Tuesday's high, 41; low, 36; precipitation, 1.21 inches, according to KPAN Radio.

Rain continuing across the state

New waves of showers and thunderstorms are expected through Thursday for wide sections of Texas as a strong Pacific cold front and upper-level weather system move through the state.

Winter weather advisories were posted for the Panhandle and West Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms were still scattered across North and East Texas, stretching along the Red River Valley between Wichita Falls and Paris and down to Tyler. Storms were also over the South Plains and Permian Basin.

More than an inch of rain fell near McKinney in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, beginning on Tuesday. A half-inch was reported at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, with six-tenths of an inch at Denton.

Light rain was falling near Lubbock and was accompanied by patchy fog in the Hill Country.

Early-morning temperatures range from the mid-30s in the Panhandle to 70s in the Rio Grande Valley.

It was 51 degrees at Wichita Falls; 36 at Dalhart; 69 at San Angelo; 61 at Killeen, Georgetown and Burnet; and 73 at McAllen, Harlingen and Laredo.

Winds were mostly easterly and southeasterly at 10 to 15 mph inland and near 20 and gusty along the coast and near storms.

Showers and thunderstorms remained in the forecast. A deepening low pressure trough continued over West Texas, bringing more warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico in advance of the developing frontal system that stretched to just west of Wichita Falls.

Afternoon highs will range from the 40s in the Panhandle to 70s to 80s along the Rio Grande, with lows from the 30s to 60s.

Tax exemption for condoms irks governor

AUSTIN (AP) — A new, $160 million state sales tax break on over-the-counter medicines will include condoms, the state comptroller said Tuesday.

The decision immediately drew fire, and Gov. George W. Bush's office said the GOP presidential candidate doesn't approve.

"This is a terrible idea. The Legislature did not intend for that tax exemption to be promoting promiscuity, yet that's exactly what it's doing," said Cathie Adams, president of the Texas Eagle Forum. Comptroller Carole Keeton

Dick Fellers (left), Charles Meyers Jr. (center) and Floyd Schueler were re-elected Tuesday night to new terms on the WTRT board.

WTRT incumbents re-elected

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Incumbents carried the night as the members of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative decided to make no changes on the cooperative's board of directors.

The election of three directors was the main focus of business at the cooperative's 46th annual meeting.

Re-elected were Floyd Schueler, Parmer exchange; Dick Fellers, Dawn exchange; and Charles Meyers Jr., Hub exchange.

Schueler was unopposed in his bid for a new term; however, Fellers beat out Harold Sides and Meyers turned back the challenge of Terry Copley.

Participants were informed the cooperative had a total income of $5,195,865 and expenses of $4,931,751. This leaves a net margin for the year ending Sept. 30, 1999, of $263,114, which will be returned to customers in the form of capital credits.

WTRT officials reported three years ago the co-op funded 18 scholarships for $1,000 each. Two years ago, $1,600 in scholarships were provided; this year 10 students will receive $1,000 each to further their education.

This year the cooperative celebrates 50 years of service, but because meetings were not held in the early years, it was only the 46th meeting.

Board approves contract

Vote completes action on Taylor's appointment as hospital's CEO

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

It's officially official. Hereford Regional Medical Center has a permanent chief executive officer.

The Deaf Smith County Hospital directors unanimously approved a contract with James Taylor, who had been named hospital administrator last month. Taylor, a former finance officer with Northwest Texas Healthcare System, was named acting administrator in January, replacing interim administrator J.O. Lewis.

The hospital has been without a permanent administrator since last summer when John Studsrud resigned.

Taylor originally came to HRMC in November 1999 as interim chief financial officer following the resignation of Rodney Bailey.

The veteran healthcare professional was among the candidates for the HRMC administrator's position who had been selected by TMSI, the Austin-based management firm contracted to run the daily operations of the hospital.

Under the terms of the contract, Taylor will receive a base salary of $80,000 annually, with benefits increasing the value of the agreement to $85,700.

The directors also accepted the resignation of Steve Lawlis from the board.

Lawlis, who was elected to the board in May 1999, will relocate his medical practice to Georgetown later this spring. In his letter of resignation,

Lawlis stated he has "many obligations which will not allow me to devote the time necessary to serve the board to the capacity that I believe I should."

Board president Dean Crofford said he has been contacted by some county residents who recommended Conny Martin, an assistant principal at Hereford High School, be appointed to complete Lawlis' term.

Bobby Owen made a motion that the board appoint Hereford accountant Gayle Cotten to the position. However, directors Jesse Rincones and Mark Collier said they would prefer to meet with Martin and Cotten before making a decision; Owen's motion died for lack of a second.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. March 30 to interview the two prospects.

Taylor reviewed the financial reports for both the hospital and the Hereford Health Clinic.

The gross patient revenue for February was $1,954,790, a 36.5 percent increase over February 1999. The gain was because of increased volume as well as increases in charge rates, which became effective Dec. 1, 1999. Net patient service revenue increased by $728,657, nearly 19 percent. The total operating revenue was up $713,472, or 18.4 percent from the previous year.

Expenses were up in several categories: wages/salaries (13.8 percent); supplies (23.4 percent); repairs/service contracts (64.2 percent); and building/equipment lease (380 percent), which included a final payment of $37,500 to Baptist St. Anthony's for nuclear medicine equip-

Global warming arrives? — Scientists say global warming is affecting Earth's weather patterns, but the climate hasn't warmed quite as much as FirstBank Southwest's time/temperature sign at the corner of Fourth and Main streets indicated. Passers-by must have gotten a shock this morning when they saw temperatures hitting 154 degrees. Bank president Mike Schueler (right) and an unidentified technician reset the sign.

ANOTHER BOOST

Fed increases interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve's decision to raise interest rates for a fifth time since June is likely to be followed by additional rate boosts in coming months as the central bank struggles to slow the rampaging economy and keep inflation under control.

Many economists predicted that the central bank will boost rates at least twice more this year, at meetings on May 16 and June 28, because of the head of steam the economy had going into the new year.

