CLINTON GETS POWER TO SHOOT DOWN B-2

WASHINGTON (AP) — The long push on Capitol Hill for more B-2 bombers ended in apparent defeat Friday as House-Senate negotiators agreed to leave the decision to President Clinton, who has adamantly opposed buying more.

In completing work on a $247.5 billion defense bill, lawmakers also voted to cut off money for the Bosnia peacekeeping mission by next June. Clinton could gain more funding only by going to Congress and explaining the reasons for extending the deployment, the number of troops needed and the new withdrawal date.

"The president would have to communicate with the Congress and he would have to make his case," said Rep. C.W. "Bill" Young, R-Fla., chairman of the House Appropriations national security subcommittee.

Resolution of the B-2 debate almost certainly means no new bombers will be ordered — at least until next year when advocates of the bat-winged plane are likely to take up the fight again. Clinton has said repeatedly that the Air Force has higher priorities than the B-2 and can get by with the 21 aircraft already in service or on order.

TABLOID SALES SOAR AFTER DIANA'S DEATH

DALLAS (AP) — Three weeks after the death of Princess Diana, customers can't find any tabloids to browse through as they checkout at the Lewisville Piggly Wiggly.

The store is sold out. "The distributor brought a bunch on Tuesday, but we're all sold out now," said Tabitha Delcampo, the supermarket's assistant manager. "We have two copies of People left, I think, and I assume they'll be gone by the weekend."

And it's not just Piggly Wiggly that is having trouble keeping tabloids on the stands.

Tabloid sales in North Texas are up 25 percent since the princess's death Aug. 31 in Paris, said Craig Martinez, director of marketing for ETD Kromar, the principal distributor of periodicals in the region.

The jump in sales comes despite harsh criticism of the tabloids' coverage of Princess Diana's life and the decision by some supermarket chains to temporarily suspend selling them.

Still, the death of Princess Diana has had some effect. Some grocery stores have removed tabloids from checkout lines on a week-by-week basis, Martinez said. Some, like Brookshire's Food Stores of Tyler, have decided to do so permanently.

KOREAN PEACE TALKS STALL; NORTH BLAMED

NEW YORK (AP) — The diplomatic campaign to bring North Korea into four-way peace talks has bogged down, and U.S. officials say it is up to the North Koreans to revive it.

After two days of meetings in New York, U.S. officials said Friday the North Koreans insisted that they would attend a peace conference only if the negotiations address the withdrawal of the 37,000 American soldiers in South Korea.

The meetings — including the United States, China and North and South Korea — were to pave the way for a peace conference in Geneva to replace the 1953 armistice that ended the Korean War. The Korean peninsula is one of the last flashpoints of the Cold War.

During the latest round of preparatory talks, the North Koreans repeated demands they made during the opening session last month, asking for firm guarantees of food aid and a separate peace treaty with Washington, excluding South Korea.

The United States and South Korea long have rejected those conditions.

Gaitan likes 'scat' duties

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Not every young woman would enjoy having youngsters pointing at her, laughing and yelling, "There's the cow! There's the cow!"

But Amanda Gaitan's not your average young lady. The Hereford High School senior is this year's "scat," or mascot.

She's the one on the sidelines at the Hereford football games, the one wearing the cow costume.

As the "scat" mascot, Gaitan's the latest in a line of HHS students who have proudly worn the whiteface head and suit. The first "scat," or at least as far as can be determined by looking at old high school yearbooks, was Jay Boynton in 1963.

The "scat" tag was attached to the mascot in honor of L.B. "Scat" Russell, a longtime Hereford High School principal.

Gaitan had to work to earn her spot on the sidelines. She had to participate in tryouts and survive a student-body vote before earning the "scat" cow costume.

At the tryout, Gaitan went through a skit. "I had people in the background dressed up like the cheerleaders. I did a dance and put on a show," she said.

"This is something I've wanted to do ever since I've been in high school. It's something that's fun and different."

When she arrives at the stadium for the game, the "scat" draws the attention of children.

"Little children call me the 'cow.' They yell, 'Here comes the cow! Here comes the cow!'" she said and smiled.

"The kids want to touch the head, pat the cheek. Sometimes they pull the tail."

As hot as it's been during the first part of the season, Gaitan said the costume hasn't been too uncomfortable.

"It's cotton. It's a thin material and I wear clothing under thing, but it's not as uncomfortable as it might seem," she said.

One thing that she's managed to avoid this season is being trampled by the football players.

"The cheerleaders have taken care of me," she said.

Weekend Profile

When the football team comes onto the field, they burst through a banner and follow the cheerleaders and the mascot, wearing the bulky cow head, to the bench.

"We run as well as the football players," she said. "We have to get out of the way. Two cheerleaders have my arms when we're running."

One of the most enjoyable things about being the mascot, Gaitan said, is the reaction of children.

"I love making the little kids laugh," she said.

The least-favorite part of the job is pretty obvious, at least during the warm weather: "Sweating so much under the head."

Gaitan is the daughter of Danny and Nelda Gaitan of Hereford. Her father is an assistant manager at Homeland supermarket in Amarillo; her mother is a nurse at the Hereford Women's & Children's Health Clinic.

When she's not on the sidelines in her cow costume, Gaitan is an honor student, carrying an "A" average, playing the "quints" (a five-drum set) for the high school band and serving as a senior representative on the Student Council. She also served during the summer as a volunteer, working with children.

"I did babysitting. My mother's a nurse. She helps teenage moms who come to the clinic, and I took care of their babies, babysitting," Gaitan said.

Even though she's enjoying her stint as the "scat," Gaitan already is looking ahead. After graduating from high school, she plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock, where she will begin studying to become a psychiatrist.

She said she wanted to enter that field because "I'm a good listener and I want to help people."

Right now, she's helping people, especially children, by putting on that cow costume and entertaining them at the football games.

Just about every school has a mascot, but only Hereford has a "scat."

And, that "scat" is Amanda Gaitan.

Agency has tough job of deciding when child's abused

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Is it punishment or child abuse, neglect or brief inattentiveness?

Many questions exist about child abuse, neglect and the agency charged with investigating abuse complaints.

Observers can go into any store and hear a child crying because a parent won't give in to the child's wishes.

The parent swats the child on the rump, someone gasps and eventually the Children's Protective Services is called.

Across town, a woman leaves two small children unattended and unrestrained in a running vehicle.

The 4-year-old climbs out, the 3-year-old pretends to drive and accidentally engages the drive gear.

The vehicle goes forward and pins the older child against the building.

The child survives, but suffers a broken pelvis and internal injuries.

CPS is never called because it was left to the investigating police officer's discretion. The officer felt the woman had learned her lesson by trying to see the child in the hospital for several weeks.

Similar events happen every day throughout the state, so when does CPS step in and see that children are receiving proper care?

Danny Jackson, regional supervisor for the Amarillo office of Children's Protective Services, said more than a report of suspected child abuse is necessary for a child to be removed from a home.

"We investigate every case that falls within our guidelines, but many people don't understand those guidelines," Jackson said.

"One of the things they don't understand is that we have more cases than we can handle. We can't investigate concerns of head lice or every dirty house. We have to choose the most serious cases and try to help the children and the families with the greatest need," he said.

Jackson said if a child's life is in imminent danger, then CPS workers may remove the child, and start the process to determine the likelihood of the child being able to return safely to the home.

"Of all the calls we get for just Hereford children, 27-28 percent are validated," said Jackson. "Out of those validated cases, 33-34 percent need further services and 25 percent require followup after the investigation is complete."

CPS workers use similar processes to evaluate conditions for a child who has been removed and an investigation of suspected abuse.

Jackson said the CPS workers will talk to the parents and the children in the home; speak with friends, neighbors, and relatives about the involved family; and determine the needs of a family.

"Many times people say they called about a situation and nothing was done. What they don't understand is the workers may be working with a family, in a variety of ways, even though the children were not removed," said Jackson.

Families may receive counseling as families, individuals or both.

Parenting classes may be recommended to teach adults who grew up in abusive situations more effective methods of dealing with children.

Sometimes other agencies need to be contacted to alleviate problems that are leading to conditions where abuse is likely to happen.

This may mean daytime child care has to be arranged to give parents a break or an opportunity to work without having to worry about the care of the children.

"When a worker feels that it is necessary to remove the child immediately, the DA (district attorney) is notified and emergency custody actions are taken," said Jackson.

"But, this is a last resort. We work very hard to keep families together, or get them back together and functioning in an acceptable manner," he said.

Unacceptable actions include ill treatment which leads to observable injury to the child.

Even with observable injury, children are not removed unless workers feel the action will continue, worsen or endanger the child.

"Crisis intervention is what we work for," said Jackson. "The only way we can do that is to convince the community we are here to help."

WAXAHACHIE JAIL DEATH INVESTIGATED

DALLAS - After public protests, the FBI has opened a civil rights investigation into the death of a 24-year-old Waxahachie man who died in police custody last month, authorities said.

Ramiro Salgado Uriostegui was being held in the detoxification cell at the Waxahachie City Jail when officials found him hanged by his belt from a waist-high doorknob at about 1:30 a.m. Aug. 9.

His death was ruled a suicide and a city investigation found no wrongdoing by police or jailers.

Special Agent Marjorie Poche, an FBI spokeswoman, said the bureau opened the inquiry at the request of Waxahachie Police Chief Allwin Barrow. The agency has until Sept. 23 to submit a preliminary report to the Department of Justice, which will review the case.

FBI ARRESTS REPUBLIC OF TEXAS FUGITIVE

HOUSTON - Richard Frank Keyes III's capture was not as he had once imagined it, and the Republic of Texas fugitive didn't look like the same man who'd eluded law officers this summer by slipping into the mountains. Bearded at Fort Davis when the armed separatists held a weeklong standoff, Keyes was clean-shaven when FBI agents cornered him Friday near Houston.

Keyes, 22, was caught off-guard and surrounded, said Chris Swecker, FBI assistant special agent in charge in Houston. He said Keyes, who had stashed unopened supplies in a national forest, was unarmed and didn't have a chance to flee.

Keyes' arrest satisfied the couple who identified him among a group that had taken them hostage in the Davis Mountains four months earlier.

"I can't wait for them to get his butt out here to the Presidio County Jail to be with his Republic of Texas friends, let the criminal justice work on them a bit," said Joe Rowe, president of the Property Owners' Association at the Davis Mountains Resort where the standoff occurred.

Getting ready

Boxes were opened, clothes were unwrapped, it looked like Christmas at North Plaza Shopping Center earlier this week as employees of the new Bealls store at 531 N. Highway 385 stocked inventory at a feverish pace in preparation for the store's grand opening Friday, Sept. 25th. Taking part in the fray were, from left, Helen Arntt, Becky Coronado - store manager, Eric Gomez, Carol Marquez and Sacora Belknap - assistant manager. Bealls will replace Anthony's in that location.

Medicare plans to waive insurance premiums

WASHINGTON (AP) - Medicare will offer to waive or discount monthly health insurance premiums for millions more elderly Americans near poverty next year. But advocates for the elderly fear that for many the aid will continue to be just out of reach.

"The vast majority of people who need this help are not getting it," said Ron Pollack, executive director of Families USA.

Nationwide as of this month 252,345 elderly Americans with incomes between the federal poverty line and 20 percent above it are getting help paying Medicare premiums, the Health and Human Services Department says.

That is only about 12.6 percent of the 2 million who private groups estimate have been entitled to the aid since 1993.

When Congress and President Clinton this summer agreed to raise Medicare premiums more than $20 a month by 2002, they also created a $1.5 billion fund to offer aid to those with incomes between 20 percent and 75 percent above the federal poverty level.

For the first time, senior citizens with incomes 20 percent to 35 percent above the poverty line - between about $9,475 and $10,660 a year for an individual - may qualify for a full waiver of the monthly premium for coverage of doctors' visits and other outpatient treatment.

In 1998, the premium will be $528.40 or $45.70 a month, and will gradually rise to $704 or $67 a month by 2002, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

Elderly people with incomes 35 percent to 75 percent above the poverty line - between about $10,660 and $13,818 a year for individuals - may be able to get a premium discount of $1.20 a month or $14.40 a year in 1998. That will rise to $8.10 a month or $97.20 a year by 2002, offsetting new costs gradually added to cover home health care benefits.

To qualify, seniors must also have few other financial resources such as savings accounts or property. Still, advocates for the elderly estimate the number eligible for help will more than double.

A study soon to be released by the National Senior Citizens Law Center found that many obstacles can stand in the way of actually getting it, though.

The study found that only a dozen states have outreach plans of their own that get multiple government agencies involved in publicizing the aid program to low-income elderly people.

Forty-one states require general public assistance applications - some as long as 20 pages that must be backed up by extensive personal documents. In 26 states, these can only be filed through overburdened welfare offices, which often give no consideration to the special needs of the elderly.

"This is a little-known benefit and it's difficult to access," said Patricia Nemore of the center.

NativeScapes planned

The Texas Department of Agriculture has kicked off the TEXAS GROWN NativeScape certification program to encourage homeowners, businesses, schools, botanical gardens and other to landscape with plants indigenous to their area of Texas.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said the program is designed to promote water conservation and nursery sales of native Texas plant species.

"The program is for proud Texans - native and naturalized - who recognize the beauty and economy of using Texas native plants and want to make a long-term contribution and commitment to water conservation," Perry said.

"We want to see NativeScapes everywhere from public parks to botanical centers and home gardens," he said.

A Perry initiative adopted in conjunction with comprehensive water legislation during the last session of the legislature requires state agencies to buy native Texas plants for landscaping, when the cost and quality are equal to non-Texas species.

NativeScape expands on the new legislation by including any location that is landscaped.

TDA will provide a list of wholesale and retail growers, garden centers and landscapers which can supply native Texas plant species. Native species include flowers, shrubs, trees, ground covers and grasses.

Layoffs

Firms look to the shareholders, announce job cuts

NEW YORK (AP) - Just when it seemed safe to feel good about your job - maybe even ask for a raise - along comes a new round of big layoffs by companies eager to please Wall Street.

After months of quiet, the five biggest layoff announcements of the year have all come in the last 11 weeks, including big cuts by Woolworth, International Paper, and one this week by Whirlpool.

But experts say the healthy economy will make it easier for many of those laid off to find new work. The nation's unemployment rate was 4.9 percent last month, near a 24-year low.

"It's not as if these people are going to languish for a year on the unemployment line," said John Challenger of the job-placement service Challenger, Gray & Christmas

Inc. "But it does create a sense of anxiety. You never know when its going to hit your company."

That anxiety is one factor keeping workers from demanding higher pay, which in turn is holding down inflation. "Each time it seems wages are going to go up, in comes another wave of downsizing," Challenger said.

Challenger, who tracks layoff announcements in a monthly report, said the period from April through June was among the quietest this decade for layoff news.

Then, Woolworth and International Paper said in July they would each shed at least 9,000 workers, or roughly 10 percent of their work forces. Stanley Works and Fruit of the Loom followed soon after with cuts of nearly 5,000 each.

On Thursday, Whirlpool said it would trim 4,700 jobs, and hours later Food Lion said it would close 61 supermarkets in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana and lay off 3,100.

Toro, the snowblower maker, put a chill through its workers Thursday by saying it will close a plant in Minnesota that employs 230.

And it could get worse before its better.

"I see this trend continuing," said Ned Riley, chief investment officer with BankBoston. "Some of the major companies, the Cokes, the Intels, they all have mentioned that revenue growth is difficult to achieve."

Which points to a key reason for the latest cutbacks: appeasing investors eager for improved bottom lines. That was also true during the early 1990s, when General Motors, Sears and IBM all laid off tens of thousands. But the stock market's stunning rise since then has drawn even greater demands from the public for profit improvements.

