Family feeling some closure

■ Memorial marker for Panhandle sailor installed 36 years after his death

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Nearly 36 years after his son's death in the crash of a Navy airplane, Ed McCreary feels a sense of closure.

McCreary's older son, Robert, was just 23 years old and three years into his four-year naval enlistment on Oct. 27, 1964, when he was killed.

McCreary was the electronic technician on an anti-submarine plane assigned to the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain. The plane, which had been monitoring the activities of Soviet submarines, was making its "approach to land when it lost power, crashed and exploded," McCreary said. All four members of the crew died in the fiery crash in the Straits of Gibraltar.

The loss of his older son was intensified for McCreary by bureaucratic bungling by the Pentagon, which sent the family conflicting telegrams.

One telegram indicated the body would be returned to the family for burial; another telegram indicated the body could not be recovered.

"You can imagine the stress we were under," McCreary said. "After a week of this, my brother-in-law contacted the congressman for Pampa and we were able to get a definitive telegram.

"That's when I learned that if something's wrong, go to your congressman," McCreary said. The lesson he learned in dealing with the bureaucracy would be put to use again three decades later when there was a foul up involving his son's memorial headstone at Arlington National Cemetery, just outside Washington, D.C.

Although the family did not erect a marker in the cemetery, a bronze plaque was placed at a shrine at the Catholic Church in White Deer.

"He (Robert) was president of the Catholic Youth Organization at the church in White Deer during his senior year," McCreary said, so the family agreed to have the plaque placed in the shrine, located between the church and the rectory.

Robert was a 1959 graduate of White Deer High School and had been a tackle on the 1958 state championship football team.

After graduation, he attended North Texas State in Denton for nearly 1½ years before taking a job with the Santa Fe Railroad, a job he held until joining the Navy.

McCreary said he didn't know much about his son's Navy job, so he wrote to the commander of the USS Lake Champlain's homeport in Rhode Island. During their correspondence, he learned the aircraft carrier would be in port during June 1965.

"So as soon as school was out, we (McCreary and younger son, Montgomery) drove to" Rhode Island. ... I met the guys he (Robert) served with and I talked to his best friend.

Combest steps in to correct blunder

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

A mistake by the Pentagon was corrected earlier this week, thanks to the effort of U.S. Rep. Larry Combest.

When 23-year-old Robert Lane McCreary was killed in the crash of a Navy airplane in 1964, his body was never recovered.

In April 1999, officials at Arlington National Cemetery wrote the serviceman's father, Ed McCreary, and sister, Carolyn Bostick, notifying them that memorial stone 15A-2 was in place at the cemetery. Additional material showing the location of the stone and a car pass was included in the letter.

The family planned a trip to Washington, D.C., last October to see the headstone and memorial site. Bostick drove 23 hours from her home in Lubbock, while her 80-year-old father flew to the capital.

When Bostick arrived at the national cemetery, she found the headstone wasn't in place. She notified the administrative staff, which could not locate the stone.

It was determined the stone had arrived at the cemetery in January 1999, but it was broken and apparently a replacement wasn't ordered, an error that was not discovered until the family's visit.

After the family left Washington, Combest, a Lubbock Republican, contacted cemetery superintendent John Metzler and Army Secretary Louis Caldera.

Combest suggested the Army conduct

■ Last-minute filers do have some options

WASHINGTON (AP) — For millions of last-minute taxpayers who suddenly realize they owe money to Uncle Sam but don't have the cash on hand, it could be time to whip out the credit cards or make an installment payment deal with the IRS.

Accountants say there are ways to avoid such an unpleasant surprise next year, and even people who get refunds should consider changes to avoid giving the government use of their money for months each year.

This year's income tax filing deadline is midnight Monday, except for much of New England and New York, where it's a day later because a major IRS filing center located in Andover, Mass., will be closed because of the local Patriot's Day holiday.

As of last week, the Internal Revenue Service had received about 70 million of the 127 million individual returns expected this year — meaning millions of people, as usual, are waiting until the last possible minute.

Charging tax bills via credit is becoming an increasingly popular choice. As of March 31, about 16,700 people had charged payments averaging $1,362 this year by calling a toll-free number — 1-800-2PAYTAX — and putting their taxes on their MasterCard, American Express or Discover cards. Visa isn't taking part in the program.

Last year, more than 53,000 federal tax payments were made with credit cards.

"What we're doing is adding an option for people to pay their taxes and manage their resources on their own terms," said Bruce Zanca, senior vice president at Official Payments Corp., a publicly traded company contracted by the IRS to run the service.

IRS officials hasten to add that they don't collect or keep credit card numbers and do not collect any fees for use of credit cards. An average fee of 2.5 percent is charged by Official Payments, which keeps part of it.

Another payment option is an installment agreement with the IRS, which now will approve virtually any arrangement as long as the amount owed is less than $25,000 and the bill can be paid within five years.

There is a one-time $43 fee for an installment deal, and the IRS charges a late payment penalty that drops to a quarter-percent per month as long as the tax return itself was filed on time. This year's IRS installment interest rate is 9 percent, which might

Officers seeking scofflaws

People with outstanding warrants for unpaid traffic violations be warned. The Hereford Police Department is keeping track of these people and continuously searching for them.

According to Hereford Police Sgt. Brent Harrison, officers on duty are specifically assigned to issue warrants to certain traffic violators with unpaid tickets.

"While on duty, officers are specifically assigned to certain areas of traffic violations and will issue warrants to people in that category for their unpaid traffic offenses by going to the last known address of the offender."

HPD has issued 354 active warrants, which Harrison says is quite a lot.

"It's sporadic, sometimes there a lot, and other times not so many ... I wouldn't say it's a growing problem, but definitely a problem," he said.

Traffic violation warrants are issued through the municipal court judge. Judge Tawanna Hollowell will issue a warrant letter 14 days after the deadline the traffic ticket was to be paid.

Outstanding warrant expenses are not tabulated via computer, instead

Local roundup

Increased trash payments in effect

There's a cash incentive this weekend for residents to bring their trash to the city landfill.

Since last fall, the city has offered residents the chance to claim vouchers when they bring in whole loads of trash or building materials and a $1 per item for junk appliances, furniture or bedding. This weekend, the city will increase the voucher amount up to $4 per cubic yard or junk appliance.

The increased voucher amounts are only offered today and Sunday and must be redeemed Monday.

As an added incentive, the city dump will be open extended hours on weekends through the fall. Weekend hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sundays.

Officials ask that household trash not be brought to the dump, but only large items, which would normally not be allowed in the dumpsters. Residents can bring car batteries, tires, building supplies, roofing materials and furniture.

City dump rules remain in effect during extended hours. All loads must be covered or tied down and residents need to bring a copy of their water bill or drivers license as proof of residency.

HHS talent show tryouts slated

The Hereford High School 4th Annual Student Council Talent Show will be 7 p.m. May 4 at the high school auditorium.

Prizes of $100, $50, and $25 will be awarded. Entries may be picked up at the HHS office.

Red Cross to hold classes

The Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor babysitter classes next week.

Babysitter classes will be offered April 20-21. Participants should register by April 19.

All classes cost $35 and early pre-enrollment is recommended.

For more information or to register, contact the office at 364-3761.

Quail Appreciation Day scheduled

CANYON — Texas Agricultural Extension Service offices in Deaf Smith, Oldham, Randall, and Potter counties are hold a Quail Appreciation Day at 8:45 a.m. April 27 at the Norwest Bank building, 1401 Fourth Ave.

Several wildlife specialists are scheduled to speak.

Cost is $5 for pre-registration and $10 at the door. For more information, contact the county extension service agent.

Humane Society plans meeting

The Humane Society of Deaf Smith County will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C. The board will meet at 7 p.m. to discuss the proposed bylaws.

The Society will also hear committee reports on a planned low-cost shot clinic.

All residents with a heart for animals are urged to attend.

School board meeting set

Hereford Independent School District board of trustees will meet at 6 p.m. Monday for a regular meeting.

