RTC subpoenaed few Texas thrift officials

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - In Texas, savings and loan failures were as plentiful as tumbleweeds, but the government's effort to recoup an estimated $200 billion in losses has hardly matched the task.

The Resolution Trust Corp. failed to issue a single subpoena in 99 of the 122 investigations of thrift officials handled by its three offices in Dallas, Houston and San Antonio from 1989 to early 1993, according to subpoena logs at the S&L cleanup agency.

Not a single RTC case against Texas S&L operators ever reached a jury. The few officials who were sued usually settled out of court for pennies on the dollar.

The recovery effort has been so poor that one of the RTC's most productive attorneys in Texas, Tom Burnside, quit in disgust last year and later told Congress his bosses "just wanted to bury the S&L mess in an unmarked grave."

The Treasury Department recently sent an investigative team to Texas to find out what went wrong.

Its first recommendation was harsh: All remaining cases against S&L insiders should be transferred to the RTC's sister agency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., according to officials close to the review. The officials spoke only on condition they not be identified by name.

The RTC has handled the bulk of the Texas S&L recovery cases, but before it was created in 1989 such investigations were run by the FDIC.

The General Accounting Office estimates that with interest costs calculated, thrift losses in Texas will cost taxpayers $200 billion - or $800 each for every man, woman and child in the United States.

The RTC, however, had recovered just $90 million from Texas through June 1993, the last available date for which records are available. And only $12 million of that came from officials who ran the failed thrifts and their attorneys. The rest came in nationwide settlements with major accounting firms.

The agency has proven its ability elsewhere to recover funds. In one probe - the notorious Charles Keating-Lincoln Savings case - the agency recouped $125 million on losses of more than $2 billion.

No recovery in Texas has reached that success.

A member of the presidential commission that studied the S&L crisis said he was stunned at the failure of the RTC in Texas, which had the most S&L losses of any state. "There is no good explanation for the facts, in terms of the need for an aggressive effort to go after these assets," former Georgia Rep. Elliott Levitas said. "The result is that the taxpayers pick up the bill. It just jumps out at you that the question why this happened has yet to be answered."

Thomas Hinds, who heads the RTC division that pursues thrift officials, declined to comment on the Texas situation - as did top legal officials in the agency's Dallas office.

RTC spokesman Steve Katsanos defended the agency's performance, saying it has aggressively pursued all the S&L insiders it thought it could get money from.

"We feel confident that we have had a vigorous program," Katsanos said. "If we are doing an investigation, and someone is providing us the information we are looking for, there is no need to go to court to enforce a subpoena."

The subpoena is a vital tool to determine exactly how fruitful pursuit of recovery from an S&L official might be, as well as helping find out where misused thrift funds ended up.

Questions remain about why so few S&L officials in Texas have been subpoenaed or found liable for thrift losses.

Arturo Vera-Rojas, an RTC legal manager in Dallas, reported in a July 26, 1993, memo obtained by the AP that he knew of "many similar cases evidencing poor investigatory planning and performance."

His 10-page memo detailed several instances in which investigators wanted to continue pursuing cases against thrift operators that he thought were unwarranted.

Vera-Rojas did not return a reporter's telephone call seeking elaboration.

Extensive turnover also has had an effect - not a single lawyer who recommended a Texas lawsuit against S&L wrongdoers in 1991-92 is still handling the same case, agency records show.

Some wonder whether politics may have played a role.

"There is a difference between a legitimate investigation and a lot of what we see in this process," Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said during a hearing in September. "(There were) billions and billions of dollars, an extraordinarily obvious political interconnecting network. And somehow, somewhere, this thing got shut down."

Added Senate Banking Committee Chairman Don Riegle, D-Mich: "The government (was) in effect taking a dive here...."

Accident scene

Hereford rescue workers lift a back board into place before removing wreck victim Gloria Cuellar, 25, from the vehicle in which she was riding when it was involved in a three-car pileup Tuesday afternoon. Three people were transported to Hereford Regional Medical Center, where they were treated and released.

Three injured in accident

A three-vehicle pileup in South Hereford on Tuesday sent three residents to the hospital with minor injuries.

The accident occurred at the intersection of South 25 Mile Avenue and Bradley at 1:48 p.m.

According to reports, Juan Bowie Jackson, 49, of 704 East Fourth, was traveling north on 25 Mile Avenue, preparing to turn left onto Bradley.

He turned into the path of a 1981 Buick Regal driven by Armando Cuellar, 27, of 210 Barker, who was traveling south on 25 Mile Avenue.

The collision, the report said, caused Jackson's car to spin into the front end of a 1979 Chevrolet pickup that was driven by Linda Rincon, 39, No. 104 Hereford Calle, who was sitting at the stop sign on eastbound Bradley.

Gloria Cuellar, 25, a passenger in Cuellar's vehicle, and Rincon and her passenger Freddie Rincon, 20, were transported to Hereford Regional Medical Center by ambulance, where they were treated and released.

A second passenger in the Cuellar vehicle, Armando Cuellar, 3, was uninjured, as was Jackson.

Jackson was cited for failure to yield right of way to traffic, while Cuellar was cited for failure to secure child under three in restraint seat.

A police investigation is continuing.

Clinton seeks Eastern European support with NATO cooperation

PRAGUE, Czech Republic (AP) - President Clinton tried today to convince disappointed Eastern European nations that the West has a real stake in their security even though NATO won't promise to protect them from aggressors.

Clinton seemed likely to win grudging pledges of support from the leaders of Poland, Hungary and Slovakia today for the new Partnership for Peace - a half-step approach offering former Soviet bloc nations closer military and political cooperation with NATO but not full membership.

Poland's president, Lech Walesa, appeared resigned to the plan. "Mr. President Clinton has so many ways of convincing me that he shall definitely convince me," Walesa said, sitting alongside president at the U.S. ambassador's residence.

To bring more American businesses to Eastern Europe, Clinton planned to announce an expansion of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation's insurance program for new investments in Eastern Europe. Clinton also was earmarking $30 million for programs to nurture democracy in Eastern Europe.

