February sales tax rebates to city, county show dip

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The state Comptroller's office has mailed out $220 million in monthly sales tax rebate checks to cities and counties throughout Texas, including the city of Hereford, which is the only reporting municipality in the county, and Deaf Smith County.

Both February rebate checks reflected decreases in funds received in comparison to February 1993, but both government entities have received more money to date than was received last year.

The rebate check mailed from Comptroller John Sharp's office to the city was $73,019.38, which represents the city's 1 percent sales tax. That was down 12.2 percent from the $83,174.62 received in February 1993.

For the year to date, Hereford has received $137,032.33 in sales tax rebates. That is 10.08 percent more than the $124,478.30 that had been received in the first two months of 1993.

For the county, February's check was $36,195.63, which is the share of the one-half percent county sales tax on anything taxable sold in the county.

In 1993, the February check was $41,370.23, for a 12.5 percent drop this year.

For the year to date, the county has received $69,242.22, which is 8.74 percent above the $63,676.40 the county had received last year.

Around the Hereford area, sales tax rebate checks were mailed to municipalities and counties as well.

Dimmitt received a check for $31,340.21, down 6.73 from the $33,603.84 in February 1993, while Castro County's check was $14,615.87, down 14.65 percent from last year's $17,126.02.

Adrian received a check for $2,891.75, which represented a whopping 138.62 percent leap from the $1,211.82 in February last year, while the check for Vega was $3,438.16, or a modest 24.98 percent rise over the $2,750.77 last year.

In Parmer County, Friona received $12,707.87, which was down 6.03 percent from last year's $13,524.38. Elsewhere in the county, Bovina received $4,015.70 and Farwell $6,386.30.

Amarillo's sales tax rebate check came in 5.29 percent over last year's, with the $4,156,840.22 received topping last year's $3,947,900.02.

Canyon's check was for $65,496.50, which was 18.68 percent higher than the $55,186.86 last year. Oldham, Parmer, Potter and Randall counties do not assess a separate county sales tax.

Commissioners discuss Campbell Street progress

By GEORGIA TYLER

Water and sewer construction in the Campbell Street addition, just outside the Hereford city limits, should be completed by late summer, or early fall, Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court learned Monday.

Plans for the work, financed primarily by a grant, were reviewed for commissioners by Gary McCabe of the engineering firm of Hibbs and Todd.

In other business, commissioners:

-- Asked for estimates for installing carpeting and painting the county treasurer's office in the courthouse.

-- Decided to study the county's policy on use of the Bull Barn and prepare a policy on the Little Bull Barn.

-- Reviewed estimates for repairs on East 15th, outside the Hereford city limits.

-- Discussed county safety programs.

The engineering plans for the water and sewer service in the Campbell Street area will be submitted to state authorities for approval, McCabe told commissioners.

"It should take six to eight weeks for approval, then we can take bids," McCabe reported. He said construction could start by early summer.

A community improvement grant of $68,257 for water and $134,933 for sewer installation was awarded the county last year for the project. Residents of the area will provide matching funds required. The (See COMMISSIONERS, Page 2)

Primary election March 8

Early voting period begins Wednesday

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Politics in Deaf Smith County moves off the back burner this week with the opening Wednesday of early voting for March 8 party primaries and a candidates' forum Thursday evening.

A final tally by Deaf Smith Voter Registrar David Ruland shows 8,990 registered voters in the county, an increase of more than 400 since December when current voter certificates were mailed.

A registration drive conducted during January accounted for most of the additions to the voter lists.

The candidates' forum is sponsored by the legislative affairs committee of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce and Hereford Educators Association. The forum will be held Thursday in the Community Center, beginning at 7 p.m.

Questions for candidates may be submitted in advance at the chamber office.

Early voting is permissible, without excuse, by Texas law. Ballots may be marked in either Democratic or Republican primaries in Ruland's office. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ruland, Deaf Smith County clerk, reported that a Saturday may be petitioned for voting, also.

Disabled persons in Hereford may request mail ballots for the March 8 primaries. And, persons who will be out of county on election day, such as college students and military personnel, also may request mail ballots.

Ruland pointed out, though, that for those away from the county, the ballots must be mailed to an address out of Deaf Smith County.

At the county level, six offices are contested in the Democratic primary. No contests are on the ballot for Republican voters.

Democratic voters will decide in the primary between County Judge Tom Simons, the incumbent, and Trini Gamez.

Ruland is running for the Democratic nomination with Elizabeth Rodriguez opposing his bid for another term.

With the retirement of veteran county treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley at the end of her term this year, three candidates are running for the job on the Democratic ticket, Nan Rogers, Lois Jones and Joyce Skelton.

In another countywide race, the incumbent justice of the peace, Johnnie Turrentine, is opposed by John O. Arsula in the Democratic primary.

Two precinct commissioners will be elected this year. Seeking the Democratic nomination for Precinct 2 are the incumbent, Lupe Chavez, Armando Alaniz and Bernardo A. (Bernie) Griego Jr. Precinct 4 commissioner incumbent Johnny Latham is opposed by Edward Maldonado.

Incumbents who are running on the Democratic ticket without opposition are 22nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley, Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey and County Surveyor Kenneth W. Hagar.

Only two candidates are seeking county office on the Republican ticket. Conny Whitehorn is a candidate for Precinct 2 commissioner and Dan Hall is a justice of the peace candidate.

At the top of the ballots of both parties this year are candidates for nomination for U.S. Senator, governor and lieutenant governor as well as attorney general, state treasurer, comptroller, railroad commissioners and supreme and appellate courts justices.

The U.S. Congressman representing District 19, Larry Combest, is opposed for re-election on the Republican ballot. There is no Democratic candidate.

Both State Senator Teel Bivins, 31st District, and Representative John Smithee, 86th District, also are opposed on the Republican ballot. They have no Democratic opponents.

Public meeting planned to hear pool comments

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Public comment on a new swimming pool complex in Hereford will be heard during a special meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall. Called by the City Commission to give citizens of Hereford an opportunity to look at the plans and hear from the architect and city officials.

Plans for the complex include two pools, one with a "soft shell" cover for use year-around. A walking track, fishing pond, playground and other recreational facilities are proposed in the project.

Site is a city park located between E. 14th and E. 15th Streets and east-west for two blocks from Avenue C.

The City Commission decided in late 1992 that repairs on the present city pool in Dameron Park would be excessive and that a new pool should be constructed.

A year ago, the city was awarded a $500,000 matching grant by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for construction of a new pool.

With another $250,000 grant, this from the Don and Sybil Harrington

Foundation of Amarillo, and other public entities, the city has provided the needed matching funds for the project.

Deaf Smith County has agreed to provide an in-kind contribution of $50,000, primarily in earthwork that will be required.