Items on the agenda include cancellation of the May 6 election; taking bids on the sale of portable buildings at the high school; telephone system for the junior high addition; TASB convention delegates and local policies.

Clinton taps sequoias as national monument

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — President Clinton is making the nation's last stands of ancient sequoia trees permanently off-limits to loggers, angering some California businesses and outdoor enthusiasts.

Clinton was traveling by helicopter today to the Trail of 100 Giants, a remote spot high in the Sierra Nevada, to walk among soaring trees 2 millennia old.

Clinton was to declare a new national monument to protect the sequoia that will end logging, mining and some recreational activities on about 327,000 acres in central California.

Sequoia, the largest trees on the planet, live more than 3,000 years.

Brand staffers honored

Paper receives top PPA honors for 2nd year in a row

AMARILLO — For the second consecutive year, the Hereford Brand received the General Excellence Award presented by the Panhandle Press Association.

In commenting on the newspaper's entries, the judges wrote: "The (Brand) entries surpassed all others. There was no question who would take first prize. To have three writers of such quality is impressive."

The newspaper staff also received several other honors, which were presented this morning at the association's awards breakfast held at the Ambassador Hotel.

In the features category, managing editor Don Cooper, Lifestyles editor Becky Thorn and staff writer Dianna Dandridge received first-place honors.

"Brothers Two: Flick, Paine travel long musical road together," a profile of the two original members of the Brothers Four folk group which appeared in Hereford as part of the Hereford Community Concert Association series.

Thorn's first-place feature was "Out of Africa," which profiled a group of Hereford and area residents who worked as missionaries in Africa.

Dandridge's feature "Big Man, Big Heart" was a profile of Steve Cathey, a Hereford man who has served as a foster father to many troubled or abandoned youngsters.

Publisher Mauri Montgomery received first-place awards in the humorous and serious columns categories, as well as for spot news photos, and the paper's advertising staff — Julius Bodner, Loretta Camp, Melissa Moya, Nora Guerrero and Christina Dominguez — earned a first-place nod in the advertising initiative category.

In the editorial writing category, the Brand also was received a third-place award.

The paper also received third-place awards for front page layout and society/lifestyles layout.

PRISON

Officials to try to find out why hostage situation occurred Friday

AMARILLO (AP) — Officials of a state prison say they'll spend the weekend trying to learn what caused a 35-year-old former trusty with a good record to seize a guard and hold her hostage for seven hours.

"Did he snap? We don't know, but obviously something happened," prison spokesman Larry Todd said Friday night, shortly after Charles Lamont Polk opened a steel door and released guard Heather Wheeler, 26, at the William P. Clements Jr. prison unit near Amarillo.

During the standoff, which began at 2:30 p.m. and ended at 9:35 p.m., Polk asked negotiators to let him talk with his daughter. Prison officials said he never did.

"We don't know what happened," Todd said. "It was a random, spur-of-the-moment attack. It was an opportune chance that he took."

The prison was put on lockdown, and Polk was placed in isolation.

Polk came to the prison on June 21, 1989, for aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon in Tarrant County (Fort Worth), officials said. The Clements unit holds 3,900 inmates of all classifications.

"He's no choir boy," Todd said of Polk. But prison officials say he had not been a problem at the Clements Unit. He had been considered a minimum security prisoner.

Wheeler did not appear harmed. She took a deep breath after emerging from the 8x10 foot closet where Polk had shoved her into after grabbing her during the afternoon.

McCreary

It helped a lot. Since then, I've really loved the Navy. I hated what happened, but I love the Navy," he said, noting he served in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

A few months later, McCreary left the principal's job in Skellytown and accepted a position with the newly organized Region 16 Education Service Center, where he remained until the summer of 1973 when he was hired as an administrator with the Hereford Independent School District.

"In the fall of 1998, my daughter (Carolyn Bostick of Ransom Canyon) and I were visiting ... I brought up the idea of having a stone installed at Arlington National Cemetery. She contacted Congressman (Larry) Combest's office in Lubbock," McCreary said. "In January 1999, we applied to (have the marker installed) and it was approved. It was to be installed in April of '99."

"We received word it had been installed, but didn't go to Washington until the fall. ... She preceded me to Washington by a couple of days. She went out to the cemetery on a Sunday when she arrived."

Bostick had the location of the marker, but when she got to the site, there was no headstone.

Because it was Sunday, she wasn't able to get any information until going back the next day. After working her way through the various levels of staffers, all of whom assured her the documentation showed the marker had been installed.

Finally, the cemetery superintendent checked the site and confirmed there was no headstone. Six stones, including Robert McCreary's, in the shipment had been broken and no one had followed up.

"We went by Congressman Combest's office to thank him for all he'd done already. He was surprised to learn the stone wasn't there and he promised to write some letters," McCreary said.

Combest kept his word and a new stone was installed in Arlington. The Pentagon also made arrangements to fly the family to Washington, provide accommodations and escort them to the national cemetery to view the marker.

After visiting the cemetery and the Vietnam Memorial, the family had one other stop. "Needless to say, we went by Congressman Combest's office," McCreary said.

an investigation into the situation and to arrange for transportation of immediate family members back to Washington so they could see the memorial.

In his letter to Metzler, Combest expressed concern that the headstone was not reordered promptly and the inconvenience it could cause the 80-year-old McCreary.

The Pentagon flew the family to Washington on Monday, provided accommodations for them and escorted them to Arlington National Cemetery on Tuesday to visit the memorial site and view the headstone.

Taxes

be higher than a taxpayer could get by taking out a loan to pay off the tax bill.

The IRS has a calculator on its Internet web site that helps taxpayers figure out their monthly payment amount, and they can print out an installment agreement form to file with the agency.

After the tax return is filed, financial advisers say it's smart to see if changes would improve the picture next year. That includes people who get big refunds, who are essentially giving the government the use of their money interest-free for several months each year — money that could be invested, put in a savings account, or used for a purchase.

Taxpayers should examine and adjust the amount of taxes that are withheld from their paychecks if either their refund or payment was too large.

"Keep your withholding down to a legal minimum," say advisers at H&R Block, the nation's biggest tax preparation firm. "The point is for you to get the use and enjoyment of your money when you earn it, rather than making an unintentional interest-free loan to the government."

From the RIA Group consulting firm, here are some other tips on reducing taxes next year:

- If a balance was owed on the 1040 form, consider increasing tax withholding and making estimated tax payments to avoid an underpayment penalty. Most people can avoid that penalty by ensuring that withholding or estimated payments equal the lesser of 90 percent of the 2000 tax bill or 100 percent of the 1999 tax bill.

- For a married couple filing jointly with adjusted gross income over $150,000, estimated tax payments equal to the lesser of 108.6 percent of the 1999 tax or 90 percent of the 2000 tax must be made.

- Married couples who have a child in 2000 can count on a $2,800 dependency exemption, a $500 credit if gross income isn't above $110,000 and possibly a child care credit of $480 or more.

- Taxpayers can get a home equity loan for major purchases, projects or other needs. Interest on up to $100,000 of home equity debt is generally tax deductible, but interest on regular bank loans or credit cards isn't.

- People should increase contributions to 401(k) plans, IRAs or other retirement plans that defer taxes.

THE PEOPLE & THE SNEECHES

(John Griffin, Hereford Junior High)

If sneeches can get along on the beeches,
Then why can't we listen to what He teaches?
The sneeches are almost exactly alike,
But then it is very likely one to strike,
That they are different in their own special way.
Whether their hair is blonde, black or gray.

Some people laugh and shout,
About what certain people's beliefs are about.
Who is God is a difficult thought,
Thoughts why we are here can make people hot.
But what we know is simply this:
What we can do on Earth can lead to true bliss!

Different people, of different sorts,
can enforce a religion made by royal courts.
This is what causes people to scatter,
A trip through the Star-On Machine can brighten the matter.
Or yet could it do such a marvelous Feat?
Old Sylvester McMonkey McBean, he'd be beat.