The Hungarian delegation, led by President Arpad Goncz, was the first to meet with Clinton. Asked if the Hungarians would support the partnership plan, Clinton said, "I hope so."

Clinton stopped first at the Pinkas synagogue, now a Holocaust museum where the names of 77,297 Czech Jews killed by the Germans in World War II are being inscribed again on a wall.

Bobbitt witnesses talk sex

MANASSAS, Va. (AP) - A neighbor of John and Lorena Bobbitt testified today that he heard the couple having sex and a woman's screams of pain on the morning Bobbitt's penis was cut off.

"The woman was screaming, it sounded to me, in pain," neighbor Mike Dibble testified. "She would scream out every few seconds."

Mrs. Bobbitt claims she cut off her husband's penis with a kitchen knife only after he sexually assaulted her.

Bobbitt, 26, was acquitted last year of that charge. He testified Monday on the first day of her trial that he was too exhausted to have sex when he returned early that morning from a night out.

Under cross-examination by prosecutor Paul B. Ebert, Dibble acknowledged he did not report the screaming to police until after he had talked about it on national television.

Ebert also asked Dibble whether his girlfriend screams during sex.

"On occasion," Dibble replied.

"Would she scream loud enough for other people to hear?" Ebert said.

"I wouldn't know," Dibble said.

Dr. Sue Inman testified that Bobbitt laughed at his wife when she complained of respiratory problems during a visit to the physician.

"I thought it was unusual he was laughing at her for being sick," Ms. Inman said.

She said Mrs. Bobbitt also complained that her husband forced her to have sex but that she was not beaten.

On Tuesday, witnesses testified that Bobbitt liked rough sex and slapped his wife around in front of others.

"He said he liked to make girls squirm and yell, make them bleed," Jonathan Whitaker testified. Another witness, Jonathan Kaupua, said Bobbitt once told him he liked women to "scream and squirm away. That turned him on."

Trade expected to surge between U.S. and Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's border crossings already may be congested, but the Transportation Department suggests they're capable of shouldering the additional traffic resulting from the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Despite estimates that trade between the United States and Mexico will surge 65 to 70 percent by the turn of the century, federal transportation officials aren't recommending an infusion of federal money to the border.

While the nation's border bridges, tunnels and federal inspection facilities were rated as adequate in the short term, DOT found fault with the roads leading to the border crossings.

"Arterials leading to and from border crossing sites are ... under stress and will be hard pressed to handle significantly greater amounts of cross-border traffic," DOT said in a study released Tuesday.

The report, which analyzed NAFTA's likely impact on the nation's transportation systems, drew immediate criticism from two Texas congressmen whose districts border Mexico.

Reps. Ron Coleman and Henry Bonilla praised DOT for conducting the study, but vigorously disputed the agency's assessment that the border crossing infrastructure is adequate.

"The reality is that our present facilities, including staffing levels, are inadequate to meet the current levels of trade," said Coleman, D-El Paso.

Agreed Bonilla: "I completely disagree with the report's assumption that border crossing facilities are adequate for the foreseeable future."

"It doesn't take a rocket scientist to see that border crossing facilities in Texas already have problems," added Bonilla, R-San Antonio.

The study affixes blame for border congestion and often hours-long delays on poor traffic management, complex inspection requirements by different federal agencies and inadequate paperwork.

The analysis rejects calls for a separate federal fund to pay for the border's infrastructure needs. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena said improvements could be funded through greater efficiency in managing border crossings and financing from private sources.

In releasing the report, Pena announced that he will meet here in March with his Mexican and Canadian counterparts to discuss NAFTA's pressures on the three nations' transportation infrastructure.

"A central issue the Department of Transportation will bring to the table is that of reducing traffic delays, congestion and pollution that degrade the quality of life in our border communities," Pena said. He reminded reporters he is familiar with border conditions, having grown up in Brownsville.

Other issues to be discussed at the March meeting include implementation of NAFTA's provisions for the liberalization of cross-border truck, bus and rail commerce; and harmonization of the three nations' licensing, safety and operating rules.

Pena also announced the creation of a task force that will bring together representatives from a dozen federal agencies to find ways to improve border operations and plan for future needs. Panel members are expected to be named in the coming days.

While opposing the idea of a separate border fund, DOT officials are lobbying the Clinton administration to push hard for next year's share of a massive 1991 bill intended to provide $155 billion over seven years for transportation.

Tobacco tax action expected to light up campaign debate

AUSTIN (AP) - State Treasurer Martha Whitehead is shifting collection of tobacco taxes to the comptroller's office, a move that is lighting up the campaign debate.

Mrs. Whitehead, a Democrat, favors abolishing the Treasury, while the Republican candidates favor keeping the agency.

Mrs. Whitehead said Tuesday that the transfer would trim from 24 to 11 the number of Treasury employees involved with the tax and save the state $571,000 by the end of the current two-year budget cycle.

The Treasury would remain responsible for administering the tax, while the comptroller would handle auditing, enforcement and permitting functions, she said.

"They (the comptroller's office) are the tax collectors. We are the state's bankers," Mrs. Whitehead said.

"When you've got another state agency with 500 auditors and 300 tax enforcement officers already on the payroll, it makes sense to use those people, reduce the size of government and save taxpayer dollars," she said.

David Hartman, a Republican seeking the post, has criticized the transfer of duties. In addition, a lawsuit was filed Monday by a Midland County tobacco wholesaler, seeking to block the shift.

"By this arrogant power play, not only have most of the Treasury's experienced tobacco tax audit and enforcement personnel been dispersed by transfer or discharged, the state may have suspended its legal authorization to enforce the tobacco tax laws," Hartman said.

Mrs. Whitehead, who was appointed by Gov. Ann Richards, said the GOP criticism was peculiar.

"I honestly believe that these Republicans are abandoning the goals and ideals of their own party when they try to block smaller, more efficient government by resorting to this lawsuit which is, in my opinion, a cheap political ploy," Mrs. Whitehead said.

Hartman called the transfer of duties "an illegal and unconstitutional power play which could cost the state lost tax revenues."

He said the Legislature in 1989 assigned tobacco tax collections to the Treasury and that the job shouldn't be transferred without lawmakers' OK.