Hereford Independent School District has pledged $150,000 over a three-year period and Deaf Smith County Hospital District has volunteered $50,000 to $100,000, also over three years.

A committee representing the city, county, hospital district, HISD, Deaf Smith Red Cross and Hereford Senior Citizens worked with the Arlington architectural firm of Schrickel, Rollins and Associates, on plans for the pool.

City Commissioner Roger Eades who served as chairman of the advisory committee reported to the commission recently that all representatives had approved of the development.

To complete the project as economically as possible, the city will be the general contractor. An experienced pool builder will be employed as general superintendent.

Early estimates by the architect for cost of the facility were approximately $1.4 million. Eades reported that considerable savings will be realized by hiring a superintendent to run the job for the city.

Proposed by the architect is a leisure pool, for summer use only, of 2,839 square feet, in a fan shape. Deepest part of the pool will be only four feet of water, sliding up to zero depth.

The covered pool will be suitable for school aquatic competition, at 25 meters. Dimensions, overall, are approximately 75 feet by 50 feet. Depth will be graduated from 4 1/2 feet to 13 feet.

A decision to provide a covered pool as part of the complex was made to allow for school use as well as Red Cross and Senior Citizen during cold-weather months. The hospital district also may use the facility for water therapy.

A mechanical building of 50 by 28 and a building 60 by 31 for dressing rooms are major parts of the

New cars. Trips to Las Vegas, Mazatlan, New Orleans, and the Caribbean. Cash. High-paying jobs in exotic locations. Secret letters and keys that could hide a treasure.

All these gimmicks have been used as bait to defraud area residents, said Hereford Police Chief David Wagner and Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce executive Mike Carr.

Their ads are enticing: want a job paying $25,000 to $35,000 a year in the Caribbean or Puerto Rico? No experience needed, and we pay housing, transportation, and moving costs. Just call the following free 800 number...

Or how would you like to subscribe to 15 of your favorite magazines for only $12? (Nowhere in the ad does it mention your costs are $12 per week for two years...and you probably won't get the magazines even after you've paid for them.)

Or how about this one: Job Opportunities with telephone company in your area. Just call this 900 number for details (The 900 number costs a minimum fee of $12.95. In return, you are sent a list of telephone companies which may or may not have jobs available).

Texans who play the lottery will appreciate this one: an 81-year-old man used his life savings of $7,000 to buy a bogus lottery ticket from two con artists who claimed an illegal alien had a winning ticket.

The winner was desperate for money to return home, but was afraid to cash the ticket, the men said. When the retiree, Ceferino Cruz, discovered he had been swindled, he killed himself.

How can you protect yourself from con artists who prey on the elderly or the innocent?

Carr, executive vice president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, puts it bluntly: "If anyone calls or writes to you and says you have won a major prize, but to claim it you must send them money, forget it.

"You really haven't won anything at all."

Carr works closely with Hereford Police, the Texas Attorney General's office, and other law enforcement agencies to protect Deaf Smith County residents from crooks.

In one case, he said, a Florida firm ran classified ads in numerous Texas newspapers promising high-paying jobs in exotic locales.

"They offered free air fare to either the Caribbean or Puerto Rico, and promised to pay the job seeker's moving expenses for his entire family, along with the costs of housing.

"All he had to do to secure the job was send the company a cashier's check for $300. Only they called it a processing fee."

Carr said the crooks stayed away from the mails, preferring to use federal express, and there were no signed contracts. The Florida Attorney General's office eventually shut them down, but not before the company collected millions of dollars from victims in West Texas and elsewhere.

Said Carr, "The State of Florida has no licensing requirements for employment agencies, so it's relatively easy for people to run illegal scam operations.

"If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is." It is relatively easy for swindlers to find "live" prospects for their scams, Carr added.

"Nearly everyone has had a credit report or a credit card in their background," he said. "We advise local residents to be careful not to give information to the wrong people."

Fraudulent operators seem to like to work out of California, Nevada, Arizona, or Florida, he said.

"If they get closed down in Nevada, they simply close shop and move to Phoenix. Or you find them operating out of Florida," he said.

He told of a Hereford woman who thought she was getting up to 20 magazine subscriptions for $12.

"It turned out she had to pay the company $12 -- a week," he said. "She ended up paying the company $299.50 and she never got the magazines or her money back."

Carr recalled another crooked firm that was selling sets of ballpoint pens. A Deaf Smith County resident ended up buying five sets of pens -- for $299.

Said Carr, "Everybody likes a bargain, but it has been my experience that a company that is offering you a good deal will be happy to have you check them out.

"This is also true of charities. There are many excellent charitable organizations, but there are also a lot of fraudulent ones."

He recommended that local residents who are suspicious of an offer made by phone or in the mail contact his office or the Attorney General's office. The number for the Chamber of Commerce is 364-3333, and the Attorney General's office can be reached by calling 747-5238.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has a form for consumers to fill out if they have a complaint about alleged fraudulent activities. It is written in English and Spanish and the office will act as mediator in the complaint or pursue a criminal complaint, depending on which is warranted.

The Texas Municipal Police Association warns business owners not to let themselves be defrauded by unscrupulous promoters who insist it is imperative they receive payment the next day via such overnight couriers as Federal Express, UPS, Airborne, or Emery.

"Someone must pay for the expense of costly overnight couriers and that someone is you," said a spokesman for the association.

"If you are contacted by anyone who tries to send a courier to your place of business, call our office at 1-800-284-0536 or the Attorney General's Charitable Trust Division at (512)-463-2018."

Tailhook scandal may send admiral to early retirement

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Adm. Frank B. Kelso II, the Navy's top uniformed officer who has been battered by the Tailhook scandal, will retire two months earlier than planned, Pentagon officials said today.

"He is expected to announce that he will resign in April," said one of the Pentagon officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Kelso planned to announce his retirement following a statement of support from top Pentagon leaders, one of the officials said.

The move comes as the four-star admiral opened a public push to rebut claims that he knew about sexual misdeeds at the 1991 Tailhook aviators' convention and pulled rank to cover up his knowledge.

Defense Secretary William Perry was slated to issue a statement in support of the admiral's integrity, one official said. Following that, Kelso was to meet with reporters to announce his decision.

The steps came following a day of hurried meetings among top Pentagon officials, including Pentagon general counsel Jamie Gorelick.

Kelso's retirement was prompted by a judicial decision issued last week in Norfolk by a Navy judge who faulted Kelso for interfering in the Tailhook investigation and contended the admiral had witnessed untoward conduct at the 1991 Tailhook convention.

Kelso, chief of naval operations, authorized the Navy on Monday to release written statements by colleagues and supporters disputing the judge's findings.