Through the eyes of He Who is we all are his.
Whether white or black or yellow or red,
We all have an image of him in our head.
We gather together to praise his name.
Whether it's Yahweh or Buddha or Allah, they're all the same.

To sum it all up, it's perfectly clear:
His providence can come through what you think, see or hear.
And, we all have a plan to be with him someday,
We will be there together in a united, universal way.

DECISION

(Emily Luther, West Central Elementary)

Decision! Decision!
All of the ideas and answers,
Clogging my head and ruining my vision!
I can't see the test,
I don't care,
It's a pest!
I can't see the next word,
It's all blurred!
I wish I were a magician,
A whoosh of my wand,
WAA-LAA test done.
But then again,
It's just easy addition.
Decision! Decision!

BEAR HUGS

(Erika Culp, West Central Elementary)

I like bear hugs
With lots of bear cubs
But I don't like bear tugs.

MESS

JUBILEE

City's annual party will be held in June

The annual Town & Country Jubilee has been tentatively scheduled for June 10-17, according to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The jubilee has been a fixture in August, but organizers decided an earlier date would help boost attendance.

Among the planned activities:

June 10 - Jubilee Junction and parade;

June 11 - City-wide church fellowship, Lions Club carnival;

June 12-16 - Pilot Club arts and crafts;

June 17 - Miss Hereford pageant, citywide garage sale, fireworks, Greg Black 10K Fun Run.

Several other events are under consideration and will be determined at a later date.

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

COMMENT

What makes a town stagnate or succeed?

(Editor's note: The following commentary was published in the High Plains Observer, a weekly newspaper published in Tucumcari, N.M.)

The ... observations are based on the work of Dr. Cornelia Flora of Kansas State University.

First, research has shown that in successful communities controversy was considered normal. It was expected. It was not treated as bad, wrong or abnormal — and neither were the people who presented it. Rather, controversy was regarded as a necessity of participatory governance.

Just the opposite was revealed in dying towns. People avoided controversy and refused to address issues. In addition, the public was antagonistic toward rules, regulations and the people who made them.

Second, people in successful towns held an objective view of politics. They did not side with someone out of friendship alone — neither did they oppose someone simply because that person was an educator, a business person, or a farmer.

On the other hand, dying communities personalized their politics — they couldn't separate the person from the job. They gave loyalty to people rather than issues, and the good old boy clique prevailed right up to the end.

Third, in prosperous small towns the emphasis in schools was on academics rather than sports. In dying towns, schools tried to hold people's interest by promoting loyalty to sports. However, when academic programs deteriorated, people moved their children to better schools.

Fourth, in successful communities there was a willingness to risk for the good of the town. Prosperous towns had enough success to want to risk — and they had success because they did risk.

Dying towns had neither. Fifth, successful towns had a willingness to tax themselves. They moved beyond want and desire into action.

Dying towns accurately identified needs, but that's where everything stopped. They thought someone else should pay the bill for their gain, and weren't willing to tax themselves.

Sixth, successful towns had the ability to expand: they made a place for more people — including those who were new to the community.

This was not true to dying towns, where townspeople would not share their power and authority with newcomers, and a small group held all leadership positions.

Seventh, successful towns also have the ability to network vertically as well as horizontally.

By contrast, learning in dying towns was all lateral. The citizens didn't want to learn from anyone who wasn't exactly like them.

And Eighth, successful towns were flexible. They disbursed community leadership, with many people involved in the work and mission of the community.

In dying communities a small clique of people controlled all the decision-making processes.

Just like his dad, Bush mangles the language

Donald Cooper

Like father, like son. When he was president, George Bush's use of the English language provided fodder for comedians. Now, as George W. Bush awaits his coronation as Republican presidential nominee, the Texas governor is showing that when it comes to the English language, he is his father's son — and is responsible for a cottage industry devoted to his malapropisms.

Slate, an on-line magazine, has been running a daily feature devoted to "Bushisms," as chief political correspondent Jacob Weisberg refers to the GOP hopeful's mangling of the English language.

Here are a few of the "Bushisms": "We want our teachers to be trained so they can meet the obligations, their obligations as teachers. We want them to know how to teach the science of reading. In order to make sure there's not this kind of federal cufflink." — At Fritsche Middle School, Milwaukee, March 30.

"Other Republican candidates may retort to personal attacks and negative ads." — Fund-raising letter from Bush, quoted in the Washington Post, March 24.

"It's evolutionary, going from governor to president, and this is a significant step, to be able to vote for yourself on the ballot, and I'll be able to do so next fall, I hope." — Interview with The Associated Press, March 8.

"It is not Reaganesque to support a tax plan that is Clinton in nature." — Los Angeles, Feb. 23.

"I don't have to accept their tenants. I was trying to convince those students to accept my tenants. And I reject any labeling me because I happened to go to the university." — NBC's "Today Show," Feb. 23.

"I understand small business growth. I was one." — New York Daily News, Feb. 19.

"The senator has got to understand if he's going to have — he can't have it both ways. He can't take the high horse and then claim the low road." — To reporters in Florence, S.C., Feb. 17.

"Really proud of it. A great campaign. And I'm really pleased with the organization and the thousands of South Carolinians that worked on my behalf. And I'm very gracious and humbled." — To Cokie Roberts, "This Week," Feb. 20.

"I don't want to win? If that were the case, why the heck am I on the bus 16 hours a day, shaking thousands of hands, giving hundreeds of speeches, getting pillared in the press and cartoons and still staying on message to win?" — Newsweek, Feb. 28.

"I thought how proud I am to be standing up beside my dad. Never did it occur to me that he would become the gist for cartoonists." — Newsweek, Feb. 28.

"How do you know if you don't measure if you have a system that simply suckles kids through?" — Explaining the need for educational accountability, Beaufort, S.C., Feb. 16.

"We ought to make the pie higher." — During South Carolina GOP debate, Feb. 15.

"I do not agree with this notion that somehow if I go to try to attract votes and to lead people toward a better tomorrow somehow I get subscribed to some — some doctrine gets subscribed to me." — "Meet the Press," Feb. 13.

"I think we need not only to eliminate the tollbooth to the middle class, I think we should knock down the tollbooth." — Nashua, N.H., as quoted by Gail Collins in the New York Times, Feb. 1.

"The most important job is not to be governor, or first lady in my case." — Pella, Iowa, as quoted by the San Antonio Express-News, Jan. 30.

"Will the highways on the Internet become more few?" — Concord, N.H., Jan. 29.

"This is Preservation Month. I appreciate preservation. It's what you do when you run for president. You gotta preserve." — Speaking during "Perseverance Month" at Fairgrounds Elementary School in Nashua, N.H., Jan. 28.

"I know how hard it is for you to put food on your family." — Greater Nashua, N.H., Chamber of Commerce, Jan. 27.

"When I was coming up, it was a dangerous world, and you knew exactly who they were. It was us vs. them, and it was clear who they were. Today, we are not so sure who they are, but we know they're there." — Iowa Western Community College, Jan. 21.

"This is still a dangerous world. It's a world of madmen and uncertainty and potential mental losses." — At a South Carolina oyster roast, Jan. 14.

"We must all hear the universal call to like your neighbor just like you like to be liked yourself." — At a South Carolina oyster roast, Jan. 14.

"Rarely is the question asked: Is our children learning?" — Florence, S.C., Jan. 11.

"I don't remember debates. I don't think we spent a lot of time debating it. Maybe we did, but I don't remember." — On discussions of the Vietnam War when he was an undergraduate at Yale, Washington Post, July 27, 1999.

You know, "Bush-speak" sounds more like that of a former vice president — Dan Quayle.

State cuts Insurance benchmark

Capital highlights

Ed Sterling
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Insurance Commissioner Jose Montemayor on April 10 reduced homeowners insurance benchmark rates by a statewide average of 6.6 percent.

Montemayor also ordered a 3.4 percent reduction in renters insurance statewide.

The insurance industry had requested a 6.6 percent increase, but the Texas Department of Insurance and the Office of Public Insurance Counsel, a state agency representing consumers, recommended rate reductions.

