Economy Inflation remains in check

WASHINGTON (AP) -Falling prices for vegetables, heating oil and new cars in February helped produce the sharpest decline in more than a year in prices charged by factories, refineries and food processing plants.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods fell a seasonally adjusted 0.4 percent last month, the most in 13 months, mostly reversing an unusually large 0.5 percent increase the month before, the department said Friday.

Analysts had attributed the January gain, and a 0.4 percent increase in December, to a variety of special factors and February's bigger-thanexpected drop reinforced their view that inflation pressures in the production process can scarcely be found.

percent, led the food decrease. That included drops of 54 percent in prices paid by wholesalers for tomatoes, 47 percent for broccoli, 40 percent for corn and 39 percent for radishes.

Pork prices also fell, 6.3 percent, as did beef and veal, 2.4 percent. Fruit rose 2.6 percent, including a 19.5 percent jump for Granny Smith apples and 13 percent for strawber-

Outside food and energy, car prices fell 0.3 percent, though light trucks rose 0.4 percent. Clothing prices fell overall, too. And computers fell 1.4 percent.

Prescription drug prices jumped 0.8 percent and have risen 20.6 percent over the past year.

Prices earlier in the production process also were well behaved. They fell 0.5 percent for intermediate goods and 3.4 percent for crude goods. An example of the three processing stages if cotton for crude, cloth for intermediate and

DEAR break

Students across Hereford Independent School District are being rewarded with DEAR breaks. DEAR (Drop Everything And Read) breaks are designed to reward students and to encourage them to read. At Bluebonnet Intermediate, most of the girls in one fourth-grade class (above) seem to prefer reading mysteries and historical material, while the boys (left) seem more likely to choose books on science or animals.

Breaks from regular routine promote reading

By Dianna F. Dandridge Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Rewarding a child for a job well done is a common practice and the rewards take a number of shapes and forms, including special treats, small gifts, and even an afternoon snuggled down reading a good That's right, students across

Hereford Independent School District are often rewarded by what they call a "DEAR"

"Drop Everything And Read" means exactly that. Students put away the math and the history, Crayolas and musical instruments and read from their current library book.

"This is a big encouragement for the students," said Cookie Tarr, a fourth-grade teacher at Bluebonnet Intermediate School. "It helps them add to their AR (accelerated reader) points, it gives them a break from the usual reading is more than just part of school."

When students are rewarded with a DEAR break, they get to bring pillow and blankets and snacks to class and they spend time just enjoying the pleasure of reading a book.

Students have their choice of books, and just like adults, children have their preference of styles.

Most of the girls in one particular class seem to like mysteries and historical material, while the boys chose books on science or animals.

"We want the kids to understand that books can take the them to places unknown or classwork and teaches them not even imagined," Tarr said. "During DEAR breaks, we encourage them to develop a lifeleng love of books."

DEAR breaks aren't just for the students. It also gives the teachers a chance to do just what they encourage the students to do - sit down and enjoy reading a book.

Before their most recent DEAR session, Tarr told her class she had bought a new book and was planning to save it for spring break, but she had cheated just a little bit because she had read a chapter. But then she made herself put it away for spring

Tarr said using DEAR breaks also helps students who read just slightly below their level to catch up with their classmates.

"A lot of kids come from homes where reading is not strongly encouraged," Tarr said. "The students who read on their own and enjoy reading are huge encouragement to those who don't get reading encouragement elsewhere." Ask students in this class homes where reading is not strongly encouraged," Tarr said. Weather plays havoc with local sports activities

Staff and wire reports

The old axiom that says if you don't like the Panhandle weather then just wait 30 minutes and it will change has been proven once more after winter weather, including snow and freezing rain predictions, returned to the previously balmy area and forced cancellation of many sports activities planned for today and Saturday. Much of the Deaf Smith Invitational sports weekend events have been canceled or postponed.