But Mrs. Whitehead said Treasury and comptroller's office lawyers and the attorney general's office had OK'd the contract.

Wholesale prices jumped 0.2 percent rise during '93

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices, helped by a dramatic plunge in gasoline costs at year-end, edged up a tiny 0.2 percent in 1993, the best showing in two years, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said the small increase in its Producer Price Index, which measures inflationary pressures before they reach the consumer, followed a 1.6 percent gain in 1992 and a decline of 0.1 percent in 1991.

For December, wholesale prices fell by 0.1 percent, the fourth time in a year that prices posted an outright decline.

Last month, the good news came

"There's absolutely no legal problem. It's a valid interagency contract. We have 55-plus interagency contracts with the Treasury right now," she said.

Kevin Moomaw, a spokesman for Hartman, said there's a big difference between contracting for a service such as printing and the collection of taxes.

"They clearly understand they've got a problem, or they wouldn't be saying they'd be keeping some of the responsibilities at the Treasury while transferring the duties over to the comptroller," he said.

In other political news Tuesday: - Dallas businessman Richard Fisher, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, became the first Senate candidate to begin airing television commercials.

from gasoline prices, which dropped 10.4 percent, the biggest one-month decline since August 1989. Overall, energy costs were down a substantial 3.5 percent, reflecting plunging worldwide prices for oil.

The December wholesale price report was even better than many analysts had expected and emphasized their claim that even though the economy is picking up steam, the increased activity has not triggered a rise in inflation.

The government is scheduled to report on consumer prices Thursday and analysts believe they also will show an absence of inflationary pressures.

Hereford Independent School District vs. Douglas Barker, delinquent taxes, court costs, $141.41, paid, Dec. 23.

Deaf Smith County vs. Leon Ole, delinquent taxes, court costs, $558.25, paid, Dec. 28.

"It's about as typically Texas as a metropolitan area could be," DeGuerin said. "All we wanted from the very beginning has been a fair trial, a fair jury uninfluenced by politics. I think that Tarrant County can give us that."

But the question of when the trial would be held hasn't been settled.

Mrs. Hutchison's side contends that the Travis County District Attorney's office is trying to delay going to trial to hurt her re-election campaign.

Prosecutors say Mrs. Hutchison's attorneys work behind the scenes to delay the process while publicly proclaiming they want a speedy trial.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, faces charges that she used her previous office as state treasurer for personal and political gain, then altered records to cover up her activities.

She has denied any wrongdoing and claims the charges are part of a Democratic plot to hurt her election campaign. Mrs. Hutchison, 50, became the first woman senator from Texas by winning a special election June 5. She now seeks election in 1994 to a full six-year term.

She faces two counts of official misconduct, tampering with a government record and tampering with evidence. If she is tried on all the counts at the same time and convicted, she would face a maximum of 20 years in prison.

Also Tuesday, a Travis County grand jury re-indicted Mrs. Hutchison on a misdemeanor charge of official misconduct.

The charge alleges Mrs. Hutchison violated the state appropriations act by using state funds to operate office equipment and pay salaries to employees for the purpose of raising campaign funds when she was a senate candidate. It carries a maximum punishment of one year in jail.

Earlier versions of the misdemeanor or indictment had been rejected by Onion after he said the charge didn't specify what office she was running for.

Travis County First Assistant District Attorney Steve McCleery declined to comment on why the charge was pursued. During a pretrial hearing, he said the indictment was important because it dealt with what an elected official can and cannot do with tax dollars.

Cult trial jury panel anonymity ordered by judge

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A jury including a former nun and a woman who believes that only police should own guns was seated for the trial today of 11 disciples of David Koresh on charges of murdering four federal agents in a gun battle.

Prosecutors say the defendants stockpiled 11 tons of weapons and planned a murderous battle to fulfill Koresh's doomsday prophecies. The cultists say they acted in self-defense after agents raided their compound with excessive force.

In a victory for the defense, U.S. District Judge Walter Smith said lawyers could try to establish the defendants' state of mind before the raid by discussing how Koresh told his followers about other deadly government raids.

Four agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were killed and 16 wounded in the shootout that broke out Feb. 28 at the Branch Davidians' compound near Waco when more than 100 officers tried to search for guns and arrest Koresh on weapons charges. Six Branch Davidians are believed to have died as well.

After a 51-day standoff, federal agents pumped tear gas into the buildings, and Koresh and some 80 followers died as the place went up in flames. Investigators said the cultists set the fire in a mass suicide.

All 11 defendants, some of whom survived the fire by jumping out of windows, could get life in prison without parole.

Twelve anonymous jurors and six alternates were seated on Tuesday. The judge ordered their identities withheld to protect them from pressure. The trial was moved to San Antonio because of heavy publicity in Waco.

The jury includes a former Roman Catholic nun who said she had "negative feelings" about cults; the mother of a 1-month-old baby who said only police should own guns; and a woman who said she had never heard of the case.

The judge warned he wouldn't give defense attorneys "carte blanche" to discuss other federal gun battles, such as the 1992 raid on Randy Weaver, a white separatist in Idaho.

Weaver holed up for 11 days with three daughters and a friend after his son, a federal agent and his wife were killed in gun battles. He was later acquitted of slaying the federal agent.

"What is in the mind is critical in self-defense," said defense attorney Joe Turner. "David Koresh had told his people in his sermons that the government had done this in the Randy Weaver case and in other cases."

The judge also barred the defense in its opening statements from discussing government reports that criticized planning by the ATF and the FBI. Smith has yet to rule on whether they can be introduced later in the trial.

The judge also ruled that prosecutors could use the words "cult" and "compound" and would probably be allowed to describe some Branch Davidians as "mighty men," a sect term for paramilitary warriors. The defense had complained that the terms were prejudicial.

"That property has been referred to as a compound one zillion times by the members of the media," the judge said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: A recent test warned me that I am a victim of emphysema. I have not smoked for 15 years. However, my husband is a heavy smoker — without consideration. I did have bronchitis when I had the test and wonder if that affected the diagnosis.

Can emphysema be cured by exercise? Also, what do you mean by "learning how to breathe effectively" and muscle strength?