In typical fashion, shares of Whirlpool surged 14 percent Thursday after the company announced the layoffs. Food Lion shares rose 4 percent Friday on its news, which came after the markets closed Thursday.

Eastman Kodak, its stock off by more than a third since February because of a price war with Japanese rival Fuji, is planning cost-cutting steps that are expected to result in layoffs.

Many of the recent cuts, on the other hand, are merger-related. Wells Fargo said last month it would cut an additional 1,200 workers because of its 1996 acquisition of First Interstate Bancorp.

'ER' cast agrees to 2 live performances

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The cast of "ER" has agreed to perform the popular NBC show twice next week so West Coast fans can watch the season opener live with the rest of the country.

"A lot of people would say to us, 'Yeah, "ER" live, but on the East Coast, not to us,'" executive producer John Wells said Thursday.

Cast members will perform Thursday's opener at 7 p.m. PDT for live broadcast in the Eastern and Central time zones. They will perform again at 10 p.m. PDT for broadcast in the Pacific zone.

Viewers in the Mountain time zone will watch a tape-delay of the Eastern Time zone show. NBC did not want to alter next week's schedule, which also includes the "Seinfeld" season opener.

Many of the show's actors have a theater background and welcome the chance to have a second crack at a live show, Wells said.

"There's a sense when you do a single performance that you would like another shot at it," he said. "We'll get two hours to sit around and try to figure out the things we could have done better."

Stage managers and crew near the stage will be outfitted in surgical scrubs, just in case they end up in a shot, said NBC Entertainment President Warren Littlefield.

"They asked if it's possible we could make it any more difficult," he said. "We just hadn't put that hurdle high enough."

Saks, N-M wage retail war

DALLAS (AP) - For 13 years, Neiman Marcus sales associate Leda Lloret performed fashion wizardry as a "couture doctor," helping Houston's richest ladies select their wardrobes.

Then rival Saks Fifth Avenue came calling, offering her a position at its lavish, new store opening on the opposite end of the posh Houston Galleria.

With its complete day spa, upscale hair salon and full restaurant, the Saks position was an offer Ms. Lloret couldn't refuse.

"They have such an incredible new store. It's a temple of art," Ms. Lloret gushed. "People are going to flock into Saks. The first year should be wild. A total revolution in the city."

In the high-stakes, high-priced world of upscale retailing, Saks and Neiman Marcus often go head-to-head. But Texas is their latest - and maybe most fierce - battle to date, an ugly fight for the ritzy folks who can afford to shop in their stores.

Neiman Marcus was born 90 years ago this month in downtown Dallas. Early customers included cowboys, Indians and women from rural outposts in Texas where land had yielded oil.

Over the years, Neiman Marcus became a pioneer in the high-end market. In 1920s, they were first to offer personalized gift wrapping for customers and created the first weekly retail fashion show in the country. In 1960, it also started a Christmas tradition of exotic his and her gifts, which continues today.

Neiman Marcus owned the Texas market, and few could challenge that hold. But Saks plans to try.

"You know, Houston is our ranch. And we're not crazy about poachers," said Neiman Marcus chief executive Burt Tansky.

Nonetheless, it hasn't escaped Tansky's notice that Saks hosted its gala preview in Houston on Sept. 10, the 90th anniversary of his store's founding. Neiman Marcus will mark the occasion this month with barbecues, black-tie parties, limited-edition merchandise and exhibits - including a Texas big hair display and a 90-foot dining room table with place settings depicting historical events throughout the decades.

"This is their 15 minutes. They're entitled to it, they're opening a new store," Tansky said. "We're doing what we have to do in order to deal with all of this and we expect to continue to prosper."

Saks' plans in the Lone Star state are expansive. Another Houston store is set to open this fall, stores in Dallas and San Antonio will be expanded and a smaller "Main Street" store in Austin will be added in November.

CARTOON CREATOR SIGNS CONSULTING DEAL

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - Bugs Bunny and Pepe Le Pew creator Chuck Jones has signed a long-term consulting deal with Warner Bros. animated properties.

An 85th birthday party for Jones at the studio Wednesday night was the backdrop for the announcement of the four-time Oscar winner's role as the conscience and resident historian of the animated division.

Jones signed his first Warner contract in 1934 - a $20 a week deal. Details of the new pact weren't disclosed, but Jones said, "This new contract is better than the first."

His animated creations are based on aspects of his own personality. "I dream of being Bugs Bunny, but when I wake up I'm Daffy Duck or Wile E. Coyote," Jones said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to take exception to a statement I read in "United Way Using Rainbow To Symbolize Its Campaign", (The Hereford Brand, Sept. 18). According to the article, Larry Barnes, Director of Development for the Golden Spread Council of Boy Scouts of America, emphasized that 99 percent of all United Way Funds donated locally stay in Hereford.

I have been involved in both Cub Scouting, and currently Boy Scouts, for the last seven years. And I can tell you that the only monies I have seen involving either organization have been those the boys earned themselves through different money-making drives such as popcorn and meat sales, and carwashes, which local residents have been so good to support.

These fundraisers have helped the boys earn enough to further their advance through the ranks of Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts, the most important facet being the camping trips where they learn, through practical experience, what they need to know.

And like many other organizations, if there isn't enough money available to fund these activities, then it comes from parents who will do what is needed to support these boys.

We approached the United Way and the Golden Spread Council a few years ago to see if we could receive any of these funds - funds which we have been told over and over again "Stay here." None of the people involved at that time told us we could actually have any of those funds, but that these funds helped us in other ways because they were used to buy uniforms, equipment and advancement badges - all of which were available for purchase at the Scout Store in Amarillo.

Isn't that paying for it twice?

I even asked if there was a way to actually apply through United Way as an organization, so that all of the scouting organizations in Hereford, not just ours, might see some assistance that way. Again, I was told we couldn't do that.

To those people of Hereford who support us in all of our fund-raising drives, we appreciate and need you. I can assure you that the funds we raise go to the boys. For those who think we don't need help because we receive assistance from the United Way, please know that just isn't true.

I do not mean to hurt the United Way Campaign at all. I am sure there are some organizations that are served by the money raised through United Way and I would not want to deprive them of any help they receive. However, I would like to make it clear that the United Way, as far as I can tell, is not as helpful with scouting programs as we are led to believe.

Kenneth Cook

Dear Editor:

I have been involved in Boy Scouts in Hereford almost eight years now and I would like to clarify a statement I've heard several times in the last couple of weeks concerning Hereford Scouts and the United Way campaign.

I strongly support the United Way effort and agree that funds collected by them help support our council and district administrative costs. We have to have support at that level.

But local units in Hereford do not receive any of this money. These funds are sent to our Amarillo Council office.

The only reason I want this known is not to ask for this money, but to let our local merchants and citizens know that when a Hereford Boy Scout solicits them for a donation, or asks them to buy meat or popcorn, or any other fund raiser, then that is the only way he's getting financial help to get him the awards he has earned and to take him camping. It takes a considerable amount of money to do that.

Every penny earned in these fund raisers goes directly to our scouts in Hereford, and all units face financial troubles every year.

I'm asking you to continue supporting United Way in any way you can, especially for all the other programs it supports. But also consider that Hereford Boy Scouts need support in both areas.

Editor:

Once again, the generous hearts of our community came forward. On Sept. 6-7, with the help of many businesses and individuals, our association was able to make a donation of $4,500 to our "local" Make-a-Wish Chapter.

Although several hundred and, perhaps, thousands, of manhours were required to make the Heifers & Bulls Tournament a success, in less than 72 hours the donation became a reality. Thanks to all those who helped, but a special recognition is needed for "behind the scenes" people.

The City of Hereford: Thanks, (City Manager) Chester Nolen, for having the insight to realize that our golf course truly is an asset. Within the past 13 months, golf tournaments run by our association alone have resulted in donations in excess of $11,500 to the local Make-a-Wish chapter.

CP&P Special Committee: For assisting our association in the promotion of the golf course.

To the entire staff of John Pitman Municipal Golf Course for having the course in such great shape.

To Don Cumpton of the Chamber of Commerce, for putting up with us. These past months over $7,000 in Hereford money was awarded to contestants in our tournaments.

To Terri Johnson and Candi Henderson, for so many hours of "special" help that made our golf tournament a big hit with the contestants.

Red Sox fans expect disappointment

Fall's in the air, and that means the World Series isn't too far away. Thanks to the decision by the Lords of Baseball to let television network executives decide when the World Series will begin and what time the games will be played, we still have to go through the interminable playoffs before the fall classic actually can get under way.

While it's still uncertain what two teams will be in the World Series, there is one thing that's usually pretty certain: the Boston Red Sox won't be on of them. And, if by some miracle, the Red Sox do make the series, they won't win. After all, Boston hasn't won the World Series since 1918, way back when Babe Ruth was still a pitcher, the U.S. was in World War I, and you could buy a Ford Model T in any color you wanted, just as long as it was black.

I became a Red Sox fan when I was a kid, living on a small farm in Howard County, Ark. At the time I started following the Red Sox, there were two teams in Boston - the Red Sox and the Braves, who later would pull up stakes and move to Milwaukee, and still later, to Atlanta. The Dodgers were still in Brooklyn; the Giants were in New York; the Athletics were in Philadelphia; and there were no Baltimore Orioles, they were in St. Louis and were known as the Browns.

It was strange to find a Red Sox fan in southwestern Arkansas. Back then, we didn't watch baseball on television, we listened to the games on radio - and in southwest Arkansas that meant Harry Caray and the St. Louis Cardinals. So, most of my friends were Cardinal fans.

But, not me. No, for some reason that is unclear to me now, I picked out the Boston Red Sox to be MY major league team. Not the New York Yankees, who were the year-in, year-out world champs in the late '40s and most of the '50s. No, I had to pick the Boston Red Sox, a team that had been to the World Series just one time - in 1946 - since 1918, and they managed to lose that one.

Still I loved the Red Sox. I tolerated Harry Caray and his Cardinals just so I could find out the score of the Red Sox game. I followed closely the careers of my two favorite Boston players, Ted Williams and Jimmy Piersall. During the summer, I'd even come inside to sit by the radio of the Red Sox were broadcast on the "Mutual Game of the Day."

But I never got to see the Red Sox play. I came close in 1957 - the year that Ted Williams hit .388, nearly becoming the first player to hit .400 since he did it himself in 1941. My dad was on vacation, and we were going to visit my mother's older sister in Tulsa, Okla., so we took a little detour to Kansas City, where the Red Sox were in town for a series with the Athletics.

Before the game, I met both Ted Williams and Jimmy Piersall, managing to get autographs from each player. We watched batting practice and got to see Williams park a few over the rightfield fence. But just as the game was about to start, the skies opened up and the rain came down in buckets. The umpires didn't wait 10 minutes before calling the game.

The next day, the teams played a doubleheader, but by that time my family was in Tulsa, and I had to be content to listen to the play-by-play on the radio.

I guess I should have expected that to happen. After all, if you're a Red Sox fan, you just naturally expect to be disappointed.

Don't take those children for granted

In a society of fast cars, convenience foods, and three-day weekends many things seem to get taken for granted.

When we take the car in for an oil change, we take it for granted the technician will drain the oil, change the filter, replace the oil pan plug, and refill the oil pan with an appropriate kind and amount of oil.

We take our pets to the vet for annual vaccinations and just assume they are protected from rabies, parvo, distemper and other diseases.

Living in the Texas Panhandle, we take it for granted that spring is a time when the wind is going to blow and with it so does the dirt.

It just happens. But what about some things that are taken for granted that really shouldn't be?

Children, for instance. They come into this world as helpless little beings and what they become depends to a great extent on the life they see as they grow older.

It used to aggravate me every time my mother said, "I never really worried about Dianna. She was always the one with good sense."

It's my opinion that each child comes into the world with a certain amount of common sense. Depending on how each child is encouraged to cultivate this trait, as well as how the child chooses to use the trait, determines whether other people consider the adults that children become to have good sense or not.

There seems to be some things that even a person of limited intelligence and very little cultivated good sense ought to recognize.

The Real World

By Dianne F. Dandridge

For example, children are smart, curious and very adept at taking advantage of any situation.

These unoccupied, intelligent little minds can find all sorts of mischief to get into that could be easily prevented if a watchful adult were to take on the responsibility of the children.

I'm a mom; I know what kind of trouble kids can get into. One child jumped off the merry-go-round and bit off the tip of her tongue because she was trying to imitate the older kids and wasn't coordinated enough to manage it.

The family doctor did a remarkable job of reattaching the severed body part.

Another child asked to play in the water and got stuck when she sat in a 5-gallon bucket we used to water the dogs.

When I was finished laughing, I turned the bucket upside down. Slurp! Plop! She came out of the bucket.

What Others are Saying

By The Associated Press

Here are excerpts from editorials in newspapers in the United States and abroad:

The Advocate, Baton Rouge, La., on Army sex:
The Army has taken a good, hard look at itself in the wake of a sexual abuse scandal that broke last November at its Aberdeen Proving Ground, and it doesn't much like what it sees.

The largest study of sexual harassment ever done by the Army was sparked by Aberdeen, where male instructors were accused of sexually abusing female trainees. The study said the abuse hotline the Army established and its prosecution of those accused point to a determination to root out the problem. ...

There's a lot at stake in what the Army decides to do in this case. The 10-month study also showed that the Army's rank and file "uniformly do not have trust and confidence in their leaders" on these issues.

Regaining that trust is paramount if the Army is to change.

The Register-Guard, Eugene, Ore., on tobacco tax break:
It's good to see that even in a Congress awash with tobacco money, there's a limit to what the tobacco companies can achieve. The Senate voted Wednesday to kill a $50 billion tax break for the tobacco industry that had been quickly inserted in the balanced budget bill President Clinton signed last month. ...

The tax break would have allowed the tobacco industry to offset $50 billion of that amount with part of the revenue from a 15-cent-per-pack cigarette tax increase Congress approved earlier.

It's incredible: Money from the 15-cent tax will provide health insurance for uninsured children. The tax break would have siphoned off part of that revenue to pay the tobacco companies' debt for the deaths and illnesses its products have caused. ...

When this daring grab first came to light, its authorship was attributed to Senate majority Leader Trent Lott and House Speaker New Gingrich. USA Today later discovered that the provision was actually written by a tobacco industry lobbyist and was attached to the budget-balancing bill at the insistence of Lott and Gingrich and with the concurrence of the White House. ...

The tobacco industry suffered an important defeat Wednesday, but its money and its lobbyists haven't gone away. The tobacco companies will reach for special favors again, and they may get away with it if political leaders think people aren't watching.

The Dallas Morning News, on failed Weld nomination:

At the very least, former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld deserved a Senate hearing on his nomination to serve as U.S. ambassador to Mexico. But Sen. Jesse Helms, the Republican chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, insisted on denying him one. In the end, Sen. Helms decided to run foreign policy his way.

Gov. Weld's decision Monday to remove his name from consideration as ambassador to Mexico is the end of a sorry legislative chapter. ...

If wise, President Clinton would find Mr. Weld a high-level administration post. Along with Republican Bill Cohen at the Pentagon, Mr. Weld could help create a broad bipartisan government.

Next time, however, Mr. Clinton must work much harder to move his Mexico nominee through the Senate. Mexico is a key ally, although one could not tell it by Mr. Clinton's failure to get deeply involved in the nomination battle. Mexico needs a U.S. ambassador now, not later.

The Topeka Capital-Journal, Topeka, Kan., on Bob Dole's new role:

In quitting the Senate to run for president, Bob Dole said he had no place to go but home. And after his defeat, he good-naturedly filmed a humorous commercial depicting his homecoming in Russell, Kan.