Cancellations announced before press time today included: Deaf Smith Invitation Relays, which were to be today and Saturday:

Junior high baseball game at Valley View;

· Junior varsity boy's baseball at West Texas High;

· Girl's junior varsity softball at Randall; and · Girl's varsity golf tournament at Dumas.

The Hereford girl's varsity softball team will make up two games next week. This past Tuesday's game against Borger here was postponed due to wet field conditions. It AUSTIN (AP) - Alicia Mallory graduated from the University of Texas and works for the state full time. But she says she doesn't earn enough to afford her own apartment.

State Rep. Lon Burnam says Ms. Mallory is an example of why the minimum wage in Texas should be raised to a "living wage" and correlate with housing prices.

On Thursday, a House committee considered a bill sponsored by Burnam, D-Fort Worth, to tie the minimum wage to fair market rents determined by the federal government. The bill would ensure that no 40-hour-a-week worker has to spend more than a third of his or her earnings on the minimum level of housing.

In Dallas, for example, the fair market rent for a onebedroom apartment is $560 a month, so the minimum wage would be $9.77 an hour. The current federal minimum wage is $5.15 an hour.

Supporters testified before the House Economic Development Committee that many full-time workers spend so much on housing they are not able to meet other basic needs.

Opponents of the bill argued that raising the minimum wage would result in ment of Housing and Urban layoffs and fewer work hours for some employees.

To Ms. Mallory, it's all about making ends meet.

"I cannot be self-sufficient. I can't live on my own," said the University of Texas library assistant, who earns $7.61 an hour.

Under Burnam's bill, the minimum wage in Austin would be $9.16 an hour. The city's fair market rent for a one-bedroom apartment as determined by the U.S. Depart-Development is $525 a month. Burnam said Ms. Mallory's situation serves as a wake up call. "A lot of people do not realize the crisis we're facing in low-income housing," the lawmaker said. But representatives from restaurant and nursing home associations spoke out against the bill, saying businesses would be forced to cut jobs and raise prices. "When the minimum wage tion on either bill.

goes up, everyone wants an increase," said Hans Nadler, owner of Nadler's Bakery & Delicatessen in San Antonio.

The House committee also considered a bill to raise the wages of agriculture and domestic service workers, who are not covered by the federal minimum wage but only by the state minimum wage of $3.35. That bill would increase the state minimum wage to the federal level of $5.15.

The committee took no ac-

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Immanuel invites you to come worship with us Sunday at 10:30 a.m., corner of Ave. B and Park. Pastor Stadler's sermon theme is "Sometimes first place isn't always the winner,' focusing on Matthew 20:17-28.

Sunday School for the children is from 9:15-10:15 a.m. Immanuel also offers a Bible study at 9:15 a.m. Sunday and the topic is different religions.

The last part of February and the whole month of March is the church season of Lent, a time for reflection and meditation on Christ's great sacrifice on the cross for all of us. Immanuel will have Wednesday night Lenten services at 7:30 as part of the season. The theme for Lent this year is "Moses and the Exodus, a preview of Jesus' rescue for the whole world.'

Pastor Stadler begins the day Tuesday through Friday with a short (15-minute) morning prayer service at 8 and invites others to join him.

We hope to have you join us at any one of our services or activities. If you have questions, contact the church at 364-1668 meeting. After the prayer session we are studying the book of Galatians. Choir meets at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday.

FELLOWSHIP

OF BELIEVERS One of the reasons the Bible has had such wide exposure over the years is because of a group called Gideons International. The Gideons have made such an impact that their name appears in Webster's Dictionary (1988): an international organization whose activities include the placing of Bibles in hotel rooms."

On this, the Fourth Sunday in Lent, FOB honors and salutes the Gideons. Hereford resident, Tommy Rosson, will tell the Gideon story during the time of gathered worship at 10:30. The church will gladly make a monetary gift to support his all-important ministry.

If fresh coffee, homemade goodies and conversation tickle your fancy, the purch invites you to sh at 9:15.