New benchmark rates will take effect June 15, but policy premiums may not change for every policy holder, because rate-regulated companies set their own rates within a 30 percent range above or below benchmark in each of the 23 rating territories in the state.

Plan cuts health care costs

Needy families will pay no more than $18 a month or $10 for office visits under the states new Childrens Health Insurance Program (CHIP). Prescriptions would cost $1 to $10.

Applications are available now through the Texas Health and Human Services Commission.

The program is open to children under 19 whose families have an annual income of no more than twice the poverty level, or $34,100 for a family of four.

Nearly one-fourth of Texas 5.8 million children do not have health insurance, and Texas ranks 49th in the percentage of children with health insurance, ahead of only Arizona. As many as 471,000 of Texas uninsured children are expected to be eligible for the program.

Court denies abortion request

The Texas Supreme Court last week upheld a lower courts decision denying a bypass and ordering Jane Doe 4 to tell her parents before getting an abortion.

The 17-year-old high school student said she didnt want to tell her parents because her older sister was thrown out of the house several years ago for getting pregnant.

The minor did not prove as a matter of law that she is mature and sufficiently well-informed to have an abortion without notifying her parents, the court found.

Texas Exile team named

Texas Attorney General John Cornyn last week appointed a team of special prosecutors to handle illegal gun cases in state and federal courts with the goal of obtaining the maximum penalty in each case.

The appointments are part of Texas Exile, a program that has resulted in 197 arrests, 115 indictments, 10 convictions and 632 guns confiscated statewide since December.

Special prosecutors named by Cornyn include Michael McCaul, Austin; John Briggs, El Paso; Michael Gill, Fort Worth; Ashley Chapman, Houston; Robb Catalano, Dallas; Jay Hileman, Houston; Gerald Matheny, San Antonio; and Jennifer Lowery, Beaumont.

Other highlights

Gov. George W. Bush has proclaimed the week of April 10-14 Environmental Crime Prevention Week to promote awareness of the impact of environmental crime on Texas and what local, state and federal agencies are doing to combat it.

A report released last week by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights criticized Texas, California and Florida for eliminating affirmative action in college admissions. Texas ended its affirmative action programs under a federal court order in 1996. House Higher Education Committee Chairwoman Irma Rangel, D-Kingsville, pointed out, in response to the report.

Ford Motor Co. is asking an administrative law judge to let the automaker reopen a used-car Internet site that the state shut down for violating franchise laws. Texas Division of Motor Vehicles officials said state law prohibits the direct selling of cars online by Ford or anyone else and only dealers licensed by the state can sell cars in Texas.

Texas Democratic and Republican parties are courting corporate sponsorship for their upcoming state conventions. The GOP state convention, with as many as 18,000 delegates and alternates, is among the largest political gatherings in the country. Estimated cost for the event June 15-17 in Houston: $600,000.

Texas Health Commissioner Reyn Archer apologized last week for statements he made in interviews with the Austin American-Statesman and the New York Times. Archer made comments construed as insensitive regarding the Hispanic community and teen pregnancy.

Maintenance pays off

Dianna F. Dandridge

It's that season again. And, I don't just mean spring or Easter, but lawnmower season.

I say lawnmower rather than lawnmowing simply because I spend so much time working on the mower.

Last summer my son ventured into the wide world of free enterprise and started mowing yards. He's an industrious little beaver and does most of the work himself. Sometimes, if the grass is high or if it's terribly hot, I'll help him, but the jobs are his.

Unfortunately, because he is so much of a go-getter it means I wind up doing what I hate more than anything — getting my hands greasy.

If I help him mow a lawn, I usually wear good leather gloves so that doesn't bother me, but the maintenance on the mower can't be done while wearing gloves. Joshua hasn't quite mastered all the little tricks of keeping a temperamental 3.5-horsepower, pull-start engine running.

At the close of last season, I told Joshua he needed to purchase a clean air filter and a new spark plug so I could show him how to do year-end maintenance.

He either heard me and ignored me or just plain forgot about it and because I too get busy, I failed to remind him. So maintenance was delayed.

This year my son has decided to continue his summer venture and this past week he had his first mowing job. Yes, the grass was tall and wet. Yes, he got a little help. And, yes, the job was made more difficult because the routine maintenance was left undone and the mower had to cough and choke its way through the grass. Mowing the front, back and alleyway to one little house took more than a gallon of gas.

I guess I should feel sorry for my son, but he's the one who, for whatever reason, failed to buy the stuff to keep the mower running at its best.

I let him huff and puff his way through the yard. I told him again, he needed a new filter and a new spark plug. When he got paid, he decided it was best to do as I said and go get the stuff.

Then we got home and the real fun started. As always, he tipped the mower on its side and scraped the packed wet grass out onto the porch. Before I could remind him, he retrieved my good kitchen broom and pushed the cuttings away, leaving wet grass stains on the end of my broom.

Why didn't he go get the push broom out of the garage? Your guess is at least as good as mine.

Without further ado, I tried to show him how to do all the little chores that keep the mower going, so he doesn't have to do quite so much huffing and puffing and also to save on gas.

First things first. The gas tank was already empty so we didn't have to drain it, but we still had to do the oil change. He tipped the mower the rest of way over and drained the oil. Boy, was it dirty. I had to explain (again) how important it is to keep the appropriate amount of clean oil in that little engine.

I think he got the message. Next came the air filter. Not hard, but definitely yucky! I pulled out the old filter and pointed out if the machine can't get enough air, it can't run properly.

He curled up his nose and delicately, with only his thumb and forefinger, carried away the dirty filter.

Then came the spark plug. No problem. No problem except dear old Mom picked up the wrong plug and didn't feel like going back to the store for a replacement.

Oh well, I still know how to get by in a pinch. I sent him after a piece of sandpaper and showed him how he can get a few more miles out of an old plug.

I scraped and cleaned the gunk and carbon buildup from the plug connection, used some canned air to blow out the crevice, replaced the plug and tightened the plug wire.

I refilled the oil tank with fresh 30-weight oil. I checked the level and after I was satisfied everything was where it needed to be, I pulled the starter and the little mower roared into life.

No coughing, no sputtering, no choking and dying from lack of air.

My son was so happy.

"Boy, now I can mow some more lawns, maybe I don't have to replace the old plug. You made it run just like new," he said.

I looked down at my hands, covered in grease, smeared with unnamed goo and smelling of gasoline. How I hate lawnmower season.

My poor hands really need a trip to the manicurist, unfortunately it just wouldn't do any good. I'll have to do it all over again, next go 'round.

'VEEP-STAKES'

After all the talk, the candidates will be picked the old-time way

When the vice presidential talent scouts are done, after the prospects have been checked for hidden flaws, that modern style of seeking No. 2 candidates will yield to the way it has always worked, with Gov. George W. Bush and Vice President Al Gore casting the only votes that count.

So the current lists are pure guesswork, speculation about the obvious, or longer-shot but possible candidates in each party. There are no invisible political figures to be chosen by surprise.

The nominees will come from a roster that includes governors, where the Republicans dominate the list; Congress, most likely the Senate; the Cabinet on the Democratic side, or party figures who have served in those roles.

So it doesn't take inside information to come up with names, especially when the candidates and the people around them can gain by adding names to the list, not by ruling anybody out.

Gore has former Secretary of State Warren Christopher looking over the prospects for his ticket. Christopher did the same thing for Bill Clinton in 1992, when Gore got the nomination. Bush is to set up a similar Republican operation soon.

Now that presidential nominations are clinched early in the election year — never earlier than in 2000 except when presidents were seeking renomination unopposed — vice presidential speculation becomes the only suspense left.

It keeps talking heads talking. Politicians allied with potential candidates play, too, trying to promote their choices. But obliquely. To do so overtly is bad form, and besides, it doesn't work.

The advance work now devoted to checking vice presidential candidates began after the 1972 Democratic mess in which nominee George McGovern chose Sen.

Tom Eagleton only hours before his choice had to go to the convention for approval. Only later, too late, did McGovern learn that his last-hour selection had been hospitalized for mental illness. After trying to fend off the problem, McGovern changed running mates.