Few actually believed he would settle back in Russell. But the fact is, he landed essentially within the shadow of his old Capitol Hill office - as a superstar attraction at a Washington law firm.

Some thought Dole bordered on crass when he accepted endorsement offers after the 1996 election. But that was fun, and mostly harmless. And Dole's sharp, often self-deprecating, wit actually made his stock go up after the election.

One would hate to see his stock dip as a result of taking what amounts to an influence peddler position. ...

The public is turned off by former politicians turning around and selling access, influence or even their good names. At worst, it's sleazy and quasi-legal. At best - the way Dole seems to be practicing it - it's tacky.

The Kansas City Star, on hate-crime charges:

Missouri has had an ethnic intimidation law on the books for several years. But it was the federal government, not the state, that charged five men last week in connection with a cross-burning in Rushville, Mo.

The men are accused of placing a burning cross on the property of a woman and her three children in August. The victims, of Portuguese extraction, are believed to have been targeted because of their dark complexions. ...

The central point of hate-crime legislation is to punish those who attempt to harm others through actions that induce feelings of fear and isolation. The cowards do their hateful deeds, and their victims are left wondering what they might have done to bring about such acts of aggression. ...

There are times when federal authorities are forced to take action because some people are concerned that local or state officials are failing to enforce state law to the fullest extent. Local officials across Missouri, in small towns as well as larger cities, need to make sure that they are enforcing the laws against hate crimes.

El Dorado News-Times, El Dorado, Ark., on defense spending:

Congress is trying to drop a financial bomb on the American taxpayers. Under the guise of building up the nation's high-tech weapons stockpile, both Democrats and Republicans, it would appear, are trying to make defense contractors happy, happy, happy.

They want more B-2 Stealth bombers. ... The B-2s, which cost about $2 billion a piece, can drop both nuclear and conventional bombs. According to the Congressional Budget Office, nine more bombers would cost $27 billion to build and operate over the next 20 years.

Even Pentagon officials have said the money could be better spent elsewhere, and Defense Secretary William Cohen has said he would recommend a presidential veto of more B-2 funding.

Because of their various ailments, the planes can't be operated from overseas bases in areas of unrest. They are kept at a base in Missouri, thousands of miles from any conceivable target.

Which raises the obvious question: What good are they?

The Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk, Va., on frivolous lawsuits:
You have to hand it to the Norfolk jury whose common-sense verdict this week proved the civil judicial system often works.

The jury took only 30 minutes to reject the suit of a man who cut off his own hand then refused to allow a doctor to reattach the severed limb. The man filed suit, alleging the doctor should have obtained a court order to reattach the hand over his own objections.

One wonders why he didn't sue himself over the amputation. Perhaps that's next.

Odd lawsuits like this are the fodder of late-night talk show monologues. But thanks to a conscientious, steady jury, this particular legal oddity was not compounded by a monetary award to the plaintiff.

The Miami Herald, on student achievement tests:
When the federal government says that it wants to set national standards for educational achievement, taxpayers should hold onto their wallets. That's because the government's tendency is to offer 10 cents' worth of advice, but expect a dollar's worth of results.

So it is with President Clinton's proposed national testing program of student achievement. The president believes that residents in Florida, California or Nebraska should be able to compare data on how well their children are performing. Beginning in 1999, fourth graders would be tested for reading skills, and eighth graders would be tested for their math ability.

The government proposes to spend zilch for remediation. Its spending on the program, if approved by Congress, would be miserly at best. ...

Historically, state governments have had greater responsibility for setting schools' educational standards ... and for good reason. What works in Provo, Utah, may not work in Hialeah, Fla. The blitzkrieg of opposition that greeted the Clinton proposal is a tangible demonstration of how deeply ingrained that idea is across the country.

Le Figaro, Paris, on Israel-Palestinian relations:
In the Near-East, Madeleine Albright made points because she dared to be brutal ... but instead of sticking to private reprimands, she made her sermons before television. ...

For Washington, in fact, the Israel-Palestinian quarrel today only represents a secondary theater of operation. Now that the USSR is no longer there to make a second "intifada," the match that could have lit a fire to the total of the Near-East, the priority is elsewhere. ...

In this perspective, the Israelis would have been wrong to use their habitual lobbying. Putting pressure on Jewish-Americans so they would put pressure on the White House would risk being counter-productive.

Henry Kissinger has worry: Madeleine Albright is also a star. But attention, in the Near-East, the successes of yesterday are often the deceptions of the next day.

The Guardian, London, on China:
There was a familiar sound over the weekend when foreign diplomats in Beijing settled down to applaud the new 'pragmatism' of President Jiang Zemin as he announced his intention of selling off state enterprises. ...

The much heralded privatization of state industry will no doubt prove much less sweeping than initial reports ... as Vice Premier Zhu Rongji, the man who will be in charge of it, took pains to explain (on Monday) That is just as well.

Those western diplomats in Beijing who were said on Saturday to be 'excited' by the prospect of 'one of the biggest garage sales of state firms the world has ever seen' are either very stupid or indifferent to the well-being of millions of Chinese workers. Such garage sales have proved disastrous in the former Soviet bloc: reform of China's huge state sector is essential but must be managed with extreme care.

Corriere della Sera, Milan, Italy, on UN reform of Security Council:
The new General Assembly of the United Nations is now meant to start the most important reform in the history of the United Nations, a reform which will close the long chapter of the cold war: The reform of the Security Council.

The council needs to be reformed, in order to better reflect the new strategic and economic organization. But the American-supported reform is a slap in the face for Italy, because it represents a refusal to acknowledge its active foreign politics, just when the rest of Europe recognizes its sacrifices.

Historically, and on the basis of the relations (between US and Italy) this behavior is hard to explain. The slap was probably non-intentional. ... Still American carelessness towards Italy raises a doubt over its international strategy. ...

American foreign policy runs the risk of becoming an inactive one, without either a general plan, or a strong leadership.

The Sydney Morning Herald, Sydney, Australia, on China's economic reforms:

By small degrees, the Communist Party of China is moving forward with its own transformation, if not destruction. The development of economic policy, drawn in broad outline at the opening of the 15th party congress in Beijing last Friday, increases the distance between economic freedom, which is now very great, and political freedom which, except in a highly artificial sense, is still nowhere in sight. ...

There will be a thorough shake-up of state-run enterprises (reducing their number from 130,000 to a strategically placed 512). And the People's Liberation Army, already reduced by almost a quarter in the 1980s under Deng Xiaoping, is to be further reduced by 500,000 by the turn of the century from its present strength of 3.1 million. ...

But that "downsizing" will mean that many workers ... as well as PLA personnel ... will lose not only their jobs but also health, housing and other benefits of the old cradle-to-grave communist system.

China's stability under communism has always depended on the alliance between the party and the armed forces. But the PLA cannot stand against history. And the party, despite its 58 million members, cannot credibly claim to be representative of China's population of almost 1 billion.

Be a good neighbor. Be alert for vandalism or break-ins. If you see anything unusual around a residence or business, call the police. Let's all be involved in policing our neighborhoods.

My third child, having been told he couldn't eat nuts because of an oral surgery, decided to inhale a few peanuts through his nose.

This time the doctor had to use something like a crochet hook to remove the unwanted peanut.

These are all funny incidents about which we laugh - now. They were probably never really serious or life-threatening.

My concern, though, is for the mischief that children find to occupy themselves; mischief which can threaten their lives and those of others.

When young children are left alone or in the care of an incapacitated adult, they are naturally going to find something to occupy themselves.

Matches, cigarette lighters, medicine bottles and cleaning fluids all seem to draw children like magnets.

Combined with an inattentive adult, the stage is set for a perfect tragedy.

The house goes up in flames, someone winds up in the emergency room, or someone dies. Then comes the question: Why did this happen?

The answer is plain and simple: It happened because someone took the children for granted.

Aren't today's children, tomorrow's adults, worth more than a casual thought?

As adults, don't we owe the children a chance and the encouragement to develop their inborn intelligence into a strong common-sense basis for their life?

If so, then maybe a few adults who have in the past shown signs of inhibited intelligence growth should wake up, find the children and give them a useful occupation to keep those active hands and minds busy.

Confirmation process unlikely to change

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another toppled nominee, a crowd of would-be judges awaiting Senate approval, and the confirmation process is in dispute again.

It has been called nasty, brutal, an unfair obstacle to public service, a chamber of horrors and, by its latest casualty, despotism.

It is not likely to change. Would-be reformers have been trying for years, so far back that they once were dealing with complaints that background checks on nominees weren't thorough enough. Now, the background checks are so intensive that everything stalls, even for cases without controversy.

William F. Weld is only the latest confirmation casualty, No. 8 on the roster of high-visibility withdrawals and rejections since President Clinton took office.

Democrats weren't really dismayed at the Republican rift that showed as the nay-saying Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina blocked fellow Republican Weld. The dispute pitted a Southern conservative against a Massachusetts centrist who resigned as governor to try to become ambassador to Mexico.

President Clinton said all the right things, but not at the risk of his foreign policy agenda, which Helms had said could be affected by the Weld dispute. Weld took the hard line, the administration a more cautious one in the foregone undoing of his nomination.

When Weld withdrew, Clinton said the American people were not well served by the process because Weld was denied his right to a fair hearing and the Senate never got to vote, even in committee.

Helms filibustered during the one brief proceeding he had to permit as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He chose to recite a litany of 154 other nominations blocked without hearings in that and other committees over the past 10 years, which includes seven when Democrats were in control.

"I would say Senator Helms is mistaking the problem for the solution," Weld said as he withdrew.

Actually, it doesn't take a chairman to stall a nomination or anything else. Senators can do that by anonymously registering an objection called a "hold," a particularly effective tactic as time runs short near the end of a congressional year.

After the obligatory expressions of regret at what happened to Weld, Senate Democratic leaders said the real confirmation crisis is over federal judges.

They said there were 97 vacancies on the federal bench, 65 nominations hanging, and only 15 confirmed this year. The Republicans who control the process have said they won't sign off on activist judges. Sen. Tom Daschle, the Democratic leader, said Republicans are using the confirmation slowdown to "intimidate the judiciary" toward more conservative judgments.

"We have no real prerogative or no real opportunity to force the issue, except to apply pressure," Daschle said. He said Democrats may do just that, which would mean snarling other Senate business to make their point.

Sen. Trent Lott, the majority leader, said he knew of no concerted Republican effort to intimidate judges who try to make laws instead of interpreting laws. "But it sounds like a good idea to me," he said.

Philosophy always has been a factor in the judging of nominees, usually between parties but in the Weld case, within one. "It's on the social issues where Senator Helms and I part company ... rather dramatically," Weld said.

Their dispute was personal, too. They have little use for each other, and said so.

Philosophy, and conservative rulings, were central when a Democratic Senate rejected the nomination of Robert H. Bork to be a Supreme Court justice a decade ago.

Clinton backed off one of his own nominees for a Justice Department spot after concluding he didn't really agree with her philosophy.

He lost a succession of first-term nominees to controversies about their household help, their taxes and their work status.

Anthony Lake, his former national security adviser, quit earlier this year after his nomination to head the CIA was stalled in confirmation proceedings. He said the nomination had become "a political football in a game with constantly moving goal posts."

Clinton had earlier called the system brutal and said the Senate should consider changes. A Twentieth Century Fund panel recommended in 1996 that background checks be streamlined, filibusters barred, and individual senators prevented from putting a nomination on hold. Proposing those and other changes, the task force said confirmation sometimes becomes "a chamber of horrors."

"Washington sure is a funny town," Weld said in his sardonic withdrawal statement.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

Monarch butterflies winging their way toward Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - Riding the winds of an expected cold front this weekend, millions of Monarch butterflies are headed for Texas.

Some of the butterflies bear tiny tags indicating where they came from, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said Friday that Texans can help in a national effort to solve the mysteries of the migration.

Finding tagged Monarchs, tagging more and keeping track of their numbers and locations is helping researchers understand more about the phenomenon, officials said.

"We know that tens of millions arrive at the central Mexican overwintering sites in late October and early November," said Bill Calvert, an entomologist who's leading the study being funded by the Parks and Wildlife Department and a grant from the Margaret Cullinan Way Trust.

The Texas Monarch Watch Hotline is 1-800-468-9719.

China sees U.S. military flaws

WASHINGTON (AP) - Chinese military officers studying U.S. forces are developing ways to overcome America's high-tech weaponry and defeat what they see as a superpower in decline, a Pentagon analyst said Thursday.

In a laborious translation of hundreds of Chinese military books and journals, the Pentagon found no sign of a post-Cold War warming of relations but rather a military hierarchy calculating its chances in a hypothetical conflict with the United States.

"Chinese military officers and analysts are writing very unfriendly things about the United States," Pentagon analyst Michael Pillsbury told the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The studies acknowledged that Chinese forces remain decades behind the United States in technological prowess, but said China could catch up quickly with power-leveraging weapons such as highly accurate cruise missiles and torpedoes. Navy task forces, strung-out supply convoys, logistics bases, military computers and even stealth aircraft could become vulnerable if China can exploit the right technologies.

Far from hiding these writings, Chinese authorities openly gave them to the Pentagon and promised to provide more.

Pillsbury translated some 200 books and journal articles, most of them written by mid-level Chinese military officers. The study was conducted for Andrew Marshall, head of the Pentagon's Office of Net Assessment, an organization that projects U.S. military threats and priorities two decades from now and beyond.

Although the Pentagon study finds no clear link between the writings of these officers and top-level Chinese military policy, Pillsbury said the writings of officers likely to rise to the top ranks "suggest that China may not be as friendly to the Pentagon as the Pentagon is to China."

One book published last year by Maj. Gen. Li Zeyun contains articles written by 64 Peoples Liberation Army authors listing in detail weaknesses in U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force capability.

"This book represents a common theme in PLA views of future warfare - America is proclaimed to be a declining power with but two or three decades of primacy left," Pillsbury told the committee. The Chinese view, he said, is that "U.S. military forces, while dangerous at present, are vulnerable, even deeply flawed, and can be defeated with the right strategy."

The Chinese strategy, Pillsbury said, involves "asymmetric warfare," leveraging inexpensive technology to defeat expensive U.S. technology.

Some of the writings do not refer directly to the United States, but rather to "the sole superpower today," Pillsbury said.

Home-based work force grows rapidly

NEW YORK (AP) - In the opinion of at least some observers, it is the most monumental demographic shift since the beginning of the industrial revolution.

It has also been described as a home-grown rebellion, an effort to reclaim lives, and a reflection of the new age of communications and technology.

More than 40 million work at home, full time or part time, for themselves or employers, temporarily or permanently, profitably or unprofitably. Some are new-made millionaires, some are bankrupts.

Those self-employed, perhaps 14 million of them, are in almost every type of business. While service firms prevail, some oversee manufacturing from their den, basement or swimming pool.

The so-called telecommuters, 9.1 million of them according to one estimate, are employees rather than entrepreneurs, working at home for corporations. Why transport bodies when data moves faster?

And then there are the rest, some of whom just dillydally or indulge themselves in personal projects and others who take home work from the office so they can get a jump on tomorrow.

This is a roughly defined picture of what those involved call a revolution, and which a few especially cynical critics see as a return to the cottage-industry society of 150 years ago.

Ignoring critics, participants generally view it as a rare chance to create a lifestyle that integrates work and family, and provides independence with a superior income. Many succeed.

So many, that newspapers often detail the triumph of a local entrepreneur, a familiar face, an ordinary person, a neighbor who accomplished it all. If they can, readers think, we can too.