Something called "Forum" happens at 9:30. This is an open-discussion, "say-what-you-want," dialogue time for youth and adults. This Sunday, "Forum" will consider two questions relative to her dialogue on world religions: "What do various religions say happens after we die?" and "What are some bad (and terrific) things in religions?" During "Forum," a kid-friendly thing happens under the loving leadership of our own Holly Kirk. Some churches call it Sunday school. At FOB some call it "a very neat time to play, learn, relate, grow and to ask any question that might be on your mind."

FOB is an open, thinking, nurturing, accepting, understanding, funloving, generous, and sensitive gathering of people who happen to welcome all denominational ideologies and wherever one happens to be in the spiritual search-process

The church building is located at 245 N. Kingwood. The church itself is everywhere her people play, work, eat, sleep and hug.

A supervised nursery is available at all services.

TRINITY FELLOWSHIP CHURCH

Prayer is one of the most vital daily responsibilities of Christians. First round victims:

North Carolina, UCLA upset early in NCAA tournament

By The Associated Press

UCLA and North Carolina have won a total of 14 NCAA tournament titles. Between them, they have no more games to play in this year's basketball extravaganza.

With Harold Arceneaux scoring 36 points Thursday night, Weber State stunned North Carolina 76-74, the Tar Heels' first opening-game NCAA tournament loss in 19 years.

"This is definitely not the way that I expected to go out," dejected North Carolina senior forward Ademola Okulaja said.

Detroit also was a surprising winner, downing UCLA 56-53 and holding the Bruins to their lowest point total of the who contributed three steals to an aggressive defense that troubled UCLA all night.

Arceneaux was too much for the perennial ACC powerhouse, hitting 14 of 26 shots, including five of seven 3-pointers. His 36 points tied the most points scored against North Carolina in a tournament game since Purdue's Rick Mount had 36 against the Tar Heels in 1969. Arceneaux capped his performance by making two free throws with 13.3 seconds left, giving Weber State a 75-72 lead.

"This is just about as sweet as it gets," said Weber State coach Ron Abegglen, who has announced he will retire after the season.

A Final Four team last year, North Carolina was playing in its record 25th straight tournament.

"In the tournament, if you don't come out ready to play, anything can happen," said Ed Cota, who led North Carolina with 20 points. "We didn't have one of our better games."

Dallas rips Magic, 93-76

DALLAS (AP) — Inconsistent backcourt play has hurt the Dallas Mavericks this season. Steve Nash and Robert Pack are trying to change that.

Nash had nine points and 11 assists and Pack added six points and five assists in 16 minutes as the Mavericks routed the Orlando Magic 93-76 Thursday night.

"They were both looking for the open guys," Mavericks coach Don Nelson said. "They were both solid. We got good play from our point guards."

Nelson wanted to get more energy and passion from his struggling team, and the Mavericks delivered to snap a fourgame losing streak.

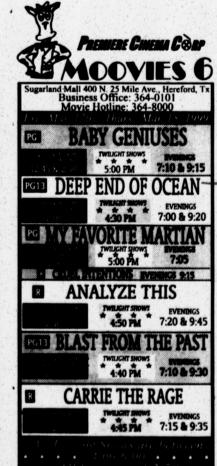

Gary Trent had 21 points and 10 rebounds, Michael Finley scored 18 points and A.C. Green had 13 points and 11 rebounds.

"Each guy needed to look at themselves, and I think the fellas did," Nelson said. "When you're on a losing streak like we were, everybody has to do what they can to scratch out a victory."

Shawn Bradley had 10 points and 10 rebounds for Dallas, which held Magic guard Penny Hardaway to seven points, 8.5 under his season average. "I'm just a guy who creates for everybody else," Hardaway said. "I only shot nine times so it wasn't like I had a really bad game."

Thursday morning, barely five hours before their team met Gonzaga in the NCAA tournament, officials at the University of Minnesota voluntarily declared four members of their own basketball team ineligible to play.