DEAR READER: Emphysema and chronic bronchitis often occur together and are now referred to as chronic obstructive lung diseases (COLD). It is possible that during an acute bout of bronchitis any obstruction in your lungs could be increased. Bronchitis can cause an asthmatic-type response, and asthma is also associated with constriction of the air passages in the lungs, making it hard to fully exhale.

Most smokers who have a chronic cough do have chronic bronchitis. They have an inflammation of the airways. There are glands in the airways that secrete mucus which is increased, causing a chronic cough and the production of sputum.

Although the term emphysema is commonly used when the problem is actually chronic bronchitis, it really refers to overstretched tiny air sacs where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged — the alveoli. This can also occur because of an inherited lack of an enzyme which protects against the destruction of the elastic fibers in the air sacs.

No, exercise cannot cure either chronic bronchitis or emphysema. But a rehabilitation program that involves exercise can be very useful in helping a person with COLD remain active. There are ways to breathe that improve the amount of oxygen in the lungs and help to increase a person with COLD's ability to exercise. That includes learning to do abdominal breathing by moving the abdomen in and out so the diaphragm moves up and down. The chest may become rather fixed because of hyperinflation of the lungs and is not as effective in breathing. Learning to breathe through pursed lips also increases pressure in the lungs and helps.

Muscle strength means just that: strong muscles. Many patients with COLD have not exercised because of the limitations on breathing. But by exercising one muscle group at a time against resistance, the muscles can regain some strength. That enables people to be more independent and physically active. Some of these patients have such weak muscles that when they start, they can only exercise one minute an hour at the beginning, but their ability can be significantly improved to enable them to have some degree of physical independence.

Rehabilitation programs are quite important, and I have discussed these concepts in more detail in Special Issue 37-02, Chronic Bronchitis And Emphysema, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/37-02, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. A walk-around oxygen bottle that delivers oxygen into the trachea and improved strength has returned many to an active enjoyable life.

Club continues study of Beethoven

The life and music of Beethoven continued with a study of his Vienna years when members of the Hereford Music Study Club met in the home of Barbara Manning.

It was an era of revolt, of change, of the emergence of democratic, personal freedom in Austria. The musical atmosphere was characterized by great instrumental and vocal performers and of much improved pianos and Beethoven was the foremost pianist of his day.

In Vienna, the 17-year-old Beethoven studied with Mozart, who first recognized his genius. At age 22, he learned from Haydn how to write counterpoint and how to write for an orchestra. Both teachers taught him classic forms which could not hold all that Beethoven needed to express, so he enlarged them.

Five compositions were presented by club members. They included "Six Variations in G," a piano solo by Cheryl Betzen; "Ecosaisces," a piano number by Linda Gilbert; two vocal solos by Frances Parker, "In This Dark Tomb" and "To the Distant Beloved, accompanied by Barbara Manning; and the final selection was the Adagio movement of "Sonata quasi una Fantasia," familiarly called "Moonlight Sonata" performed by Tina Langchennig.

The program was concluded with the singing of "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah."

Members present were Cheryl Betzen, Helen Caraway, Pat Fisher, Linda Gilbert, Barbara Manning, Tina Langchennig, Frances Parker, Margaret Schroeter, Susan Shaw,

Whitefaces sweep Petersburg

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford girls' basketball team blew away Petersburg from the start, while the Hereford boys didn't claim their win late in the game. Either way, the Herd got much-needed wins in Tuesday's double-header.

The Lady Whitefaces, a 53-29 winner, limited Petersburg to one point in the first quarter and outscored the Class 1A team in every quarter.

Hereford's boys took the lead midway through the third quarter and scratched out a 57-49 win. Though Petersburg is in Class 1A, it's among the best, with state tournament berths the last two years. Its 5-16 record includes many 5A and 4A schools. Hereford's boys improved to 6-14, while the girls, winners of three of their last four games, went to 8-12.

The boys' District 1-4A schedule begins and the girls' resumes when Borger comes to Hereford Friday. Tuesday's wins were the kinds of wins both Hereford teams needed going into district play--and not just because they added to the "Win" column.

The Hereford boys have had trouble winning close games this year, but Tuesday's performance was a perfect clutch job.

Things didn't look good when Petersburg dominated the first quarter and led 11-3, but Hereford closed out the half with a 12-5 run, capped by a Jay Kendall three-pointer in the final minute. Petersburg went to the break with only a 20-19 lead.

"We just had little breakdowns in execution," Herd coach Randy Dean said of the first quarter problems. "A lot of people would scrape free, and we'd miss them for whatever reason."

Hereford tied it at 22-22 early in the second half on Stacey Sanders' three-pointer. The teams traded the lead until Kendall's scoop shot made it 28-27 Hereford. That started an 8-0 Hereford run which included consecutive layups by Jason Colston and a basket by Terrance High.

Petersburg didn't let Hereford run away, though. They closed to within two points early in the fourth quarter, but six straight points by Benton Buckley kept Petersburg at bay. Isaac Walker had two baskets down the stretch--one on a no-look pass from Cody Marion--and Kendall hit 4-of-4 free throws in the final 1:34.

"We made sure not to have turnovers on the offensive end and made sure they didn't score on (our) defensive end--no easy shots at least," said Buckley, who led the Herd with 14 points.

"We came up with the clutch plays: the free throws by Jay (Kendall), the pass from Cody to Isaac big of sealed it, Buckley made some kind of play," coach Randy Dean said. "We made the kind of plays you have to make to win close games."

Isaac Walker scored 13 to back up Buckley's 14. Kendall added nine points.

The Hereford girls led all the way. Mindi Davis scored the first basket of the game and Hereford's first six points, finishing with a game-high 19. Stephanie Wilcox added nine points.

Hereford led only 8-1 after the first quarter. Both offenses picked up in the second quarter, but Petersburg never got closer than eight again. Hereford scored the first nine points of the second half to take a 31-13 lead and virtually seal the blowout.

"I thought we played a lot more aggressively than we did against Randall," said Hereford coach Eddie Fortenberry, referring to a 53-33 loss to Randall on Friday.

