise. WHCA camera and sound crews are a fixture at presidential events, and their videotaping was nothing out of the ordinary, routine stuff routinely stored away.

As Sen. Fred Thompson protested, his investigating committee asked pecifically for any audio visual recordings of the coffees made by the WHCA, and was told there were none.

So it is another headache, a visual aid for investigating Republicans, who played tapes of Clinton with Democratic donors in the Oval Office as a preface to a Senate hearing. 'I don't think we're embarrassed at all," said Lanny Davis, the White House lawyer who deals with the fundraising cases.

Perhaps not. There's an echo of Watergate in a dispute over White House tapes, the recordings that ultimately forced Richard M. Nixon from the presidency in 1974. With major differences, of course. Nixon resisted disclosure of his tapes, lost in the Supreme Court, and quit rather than be impeached when they proved his role in the coverup. Clinton said he had ordered the videotapes sent to congressional investigators as soon as he became aware of them. It is awkward, and it comes after a sequence of partial or amended disclosures about fundraising.

Clinton's White House coffees were at first described as issues meetings with citizens, but documents later showed them to be for Democratic donors.

Fundraising was said to be a Democratic National Committee operation, but white House memos later showed Clinton's aides oversaw it and that he was closely involved himself. That's not illegal or wrong.

'You know, I'm not ashamed of the fact that I did the best I could within the present system," Clinton says. He often has said he is proud of his efforts to raise money for Democrats.

The revisionist accounts of how that's been done don't make it sound

Vice President Al Gore is suffering for episodic accounting of his fund seeking telephone calls from the office, more of them than he first acknowledged, and for serial revisions in his account of an appearance at a Buddhist temple near Los Angeles in 1996. Initially, he said it was community outreach. It turns out to have involved a reach for Democratic donations, although it isn't clear that Gore knew so at the time.

Partway disclosures have hurt presidents and candidates before; the unfolding Iran-Contra case tarnished Ronald Reagan and damaged George Bush just before the 1992 election.

For Clinton, piece by piece disclosures worsened Whitewater, and other political headaches, like the 1992 campaign controversy over his Vietnam era draft status.

It is a habit with a long history, and not only his. Waiter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported

The Air Force, too, is increasingly beset with pilot shortages. Some Air Force fighter squadrons are cannibalizing planes to spare parts to keep others flying.

The Army, reduced in size form 750,000 to 495,000 and from 18 divisions to 12 in recent years, is nonetheless having trouble keeping its remaining units combat ready. ...

Obviously, a reduction in defense spending and a drawdown in the military was warranted after the Cold War ended. But the Bush and Clinton administrations promised that a smaller military would be kept fully trained, equipped and combat ready.

Star Tribune, Minneapolis, on National Endowment for the Arts: .

When a battered hiker is hauled to safety after hanging from a cliff by his fingernails, fretting about a broken rib or two constitutes a graceless act. Celebration would seem more appropriate. Understanding that principle, we celebrate Congress' conference-committee deal to allow the continued existence of the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) _ which the House has tried to kill off. ...

For several years the NEA has been downsized, reengineered, micromanaged and otherwise belittled and beleaguered. Congress banned grants to individuals (except writers)... It prohibited the agency from giving seasonal support, limiting grants to specific projects. It cut the budget

But hey, the NEA lives, though a precarious life at cliff's edge. And thanks to determined, creative leadership by Chairman Jane Alexander it lives a more accountable and rigorous existence than ever.

The Post and Courier, Charleston, S.C., on release of Hamas founder:

If Hamas founder Sheik Ahmed Yassin had been released from jail by Yasser Arafat, the Israeli government and its supporters would be calling for the Palestinian leader's head on a plate. But the spiritual leader of Hamas, a terrorist organization that celebrates when its suicide bombers kill innocent civilians, has been released by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to baffled silence.

According to the brief Israeli Army communique issued in the middle of the night as Sheik Yassin was flown to Amman, the Hamas leader, who is a paraplegic and is in extremely poor health, was released by Netanyahu "in response to an appeal by King Hussein of Jordan and to take positive steps to help the peace process."

Both Israel Radio and Israel TV, which belong to the state, have reported that Sheik Yassin was let out of jail, after serving eight years of a life sentence, to mollify King Hussein for a botched assassination attempt on another Hamas leader carried out by Mossad agents in Jordan. ...

Under the circumstances it is hard to see how the release of Sheik Yassin could possibly help the peace process. There is no indication of any change in the commitment of Hamas to terrorism, including suicide bombings, and Arafat has not responded positively. He flew to Amman to see King Hussein to try and find out what has been going on. It is more likely this convoluted episode could prove to be one misstep too many by Netanyahu.

The Blade, Toledo, Ohio, on 40th anniversary of Little Rock desegregation:

What happened 40 years ago in Little Rock, Ark., frightened the nation. What happened in Little Rock last month demonstrated that while America has a way to go to achieve racial harmony, we have come a long way already.

Racial hatred was open in the South in the 1950s, and it was epitomized by the scowl of a 15-year-old white girl as she screamed at a young black girl attempting to enter Central High School

The white student was Hazel Bryan Massery, and the black student was Elizabeth Eckford. Both were photographed again in front of Central High School, this time linked arm in Time does change things. Mrs. Massery had a change of heart 27 years ago and called Ms. Eckford to apologize. That she did so, and that Ms. Eckford accepted, is encouraging evidence that enlightenment can still work wonders.

There have been predictable displays of ritual dancing as the Stormont talks process approaches the point of serious business. ... Two

The white girl and black girl ... met traditions with virtually irreconcilable political cultures are setting out to engage with each other. Two bloodlines, representing ancient peoples with centuries of enmity between them, are seeking to forge new arrangements by which they can live in peace within the one stretch of land.

But the bedrock issue will be represented as sovereignty. Whose writ runs in Northern Ireland? Unionists say they cannot compromise on the issue. Republicans say they cannot accept a solution which is grounded in the status quo. ...

When unionists say they will never compromise on the Union and when republicans say they will not live within it, they might do well to reflect that the present reality is not what either side claims it to be. The North is unique _ sui generis. And unique arrangements will have to be found to give it lasting peace.

Water board seeking response on proposal

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Water Development Board is asking Texans to review and comment on its proposal to divide the state into 14 regions as part of an effort to develop a statewide water conservation plan. In additional to proposing the regions, the board is considering rules to govern the water conservation plans to be developed by water districts in the regions. Put together, the regional plans will make up the statewide

The proposed map and rules for the regions can be obtained from the Internet at http://www.twdb.state.tx.us/www/twdb/sbl(underscore)hp.html. Texans also can get the information by contacting the department at (512) 475-2057 or P.O. Box 13231, Austin 78711.

Comments, suggests or complaints about the regions or the proposed rules are due by Nov. 3. The board will consider those comments and hold public hearings around the state before adopting final rules.

Graduate tests going computer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Leave the No. 2 pencils at home. The standardized test for graduate business schools is going all-computer.

Beginning Saturday, would-be MBA's taking the Graduate Management Admissions Test will fill out multiple-choice bubbles on a screen instead of on paper - part of a growing computerization trend among the standardized tests that Americans take for all kinds of Supporters say such computerized tests have several advantages: Results will come back faster - by test's end for some parts of the 41/2-hour exam. Test-takers will have more choices about when to take it, and they can go to private centers instead of to universities.

But critics have some concerns. Cheating has been a growing worry among standardized tests recently: the private company that will run the new GMATs says the computerized versions will have more safeguards than paper and pencil.

But Charles Rooney, an analyst at the National Center for Fair and Open Testing in Cambridge, Mass., said he believes it's too early to know whether the tests will contain a big enough pool of questions to prevent organized cheating.

And, Rooney notes, the computerized test cost more: $125 instead of $84, which could hurt some test-takers.

The change doesn't involve merely taking the same test on computer, rather than on paper and pencil. Instead, the very nature of the test is changing.

Wards plans store closures

CHICAGO (AP) - Montgomery Ward & Co., which is under bankruptcy court protection from its creditors, said Friday it will close 48 stores, including four in the Dallas area, in a cost-cutting move that could result in the layoffs of 3,800

Ward will close its store in Irving, and its Wynnewood Village, Northtown Mall and Prestonwood Mall stores in Dallas.

Ward, the nation's largest privately owned retailer, said the store closings would be subject to court approval but should be substantially completed by the end of December.

"There's a potential to lay off 3,800 people," said Ward spokeswoman Judy Gustafson. "Until we have an opportunity to meet with all the (employees) individually, we will not know how many ... will ultimately be placed" in jobs at other stores.

"But we are hopeful that we can accommodate a significant number."