The final score — Gonzaga 75, Minnesota 63 — speaks volumes about how much the Gophers missed the four, especially starters Kevin Clark and Miles Tarver. It also tells you how solid the evidence must have been, since the school's rush to judgment came before the NCAA even had a chance to offer use of its in-house guillotine.

But university vice president McKinley Boston must have heard the blade being sharpened when he got up to speak at a news conference in Minneapolis. "We would rather not risk the reputation of the university by playing an ineligible player at this time," he said.

The allegations of academic fraud surfaced in the Saint Paul Pioneer Press, where a story quoted former university employee Jan Gangelhoff saying she did more than 400 pieces of course work for at least 20 players during a five-year period. Four former players confirmed her account.

Clippers end 17-game losing streak with win over Sacramento

By The Associated Press On a day of big changes in the NBA, the Los Angeles Clippers made the biggest one by winning. With trades reshaping teams from east to west, the Clippers ended their 17-game losing streak to start the season when they beat Sacramento 106-92 Thursday night. Lorenzen Wright had a career-high 25 rebounds to go with 12 points, and Darrick Martin had 18 points and 11 assists.

"I'm very happy, we've been waiting for a win for so long," Wright said.

Another loss, and the Clippers' start to this season would have stood alone as the worst in NBA history. The Miami Heat began the 1988-89 season with 17 straight losses.

"It's very big. We're not an 0-17 team, period. I'll go on record saying that," Martin said.

He's right, of course. The Clippers are 1-17, still the league's worst record.

But the Kings were the most embarrassed team in the NBA after their seventh straight road loss to the Clippers.

"The good teams don't lose," Chris Webber said. "Utah wouldn't have come here and lost. The Lakers wouldn't have come here and lost. But good old Sacramento, we come here and lose.

Elsewhere, it was Golden State 89. Minnesota 82: Utah 94. Denver 89; Miami 83, Toronto 73; Atlanta 99, Bos/ ton 85; New York 98, Washington 86; Seattle 92, Chicago 83; Houston 102, Vancouver 91; and Dallas 93, Orlando

Warriors 89,

Timberwolves 82 Donyell Marshall and Chris Mills had 14 points each for the Warriors in Minnesota's loss without Stephon Marbury at Golden State.

The 82 points tied for the second-lowest output of the season for the Timberwolves. who traded point guard Marbury to New Jersey in a nine-player, three-team deal hours before the game.

Bobby Jackson played most of the game at the point for the Wolves, who will get point guard Terrell Brandon from Milwaukee as part of the deal. Jackson had 15 points, eight assists and seven rebounds.

Kevin Garnett had 22 points to lead Minnesota.

"He was a major piece of the puzzle, so right now we need to regroup," Garnett said of Marbury. "We have to slow the ball down and find the chemistry out there.'

Jazz 94, Nuggets 89

Karl Malone stole the ball Denver's final attempt to tie the game and John Stockton clinched it with two free throws.

Malone led the Jazz with 28 points and 10 rebounds, despite having to leave briefly in the first half with a strained quadriceps muscle.

McDyess scored 39 points, 15 in the fourth quarter, to key Denver's comeback from 11 points down at the start of the final period. He also grabbed 11 rebounds as the Nuggets fell to 0-11 on the road and lost their sixth straight game.

Sonics 92, Bulls 83

Seattle, behind 25 points from Gary Payton, broke a five-game losing streak by winning at Chicago. With the Sonics suffering through their longest win drought since the 1990-91 season, Payton hit a key jumper with 2:13 left to give the Sonics a three-point

The Bulls, as they have throughout this lockout-short-ened season, couldn't connect down the stretch.

Toni Kukoc scored 28 points for the Bulls, but only seven in the second half.