The documents were made available to the news media as Navy Secretary John Dalton prepared an official report on Kelso's role in the Tailhook affair. The report, due to go to Defense Secretary William Perry this week, could determine whether the Navy's top admiral stays on until his planned retirement in June or is forced to resign in disgrace, ending a career of more than three decades in the Navy.

The documents appear to have been hastily assembled last Thursday and Friday following a Feb. 8 assertion by the Navy judge, Capt. William T. Vest Jr., accusing Kelso of covering up his knowledge of the misconduct at the Tailhook convention.

Included is a memo dated last Friday from the senior Tailhook investigator saying that Vest failed to back up his charges.

"We have identified several discrepancies in the court's opinion that call into question the factual basis for the court's conclusion that Adm. Kelso had specific and detailed knowledge of those events and the implication that he lied to federal investigators and the court," wrote Derek J. Vander Schaaf, the Navy's deputy inspector general.

In another memo dated last Friday, former Assistant Navy Secretary Barbara Spyridon Pope suggests that the judge misinterpreted her testimony that Kelso had gone to a hotel patio near where the debauchery was taking place. Pope said she only "made an assumption" that Kelso was in a group of top Navy officials who went to the patio when, in fact, she never saw him there.

The 1991 convention of the Tailhook Association, a booster organization of Navy and Marine Corps aviators, produced a scandal when dozens of women, including female officers, alleged they were molested during a night of drunken debauchery in a Las Vegas hotel hallway.

In one regard, the documents released by the Navy support a charge by Vest that Kelso was involved in appointing a Navy team to investigate Tailhook and mete out discipline.

Ash Wednesday services set here

BY RICK LANNING
Staff Writer

Hereford churches are expected to be filled as members and guests turn out to celebrate Ash Wednesday this week.

Among local churches that have scheduled Ash Wednesday services tomorrow are St. Thomas Episcopal, St. Anthony's Church, San Jose Catholic Church, and First United Methodist.

Father Charles Wilson, extended supply priest at St. Thomas Episcopal, 601 W. Park Ave., will conduct a liturgy that includes the imposition of ashes and Holy Communion starting at 7 p.m.

Father Wilson said, "Ash Wednesday and Lent is the season for the preparation of Easter. It's a time of self-examination and fits in with the preparation of candidates for Baptism."

Saturday at sundown, he added, the "great vigil of Easter" begins for the 50-member church.

St. Anthony's Church, 115 N. 25 Mile Ave., is pastored by Msgr. Orville Blum. Special services will begin at 7:15 a.m. with a Word Service blessing with ashes. At 8:30 a.m. a liturgy followed by a blessing with ashes will be conducted. The evening service at 7:30 p.m. will be a liturgy and blessing with ashes, according to a church secretary. The church has 530 members.

San Jose Church, with a membership of 900, is located at 735 Brevard Street. Father Darryl Birenfeld will begin services Wednesday at 6:30 a.m. A morning prayer will take place at 8:30 a.m. followed by a 10:30 a.m. communion service. The evening mass will be held at 7:30 p.m. All of the services with the exception of the morning prayer will be conducted with ashes.

First United Methodist Church, 501 N. Main, will host a Lenten Supper at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday. Two Lenten studies will follow at 6:30 p.m. — "People Of The Caribbean," led by Margaret Bell, and "Near The Cross," with Eloise McDougal.

The 7:15 p.m. devotional will include a Youth Bible Study headed by Trey Cumming, the youth director, and children's activities. Rev. Joe Wood is pastor of the church, which has nearly 1,000 members.

While Temple Baptist Church, 700 Ave. K, does not celebrate Ash Wednesday, the Rev. H.W. Barlett, pastor, said he will preach a sermon on the Crucifixion on Palm Sunday March 27 and a message of the Resurrection on Sunday, April 3. The church has 500 members.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have chronic fatigue and immune dysfunction syndrome (CFIDS). I suffer persistent exhaustion and recurrent upper respiratory infections.

I find myself in a constant state of confusion. I cannot concentrate, am forgetful and experience hallucinations, dizziness, headaches, chest pains, depression, and muscle and joint pains.

It is difficult to live day to day, let alone work. I have been ill for four years, but two doctors and numerous tests could not determine what is wrong with me. They ordered blood tests, a lumbar puncture, CAT scans, MRIs, sonograms and more. I was told they were looking for multiple sclerosis, AIDS, Lyme disease, arthritis and heart disease. It was only when I read about CFIDS in the newspaper that I realized I wasn't crazy and asked my doctor about it.

Aside from that one article, however, I have never seen CFIDS mentioned in any newspaper, magazine or television show. I'll bet some of your readers have CFIDS and don't know it. There are many doctors who know nothing about this illness. Recently, I was refused benefits by the Social Security Administration because they believe I can work. This is a common problem for people with CFIDS.

Please tell your readers about this illness, which afflicts tens of thousands of Americans. For more information, suggest they send a long, self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to CFIDS Association of America, P.O. Box 220398, Charlotte, N.C. 28222-0398 or call toll-free 1-800-442-3437 and leave their names and addresses.—Brooklyn, N.Y.

DEAR BROOKLYN: Thanks for the research. Your letter is sure to help thousands. Bless you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 25 years old, recently graduated from college and am very lucky to have found my dream job.

My problem is that people are constantly asking me how much money I make. I feel this is a very private matter, but being a wimp, I feel compelled to answer.

I live with my sister. She became irate when I told her that I didn't want to share this information, so I ended up giving her an inflated figure. Now I must hide my paycheck stubs and bank statements so she won't find out.

DEAR GUTLESS: You need to replace that macaroni in your spine with a steel rod. When asked MYOB-type questions, say, "Sorry, that's my personal business."

Your sister sounds as if she has "nose trouble." Meanwhile, remember: "Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive!"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A co-worker of mine brings her children to the office frequently and fails to exercise any sort of parental control. The kids are a distraction. They play with the copier and computers and waste office supplies.

I can understand that on occasion, a baby sitter may be sick or not show up, but when children are brought to work on a regular basis, it becomes a real problem. What should be done?—Anonymous, Please

DEAR ANON: The frequent offender should be told bluntly to get a back-up sitter at once. A busy office is no place for children. If that flea-brain mother doesn't know it, someone should tell her.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hereford netters take division in WF tourney

The Hereford tennis team won their division of a tournament played Friday and Saturday in Wichita Falls. Hereford won Division C, which included Pampa, Vernon, Midland Lee, Burkburnett, Keller, Shawnee (Okla.) and Wichita Falls High's B team.

Brooke Weishaar and Kara Sandoval teamed up to win the girls' doubles bracket, while Bri Reinauer took second, falling to Pampa's Jamie Barker. Natalie McWhorter and Paige Robbins took third in doubles, and Pete Vargas and Tyler Merrick claimed third in boys' doubles.

Coach Ed Coplen said he did not receive a results packet, so scores are not available. He said that tourney organizers would mail him results this week.