And when the dust settles, you'll be able to say you're better informed about current legislative issues affecting ALL Texas citizens.

Please plan to join the Hereford Lions Club for this dutch-treat luncheon. The cost is minimal, only $5.75 per person, and you'll be richer for it because you'll get an insider's view of legislation on both the Texas House and Senate floors.

Speakers during the luncheon will include state policy-makers; Sen. Teel Bivins of Amarillo, and Reps. John Smithee of Amarillo, Warren Chissum of Pampa and David Swinford of Dumas.

DURAN DURAN

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Duran Duran is back, with an old familiar

The band's new album, "Medazzaland," includes remixes of its old songs by ska and punk bands.

'Some songs no longer belong to you once they're released," lead singer Simon LeBon said. "I've never had a problem with what people do with our songs because it sounds really different from us. It's just their approach to the songs." The British pop band, whose popularity peaked in the 1980s, is kicking off a 16-city U.S. tour to promote "Medazzaland." The newly reorganized band - including LeBon, keyboardist Nick Rhodes and guitarist Warren Cuccurullo - combines techno and electronic beats, giving the new album a disco-type sound.

The album goes on sale Tuesday. The tour begins in Boston on Monday and concludes Dec. 10 in Los Angeles.

LEO KOTTKE

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - While Leo Kottke was busy stealing the show on stage, somebody was backstage making off with one of his guitars. Kottke went backstage between encores Wednesday night at a nightclub to find his custom-made $2,000 guitar missing.

'That was a regular kidnapping, but there is no ransom note or anything," the guitar virtuoso said Thursday. "This was really cold."

Police have no suspects, but a doorman at a bar nearby saw a man running up the street carrying a guitar at about the time of the theft.

The mahogany-and-spruce six-string had a far greater sentimental than monetary value, Kottke said.

'I've made two records with it, and I've been playing it routinely for a couple of years," he said. "I haven't had it that long, but long enough to grow into it. You don't replace it - you just have to kind of retune your head for another guitar."

CHASTITY BONO

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Chastity Bono says her life has been a breeze since she came out as a lesbian in 1995.

"What's hard is living your life a lie and continuing in fear that somebody's going to find out this thing you're ashamed of," she said. "That's all that being 'out' means - it's just not lying. It's talking freely, acting freely, like heterosexual people do."

Bono, daughter of Rep. Sonny Bono, R-Calif., and singer and actress Cher, is the entertainment media director for the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation. She was in Columbus on Thursday to celebrate Lesbian and Gay History Month and National Coming Out Day, which is Saturday. She said this year has been historic in combating media stereotypes and raising awareness for gay rights. Things like TV's "Ellen" have made her job easier, she said.

'60 Minutes' creator criticizes newsmags of television newsmagazines says the world would be a better place with fewer of them.

Don Hewitt, executive producer of "60 Minutes," attacked network news divisions Thursday night for a slavish devotion to ratings and obliterating the line between news and entertainment.

"The network news divisions that once aspired to be to broadcasting what The New York Times is to print, are now content to be to broadcasting what picture magazines are to print," said Hewitt, who helped create the CBS Sunday night newsmagazine in ABC, CBS and NBC have 10 hours of newsmagazines on their prime-time schedule this fall, with Saturday nights the only evening free of them. The latest to premiere, "Public Eye with Bryant Gumbel," is on Hewitt's CBS.

Newsmagazines are consistently among the highest-rated programs on television, particularly in summer months when entertainment shows are in reruns.

"I think it would be a better television world if there were fewer newsmagazines and more sitcoms,' Hewitt told members of the Institute for Public Relations Research and Education.

At age 74 and somewhat of an silly."

NEW YORK (AP) - The pioneer elder statesman in the TV news business, Hewitt said he feared the success of "60 Minutes" was partly to blame for a feeling among network executives that television news could be a gold mine.

Network executives are more interested in ratings than good journalism from newsmagazines, he Broadcasting's founders believed that news is news and entertainment is entertainment and that crossing the line between them is dishonest, he said.

"What worries me ... and should worry everybody, is not that today that line is crossed and crisscrossed repeatedly, but that nobody gives a damn," he said.

Although he praised some shows besides his own - the evening news programs, ABC's "Nightline" and Sunday morning talk shows - Hewitt said the news divisions don't have the depth of talent to fill these hours with quality work.

Hewitt took credit for pioneering the use of hidden cameras on network news, but said there's a danger they're being used simply as a promotional stunt. He said ABC News is "drunk on hidden cameras."

"You don't want to overdo it," he said. "After awhile, it starts to get

Just think how many officials we would like to see unappointed after they severely disappoint the people they are supposed to represent. And when you get right down to it, dialects themselves can make for some hard going. My former in-laws were extremely fond of a goocy, sweet pie made from pecans, but they pronounced it "pee-cans." I don't know about ya'll (how's that for dialect), but I grew up around some old folks who kept a "pee-can" out by the back door so they wouldn't have to make a long, cold trip to the outhouse during the night. I don't think I want to cat a "pee-can" pie.

Words like "aunt" and "ant" have to cause confusion. To me, an "aunt" is my mother or father's sister. An "ant" is one of the little insects which ruins a picnic. Both words can be pronounced the same, but because I was brought up by a Yankee, I say "aunt" with a short O sound and "ant" with Let's not forget contractions and possessives. How do you know which words add an apostrophe "s," apostrophes or change words completely.

A prime example is the set of words "their," "there," "they're." Put yourself in an English student's shoes with this sterling example (and don't anyone say you never say it because we've all heard it), "They're going over there to pick up their clothes."

I didn't say it was correct, but it is common.

I know that years ago I had some incredible teachers who managed to teach me all the spelling and writing rules, and I salute them all for I fear if I had to learn them all today I would very well find myself as confused as those trying to decipher our modern language.

Britain to put royal yacht on auction block

LONDON (AP) - Heeding public demands for a less costly monarchy, Britain announced Friday it is ditching one of Queen Elizabeth II's more expensive toys - the royal yacht Britannia.

The 44-year-old ocean-going vessel, one of the most visible symbols of Britain's imperial past, will be decommissioned Dec. 11. The government is looking at options for its future, including preserving it as a conference center or tourist attraction.

Prime Minister Tony Blair's Labor government, which swept to power in May 1 national elections, said it was keeping a campaign promise not to spend taxpayers' money to replace or refit the 412-foot yacht.

Whitewater prosecutor says Foster committed suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) - In his final days, Vincent Foster cried at dinner with his wife and told his mother he was unhappy because work was "a grind," Whitewater prosecutors wrote in a final report that emphati-cally concludes the White House lawyer killed himself.

The report released Friday by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr lays out new revelations about the extent of depression by one Clinton's closest confidants leading up to his July 1993 death.

The available evidence points clearly to suicide as the manner of

"He cried at dinner with his wife shot to the head from an antique four days before his death; he told his mother a day or two before his death The underlying report was not that he was unhappy because work

While the report depicts Foster as a depressed man, prosecutors said they "cannot set forth a particular reason or set of reasons why Mr. Foster committed suicide." It directly addresses miscues at the scene of Foster's death, questions about evidence and other innuendo that prompted a cottage industry of murder conspiracy theories that thrives still today with books, videos and debate on conservative TV and radio talks shows.

'Toyboy' among new words in dictionary

The Oxford Dictionary of New Words includes words and phrases that have been in the news, with explanations of how they came to prominence.

Chiropractic Treatment for PMS

A three year study conducted in Melbourne, Australia has concluded that chiropractic spinal manipulation eases the symptoms of premenstrual syndrome (PMS). Dr. Max Walsh, senior lecturer at RMIT University's chiropractic unit. said manipulation and massage relieved the symptoms of more than 40 percent of the 30 women studied. The study represents the first scientific validation of chiropractic's benefits in the treatment of PMS symptoms such as depressions, anxiety, food cravings, insomnia, abdominal cramping and breast tenderness. Dr. Walsh said it was believed that spinal manipulation increased levels of endorphins, which are known to drop markedly in PMS sufferers. In this study, 43 percent of the women studied showed an overall improvement in the severity of their symptoms after chiropractic manipulation and soft tissue therapy on muscle trigger points alone.

Frosh beat Caprock

From staff reports

Ramiro Zambrano ran for four touchdowns Thursday to lead the Hereford ninth-grade "A" to a 34-0 win over Amarillo Caprock.

Zambrano scored all four touchdowns in the first half, going all the way on runs of 28 and nine yards in the first quarter, then hitting paydirt from five and six yards in the second period.

Gilbert Hernandez closed out the scoring for Hereford in the third quarter on a three-yard plunge. J.P. Holman kicked two extra points, and Eddie Lacey passed to Slade Hodges for a twopoint conversion.