Rockets 102, Grizzlies 91 Hakeem Olajuwon scored from Antonio McDyess on 31 points, including nine in the closing minutes. The Rockets extended the Grizzlies' losing streak to 10 games, but they almost blew it in the fourth quarter. The Grizzlies, who have lost all seven games they've played in Houston, went on a 12-4 roll that spilled into the fourth quarter. But the Rockets never lost the lead. Olajuwon had nine points in the final 4:15 and finished with 11 rebounds. Rookie Mike Bibby had 10 of his career-high 26 points in the fourth quarter for the Grizzlies.

Before the game, Vancouver traded guard Sam Mack back to the Rockets for guard Rodrick Rhodes.

Heat 83, Raptors 73

Tim Hardaway scored eight of his 10 points in the third quarter, sparking a 15-0 run in Miami's ninth straight win at home and 14th victory in its last 16 games.
Alonzo Mourning scored 20 of his 23 points in the first half and also pulled down 16 rebounds. Clarence Weatherspoon added a season-high 22 points for Miami.

John Wallace scored 20 points to pace the Raptors, who have dropped their last seven games with the Heat.

Hawks 99, Celtics 85 Dikembe Mutombo scored 18 points and pulled down a season-high 15 rebounds as the Hawks broke a four-game losing streak at their sometime home at Georgia Tech. All five Atlanta starters scored in double figures for the first time this season.

The Celtics, playing the third of a five-game road trip, got 19 points from Antoine Walker. They also traded center Andrew DeClerq to Cleveland for center Vitaly Potapenko.

Ohio St. 72, Murray St. 58 Michael Redd scored 27 points and Ohio State got 13 of its final 17 points from the free-throw line.

The Buckeyes (24-8) took a 32-21 lead at the break and quickly built their lead to 17 points in the first minute of the second half. But the Racers (27-6) used a full-court press, closed within 10 points midway through the period and kept the pressure on Ohio State the rest of the game.

> SOUTH At Orlando, Fla. Maryland 82, Valparaiso 60

Laron Profit and Terence Morris each scored 18 points, and Steve Francis had 15 points and seven assists as Maryland beat Valparaiso.

Last year, Valpo stunned Mississippi 70-69 in the first round on Bryce Drew's buzzerbeating 3-pointer, then upset Florida State to make it to the round of 16. But the Crusaders (23-9) trailed Maryland (27-5) by 12 points at halftime and never seriously threatened in the second half.

Creighton 62, Louisville 58

Rodney Buford led a big second-half rally and Ben Walker saved his best for the end as Creighton defeated Louisville.

Walker, playing with four fouls, scored seven points in the final three minutes, including four free throws in the last 90 seconds. Walker finished with 16 points and Buford had 13 for Creighton (22-8), which was making its first NCAA appearance since 1991.

St. John's 69, Samford 43

Ron Artest had 17 points and 10 rebounds as St. John's advanced to the second round for the first time in six years.

St. John's (26-8) scored the first 13 points of the game, and the closest Samford got after that was nine late in the first half. Samford, playing in the tournament for the first time, finished with a 24-6 record.

Indiana 108, George Washington 88

Freshman Kirk Haston, playing with a broken left nand, scored 27 points to lead Indiana to the most points it has scored in its storied postseason history.

But the Hoosiers (23-10) also sparkled on defense. A.J. Guyton slowed down 5-foot-4 Shawnta Rogers, George Washington's Atlantic 10 player of the year. Rogers scored 28 points, but shot only 10-for-31.

Indiana broke the school tournament scoring record set in a 107-90 victory over Auburn on its way to the 1987

Chris Jefferies scored 16 points for the Razorbacks (23-10), and Reid finished with 10 of Arkansas' 28 assists to pass Lee Mayberry for the school record. Siena, a small Franciscan school Loudonville, N.Y., finished with a 25-6 record.

New Mexico 61, Missouri 59 Lamont Long scored 17 points, including a jumper in the lane with 5.5 seconds left that gave New Mexico a vicover Missouri.

tory After Long scored, Missouri (20-9) got the ball upcourt and Brian Grawer put up an off-balance 3-pointer that came up short. Kenny Thomas scored 20 points for the Lobos (25-8), who moved into the second round for the fourth straight year. At Seattle Gonzaga 75, Minnesota 63 Richie Frahm scored 26 points, including five 3-pointers, as Gonzaga beat a depleted Minnesota team.