Richard Yamarone, an economist with Argus Research Corp., said the Fed appears to be trying to take some of the booze out of the punch to try and calm down the inflation-risking economic party the country is enjoying.

"Nevertheless, we believe that the economic soiree will continue to roar along," Yamarone said. Thus, he said, rates will still go higher.

Many analysts estimate the economy is expanding at close to a 6 percent rate in the current quarter, much faster than the Fed is comfortable with. In the final three months of 1999, the economy grew at a rip-roaring 6.9 percent rate.

In explaining its decision to bump up interest rates Tuesday by a quarter of a point, the Fed said it remains worried that the rapidly growing economy "could foster inflationary imbalances that would undermine the economy's record economic expansion."

The economy entered into its 108th consecutive month of uninterrupted growth in March and in February broke the record of the 1960s expansion to become the longest in U.S. history.

In the Fed's one-page policy announcement, some economists detected growing worries about inflation. Specifically, they said that the Fed dropped past references to increased productivity helping to keep prices in check and concentrated instead on potential inflation problems from the supercharged economy.

"They are turning more hawkish and growing more fearful that the economy is getting away from them," said Mark Zandi, economist with RFA Dismal Sciences.

Wall Street took the latest rate increase in stride. The Dow Jones industrial average, up by more than 100 points before the Fed acted, soared higher after the announcement and finished the day up 227.10 points at 10,907.34.

The Fed boosted its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge on overnight loans, to 6 percent from 5.75 percent. It marked the fifth quarter-point increase since last June 30, when the funds rate was raised to 5 percent.

The Fed also increased by a quarter-point, to 5.5 percent, its largely symbolic discount rate, the interest it charges for loans made directly to banks.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has worried for months that with unemployment near a 30-year low, the tight labor markets soon will translate into rising wage demands and higher inflation.

Critics of Greenspan's tight money policies complained that the Fed is acting without any evidence that inflation, outside of energy prices, is starting to become a problem.

Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., said the Fed "continues to look under the bed for a phantom inflation that doesn't exist, needlessly putting the brakes on the nation's economic growth."

News digest

Former carwash employee arrested

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The assailant who went on a shooting rampage at a Dallas area car wash was still standing over three bloody bodies when a witness entered the business, court documents show.

Robert Wayne Harris, who was fired from the Mi-T-Fine Car Wash just days before five employees were shot to death and another critically wounded, has reportedly confessed to the attack in which robbery may have been a motive.

Jose Guadalupe said he can't believe his friends, Augustin and Benjamin Villasenor, are dead.

While all three are from Central Mexico, Guadalupe didn't meet the brothers until about six months ago when he started working at the Mi-T-Fine Car Wash in Irving.

"They were both very good people who worked hard," Guadalupe, 26, said. "They wanted to stay in the United States."

But the Villasenor brothers' plans for their life in America — which, for one, included a new child — ended Monday when they and three others were killed at the car wash where they worked. A sixth co-worker remains hospitalized.

Harris, 28, remained in custody today after his arrest by Dallas police tactical officers who had monitored his overnight stay in a northeast-side home. His brother, William Harris, told The Dallas Morning News in today's editions that the suspect broke into tears as he admitted to the mass slayings.

Investigators found the office safe open and empty "including paperwork and U.S. currency," an affidavit states.

Jason Shields said three fellow employees he had watched minutes before walking across the car wash parking lot were lying in pools of blood Monday morning.

Uncounted ballots found

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Elections officials have discovered a box of uncounted ballots from last week's primary here, but vote totals from them did not change the outcome of any races.

The discovery of 43 unprocessed ballots from the Democratic primary came early Tuesday as Bexar County employees were preparing ballot boxes for next month's runoff, County Clerk Gerry Rickhoff told the San Antonio Express-News.

The seal of the box containing the ballots had been broken, but the container never was opened.

Rickhoff, after obtaining a court order to add the uncounted ballots to the final Election Day tally, summoned Democratic Party officials and alerted the district attorney's office and the Texas secretary of state.

Results of the primary will be official after a vote canvass scheduled today, Austin elections officials said.

Among other problems from the March 14 primary, some vote counts in South Texas and elsewhere were delayed. In the Democratic runoff for the right to challenge incumbent Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in November, the Texas secretary of state's office gave the race to Charles Gandy by Jan. 4th votes.

CONDOM TAXES: Gov. George W. Bush's spokeswoman said he was disappointed that condoms were included Tuesday in the list of over-the-counter medical products that will be exempt from Texas sales taxes beginning next month. The Republican presidential candidate, who has said abstinence should be promoted to teen-agers, proposed the tax break during his re-election campaign in 1998.

USDA proposes inspection cuts

Department could move to random daily checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cutting back on inspectors' visits to meat processing plants could save millions of dollars in overtime pay that is borne by the industry, while allowing the government to concentrate on facilities where food is most likely to be contaminated, federal officials say.

Inspectors currently are required to visit each processing plant once a shift, including overtime runs. The Agriculture Department wants to switch to daily, random checks, starting in a year.

"By having our resources allocated based on risk the public is well served," Margare ret Glavin, associate administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said Tuesday.

Critics said the move could imperil public health. "This idea comes out of left field with no data to support it," said Caroline Smith DeWaal of the Center for Science in the Public Interest. "It's just saving money for the industry."

Processors, who must cover the inspectors' overtime pay, would save an estimated $19 million a year. The department, which has 7,500 inspectors, would save $4 million, which would be shifted to other food safety programs.

Inspectors, who often work 12-hour shifts, can earn up to 100 others.

However, overall foodborne illnesses have been dropping, and health officials say the decline is due in part to a new science-based inspection system that is now being used in processing plants nationwide. It requires plants to identify and control for possible contamination

Overall foodborne illnesses have been dropping, and health officials say the decline is due in part to a new science-based inspection system that is now being used in processing plants nationwide.

$14,000 a year in overtime in addition to their salaries, which average $35,000 to $45,000.

Slaughtering plants, which must have USDA inspectors on site at all times, would not be affected.

Inspections would be reduced at processing plants, including soup canneries, where the risk of contamination is lowest, and focused instead on plants that have a history of problems or are considered to be riskier because of what they process, such as ground beef, the most common source of the deadly E. coli O157:H7.