Other Hereford players who placed included: Gabriela Gamez, sixth in girls' singles; Rob Reinauer, seventh in boys' singles; and Jason Cole and Chris Lyles, sixth in boys' doubles.

"We just went down to play our best," Coplen said. "We were probably pleasantly surprised that we won. We just need to build on it and get better."

The tennis team will play next in the Fort Stockton tournament Feb. 25-26.

West, Townsend place in Lubbock indoor meet

The Hereford girls' track team started the season Saturday with the Lubbock Christian University High School Indoor Track Meet, and two girls placed in four events.

Krista West took second in the 200-meter dash with a time of 27.37 seconds, and she tied for third in the 55-meter dash in 7.52 seconds.

Bethany Townsend was fifth in the 3,200-meter run with a time of 13 minutes and 24 seconds. Her time of 6:15 in the 1,600 would have placed her fifth or sixth, coach Martha Emerson said, but the team didn't stick around for results in that event. Emerson said that West won her heat in the 200 and Townsend won her heat in the 3,200, but because finals weren't run in the one-day event, they didn't get to race against the girls who ended up beating them. She said a 26.69 won the 200 dash.

"(The meet) was good practice against good competition," Emerson said. "We had some people who ran well but didn't place."

Next up for the team is the Comanche Relays Feb. 25-26 in Fort Stockton.

Borger shocks Levelland in bi-district game here

The Levelland Loboettes had one of those nights where they couldn't hit the broad side of a barn, while Borger's Sally Hamilton couldn't miss.

It added up to a 57-39 upset win by Borger over the No. 2-ranked Loboettes in a girls' bi-district basketball game Monday night in Hereford's Whiteface Gym.

Early on, the Loboettes used their full-court press to force several Borger turnovers, leading to a 16-5 Levelland lead after one quarter.

Hamilton, who didn't start because she sprained an ankle in pre-game warm-ups, came off the bench to hit two consecutive three-pointers and one 19-foot jumper, tying the game at 20-20. A trey by Robbyn Smith gave Borger a 23-20 lead at halftime.

In the second half, Levelland used a 5-0 run to take a 27-25 lead, but two more treys by Hamilton, who stands 6-foot-1, gave Borger the lead back at 31-29.

Levelland seemed incapable of hitting a basket in the fourth quarter, as Borger went on a 14-0 run to seal the game.

Hamilton ended up with 20 points, including five treys. Smith added 14.

Borger (26-7) tied for second in District 1-4A and had to beat Dumas 60-55 in a district playoff game Saturday in Fritch. Next up is District 3-4A champion Big Spring, which has a first-round bye.

District 1-4A champion Randall fell 45-36 to 2-4A runner-up Frenship Monday in Plainview in the other bi-district game.

Tech supporters file lawsuit against A&M coach, players

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Scuffling between collegiate athletes and fans has branched from the basketball court to a legal court.

Two Texas Tech supporters filed a lawsuit Monday accusing Texas A&M coach Tony Barone Sr. and his son and two other players of "wanton, willful and malicious" attacks during a post-game melee Feb. 5 in Lubbock.

The plaintiffs asked for punitive damages of $1.375 million and actual damages between $500 and $100,000.

Barone declined to comment.

But last week after the Southwest Conference censured him, the coach blamed the circumstances: "I stand by my actions," Barone said in a statement. "I understand why the conference office felt it necessary to evaluate my actions, and I can live with that."

His co-defendants are Tony Barone Jr., Joe Wilbert and John

Michael Jungers.

Plaintiffs are Charles Ewing Jr. and Mary Catherine Ewing, mother of 16-year-old Christopher Ewing.

A 5-minute push-and-shove fracas erupted as Barone and several Aggie players were attempting to leave the court after their 89-88 victory over the Red Raiders. The game ended with several last-second free throws and officiating that angered both coaches.

But the lawsuit pegs the problem as starting before tipoff.

"The level of response of the Texas A&M players sank immediately to the level of obscene gestures," according to the lawsuit filed by Lubbock attorney Floyd Holder.

"They came into the coliseum with a chip on their shoulders and behaved in a most unseemly way toward the hecklers throughout the game."

The lawsuit says the victorious Aggies on their way to the locker room were "taunting all the gentle souls in the stands."

Herd baseball team gets first action

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford baseball team played a scrimmage doubleheader against Plainview Saturday in Hereford, and new Herd coach J.J. Villarreal liked what he saw—for the most part.

"I think we've got a real good chance to be good," Villarreal said.

"Plainview's traditionally a pretty good baseball program, and we were hitting the ball well off them. Defensively, we didn't perform the way we're capable of performing, but that's not due to a lack of ability, it's due to mental mistakes that can be corrected."

Hereford and Plainview played a seven-inning scrimmage, then played three and a half more innings before darkness came. Plainview outscored Hereford 13-6 in the first scrimmage and 16-5 in the nightcap.

Three bad innings out of the 11 Hereford played defensively made the day look worse than it was. In the first scrimmage, Hereford gave up six runs in one inning and five more in another. In the second scrimmage, 10 runs were scored in one inning.

In each of those innings, one error had a snowball effect. There were four errors in the six-run inning. In the other two bad innings, Villarreal left struggling pitchers in much longer than he would in a real game, he said. He never made a pitching change during an inning, while Plainview did.

Tijerina returns

Andrew Tijerina is one of six baseball players with varsity experience. Tijerina batted .294 last year in district games.

7th grade cagers wrap up season

Hereford's seventh grade basketball teams finished the season Saturday with their district tournaments.

The Maroon team came in seventh in the championship bracket, while the White team was second in the round-robin consolation bracket.

The Maroon team fell to Dumas Black 50-23 and Borger Red 43-34 before beating Pampa Red 43-31.

Cory Marsh and Chris Torres were the teams leading scorers. Marsh totaled 42 points for the three games, including 20 against Borger and 16 against Pampa. Torres totaled 30, including 16 against Pampa.

The White team beat Dumas Orange 33-25, beat Valleyview Silver 42-31 and lost to Borger Blue, 40-37.

Mitch Wagner led the White with 40 points, including 16 against Valleyview. Gilbert Martinez totaled 31, including 12 against Dumas. Jason Foster added eight against Borger, and Jerry Garcia added eight against Valleyview.

The Maroon ended the season with a 9-7 record, while the White was 7-9. The eighth grade A team was 7-11 for the year and the B team was 8-7.

American woman claims gold in skiing event

By DAVE CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer
LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) - Golden again.

Ending a 10-year Olympics drought with a vengeance, U.S. skiers struck gold today for the second time in three days when dark horse Diann Roffe-Steinrotter won the women's super-G race.

It was a sensational way for the Americans to get back on their feet and onto the medals podium after a slip and a slide that iced two of their biggest Winter Games stars, Dan Jansen and Duncan Kennedy, the day before.