Until then, McGovern said after his landslide defeat, there had been no real background checks on vice presidential nominees. There was an assumption that because these were widely known political figures, their prior campaigns would have turned up any major problems.

That changed after 1972, although even the background checks that are customary now don't always turn up all the political trouble spots that emerge in the glare of a national campaign.

385 project progressing

■ Contractors work their way southward toward Park Avenue

Contractors for the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) continue their work on a U.S. Highway 385 project to replace asphalt pavement with a new concrete surface. The project extends from the north city limits of Hereford southward to U.S. Highway 60.

"The contractors are working south toward Park Avenue right now," TxDOT project inspector Daniel McFaul said. "We started excavating this week just north of Park Avenue. Drivers who want to access businesses like Green Gables Antiques, the Shackelford Insurance Agency, Custom Cleaners, E-Z Start Auto Insurance and the Hunan Restaurant should go north on U.S. 385, turn left on Vogele, left on Western, and then left on Plains Street."

Barricades are up along U.S. Highway 385 (25 Mile Avenue) as the state replaces the asphalt surface with concrete.

"We thank the motorists for their patience," McFaul said. "But we have to remind them every day that it's a pretty large work zone and they need to be careful."

A TxDOT employee in Fort

Worth died Thursday from injuries he sustained when he was hit by a vehicle while working on Interstate 20.

Clyde Pitman, 50, a maintenance technician with TxDOT, died after being hospitalized for injuries sustained in a work zone crash Wednesday afternoon.

Each year, approximately 700 people die and 5,000 are injured in more than 20,000 work zone crashes nationwide. More than 95 percent of the people killed or injured in highway work zones nationwide are motorists.

Driving at a speed appropriate for the conditions, obeying reduced work zone speed limits, keeping a safe distance from other vehicles, staying alert for workers and being patient are ways motorists can prevent crashes, according to transportation officials.

"The safety of our employees and the traveling public is our top concern," TxDOT Executive Director Wes Heald said.

Free-speech group presents 'Muzzles'

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The Clinton administration, New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Texas Gov. George W. Bush's presidential campaign have received Jefferson Muzzles, tongue-in-cheek awards given by a free-speech watchdog.

The Thomas Jefferson Center for the Protection of Free Expression awards the Muzzles annually to those who, in the opinion of the center's board, are guilty of censorship.

The Bush citation Friday stems from a complaint his campaign filed last April with the Federal Election Commission about a Web site that satirized Bush's official site. The campaign claims computer consultant Zack Exley should adhere to rules governing political action committees because his Web site advocated Bush's defeat. The FEC has not ruled.

The Clinton administration received a Muzzle for continuing its "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy on gays in the military.

Giuliani, who last year became the first recipient of a Lifetime Muzzle, was on the list for the third time for trying to withdraw city funding from the Brooklyn Museum because he was offended by the contents of an exhibit.

Muzzles also were awarded to:

- CBS News for electronically making a NBC billboard in Times Square appear to be a CBS billboard in its coverage of New Year's Eve festivities.

- The Virginia General Assembly for prohibiting the use of a Confederate battle flag logo on the Sons of Confederate Veterans' specialty license plates.

- Lorain County, Ohio, prosecutor Gregory White for bringing criminal charges against a woman who photographed her 8-year-old daughter taking a bath.

- Midland, Texas, school officials for barring a student from graduation ceremonies because the student and some friends took an off-campus picture that embarrassed the principal.

- Ponder, Texas, school officials for calling the sheriff after a seventh-grader turned in a class-assigned horror story that school officials considered threatening because it named other students.

- The Federal Bureau of Investigation for opposing a filmmaker's attempt to post on the Internet a fictional film suggesting the government might seek to foment a Y2K riot at Times Square on New Year's Eve.

Numerous groups offer scholarships

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1418 in Hereford plans to award $2,000 in scholarships to qualified Hereford High School graduates.

The scholarships will be awarded to students who plan to attend either college or a trade school.

Scholarship applications are available at the HHS counselor's office. For more information, call Earl Stagner, VFW scholarship chairman, at 364-2231.

Press Associations
Applications are being accepted for two $2,000 scholarships awarded through the West Texas Press and Texas Press associations.

The contest is open to applicants in the area served by WTPA member newspapers and whose career goals include working with a community newspaper. Hereford students are eligible to apply for the scholarships through the Hereford Brand's membership in WTPA.

Each scholarship will be divided into two payments of $1,000 for two semesters. The winners must be enrolled in at least three hours of college or university journalism courses each semester that the scholarship is awarded.

Each applicant must fill out an application form and write an essay based on the theme "My Future and Career Plans in Community Journalism."

Prospective applicants in Deaf Smith County may secure a form at the news office of the Hereford Brand, 313 N. Lee.

Applications and essays should be sent to Mark A. Jordan WTPA Scholarship Chairman, P.O. Box 149, Decatur, Texas 76234, and be postmarked no later than June 15, 2000.

Healthcare Foundation
The Deaf Smith Health Foundation Board of Directors is now accepting applications for the 2000 Fall Semester. Scholarships will be awarded to local students who are already enrolled in or have an acceptance from an accredited ancillary medical field.

Deadline for returned applications and required material is May 1.

And the process is not really a talent hunt. The people involved are not strangers to each other. There are always political variables that can't be factored in until the time comes to choose.

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge, a swing state Republican with the right credentials for a Bush ticket, makes that point amid the recent speculation that he is a prime prospect. He says it is too early for meaningful speculation. "It is the politics of June or July that will dictate the choice," Ridge said recently.

Even Jimmy Carter, who broke from the old pattern when he methodically checked, chose and disclosed his top prospects for vice president in 1976, said later that he would have played it differently and shopped among names for No. 2 if he'd had to in order to clinch his own nomination.

He didn't, and his systematic search led to his man, Walter F. Mondale, one of the seven finalists Carter interviewed for the job. Mondale became vice president after shunning a White House campaign that year, saying he didn't want to live in Holiday Inns. He rescinded that objection to campaign life when Carter chose him for the ticket. Gore also became vice president after ruling out a 1992 presidential campaign.

Bush's president father, on the other hand, ran with Ronald Reagan in 1980 after a persistent campaign against him. It included a line Bush had to swallow, his description of Reagan's program as "voodoo economics."

Rivals have wound up vice presidential nominees even after saying, as Sen. John McCain has repeatedly, that they weren't interested in No. 2.

Lyndon B. Johnson said he wouldn't trade his vote for a gavel, but he did, as vice president to John F. Kennedy. Nelson A. Rockefeller, whose long quest for the presidency always came up short, said he wasn't designed to be standby equipment. But the New York governor accepted appointment as vice president to Gerald R. Ford in 1974, after Watergate.

Kennedy had his own vice presidential moment, and won politically by losing at the 1956 national convention. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, left the vice presidential nomination to an open convention vote, and Kennedy, then a little-known Massachusetts senator, was a candidate. It took two ballots and he led, but short of a majority, at one point. In the end, Sen. Estes Kefauver was nominated, to run on the losing ticket.

That convention contest put Kennedy's name on the national Democratic roster, and was the beginning of his climb to the White House.

Getting down to BUSINESS

MUST WIN

They are in a must win situation. After losing in Caprock 14-6 on Thursday, the Hereford Varsity baseball team faces the task of trying to win their last five games of district play in order to win the playoffs. The Herd is currently in fifth place in district with a 1-4 district record. Overall, the Whitefaces are 9-10 and look to improve this afternoon as they take on the Dumas Demons at Whiteface Field at 1 p.m. Andrew Villarreal (above) crosses home plate on Thursday during the Dumas loss. The team will attempt to regroup against the Demons who are in a second place tie with Caprock. Both teams have a 3-2 district record. Pampa still leads district 3-4A with a 5-0 record and are 15-5-1 overall. The Harvesters look to repeat as champs again this year. The Whitefaces tried to regoup (right) Thursday but couldn't score enough runs to get back into the game.