"It was a good recovery," he said. "We needed some confidence before Friday. We didn't just need a close win; we needed one where the kids could get their confidence back."

Hereford make a clean sweep of Tuesday's games, winning both the junior varsity games. For good measure, the Hereford sophomore boys' team beat Amarillo High in an unscheduled game Tuesday in Hereford.

The boys' JV won 57-53 by surviving a third quarter comeback attempt by Petersburg. Todd Dudley led Hereford with 21 points, while Gregg Kalka helped with 11 and Brian Torres and Wade Backus each had eight.

The girls' JV won 43-29, getting 20 points from Julie Cole and 10 from Sarah Perrin. The girls are now 7-8 on the season.

The sophomores used an 18-3 explosion in the second quarter to win 53-31. Michael High led with 14 points, and David Sims added eight.

The Borger girls beat West Texas High 56-41 Tuesday, running their record to 19-4. Borger's was the only score available among district girls' teams.

In games involving District 1-4A boys' teams: Pampa beat Childress 71-55, while Caprock lost to Liberal, Kan., 86-42 and Dumas lost to Frenship 41-27.

The season records for these 1-4A teams are: Pampa, 13-8; Caprock, 6-15; and Dumas, 3-15.

Two more

Hereford's Mindi Davis shoots for two of the 19 points she had in the Herd's 53-29 win over Petersburg Tuesday in Hereford

Rejection

Hereford's Benton Buckley (white jersey) sends a Petersburg player's shot back where it came from. Hereford won 57-49. Hereford's Elijah Walker (12) looks on from the floor.

Black Coaches Association threatens boycott of games

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The threat of a national boycott of coaches and players hangs over college basketball, possibly as early as Saturday's games.

The head of the Black Coaches Association said the BCA is calling for a boycott, including white as well as black players and coaches, in protest of the NCAA's refusing to add a 14th scholarship to men's basketball.

"In all likelihood there will be a boycott, but I am reluctant to give you a time and date," Rudy Washington, head coach at Drake, said Tuesday from his office in Des Moines.

"Players and coaches are expected to participate," Washington said. "And they're talking about the rest of the season, like the baseball strike."

In the stormy history of NCAA affairs, there has never been anything approaching a national boycott. The repercussions of such an action seemed staggering to NCAA convention delegates as they adjourned Tuesday and headed home.

Washington said BCA officials would meet by phone late Tuesday to decide when to make their play.

"At this point in time, right now, it's a go. Every coach I talked to said they were going to do it," Washington said.

NCAA officials met twice with BCA officials in the last hours of the

Spurs get sparkling performance from Robinson

By The Associated Press
David Robinson found four ways to beat the Minnesota Timberwolves. Robinson had 27 points, 12 rebounds, 10 assists and eight blocks Tuesday night, leading the Spurs to a 108-98 victory at San Antonio.

He fell two blocks short of becoming the fourth player in NBA history to record a quadruple-double — posting double figures in four categories. Nate Thurmond, Alvin Robertson and Hakeem Olajuwon accomplished the feat.

"David was David," Spurs forward Willie Anderson said. "He does everything every night for you. There's nothing he can't do for you."

Robinson's triple-double was the 12th of his career, and second of the season against the Timberwolves. He made nine of 14 shots from the field and the line.

"He's a terrific player — one of the best in the league, no doubt," Minnesota center Luc Longley said. "His lateral speed out on the floor gives me problems."

San Antonio outscored Minnesota 30-17 in the third period to take an 88-66 lead, and cruised to its eighth victory in nine games.

"We started a little slow, and we let them hang around," Robinson said. "In the second half, we just defended better and we shut them down."

Rookie Isaiah Rider scored 26 points for Minnesota, which lost for the seventh time in nine games.

Elsewhere, it was New York 98, the Los Angeles Clippers 77; Washington 115, New Jersey 100; Denver 94, Detroit 86; Indiana 82, Milwaukee 76; Charlotte 95, Phoenix 93; Sacramento 103, Miami 95; Portland 108, Seattle 99; and Golden State 122, the Los Angeles Lakers 117.

Trail Blazers 108, Sonics 99
At Portland, Rod Strickland had 22 points, 10 assists, eight rebounds and no turnovers as the Trail Blazers handed Seattle only its fourth loss in 30 games. The Sonics never seriously threatened after Portland pulled away early in the second quarter. Clifford Robinson had 27 points and rookie James Robinson added a career-high 20 for Portland. Delf Schrempf and Gary Payton scored 19 apiece for Seattle.

Warriors 122, Lakers 117
At Inglewood, Latrell Sprewell

scored 29 points and Golden State fought off a late challenge by Los Angeles. Sprewell's 3-pointer with 5:25 left in the third period gave Golden State the lead for good, 76-74. Golden State led 106-90 before the Lakers rallied to 117-112 with 30 seconds left. Rookie Nick Van Exel scored a season-high 28 points for the Lakers.

Kings 103, Heat 95
At Sacramento, Wayman Tisdale scored 23 points and the Kings used a late 11-0 run to beat Miami. The loss broke a four-game road winning streak for the Heat, and denied coach Kevin Loughery his 600th pro victory. Walt Williams and Lionel Simmons had 18 points each for the Kings. Steve Smith led Miami with 26.

Knicks 98, Clippers 77
At New York, Patrick Ewing scored 31 points and the Knicks outscored Los Angeles 29-15 in the third period to hand the Clippers their sixth straight loss. John Starks scored eight of his 19 points during the third-period surge that broke the game open. Danny Manning finished with 16 points for the Clippers.

Nuggets 94, Pistons 86
At Auburn Hills, Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 10 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter as Denver extended Detroit's losing streak to 10.

It was the Nuggets' first win at Detroit since 1988. Reggie Williams and LaPhonso Ellis led Denver with 19 points each, while Olden Polynice had 15 points and 16 rebounds for the Pistons.

Bullets 115, Nets 100
At East Rutherford, Washington scored a season-high 68 points in the first half. Don McLean led the Bullets with 20 points. Derrick Coleman scored 26 for New Jersey.

Hornets 95, Suns 93
At Phoenix, Hersey Hawkins' 3-pointer with 2:46 left gave Charlotte the lead for good over the cold-shooting Suns.