Several major incidences of food poisoning have been traced to processed meat products in recent years, including a 1998 outbreak at a Michigan hot dog plant that killed 15 people and sickened at least rather than relying on federal inspectors to catch problems.

USDA officials say that means their inspectors can be used more effectively in an oversight role. Switching to a random inspection system for processors will make it harder for facilities to hide problems from the government, Glavin said.

"If a plant does not know when an inspector might show up we think there's some deterrent there," she said.

She acknowledged the reduced inspections will save the plants money but said that was not the purpose.

USDA's inspectors union is opposed to the reduction as well as a pilot project at several slaughtering plants where inspectors have been pulled off production lines and used to oversee plant employees.

Lottery commission chairwoman resigns
Waco resident takes position

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Lottery Commission Chairwoman Harriet Miers resigned Tuesday, saying she wants to devote her time to pursuing personal commitments.

Miers, a Dallas lawyer, told staff members that her decision to quit had nothing to do with recent sales trouble at the commission, which has been under fire for lagging sales and player interest.

Appointed to the position May 4, 1995, by Gov. George W. Bush, Miers said that by resigning now, her successor would have time to prepare for the January 2001 legislative session and the rebidding of the lottery's primary operator contract.

"I believe it will be best if the lottery has an experienced commissioner on board, rather than someone whose term expires in February 2001."

Former Lottery Commissioner Chairwoman, Harriet Miers have to lower the game's jackpot from $4 million to $3 million to prevent the depletion of a lottery reserve fund.

But the commission backtracked last week, proposing increasing the payout from 50 percent of sales to 55 percent, almost doubling lower-tier prizes by bringing awards to between $5 and $2,500. Smaller prizes currently range between $3 and $1,500.

Although higher jackpots would create more interest, they would also make it harder to win — increasing odds from 1-in-15.8 million to 1-in-25.8 million.

Clowe, a former executive at Southern Union Company in Austin, was appointed to the Lottery Commission Nov. 16, 1998.

Betsy Whitaker, a lawyer from Dallas, was appointed by Bush to replace Clowe. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

Anthony J. Sadberry, a lawyer from Cypress, is the third commissioner.

"Harriet Miers has done an outstanding job as chair of the Lottery Commission. She has successfully led this agency through a difficult period. I wish her all the best in her future endeavors," Bush said.

The commission has been under pressure recently as its biggest game, Lotto Texas, continues to suffer sales losses.

Irish heritages are discussed during genealogy meeting

"May your blessings outnumber the shamrocks that grow and may trouble avoid wherever you go," was the Irish blessing with which Donita Rule, Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society vice president/program chairman, concluded her talk on Ireland during their regular meeting.

"Erin Go Braugh" translates to "Ireland Forever." Genealogical Society members confessed to varying degrees of Irish heritage, including one member whose great grandfather came straight from the old sod in the early 1800s.

Rule gave a brief tour of Irish web sites on the Internet, including "The A to Z of Irish Genealogy"; the site currently only carries items through the letter "D".

President L.J. Clark presided at the business meeting.

Members received a request from the Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR for any names of Korean War veterans. It was also announced Korean veterans have been asked to contact any DAR member or call Jean Beene at 364-6117. The purpose of the Korean Roster being prepared by DAR is to honor Korean veterans on June 25, which is the 50th anniversary of the beginning of the Korean conflict.

Club secretary Wilma Clark announced two genealogical workshops of interest to local people:

The 12th Annual Genealogical Workshop led by Sylvia Murray will be held this Saturday, in the Latter Day Saints Chapel in Amarillo; and, the Southwest Genealogy Society will have their annual workshop April 8 at the Texas Tech University School of Law building. Their speaker is a regular leader on the "Family History Show."

Both workshops offer lower fees for early registration. For more information on these workshops contact Wilma Clark at 364-3176.

Members in attendance were Nolan Grady, Troyce Hanna, Juanita Brown, Clara Smith, Beene, Rule and L.J. and Wilma Clark.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am the director for the Mental Health Association in Fort Bend County, Texas. I want to thank you for printing the letter about the National Alcohol Screening Day last year. The response was terrific. We received calls from teens who wanted to know how to find help for their parents, from elderly persons concerned about loneliness and drinking, and from others who just needed to find the locations of available services. Many people who called were between 30 and 50 years of age, and had started drinking to deal with personal problems. They were concerned about losing their jobs, families and friends.

Participants attending the screening hear an educational presentation on alcohol problems, and complete a written self-assessment. They have the opportunity to talk one-on-one with a health professional, and are given the names and phone numbers of support services and treatment facilities in the area. All screenings are free and anonymous.

Every call we receive gives us the opportunity to educate the public about alcohol abuse, risky drinking, alcohol treatment and related mental health issues.

Often, individuals with alcohol problems have other disorders such as depression, anxiety, manic-depression, and so on, and are undiagnosed. National Alcohol Screening Day is a great place to start. Thank you, Ann, for being our messenger once again. — Gay Williams, Mental Health Association, Fort Bend County, Texas

Dear Gay Williams: I appreciate being able to alert my readers yet another time to National Alcohol Screening Day, to be held this year on Thursday, April 6. There will be 2000 sites across the country, 500 of them on college campuses, offering free, anonymous screenings for those who have problems with alcohol, as well as for those whose loved ones have a drinking problem.

Nearly 14 million American adults have an alcohol-use disorder, and nearly 17 percent of children under age 14 live with an adult who drinks heavily or has an alcohol problem. Teens and college students are at risk as well. Young persons who begin drinking before age 15 are four times as likely to develop alcohol dependence as those who begin drinking at age 21. Alcohol is frequently a factor in auto crashes, homicides and suicides for 15- to 24-year-olds, and 81 percent of fraternity and sorority members report binge drinking.

Readers, if you have any questions regarding alcohol, or if you know someone who could benefit from this anonymous screening, please call 1-800-697-6700 today to find a site in your area. College students can also check with their health or counseling center. Do it today. It could save the life of someone you love.