Donna Weinbrecht, too, took a step toward another gold medal in the women's freestyle skiing by advancing as expected from today's moguls portion to Wednesday's finals.

Roffe-Steinrotter, at 26 the "old-timer" of the U.S. ski team, took the silver in the giant slalom at Albertville in 1992. But like Tommy Moe, who got the U.S. skiers off to a blazing start with his victory in the men's downhill on Sunday, Roffe-Steinrotter was not a favorite in the super-G - a cross between downhill and giant slalom.

"It's like a dream," said

Roffe-Steinrotter, who had never finished higher than fourth in a super-G race. "But it's one day, one race - if you ski well, anything can happen."

First to leave the starting gate on a sparkling day at Kvitfjell, an hour's drive north of Lillehammer, the Potsdam, N.Y., resident finished in 1 minute, 22.15 seconds and watched for more than an hour as her time held up.

The last American woman to win a gold medal in Alpine skiing was Debbie Armstrong in the giant slalom at Sarajevo in 1984, when Bill Johnson won the men's downhill.

Svetlana Gladischeva of Russia was second today in 1:22.44, winning the first Alpine skiing medal ever for a Soviet, Unified Team or Russian skier. Isolde Kostner of Italy took the bronze in 1:22.45.

Russia got its second gold medal in 24 hours today when Lyubov Egorova, the queen of the 1992 Winter Olympics with three golds and two silvers, captured the 5-kilometer cross-country race by a whopping 20 seconds over Manuela Di Centa of Italy. The bronze went to a real old-timer - 38-year-old Marja-Liisa Kirvesniemi of Finland, the triple gold medalist from 1984 who is competing in her record-tying sixth Olympics.

The Russians vaulted into the medals race lead with six overall, two of them gold, going into tonight's pairs finals where they were certain to win two or three more. Norway has five medals, Italy four, the United States and Finland two each.

Coupled with Tommy Moe's stunning triumph in the men's downhill, Roffe-Steinrotter's gold makes it two victories in two Olympic Alpine races at Lillehammer for the supposedly troubled U.S. ski team.

Moe put himself in position Monday for a second medal, placing third in the downhill portion of the men's combined. The combined slalom is staged next week.

The surprising skiers have saved the Americans from what could have been a disastrous start at Lillehammer.

Dan Jansen, supposedly a lock in the 500 meters, caught an edge and finished eighth Monday, while the gold went to Russia's Aleksandr Golubev.

The U.S. lugers had high hopes for their first-ever medal, but they'll have to wait until 1998. Duncan Kennedy, with a good chance for the bronze, crashed Monday. Defending world champion Wendel Suckow finished fifth. And top women's luger Cammy Myler was a disappointing 11th after today's first two runs, a distant 0.85 seconds off the medals pace.

Going into tonight's game with Slovakia, the American hockey team remained hopeful for a medal despite its unimpressive opening-game tie against France. The field remains wide open - top-seeded Russia demonstrated that by taking a 5-0 shellacking from Finland Monday night.

Today started out as a repeat of Monday's misery when two Americans, one competing for Greece, wiped out on the hard ice of the luge course.

Erin Warren of Somerville, Mass., had a bad fall when her sled went out of control and ricocheted off both walls, sending her plummeting down the course face down, feet first. A few minutes later Greta Sebald of Minneapolis, a member of Greece's first luge team, bounced off the walls and took a spill when her sled turned sideways. Both walked away, apparently uninjured.

Jansen, meanwhile, has three more days to overcome the stigma of being the Bill Buckner of winter in time for the 1000 meters - his last chance to salvage a medal from his four Olympics.

"I'll just go out and skate," the shaken speedskater said after inexplicably skidding on a turn in the 500. He has dominated the event for a decade - through two celebrated falls in the 1988 Games and two more letdowns in 1992.

"If it happens, it does. If not, I'll go on - same old thing," Jansen said.

Death strikes another NASCAR driver

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - It's happened twice. And, almost assuredly, it will happen again.

The business of auto racing continues although tragedy has struck treacherous Daytona International Speedway for the second time in four days.

Rodney Orr, a 31-year-old racer from Palm Coast, Fla., died after crashing his Ford Thunderbird in turn two during Monday's practice. Orr's accident came the same morning NASCAR star driver and commentator Neil Bonnett was buried in Hueytown, Ala.

Bonnett died in a one-car crash Friday.

Yet NASCAR's heroes and hopefuls continued practices, qualifying and tuneups for the sport's grandest event - the Daytona 500 - in the only way they knew how - full speed.

"You're going to have accidents, you're going to have people get hurt, you're going to have people killed," Kyle Petty said. "That's just the nature of racing."

Orr, defending champion of the Goody's Dash sedan series, was like any of a hundred drivers anxious to turn small-event success into Winston Cup superstardom.

He went out of control and flipped in turn two on the high-banked oval and smashed into the concrete wall at the top of the banking. The roof over the driver's side took the initial impact.

The driver was taken to Halifax Medical Center and pronounced dead upon arrival at 10:06 a.m. EST from massive head and upper body injuries.

With six full days of racing to go, drivers struggled to find reasons for the deadliest prep week in Daytona history.

"We've got to take a look at what's going on," said Rusty Wallace, who suggested that drivers had to be more aware of safe practices.

"Don't just get out here and mash the gas and throw your brains in the trunk," he said. "A lot of team owners think that's what you have to do to go fast. You don't have to do that."

Even the most experienced - Bonnett won 18 NASCAR events and had four top-five Daytona finishes - can have trouble at the 2.5-mile course. Bonnett had logged many test miles but little race time since a 1990 accident at Darlington (S.C.), which moved him to the TV booth.

"We've had a lot of trouble here, and all the accidents but one have been from inexperienced drivers," driver Geoff Bodine said. "Even Neil. He still hadn't been racing a lot so his problem might have been through lack of time on the track."

BASEBALL

Hereford hit the ball hard, but Plainview didn't give the Herd much help, committing only four errors all day.

"What I was looking for was individual performance and how we competed against a pretty good team," Villarreal said. "I was pleased for the most part."

Hereford will scrimmage

Plainview again on Saturday, this time in Plainview. Hereford's first real game will be at 4:30 p.m. Feb. 22 at Canyon.

Villarreal has several players with varsity experience back for this year's squad. Lefthanded pitcher/first baseman Andrew Tijerina batted .294 with one home run in District 1-4A play last year.

Russ Watts, an outfielder/catcher, earned all-district honors two years ago as a sophomore but slumped during district play last year, batting .217. Still, he led the Herd with two home runs and was third with 12 runs batted in for the season.

Chris Vallejo, who manned shortstop on Saturday, hit well last year in limited duty: 4-of-9 in district, 5-of-14 overall.