Cleveland still has no answer for Rangers

■ Texas still unafraid of Indians' potent bats

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baseball's schedule makers did it to the Cleveland Indians again.

Opening the season with a nine-game, coast-to-coast road trip — their longest in 94 years — was bad enough. But when the Indians finally got home, they had to face the Texas Rangers in their home opener.

What, the New York Yankees were busy?

Texas and New York are the only visiting teams with a winning record at Jacobs Field, and the Rangers wrecked Cleveland's home opener Friday with a 7-2 victory.

Rick Helling (2-0) allowed four hits in eight innings and David Segui, Rafael Palmeiro and Ivan Rodriguez homered for the Rangers, who prevented the Indians from beginning a new era of baseball in Cleveland with a victory.

"You want to do better on opening day, especially this one," Indians catcher Sandy Alomar said. "But it was a boring game for us. We didn't pitch good, and we didn't hit."

Helling was the main reason for Cleveland's hitting woes.

After giving up a two-run homer to Omar Vizquel in the first, Helling didn't let another runner get to second and retired 18 of the final 21.

The right-hander entered the game with a 7.84 ERA at Jacobs Field, his highest at any AL ballpark, but once he got past the first inning, Helling was in total control. With the ball carrying well to right, he stayed low in the strike zone and finished with two walks and nine strikeouts.

"I don't want to pat myself on the back," Helling said. "But when you face a lineup like that, if you can throw up seven zeros in a row, you're doing a pretty good job. I haven't had much success against those guys."

Rangers manager Johnny Oates said it was the best he's seen Helling in two years.

"I'm not sure I've ever seen anyone pitch that well against that lineup," Oates said. "He was in command."

The Indians began their 100th season on the road by going 7-2 on a trip that included opening day matchups in Baltimore and Tampa Bay. Despite having a day off Thursday, Helling made the Indians look tired.

"He went at our hitters hard," Indians rookie manager Charlie Manuel said. "He got ahead in the count and then used changeups. He hit the outside corner real well. Travis Fryman came back to the dugout and said, 'Watch out, boys. He's on that outside corner.'"

On a cloudless, 70-degree day, Cleveland's opener began sentimentally as former owner Richard Jacobs was introduced to the 374th consecutive sell-out crowd at the ballpark bearing his name.

Jacobs had to be talked into taking part in the pregame festivities by Larry Dolan, who purchased the Indians from him this winter for $323 million.

Standing alone in the middle of the diamond, Jacobs, who owned the Indians since 1986 and was responsible for Cleveland's baseball renaissance, was visibly moved when the crowd saluted him with a long standing ovation.

"He sincerely enjoyed it," Dolan said. "I thought he deserved that moment."

In a symbolic passing of the torch, the 74-year-old Jacobs then bounced his pitch to Dolan, who made a nice bare-handed stop.

Indians starter Dave Burba didn't pitch much better.

Burba (1-1) gave up six runs and nine hits in four-plus innings. He walked three and struck out four. During Cleveland's six-game winning streak, Indians starters went 5-0 with a 2.72 ERA.

"The majority of my pitches were up in the strike zone," Burba said. "When you are fighting yourself on the mound, you are going to have problems."

The Indians observed a moment of silence before the game for Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Lemon, who died Jan. 11. The Rangers are 17-13 at the Jake since '94. The Yankees are 21-9 while Cleveland's Jim Thome, who stranded 10 runners at Oakland on Monday night when the A's played three infielders on the right side, unsuccessfully tried to bunt his way on in the first when the Rangers shifted against the pull hitter. Reliever Tom Martin committed the Indians' second error.

'Horns forfeit game

The Caprock Longhorns forfeited Friday's softball game against the Lady Whitefaces giving the Herd its first ever softball playoff birth.

The team stands alone in second place behind district champion Dumas. In order to take second place Hereford needed Borger to beat Pampa on Friday. Borger won 6-5.

"We are so second place," head coach Penny Summers said. "We have made Hereford softball history, and we have second place outright."

Summers said this year's

Mule deer season to be expanded in South Plains Counties

Mule deer hunting opportunities in several Texas South Plains counties are being expanded with revisions of Texas hunting and fishing regulations that will take effect September 1.

An abbreviated mule deer season was opened a couple of years ago in several counties in the "sandy country" to our south that is more commonly thought of in terms of cotton and sandhill cranes than deer hunting.

Interest in hunting the sparse and well-scattered population of muleys inhabiting this sandhill and shinnery oak country perked-up quickly—and so did deer lease prices—when trophy-caliber animals were harvested during the initial South Plains season.

Now, a 16-day mule deer season will be opened in Cochran County, and mule deer season will be extended to 16 days in Andrews County west of U.S. Highway 385, along with Bailey, Hockley, Lamb, Terry, and Yoakum counties.

Under these new regulations, the bag limit will be two deer, to include no more than one buck, with harvesting of antlerless deer by permit only. There will be no separate archery season in this South Plains area.

The mule deer population in this sandyland belt is sparse—as little as one deer per 100 acres or so in some places, yet the deer can become concentrated around "candy" habitat such as an irrigated hay or alfalfa fields, and fool you. A mass of deer piled-up in a small area gives the impression that a huge population of mule deer is present.

The Sportsman's Den

By Jim Stelert

As rugged as they look, mule deer are vulnerable to hunting pressure, and unless some restraint and management are exercised, it's easy to damage the genetic base of a herd by over-harvest.

That's the one concern with an expanded South Plains season—landowners/game managers will have to make sure that over-harvest does not occur in this new Texas mule deer hunting territory.

Another hunting and fishing regulation revision to go into effect in September seeks to address the super-abundant white-tailed deer population in the Edwards Plateau.

The bag limit is being increased to five deer, to include no more than two bucks, and a special 14-day late season for spike bucks and antlerless deer is being implemented in 25 counties in the Edwards Plateau.

Provisions affecting public hunting in Texas will also take effect this fall. Among them are a lowering of the minimum age required to supervise youth engaged in hunting activities from 21 to 18, and waiving of applicable regular permit fees for activities other than hunting and fishing for Annual Public Hunting Permit, Limited Public Use Permit, or Texas Conservation Passport holders.

The Texas Parks & Wildlife Department is seeking public comment on proposals for hunting and fishing licenses.

Included in the proposals is an effort to make the Texas hunting license less bulky and cumbersome to carry around by making mule deer tags an optional, no-cost addition to the printed hunting license. The idea is to shorten the current license and provide more options for future license formats.

Another item up for public comment is one of those dreaded "temporary" increases in license and stamp fees. This one is a five-year increase in the price of the Saltwater Sportfishing Stamp from $7 to $10, the idea being that the proceeds would be used to fund commercial fishing license buybacks. The $3 per stamp increase is projected to bring in $1.5 million annually to reduce commercial shrimp, crab, and finfish activity in Texas bays. Studies particularly site the shrimp industry, claiming that excessive pressure from the commercial shrimping fleet is damaging the resource. License buybacks are being used as a means to reduce the size of the shrimping fleet through voluntary sales of commercial shrimping licenses back to TP&WD.

The Parks & Wildlife Commission will act on the proposals at their June 1 public meeting, and if the regulations are adopted they will be in effect for the 2000-2001 license year.

Lakers run through Sacramento, 121-114

■ Los Angeles continues remarkable run before heading into the NBA playoffs

By The Associated Press

The last NBA playoff spot is Orlando's, at least for now. There's still a big showdown Monday night that'll make the biggest difference in the Eastern Conference race between the Magic and the Milwaukee Bucks.

"I still think it will all come down to that game in Orlando on Monday night," Bucks coach George Karl said after his team lost a tight one, 109-106 to Charlotte in overtime Friday night.

Milwaukee's loss, combined with Orlando's 96-88 victory at New Jersey, gave the Magic a one-game lead over the Bucks.

The Magic must finish with a better record than Milwaukee to get the East's last playoff spot because the Bucks have already clinched the season series — and the tiebreaker — between the teams.