Dear Ann Landers: I didn't care for your response to the woman whose cousins planned to visit, then, canceled when asked to bring their own pillows and towels. You said buying extra pillows was no big deal. You are wrong. For some people, it IS a big deal. Do you have any idea how much a pair of down pillows costs these days?

I don't have room for any more pillows than the ones we have on our beds. Why shouldn't those freeloaders bring their own stuff when asked? It is enough that the hosts offered to put them up and feed them. When we travel, we always bring pillows, towels and blankets. I would not presume to impose on my hosts by expecting them to supply these items. We appreciate being invited, and anything more would be taking advantage of their hospitality. — Respecting Boundaries in Ontario, Canada

Dear Ontario: The mail was 20 to 1 against me. You win. When the relatives come to visit, they should bring their own pillows, and anything else that might be a hardship for the hosts to provide.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. # Kid's birthday parties become elaborate, at-home bashes DALLAS — It's like producing a movie or a play. There are endless discussions about the theme, the scenes, how one moment should flow into another.

 The preparations begin months, sometimes a year, before the actual presentation. Props are discussed and obtained laboriously, sometimes from stores, sometimes from friends, painstakingly assembled from bits of this and that.
 Finally, the show begins — the show which, no matter how successful, will last for a few scant hours. The show which, after all, is nothing more — but nothing less — than a child's birthday party.
 At a time when most over-worked parents hang onto their last shred of sanity by going to a roller rink or bowling alley or pizza place where a hostess will do everything for you for X amount of dollars per head, there are still a handful of moms and dads out there tackling the homemade birthday party.
 That's right, no clown with animal balloons. No face painting, no pony, no video games, no swimming.
 Just an old-fashioned party with games.
 "It's a dying art," says Kim Kelty of Plano. "But I love it."
 At Emily Kelty's seventh birthday party on Feb. 19, the theme is "Over The Rainbow" as in "The Wizard of Oz," a favorite story for Kelty and her daughter.
 As the party guests arrive, each gets a rainbow sticker to wear on her party dress. They take turns writing in Emily's memory book. Then they head to the driveway, where they are greeted by buckets of chalk in a rainbow of blues, pinks, yellows and greens alongside a silhouette for each guest to color.
 Kelty made the silhouettes by tracing around her daughter's body earlier that morning. Emily's friends spend about 20 minutes filling in those silhouettes, until it's time to go into the yard for a treasure hunt.

 It all seems simple, but Kelty says she and Emily have been fine-tuning the details since last fall. They have worked intensely on everything from the party-favor necklaces, which Emily crafted from long rolls of cellophane with bows separating the treats inside like beads on a string, to the lace hanging over chairs; the lace will be braided into friendship bracelets.
 The guests feast on fruit on shish-kebab skewers — in a rainbow of colors, naturally — while listening to the music from a "Wizard of Oz" CD. The decorations feature Dorothy, Tin Man, Scarecrow and Lion figurines, as well as a framed photo from the movie borrowed from Kelty's friend Judy. Judy is from Kansas, of course.
 It may seem like a lot of work, but not to Emily.
 "I love it," she says, after chalking a yellow necklace on her silhouette. "I love spending time with my mom. I love everything about it."
 As for Mom, the labor is more than mitigated by the bonding experience. Kelty says she gets to know her daughter better by finding out what she likes and doesn't like. And she is gratified by the skills she has seen her daughter develop in the process.
 "We started doing this with her when she was 3," she says. "We've done tea parties, slumber parties and makeover parties. I think it's built her confidence to create these parties. I always wanted her to feel as if she can do anything. And she does."

Herd burns up Harvesters, 9-8

Lady Whitefaces—A Hereford player slides under a tag in the team's 16-5 win over Palo duro Saturday.

■ An emotional win brings the Whitefaces to 8-6 on the year.

By Jeff Blackmon
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

The Lady Whitefaces proved they have the ability to come from behind on Tuesday.

The Varsity softball team fell behind on Tuesday 3-8 and came back to defeat the Harvesters 9-8.

"The girls came out flat and didn't start hitting until later in the game," head coach

Penny Summers said.

After falling behind early in the game, the Lady Whitefaces rallied to score nine runs over four innings.

"We still need to work on our offensive game," Summers said. "We have got to have all of our team batting over .500," Summers said.

Summers said her team has great ability but needs to harness it to win.

"Our team has a lot of talent," Summers said. "We have to strive for that winning attitude."

Junior pitcher Victoria Perez started the game for the Herd allowing seven runs while striking out six Pampa batters. Teresa Zimmerman was brought in for the save in the fifth, and she did just that striking out eight batters to finish off the Harvesters.

Summers said the pitchers were able to keep the team in the game allowing them to rally for the win.

"I was very proud of them for coming back in the end," Summers said. "Our pitchers (Perez, Zimmerman) threw a great game."

An emotional moment came in the bottom half of the fifth inning when Salina Hastings came into the game. Hastings was injured in the Lady Whitefaces' loss to Dumas last Tuesday. Hastings was hit in the hand by a pitch which required her to have 10 stitches. She came into the fifth and helped the Herd rally with a hit.

"Salina came in and had a crucial hit that picked up the

Boy's golf team third in Borger

On Tuesday, the men's golf team traveled to Borger for a first round district match.

In a round threatened by awful weather, the Whitefaces placed third with a score of 319.

Leading the way for the team was Peyton Ward who shot a round of 74. Kevin Hoffman finished the day at 81 while Tyler Keeling and Thomas Maldonado finished at 82. Brad Reinart completed a afternoon round of 85.

Even though the course conditions were pitiful, head coach James Salinas said he felt his team did a great job.

"My first thought was that 319 wasn't too bad considering the weather," Salinas said. "That was until I saw the Borger and Dumas scores."

Borger and Dumas finished ahead of Hereford in the district match. Borger finished in first place with a 304, and Dumas finished second scoring a 311.

Coach Salinas said he feels that his team can catch up to the two top teams in district.

"We have some work ahead obviously but at the same time I have confidence these guys can come back," Salinas said. "We need to be patient and peck away at those two in the lead."