It's an all-American urge, deep in the American psyche, the same urge that created today's mightiest companies and grew them from their origins in the bicycle shop or basement or barn.

But never, say those exploiting the market, has there been more opportunity than now. They see it growing swiftly into a better than $100 billion-a-year market for their goods and services.

This, of course, is the sort of market that magazine publishers dream about and, like good entrepreneurs, act on. The publishers of "Success" magazine have created "Working at Home."

On the cover of the premiere issue, now on newsstands, is Mark Bunting, television's Computer Man. Mark is an inspiring success, but let Editor in Chief Duncan Maxwell Anderson, describe it.

"Six years ago Bunting was deep in debt, living on his teacher wife's salary, waiting to see whether his national television show about computers would find any takers.

He stuck with his passion. He and his young family have moved from their 800 square-foot, rented house into the 13,000 square-foot mansion you see on our cover."

This is Horatio Alger stuff, with a big exception: It is true. Only part of Bunting's big house fit on the cover; cameras and printing press are limited in portraying an unlimited dream.

SINGER TO PERFORM FOR JUDGE WHO SENTENCED HIM

FORT WORTH (AP) - Country singer Ty Herndon plans to perform at a re-election rodeo and concert for the judge who sentenced him on a drug charge.

District Judge James Wilson sentenced Herndon to five years of probation for possession of methamphetamines in 1995. He also released the singer from probation three years early.

Even some within Wilson's own Republican circle question how it looks for him to now be booking Herndon as a fund-raising draw.

"I don't think there's anything illegal about it, but I wouldn't do it," said Tarrant County Republican Party Chairman Steve Hollern.

Bill Lane, Herndon's attorney, scoffed at the notion that the Sept. 28 performance is inappropriate. He said Herndon was released early from probation in May because he was a model probationer.

Names in the News

PRISCILLA PRESLEY
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - She says he's a groupie nursing a grudge since he was booted from Elvis Presley's inner circle nearly 40 years ago. He says she's desperately trying to sustain the myth she was Presley's virginal bride.

Priscilla Presley and Lavern Currie Grant are taking their fight to court in two multimillion-dollar lawsuits. At a hearing Wednesday, which she didn't attend, a trial date was set for May 4.

The Presleys met in Germany when she was 14 and he was 25 and in the Army. They married seven years later in 1967.

Ms. Presley sued Grant, a former Army buddy of Presley's, for $10 million over his claim that he bedded young Priscilla Beaulieu before she met Presley.

Grant filed a $5 million countersuit against Ms. Presley, saying she defamed him by claiming he repeatedly tried to rape her in the 1950s.

Their claims are contained in a book by Suzanne Finstad, "Child Bride: The Untold Story of Priscilla Beaulieu Presley," published last month.

IN BRIEF

Freshmen "A" win

From staff reports
The Hereford Whitefaces Freshman "A" team got three touchdown passes from Eddie Lacey to defeat the Pampa Harvesters 30-6 Thursday night. Hereford rolled to a 23-6 halftime lead behind two of Lacey's touchdown passes and a four-yard run by Gilbert Hernandez. Lacey connected with J.P. Holman on 12-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter to close out the scoring.
The freshmen "A" team will see their next action 5 p.m. Thursday when they host Borger.

Lockout possible

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) -- The league that brought you the three-month lockout of 1995 and the eight-minute lockout of 1996 is pondering another for 1998.
NBA commissioner David Stern and deputy commissioner Russ Granik said Friday they are considering whether to re-open the collective bargaining agreement next summer and impose a lockout.

Your Turn

Football fans and volleyball fans, here's your chance to ask those questions you ask your friends, and yourselves, when you're at the games.

And best of all, you get to ask the coaches. Hereford head football coach Craig Yenzler and head volleyball coach Brenda Kitten.

Deliver your questions to the Hereford Brand or fax them to 364-8364 before 1:30 a.m. Tuesday of each week and we will select the best questions to ask the coaches. Volleyball questions and answers will appear in each Thursday's Brand, football in each Friday's Brand.

You may also call in your questions to 364-2030 between 10 p.m. and 12 a.m. Monday evenings.

Astros blow chance to all but end race

CINCINNATI (AP) -- The Houston Astros wasted another opportunity to all but end the NL Central race.

The Cincinnati Reds piled up 11 hits off Chris Holt, three by Willie Greene, and held on for a 5-4 victory Friday that slowed the Astros' drive towards the division title.

Houston's magic number for clinching fell to six when Pittsburgh lost to St. Louis 6-5 in 11 innings Friday. The Pirates trail by 3 1/2 games.

A win on either of the last two nights would have given the Astros a comfortable lead. Instead, Houston lost them both to keep up the suspense and dropped to just one game over .500 at 77-76.

"You don't want to back in by somebody else losing all the time," Jeff Bagwell said.

It's been that way for the past few weeks, when one good streak could have put the Pirates away and let the Astros enjoy thoughts of the playoffs instead of worrying about getting there.

"I still think we're going to win this thing," manager Larry Dierker said. "Either we're not quite talented enough or fortunate or whatever (for a clinching streak). I don't think it's going to be easy."

"We can't come out flat," said Luis Gonzalez, who homered in the eighth to cut it to 5-4. "After yesterday and today, we got a little reality check. These guys are going to play us tough."

The Reds won for the sixth time in nine games and improved to 28-26 under manager Jack McKeon, who before the game was given a contract extension through 1998.

After languishing in fourth place most of the season, the Reds somehow find themselves still mathematically alive with a week left in the season. They trail the Astros by six games.

"There's no pressure on us," McKeon said. "The pressure's on them. They're the club that's supposed to win. That's why we're loose."

Dave Burba (10-10) gave up three runs and six hits in 6 1-3 innings as he won his fourth consecutive start since returning from a back injury. Jeff Shaw got three outs for his 40th save in 46 chances, four shy of the LUBBOCK -- Never underestimate the power of the West Texas wind.

Lubbock Coronado won the toss Friday night at Lowrey Field and elected to defer, giving the Hereford Whitefaces the ball on offense first.

It was a decision that paid off. With the wind behind them, the Mustangs blew out of the gate fast, scoring 21 first-quarter points en route to a 28-2 win over the Hereford Whitefaces before a crowd of 2,600.

"It sure pinned us back," said Hereford head football coach Craig Yenzler. "We came out and let them dictate the tempo."

Coronado (2-1) forced the Whitefaces to go three and out on their initial possession and punt into a stiff 20-mile-per-hour breeze out of the south. Freshman Cody Hodges managed to get off a 30-yard punt, but that still left the Mustangs in positive territory at the Hereford 46-yard line.

It took Coronado just six plays to navigate their way into the end zone. Tray Smitherman, more known for his defensive play lugged the ball three times for 27 yards on the drive, including the final one yard for a touchdown with 8:25 left in the first quarter.

"You never know about the wind," said Coronado head coach Butch Henderson. "Sometimes it'll be blowing real good at kickoff and die off by halftime. It definitely helped us out tonight. . . . It was real important. They're a heck of a defensive ball club. They don't give

Austin Westlake pounds Bastrop

Austin Westlake didn't need Batman. Not with Robin around.

Brent Robin returned the opening kickoff 101 yards and scored five other touchdowns, leading the defending state champions to their 58th straight victory Friday night, a 51-6 decision over Bastrop.

The 185-pound junior rushed 13 times for 199 yards, scoring on runs of 5, 5, 8, 10 and 84 yards for the Chaparrals, ranked No. 3 in the state in Class 5A.

Adam Hall was overshadowed in his best night as Westlake quarterback. Hall completed 8 of 17 passes for 202 yards and guided the Chaps to 511 yards of offense.

Westlake is poised to move up a notch in the rankings because of No.

2 Converse Judson's loss, 42-35 in overtime, to eighth-ranked Killgen Ellison.

But the Chaparrals can't claim the top spot yet inasmuch as No. 1-ranked Tyler John Tyler rolled out, defeating Dallas Carter, 28-10.

But there'll be changes at the top in Class 2A, where No. 1-ranked Mart lost, 20-13, to Waco La Vega. Most likely to benefit from Mart's loss is No. 2-ranked Elysian Fields, which smothered Beckville, 60-0.

La Vega, an unranked 3A team, may not escape recognition much longer. The Pirates have outscored their opponents 108-31 while going unbeaten in their first three games.

Elsewhere, the No. 1 teams remained unbeaten. In 4A, top-ranked La Marque beat Baytown Sterling 43-21; in 3A, top-ranked Sealy beat Houston Second Baptist 41-3; and in 1A, top-ranked Wink beat Plains, 31-12.

In Friday night's clash between Converse Judson and Killgen Ellison, two of the state's top guns provided the expected offensive explosion.

Converse Judson coach D.W. Rutledge was second-guessing his decision to settle for a tie after a touchdown on the last play of regulation. Killgen Ellison won in overtime on Reggie Duncan's 7-yard run. Judson fumbled away the ball on its overtime possession.

"I should have gone for two points after we scored on the last play, because we couldn't stop them anyway," Rutledge said.

"They have a talented football team. I am still proud of our kids the way they fought behind the entire game, including making up a 14-point deficit in the fourth quarter."

Trailing 35-28, the Rockets had moved to the Ellison 14 with three seconds left in the game. Then, on what was apparently the final play, the Eagles were called for pass interference at the 2, allowing Judson another opportunity. Quarterback Quill Redwine tossed a pass to wide receiver Thomas Price for the touchdown. Jonathan Villastrigo kicked the extra points that tied the game.

Idle Cowboys ponder meltdown

IRVING (AP) -- For the first six quarters this season, the Dallas Cowboys looked like champs. For the last six quarters, they've looked like chumps.

So, which is it?
"I think we're a good team that can contend, but I don't think we're a championship team right now," safety Darren Woodson said.

The Cowboys, who are off this weekend, are 2-1 and could just as easily be 1-2 -- or 3-0.

Dallas opened the year with an impressive all-around game in Pittsburgh, pounding the Steelers 37-7.

Troy Aikman had a field day throwing to Michael Irvin and Anthony Miller, while a surgically repaired Emmitt Smith seemed content to share the offensive burden. The defense was swarming.

Things carried over for the first half of the following Sunday's game in Arizona. The Cowboys led the Cardinals 22-7 early in the third quarter, then collapsed to lose 25-22 in overtime.

Heat and mental mistakes, mainly dumb penalties, were blamed for the meltdown. Less attention was paid to Dallas' inability to score from inside the 20 and the problems the offensive line had handling the blitz.

Philadelphia noticed those deficiencies and nearly capitalized last Monday night.

Bobby Taylor forced Aikman to fumble on two cornerback blitzes, leading to an Eagles field goal and a touchdown as they took a 17-3 lead in the second quarter.

Hill shuts down former Texas teammates

ARLINGTON (AP) -- Ken Hill caught up with some buddies in the Texas Rangers' clubhouse Friday. After that, he was all business.

Hill allowed his former team only two infield singles, and the Anaheim Angels bolstered their slight postseason hopes by beating the Rangers 7-1.

"I've got good friends over there," said Hill, who won 16 games last season to help the Rangers win their first division title. "But my job is to beat them, and their job is to beat me. We've all got a job to do."

Jack Howell hit a tiebreaking homer in the sixth, and Jim Edmonds matched his career high with four hits.

The Angels, 6-11 in September, remained six games behind first-place Seattle in the AL West. They would be eliminated from the wild-card race with any loss or New York Yankees victory.

"We've got to win," Hill said. "The bottom line is that we've got to keep winning and hope that they lose."

Hill (8-12) gave up a first-inning run, then shut down Texas for his first

Hughes leads Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -- Bradley Hughes has never led a PGA Tour event after two rounds, much less won one.

But if his results in Australia are any indication, the Texas Open could be his breakthrough tournament.

On Friday, the Australian had an eagle, seven birdies and a bogey to match the course record of 8-under-par 64. He had an 11-under 133 total for a one-stroke lead over 1995 winner Duffy Waldorf.

"The year's been pretty smelly," said Hughes, who has two top-25 finishes along with 12 missed cuts in 21 tournaments. "I haven't done much. I haven't been in this situation in America before. But the four tournaments I've won in Australia, I led after the second and third rounds."

Waldorf shot a 68 despite missing birdie putts of 3, 7, 6 and 10 feet on the front nine.

"The round definitely got away from me on the front," Waldorf said. "I have to hope that if I continue to play well, I'll have a round where I capitalize on the opportunities."
D.A. Weibring had the most birdies on the day with eight, including five straight to finish his round, but also had three bogeys and was in sole possession of third place at 9-under after a 67.

"I've missed my last two cuts, and I always have trouble reading these greens," said Weibring, who has five victories in his 21-year career. "But I made a couple good putts down the stretch, and I've played pretty steady."

Brett Quigley, Mike Brisky, Brad Fabel, Paul Goydos and Craig Parry followed at 8-under 136. Quigley, Fabel and Parry shot 68s, Goydos had a 70, and Brisky a 71.

First-round leader Gene Sauers, who matched the course record with a 64 Thursday, had a 73 Friday and was tied with four others at 7-under.

Lurking in a group of seven another shot back was former U.S. Open champion Steve Jones, while Mark Calcavecchia and Loren Roberts were among nine players at 5-under. Defending champion David Ogryn was at 3-under.

Tom Lehman, one of three players using the Texas Open to prepare for the Ryder Cup, shot a 73 and missed the cut of 1-under by a stroke. Lehman refused to speak to reporters after his round.

Astros

franchise saves record set last season by Jeff Brantley.

Shaw, who had nine career saves entering this season, now leads the NL and has a shot at Brantley's franchise record.

"To be honest with you, I never thought I'd get 40 opportunities in my career," Shaw said. "It's a real accomplishment. Not many guys get 40 saves. And the first one felt like the 40th one."

Shaw has gotten a save in each of his last 15 appearances, the third-longest streak in NL history. Lee Smith had 17 consecutive saves for St. Louis in 1993 and Randy Myers had 16 in a row for Chicago the same year.

"I've never had a streak like this," Shaw said. "I don't think it will sink in until the offseason."

Holt (8-11), who has only one win since June 21, was in trouble during five of his six innings. He gave up nine singles, a double and a solo homer to Jon Nunnally, his 10th, as the Reds pulled ahead 5-0 after five innings.

Derek Bell hit a two-run homer to cut it to 5-2 in the sixth, and Sean Berry had a sacrifice fly in the seventh. Stan Belinda gave up a solo homer in the eighth to Gonzalez that cut it to 5-4.

Bagwell singled ahead of Gonzalez's homer but was thrown out trying to steal second. He wasn't aware that Belinda had a slide step, a shortened delivery — to use with men on base.

"If I knew that, I wouldn't have gone," Bagwell said. "In that situation, eighth inning, down two runs, the tying run at the plate, you can't take a chance on getting thrown out. I got thrown out on a bonthead move."

The Reds scored twice in the first inning in characteristic fashion — stringing singles together. Cincinnati is last in the NL in team batting average and has only four extra-base hits in its last four games. Greene's RBI single and Reggie Sanders' run-producing forceout made it 2-0.

Nunnally homered to start a three-run fifth inning off Holt. Sanders singled home another run and Joe Oliver added a sacrifice fly.

Cowboys

"This early in the season, a loss wouldn't have been the end of the world," veteran Bill Bates said. "But it is a lot nicer to be 2-1 at this point than 1-2."

Actually, being 2-1 is very important to Dallas coach Barry Switzer.

Switzer has made a point of telling his players they must do better than the 2-3 start they had last year while Irvin was suspended.

Even though the Cowboys won eight of their last 11 once Irvin returned, the slow start cost them the chance to host a second-round playoff game, not to mention home-field advantage throughout the postseason.