Hereford coach James Salinas praised the defensive effort of the team in shutting out the visiting Longhorns:

Marlins clip Braves, 5-2

MIAMI (AP) -- Even before the game began, the Florida Marlins were behind. They'd lost yet another pitcher and their leading RBI guy was still sidelined.

The Marlins needed a break and eventually they got it from the most unlikely source.

Charles Johnson, hitless with the bases loaded this year and hitless against John Smoltz in his entire career, delivered a game-breaking double in the sixth inning that beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 Friday night.

championship series.

"Those days back in June when you're playing, you play for days like this," Johnson said. "Especially when you win a game like this."

Certainly it didn't look too promising for the Marlins earlier.

Kevin Brown, scheduled to start Game 4 tonight, was not at Pro Player Stadium. He was at home with a viral infection that bumped him back to Game 5, at best.

Brown's illness came a day after giving Florida a 2-1 lead in the NL Alex Fernandez, supposed to start Game 6, was diagnosed with a torn rotator cuff that threatens to end his career. Plus, outfielder Moises Alou, who drove in 115 runs in the regular season and four more in Game 1, was forced to miss his second straight start because of a sore left wrist.

> And yet, the Marlins found a way to come back for what Gary Sheffield called their biggest win of the year.

"Yes, I think so," said Sheffield,

Owner finds unlikely allies

BALTIMORE (AP) - Pete Magowan has found an ally in his fight to stop the AL's West Coast teams from switching to the NL: the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Union head Donald Fehr said Thursday that players are unlikely to approve any plan that would shift Anaheim, Oakland and Seattle to the NL.

Owners have set an Oct. 15 deadline to decide realignment, but several have said the date almost definitely will be pushed

Teams contend realignment doesn't need players' approval, but Fehr said players effectively have veto power because of their ability to kill interleague play after the 1998 season.

"The players believe you shouldn't destroy the integrity of the existing leagues without compelling reasons." Fehr said, going on to say no compelling reasons have been given.

Hereford dehorns Caprock 32-6 for -4A win

By BOB VARMETTE Staff writer

It was a stampede. And Amarillo Caprock got trampled.

The Hereford Whitefaces dominated the game offensively and defensively and thumped the Caprock Longhorns 32-6 in front of a homecoming crowd of 3,600 at Whiteface Stadium Friday night in a District 1-4A matchup.

"Our kids understand they had a responsibility," said Hereford head coach Craig Yenzer. "We had a lot of seniors from last year here tonight and they wanted to see progress. That really got them motivated.'

Motivated indeed.

Hereford (2-5 overall, 1-2 in District 1-4A) seized the game from the beginning and never let up, amassing 395 yards of total offense to only 126 for Caprock (3-3, 0-3).

"They took control of the game in the first half. Offensively, defensively, they just never let us into the game," Caprock head coach Preston Smith said.

Hereford marched 73 yards in 11 plays on the game's initial drive, working almost five minutes off the clock. Senior tailback Jeremy Miller took it in from the one-yard-line with 7:00 left in the first quarter.

Miller was the workhorse of the Whitefaces rushing attack. Before Yenzer pulled most of the starters in

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) -- Maybe back there that's going to give you many plays throwing the ball.'

> Washington's Green and Dishman anchor the No. 1 pass defense in the NFL, and Sanders and Smith have Dallas a close second. In addition, both teams are sputtering offensively and would like to get back to their power-run attacks, leaving Aikman and Redskins quarterback Gus Frerotte to pick and choose their downfield salvos with care.

> 'There are certain routes that I think we can throw on both of them,' Frerotte said. "We just have to be smart about it, because they are very good. If you make a mistake, they're Certainly this is the week the Cowboys (3-2) need to solve their red zone blues and get Emmitt Smith untracked. Smith has 108 career TDs rushing, but hasn't scored this year and is 13th in the league in rushing. It used to seem like every Cowboys drive ended in a 1-yard TD run; now they all end in field goals by Richie Cunningham.

"We're a little bit older," coach Barry Switzer said, referring to Smith and the offensive line. "We've lost a step here. That makes it a little bit different. When (linemen Mark Tuinei and Nate Newton) were

I am not against owners making money, But how much do they have to make? And do they have to pit cities against each other to get hat they feel they deserve?

I believe that few owners in professional sports today have the loyalty to resist the big-dollar offers that cities dying for a professional franchise are willing to make. If the money is enough, they'd probably go just about

The latest franchise to grab my notice is the Minnesota Twins (see story Page 11). Twins' owner Carl Pohlad wants a new stadium.

The Twins' present home, which they share with the NFL Minnesota Vikings, is the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in downtown Minneapolis. It was opened in 1981.

Sixteen years old, and it's no longer good enough. Pohlad said he gets a new stadium or he sells the Twins to North Carlina businessman Don Beaver. I doubt Beaver would keep the Twins in Minnesota if he bought the team. Ah, but there's a solution, says Pohlad. Cough up the bucks for a new retractable roof stadium. Estimates place the cost somewhere between $350 and $400 million dollars (Sorry).

And Pohlad doesn't want to pay for it. He wants the taxpayes of the State of Minnesota to pay for it. By the way, Minnesota is already one of the highest-taxed states in the country per capita. I know. I lived there for three years.

Friday, Minnesota Gov. Arne Carlson said he will call a special session of the Minnesota Legislature to deal with Pohlad's demands for a new stadium. Thursday, a legislative panel voted 9-4 to pay the fourth quarter, Miller gained 138 yards on 21 carries.

"He's really playing good ball now," Yenzer said. "He's seeing the field. He's got that great speed when he gets outside.

As a team, the Whitefaces rumbled for 323 yards on 67 attempts.

"Our offensive line had to play as good a game as they played for us to be successful, and they did that," Yenzer said. "They took the battle to Aggressiveness was the hallmark for Hereford on this night. The same team that had looked tentative and unsure for much of the year knew exactly what to do and they pretty much did what they pleased.

"You have to give a lot of credit to Hereford and Coach Yenzer," Smith said. "They really played well."

After the first drive by Hereford. both defenses re-established themselves for the remainder of the first half. Then disaster struck the Longhorns.

Prior to the game, special teams was an area of concern for Smith. Hereford didn't prove him wrong.

With Caprock facing fourth and seven from their 46-yard-line, Hereford's Henry Hernandez stormed in to block the punt of Brandon Slemp late in the second quarter. The ball was recovered by the Whitefaces' Clay Brown at the Caprock 38-yardline.

Previously, Fehr had said the union's initial inclination was against major realignment. He went further Thursday, saying the union was likely to resist it.

'Not to restate the obvious, but the agreement on interleague play ends after 1998, and there's no dispute about that," he said before Thursday night's Game 2 of the AL championship series. "If you make a substantial change, you can't just go back and say, 'Oops,' the next Acting commissioner Bud Selig chose not to respond to Fehr.

"There's no sense getting into any debates," he said from his office in Milwaukee. "We have, I think, considered all aspects of realignment the last eight months. I haven't, frankly, heard any critique that has added anything new.'

Fehr said players have two reasons for opposing the shift of AL West Coast teams, and predicted free can sign with new teams. agents would head to the NL if realignment occurred.

Hereford quickly capitalized. Cody Hodges hit a wide open L.J. Vallejo for a 40-yard strike with 56 seconds left before halftime and 15-0 lead.

Hereford wasted no time adding to their lead in the third quarter. The Whitefaces went 57 yards in four plays, capped off by a one-yard touchdown run by Miller with 10:22 left in the third quarter. The drive was set up by a 42-yard return of the second-half kickoff by Vallejo.

"That guy is amazing," Yenzer said. "I don't see how he does it."

Hereford extended their lead to 25-0 with 6:17 in the third on a 37-yard field goal into a win of 15 miles per hour by Stevan Perales, a senior transfer from Caprock. The Whitefaces closed out their scoring in the fourth quarter on a 10-yard jaunt by junior tailback Mark Rodriguez.

Rodriguez also had a productive night in the backfield. He finished the game with 14 carries for 84 yards.

The guy who wasn't productive was Caprock senior quarterback Michael Soria. Soria entered the, game as Class 4A's sixth-leading passer, but was 9-for-22 for only 83 yards. Worse, he had three passes intercepted, two by Hereford senior cornerback Anthony Lopez.

After the game, Smith wasn't at a loss for the reason why.

The Longhorns scored their only points of the game on a four-play, 30yard drive after one of three fumbles coughed up by the Whitefaces.

Senior James Terry got in from six yards out to close the deficit to 25-6 with 10:04 left in the game.

Those three fumbles, and 13 penalties for 122 yards did not please

"Those are things we have to correct," Yenzer said. "The fumbles . happened when we had a lot of young kids in there. But I want all our kids to look sharp.