Peyton Ward is currently in third place under the individual competition. Ward finished at 74 while Charlie Romero of Dumas and Cole Register of Borger are tied for first with scores of 72.

The next district match will be on March 27 in Pampa.

■ The Herd improves to 7-6 before Randall game

By Jeff Blackmon

The cold weather could not keep the Herd from dominating Levelland 7-2.

At Whiteface Field on Tuesday, the varsity baseball team played hard despite a wind chill that dipped as low as 14.

Pitcher George Castillo shrugged off the bitter climate and limited the error plagued Lobos to three hits and two runs. Castillo began the game with three strikeouts in the first inning and set the tone

In Tuesday's game, short-stop April Trevizo went down with an injury to her thumb. Coach Summers said Trevizo will be having x-rays to determine whether the injury is a break or not.

Pitching coach Angela Stansell said she is glad the team has players who can step up when athletes go down.

"It is great that our girls

The team's next district challenge will be on Friday when the Lady Whitefaces travel to Borger to face the Bulldogs at 4:30 p.m. The team will then be home on Saturday to take on Fritch in a non-district showdown at home at 1 p.m.

for the game for the Herd.

The game remained scoreless until the bottom of the fourth when the Herd scored two runs and then went on to score the winning run in the bottom of the fifth. Hereford tacked on four more runs in the bottom half of the sixth giving the Herd a little breathing room.

Levelland's only offense came off a Fowler home run in the sixth inning.

Castillo got the win for the Whitefaces bringing his overall record to 5-1. Castillo is beginning to string together a great year for the Herd.

The baseball team now has a winning record at 7-6. The next game for the team will be Saturday at 4:30. The Herd will take on Randall at Whiteface Field for a final tune-up before district play.

Alou ready to rejoin Astros

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Moises Alou wants to give the Houston Astros another big season just like he did two years ago. This time, he'll be more careful how he exercises and even plans to be more open.

Alou had a great beginning with the Astros, putting up career numbers in 1997 and he expected to do even better in 1998. That was before he tore a ligament in his left knee prior to spring training and just before he tried to come back, he fell off a bike riding with his kids. Season ended.

"I missed playing and hitting the ball hard," Alou said. "I had a great year the year before and I knew I was going to have a better year. And, I missed hanging out with the guys."

Alou also looks forward to addressing another issue. He's pledged to be more open.

"There are a lot of people who misjudge me sometimes because I stay to myself and think about what I'm going to do," he said. "It's not like I need to clean anything up but I'd like to be more open to the press this year. I apologize if haven't always been there all the time but I'm going to try my best this year. You will know the real Moises."

Alou came to the Astros after leading the Florida Marlins to their second straight NL Central Division title. He hit .312 and had career highs with 38 homers and 124 RBIs.

After the bicycle injury, Alou pretty much stayed at home in the Dominican Republic, and then caused some rumbling when he didn't show up for the first-round playoff series against the Atlanta Braves, who eliminated Houston 3-1.

"I've been in the situation Moises was in when you are hurt," teammate Jeff Bagwell said. "You don't feel like a part of the club. It's hard to be around. Sometimes you get pushed aside and you feel unwanted."

During the offseason, Bagwell visited Alou in the Dominican Republic for family get-togethers.

"Nobody has had any ill feelings about Moises at all," Bagwell said. "That was stuff put in the media and our front office. That was something that didn't bother any of us. We knew we had a job to do."

Alou has been playing right field this spring because manager Larry Dierker is trying to find some playing time for Daryle Ward, who had a strong rookie season and fits best in left field.

"I have no problem with that. The manager can play me anywhere he wants," Alou said. "I've played the position before."

The move would give Dierker the flexibility of platooning Ward and Richard Hidalgo in left.

"Since he's a veteran, I'd like to leave him in one place," Dierker said. "If he stays in left field, he probably has to move when Ward plays."

Without Alou, the Astros advanced to the playoffs even though they had only the eighth-highest batting average in the league at .267 and were 11th among the 16 teams in home runs with 168.

"I won't try to make anything up because I didn't play last year," Alou said. "I wanted to play but I couldn't. When I'm out there I know that I'm one of the best and I try to play like I'm one of the best."

Anti-smoking lawmakers bid to snuff court ruling

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS News digest

WASHINGTON— Anti-smoking legislators promised to move quickly and aggressively to revive tobacco legislation after the Supreme Court ruled that current law does not allow the government to regulate tobacco.

But Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who led the unsuccessful charge for tobacco legislation two years ago, also cautioned that, as in the past, overcoming resistance from the tobacco industry will not be easy.

McCain, just returned to the Senate after his unsuccessful run for the Republican presidential nomination, said he would like to see tobacco regulated but worried that tobacco companies, major sources of political contributions, "are too powerful" for that to happen.

Until Congress enacts legislation to limit campaign spending, he said Tuesday, "I'm not optimistic we're going to get that done."

Nonetheless, Rep. Henry Waxman, a leading proponent of anti-smoking legislation, said he was reintroducing a measure that would give the Food and Drug Administration authority to regulate tobacco as a drug.

"It is now our responsibility," Waxman, D-Calif., said. In the Senate, Sen. Jack Reed, D-R.I., said he was introducing legislation giving the secretary of Health and Human Services the authority to regulate the manufacture and distribution of tobacco products. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the Senate "should be able to act expeditiously to grant the FDA the full authority it needs."

POPE JOHN PAUL II Makes prayerful, politically sensitive pilgrimage to town of Bethlehem.

Prayer, politics during pontiff's journey

BETHLEHEM, West Bank — Kissing Palestinian earth and welcomed by Yasser Arafat, Pope John Paul II embarked today on a prayerful and politically sensitive pilgrimage to the West Bank town of Bethlehem, revered as the place of Jesus' birth.

Greeting the frail 79-year-old pope, Palestinians lost no time in driving home the message of their hopes for statehood.

"Welcome to our land," Arafat told him at a formal reception by Palestinian clerics, diplomats and officials that kicked off the only day the pope was spending in Palestinian territory during his weeklong visit to the Holy Land.