Dallas did get to host wild-card Minnesota, but then had to go to Carolina to play the Panthers. The Cowboys lost, ending their season short of the NFC championship game for the first time since 1991.

The next year began the revival of the Dallas dynasty, with three Super Bowl victories in four years.

Aikman, Irvin and Smith are still around, but their supporting cast has changed drastically. Free agency has lured away many key contributors and the salary cap has prevented Jerry Jones from finding suitable replacements.

"It's not like things were five years ago," Smith said. "Everybody has to accept that. Everybody else is as good as we are."

It would probably be easier to accept if the Cowboys hadn't played so well in Pittsburgh. Although it now looks like a mirage, that performance teased Dallas players and fans into believing this could be another special season.

"That's what everybody is asking: from Pittsburgh to Arizona, what happened?" Smith said. "We're trying to figure it out, too."

Dallas will try again next Sunday against the Chicago Bears in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys go to the Meadowlands the following Sunday to face the New York Giants.

That will make five games. Whether they are 2-3, 3-2 or 4-1 could tell a lot about what kind of season Dallas will have.

"We've got to play better than we have played," Aikman said.

Texas

complete game since beating the Angels as a member of the Rangers last Sept. 22. Hill threw strikes and let his fielders do the work as he walked one, struck out none and won for just the third time in 11 starts since Anaheim acquired him from Texas on July 29.

"That's three or four good ones in a row," Angels manager Terry Collins said. "He's pitching like the Kenny Hill we all know. He was on a mission tonight. He knew we needed a big game and he pitched one for us. He threw strikes, strikes, strikes."

Hill is 3-4 with a 3.88 ERA in his 11 starts for the Angels. He's pitched at least seven innings in his last five starts.

"I've been pitching great the last four or five starts," Hill said. "My record doesn't show it, but I've been pitching good."

The overanxious Rangers made seven outs swinging at the first pitch and eight on the second. During one stretch, Texas made 15 outs on 23 pitches.

"That tells you he was around the plate, and Texas is an aggressive club," Collins said.

Herd

up touchdowns easily.

The Mustangs marched into the end zone on all three of their first-quarter possessions.

Tyson Taylor jaunted 47 yards for the Mustangs' second touchdown to cap off a 75-yard drive. Taylor finished the night with 21 carries for 186 yards.

Late in the first quarter, senior quarterback Kevin Curtis hooked up with split end Matt Carthey for an eight-yard touchdown to extend the Mustangs' lead to 21-0.

"It was real important for us to come out and execute," Henderson said. "We had an intent about what we needed to do."

The Mustangs dominated the game statistically. Coronado racked up 426 yards of total offense compared to 120 for Hereford (1-3).

It looked like it was going to be a repeat of the Mustangs' 50-0 shellacking of the Whitefaces last year in Hereford, but after Coronado lost the wind in the second quarter, they scored only one more touchdown. Taylor went in from seven yards out late in the third quarter, his second touchdown of the night.

"The second half was obviously a positive thing," Yenzler said. "To hold them to only seven points in the whole second half is something we can take away from this game."

Yenzler said the Whitefaces made some defensive adjustments after the Coronado scoring spree in the first quarter. That, in combination with some misfirings on the part of the Mustang offense, and their conservative play, particularly in the second half, kept the game from being a repeat of the 1996 contest in Hereford.

"We did do the conservative thing," Henderson said. "We didn't want to turn the ball over."

Hereford's offense never threatened the Mustang defense with a score. The Whitefaces scored their only two points of the game when Anthony Lopez tackled Curtis in the end zone after Curtis mishandled the snap from center.

The wind figured prominently in that score as well. A 47-yard punt with the wind by freshman Cody Hodges rolled out at the one-yard line, pinning the Mustangs deep.

"We just couldn't get anything going offensively," Yenzler said. "We have a lot of work to do... but I don't think we're going to see anybody in district playing defense like this."

Senior tailback Jeremy Miller, who just returned to the Whitefaces this week, entered the game in the second quarter and finished the night as Hereford's leading rusher. But Miller picked up only 46 yards on 11 carries.

"I was disappointed. I still see our kids lack confidence in themselves. I saw that the way we came out in the first quarter. I believe in these kids; the coaches believe in them. They have to believe in themselves."

UTEP leads N.M. golf tournament

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Texas-El Paso held a one-shot lead over Georgia Tech and New Mexico following the first round of play Friday in the rain-shortened William H. Tucker intercollegiate tournament.

The tournament, initially scheduled for 54 holes, was shortened to 36 holes. The teams completed only 18 of the scheduled 36 holes on Friday because of a rainstorm that hit Albuquerque.

JACK HAMMER

Long driver looks for golf niche

By AARON J. LOPEZ
AP Sports Writer
DENVER -- When Jack Hamm says he's banned from most driving ranges, the first reaction is a low-throated snicker and an exaggerated eye roll.

And then he unleashes an 8-iron that sails high over a 50-foot fence about 250 yards away.

To borrow one of Hamm's favorite phrases, this is a true story.

Hamm, who holds the Guinness record for the world's longest golf drive (473 yards), is well-built but nothing that automatically suggests he could power even short irons amazing distances with accuracy and consistency, while trying to find a niche for his small business in the booming golf industry.

Hoping to blend his engineering degree with his passion for sports, Hamm in 1986 founded Longball Sports Inc., which makes the Air Hammer, a $250 metal driver that has six nail-size holes through the clubface and an exhaust hole in the back. That means less wind resistance and a higher club-head speed, which means longer shots.

The holes, however, have prevented the clubs from being certified by the United States Golf Association, barring them from official events.

Hamm doesn't mind. "The average golfer doesn't care if the club is legal," is his standard response. And he knows what they can do. He hit the 473-yard record drive with another of his clubs, the Jack Hammer, at a driving range south of Denver on July 20, 1993.

Thanks to a creative infomercial and general word of mouth, Longball did about $5 million in sales last year. Hamm expects to double or triple that this year.

"My goal in this whole thing is that some day I'm in an airplane and somebody is reading a magazine and they're like, 'Longball, it's synonymous with Top-Flite or synonymous with Titleist,'" Hamm says. "This company's not this one-shot-in-the-dark infomercial like the Miracle Mop. Longball I see as a long-term product line. It stands for hitting the long ball."

"This is a true story," Hamm says as he prepares to explain the trophy sitting behind his desk. The silver casserole dish-shaped trophy is inscribed with the words "1992 Phoenix Open Long Drive Champion."

Hamm admits to being a little nervous while warming up on the driving range. Next to him is sweet-swinging Ben Crenshaw and down the row are Joey Sindelar and Curtis Strange.

It doesn't take long for Hamm's 300-yard 6-irons to draw a crowd. "The next thing I know, I've got the whole (PGA) Tour standing behind me," says Hamm, who later hits his one allotted drive 392 yards and walks away with the trophy.

So why is a guy who can hit the ball from here to the Mir peddling golf videos and unsanctioned golf clubs instead of winning millions of dollars on the PGA Tour?

His short game, for one thing. Another true story, Hamm says: He played a round at Inverness Golf Club a few years back and shot a 2-over-par 74 -- with 43 putts.

"I drove eight greens... That was typical," he said. "I'd get the ball up on the green and then play croquet with it -- back and forth, back and forth."

Despite his own short-game shortcomings, putters and wedges are included in the Longball line. But everything is built around Hamm's affinity for distance. The company slogan is "Distance is everything." The company's phone number shouts 1-800-TOO-LONG.

"What is the thrill for a golfer that brings him back? It's hitting the long ball," Hamm says. "You don't come back for the putting. When you go play a round of golf and you hit that shot on No. 6 300 yards, that's why you come back. You don't think about when you made a 6-foot putt."

Japanese business accounts for about one-third of Longball's annual sales. The story's a lot different in the United States, as Longball tries to keep up with the Big Berthas and King Cobras.

"Callaway's probably got a department that spends $30 million a year on research and development, where this company's got me," Hamm says. "What's really crazy about it is our driver goes 40 yards longer than theirs."

Denver Broncos coach Mike Shanahan can attest to that. Shanahan met Hamm a couple of years ago at a driving range near Broncos headquarters in Englewood.

"He hit it a long way," said Shanahan. "Jack's the type of guy that has a little bit different swing, but when he hits it, he can hit it 400 yards." Hamm gave Shanahan an Air Hammer, but Shanahan said he can't use it because he plays in several tournaments that don't allow outlaw clubs.

"But it does hit the ball further," the coach said.

Hamm is frustrated, too, by golf's pessimistic attitude toward what he believes to be the perfect swing built from the perfect setup.

The stance is wide, with the feet pointing outward. Hamm's left elbow is bent nearly to a 90-degree angle. His left shoulder blade is pointing toward the fairway as he prepares to create 162 mph of club-head acceleration.

After a slow body coil, the ball is gone, heading into a field behind the fence. Hamm lets out a grunt that sounds prehistoric.

Hamm is eligible for the Senior PGA Tour in less than five years. He says he would love to "shock" the seniors with his unorthodox swing.

"The technique is my most frustrating personal part because I've had this thing for so long, and I truly believe it is something that would change golf if ever properly promoted," Hamm says.

"I've stood there in front of people who were like, 'Who is this guy?' I can see it in their eyes: 'This couldn't possibly work. Greg Norman didn't say this thing worked. Arnold Palmer didn't invent this.'"

Newton charged with misdemeanor for swearing at woman

FORT WORTH (AP) -- Nate Newton, the Dallas Cowboys' All-Pro offensive guard, was charged with a misdemeanor after swearing at a woman who asked whether his dining companion was his wife or his mistress.

"It was an autograph situation that involved a very persistent person," Newton said Friday. "I was in a restaurant and I was not signing autographs at the time. This person would not accept that. Our conversation got a little heated and I said something that was not right." Fort Worth police, after talking with Newton by phone Thursday, decided to cite him for disorderly conduct-language, a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500.

Ryan still pitches for Texas

By RAY SASSER
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS -- Former Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan is chairman of the Texas Wildlife Expo, which takes place Oct. 4-5 in Austin. After his retirement from baseball in 1993, the major league strikeout king was appointed by Gov. George W. Bush to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

These days, Ryan stays busy juggling his varied business interests, commercial endorsements, promotional work for the Rangers, TP&W Commission business and family time.

Ryan has an office in his Express Bank of Alvin. He owns a ranch in South Texas and a motel and restaurant (Nolan Ryan's Bass Inn) near Choke Canyon Lake. He hosts a weekly block of outdoors television shows for Fox Sports Southwest.

Ryan called to talk about the upcoming Texas Parks and Wildlife Expo, which drew more than 35,000 visitors last year, and the state agency in general. He has served three years of a six-year appointment to the TP&W Commission.

Q: Have you been heavily involved in planning for the Expo?

A: Ryan: Well, I'm the Expo chairman, but I just try to stay out of people's way. The event showcases what we're about at TP&W.

Q: What's new at the Expo for 1997?

A: Ryan: We've got an exciting new camping section in our Outdoor 101 Seminar Series. We've got everything from tents to camping techniques. We're also expanding the mountain biking section. We'll have bikes for visitors to ride through McKinney Falls State Park (adjacent to TP&W headquarters).

Q: What is your favorite part of the Wildlife Expo?

A: Ryan: It's something different every year. The first year I attended, I really enjoyed the birds of prey show because I'd never seen it before.

Q: Do you still miss baseball?

A: Ryan: Every year I'm gone from the game, I miss it less and less. What I miss most is the competition and the camaraderie with teammates. I stay so involved with other interests that I don't have time to miss baseball.

Q: Were you disappointed that your commercial endorsements kept you from running for the office of Texas Agriculture Commissioner?

A: Ryan: I have an interest in serving Texas, and I thought I could do it best as agriculture commissioner because I have a genuine love for farming and ranching. I felt all along that the endorsement issue would be a problem, so I wasn't surprised by the ruling. I was disappointed.

Q: Why did you decide to buy a motel and restaurant at Choke Canyon Lake?

A: Ryan: My ranch is near there, and I was familiar with the Bass Inn. The original developers had wanted me to buy it for two years. I had someone look into it, and they thought it was a viable business. Unfortunately, the drought of 1996 really hurt us, but we got enough rain to bring the lake back up this year and we're doing pretty good.

Q: Do you get much input from the public about issues concerning TP&W?

A: Ryan: I get a lot of faxes and letters.

Perinatal care program provided to fill community need

DR. BEVERLY NIXON-LEWIS

MARIA MEDINA

Clinic focuses on prevention as method of lowering costs

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor
Providing primary health care for all age groups regardless of the ability to pay is the goal of South Plains Health Care Providers.

A program of perinatal care is being implemented at the clinic in Hereford after a survey determined that such a program for women in the first months of pregnancy was needed in the community.

The responsibility of fulfilling this goal in Hereford is shared by Dr. Beverly Nixon-Lewis, medical director for SPHCP and Maria Medina, local clinic supervisor and social worker.

Dr. Nixon-Lewis, a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School, assumed the position of medical director for SPHCP in July 1997.

She is in the Hereford clinic on Mondays for the express purpose of seeing patients in this program.

Dr. Nixon-Lewis received her doctorate in 1991 from the University of Osteopathic Medicine and Health Sciences in Des Moines, Iowa. She completed her residency at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit in 1994.

While the Dr. Nixon-Lewis tends to the patients, there are other factors to consider.

"Overseeing the program and making sure it goes the way it is supposed to is my responsibility," said Medina.

She also serves as the educator for the clinic, providing information for clients based on their individual needs.

Pregnant women in the perinatal care program receive care from SPHCP through the sixth month of their pregnancy, then they are referred to the Women and Children's Clinic.

"We are providing this program because our survey showed that women need not only the medical care, but also the instruction and education on how to care for themselves and their unborn child," Medina said.

Medina expects the program to (See CARE PROGRAM, Page 5B)

New skills aid in career plans

By BECKY CAMP

What do you do if you are in your mid-fifties, your husband of 39 years has just died and you have no marketable skills or visible way of making a living?

If you are Glenda Thomas, you begin on-the-job-training with Green Thumb, get your GED, start to college and pastor a church.

"I did not know what I was going to do when my husband died last February," Thomas said. "I heard about Green Thumb from a few people, and then heard that there might be an opening for a Green Thumb worker in the county tax office."

Thomas was accepted for this position through Green Thumb and began an on-the-job training program in the office of Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor Margaret Del Toro.

After getting on the Green Thumb program, she decided to get her GED and went to the library to take classes. Based on her scores on the first exam, the instructor advised Thomas to try for her GED.

Her first attempt was successful and she passed all the required subject areas, getting her GED without any prior preparation or instruction.

In a cap and gown ceremony sponsored by Region XVI Education Service Center at the Central Church of Christ, Thomas walked across the stage and received her diploma.

Now that steps one and two of her new life were complete, Thomas did not stop. She began a third step, enrolling in Amarillo College studying business administration with computer as her major.

Thomas and her husband had been missionaries to the Navajo in northern New Mexico from 1986 to 1990. Following her calling to the ministry, she has also begun pastoring the Assembly of God Church in Littlefield, holding a service on Thursday night and two on Sunday.

"It's not easy to hold down a job, go to college and pastor a church all at the same time, but I have had a lot of help and encouragement from my family," Thomas said.

Thomas' family includes her parents who live in New Deal, her daughter and son-in-law Glenda and Gary Chadwick and children Brittany, Amy and Amber of Hereford; and her son and daughter-in-law, Kandy and Jackie Thompson Jr. and children Eric, Jessica, Cori and Matthew of Anson.

"All this started for me because I was able to go to work through Green Thumb," Thomas said. "At first I thought it was too good to be true, but I made up my mind that I could do it, so I am."