Yenzer said the Longhorns also presented Hereford with some problems with underneath coverage and pass protection. He also said the Whitefaces are still having some problems making adjustments on the field.

The win also may be a costly one for Hereford. Hodges and senior linebacker Roger Garcia both left the game with injuries.

Hodges suffered a first-degree shoulder on his non-throwing left shoulder. Yenzer said his status would be evaluated day-to-day. Garcia sustained a knee injury, the seriousness of which was not known immediately after the game.

But Yenzer still couldn't stop beaming.

"The one thing I'm most proud of," Yenzer said, "is that we came at them aggressively. We attacked them on both sides of the ball... We're a good football team. I've tried to make them believe it.

'We've played some good football teams. We're a couple of plays away from being 4-3," Yenzer said. "Tonight, the kids performed like a good football team."

The thing that really bothers me about this is that the Metrodome is only 16 years old. There's nothing wrong with it, other than the fact if you get a heavy snow, the inflatable roof of the Metrodome has a tendency to collapse.

This may sound like a big deal, but it really isn't. Several times, in the first few years, this did occur. But in Minnesota, heavy snow is defined differently than in Texas. And when the collapses did occur, they were not total. The roof just sunk in a little.

As far as I know, the Metrodome roof hasn't collapsed since those early years.

I'm not a fan of artifical turf and domed stadiums. But I've played in the Metrodome and I've covered games there. There's nothing wrong with it from either perspective.

As far as domed stadiums go, I thought it was rather nice. The locker rooms are nice and the press area is one of the best I've seen.

The problem is those skyboxes. There just aren't enough of them to satisfy Pohlad's greed.

Minnesota will probably cough up the money to keep the Twins. Espcially after what happened with the Minnesota North Stars moving to Dallas.

This problem has spun out of control. And it may not have any direct effect upon us, but we should still be just as outraged as the people of Minnesota should be at this level of extortion.

Sooner or later, we will all pay. Maybe not necessarily in dollars, but in the loss of integrity to sports.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) -- Gov. Arne Carlson said Friday he will call a special legislative session Oct. 23 to deal with the Minnesota Twins' demands for a publicly subsidized stadium.

Carlson announced the special session, which could last several weeks, in a speech to the Minnesota Broadcasters Association in St. Cloud Friday.

Governors usually have waited to call a special session until they have an agreement with legislative leaders on a bill, but that will not be the case this time.

Though a legislative panel voted 9-4 Thursday to pay for a stadium with lottery proceeds and revenue from slot machines at Canterbury Park, that recommendation is likely to go through several changes and not be ready by the time the session opens.

Senate Majority Leader Roger Moe said Friday he expects the Legislature will recess as its first order of business during the special session, and let the stadium bill pass through several committees before the full Legislature returns for a vote, probably sometime in November.

The governor was encouraged by the task force recommendation and urged legislators to support subsidized construction of a new

I want every single legislator not only to vote, but I truly want them to understand the significance of their vote. If they vote no, the Twins will leave," Carlson

"I don't think there's any reason for this to be a rancorous debate. I want the debate to sincerely focus on good public policy. If you build the stadium, build it because you think it's in the best interest of the public."

The governor still wants to pay for a ballpark with a dime-a-pack cigarette tax increase.

Twins president Jerry Bell, who spoke after Carlson, said the team's managers can't focus on the game while the debate continues.

"We've been at this for three years. It's time for this debate to come to an end," Bell said. "Our product is starting to slip. We're starting to lose that edge because we're spending too much time on the stadium issue."

Stars rout Black Hawks, 7-0

DALLAS (AP) -- Although Mike there than there usually is against that pace.

Modano missed most of training team," said Modano following his camp in a contract dispute, the Dallas Stars' center was in midseason form Friday night.

Modano had three goals and an assist, and Ed Belfour needed only 14 saves in his first game against his former team as the Stars routed the pointless Chicago Blackhawks 7-0.

Signing a one-year, $3.5 million contract five days before the regular-season opener didn't give Modano much time to get into game shape, but he took advantage of open ice from the Blackhawks, off to their worst start since the 1969-70 season

"There was a lot more room out fourth career hat trick. "You never expect an open-ice game against them. But we got a couple of quick goals in the second period and the floodgates opened. They're a totally changed team. It's going to be a tough year for them, I think."

Joe Nieuwendyk added two goals, Todd Harvey had a goal and an assist, and Darryl Sydor had two assists as the Stars improved to 2-2-1.

Stars coach Ken Hitchcock had been pleased with his defense, which allowed nine goals over the first four games. But Dallas managed only eight goals over that span, and the Stars scorers needed to pick up the

"Tonight was the first time that the offense really took off," Hitchcock said. "We wanted to crash the net from the middle of the ice and we were able to do that. We were good on offense and on defense

Belfour was the Blackhawks' goaltender from 1989 until he was traded to San Jose last season, Belfour, who signed a three-year, $10 million free agent contract with the Stars in the offseason, was seldom tested by the punchless Blackhawks in his 32nd career shutout and first in a Dallas uniform.

"Oyez, Oyez, Oyez' offers virtual tours of high court

WASHINGTON - People who want to find out how the Supreme Court works but cannot make the trip to Washington have a new choice a virtual tour of the nation's highest court on the Internet.

Visitors to the "Oyez Oyez Oyez" site on the World Wide Web site see panoramic views of the court building while listening to oral arguments and announcements of the justices' opinions in major cases of the past.

Soon, the site will offer 360-degree views of the stately courtroom, the justices' private conference room and the beautiful library.

"My vision has always been to make this institution come alive and move it beyond text and still images," said Jerry Goldman, a Northwestern University political science professor who created the site. "The idea is to bring this remote. institution alive to the American people.'

WASHINGTON (AP) - A former FBI official was sentenced Friday to 18 months in prison after acknowledging the agency's reputation was tarnished by his destruction of a report criticizing the FBI's role in the deadly 1992 shootout at Ruby Ridge, Idaho.

E. Michael Kahoe, a former head of the FBI's violent crime and major offenders section, had earlier pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice for destroying the FBI report in the 1992 fatal shooting at the cabin of white separatist Randall Weaver.

Country music to be performed in 'around the campfire' style

David R. Ligon, a master entertainer, singer and guitar player will appear with three other talented musicians in the Barbecue and Country Music Show at 6 p.m. Oct. 25 in the Hereford Bull Barn hosted by the Texas Plains Chorale.

It will be an evening to remember for the family, old and young, music lovers and West Texans from every walk of life. Funny songs, silly songs, Mexican songs sung in perfect Spanish, stories and tales will be offered in a relaxed, easy atmosphere.

Recently five members of the Texas Plains Chorale traveled to Nickel Creek Ranch to an annual music festival hosted by Ligon. Ligon has hosted the music festival for country music lovers on his ranch since 1972.

The Chorale members were treated to a rare musical experience.

The music festival featured great country music by musicians that love to perform and enjoy performing with admiration for one another's talent and a high regard for expertise.

When there was a musical break, someone told a story or a joke and more often than not a "true story" was spun at the expense of someone in the crowd.

The setting was truly Americana and certainly western, akin to the 'around the campfire" scene. Perfect strangers became comfortable

Hereford is in for a taste of such an experience when Ligon, Vance Sorrells, and Stewart and Betty Crawford take the stage at the Hereford Bull Barn.

Prior to the country music performance, a barbecue dinner, prepared by members of the Texas Plains Chorale, will be served. Then TPC will take the stage and give a short program that demonstrates their talents as singers.

The chorale consists of approxi-

Hot foods: Why do people get hooked?

Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas - On a recent spark.' episode of The Simpsons, Homer Simpson dragged his family to Springfield's annual chili festival. Trying to prove his manliness, Homer ate several "Insanity Peppers," sending him into chili pepper-induced

Now most pepper aficionados aren't after that effect. But what drives them in their search for hotter and hotter foods?

'They're thrill seekers," said Pamm Anderson, maker of Baptism of Fire, winner of the XXX Hot Sauce category at this year's Fiery Food Challenge in Albuquerque, N.M. "They like to try dangerous things."

Anderson, of Hubbard, said when a person first eats hot foods, such as chile peppers, "you burn yourself, and your brain will give you endorphins, a natural pain killer."

notter roods, the brain will build up a tolerance, and you won't get the endorphins. You have to increase the heat to get that cuphoric feeling," Anderson said.

Carwyn Smith also likens the hot food eater to someone seeking thrills. "Why do some people like to jump out of planes with a parachute or scale a cliff with no safety rope?" he asked. "There's some kind of

Smith's company, ATA International in Belton, produces Hot Paradise salsa, which took top honors at the San Angelo Salsa Fiesta

Hot Paradise, Smith said, is different from most salsas, as it is not tomato-based. It consists of 40 percent habanero peppers, which are exponentially hotter than the more commonly known jalapeno.