The Gophers (17-11) were missing four players who were ruled ineligible because of allegations of academic fraud. And two of the remaining eight players — Joel Przybilla and Kevin Nathiel — fouled out. It was the first NCAA tournament victory for Gonzaga (26-6), the school that John Stockton played for and Bing Crosby attended.

INSIDE

"I find that, playing science fiction, you really have to commit to it. You can't go wink, wink, rolling your eyes, or it's shot. No one's going to buy into it."

'MacGyver' now saves world on 'Stargate SG-1'

Frazier Moore Associated Press

Science fiction, even the best of it, gets a little bit silly on the screen.

Aliens with rubber-mask faces. Spacecraft with more floor space than a shopping mall. The penchant for speaking in hushed technobabble.

Sci-fi TV is where the wheeziest viewers can play make-believe right along with the actors, where they can watch their deepest fears loosed on the universe and their fantasies hover just out of reach.

In the latter regard, that cyborg in a bodystocking on "Star Trek: Voyager" springs to mind. But our current mission is to consider another science fiction series, "Stargate SG-1," now in its second season on Showtime (at 9 p.m. CST Friday) and in its first season in syndication (check local listings).

And we are here to talk to Richard Dean Anderson.

"I've never been a fan of science fiction," concedes Anderson, who plays an Air Force colonel in charge of a special forces unit roaming the universe for clues to save the Earth from devastation. (Characters in science fiction know better than to sit around twiddling their thumbs or reasonable facsimiles.) "But I've always been of the mind that I'll try anything once," Anderson goes on, "so I gave it a shot. And I have to admit, I'm having fun with it. I'm saying things like, 'I'll have to check with the mother ship to make sure the home planet hasn't been at-tacked.' But still, at face level, we're telling stories. As long as we do that, the genre doesn't matter."

Anderson is the popular Everyhunk who spent seven seasons in the action-adventure genre as a special forces agent who foiled globe-threatening baddies on ABC's "MacGyver."

"I find that, playing science fiction, you really have to commit to it," Anderson says. "You can't go wink, wink, rolling your eyes, or it's shot. No one's going to buy into it."

Even so, he has infused Col. Jack O'Neill with the MacGyver-ish qualities of fun and fallibility.

"My character has a sarcastic, irreverent sense of humor," Anderson notes with pleasure, "and he reacts in man, but he's still going through this wall of water to different worlds where he's meeting bizarre aliens. And bugs drive him crazy!

"He has human reactions to very inhuman situations, and that's where I have my most fun. That's where I had my fun as MacGyver, this reluctant hero who didn't want to save the day, but knew how, and - oy! - who else was gonna do it?"

Born and raised in Minneapolis, Anderson first aspired to be a professional hockey player. Injuries dampened his enthusiasm, so he studied drama at Ohio University, then headed for California. "One of the first jobs I had was as a juggler and a street mime," he recalls. "I learned how to juggle out there when I was living in a shack in somebody's backyard, and he had grapefruit trees and orange trees. During the learning process, I ate a lot of citrus."

In whiteface and tights, Anderson and a chum stationed themselves in Century City, "juggling and making fools of ourselves. I'm doing the same thing now," he adds genially, "only it's not on the street anymore."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these bints:

room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

 Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write.

Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Kosovo violence flares anew amid hints accord to be OK'd

Rebels' reluctance to approve peace agreement frustrates Western diplomats

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) Kosovo Albanian rebels hinted once again today that they would accept a U.S-sponsored peace plan, while the province saw a new upsurge in violence.

Western diplomats have worked for the past week to get the Kosovo Liberation Army to accept the plan, but holdouts among the rebel leaders have stymied several promised breakthroughs.