Thomas is making plans for her future, but whatever happens, through her training at the tax office in the Green Thumb program, she will always have marketable skills on which she can rely.

Green Thumb, Inc. is a non-profit organization committed to improving the quality of life of all American by using and developing the talents and skills of older individuals through community service employment and training.

Green Thumb, Inc. operates the Senior Community Service Employment Program with funding from Title V of the Older Americans Act through the U.S. Department of Labor.

MR. AND MRS. POLICARPIO HERNANDEZ
...observe 50th anniversary

Couple is honored on Policarpio and Olivia Hernandez celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday by renewing their vows in a ceremony at San Jose Catholic Church, followed by a reception and dance.

Hernandez and the former Olivia Castro were married July 2, 1947, in Edray. They lived in Edray from the time of their marriage until 1964, at which time they moved to Hereford where they have resided since.

The anniversary celebration was hosted by their children Amador Hernandez, Emma Sanchez, Delfina Barrientez, David Hernandez, Juan Hernandez, Hortencia Lopez, Sylvia Monzon, Policarpio Hernandez Jr., Jose Angel Hernandez, Julian Hernandez, Roberto Hernandez, Francisco Hernandez, Carmen Hernandez, Angel Hernandez, and Olivia Rincon, all of Hereford.

The couple also has 51 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Outstanding teachers

Pictured are outstanding Sunday school teachers which were selected based on nominations submitted to the Hereford Ministerial Alliance.

Connie Lance, who teaches at Hereford Church of the Nazarene, is truly gifted to work with 4- and 5-year-olds. She teaches, loves and ministers to very young children. The children really relate to her and seem to grow under her nurturing love. Their high energy level never seems to phase her. She takes it all in loving stride.

It takes a very caring person to teach Sunday School. Marilyn Bell, the youth Sunday School teacher at Wesley United Methodist Church is one of those people. She has been teaching Sunday School for 28 years. The dedication and service to the church could stem from the fact that she was raised in church as a preacher's child. This has caused her values of church and the education of children to be of importance in her life. Her employment as the director of child care at King's Manor is another result of her care for children.

The outstanding teachers were named as a part of the alliance's campaign to get "Every Child in Sunday School."

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

It is not what is poured into a student that counts, but what is planted. On Tuesday, the annual School Days pictures will be taken during math classes. For better pictures, students should not wear clothing that has wording across the shirt or blouse. On Wednesday the picture schedule is for group pictures of football teams, volleyball teams, orchestra, Junior Historians, Industrial Tech, GMR and cheerleaders.

Junior Historians will meet at 7:40 Tuesday. All members are urged to attend, as plans for the Saturday field trip will be finalized. Each member has received a hall pass, waiver form and newsletter. Dues, (20), are payable in $3, $5, $10 payments or in full and at least one payment must be made before the field trip. Also, the waiver must be returned before the trip.

If you have attended HJH ballgames lately, you may have noticed many proud parents sporting picture buttons of their players. Parents, we appreciate your support of our teams and of the Hereford Band Boosters who provide the buttons. Thanks also to HJH parents, Rita Reinart and Karen Goldsmith, who worked so hard making the buttons.

On Saturday, the 27th, area math and science teachers may attend the math/science conference at WTAMU where new methods and ideas will be shared.

Seventy-five to 80 students took part in the See You at the Pole activity on Wednesday. Due to their request to the Hereford Youth Alliance, lunch was provided for the teachers on that day. We appreciate these students and their thoughtfulness.

Students are "settling in" to the reading for 15 to 20 minutes daily during HAT. Many of them continue reading after the time ends, while others work on assignments. We feel that this cannot help but improve their reading skills. Most teachers take this time to read, also.

Seventh graders are beginning to study natural resources of Texas, which should give them ideas for the annual conservation essays. They will begin work on the essays very soon.

Students in both seventh and eighth grade will have the opportunity to enter the DAR essay contest on forts and the contribution they made to settling America. Hopefully, we will have several good essays in this area.

Science Fair and History Day activities will be discussed in the near future.

Education is the ability to listen to almost anything without losing your temper or your self-confidence.

Achievers Club elects officers

The 4-H Achievers Club elected officers during its opening meeting of the club year recently in the Jim Steiert home.

New officers are Robin Bell and Jaime Steiert, co-chairmen; Dawn Auckerman, secretary and council delegate; Jossalyn McClure, reporter; Dominique Brown, telephone chairman; Amy Bell, recreation leader; and Jessica Matsler, social chairman.

Club parents are Georgia Auckerman and Kerrie Steiert.

The club's general course of study will be career opportunities and regular meetings will be held on the third Tuesday from 5-6 p.m.

Members were reminded of public speaking orientation on Sept. 22 and County Roundup, to be held at the end of October. The other coming 4-H activity will be County Food Show in November.

Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent-FCS, presented a brief overview of 4-H symbols and leadership opportunities.

Mobile Shop to stop in Hereford

The Texas Plains Girl Scout Council will bring its Mobile Shop to Hereford Thursday to make it easier for Hereford and Vega Girl Scouts to obtain official Girl Scout items.

The Mobile Shop will be open from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church at 501 N. Main. Items available include uniform components, handbooks, tee-shirts, camping equipment and accessories.

Girl Scouts may use their "Cookie Currency" they earned from selling cookies earlier this year to purchase items. "Cookie Currency," which is spent just like regular money, must be used by Nov. 26, 1997.

The council's Mobile Shop is a service providing Hereford and Vega Girl Scouts an opportunity to buy Girl Scout items without having to go to Amarillo. For more information, call Linda Cotter, council shop manager, at 1-800-687-4475.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/FCS
 Early childhood professionals have always looked at the whole picture when considering children's intelligence. Psychologist Howard Gardner's Multiple Intelligence Theory reinforces the fact that there are many different ways for children to be smart. Instead of asking, "How smart is this child?", a better question may be, "How is this child smart?"

During the early years, children learn how to get along with others and meet their own needs. These factors, along with many others, contribute to children's intelligence - something far too complex to be measured by a standardized test, or even by how quickly children learn to speak or walk.

According to Multiple Intelligence Theory, each of us possesses seven "intelligences," or ways to be smart. Some of us are more adept at using our hands; others are good at making rhymes, or singing songs. Each type of intelligence give us something to offer to the world. What makes us unique is the way each intelligence expresses itself in our lives.

By recognizing multiple intelligences, we can help children enhance their individual strengths. But don't be too quick to label a preschooler as a future accountant, artist, or athlete without giving her a chance to explore the world, work on her skills and develop her own abilities.

Understanding multiple intelligences means more than focusing on individual characteristics. Imagine a grown person who could do nothing but write poetry, or solve algebra problems. To do everyday things like drive a car or follow a recipe, a person needs to be smart in more ways than one.

Each of us is smart in all seven ways. Here's how to recognize these multiple intelligences:

Word smart -- Journalists, lawyers, and storytellers often demonstrate what Gardner refers to as linguistic intelligence. These people are best at using the written or spoken word to communicate.

Logic smart -- People with a great deal of logical-mathematical intelligence are good at reasoning, and thinking in terms of cause and effect. Scientist, accountants, and computer programmers generally have this ability.

Picture smart -- Otherwise known as spatial intelligence, this involves thinking in pictures or images. Such individuals may be able to follow directions best, or be able to visualize and draw accurately.

Music smart -- Musical intelligence is the ability to keep time with music, sing in tune, and discern the difference between different musical selections. These people can best perceive and appreciate melodies.

Body smart -- Individuals with bodily-kinesthetic intelligence are best able to control their own movements. This involves not only outdoor sports, but tasks like sewing and carpentry.

Person smart -- Such persons have the ability to respond to, understand, and work with other people. This interpersonal intelligence is the gift of being able to see from others' perspectives.

Self smart -- These people tend to be contemplative and can easily access their own feelings. Those with intrapersonal intelligence may be introspective and enjoy meditating.

By exploring all of their intelligences, children become well-rounded individuals who are successful in many aspects of life.

Parents and early childhood professionals must recognize these different strengths in children as they emerge. Some children may respond more to words, others to music -- the point is for adults to let children express themselves. If children have the opportunity to learn in the areas they prefer, and to improve in those areas that are not as strong, they will grow to become intelligent in more ways than one!

MRS. KEITH JASON FLOOD
 ...nee Kaye Nicole Hawkins

Hawkins, Flood wed in Canyon ceremony

Kaye Nicole Hawkins and Keith Jason Flood were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony on Sept. 6 in the University Church of Christ in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Bob Bruce of Pampa and the late Edith Bruce. The bridegroom is the son of Joe and Karen Flood of Hereford.

Officiating at the ceremony was Dr. David Lough of Canyon.

The front of the church was decorated with a large candelabrum flanked by two smaller candelabra, all covered in greenery and adorned with black and white bows.

Bridal attendants were Kerri Flood, sister of the groom; Taren Jones, cousin of the groom; and Valerie Simpson.

Groom's attendants were Kyle Flood and Kurtis Flood, brothers of the groom; and Joe Tindall.

Shelby Minchew was ring bearer.

Vocal selections were performed by Carolyn Isbell of Canyon.

The bride was attired in a gown with a white brocade bodice, puffed sleeves and a scooped neckline. From the empire waist flowed a white floor length satin skirt trimmed in lace. A sheer lace train hung from a white brocade bow attached to the back of the dress.

Her headpiece was a white hat trimmed with flowers and accented with a white lace bow in the back.

Special guests in attendance were Wynon Mayes of Canyon and Gladys Flood of Hereford, grandmothers of the groom. Others attending from Hereford were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flood, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Flood and Mr. and Mrs. Doug Stewart.

The couple will reside in the farming community of Hub where the groom will farm with his father.

The Successful Family

Choosing a Child Care Provider

If you are a working parent, one of the most important decisions you will make for your child is who will care for them. Good child care can offer an opportunity for your child to learn social skills, begin an education, and just plain have fun!

Here are some things to remember and look for when choosing a child care provider:

1. Ask your provider if they are licensed.

The Department of Protective and Regulatory Services licenses family homes and child care facilities. These child care providers have met minimum health and safety standards and are monitored regularly. This helps you know your child is in a safe environment and cared for by people who have received training on health and safety issues.

2. Talk with the staff about their knowledge of children's care and development. What kind of training have they had, whether in the classroom or real-life experience? Take time to observe the workers as they interact with other children.

3. How many children are being cared for and what is the number of children for each adult? The lower this number, the more time and care workers can give to each child.

4. Ask for a tour of the building and playground. Does it look like a safe and comfortable place for your child to spend time? Is there room to play games and be active? Are there enough fun toys to play with? Try to imagine it through your child's eyes.

5. What kind of activities are offered to the children? Are there opportunities to learn? Are there structured art projects? Is there time for recreation?

Above all, don't be afraid to ask questions and be involved in your child's care. The most important thing is that you know your child is safe and in a place where he or she will enjoy spending time.

Being a good parent isn't always easy, but it's worth it!!

THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY nurturing sessions are every Tuesday from Oct. 7 to Nov. 18 from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Parents must accompany their children. Meals will be provided. For more information contact Tilli Boozer, counselor and facilitator, at 363-7668.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The enclosed article appeared in the bulletin of our church, SS. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church on Detroit's West Side. I gave a copy to each of my children because I felt it contained an excellent message. Please pass it on to your readers. -- W.R.S.

Dear W.R.S.: The straightforward language is sure to appeal to my younger readers. Here it is with my thanks: Ten Rules Kids Won't Learn in School

1. Life is not fair. Get used to it. The average teenager uses the phrase "It's not fair" 86 times a day.

2. The real world won't care as much about your self-esteem as your school does. This may come as a shock.

3. Sorry, you won't make $40,000 a year right out of high school. And you won't be a vice president or have a car phone, either. You may even have to wear a uniform that doesn't have a designer label.

4. If you think your teacher is tough, wait until you get a boss.

5. Flipping burgers is not beneath your dignity. Your grandparents had a different word for burger flipping. They called it opportunity.

6. It's not your parents' fault if you mess up. You're responsible. This is the flip side of "It's my life" and "You're not my boss."

7. Before you were born, your parents weren't boring. They got that way paying your bills and listening to you.

8. Life is not divided into semesters. And you don't get summers off. Not even spring break. You are expected to show up every day for eight hours, and you don't get a new life every 10 weeks.

9. Smoking does not make you look cool. Watch an 11-year-old with a butt in his mouth. That's what you look like to anyone over 20.

10. Your school may be "outcome-based," but life isn't. In some schools, you're given as many times as you want to get the answer right. Standards are set low enough so everyone can meet them. This, of course, bears not the slightest resemblance to anything in real life -- as you will find out.

Good luck. You are going to need it -- and the harder you work, the luckier you will get.

Dear Ann Landers: Please pass this tip along to your readers concerning a treatment for headaches -- even a migraine.

Peel a banana, take half the banana peel and place it on the forehead with the inside of the peel next to the skin. Secure this with a headband or some strip of cloth. Take the other half, place it on the back of the neck and secure it also. Be sure the banana peels are secured very snugly and the white mushy stuff on the inside of the peel is next to the skin. Eighty-five percent of the people who have tried this say they get relief within 30 minutes.

My great-grandfather, Dr. J.B. Frymire, a graduate of the University of Louisville School of Medicine in 1867, started using the banana peel treatment in the 1890s. Thousands have written me to say it works. -- Dick Frymire, doctor of barnyard science, Irvington, Ky.

Dear Dick Frymire: Happily, I rarely get headaches, but those who do may be willing to try this. Please, dear readers, if you are headache-prone, let me know if this works.

Couple is wed

Breastfeeding and personality: the importance of touch to babies.

Scientific studies are beginning to recognize the importance of touch in maintaining and building close relationships. That's one reason a good choice to make in feed your baby is to nurse him or her.

Women who choose breastfeeding hold and touch their babies often -- and this frequent, intimate physical contact is thought to have a positive impact on a child's later personality development.

Studies suggest that breastfeeding may actually help produce a more well-adjusted individual. While there's as yet no scientific proof, it seems that breastfeeding does help infants feel safe and secure -- promoting a sense of confidence and well-being for your child.

Next week -- how mother's milk protects a baby from illness.

This information comes from WIC -- the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program at the Texas Department of Health. For a free magazine on nutrition, call 1-800-WIC-3678.

— YOUR EYES —

Pack An Extra Pair

Heard about the vacationer who broke a pair of glasses and spent the next two or three precious days locating an eye doctor in a strange town to have the glasses replaced? What a waste!

If you need glasses to see, to read small print or drive a car, you'll need an extra pair on hand. It's wise to keep a pair in the car, at your desk or locker at work, and certainly in your suitcase when you travel. Consider an extra pair of prescription sunglasses, too.

If you want to economize, it's all right to choose a moderately priced frame for the extra pair, but it might be more satisfying to have another attractive frame so you can change between eyeglass styles at whim.

Even people who wear contact lenses should have emergency glasses on hand in case a lens tears or the eyes become irritated.

CARE PROGRAM

increase the patient flow at the South Plains clinic.

"We are looking for a nurse practitioner to add to our staff," said Dr. Nixon-Lewis.

Dr. Subra Mani is currently a pediatrician at the clinic and Dr. Plani Mani is a general practitioner.

Another program of South Plains Health Care Providers is providing education to teach preventive medicine.

"There are a high percentage of our patients who are diabetic or hypertensive. They do not know enough about these conditions, so one of my duties is to provide education for them," Medina said.

Educating patients at the onset of an illness, teaching them to follow instructions and follow a prescribed diet can often mean that medication is not required, according to Medina. This is the primary reason for a program, "Put Prevention Into Practice," that all South Plains Health Care clinics are implementing.