The peppers, which also are used in Baptism of Fire, are strong enough that the workers who bottle the product wear "gloves almost up to their elbows, a mask and hazard glasses," Anderson said.

An added attraction of cating peppers might be the possible health

When the peppers come in contact with the tongue, they release a If the hot food fan continues eating -chemical called capsaicin, which research has snown helps arterial sclerosis, said Joel C. Gregory, editor and publisher of Chile Pepper magazine.

"In Central America (where peppers are staples of the diet), there is far less coronary artery disease, and that has been attributed loosely and anecdotally to peppers," said

University and former Baptist pastor.

And with recent emphasis on no-fat and low-fat eating, "people are looking for alternative condiments," Gregory said. In 1995, he points out, salsas outsold ketchup for the first

"And how many diners use ketchup?" he asked.

Besides, Gregory adds, interest in gourmet cooking is on the rise, and chefs, both in home and professional kitchens, are looking beyond Texas and the Southwest for hot food, citing curries from Thailand and jerk seasonings from the Caribbean as prime examples of international heat.

Dishes calling for various types of chiles and hot seasonings run the gamut, from smoked salsa to okra pickles, from jalapeno cole slaw to chile rellenos. Some of these recipes are from chefs taking part in Austin's

Halloween: Just another commercial carnival?

Does it seem to you that Halloween has become another commercial event? Now, I want you to understand that I have never been a big proponent of Halloween, even as a child. I was (believe it or not) so painfully shy that I could not make myself walk up and knock on a door just to ask for

And I wasn't especially creative and could never come up with clever costume ideas like my classmates did.

My daughter -- who, thank goodness, did not inherit my timidity -- always wanted to don a costume and go trick or treating on whatever night the city fathers deemed as appropriate for that sort of thing. (During most of her "growing up" years we lived in a city much larger than Hereford and the city officials always designated what night the children would be allowed to go doorto-door.) We made costumes for her each

Simple decorating tips for baby's special place yourself and family to BE the BEST each of you can BE and contribute to

If you are soon to be a new parent, these days of preparation are a signal that your life will change dramatically. And so will the house or apartment you live in.

Of course, you want your baby to have a special place that's safe, warm and cozy, light, bright and airy.

Now what colors did you think of as you were reading those words? Some parents picture the soft blush of blues and pinks. Others will go for the razzle-dazzle of primary colors.

Whichever way you choose, here are some simple, economical decorating tips:

* Transform a space into a nursery quickly with removable borders and decals that depict colorful storybook themes and designs (available at discount stores in the wallpaper department). Arrange decals on a plain lampshade, baby's diaper pail and wastebasket and tie in the theme on miniblinds. First, attach the removable decals on closed blinds to make a scene (use the scraps between the printed designs to create and cut out more designs, if you wish). Then, with a utility knife, an adult may carefully cut the attached decals so that slots will open. When you open and close the blinds, the scene appears and disappears. Since these decals are removable, they are ideal for apartment dwellers and baby's space at the grandparents' home.

* Cover basic changing table pads with brightly colored pillowcases. When soiled, simply slip off and wash.

* Make a quick change of scenery and add interest to baby's traditional mobile by changing the hanging objects. Paint large cardboard shapes or wood cutouts with vibrant colors or eye-catching black-and-white designs. Remove the original mobile objects and attach the new ones securely to the mobile's loops or latches.

(Note: Due to choking hazard, always hang mobile away from baby's reach.) * Make music a part of the environment with a portable cassette player on hand for a soothing lullaby or a playful song.

Reception will honor two foundation reps

San Jose Community Center at 709 Brevard is hosting a reception at 4 p.m. Monday in honor Adrian Fowler of the Hogg Foundation in Austin and Evelyn Solonynka of the Amarillo Area/Harrington Foundation.

Fowler and Solonynka will visit the Community Center, the city of Hereford and its citizens to learn more about the center's programs and services.

The San Jose Community Center's goal to become self-sustaining is initially dependent upon outside funding, particularly foundation funding to support the community center's programs.

The public is invited to come and meet Fowler and Solonynka and learn more about the Hogg Foundation, the Amarillo Area/Harrington Foundations and how they can play a vital role in the future of our community.

YOUR EYES —

Help Baby See

Caring parents can help their child develop visually and intellectually with visual stimulation and exercises in hand/eye coordination that are really fun.

For the littlest babies, there are mobiles to follow by eye to grab and floating bath toys to chase. Playing peek-a-boowith Mornmy is not only good for a giggle, it's a first-class development game. So is patty-cake. Once the youngster is a year old, it's time for hand/eye coordination toys or learning tools like beads that snap together, blocks and stacking toys. Toys needn't be expensive; pots and pans or measuringcups are just as good as formal "educational" toys. By age two, a child can hammer a peg on a wooden bench or put a floor

If the child has difficulty with such toys, schedule an optometric examination. Eventheyoungest can be tested effectively.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: May 1 respond to "Anonymous in Missouri" who plans to commit suicide when she gets old so she won't have to end her days in a nursing home? I'm sure she is not the only one who has thoughts like that.

Although most of us would like to go peacefully in our sleep, having been healthy and active right up to the end, that is not real life. I have been a registered nurse for several years and have witnessed every type of death imaginable. I also have taken care of many botched suicide patients. The scene is not a pretty one. The angle of the gun was wrong, not enough pills were taken or somebody heard the car motor running and opened the garage door.

I also have taken care of many "dying" patients, several of whom surprised everyone by living another five years. And as for the forgetful or pills. We will choose suicide. vegetative souls in nursing homes, it is sad, but I suspect it is frequently harder on us than on them.

From Minnesota: I agree wholeheartedly with the letter from 'Anonymous in Missouri," who said she wanted a dignified exit from this earth and would commit suicide when she became old. My husband and I watched both his parents spend two years in a nursing home, tranquilized, totally out of it and incontinent. They hated every minute of their last years. R.D., L.D BABY'S HEALTHY TEETH Some ideas on putting your baby to sleep without a bottle to help prevent baby bottle tooth decay.

If you put your baby to sleep with a bottle of formula or juice, she'll have a good chance of getting cavities. That's because the sugar in these foods will stay on a baby's teeth the entire time she's sleeping.

Instead of a bottle, try to find a special blanket or stuffed animal that your baby likes. Or, spend a few Texas 78756.

minutes of quiet time rocking or patting your baby on the back before bedtime.

If she needs something to suck on in order to relax and fall asleep, then -- as a last resort -- give her a bottle of plain water. Never put your baby to sleep with a bottle of juice or formula! Baby bottle tooth decay is a serious problem and can be avoided.

Military Muster

Army Pvt. Joe D. Barrera II has arrived at Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla., to begin One Station Unit Training (OSUT). The training includes completion of basic military training and advanced individual training

Basic trainees receive instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Afterward, soldiers complete the field artillery cannon crew member advanced individual training course.

The course instructs students to maintain, prepare and load ammunition for firing; operate and perform operator maintenance on prime movers, self-propelled howitzers, and ammunition vehicles; perform crew maintenance and participate in organizational maintenance of weapons and related equipment. Students also learn to establish and maintain radio and wire communications.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent-FCS

Each year, colds and flu account for 50 million lost school days and workdays. In addition, the American Lung Association also estimates that annual dollar sales of over-thecounter combination cough and cold treatments were $1.9 billion in 1995 alone. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), each year, flu symptoms strike between 10 and 20 percent of the population in the United States, and the typical American averages four colds a year. Flu is largely preventable with vaccines or medications. Both, however, are all too easily transmitted. How colds and flu are spread:

The viruses that cause colds and influenza, commonly called the flu, are spread primarily when an infected person coughs or sneezes and another person inhales droplets containing the virus, and through hand-to-hand and hand-to-surface contact. Viruses can spread rapidly, especially in places where people are concentrated, such as schools, child care centers, office buildings, mass transportation and homes.

Immunization protects from infection

Though immunization doesn't guarantee a flu-free winter scason. annual flu immunizations protect people from the strains of virus that are most common or that are predicted for the coming influenza season. Since the influenza virus changes frequently, yearly immunization in October and November is recommended for protection from influenza. Immunization is recommended for children and adults who are in any of the following high risk categories: *65 years of age or older

*Have chronic lung (including asthma) or heart disease *Require medical care for chronic metabolic illnesses or immune deficiency disease (including HIV infection)

*Live or work with people in the above categories

While medical science has made great progress in treating colds, a specific cure remains clusive. The most commonly used medicines to relieve cold symptoms include antihistamines and decongestants. When using any of these medications, always read labels and follow instructions carefully. To help prevent the spread of colds and flu, regularly clean and disinfect surfaces in the home, schools and at the workplace and encourage frequent handwashing. Simple solutions to prevent the spread of colds and flu

According to the American Lung Association, cold and flu viruses can live for several hours or more on hands and hard surfaces. Household liquid bleach is effective in killing many of the viruses that cause colds and flu. One way to help reduce the spread of cold and flu viruses is to regularly clean and disinfect. reducing exposure to viruses.