In other games, the Lakers beat Sacramento 121-114. Toronto drubbed the Knicks 86-71, Indiana edged Miami 105-101, Minnesota outlasted Vancouver 104-94 in double overtime, Dallas crushed Seattle 117-103, Philadelphia defeated Atlanta 104-92, Phoenix downed the Los Angeles Clippers 112-88, Boston topped Chicago 106-91 and Denver downed Golden State 105-92.

Darrell Armstrong scored six of his 23 points in the final 1:17 for Orlando, which snapped a two-game losing streak.

Ron Mercer added 22 points, John Amaechi hit two key free throws with 2:26 to go and Ben Wallace, playing on a bad foot, grabbed 20 rebounds as the Magic handed the Nets their season-high ninth straight loss.

"We were struggling, we needed a win and Darrell Armstrong saved us," coach Doc Rivers said.

Hornets 109, Bucks 106. At Milwaukee, Eddie Jones hit seven 3-pointers, including one that tied the game with 23.9 seconds left in regulation.

Milwaukee had two chances to win in the final seconds of regulation, but Glenn Robinson missed an off-balance jumper and Scott Williams' tip at the buzzer hung on the rim before falling off. In overtime, the Hornets scored on their first five possessions before weathering one more comeback attempt.

"We should have put it away, but we have to let it go now," Milwaukee's Tim Thomas said. "This isn't over. It's still in our hands."

Lakers 121, Kings 114
At Los Angeles, Shaquille O'Neal scored 41 points and had 16 rebounds while showing no ill effects from the tender left ankle that sidelined him for a week.

O'Neal played 44 minutes and went 16-of-29 from the floor and 9-of-15 from the free-throw line. He scored 18 of his team's 27 points in the fourth quarter as the Lakers held off the Kings, who beat them once and played them close in their three other games this season.

Raptors 86, Knicks 71

At Toronto, Vince Carter scored 34 points and the Raptors showed they're ready for a possible first-round matchup against the Knicks with a convincing victory. Carter shot a stellar 14-for-19 from the field, making an assortment of long-range jumpers.

"He knows that we know that we don't want to play him (in the first round of the playoffs)," Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy said.

The Raptors won the season series 3-1, with all the victories coming by decisive margins.

Pacers 105, Heat 101
At Miami, Reggie Miller had 26 points to lead Indiana in scoring for the first time in more than a month, and the Pacers closed in on the Eastern Conference title.

The Heat dropped their third game in a row, their longest losing streak since December. Tim Hardaway didn't dress because of inflammation in his left foot, and Alonzo Mourning didn't start because he overslept and missed the morning shootaround.

The only way the Heat can win the conference is if they sweep their final three games and the Pacers finish with three consecutive losses. Miami remains one game ahead of New York in the Atlantic Division race.

Timberwolves 104, Grizzlies 94, 2OT

At Vancouver, Terrell Brandon hit his first three shots of the second overtime and finished with 20 points. Kevin Garnett also scored 20, and Minnesota's reserves outscored Vancouver's 36-0.

Mavericks 117, SuperSonics 108

At Dallas, Erick Strickland scored 15 of his 21 points while Dallas was rolling to a 23-point halftime lead. Vin Baker's 25 points and Lazaro Borrell's 15 paced the SuperSonics, who've lost four of five.

Suns 112, Clippers 88
At Phoenix, Rodney Rogers scored 22, Shawn Marion 20 and Cliff Robinson 17 for the Suns, who have a two-game lead over San Antonio with three to play in the race for the No. 4 spot in the West.

76ers 104, Hawks 92
At Atlanta, Allen Iverson shook off a sore elbow and scored 27 points, and Tyrone Hill added 20 points and 10 rebounds as the 76ers sent the Hawks to their season-high ninth straight loss.

Celtics 106, Bulls 91
At Boston, Danny Fortson had 21 points and 10 rebounds as the Celtics avoided becoming the only team to lose more than twice to Chicago.

Nuggets 105, Warriors 92
At Denver, Raef LaFrentz had 23 points, 12 rebounds and six blocked shots and Nick Van Exel added 22 points while holding Larry Hughes to 16 on 7-for-28 shooting.

team will always be remembered for its playoff run, and her team excited to be in the post-season.

"They are so excited," Summers said. "We will know Monday who we will play."

Summers said the two teams the Lady Whitefaces have a chance at facing are either Levelland or Canyon depending on what happens this weekend. Levelland faces Randall today, and Canyon is at Frenship. Summers said she feels a game against Canyon would help promote a good area rivalry.

"We hope to play Canyon," Summers said. "We have a rivalry with them, and we would like to play them."

Summers said the team will find out on Monday who they will play.

Caprock forfeited Friday's district game because of Sunday's tragic drive-by shooting that killed two Amarillo youths. One of those youths was only 16-years-old, and he was a member of Caprock High. Friday's game was originally pushed back to 5:30 p.m. because of his funeral but only eight players showed up for the bus ride to Hereford.

The Lady Whitefaces will conclude their regular season this afternoon when they face Fritch in a non-district game.

Summers said the game will be good for her team as they get ready for the playoffs.

"They have a good pitcher that pitches fast," Summers said. "We know from here on out all we will see is fast pitching."

The game begins at 1 p.m. at the Kids Inc field.

WHAT DID THEY PAY?

Clintons, Gores release their tax returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton paid $92,104 in federal income taxes last year and contributed $39,200 to charity, according to tax returns released today. Vice President Al Gore and his wife, Tipper, paid Uncle Sam $59,178 in taxes and gave $15,000 to charity.

The Clintons' gross income included the president's $200,000 salary and $185,857 in capital gains, dividend and interest income from their blind investment trust and from a charitable fund established in 1912 for presidential spouses.

The Clintons reported $416,039 in adjusted gross income for 1999, about $88,000 less than they did a year

House statement. The Clintons claimed $81,358 in itemized deductions, including the donations to charity and $31,931 in state and local income taxes and real estate taxes. Now private homeowners in Chappaqua, N.Y., they also claimed a home mortgage deduction of $10,714.

After these deductions, the Clintons wound up overpaying their federal taxes by $2,278 — but instead of claiming a refund they asked that it be applied to this year's taxes.

the top 2 percent income bracket. It consisted mainly of the vice president's salary of $175,400, as well as interest, business income and capital gains totaling $44,516.

The $15,000 in charitable contributions was almost exactly the same amount donated by the Gores in 1998. They were roundly criticized in 1997 for contributing only $353 to charity, after giving away more than $35,000 the year before.

GEORGE W. BUSH Seeks an extension.

Bush needs more time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following his usual practice, George W. Bush will seek an extension for filing his federal income tax return while awaiting information from a blind trust that manages his assets, an aide said today.

On Monday, the Republican presidential contender will make an estimated tax payment to cover any money owed to the government, said spokeswoman Mindy Tucker. He will also report how much money he gave to charity in 1999.

He will release his tax returns when they are filed, Tucker said.

Bush is paid $115,345 annually as governor of Texas. Since he has been campaigning almost full-time this year, he has decided to forgo his salary on days when he is out of the state, turning the money over to Lt. Gov. Rick Perry who takes over in his absence.

Since taking office in 1995, Bush has had his assets managed by a blind trust. Such an entity invests money without its beneficiary's knowledge, a step taken to avoid charges that a person in a position of power is taking actions to benefit his financial holdings.

In a federal disclosure form filed last May, Bush reported that he owned more than $7 million in U.S. Treasury notes and had a blind trust worth more than $1 million.

He also reported he had two money market accounts with a total value of between $600,000 and $1.25 million, three checking accounts with a total value of between $3,000 and $45,000, and no debts.

Such filings are required of all presidential candidates.

Country music looking to Chicks for a boost

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — With Shania Twain and Garth Brooks staying home this year, the country music industry is hoping the first top-billed tour of the Dixie Chicks can boost sluggish concert ticket and album sales.

"The industry is going to be watching (the Dixie Chicks) tour really close," said Ray Waddell of Amusement Business magazine. "It's like a snowball rolling down a hill. If somebody does good, it increases excitement about others."