Hogs beat LSU in game with controversial finale

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The way LSU coach Dale Brown sees it, only the officials didn't.

"Twenty-thousand screaming Arkansas fans could see with their own eyes that (Clint McDaniel) fouled him," Brown said.

With the score tied, McDaniel swiped the ball from Andre Owens at midcourt, then was fouled by Owens. McDaniel sank a free throw with 39 seconds left, then LSU's Jamie Brandon missed two shots in the final seconds as fourth-ranked Arkansas edged visiting LSU 84-83 and sent Brown into a tizzy.

"It was so sad to end such a good game with such a terrible call," said Brown, who headed for the officials' dressing room after the game before security personnel blocked him.

"Dale Brown has always talked about our defense as if it were a mugging style," McDaniel said. "I felt that the call at the end of the game really could have gone either way. But in my opinion I got all ball. The intensity was so high in the last minutes that I really don't know if I fouled him or not."

After McDaniel missed the second free throw, LSU hustled downcourt where Brandon's 12-footer hit the rim. LSU (7-4, 1-2 Southeastern Conference) got the rebound and Brandon missed again from about the same distance.

Corliss Williamson paced Arkansas (11-1, 2-1) with 24 points, hitting 11-for-13 from the field.

"Corliss Williamson gave us an incredible 37 minutes," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "The Big Nasty is a workhorse. He can deliver if you get it to him in the paint."

Dwight Stewart scored 17 points and Scotty Thurman added 15 for Arkansas. Ronnie Henderson led LSU with 25 points and Lencar buds LSU 13.

In other games involving ranked teams Tuesday night it was: No. 11 Indiana 89, Iowa 75 and No. 13 Temple 76, Penn 65.

No. 11 Indiana 89, Iowa 75
Brian Evans, playing with his separated right shoulder in a brace, scored a career-high 21 points to lead the Hoosiers (9-2, 2-0 Big Ten) to their fifth straight victory over Iowa. Evans, a left-handed shooter, hurt his arm on Dec. 28 and was playing for the first time since then. Damon Bailey and Pat Graham each had 20 points for visiting Indiana and they hit consecutive 3-pointers to give the Hoosiers a 79-68 lead with 2:29 to play. Kenyon Murray had 18 points for the Hawkeyes (6-6, 0-3), who are off to their worst start since going 5-7 in 1974-75.

No. 13 Temple 76, Penn 65
The Owls' big three — Aaron McKie, Eddie Jones and Rick Brunson — combined for 62 points as Penn's eight-game winning streak was snapped. McKie had 24 points as Temple (8-2) took command with a 15-4 run in the final minutes for its 13th straight victory over its city rival. Brunson, the point guard, was 6-for-7 from the field and had 16 points and didn't commit a turnover. Jerome Allen led the visiting Quakers (9-2) with 26 points.

BOYCOTT

NCAA convention and held out hope that a boycott could be averted. In the meantime, all 33 Division I conference commissioners scheduled a conference call for 1 p.m. EST Thursday to discuss their strategy.

"There certainly is the possibility of continued dialogue," NCAA executive director Cedric Dempsey said.

White coaches, as well as the National Association of Basketball Coaches, were in sympathy with the BCA.

"I find it appalling that our administrators did not respond to the outcry from the NABC and also the Black Coaches Association," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski.

NCAA schools, dominated by the powerful NCAA Presidents Commission, voted Monday not to restore a 14th basketball scholarship two years after the scholarship from 15 to 13.

The BCA maintains minorities are particularly hurt by cutting scholarships.

The Presidents Commission cited costs and the need to hold firm on reform measures. The presidents also indicated to the BCA the scholarship could be added next year if savings could be found elsewhere.

Dempsey declined to say whether he believes there will be a boycott.

"If there's to be a boycott, how long a boycott?" he said at a news conference following the convention's adjournment. "We could play speculative games related to that. I don't see that it would be profitable."

It is not clear how many coaches would participate in a boycott. The BCA has about 3,000 members, but that number includes head coaches and assistants from all divisions in men's and women's programs, as well as high school coaches.

Black coaches have said dropping the scholarship will deny 330 young men, mostly African-Americans, access to education. But others said not all the 297 Division I schools use their full scholarship limit anyway.

Packers: Cowboys won't run away this time

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - The Green Bay Packers want everybody to know that their game against the Dallas Cowboys isn't until Sunday, so you can quit counting them out just yet.

Forget - as the Packers would like to - their 36-14 loss to Dallas on Oct. 3, the only time this season that Green Bay (10-7) was routed.

"Myself, I really wasn't in awe of them," Packers linebacker Bryce Paup said. "They're a good team and they have a lot of weapons. It's hard to say if the rest of the team was in awe of them, but we must have been because we played like it."

Linebacker Johnny Holland said the Packers were just too excited about playing the Super Bowl champions.

"Guys were so hyped up to play that game that we lost focus of our game plan, of what we were trying to do," Holland said. "It was close, then a couple of big plays and it got out of hand."

But not this Sunday, said Green Bay guard Doug Widell.

"We respect their abilities, and obviously the way they beat us this year, you'd be stupid not to respect a good team like that," Widell said. "But I don't think anybody's intimidated. Hopefully, we've improved enough so that we won't have the same outcome."

"They got talent all over the field," said defensive back George Teague. "When we played Dallas the first time, they really beat us up pretty bad. Now, I guess there's kind of some hate in our hearts because we know we can play better than that." The wild-card Packers beat Detroit 28-24 Saturday for their first playoff victory since the strike-shortened 1982 season. The rested Cowboys (12-4) won the NFC East, home field advantage and a first-round bye.

"Everything went their way last time, and you're not going to get that every game," offered cornerback Terrell Buckley. "Michael Irvin and Alvin Harper were catching everything. Troy Aikman was on fire; he was throwing bullets about two inches from the reach of our fingers."

And Emmitt Smith, after sitting out two games in a contract stalemate, made his first start of 1993 against the Packers, rushing for 71 yards on 13 carries, including a 22-yard touchdown on his way to his third consecutive NFL rushing title.