A basic solution of household bleach and water will aid greatly in disinfection and help prevent the spread of cold and flu viruses.

Basic Cleaning Solution Ingredients: 3/4 cup of household bleach

1 gallon of water Instructions:

*Remove visible soil, then wipe down surfaces with this solution

*Keep wet for two minutes *Rinse and wipe dry

CLEANING TIPS In the bath ...

Germs thrive in moist places like the bathroom. They linger in the bathtub, in sinks, on counter tops, and of course, in and around the toilet bowl. Use the basic solution to wipe down all hard surfaces, including showers, sinks, counters, floors, tiles, and bathtubs; leave wet for two minutes, rinse and wipe dry. For the toilet, first flush, then put 3/4 cup liquid bleach into the bowl and brush the surface. Let the solution sit for 10 minutes, then flush again.

In the kitchen...

Bactetia and viruses can spread easily throughout the kitchen. They can be transferred from hands to food and can cling to counter tops and other surfaces. Wash down all hard surfaces including floors, cutting boards, and counter tops with the basic solution. Keep wet for two minutes, rinse and air dry. This kills all odor-causing bacteria and leaves surfaces clean. Use the basic solution to wipe down the inside surface of a refrigerator, rinse and let dry before reshelving any food products. Disinfect dishcloths, cotton mops, and sponges by soaking in the basic solution for five minutes, rinsing and air drying.

In the nursery...

Babies are particularly vulnerable during the flu and cold season, and consequently, special attention needs to be given to the surfaces they touch. Wipe down painted cribs, changing tables, diaper pails, plastic mattress covers, crib bumpers, and high chairs with the basic solution. Let stand for two minutes, rinse and dry. Disinfect toys be submerging them in the basic solution for two minutes, rinse thoroughly and air dry. (A net bag works well for submerging toys). Keep Germs at Bay

If someone in your home is sick, control the germs so that others don't become infected. Be sure to wash your hands frequently before and after preparing food, using the bathroom, or treating a sick person. Use disposable tissues to catch coughs and sneezes, and then throw them away immediately.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS Don Taylor

Where would we Wander without our W's?

he letter W may have begun life as an M that got turned over on its back. Rumor has it that it actually started as two U's. I can't confirm either of these statements as fact. We do know that W ranks so low in the alphabet that only X,Y and Z come after it. Yes, the letter W is a lowly one at first glance.

However, it's a pretty important little letter if you look more closely. Think of all the weather, wind or world. How would we survive without water, walls or wages?

While we wouldn't be hungry, I'd sure miss my waffles, wieners and watermelon. Nothing would be wonderful without old Wonderful W Words

Here are some W words I'd hate to live without:

Words. Where would a writer be without words to express that thoughts that burn within? Words are the medium we use to exchange ideas, express ourselves and convey clearly the pictures we form in our minds. Henry Ward Beecher said, "All words are pegs to hang Words are the currency of an educated society. However, like money, words are of little value if not used in a way beneficial to mankind.

Wisdom. My dictionary defines wisdom as "the power of judging rightly and following the soundest course of action, based on knowledge, experience, understanding, etc." With this one powerful word we may obtain much.

The Bible says that wisdom is of more value than rubies. Kind Solomon said, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding."

Word. The poet, Robert Frost, said, "The word is filled with willing people; some willing to work, the rest willing to let them." I find it ironic that one of our hardest working presidents and one of America's great writers both had negative things to say about work. Abraham Lincoln said, "My father taught me to work, but not to love it. I never did like work, and I don't deny it. I'd rather read, tell stories, crack jokes, talk, laugh - anything but work." Mark Twain said, "I do not like to work even when someone else does it."

Personally, I enjoy working. I've been fortunate to find work that is rewarding, meaningful and fun. I cannot imagine a life of doing something I hated.

Wit. William Hazlitt said. "Wit is the salt of conversation. not the food." I agree, and would say that nothing spices up a good speech or the written word like a little wit.

To me, wit is the ability to see the funny side of even serious events, and then to enjoy the hurhor therein. Will Rogers was one of America's greatest wits. He once said of his wit, "There's no trick to being a humorist when you have the whole government working for you."

Women. I owe a lot to two women who love me. My mother who launched me on the sea of life and my wife who serves both as my rudder and anchor.

No man on this earth would exist without the sacrifice of a woman. Thank you, ladies for your love and caring ways.

Wealth. Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Without a rich heart wealth is an ugly beggar." I guess you might paraphrase that by saying that to enjoy wealth completely, you must be willing to give

I believe the true joy of acquiring wealth is the ability to use it for good. This I know for certain: you won't carry your wealth with you when you die.

El Nino causes problems Farmers ponder next step

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) - The prospect of another El Nino has plenty of Montana farmers scratching their heads and trying to figure what strategy might pay. No one is claiming to have the magic answer.

"It really is a hot topic among farmers," said Chuck Merja, who farms near Sun River, west of Great

The system comes on in force every few years, causing everything from droughts to floods and hurricanes, depending on the region. But its impact on Montana has varied each time, although a warmer, drier winter has been the usual theme.

But when it comes to harvesting hay after a warm, dry winter, there is a big downside. In 1988, for instance, an El Nino winter was followed by an unusually dry spring and summer, creating severe drought conditions in Montana.

The hay crop that year came in at 2.79 million tons, well below the typical 4 million tons. And the wheat crop was a mere 60 million bushels, a third of what it would be in a good precipitation Figures gathered by the Montana Agricultural Statistics Service show smaller wheat and hay crops in all growing seasons after an El Nino winter.

John Pulasky, a veteran radio weatherman with the Northern Ag Network, said predicting its impact is like driving in a blizzard: It's tough to see dead ahead, but "we know where the ditches are, in terms of how bad

Pulasky has researched past El Nino years, focusing on 1982-1983, often called a benchmark because of its

In January 1983 in Glasgow, Mont., temperatures were 12 degrees above normal, with above-normal temperatures generally continuing through

The economic impact of El Nino could be dramatic, Merja said, because the international grain market is sensitive to changes in supply. Grain prices could rise dramatically if stocks dwindle.

The prospect may sound great to Montana wheat farmers. But if a dry winter turns into a dry spring, they could end up with little to sell at those higher prices.

We, as farmers, are hoping we are not the ones causing the prices to go up," said Merja.

Many farmers, unable to delay a decision, are putting in their winter wheat crop and hoping for the best.

"We read about it and hear about it," said Fred White, who farms 20 miles north of Great Falls. "But what we are going to do about it is another

Good news for grapefruit producers

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) -Florida grapefruit growers got some welcome news today when the first citrus forecast of the season predicted a lower production than last year's record crop.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture numbers released this morning held no surprises for orange growers, nearly mirroring the August estimates of an independent forecaster.

Florida farmers are expected to produce 254 million oranges, compared to last year's record 226.2 million. The grapefruit crop was estimated at 54 million boxes, compared to last year's record of 55.8 million.

"Grapefruit was the bright spot," said Lisa Blackman, spokeswoman for Florida Citrus Mutual in Lakeland. "We are hoping the sales organizations boost wholesale prices to boost grower returns."

The forecast was not expected to have much impact on the commodities market, which was shocked by an independent forecast in August of 253.5 million boxes of oranges, said Ernie Thomas, a citrus specialist with Merrill Lynch in Winter Park.

"No excitement here," he said. "It was just totally neutral because it was in line with expectations."

The USDA forecast estimated Florida growers would produce 146 million early, mid-season, navel oranges and 108 million Valencias.

In grapefruits, growers are expected to produce 53.5 seedless, 23 million white, 30.5 million colored and 500,000 seedy.

Predicting what Florida's 100 million citrus trees will produce is a complicated and lengthy task.

Between August and part of September, agriculture crews go to 2,700 groves and count the fruit on 10 percent of the tree's fruit-bearing surface, said Harry Whittaker, a statistician supervisor at the Florida Agricultural Statistics Service.

The numbers are then entered into a computer database, which considers such factors as the trees' age and location. Statisticians also must estimate how much fruit will drop from the tree before being harvested. That can range anywhere from 8 percent to half of the fruit on a tree, depending on the type, age and season, Whittaker said.