Three others played some varsity last year: Ray Hastings, Scott Ahola and Stacey Sanders. Hastings pitched well at times last year, going 2-3-1. Sanders, expected to come over from basketball, served mostly as a pinch-or-courtesy-runner and scored 10 runs (he batted 3-for-10). Ahola, who has a strong arm, moved to Hereford during the year and was called up for the final few games to pitch and play shortstop.

Ahola pitched and caught on Saturday, while Hastings pitched and played first base. In all, seven pitchers were used Saturday.

Villarreal said the key to success this year would be the players' work ethic.

"It's all about effort. If these guys give the effort, we'll win...because we'll eliminate the mistakes."

Several reports heard during NARFE meeting

Chairman Nolan Grady presided over the Feb. 8 meeting of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees. Members and visitors met at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Argen Draper, secretary/treasurer, read the minutes of the previous meeting and reports of the status of the source tax were heard. Also, a discussion of the upcoming Health Reform Bill that relates to senior citizens was held.

Ed Smith of Amarillo, the district representative of NARFE, gave information concerning the district-wide convention to be held Feb. 21 in Amarillo at the Senior Citizens Center, 1311 Tyler St. All members are urged to attend. The state officials of NARFE will be present.

The next meeting will be held March 21.

Welcomed as visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith and Coleman Wright.

Members in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Miles Caudle, Frank Clements, Argen Draper, Mary Alice Frye, Nolan Grady, Jean Jones, Juston McBride, Pearl McCutcheon and Ed Ziehr.

Zadie Bettis is nominee for Club Woman of the Year

Zadie Bettis has been selected as the nominee for "Club Woman of the Year" by members of the Bippus Family Community Education Club. The award will be presented during the Annual Appreciation Luncheon scheduled Monday, Feb. 28, at the Hereford Community Center.

During the Feb. 9 meeting of the Bippus Club, a covered dish luncheon was held in the Bettis' home. Those present were Bettis, Kate Bradley, Alta Mae Higgins, Chris Larsen, Marielen Homfeld, Sue Thweatt, Lou Hall, Juanita Koetting, Beverly Harder and Donna Smith.

Harder, Deaf Smith County extension agent, presented a program concerning new labeling for food products. The labels are expected to be presented to the public in May.

Committee reports were heard and volunteer hours were recorded.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Juanita Koetting.

Book reviewed recently for study club members

Audine Dettman gave a review of the book The Shepherd when members of the Calliopean Study Club met Feb. 10 in the home of Virginia Holmes with Mary Fraser serving as co-hostess.

The suspenseful novel about the experiences of a pilot attempting to fly from his base in Germany to England on Christmas Eve of 1957 was related by the speaker. She said, "His journey is complicated by many difficulties including failure of navigational equipment and radio as well as bad weather and heavy fog. As his fuel supply reaches dangerously low levels and he begins to despair, a 'shepherd plane' appears to guide him to a safe landing in England." But the mystery and suspense continues as he tries to find the base that sent the plane to his rescue.

The meeting was called to order by President Dettman and a short business session was conducted.

Refreshments were served to those present: Virginia Holmes, Mary Fraser, Audine Dettman, Wilma Nobles, Mary Sue Hull, Kathlee Parmer, Linda Gilbert, Kathryn Ruga, Dorothy Ott, Kay McWhorter and Louise Leasure.

Hints from Heloise

CHICKEN BROTH

Dear Heloise: Many of today's low-fat, heart-healthy cookbooks recommend using chicken broth instead of oil to saute foods. Rather than opening a can of chicken broth, using one or two tablespoons of broth for a recipe and storing the remainder in a very full refrigerator, I started freezing broth in ice-cube trays.

I keep a plastic bag of broth cubes in my freezer now. One or two cubes work well for preparing a wok full of vegetables or a pan full of turkey or chicken cutlets. — Beverly Snyder, Springfield, Va.

PLASTIC WRAP

Dear Heloise: Recently I read in your column about how to find the end opening on plastic wrap.

The simplest way I have found is to just turn under about an inch of the edge and that way it stands out very well from the rest of the roll.

I read your column every day in the Omaha World Herald and have found many good tips to use. — Hazel Woerner, Lincoln, Neb.

Thank you for the kind words, and your hint is one that others will find helpful, I'm sure. — Heloise

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have painful gout in my left toe, and I'm told that it may be caused by uric acid. Is there uric acid in the urine or in the blood? Is there something I can take for it?

Is there some test that I can use on myself to test the urine? I cannot afford a urologist.

DEAR READER: Gout is caused by high blood levels of uric acid. Uric acid unites with sodium to produce a salt called sodium urate. The crystals of this salt form in joints, particularly the big toe, and cause acute inflammation — the red, hot, swollen and painful toe. The pain can be so bad a person can't tolerate even a sheet over the toe. Sodium urate can also form deposits which destroy and deform joints, causing chronic gouty arthritis.

Most of the excess uric acid is produced by a person's own body cells, with a strong genetic factor involved. The uric acid is a by-product of cell regeneration: a necessary process to maintain life. A much smaller amount is found in various foods. It does help to limit or eliminate foods that contain purine, which the body uses to form uric acid. However, medicines are more effective, and are usually necessary to control gout.

You can have an increased amount of uric acid in the urine because of the high blood levels, but that is not a reliable way to test for gout. Excess uric acid in the urine may lead to one type of kidney stones.

I have discussed gout in more detail in Special Report 86, Gout: The Disease of Kings, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/86, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. It will provide details about diet and gout.

Medicines are used to increase the elimination of uric acid in the urine, to prevent kidney stones and, most important, to help prevent the excess production of uric acid by your own cells. You do not need to see a urologist; your family doctor can help you with your gout.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My mother, 72 years old, was recently diagnosed as having temporal arteritis, also known as giant cell arteritis. She has experienced pain in her neck, shoulders, wrists and ankles. She also has pain in the head around the eyes and temples and at times has blurred vision.

Her doctor prescribed prednisone, which has made her more comfortable and reduced the pain. Do you have any information on what causes this disease? Will prednisone cure it? Is there a chance of a stroke or blindness?

DEAR READER: It is disease that forms areas of inflammation along medium-sized and large arteries, typically such as the temporal artery. The inflammation may cause arterial obstruction. Pain is a common feature because of the inflammation.

The big danger is that involvement of arteries to the eye may cause blindness. Also obstruction of any artery in the body can cause other symptoms, including painful jaws from chewing firm food. It is commonly associated with a related disease, polymyalgia rheumatica which causes muscle pain. But it usually requires much larger doses of prednisone to control the arteritis.

Most doctors recommend vigorous treatment at first, which is usually effective, and then tapering to as small a dose as needed to control symptoms. Such a course of prednisone may stop the process.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 36-year-old woman, in good condition and who looks a lot younger than I am. I have an ulcer and was first diagnosed with it at age 25. Three years ago, I again had a lot of burning and gas and was having difficulty in swallowing, nausea and the feeling of choking.