"Providing education on prevention now will help keep patients healthier, which will lower the cost of the health care and enable us to provide care for more individuals," said Medina.

Seven Habits of Highly Ineffective People

Dr. Stephen R. Covey's best selling book, "The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People," still shows up on the top-ten lists today. The principles he discusses can contribute to a more successful and fulfilling life. However, for me, the book left one big question: Why aren't more people high effective?

I think the answer to my question is also habits. Bad habits. Because I dislike writing this column solely on the basis of what I think, I decided to see if others agreed. I surveyed more than 200 corporate presidents, CEO's, business owners, middle managers, academicians, professionals and media friends to get their opinions. I asked them this question: What are the habits that keep people from reaching their full potential?

How to highly ineffective

Here are their responses:

Don't get too organized and don't worry about managing time. More than 76 percent of those surveyed listed procrastination, lack of priorities and poor time utilization as one of the top seven habits of ineffective people.

Procrastination was number one on the list. Other answers in this area were "failure to prioritize," "not being able to say no" and "focusing on urgent, but unimportant tasks."

Forget integrity and ethics. The second most common habit of highly ineffective people is that they lack honesty. Sixty-two percent of the respondents identified integrity issues as habits that limit success.

Some answers were very direct: "Lying," "exaggerating" and "saying one thing while doing another." Other responses were more subtle: "failing to keep their promises," "sacrificing their ethics for personal gain" and "not following through."

Take it easy. Nearly half listed "work ethic" issues as critical inhibitors to success. Several mentioned "unwillingness to work hard," "putting play (leisure) before work" and "poor work ethics."

Other respondents mentioned "lack of perseverance," "being lazy" and "an unwillingness to tackle tough tasks." One employer complained that too many of his employees stopped looking for work after they got a job.

Don't change and avoid taking risks. More than 40 percent of those surveyed felt that highly ineffective people resisted change and did so because they were afraid of unknown consequences.

Responses included: "Too resistant to change," "failure to make changes until the outcome is certain" and "having a don't fix what ain't broke" attitude, instead of "how can we make it better" attitude.

Think negative thoughts. Almost four in 10 of those I surveyed listed "poor attitudes" in their top seven bad habits. Words like "complacent," "apathetic," "unmotivated" and "negative" were common.

One CEO said, "People with bad attitudes are never happy." He went on to say that kind of thinking always influences others.

Don't listen, don't think and say what's on your mind. One-third of those surveyed ranked "listening," "speaking," "writing" and "thinking on your feet" as career limiting deficiencies.

One attorney said, "You don't care about others if you can't take the time to listen to them." Several linked success to having good speaking and writing skills.

Do what you want to do, then blame someone else. All actions have results - good, bad or neutral. Twenty-five percent of the respondents agreed that refusing to accept responsibility for negative results keeps folks from achieving success.

Several mentioned the bad habit of "taking credit for good, while blaming others for bad." This always catches up with you. In the end you are always responsible for your actions.

In summary, here is the success formula: 1) get organized and use time wisely, 2) be honest, 3) work hard, 4) be willing to change (improve), 5) develop a good attitude, 6) learn to communicate well and 7) take responsibility for what you do. Seven great pieces of advice from dozens of very successful people.

By REBECCA WALLS

Have any of you heard of Alfie Kohn? If you haven't, I want you to make a mental note -- think Alfie Kohn -- and remember his name.

Educated at Brown University and the University of Chicago, Kohn has written a number of books on social behavior and we just happen to have two available this week.

One of his books, No Contest: The Case Against Competition, published in 1986, started a controversy that is still being questioned, and you as parents and teachers may want to enter into this discussion.

Drawing from hundreds of studies, Kohn shows that competition is not an inevitable part of human nature, rather than building character, competition sabotages self-esteem and ruins relationships. Competition warps recreation by turning the playing field into a battlefield.

The second book we have, Punishment by Rewards: The Trouble With Gold Stars, Incentive Plans, A's, Praise, and Other Bribes, challenges our basic strategy for raising children, teaching students, and managing workers.

The "do this and you will get this" incentives create a person that thinks "What do they want me to do, and what will happen to me if I don't do it?" according to Kohn.

Did you catch this insight? Have you ever heard the question, "What's in it for me?" Kahn goes on to explain that threats and punishments are just the other side of the coin from praise and rewards. Both can achieve temporary compliance, but at a terrific cost.

Both punishment and rewards make it more difficult to complete the tasks by taking the focus away from the task and placing in on me and the reward/punishment I will receive. Everyone else become a potential obstacle to my success. Kohn gives five reasons why rewards don't give good lasting results.

1. Reward punish. They are control through seduction. No one likes to be controlled. When rewards are not received they destroy self-esteem.

2. Rewards rupture relationships because they create competition in which the other person becomes an obstacle to my success. When the adult is viewed as someone that dispenses goodies, children are less likely to ask them for help.

3. Rewards ignore the reason for performing the task and they ignore the person. Rewards focus on behavior only, and not on the reasons for the good or bad behavior.

4. Reward reduce risk taking and creative thinking. The focus becomes "What do they want me to do, and is this all I have to do?"

5. Rewards undermine intrinsic motivation. In over 70 studies conducted, it was found that one who is constantly rewarded tends to lose interest in what they are doing faster.

Well now that I have given you all of this information, I'm sure you feel there is no need to read the books. However, I have not given you any information on what to do if you don't use punishments or rewards. Nor have I given you any of the inspirational, creative ways to achieve your desired goals. Those you will have to get from the books, or talking to Alfie Kohn.

As I was skimming through the new books in processing, I found Orphans of the Living: Stories of American's Children in Foster Care by Jennifer Toth. The director of an orphanage in North Carolina explains that "most of these kids would rather say their parents are dead than say their parents don't want them."

Toth has written the stories of five children caught in the system that both liberates and hobbles its dependents. By capturing their voices and lives with striking clarity, Toth shares their despair and their triumphs, their humor, hopes and resilience in trying to overcome their society's failure.

This is a hard book to read because it is real and heart breaking at times, but it is a book that should be read by everyone. How can something be set right if we don't know what is wrong?

The Book of Father's Wisdom: Paternal Advice from Moses to Bob Dylan is a collection of letters written by fathers to their children containing specific guidance. The heartfelt sentiments on character, education, truth, perseverance, teamwork, faith, love and happiness are timeless and relevant to us today. This book is a boy and an inspiration to read.

For example, as a young man, James Reston worked as a war correspondent in London during World War II. He sees the effect of war upon the people and their families. James writes a letter to his son Richard to be opened on this 21st birthday.

In the letter James says, "Many of the things we fight for so hard in life in our ordinary peacetime lives are a sham. The life and death struggles of war like this emphasize this point every day. Bombs at least make you think. They blow up all pretense and leave a man naked before his conscience..."

All around us here, the people under great stress have found a greater sense of family. They are more thoughtful and considerate and at the same time they are wonderfully hard and tough. They are fighting for something outside and above themselves...

I suggest to you...that above all things a man must accept his responsibility. This war came about in the age of irresponsibility...I entreat you, there, to accept your responsibilities - first to the dreams of the founders of the United States and the ideals of this country where you were born...Live simply and accept your responsibilities."

Thomas Edison wrote to a young lab employee, "I've never once made a lucky strike in my life, but I don't believe in luck -- good or bad. I never quit until I get what I'm after. That is the only difference between me, that's supposed to be lucky and the fellows that think they are unlucky. Just remember: nothing that's any good works by itself."

Other titles of interest are: Road Rage by Ruth Rendell. Rough Justice by Lisa Scottoline. Crack in the Sky by Terry C. Johnston. Judgement by William J. Coughlin.

FCE luncheon occurs Monday

The Family Community Education Council and clubs will hold their annual Fall Luncheon at noon Monday in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library.

Recent State Convention delegates, Jo Lee who serves as County FCE chairman, Mariellen Homfeld, County FCE chairman-elect and Maudette Smith, county FCE Council chairman, will present the delegate report beginning at 12:30 p.m.

The Deaf Smith County FCE Council will convene at 1:30 p.m. for its regular September meeting.

Each person attending the luncheon is asked to bring a covered dish. Prospective members are invited to attend the Fall Luncheon.

Red Cross Update

Clothing for school age children will be given by appointment all week. Call the office at 364-3761 to make an appointment.

Orientation for Board Members will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 29. Orientation for volunteers will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 7. The second session of the workshop for staff volunteers will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at the office.

The founding of the American Red Cross was inspired by Clara Barton. Exhausted by her work during the Civil War, she went to Europe in search of rest. There, she was introduced to the Red Cross idea. She brought the Red Cross movement to this country and influenced the ratification of the Geneva Treaty. In 1881, the American Association of the Red Cross was formed with Clara Barton as its head.

The Congressional Charter of 1905, still in effect today, gave the American Red Cross the responsibility for providing services to members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their families and relief to disaster victims.

Volunteers in the Tri County Chapter of the American Red Cross are working to provide these services. Volunteers provide all of these services and we will be looking at some of the volunteers in these services. Genevieve Miller is still in need of stories and information about those volunteers.

Deformed produce feeds the hungry

CLINTON, Md. (AP) - Even after crews have picked his fields by hand several times, Rod Parker still has literally tons of cucumbers and squash that won't go to market because they are the wrong color, or the wrong size.

"We leave about 25 percent on the field, simply because it isn't very pretty," Parker said as he surveyed his 300-acre spread. "It's strictly cosmetic."

The discarded vegetables are perfectly good to eat, but it just doesn't make economic sense for Parker to pay workers to harvest a crop he can't sell. Most of the time, the unwanted produce would be plowed under to help fertilize next year's crop.

But Monday, volunteers from nearby Washington, D.C., were filling 60-pound bags with vegetables that will feed some of the capital's needy instead of rotting in the field. Parker said he got involved because he couldn't stomach the waste any longer.

"Farmers grow things to feed people," he says with a shrug.

Known as gleaning, the rescue of vegetables from farm fields is only part of a growing effort to stop America from wasting an estimated 96 billion pounds of food every year - a quarter of the nation's agricultural bounty.

Restaurants, cafeterias, food processors and government agencies are all searching for ways to provide unused food to soup kitchens and other local programs that feed the hungry.

The scope of America's hunger problem was underscored Monday when the Agriculture Department released a study of eating patterns showing that people in nearly 12 million households were worried about getting enough to eat in 1995.

Of that number, about 800,000 households had suffered through severe hunger from time to time during the year. Those homes included 215,000 children under age 6.

"That is an appalling figure, and it must energize us as a nation to do more," Vice President Al Gore said Monday at the first national summit on food gleaning.

Gore and Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman released the study to boost an effort to increase food recovered by 33 percent over the next three years. That would be enough to feed some 450,000 people a day for a year, they said.

At Martha's Table, a volunteer program that feeds up to 1,700 a day in Washington, Veronica Parke sees the difference in children who get enough food.

"The more we feed them, the better chance they have to learn, to work, to be healthy," said Ms. Parke, the organization's president, as about three dozen children munched happily on donated hot dogs, corn and crispy potato nuggets.

Martha's Table depends on food banks to operate many of its feeding programs. And those food banks want more farmers, restaurants and others in the food industry to stop discarding what they don't use.

"It's very important to do as much as you can on a local level," Ms.

Parke said. "You've got to do what you can where you are."

A myriad of obstacles prevent recovering food and getting it to the needy, from finding enough volunteers to ensuring hungry people know where to get a meal. Distribution is difficult, particularly with perishable items, and rural areas have almost no centralized way to get food to people.

Gore and Glickman said the federal government would embark on several new gleaning programs, including a plan by the Defense Department to donate $10 million in excess rations to local feeding centers and a USDA farm field gleaning program in 13 states next summer.

The folk trio Peter, Paul & Mary - who took part in several of Monday's gleaning events and even sang "This Land Is Your Land" - taped a public-service TV ad urging people to find out how they can prevent food loss.

In addition, the National Restaurant Association is distributing a guide to its members on how unused food can be donated to the needy. The International Brotherhood of Teamsters is encouraging truck drivers to volunteer their time to help distribute the food.

"I think Americans want a hands-on way to help," Glickman said. "Gleaning gives everyone a direct hand in being part of the solution."

EDITOR'S NOTE - The Agriculture Department operates a toll-free number for people interested in finding organizations that can take donated food in their local area. The number is 1-800-GLEANIT.

Ranchers to pay more for federal grazing rights

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fees paid by ranchers to graze cattle and sheep on federal land would rise over 25 percent under legislation unveiled Wednesday by House Republicans, but ranchers would gain some protections as well.

Rep. Bob Smith, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the bill is intended to provide some stability to the western cattle industry.

"We need something to make sure this industry can go to the bank and say, look, these are my fees and I'm going to be able to graze these cattle," Smith, R-Ore., said in an interview.

Some environmental groups found Smith's approach deficient, saying it does not do enough to restore and protect vast areas of Western land and gives dominant land-use rights to ranchers at the expense of hunters, anglers and other recreation enthusiasts.

"Too often, and in too many places, poorly managed grazing has degraded the public's resources: water, wildlife, fish, recreation, archaeological," Frances Hunt of The Wilderness Society told the livestock panel of the House Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

Ranchers throughout the West rely on 270 million acres of federal land to feed their cattle and sheep, but Smith said they must deal with regulations that often conflict with an unstable fee system.

Under Smith's bill, the grazing fee would rise from about $1.35 per animal now to $1.84. It would be based on a new formula determined by the cost of feeding a cow and calf or five sheep for one month.

The fee is much lower than that charged by private landowners, which can reach $8 or more per animal. But Smith said federal land is not as desirable and shouldn't cost as much. "They are the roughest lands.

They are certainly not equal to private lands, or even state lands," Smith said.

Ms. Hunt said the fee is still a "bargain basement" deal that will "return only a fraction of the costs of the federal grazing program to taxpayers." The Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management spend about $5.81 per animal per month on grazing.

The measure maintains a rancher's tenure, or right to renew permit or lease each 10 years, provided all environmental rules are observed. And ranchers would not be required to have access to the public rangeland from adjacent private land.

The bill would also increase the focus on science-based assessment of any environmental impact to the land of grazing.

The National Cattlemen's Beef Association, the largest beef trade group in the country, and a sheep rancher's organization expressed support for the legislation even though it does not address many other issues of concern to ranchers.

"This is a first step toward resolving many longstanding issues surrounding grazing on federal lands," said Mike Byrne, a cattle rancher from Tulelake, Calif., in testimony Wednesday before House panel.

Tour planned near Bushland

Grain sorghum producers will have the opportunity to view research in both irrigated and dryland sorghum production during a grain sorghum field day scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 24, at the USDA-ARS/TAES research center in Bushland.

Participants should assemble at 9 a.m. at the research farm. The tour will then go to the Mike Menke farm, two miles north of Bushland on FM 2381.

Scientists with the USDA Agricultural Research Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be hosting the event and will cover topics that are of particular interest to Texas Panhandle producers.

Studies are being conducted concerning planting rates and row spacing, insect and weed control, dryland management and irrigation timing.

Special emphasis will be given to cultural practices and rotation systems that are being tested to improve water usage and production.

Texas Grain Sorghum Producers, Texas Grain Sorghum Board and the Bushland Grain Coop are co-sponsoring the tour.