Classifieds will sell it.

Deformed cotton concerns farmers

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) - At least 19 Coahoma County cotton farmers have filed complaints with the state Department of Agriculture over a genetically engineered cotton seed that they claim has produced deformed cotton bolls.

The main targets are Monsanto Co., manufacturer of Paymaster series of Roundup Ready cotton seed and Delta and Pine Land in Bolivar County that entered into a partnership with Monsanto through a subsidiary to develop the seed.

The complaints over Monsanto's varieties are not new and not all producers are having problems.

In August, Mississippi Agriculture Commission Lester Spell Jr. encouraged growers have problems with deformed cotton bolls to submit a claim to the state's seed arbitration council.

"The bottom line is that virtually everybody who planted this stuff has had problems," said Clarksdale attorney Steve Cox, who represents seven farmers who filed complaints. "The problems that we are seeing range from hawk-billed bolls to total fruit loss.

Coahoma County Agent Ann Ruscoe said that she has seen some of the deformed cotton for herself and there does seem to be a problem with a few varieties of the Paymaster

"We noted a problem early on and drew attention to it," Ruscoe said. "The problems we are seeing with the deformed cotton and the hawk-billed bolls do seem more prevalent in a few Roundup Ready varieties of cotton,

She also said that there are 13,400 acres of Roundup Ready cotton in Coahoma. About 56 percent of that acreage is in arbitration, Ruscoe said.

Cox said the problem are in some ways related to lack of testing the new product.

"There's a reasonable belief that Monsanto and Delta and Pine Land did not test this product properly and if they did, they withheld the results," Cox said.

Will McCarty, a cotton specialist with Mississippi State University, said testing on Roundup Ready cotton was very limited.

"None of the varieties that have been having recurring problems were in our trials last year," he said.

Ruscoe said that problems have been most prevalent in the Paymaster 1244 and 1215 varieties, as opposed to the 1330 and the 1220 varieties. "That's not to say that there are not problems in other varieties," Ruscoe said. "But these varieties have been most planted and that is where problems have been most said Delta Pine Spokesman Stéve Sandroni. The area that Sandroni mentioned includes Clarksdale, Shelby, Jonestown, and Lyon.

"Why we are seeing the highest Reports of deformed bolls have concentration in that area is a been most noted in the North Delta, mystery," McCarty said.

AMERICAN HOMES ARE SNAZZIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - American homes are snazzier than ever before with amenities rare or unavailable to many of our grandparents, and their prices reflect it.

The Census Bureau reported Monday that the price of the typical American home has topped $90,000, soaring over 110-grand in the suburbs.

Americans relaxing in hot baths or air conditioning enjoy comforts far better than when the government took its first detailed look at housing in 1940.

Back then, nearly two out of five homes lacked a shower or bathtub. Air conditioning was almost nonexistent and heat often meant feeding a furnace wood or dusty coal. Many homes were still lighted with kerosene lamps.

Now, just 1.5 percent of homes lack complete plumbing, only 5 percent report inadequate heating and three-quarters - 75.5 percent - are air-conditioned, said the bureau's American Housing Survey, which was conducted in 1995.

The washing machine, a fixture in 77.5 percent of homes, has become even more common than the air conditioner, while 53.7 percent of dwellings have an automatic dishwasher.

Electricity, refrigerators and television are so common that the bureau no longer bothers to ask about them in its survey.

Married couples occupy a slim majority of housing units, 52.4 percent, the study found, and 93.7 percent of housing units have telephones.

Nationally, the median housing value was $92,507, up from $86,529 in 1993. Median means half of all homes cost more than that, half less.

By comparison, the median price was $2,938 in 1940, the equivalent of $27,400 in inflated 1990 dollars. Using those same 1990 dollars, the median value of homes rose to $39,900 in 1950, $52,500 in 1960, $57,300 in 1970, $74,900 in 1980 and $79,100 in 1990.

It won't surprise many Californians to learn that the West is the nation's costliest housing region, with a median value of $140,323 per home in 1995. That was up from $134,430 in 1993.

The Northeast recorded the second-highest cost at $118,909, up from $116,102. Homes in the Midwest had a median value of $80,149, up from $71,898, and in the South the cost of $76,017 was an increase from $70,376 two years earlier.

The median suburban home was valued at $112,836 in 1995, compared with $98,503 in urban areas and $80,318 in rural regions.

Homes 4 years old or less had a median value of $124,390, and the typical cost of mobile homes was $18,958.

The study, based on a national survey of 55,000 homes, is conducted every two years. The 1997 version is under way now.

Overall, the nation had 109,457-,000 housing units in 1995, including 66,169,000 detached houses, 6,213,000 duplexes, 7,647,000 mobile homes and the balance in apartments, cooperatives and condominiums.

Warm-air furnaces were the most-common type of heat, in 58 million homes, while 15 million had steam or hot water, 11 million had electric heat pumps and others had a variety of heaters, stoves and fireplaces.

Complete plumbing facilities were present in 107 million homes, while 315,000 dwellings lacked a tub or shower and 202,000 had no flush toilet

Public water services were available to 94 million homes and 14 million had wells, while 83 million had public sewer service and 26 million had septic tanks, cesspools or chemical toilets.

eTVData Features Syndicate

Felled by a cerebral aneurysm, Dr. Aaron Shutt (Adam Arkin) finds himself pondering his life and career in a surreal other world in "Brain Salad Surgery," an offbeat episode of Chicago Hope that attempts to seamlessly weave song and dance into the medical series' dramatic fabric.

The episode airs Wednesday, Oct. 15, on CBS.

"I don't want to overemphasize the musical elements," says executive producer Bill D'Elia, who also directs the episode, "because first and foremost it's a dramatic episode with a powerful story arc - and Adam is just incredible

Concerned that the episode, written and originally scheduled to air last season, might have been perceived simply as a ploy to improve ratings, D'Elia tabled it until now, which also allowed more time for pre- and post-production

Especially critical, he knew, would be finding a choreographer who could ensure that the dance numbers would flow from - not interrupt - the dramatic situations

He found his man in director-choreographer Kenny Ortega (Dirty Dancing), whose early mentor was Oscar winner Gene Kelly.

After story-planning meetings with D'Elia, Ortega met with the principal actors to determine their relative levels of dance experience and expertise. While some were more inherently adept than others, they all threw themselves eagerly into the work, he says.

"I remember Peter Berg (Dr. Billy Kronk) couldn't quite get one thing I had worked out, and finally the cast was going, 'Let's just do it Peter's " says Ortega, who leapt at the chance to be part of what he now considers a career highlight.

"Mark Harmon (Dr. Jack McNeil) was so, so committed - 'Show me! Teach me!' - and Christine Lahti (Dr. Kathryn Austin) was so graceful and confident, she really could be a Broadway musical star.

"Among the best, though, Vondie Curtis-Hall and Rocky Carroll (who play Drs. Dennis Hancock and Keith Wilkes, respectively) just knocked me out with their work together.

"But Adam was definitely the favorite of the gypsies," Ortega adds, re-ferring to the professional dancers he brought in to augment the show's cast.

"I can't imagine why, unless they just enjoyed watching me hopelessly mess everything up," a good-natured Arkin says. "No, seriously, we all enjoyed it so much that the hardest thing was going back to the usual stuff the following week. We want to do the musical stuff again - now! And we don't even care if there's a logical rea-

If Arkin appears to be in a mellow, upbeat mood, it reflects the fact that the cast of Chicago Hope finally feels like an ensemble smoothly working together as a team.

"It really wasn't like that the first year," he says, referring to the stormy freshman season, during which Chicago Hope eventually turned into "The Mandy Show," focusing on Mandy Patinkin's Emmy-winning Dr. Jeffrey Geiger (who returns for "Brain Salad Surgery").

Arkin also is glad that the media have stopped trumping up a nonexistent competition between his series and NBC's ER, the smash hit against which Chicago Hope originally was scheduled.

"Hey, I've reconciled myself that we aren't a phenomenon, which ER certainly is," Arkin says. "I guess we have to just settle for being a hit."

HOROSCOPES

October 12-18

* *

ARIES – March 21/April 20
To get what you want this week,
Aries, you need to get straight to the point. Don't let others tell you what you need; you know yourself best.
That special someone wants to cool things down for a while. Don't get upset. This is not a permanent breakup. Libra plays a key role.

TAURUS – April 21/May 21
While you'd much rather be at home, it's not an option this week. Both professional and personal matters throw you into the social arena all week long, Taurus. Try to make the best of it. You meet an intriguing individual at one of the gatherings. Be yourself to win his or her heart.