After meeting Arafat, the pope traveled by his bullet-proof "popemobile" to Bethlehem's packed Manger Square for an ecstatic welcome at the traditional site of Christ's birth. Along the route, girls with baskets of flowers hurled blossoms into his path, festooning the hood of the popemobile. In the square, draped with Palestinian and Vatican flags, shouts of "Viva Baba!" — the Arabic adaptation of the word pope — rang out. Elderly nuns clambered atop stepladders to catch a glimpse of the pontiff.

Clad in a golden robe, John Paul waved his hand in greeting and blessed the crowd of thousands in Arabic with "Peace be upon you." As organ strains signaled the start of the Mass, he leaned heavily on his silver scepter, bowing his head in prayer.

Despite the festive mood, security was heavy. Streets around the square were closed off and pilgrims' bags were checked at electronic security gates.

Clinton addresses Indian Parliament

NEW DELHI, India — President Clinton made an impassioned plea to India's Parliament today to retreat from the nation's growing nuclear weapons program and to reach out to rival Pakistan to restart peace talks.

"In a nuclear standoff, there is nothing more dangerous than believing there is no danger," Clinton said in a speech to both houses of Parliament. He said the former Soviet Union and the United States, despite their distance apart and their elaborate set of safeguards, "came far too close to nuclear war."

Although warmly applauded through other portions of his address, Clinton's comments on nuclear weapons and on Pakistan drew mostly silence from the legislators in the chamber.

The speech wrapped up Clinton's visit to India's capital. Afterward, the president was headed for Agra, where the Taj Mahal is located, to mix tourism with a plea for environmental protection.

Clinton planned to tour the 17th century white marble mausoleum with spiraling minarets, then use it as a backdrop for a speech focusing on the environment. Agra is also home to 150 iron foundries and has some of the worst air pollution in India.

Fearful that the smog could be discoloring the Taj Mahal, the city has embarked on a tree planting program with help from the U.S. Parks Service.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs."
 Then remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Notice of Receipt of Application and Intent to Obtain Air Permit Proposed Permit No. 43414

APPLICATION Marquez & Sons, 327 Avenue C, Hereford, Texas 79045 has applied to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) for issuance of Air Quality Permit No. 43661 which would authorize construction of a Concrete Batch Plant at 708 New York Street in Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The facility will emit the following air contaminants: particulate matter to include cement, fly ash, and road dust.

This application was submitted to the TNRCC on February 18, 2000. The application is available for viewing and copying at the TNRCC central office, TNRCC Amarillo regional office, and the Deaf Smith County Courthouse at 235 East 3rd Street, Hereford. The facility's compliance file, if any exists, is available for public review in the Amarillo regional office of the TNRCC.

The TNRCC executive director has determined the application is administratively complete and will conduct a technical review of the application.

MAILING LIST You may ask to be placed on a mailing list to obtain additional information regarding this application. To get on the mailing list for this application, send a request to the TNRCC Office of the Chief Clerk at the address provided in the information section below.

PUBLIC COMMENT/PUBLIC MEETING You may submit public comments, a request for a public meeting about this application, or a contested case hearing to the TNRCC Office of the Chief Clerk at the address provided in the information section below. The TNRCC will consider all public comments in developing a final decision on the application. The deadline to submit public comments is 30 days after newspaper notice is published. After the deadline for public comments, the TNRCC executive director will prepare a response to all relevant and material or significant public comments.

The purpose of a public meeting is to provide the opportunity to submit written or oral comments or ask questions about the application. A public meeting about the application will be held if the TNRCC executive director determines that there is a significant degree of public interest in the application or if requested by a local legislator. A public meeting is not a contested case hearing.

If only comments are received on the application, the response to comments, along with notice of the TNRCC executive director's action on the application, will be mailed to everyone who submitted comments or is on the mailing list for this application.

If a hearing request is filed as discussed in the next section of this notice, the TNRCC executive director will issue a preliminary decision on the application following technical review. Notice of the Application and Preliminary Decision will be published and mailed to those who are on the countywide mailing list for this application. That notice will contain the final deadline for submitting public comments.

After the final deadline for public comments following any required Notice of Application and Preliminary Decision, the TNRCC executive director will consider the comments and prepare a response to all relevant and material, or significant public comments. The response to comments, along with the TNRCC executive director's decision on the application, will then be mailed to everyone who submitted public comments or who is on a mailing list for this application.

OPPORTUNITY FOR A CONTESTED CASE HEARING You may request a contested case hearing. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in state district court. Unless a written request for a contested case hearing is filed within 30 days from this notice, the TNRCC executive director may approve the application. If no hearing request is received within this 30-day period, no further opportunity for hearing will be provided. A contested case hearing will only be granted based on disputed issues of fact that are relevant and material to the Commission's decision on the application. Further, the Commission will only grant a hearing on those issues that are raised by you or others during the public comment period and not withdrawn. Issues that are not raised in the public comment period may not be considered during the hearing.

A person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the facility is entitled to request a hearing. If requesting a contested case hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number, and fax number, if any; (2) the applicant's name and permit number; (3) the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing;" (4) a specific description of how you would be affected by the application and adversely affected by air emissions in a way not common to the general public; (5) the location and distance of your property relative to the facility; and (6) a description of how you use the property which may be impacted by the facility. You may also submit your proposed adjustments to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns. Requests for a contested case hearing must be submitted in writing within 30 days following this notice to the TNRCC Office of the Chief Clerk, at the address provided in the information section below.

If a hearing request is filed within 30 days following this notice, additional notice will be provided. Following the close of all applicable comment and request periods, the TNRCC executive director will forward the application and any requests for a contested case hearing to the TNRCC Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting. If a hearing is granted, the subject of a hearing will be limited to disputed issues of fact relating to relevant and material air quality concerns raised during the comment period. Issues such as property value, waste disposal, water quality, noise, traffic safety, or zoning are not considered relevant and material to this air quality application.

ment. The total operating revenue for the month was $800,726, with total operating expenses of $962,000, leaving an operations loss of $161,274. Non-operating income offset part of the operations loss, leaving the hospital with a net loss of $57,512 for the year.