For more information contact the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

The House of the Week

Cottage Has Symmetry and Charm

G-49

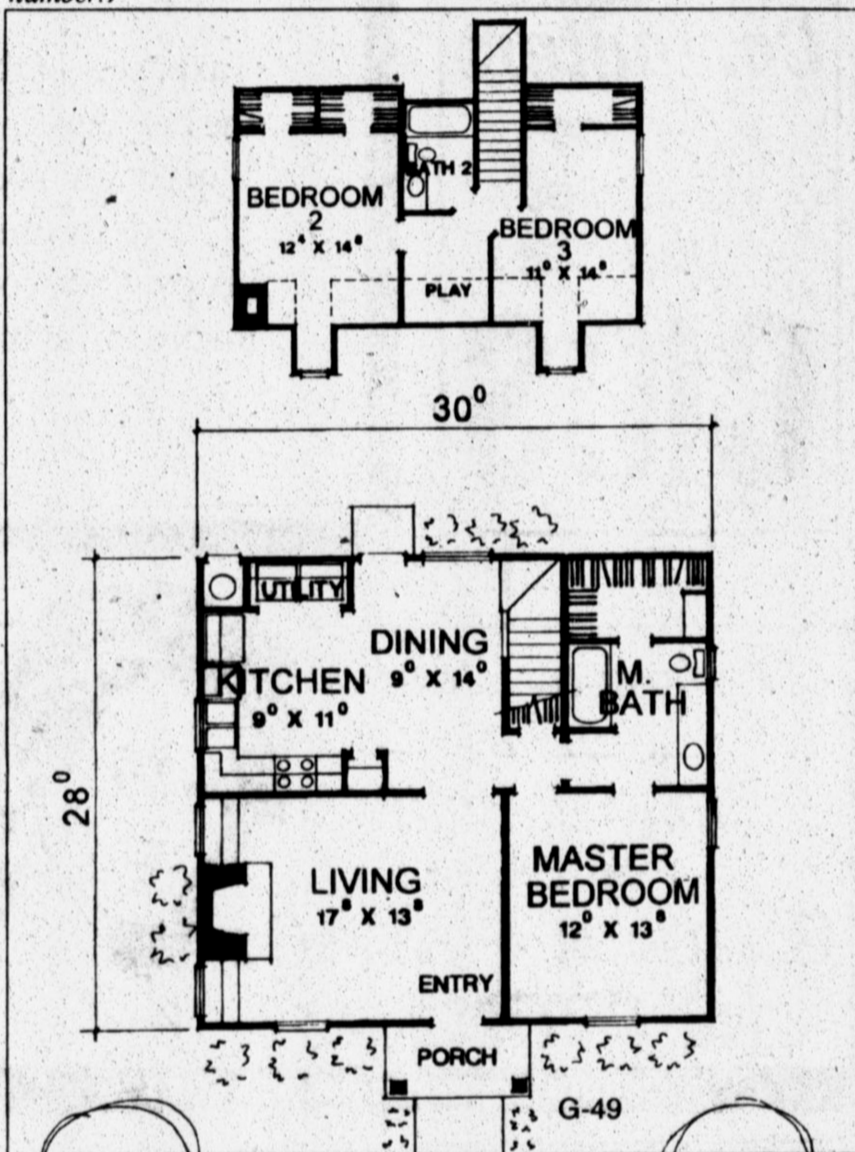

STYLISH SYMMETRY marks this home's facade, with its twin dormers, shuttered windows and columned front entry.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures
Plan G-49, by HomeStyles Designers Network, has a well-organized and compact 1,392 square feet of living space. A handsome tiled fireplace framed by built-in cabinets is a highlight of the large living room in this charming cottage. A well-designed kitchen with a utility closet adjoins the dining area, creating a quaint atmosphere for meals. A rear door provides access to the backyard. The master bedroom has easy access to a full bath with an attached walk-in closet. Two bedrooms with dormers share a play area and a full bath upstairs.

G-49 STATISTICS

Design G-49 has three bedrooms, two baths, a living room, dining room, kitchen, play area and a utility closet, for a total of 1,392 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and 2x4 exterior wall framing.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

THE COVERED FRONT ENTRY leads into the spacious living room, where built-in cabinets frame the fireplace. A quaint dining area adjoins the kitchen at the rear of the home, and opens to the backyard. The master bedroom has a large walk-in closet and a full bath. Upstairs, a play area and a full bath serve two additional bedrooms, both with plenty of closet space.

ER season premiere delivered live

By Jackie Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

The hit medical drama that draws viewers with its realistic problems and accurate medical procedures goes one step further when the season premiere of ER airs live Thursday, Sept. 25, on NBC.

As far as archivists at TV museums around the country can tell, this simply hasn't been done before by a serial drama.

The dramatic Playhouse 90 featured plays adapted for television. Even the last dramas broadcast live, The Member of the Wedding in 1982 and Theatre 62: The Spiral Staircase in 1961, also on NBC, were telecasts of plays.

The possibilities for mistakes on ER, with so many characters and so much intricate medical terminology, are endless.

"George (Clooney) and I were joking that the great ad for the show is to show footage of the Indy 500 crash," says Anthony Edwards, who plays Dr. Mark Greene. "Live ER - anything can happen."

"Part of the reason people will tune in is to see if people screw up," says Pamela Morrison, senior press manager for NBC. "What if they drop a patient or forget the word lidocaine?"

Outside of watching sports, or the Oscars to snicker over which unfortunate starlet neglected to check a mirror, we just don't see much live TV.

Though comedy often thrives on mistakes, which can seem funnier because there's not another chance to get it right, shows about life and death just can't take that approach.

So why meddle with success?

"People wanted to be challenged," says Carol Flint, one of the series' four executive producers. "In addition to people understanding we do a lot of Steadycam shots, maybe what isn't so obvious to viewers is that we do a lot of long shots and follow someone down the hall."

Those shots, called oners, are often used when an ambulance pulls in and the action unfolds in one continuous sequence. Usually during oners on ER, paramedics bark out a series of statistics, which, incidentally, ring true. Five doctors work on the show, two on the writing staff and two more on the stage.

"In the first season, when we started figuring out what the show was about, we started doing these long oners, a long Steadycam shot that lasts five minutes and felt like live TV," Edwards says. "And there was so much pressure to not screw up."

But they succeeded, due in part to the fact that the cast is stage-trained. Eriq La Salle, who plays Dr. Peter Benton, studied at Julliard. Clooney, who plays Dr. Douglas Ross, performed on his father's (Nick Clooney) live TV show when he was a kid.

Clooney and Edwards also have each hosted Saturday Night Live. Still, they are keenly aware of potential pitfalls and are preparing.

"We have every intention of pulling it off if we can just keep Julianna (Margulies) from cracking up," Edwards says.

Though the premiere's script has been carefully guarded, sources say it will involve Dr. Greene. Last season, he was beaten to a pulp in the ER's men's room, and now must cope with a shattered sense of security. In the live season premiere, Greene will be the subject of a documentary about ER doctors.

So, he'll talk to the camera and expose aspects of himself that the audience might not otherwise glean.

HOROSCOPES

September 21-27

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Be aggressive this week, Aries. Everything from your career to your personal life is getting a little overwhelming. Stand up for yourself, and get what you truly want - not what others tell you to want. You can take control of your life. Capricorn plays a key role later in the week.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
You paint the town red this week - even if you don't really want to. Career and personal obligations have you out and about for several days in a row. Don't get too frustrated; things calm down by Friday. Take the weekend to relax. Spend some time with those you love.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Patience really isn't your strong suit, Gemini, and that gets you into trouble early in the week. Try not to jump the gun when it comes to helping a friend; just relax, and wait until the time is right. In the long run, you do the right thing. Your efforts are appreciated. Sagittarius plays an important role midweek.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
You're not in the best of moods this week. Everything and everyone seems to get on your nerves. Don't take your aggravation out on others; take some time for yourself. Stay at home and pamper yourself instead of going out. You'll feel better before the week is through.

LEO - July 23/August 23
While you've got a lot to get done this week, Leo, you aren't stressed at all. You have things organized and are in control. Enjoy the feeling! A loved one calls on you for help. While it's frustrating, you have to be there for him or her. A close friend introduces you to someone who interests you. Make your move.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Be selective when it comes to lending money. Several friends turn to you for financial help. Don't automatically say yes, even though it makes you feel bad. You can't let others take advantage of you. A person whom you've been dating wants to intensify the relationship. Say yes!

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
A new person in your life challenges your good nature. Don't let him or her agitate you. Be yourself, and let your pleasantness shine through. Loved ones question a decision you make. Don't feel like you have to defend yourself, but don't leave family members in the dark either.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
You're on the road to success this week, Scorpio. You make all the right moves with all the right people. Everyone takes notice of your achievements. Friends want to take you out for a night on the town. Don't refuse; you're sure to meet some interesting people on the venture.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
You really put your foot in your mouth at work this week. However, there's no need to worry. A simple explanation remedies the situation. That special someone asks you an important question. Don't make a rash decision; think about what you want out of this relationship.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
While you're used to being the admirer, this week, someone reveals how much he or she truly admires you. You should be flattered, but don't get conceited. A family member takes you up on your offer of a shoulder to cry on. Be supportive. Aquarius plays a key role.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Be realistic when it comes to a business venture. Remember, all that glitters is not gold. Don't get taken in by the hype; learn the facts before making any decision. An interesting person asks you on a date. Say yes, but don't get your hopes up. Just enjoy the evening. Cancer plays a role midweek.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't make a rash decision at work early in the week, Pisces. The higher-ups are watching you. Give your full attention to your work, and don't get distracted. A loved one asks for your help with a difficult situation. Do your best to support him or her, but don't get in over your head.

TV PIPELINE

Q: I enjoy the work of John Mahoney on Frasier. I grew up in the '50s, but I don't remember seeing him until recently. Obviously, he's an accomplished actor. What has he been in before? -A Mahoney fan via e-mail.

A: By coincidence, Mahoney, 57, was born in Manchester, England, home of Frasier co-star Jane Leeves' character, Daphne Moon. After high school, he moved to the United States, joined the Army and worked on losing his accent. He earned a master's degree in English, then tried a series of jobs, including a stint as a college professor, before pursuing acting.

At age 37, he was invited by John Malkovich to join Chicago's Steppenwolf Theatre, where he has appeared in more than 30 productions. He won the 1986 Tony Award for his stage performance in John Guare's dark comedy The House of Blue Leaves, which co-starred Swoosie Kurtz and Christine Baranski (Cybill).

Mahoney has more than 50 TV and movie credits, but he really caught the attention of moviegoers in 1987, when he played Perry, Olympia Dukakis' would-be suitor in Moonstruck, and corrupt Judge Matthew Helms in Suspect.

Mahoney also has had high-profile roles in such films as Eight Men Out, Say Anything, In the Line of Fire, The American President and Primal Fear, and starred in the short-lived 1992 TV series The Human Factor.

Q: I saw a hilarious show on TV the other night in which Jim Carrey, Jamie Foxx and Damon Wayans - among others - performed short skits. What is it, and is it still on TV? -S.A., Agana, Guam.

A: You saw a rerun of In Living Color, which originally aired on Fox from 1990-94. Repeats still air in some markets.

Q: My husband and I recently saw Jack Soo in a Hawaii Five-0 rerun and are trying to remember what series he used to star in. I think he played a private investigator. -Susan Savage, Ada, Okla.

A: You probably are thinking of Soo's work as police Detective Nick Yemana in Barney Miller, in which he co-starred from 1975-78. He also co-starred as Anthony Franciosa's valet, Rocky Sin, in Valentine's Day (1964).

Q: Some personal info, please, on Annie Potts and her upcoming projects. -Russ Gowin, Kathleen, Ga.

A: Potts, 44, who is best known for her role as Mary Jo Shively in the hit sitcom Designing Women, stars with Tim Curry this fall in the ABC comedy Over the Top.

Born in Franklin, Ky., she lives in Los Angeles with her husband, producer-director James Hayman, and their three children.

Michael Landes, Constance Marie and Jim Pirri (from left) form a toasty love triangle on NBC's new sitcom Union Square, premiering Thursday.

Union Square hits hot spot on NBC's Thursday schedule

By Roberta C. Nelson
©TVData Features Syndicate

NBC is trying a different approach with its new Thursday sitcom Union Square - and then again, it's not.

The network known for all-white shows such as Friends and Seinfeld widens its range with a multicultural cast in the new comedy. But the rest is all strangely familiar.

Like Friends, the Union Square cast members are mostly 20-somethings. But two of the lead characters choose unemployment so they can chase their dreams, while another has a prison record (he's white, by the way).

Union Square is the name of the establishment where the action takes place. But instead of an upscale downtown tavern like Cheers, Union Square is a gritty downtown diner.

The set boasts an impressive collection of mismatched, kitschy, vinyl-and-chrome furniture, and the bathroom doors are paneled with pressboard.

Union Square stands out with a terrific cast of actors, who show as much potential as the old Cheers gang and manage to pull together a sometimes weakly written script.

In the first episode, airing Thursday, Sept. 25, an aspiring playwright (Michael Landes), weary from rejections, meets an aspiring Mexican-American actress (Constance Marie) whose vibrancy and optimism keep him from abandoning his dreams. A sexy short-order cook and ex-con (Jim Pirri) completes the lighthearted love triangle. Other characters include a middle-aged, soon-to-be-divorced real estate agent (Harriet Sansom Harris) and the diner's dreadlocked owner (Jeffrey Anderson-Gunter).

On the downside, there are too many stale jokes.

The waiters (Jonathan Slavin, Christine Burke) have predictable personalities: one dumber than dirt, the other a cynical smart mouth.

Still, Union Square shows plenty of promise, despite the departure of original leading lady Mel Gorham.

NBC is certainly banking on the show, serving up Union Square on Thursdays where such hits as Caroline in the City, Frasier and 3rd Rock From the Sun all were successfully launched.

Free and Easy ★★½ (1930) Buster Keaton, Anita Page. A beauty queen's manager unexpectedly steals the spotlight when he takes her in search of Hollywood stardom. 2:00. September 22 9pm.

From the Earth to the Moon ★★ (1958) Joseph Cotten, George Sanders. A post-Civil War inventor launches mankind's first expedition to the moon. Based on the Jules Verne novel. 2:00. September 23 5am; 24 11am.

G

Godzilla vs. Monster Zero ★½ (1966) Nick Adams, Akira Takarada. Aliens invade Earth with Godzilla, Rodan and Ghidrah the three-headed monster under their control. 2:00. September 27 2am.

SOAP WORLD

Robertson puts the accent on Sunset Beach

Poor funding for the arts in Britain has turned out to be a blessing in disguise for Americans.

Sean Connery, Amanda Donohoe and Ewan McGregor are only a few of the British imports whom Americans have embraced.

Clive Robertson, who plays Ben on Sunset Beach, is one of the latest sensations from overseas.

"The truth is I came over here because it was so hard to find work in England," Robertson says. "You work for pittance, especially when you work in theater as I was doing."

"I came out here (to Los Angeles) on kind of a reconnaissance before pilot season. I wanted to get on my feet before trying to find any work."

Robertson says he was shocked when he landed the role on Sunset Beach after only a month in L.A. He says it was his British accent that helped him do it.

"They weren't really looking for an actor with a British accent," Robertson admits. "But (producer) Aaron (Spelling) and his people liked what I did. I think they believed it would help add to the mystery behind the character, and I think it does."

Working on an American soap opera was quite different from acting in British theater.

"I'm up to speed now, but it was a real shock to the system in the beginning," Robertson says. "I was a bit of a perfectionist in the beginning, but working on the soap has helped me be less structured. I'm much more spon-aneous now, which is good."

Sunset Beach airs in England and Robertson is becoming quite well-known in his homeland. "It was different when I went back over to England," he says. "I had a really good response from the people there. They think of Hollywood as this glamorous fairy-tale place like it was in the 1940s."

For now, he is content living in his beautiful home in the Hollywood hills. "I feel liberated here and there is so much opportunity," he says.