GEMINI – May 22/June 21
Patience is what you really need early in the week, Gemini. It seems as if everyone you know is turning to you for emotional and financial support. Don't let them down, but don't let yourself down either. You have to think of No. 1. Pushing yourself too hard only will make things worse.

CANCER – June 22/July 22
Although you're usually not the one to make the first move, you take the initiative early in the week. You realize that you need to be aggressive to get what you want. Don't let a jealous loved one stand in your way. A close friend sends you a little pickme-up later in the week.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Your arrogance gets you in trouble this week, Leo. You need to remember that you're not the only one who is talented. You must control your ego. A loved one needs your help to deal with a family crisis. Remain calm, and try to be rational. Capricorn and Libra play key roles.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Something that you find brings back fond memories and puts you in a good mood for the entire week. Share your happiness with loved ones and friends. A close friend is going through a rough time. Try to comfort him or her. Aquarius plays an important role later in the week.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

A prudent comment early in the week tips the scales in your favor, Libra. Friends and relatives are on your side, and things go smoothly at work. Nothing can stop you now. That special someone wants to spend more time with you. Don't get nervous; you know that this is what you really want. Sagittarius and Leo play key roles this week.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

A loved one needs your help this week, Scorpio. Don't let him or her down; nothing is more important than this. You receive a bonus at work for all of the effort you've been putting in lately. Isn't it nice to be appreciated? You get an interesting letter from an old friend late in the week.

SAGITTARIUS – Nov 23/Dec 21 Happiness is the name of the game this week. Sagittarius. You're in a great mood, and everything is working out well for you. Enjoy it while it lasts. A close friend sets you up with someone. Try not to be nervous; you're sure to have a good time. Cancer plays a key role.

CAPRICORN – Dec 22/Jan 20
Set a good example for your younger relatives. They look to you for guidance; don't steer them in the wrong direction. A loved one shares a secret with you. While it shocks you, you must keep it to yourself, or else there will be a lot of tension at an upcoming family gathering.

AQUARIUS – Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on the go early in the week,
Aquarius. Don't let your hectic schedule distract you from your responsibilities. A close friend asks for your advice about a personal relationship.
Be honest with him or her. However, don't get caught in the middle of a lover's quarrel. Virgo plays a role.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20 It seems as if everyone you know is holding you back this week, Pisces.

No matter how hard you try, you just can't seem to get ahead, and no one will help you. Don't get discouraged; things will change before the week is over. That special someone showers

IN FOCUS

Robert Urich takes off in the role of Glen "Lucky" Singer, a pilot trying to find a way to land a malfunctioning plane, in Final Descent, premiering Sunday, Oct. 12, on CBS.

When a small prop plane runs into the tail section of Lucky's jumbo jet, he and his co-pilot (Annette O'Toole) struggle to regain control.

Although the plane is still able to fly, the pilots soon discover that it can neither level off nor descend; it can only ascend.

John de Lancie also stars.

The 50th anniversary of Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager's breaking of the sound barrier is the subject of "Faster Than Sound," an episode of Nova airing Tuesday on PBS (check local listings).

'Faster Than Sound' recalls breaking of barrier

By Suzanne Gill

oTVData Features Syndicate

High above the California desert on Oct. 14, 1947, a 24-year-old test pilot flying a bright red rocket broke through the sonic wall, and the sound he made still echoes.

PBS catches up with Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager in "Faster Than Sound," an episode of Nova that celebrates the 50th anniversary of the first supersonic flight. It airs Tuesday, Oct. 14, on PBS (check local listings).

Yeager, 74, continues to visits to the hangars at Edwards Air Force Base, where he puts the latest generation of planes through their paces. While the show reveals him to be a fan of ultralights and hang gliders, Yeager took his most famous and "most useful" ride in the bullet-shaped Bell X-1 rocket.

American and British pilots first attempted to reach Mach I (the speed of sound, about 750 mph at sea level) during World War II while engaged in a dangerous race with the Axis to become the first to attain supersonic Yeager's warbird at the time was a P-51 Mustang he named Glamorous Glennis for his wife. Shot down over France in March 1944, he evaded capture and made his way to neutral

"There's not a German made that can catch a West Virginian in the woods, the flying ace recalls.

Tapped for research flying following the war, Yeager reveals in "Faster Than Sound" that he was testing about 10 new aircraft in October 1947, including the Bell X-1.

Thanks to a top-secret maneuverable "flying tail," he finally exceeded Mach I, and seconds later, his buddies on the ground heard the first sonic boom.

Five more Cold War years passed before the Soviets sounded their reply. Britain, which had scrapped a program similar to the Bell X-1, would always wonder whether it could have outflown the Americans.

But for an aviation pioneer, there was only one thing to think.

"When we got above the speed of sound," Yeager says, "I thought, 'That's finished; now I can get on with the rest of my test programs.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels oTVData Features Syndicate

Q: Last year in school we watched The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman. Was she a real person? I thought she wasn't, but my teacher said she was. Please clear this up. -Curious Student via e-mail.

A: Your teacher is misinformed. While Cicely Tyson certainly brought Jane Pittman to vivid life, the TV movie, which won nine Emmys, was based on Ernest J. Gaines' epic novel of the same name.

Q: What happened to my favorite show, Crook & Chase? Will we see it again soon? -Donna, Flint, Mich.

A: The syndicated show ended on Sept. 26, but viewers can still catch Charlie Chase and Lorianne Crook on The Nashville Network.

Q: Please give us an update on the condition of figure skater Scott Hamilton. I have seen no news lately. -Alice of East Haven, Conn.

A: I notice your letter was written before Hamilton, who is battling testicular cancer, wrote a very moving and upbeat cover story on his condition for the Sept. 6 issue of People.

For those who missed and can't find that issue, Hamilton's prognosis is still favorable after enduring initial chemotherapy. He returned to the ice his strength is still well below par, he hopes to shoot a CBS special sometime this month.

Q: Can you tell me the title and author of the poem read in Four Wed-dings and a Funeral? -Connie Stewart, Lorain, Ohio.

A: That was W.H. Auden's "Funeral Blues," which contains the haunting verse "He was my North, my South, my East and West/My working week, my Sunday rest,/My noon, my midnight, my talk, my song;/I thought that love would last for ever: I was wrong."

Q: Are David Nelson (The Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet) and Kyle Chandler (Early Edition) related? Is Peter Donat the son of actor Robert Donat? Will there be a sequel to The Commitments? Didn't the actor who plays the title role on The Red Green Show once make a cameo appearance on Due South? -J.T. in Florida.

A: No to questions 1 and 2. The Snapper and The Van are both Commitments sequels. Yes, Steve Smith played Red Green on a 1995 episode of Due South called "North."

Q: What was the name of the TV movie in which Lucille Ball played a bag lady, and why hasn't it been repeated since its original airing? I really liked it. -R.D.G., Jasper, Texas.

A: Stone Pillow has aired several times and is readily available via syndication to any TV station.

Q: What happened to actor Laurence Harvey? -Dora McDermott, Hot Springs, Ark.

A: Harvey died of cancer in 1973. He

SOAP WORLD

Children's benefit part of Byrne's fast-paced world

By Candace Havens

oTVData Features Syndicate

On a typical workday, Martha Byrne, who plays Lily on As the World Turns, rolls out of bed at 5:30 a.m. and hits the floor running.

She drives from her home in upstate New York to Manhattan, does the hair and makeup thing, blocks and tapes the show for the day, and then goes home to cook dinner for her husband.

"I'm very motivated to do something all the time," Byrne says. "When I get something in my mind that I want to do, I just do it.

These days, she's also calling daytime stars, restaurants and others to help with the fourth annual Daytime Salutes St. Jude Children's Hospital event. On Friday, Oct. 17, Byrne hosts a big party, dinner and show where more than 500 fans can meet their favorite daytime stars at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in New York.

"It's a chance for fans to eat, talk to and have fun with their favorite daytime actors. It's one-on-one interaction and a whole lot of fun," Byrne says.

The benefit show includes a singing performance by Byrne. She's in the process of working on a new CD and has tried her hand at writing songs.

"I didn't think I had what it took to write songs, but I did it. Now I don't know how good they are," she says with a laugh.

Byrne says her husband, Michael

McMahon, is supportive of her careers in music and acting, but he isn't impressed with the celebrity side of it.

"He's proud of me, but he's a detective in the Bronx, so he's seen everypresses him. But he always encourages me to take risks and try new things with my career," she says.

While Byrne was working on the film The Marksmen, due out in the spring of 1998, a producer inspired her to write a screenplay. "It is a comedy about something that happened in my love life when I was 18," she says.

This (acting) business is too fickle. have to protect myself. There's a lot of things I want to do," she says. "I try and see what avenue opens up and then go down it."

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