The health clinic reported a net loss of $11,574 for February, a 51.3 percent improvement over the $23,767 in red ink last year. For the year, the clinic's net loss is $87,393, a 36.1 percent improvement over the same period in 1999, when the net loss was $136,763.

Taylor said he is confident that new policies implemented will show an improvement in the clinic's financial performance.

Taylor also reported the employee insurance plan will be up for renewal in July. He said he will "pull some data together" and the insurance committee can begin its review.

In other business, the board:

- Approved credentials for five physicians, Richard Bean, Ron Rankin, Tariq Shamsi, Mahanparkash Chimanji and Sirhari Gopaul;
- Received reports on quality assurance from Cheryl Hunter; and

- Adopted a new policy outlining the procedure for requesting autopsies.

President to delay Star Wars decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton may wait as late as November before deciding whether to commit the country to deploying a defense against ballistic missiles, White House and Pentagon officials say.

Previously, officials had said a presidential decision was expected this summer.

On Tuesday, officials said a Pentagon deployment recommendation will be available to Clinton this summer, as originally planned. But they said it was possible the president will put off a final decision until October or November in order to buy more time for arms control talks with Moscow.

Russia is strongly opposed to a U.S. national missile defense, as is China. Some U.S. allies in NATO also have their doubts, in part because they fear it would destroy a landmark arms control treaty, the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile pact which prohibits nationwide defenses against ballistic missiles.

Clinton wants to amend the ABM treaty to permit limited missile defenses — which would intercept some types of missiles from "rogue" nations — but Moscow so far has refused.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Ronald Kadish, director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization, told a Pentagon news conference that the next test of the anti-missile system will be June 26, two months later than originally planned. The delay gives the Pentagon time to fix a problem that caused a June 1998 test to fail.

Until now, the Pentagon had said it would make an assessment in June of the system's readiness to deploy.

Sales tax

Rylander, acting under a law passed by the 1999 Legislature, listed prophylactics among some 100,000 items that will be exempt from the 6.25 percent state sales tax and local sales taxes beginning April 1.

Eligible items include allergy products, antacids, cold remedies, eye care products and dressings for wounds.

Rylander said Tuesday the law dictates what items — including condoms — are to be tax-free.

To qualify, a product must be a drug, medicine, article or substance used in diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment or prevention of disease or suffering. It must be intended for human use and have a National Drug Code number issued by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, she said.

"It's not a matter of interpretation, it's a matter of the law," Rylander said.

Republican Gov. George W. Bush, who proposed the tax break idea during his re-election campaign, never wanted condoms included, said his spokeswoman, Linda Edwards.

"Gov. Bush never wanted condoms to be exempt. But we understand FDA regulations say condoms prevent disease, and under the Texas law a drug or medicine that has a National Drug Code must be exempt," Edwards said.

But others, including the Texas Family Planning Association's Peggy Romberg, said making condoms tax-free is a good idea.

"We're talking about public health here. They prevent the spread of sexually transmitted disease — HIV and AIDS — and should be looked at as a preventative product and a public health product," Romberg said.

"It's perfectly appropriate that they be excluded from the tax. It's unfortunate that extremist groups have been successful in distracting people like the governor from what should be the main concern of the state — public health and well being of its citizens," she said.

The Eagle Forum's Adams said exempting condoms from the sales tax flies in the face of the consistent message teen-agers need to hear about sexual activity.

"Our teen-agers need a solid message. This is something that's very consistent with Governor Bush's message of teaching children (sexual) abstinence until marriage," she said.

"I understand the FDA has listed them, but look who's leading our federal government — a man who doesn't know how to define 'is.' If this is coming from them, I think it should be challenged."

The condom controversy aside, Rylander said the tax break should save Texas families about $160 million during its first full year, 2001. That's around $17 per family annually, spokesman Mark Sanders estimated.

"Exempting over-the-counter medicines from the sales tax is long overdue," Rylander said. "Prescription drugs have been tax-exempt since the state sales tax was enacted in 1961. Paying sales tax on nonprescription medicine is a bitter pill to swallow."

Federal funding for arts promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing up in Staunton, Va., Erin Lise Tabscott had no elementary school art teacher and had to share her high school drama teacher with the middledrama major, wants to teach after graduation from Mary Baldwin College in Staunton.

"You can have all the money in the world," Tabscott said Tuesday, "but if you don't have anyone who wants to do the work and be passionate about it, you're not going to have a production; you'll just have people standing up on a stage." Tabscott was among movie stars and fellow drama students in Washington on Tuesday to press for more federal spending on the arts. Unlike previous years, these were supported by hard data on how acting, painting or playing an instrument helps a schoolchild do well in all lessons.

A study from the University of California, Los Angeles, found that a national sample of students who studied the arts in grades eight through 10 made higher grades, scored better on standardized tests and were less likely to drop out of school. Seven in 10 of arts students made top scores in reading, history, geography and citizenship compared with the 45 percent of students who had few arts classes or activities and still did as well in reading. Just 1.4 percent of the arts-involved children left school by 10th grade, while almost 5 percent of the nonarts children did.

Another study from Stanford University, which the groups also gave to lawmakers, showed that students who spent at least 10 hours a week in arts classes or activities were four times as likely to participate in mathematics or science fairs.

Advocates said additional research is needed to determine whether the differences reflect merely that the most-advantaged students get chances to participate in arts programs.

In all, about 200 representatives of arts advocacy groups participated in the rally, called to show by the Stanford and UCLA reports that arts education deserves a place in America's classrooms.

"Every child deserves access to the arts," said Bob Morrison, executive director of the music network VH1's "Save the Music" school program. "Not just the best, not just the brightest and certainly not just those who can afford it."

Disparities come when schools, viewing arts education as a luxury, cut the art curriculum while adding money to sports, said actor William Baldwin, president of the Creative Coalition, a star-studded lobbying group.

The advocacy groups' principal mission Tuesday in Washington was to seek a $50 million boost for the National Endowment for the Arts, which annually gives about $100 million in matching federal grants to local arts organizations.