The rebels' reluctance has frustrated Western powers, which need their acceptance in order to turn up the heat on Serbia to sign or face NATO airstrikes.

Today's KLA statement raised hopes for a signature at peace talks due to resume Monday in France. In the statement, the KLA said the agreement "was not the solution that we would want the most ... But it does not close all doors to future roads."

In a further hint at possible acceptance, the statement added that "the future of

Map shows location of Kosovo

Kosovo depends mostly on the Albanians themselves and their cooperation with the international community.'

The statement was issued on the KLA's Kosova Press Agency after a reported meeting of top guerrilla leaders in the hills of the Drenica region west of Pristina. State radio in neighboring Albania quoted unidentified sources as saying that KLA commander Hashim Thaci, the chief Albanian delegate to peace talks scheduled for Monday, had urged other KLA leaders to accept the plan.

Thaci has came under fire from other members of his delegation for failing to approve the deal.

Pacifist Kosovo Albanian leader Ibrahim Rugova also suggested the plan would be signed when talks resume, although he did not specifically say the KLA had agreed to get on board.

The negotiations are over. The document is final, and we'll go to Paris to sign because there is no more time to negotiate," he said.

If Kosovo Albanians accept the agreement, pressure will focus on the Serbs to sign. Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic and other Serbian leaders have rejected the plan because it foresees NATO-led troops to implement it. NATO has warned that unilateral rejection by the Yugoslav and Serb side will unleash airstrikes..

More than 2,000 people have been killed in the war in the southern province of Serbia, the main republic in Yugoslavia, and over 300,000 have been driven from their homes. More than 90 percent of the people in Kosovo are ethnic Albanians.

Fighting today centered around Vucitrn, about 12 miles northwest of the provincial capital, Pristina. Police and army troops pushed down from the north in an attempt to dislodge guerrillas from the area of three villages. Associated Press Television News crews on the scene reported heavy mortar, aritillery and small-arms fire.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS News roundup

House OK's Clinton Kosovo policy — with strings

WASHINGTON — The Republican led-House is supporting President Clinton's plan to send U.S. troops to Kosovo if a peace agreement is reached, with some strings attached.

But prospects for that peace looked bleak in advance of a resumption of talks on Monday in Paris, with neither side in the dispute indicating any readiness to sign onto an agree-

The House voted 219-191 late Thursday for a resolution expressing general support for the administration's proposal to use 4,000 U.S. troops, if necessary, as part of a NATO

Clinton, whose administration had begged the Hkuse not to take up the issue until after the next round of peace talks, declared himself pleased. He said in a statement the "broad bipartisan support" for U.S. efforts in Kosovo "sends a clear message to both parties that it's time now to sign an agreement that stops the fighting in Kosovo and creates real self government for the Kosovar

Forty-four Republicans — including Speaker Dennis Hastert joined Democrats in support.

But the House attached some strings - urging Clinton to report to Congress on how long such a deployment would last, how much it would cost and whether it would affect overall military readiness.

Flexibility measures fire special-ed funding debate

WASHINGTON - The House and Senate passed bills that would give states more flexibility in spending federal aid. But the first education votes of the year set in motion a possible showdown with President Clinton over his plan to provide money for hiring new teachers.

The so-called ed-flex bills, which passed 98-1 in the Senate and 330-90 in the House on Thursday, are designed to free states from some strings attached to federal aid. Yet the Senate version of the bill would shift to special education programs money that was supposed to help pay for Clinton's new-teachers plan this year.

The House bill did not include money for special education, so House and Senate negotiators will have to work out differences between the two measures.

Educators and Democratic lawmakers who helped pass the bill said Congress should wait for the upcoming appropriations to increase special education financing.

"There is still time to improve the bill before it goes to the president," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who voted for the Senate bill despite his opposition to the special-ed provision. "I would do all I can to delete (the special education funding) amendment."

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge said he was pleased with the votes, the first of this Congress on education issues. The special-ed provision, he said, could help Pennsylvania achieve the $600 million its needs to meet federal demands to educate

"Then there would be a huge amount to hire teachers, for after-school programs and for dropout programs," Ridge said.