The doctor found an ulcer where the stomach empties into the small intestine. He gave me Pepcid to take before going to bed, but never gave me a diet to follow, nor did he tell me what foods to avoid. He never told me what was causing the choking and difficulty in swallowing. What can I do to reduce or relieve these symptoms? I've tried all types of antacids, saltine crackers, milk and even fasting, but nothing seems to help.

My grandmother, my uncles and my mother have or had an ulcer in the same area. Are ulcers inherited or caused by other factors such as stress?

DEAR READER: Without more information I cannot tell you for certain what is causing your sensation of choking and difficulty in swallowing. The burning and nausea can certainly be caused by an ulcer if you have one. You may have some gastroesophageal reflux of acid material from the stomach into the lower esophagus that could cause such symptoms.

Pepcid, Acid, Zantac and Tagamet are all used to treat peptic ulcers. More recently, Prilosec has been added to the list. It has a slightly different action but may have a better record in treating ulcers.

Your doctor didn't say anything about diet because many authorities today do not feel it makes that much difference — but it does in some people. Milk may provide temporary relief, but the rebound acidity often makes symptoms worse a little later. Many patients with such problems do not tolerate any form of coffee, tea, caffeine-containing colas or chocolate. If you have irritation of the lower esophagus, fruit juices may burn.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 45-year-old male and went to the doctor for an examination because I had not had one in years. I don't have any symptoms and jog at least a mile almost every day. To my surprise, he said I have a heart condition called aortic stenosis and that I should have further studies. He did not take an X-ray or EKG. How does he know I have aortic stenosis, and exactly what is it? What causes it? I thought that if I had heart trouble I would have had some symptoms and wouldn't have been able to exercise.

DEAR READER: Aortic stenosis is an obstruction at the outlet of the left heart, where it joins the aortic artery. It is most commonly caused by a birth defect of the heart valve in that location. It can be caused by rheumatic heart disease, which is an uncommon cause today. Or, in people older than you, it may be from degenerative changes. If the stenosis (obstruction) is minimal, it will not cause any symptoms. Studies can tell how severe the stenosis really is and that is important. Your doctor probably heard an abnormal heart sound (murmur) that is characteristic of aortic stenosis, which is why he recommended further studies.

AUSTIN - U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's attorney said she will testify on her own behalf in a felony trial for ethics violations that allegedly occurred while she was state treasurer.

Defense attorney Dick DeGuerin made the announcement as jury selection continued last week for the trial in Fort Worth.

Judge John F. Onion Jr., to make sure a panel of 12 jurors and two alternates are found, has called in 20 more jury candidates for questioning, as lawyers struck about 30 of the original 40 candidates on the list.

According to the Houston Chronicle, the central legal question that remains to be settled is whether prosecutors can use evidence obtained in a raid on the state Treasury a few days after Hutchison was elected to the Senate.

Her lawyers have said the seized records should not be admitted as evidence.

Hutchison is charged with using state employees and equipment to do political and personal work, and tampering with records that might have proved wrongdoing.

The Republican senator pleaded innocent in last week's proceedings. She has maintained that charges against her were brought by Democrats seeking to destroy her political future.

Telephone Records Released
Gov. Ann Richards last week released nine months of resurrected long-distance records pieced together through computer data tapes.

Also released were all cellular calls made since Richards took office in 1991, all incoming toll-free calls and copies of calls made by employees on state-issued credit cards.

The governor's office has been criticized for its decision last August to destroy more than two years of the telephone records, which under the law are public records.

Hannah's Prison Warning
Secretary of State John Hannah Jr. warned last week that despite reports of 6,000 empty prison beds, state penitentiaries are near their legal capacity.

Hannah, who has been nominated to become a federal judge, said his investigation showed that any attempt to increase the prison population "would immediately get the state back into federal court."

Gov. Richards asked Hannah to look into the case of empty beds and report whether any could be used to ease the overflow of state inmates in county jails.

The question of the empty beds surfaced last month in preliminary findings of a prison system audit by Comptroller John Sharp's office.

Teachers Group Endorses
Texas' largest teacher organization has endorsed incumbent Democrats for the top six statewide offices and Democrat Jim Mattox for the U.S. Senate.

The 95,000-member Texas State Teachers Association said the endorsements were based on the candidates' positions on public schools, education funding and opposition to private school vouchers.

"What happens to education in the 1995 Legislature will be determined by what happens in the March 8 primary," TSTA president Richard Kouri said. "We will press that hard reality on our members during the campaign cycle."

Receiving endorsements were Gov. Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, Attorney General Dan

Morales, Comptroller John Sharp, Treasurer Martha Whitehead and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, all Democrats.

Job Growth in Valley
Cities in the Rio Grande Valley remained among the national leaders in job growth in a recent 12-month period, according to a report from the Economic Outlook Center at Arizona State University.

An employment growth rate of 5.4 percent, or 5,900 jobs, made the McAllen-Edinburg area fifth best among all U.S. metropolitan markets from November 1992 to November 1993.

Victoria in South Texas climbed from 72nd place to sixth place nationwide with 5.3 percent job growth. Close behind were Laredo, ranking 10th at 4.5 percent, and Brownsville-Harlingen, ranking 11th at 4.3 percent.

Quotes of the Week
"Despite all its political leverage, the federal government can't buy nuclear submarines inexpensively, so why should Americans believe government-run health care will be inexpensive?" — U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

"President Clinton's health-care plan is so complex it makes the Pentagon bureaucracy look like a single ballerina going across the stage." — Dallas billionaire Ross Perot.

Other Highlights
Texas officials moved closer to implementing major health-care reform last week, selecting Blue Cross and Blue Shield to administer the first state-authorized insurance pool for small businesses.

The Texas Insurance Purchasing Alliance, created last year by the Legislature, aims to make health insurance more affordable and accessible for businesses with three to 50 employees.

Laredo was the second fastest growing metropolitan area (11.4 percent) in the United States in the early 1990s, the Census Bureau reported last week. Las Vegas topped the list with a growth of 13.9 percent. The McAllen-Edinburg-Mission area ranked fourth with a growth of 9.8 percent.

Public aware of problems but not convinced of 'health crisis'

By LAURAN NEERGAARD Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Is there a health-care crisis? The president insists there is; Republicans say he's crying wolf. Not even doctors agree.

The question is mainly one of semantics, the experts say. But it's an important one, because whenever there's a crisis, Americans tend to rally around their president.

"The crisis rhetoric is used often in wartime, and I suspect that's why the issue is being debated now," said Dr. Steven Schroeder, president of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. "Sometimes people act, when there's a crisis, for the common good."