Smith won't be the only problem for the Green Bay defense, which will have to get a lot of pressure from Reggie White and Tony Bennett to keep Aikman from finding Irvin and Harper on Sunday.

Green Bay, weak at corner, strong at safety, may try a two-deep zone - the New York Giants shut down Irvin and Harper that way. But the Packers, banged-up at inside linebacker, allowed Barry Sanders 169 yards coming off a knee injury and now they get Smith.

The Cowboys are two-touchdown favorites, but that's assuming Smith's separated right shoulder allows him to play.

Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren acknowledged his Packers don't match up well with Dallas.

"I'm not sure anybody in football at this stage matches up real well with them," he said. "But the test or the challenge will be to really improve and show them that we're a better football team than we were when we played them the first time."

The Packers' mistake in that first meeting was concentrating too much on Smith, said safety LeRoy Butler. "That's how we got beat last time.

Everybody went in there thinking about Emmitt, and Aikman tore us up," Butler said. "We need to go in there thinking that we need to beat them regardless of who they got out there, and we'll beat them."

And, Butler said, the Packers won't be awed by the Cowboys this time.

"I'm kind of hard to please, so you might get that from somebody else. I don't expect nothing but a win," Butler declared. "The team that comes in the hottest will probably win, and right now we're pretty warm."

Thing is, Dallas' five-game winning streak is the longest in the NFC.

Chiefs fear Oilers' running game

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The shoot half of Houston's run-and-shoot may produce the biggest plays, but it's the run half that has the Kansas City Chiefs fretting.

"They have been running the ball a lot more," cornerback Albert Lewis said Tuesday after the Chiefs resumed practice for their second-round game in the Houston Astrodome. "I'm concerned that they will be able to spread our defense, hit the seams and then make the big plays."

"They have a lot of depth down there, a lot of skill and they play very physically."

The Oilers have seen the Chiefs' 27-24 overtime victory over Pittsburgh last Saturday - a game in which the Steelers were quite successful at running screen plays against the Chiefs.

"I think it's a different game than we've seen before," Lewis said of the Houston offense. "You can't concentrate on one aspect. They are a total team now. On offense they are so skilled, so adept at what they do. They have a very good offensive line."

Gary Brown, a 229 pound runner with good quickness, is having his best year for Oilers and is the back most feared by the Chiefs.

"Brown's presence has really helped that football team," Kansas City coach Marty Schottenheimer said.

The running game presents a problem for the Chiefs' defensive line, NFL sack leader Neil Smith said.

"They now have the ability to run the ball," Smith said. "We have to try to rush the passer, and when you see the run, you have to react to it."

"It's time for everybody to crank it up and keep our offense on the field and their offense off the field."

The Chiefs will be operating against Oilers quarterback Warren Moon with a secondary that seemingly has been in transition all season. Schottenheimer never could settle on a combination with a free safety that satisfied him, and finally moved cornerback Kevin Ross into that key position.

Once that change was made, injuries hit. The Chiefs will be without Dale Carter, Doug Terry and David Whitmore, and will counter with a makeshift unit that includes newly signed Erik McMillan and Bruce Pickens along with Jay Taylor, who is playing with a broken finger.

The Chiefs, seven-point underdogs, have been a terrible road team this season.

QUESTION: Jerry Collier asked if prairie dogs hibernate.

ANSWER: The rodent we find in the western United States is really a ground squirrel and not a dog. Its scientific name literally means "dog-mouse."

There are two species of prairie dogs. The black-tail found here and in short-grass prairies, and the black-tail, found in the grassy uplands and mountain areas.

This animal is a social mammal that lives in underground burrows known as "dog-towns." Some of the shafts drop down 10-12 feet and the openings are surrounded by mounds of dirt to prevent flooding during storms.

One prairie dog usually acts as a sentinel by sitting on its haunches at the entrance to the shaft. A shrill warning whistle alerts other dogs in the town of danger. Each animal seems to have its own particular entrance to use during this emergency.

The litter size of adult females may be up to 10. The young are usually weaned after three weeks. The young are on their own after

ATLANTA (AP) - Former President Bush doesn't want to criticize Bill Clinton. Wouldn't be prudent. Wouldn't be nice.

And hasn't been necessary, thanks to others in the Republican ranks.

"I vowed when I left the White House that I would not criticize our president for a while," Bush said Monday. "The beauty is others don't feel that way."

Congressional Republicans "are doing a good job, as the loyal opposition should, in pointing out the shortcomings of the other party," Bush said at a fund-raiser for Sen. Paul Coverdell, R-Ga.

Two Bush sons have joined that chorus: George is running for governor of Texas, while Jeb is campaigning for governor of Florida.

"Nineteen ninety-two was not a pleasant year for the Bush family in terms of national politics," Bush said, "so I was very pleased" by their decision to seek office.

The Louvre, the great Parish museum, first opened to the public in 1793.

seven weeks of age. The average life span is about seven years. When a member of the town dies or is killed, other embers make sure the body is properly buried.

These animals come out of their dens only during the daylight hours when the sun is shining. They usually remain in their shafts on cold and/or rainy days. Though they do not go into deep hibernation, they tend to stay underground and sleep during extremely cold weather. If the weather warms, they can be seen scampering around, even in the deep of winter.

If I have often wondered if the term "dog-gone" didn't come from the frustration generated when hunters of prairie dogs try to get too close to the town. The sentinel's warning whistle results in all the dogs being gone.

New diet program is easy to digest

Your resolution to lose weight may be a lot easier to swallow thanks to an amazing new computer diet program.

In the not-so-distant past, diet software could only help you with such things as calorie counting and cholesterol and sodium monitoring. Now when you sit down at your computer to shape up and slim down you can do so more effectively with software that offers two additional key benefits:

-A "treat feature" that lets you include any food you just can't live without in your personal diet plan. Your computer will tell you how much you can fit into your diet without having to much. For some folks this extra feature provides the motivation they need to "stick with it."

Coupe graduates from program

Joan Coupe, president and general manager of the Hereford Travel Center, is a graduate of Cruise Lines International Association's two-day Management Institute at the University of Miami in Coral Gables, FL.