Prosecutor, Clinton backers: Going at it to end

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - Juggling a criminal case and damaging revelations about his own office, Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr is fighting an uphill battle:$The prosecutor has put President Clinton's former business partner on trial, but it is Starr's own office that is getting much of the scrutiny.

On the second day of Whitewater figure Susan McDougal's trial here, Charles Bakaly, who became Starr's spokesman last spring after the Monica Lewinsky scandal broke, abruptly resigned Thursday. His resignation came after Starr asked the Justice Department to investigate Bakaly in connection with a news leak — a front-page story in The New York Times that said Starr had concluded the president could legally be indicted while still in office.

The Jan. 31 article came amid a federal judge's probe pushed along by Clinton's legal team — into possible leaks by Starr's office and a separate Justice Department inquiry into Starr's handling of the Lewinsky investigation.

Bakaly had gone on TV the day after the Times story appeared, declaring the "information did not come from our office. ... We did not leak this information. ... We do not leak grand jury information.

Republicans pound Gore over claim he invented Internet

Vice President Gore

WASHINGTON (AP) - Con-Republicans gressional pounced gleefully on Vice President Al Gore's claim that he was the impetus behind the Internet, accusing the Democrat of rewriting history.

Even under the time-honored tradition of politicians taking credit for everything, Gore's statement is an "outrageous claim," House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, said Thursday.

Gore, who is the Clinton administration's point man on high-tech issues and is widely credited for coining the term "information superhighway, raised eyebrows with a pronouncement he made Tues-day during a CNN interview.

"During my service in the United States Congress, I took the initiative in creating the Internet," he said when asked to cite accomplishments that separate him from another Democratic presidential hopeful, former Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey.

The Internet, originally called ARPANET, dates to 1969, when the Defense Department began funding the project. Gore, then 21, was still eight years away from joining Congress.

Said Armey: "If the vice president created the Internet, then I created the interstate credit for creating the Internet cer meaning to the highway system."

He wasn't alone in tweaking Gore. House Science Committee

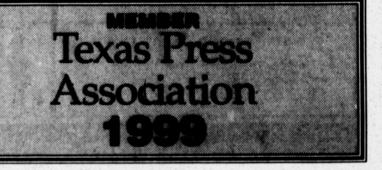

Chairman James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., issued a statement headlined, "I had no idea!"

"Vice President Gore taking credit for creating the Internet certainly gives new meaning to the term 'March madness," Sensenbrenner said in a jab at his one-time Science Committee colleague. The vice president's spokesman, Chris Lehane, defended his boss's claim, saying Gore "was the leader in Congress on the connections between data transmission and computing power, what we today call information technology. And those efforts helped to create the Internet that we know today."

Seizing on Armey's reference to the interstate highway system, Lehane noted that Al Gore Sr. shepherded passage of legislation creating a national highway network while he served in the House and Senate in the 1950s.

"In fact, his father's leadership on the interstate highway system served as the model for the vice president's vision for a network of data highways," Lehane said. "As for congressman Armey, in his time in Congress what he has created is division, divisiveness and partisan rancor, but seemingly little else."

YOUR MASTER HAS

ARGER AND LARGER GOOD TO US-FOR DUE TO THE FINE WE HAVE OBEYED PASTURE LANDS HIS COMMANDS! BUT SUCH INCREASED BOUNTY ALSO

BRINGS PROBLEMS - WITH THE EVER-GROWING SIZE OF THE HERPS, IT GROWING SIZE OF THE HERVS, IT BECOMES MORE AND MORE DIFFICULT
FOR THE HERDSMEN TO KEEP THEM
SEPARATE, AS THE SHEEP SCRAMBLE
EVERYWHERE IN THEIR SEARCH FOR THE SWEETEST GRASSES—MANY MIX-UPS OF THE HERDS OCCUR!