The public hasn't chosen sides. A CNN-Time poll on Saturday found 43 percent of Americans think there's a crisis while 51 percent call it a problem. A Harvard University study last week suggested millions of Americans don't even know about the health reforms Congress is considering - and those that do have no clear preference.

"It is possible that an apathetic public is unconvinced that there is a health-care crisis could grow disinterested in the debate entirely," said Harvard's Dr. Robert Blendon.

Added Schroeder, "Whether you call it a crisis or a problem or a concern, the facts are there are things that could be made better."

The debate on health-care reform opened with fierce arguing between President Clinton and Senate GOP leader Bob Dole over the term "crisis." Although Dole, R-Kan., "criticly backed off his attack, he sparked an uproar. The Democratic National Committee is airing commercials portraying Republicans as out of touch, and activists bought ads saying nonbelievers should talk with AIDS sufferers. Clinton simply says they should "go visit your local hospital."

At George Washington University Hospital's emergency room, just blocks from the White House, doctors and nurses are exasperated at the argument. While the politicians quibble, they said, the hospital is treating hundreds of those 37 million uninsured Americans - at a cost of $30 million a year.

But even the doctors argue over the term "crisis."

"You need to be agnostic at some of the problems of the under class, the under-served," said Dr. Cary Pigman, pausing between patients. "There is a crisis for a substantial number of people."

Not so, says the vice chairman of Pigman's department. "We've built the most effective, accessible health-care system in the world and we have a few problems that need ironing out," said Dr. Robert Shesser. "The danger with reform is we'll take all we've done good and screw it up."

Where they all agree is that the politicians aren't answering their biggest fear: cost controls.

Then there's mandating treatment according to cost, Pigman's big fear.

The Newspaper BIBLE ALL CREATION AWAITS THE GREAT EVENT

So, dear brothers, you have no obligations whatever to your old sinful nature to do what it begs you to do. For if you keep on following it you are lost and will perish, but if through the power of the Holy Spirit you crush it and its evil deeds, you shall live. For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God.

And so we should not be like cringing, fearful slaves, but we should behave like God's very own children, adopted into the bosom of His family, and calling to Him, "Father, Father." For His Holy Spirit speaks to us deep in our hearts, and tells us that we really are God's children. And since we are His children, we will share His treasures--for all God gives to His Son Jesus in now ours too. But if we are to share His glory, we must also share His suffering.

Yet what we suffer now is nothing compared to the glory He will give us later. For all creation is waiting patiently and hopefully for that future day when God will resurrect His children. For on that day thorns and thistles, sin, death, and decay--the things that overcame the world against its will at God's command--will all disappear, and the world around us will share in the glorious freedom from sin which God's children enjoy.

For we know that even the things of nature, like animals and plants, suffer in sickness and death as they await this great event. And even we Christians, although we have the Holy Spirit within us as a foretaste of future glory, also groan to be released from pain and suffering. We, too, wait anxiously for the day when God will give us our full rights as His children, including the new bodies He has promised us--bodies that will never be sick again and will never die.

Agency charges companies deny coverage

AUSTIN (AP) - A new report says that many insurance companies refuse to offer homeowners coverage if previous claims for damages have been made.

The report released Monday by the Office of Public Insurance Counsel also says that insurance companies are denying or providing inferior insurance to many Texans if their house is lower-valued or the potential policyholder is single.

Critics of the industry called the underwriting guidelines "redlining." Amy Johnson, insurance public counsel, said, "We are allowing insurance companies to use the protection of secrecy to engage in practices we would otherwise not tolerate," she said.

"What we have here in Texas is a situation where a large number of people are denied the opportunity to purchase insurance protection for their home because of secret and sometimes arbitrary guidelines the public knows little about," she said.

But Rick Gentry, an insurance industry spokesman, says the guidelines are related to risks.

"Insurance companies and their agents do not arbitrarily turn down good business," said Gentry. "Nor do they discriminate against individuals because of their race, ethnic origin or other factors not related to insurance risk."

The new report studied underwriting guidelines of companies that wrote 92 percent of the state's homeowners insurance.

Last year, the Texas Legislature passed a new law authorizing OPIC to get the underwriting guidelines, but the law allows OPIC to only release the information in summary form and not identify any insurers.

The study found:

- A large portion of the homeowners insurance market has underwriting guidelines that refuse to renew a policy if the policyholder files multiple claims.

- Filing a claim during the first 90 days of a policy may result in cancellation.

- Guideline restrictions on older, lower-value homes in economically depressed areas have a disproportionate affect on low-income, minority urban communities, rural communities and elderly consumers.

- Some guidelines deny coverage to gay and lesbian families and other non-related individuals who combine households.

- A few insurance companies restrict coverage on marital status and nationality. This is illegal, officials said.

Former Morales' aide sues for loss of job

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Attorney General Dan Morales is being sued by a former assistant who says he lost his job after the attorney general's office decided to dismiss a consumer protection lawsuit against an insurance company.

The lawsuit was filed Monday in Travis County district court by Ed Salazar, a longtime assistant attorney general who had served in the office's insurance fraud section.

In his suit, Salazar charges that he was wrongfully terminated from the attorney general's office and that his reputation has been damaged.

Responding, Morales issued a statement through spokesman Ron Dusek, saying: "Dan Morales has very high expectations of his nearly 4,000 employees. Some make the team and some are allowed to become free agents. We expect that occasionally a disgruntled former employee will whine to the press."

Salazar said that he filed consumer protection suits last year against three insurance companies, alleging that they charged high insurance premiums for property decreasing in value. At the time, Morales's office issued a news release praising the action, his lawsuit said.

Salazar said he and the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies were discussing settling the lawsuit when, in November 1993, he was told to dismiss the suit against the Farm Bureau.

James Langford, a vice president of the Waco-based company, said Monday that Farm Bureau "contended, felt, still feel there was no merit to the case" but was discussing it with the state when it suddenly was dropped.

"They had offered a settlement. We were looking at it. We had come back with some suggestions about the settlement," Langford said. "Out of the blue, they dropped it."

In his lawsuit, Salazar said he received instructions around Nov. 22, 1993, to dismiss the suit against Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies.

News of health

The cure for cancer comes ever closer, thanks to research done by talented young scientists whose work is supported by the Cancer Research Fund of the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Foundation.

One of these scientists is James M. Schlauch, Ph.D., who has the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Fellowship at Harvard Medical School. Schlauch studied Salmonella typhimurium, a bacteria which causes a deadly typhoid-like disease in mice. Dr. Schlauch and his colleagues were after virulence factors, deadly genes that become active only in certain environments.

The team identified 50 virulence genes that enable the bacterium to live in the mouse. This discovery will likely lead to a comparable method for detecting virulence factors in viruses, including those retroviruses tied to cancer.