Vote hints at trouble for Bush

CHICAGO (AP) — George W. Bush and Al Gore cruised to victories in Illinois primaries, but about a third of Republicans withheld their votes from Bush in what some analysts said could be a sign of trouble for the likely GOP nominee.

Chris Mooney, director of the Illinois Legislative Studies Center at the University of Illinois at Springfield, said some GOP voters probably want to send their nominee a message by voting for Sen. John McCain or Alan Keyes.

"After it's sewn up, its safe to vote for the odd candidate in order to make a statement," Mooney said after Tuesday's voting. "That's something Bush obviously has to deal with. He has not dealt with the McCain question."

With 97 percent of precincts reporting in the Republican primary, unofficial returns showed Bush with 484,706 votes, or 67 percent, and McCain with 154,968 votes, or 22 percent. Keyes had 64,321 votes, or 9 percent.

But in the races for delegates who actually pick the GOP nominee, Bush was winning in every district.

On the Democratic side, with 97 percent of precincts reporting, Gore had 662,809 votes, or 84 percent, according to unofficial returns, while Bill Bradley had 112,575 votes, or 14 percent.

In primary races around the country a week ago, Bush never got less than 74 percent of the vote.

"We may have a little bit of work to do," acknowledged John Pastuovic, a spokesman for Bush's Illinois campaign. "I think what that shows is that the McCain voters are staying in the Republican Party."

Mooney agreed that Bush has time to shore up his support, as did Dick Simpson, a former Chicago alderman who now teaches political science at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

But Simpson noted Bush also will probably face conservative Patrick Buchanan running for the Reform Party. "That means Bush has to overcome the McCain split and he's attacked from the right by Buchanan, who can be very effective on the stump," he said.

To some degree Tuesday's presidential contest was less a primary than an early skirmish in the general election.

It's no coincidence that both Bush and Gore visited Illinois shortly before the election, even though the outcome of the primary was not in doubt. They were trying to build support for the fall in a key state.

Candidates always fight hard for Illinois and its 22 Electoral College votes.

Australia demands NRA jerk a video airing on website

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australian officials demanded today that the National Rifle Association pull a video airing on its Web site claiming that the nation's gun reform laws had backfired.

The video, presented as a television news story, claims that crimes involving guns have increased in Australia since the laws, which ban all semi-automatic rifles, semi-automatic shotguns and pump action shotguns, were introduced.

Federal Attorney General Daryl Williams said the NRA was using inaccurate statistics and urged the group to remove "any reference to Australia" from its Web site.

"I find it quite offensive that the NRA is using the very successful gun reform laws introduced in 1996 as the basis for promoting ownership of firearms in the United States," he said.

Williams sent a letter today to NRA president Charlton Heston, asking for the immediate withdrawal of misleading information.

Australia's gun-related homicide rate was 0.28 per 100,000 people in 1998 compared to 4 per 100,000 in the United States. Williams wrote in the letter, which was distributed to reporters.

"There are many things that Australia can learn from the United States," he wrote. "How to manage firearm ownership is not one of them."

Australia adopted the gun laws after an April 1996 rampage by Martin Bryant, who opened fire with military-style rifles at the Port Arthur historic site in Melbourne. Bryant, who killed 35 people and injured 19, is serving a life sentence.

More than 640,000 firearms were removed from the Australian community under a buyback program. The NRA video shows footage of guns being sawed to pieces, and thousands of destroyed guns piled on scrap heaps.

South Australia's Attorney General Trevor Griffin — who is seen in the video talking about crime — said he was not interviewed by the NRA and a quote from him was taken from a previous interview and used out of context.

The video claims that after the gun laws took effect, armed robbery in Australia went up 69 percent, assaults involving guns rose 28 percent, gun murders increased 19 percent and home invasions rose 21 percent. It does not give a source for the data.

Dr. Adam Graycar, director of the Australian Institute of Criminology, said the statistics were misleading.

Powell not interested in being on GOP ticket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Gen. Colin Powell said Tuesday he would not run for vice president, but did not rule out possible service in the Cabinet of the next president.

Responding to a question during a broadcast from the Reserve Officers Association, Powell said he gave the idea of running for office "the greatest consideration you can give to an issue," but he said he stands by his 1995 decision not to run for president and to stay out of elective politics.

Powell, 62 and a registered Republican, is now being mentioned as a possible running mate for George W. Bush, the likely Republican presidential nominee.

"You have to have a certain feeling for it, a commitment, passion," said Powell. "And if I'd said I had it, I wouldn't have been honest to myself, I wouldn't have been honest to the American people."

"I have no desire for political office," he said. But he did not rule out serving in the new Cabinet. The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been mentioned as a possible candidate for secretary of state.

Reform Party fight before judge

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — In the latest round of the Reform Party's civil war, a federal judge is expected to decide which of its warring factions controls the party and gets to shape its future.

On one side is Jack Gargan, the man who became chairman Jan. 1 and insists he is still the legal head of the party despite being voted out of office last month.

On the other side is Pat Choate, the 1996 running mate of party founder and Dallas billionaire Ross Perot who was elected to succeed Gargan at the Feb. 12 meeting in Nashville, Tenn.

Each faction calls itself the real Reform Party, runs "official" party Web sites and claims ownership of $2.5 million in federal funds for the national party conventions they are planning.

Gargan said the meeting was held in violation of party rules and he is suing his predecessors for possession of the financial books. Choate and others allied with Perot are seeking a court order to bar Gargan and his supporters from calling themselves Reform Party leaders.

At issue before U.S. District Judge Norman K. Moon during the three-day trial that opens today is which faction represents the Reform Party.

Once a decision is made, a new battle will be waged over control of the federal money.

With a third of the election year already gone, both factions are looking to Moon to settle the dispute and provide the group with stable ground from which to gird for yet another fight — this time against an independent panel's decision to exclude from the official presidential debates any candidate with less than 15 percent support in national public opinion polls.

The commission's decision most directly affects Pat Buchanan, the former Republican seeking the Reform presidential nomination, who has single-digit support in most polls.

The infighting also steals attention from Buchanan, as well.