The intensive program is the cruise industry's first advanced-level educational program for travel agency owners and managers to be held at a university. It focuses on developing advanced management and marketing skills, and is taught by leading university experts. Hereford Travel Center is one of more than 21,000 travel agencies across North America that are affiliated with Cruise Lines International Association. According to the association, consumers book nearly 95 percent of all cruises through their travel agency.

"Your personal metabolic "break even" rate, so that you'll know exactly how many calories you can consume each day and continue to lose weight. This rate is not based on national "averages" for your age, sex, weight, etc., but a personal rate based on information you enter into the computer--four weeks of food intake, exercise and weight reporting.

This unique software program also has the power to help users balance their intake of protein, fats and carbohydrates and achieve targeted minimums and maximums of cholesterol, sodium, fiber, vitamins and other nutrients. Simply put, the program shows how you can eat real portions of anything, balance your nutritional intake and still reach your weight goal.

Plan now to lessen tax bite

By planning now, the tax bite from the 1993 tax act will be a lot easier to digest.

Here are some tips that will help ease the impact:

-Make your contributions to an IRA or Keogh plan early in the year. The combination of making contributions early in the year and compounding will make your money grow faster than if you wait until the last minute.

-You should replace personal debt with mortgage debt to the extent possible. Interest expense on mortgage loans is--subject to some limitations--deductible; personal or consumer interest is not.

-If you roll over a pension distribution to an IRA account, be sure you do it in a timely fashion. Caution: there is a new 20 percent withholding tax on lump-sum distributions.

-Consider giving gifts to your children. You may be able to shift income and avoid taxes. However, if your children are under age 14, their income above certain levels will be subject to the "kiddie tax."

It may not be the "Year of the Rabbit" on the Chinese calendar, but it is on another delightful calendar that you can send away for--free with proof of purchase. The 1994 Still Going...Calendar features many of these funny and famous moments when the Energizer bunny surprise television views as it marches through commercials for fictitious products.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Seventeen years ago when my first grandson was to be baptized, I got his father's dress that my mother had crocheted. It was very yellow from age, and I wondered how to get it white.

My maid told me she would try but she needed buttermilk. She soaked it in that, changing it a couple of times, then she washed out the buttermilk and hung it up to dry. It came out very white.

My only granddaughter was to be baptized, so I got out my only daughter's dress, which was made 39 years ago by my mother out of eyelet embroidery material. It too was very yellow so I soaked it in buttermilk and changed it once, then washed out the buttermilk. It came out very white. It was beautiful.

The buttermilk really works to get your delicate fabrics white. -- Mrs. Magliola, Houston, Texas

This must be one of those mystery cures. It's an old hint that seems to work sometimes. If all else fails, why not give the buttermilk a try. -- Heloise

FAMILY HISTORY
 Dear Heloise: I am keeping a family record of pictures and clippings and have bought a number of albums with the magnetic sheets. There is never enough room to use all of the cardboard sheets with the clear plastic covers included with each album, so I use them to hold all of the individual recipes that I clip out of various publications. This gives me a sturdy background for reading the recipes and a protective cover to keep them from getting spattered.

These could be kept in another folder, but in my limited space the individual sheets are easier to store. -- Mrs. Olive Wallace, Estero, Fla.

ADDRESS LABELS
 Dear Heloise: For years, I have been frustrated, as have many others, with trying to get my name, address, city, state and ZIP code in the space allowed for the order blanks or refund vouchers found in magazines and newspapers. Sometimes it is even hard to write on them because of the type of paper used. I have finally found a solution. I now use the preprinted return-address stickers. These address labels solve all problems. They fit in the space, they are legible and leave no chance for error. -- George Schad, Salina, Kan.

Life May Begin At Forty, But Heart Disease Can Begin At Four.

A study of more than 8,000 children lasting 15 years suggests that it's especially prudent to encourage kids in the right eating habits. A diet low in saturated fats and cholesterol can actually lower a major risk factor for heart disease in children.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Joanne Woodward paid a price for publicity. For 34 years, she gave 5 percent of her entertainment income to a public relations firm.

That ended on June 23, 1992, when her husband, Paul Newman, wrote a letter to the Rogers & Cowan agency, saying the couple's acting careers had slowed and they didn't want more limelight.

Now the firm wants more from the "Three Faces of Eve" star. In a lawsuit filed on Monday, Rogers & Cowan alleged that Woodward failed to repay money it advanced for a year and a half before she ended the business relationship.

The amount of money was not disclosed.

Woodward's spokesman did not return messages left after business hours.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read your column for years and used the advice you've given others to get through some difficulties of my own.

A while back, you printed a letter from a reader whose problem was the same as mine. Your advice gave me the courage to do what I knew should be done.

Daisy, the family's cherished pet for 16 years, was failing badly. She became quite ill, and it was apparent that she wasn't going to get better. On the outside chance that Daisy might have something that could be cured, I took her to the vet for X-rays.

The verdict was as I expected. The vet said, "Your old friend here is in a lot of pain, and there is nothing we can do to help her. The decision is yours. You can let her continue to suffer or put her to sleep." Of course, I chose the second option.

The vet then suggested that I leave and not put myself through the agony of witnessing the procedure. I was just about to go when I remembered the letter that appeared in your column. I told the vet, "I'm staying."

Without saying a word, he began the procedure while I held Daisy in my arms and felt her life slip away. It happened quickly and was over in a matter of seconds. I removed her collar, said goodbye to my faithful friend and cried the rest of the evening with my family.

Looking back, I know I did the right thing by staying with Daisy because I read that letter in your column. Thank you so much for helping me handle a traumatic experience in the very best way.—L.H., Clinton Township, Mich.

DEAR L.H.: One of the most rewarding aspects of this work is witnessing how my readers learn to handle life's experiences, not from ME, but from one another. Thanks for letting me know that you have joined the Magic Circle.

Gem of the Day: I will tell you in six words how to be a success in business: FIND A NEED AND FILL IT.

Forget to save some of your favorite Ann Landers columns? "Nuggets and Doozies" is the answer. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

With more than half a billion watches a year now pouring off assembly lines, more timepieces have probably been built than all other machines combined.