Country music concerts collected 16 percent less gross revenue in 1999 than in 1998 and attendance was down 28 percent, according to Amusement Business.

Sales of country music peaked at about $2 billion in 1995 when Brooks helped make the genre trendy. But sales were down 4.5 percent in 1999.

Country music's market share of album sales has declined to 14.1 percent, according to the Recording Industry Association of America's 1998 Consumer Profile. That's still second — rock is first at 25.7 percent — but country's share has declined each year since peaking at 18.7 percent in 1993.

Twain was last year's top attraction, but she doesn't plan to tour in 2000. Brooks is staying home for a second straight year.

"You don't have a lot of country acts trying to be arena headliners now," Waddell said. "They're playing casinos, fairs and festivals, or looking for a strong tour to jump on as a lower-billed act."

That means the Dixie Chicks will be looked to get fans back in the stands. George Strait will also head an annual stadium tour and Tim McGraw and his wife Faith Hill are expected to announce joint concerts later this year.

The Texas trio — Natalie Maines, Emily Robison and Martie Seidel — have held off headlining concerts despite selling more than 10 million of their last two albums. "Fly" has been the best-selling country music album for more than 20 weeks.

The group starts a 70-city North American tour in June starting with five shows in Canada. Tickets go on sale April 22 for six of the American dates. The tour ends in November.

The group will promote the tour via humorous television commercials showing the singers adjusting to life on the road by doing things like smashing banjos in their hotel room and pumping gasoline into their limousine.

Patty Griffin will open most of the Chicks' dates. At other shows, either Willie Nelson or Ricky Skaggs will be on the bill.

Toujours Amis Club holds installation of new officers

Toujours Amis Study Club met April 11 in the home of Heather Hicks and was served raspberry tea prior to its installation of officers. Hostesses were Angela Baker, Kamille Urbanczyk and Hicks.

Installed by outgoing president Marsha Winget were Lisa Formby, president; Debbie Foster, vice president; Sheri Blankenship, treasurer; Lauri Paetzold, secretary/reporter; Sarah Lawson, historian; and Winget, parliamentarian.

The theme for installation was famous quotes.

In other business, it was reported that the project committee will soon decide on donations to various local projects and sign-up sheets were distributed for workers at the booth for Town and Country Jubilee in June.

Members went next door to the Urbanczyk home and were served cheesecake and sparkling punch.

Those present were Kim

Bigham, Cindy Black, Melinda Bridge, Trish Brown, Brandy Charlesworth, Christi Conger, Sally Nolen, Becky Reinart, Jill Savoini, Amy Schueler, Donna West, Amy Yosten, Tammy Yenser, Baker, Blankenship, Formby, Foster, Hicks, Lawson, Paetzold, Urbanczyk and Winget.

The next meeting will be May 9 and will close the club year with revealing of secret pals.

Norsworthy wins vote

Speakers at the April 6 meeting of Hereford Toastmasters were Ryan Norsworthy and David Castillo.

Norsworthy's presentation of "The Fan" won the vote for best speaker. Jigger Rowland served as evaluator.

Castillo spoke on "The Mind's Eye" and was evaluated by Margaret Del Toro, who won the vote for best evaluator.

Del Toro presided at the meeting with Daniel Morriset leading the pledge and Wayne Winget giving the invocation.

Toastmaster was Sharon Cramer, timer was Dan Hall, AH counter was Tronica Owens and grammarian was Rowland.

Clark Andrews served as wordmaster and introduced the word "infuriate" which means to make furious or enrage.

Morriset was topicmaster and the topic speakers were Del Toro, Rowland, Owens, Andrews and Don Tardy. Tardy was selected best topic speaker.

One guest, Adolfo Del Toro, attended the meeting.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I adore my husband. We have been married for eight years, and have two beautiful daughters. We feel our marriage is unique, and that God brought us together. So, what is the problem? My husband would like sex every night. Once a week would be enough for me. With two young children, I do not have the energy I once had, and like most women, my sex drive has decreased since the children came along.

My husband has done everything he can think of to "romance" me — he is generous with the compliments, brings home small gifts, gives me delightful massages, and plays soft music. Nothing seems to work. Most women would die for a husband like this. Do you have any advice, Ann? I want to be the best wife I can be for this wonderful man. What can I do to promote a stronger sex drive? What is wrong with me? — Letting Him Down in N.C.

Dear N.C.: Nothing is "wrong" with you. You are just tired, like most women who have two children under 7 years of age. You need to make arrangements with a family member, close friend or paid housekeeper to take care of the children for a weekend, so you and your husband can have a mini-vacation to renew your romance. This should be done periodically. If you cannot manage a weekend, one night in a motel will do. Please follow through on this. It could make a world of difference. P.S.: Meanwhile, how about a compromise — three times a week?

Dear Ann Landers: Every day in this country, 13 people die waiting for human organs to become available for transplantation. More than 65,000 Americans are currently on the national waiting list for life-saving organ transplants. Each month, nearly 2,000 new people are added to the list of patients in need of a kidney, liver, pancreas, heart or pair of lungs. Transplant surgery is highly successful, but the drastic shortage of organs is rapidly taking lives.

April 16-23 is National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week — a time for all Americans to think about organ donation, and take action. The process is simple. Sign an organ donor card, and discuss this decision with family members, since family consent is necessary at the time of donation.

For more information about organ donation, or a free organ donor card, readers can write to the National Kidney Foundation, Box AL, 30 E. 33rd St., New York, N.Y. 10016, or call 1-800-622-9010 (www.kidney.org). — Frederick A. Herber, Chairman, National Kidney Foundation

Dear Readers: This is Ann talking. Please heed Mr. Herbert's plea. You never know when your life or that of a loved one might depend on a transplanted organ. Sign up now, and carry a donor card with you at all times.

Dear Ann Landers: A reader recently wrote that her parakeets died after she used the self-cleaning feature on her oven. My eyes widened when I read that letter. I, too, have a parakeet and a self-cleaning oven, but have not yet found the time to clean my new appliance. Her warning probably saved my bird's life.

Now, I would like to repay the favor. I was informed at the pet store that it is also wise to avoid nonstick frying pans, because when cooking, the fumes they emit can be toxic to birds. Will you please pass on the word, Ann. — Bird Lover in Ontario, Canada

Dear Ontario: Consider it passed. Meanwhile, I never cease to be pleased and gratified at the way my readers watch out for one another. We are like a loving family. Bless you all.

Water safety instructors are needed. Instructor classes are May 4-7 at the Hereford Aquatic Center. This class will certify instructors to teach American Red Cross swim lessons. For more information, please call.

The Red Cross annual membership drive has already started! First National Bank of Hereford, First Bank Southwest, Friona State Bank, Friona Credit Union, First Bank of Muleshoe-Dimmitt Branch and First State Bank of Dimmitt customers will receive membership enrollments in their bank statements. All paid members of our chapter receive a membership card, a personal invitation to Red Cross special events, a vote for chapter board members and recognition in the Chapter Annual Report of donations of $25 and above. If you are interested in being a member of the Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross, please call or e-mail the Red Cross office to receive a membership form.

The annual membership campaign gives everyone an opportunity to support vital life saving and disaster relief in Castro, Deaf Smith and Parmer counties. Last year, chapter members helped underwrite the work of hundreds of volunteers provided such as emergency housing for families, emergency relief aid to victims of single family fires and assistance to military and veteran families.

The Tri-County is very grateful and proud to be supported by Deaf Smith County and Friona United Ways.

Arellano, Bullard wed in Amarillo ceremony

Delme Arellano and George Bullard, both of Hereford, were married Friday, April 7 in the Wedding Chapel in Amarillo.

Rick D. Mathis officiated. The bride is the daughter of Robert and Aurora Garcia of Hereford.

The groom is the son of Pauline Bullard of Round Rock, Texas.

The bride was given in marriage by Father Robert Garcia.

She wore a fitted long satin ivory dress which flared at the bottom with a small train. She wore a headpiece of small ivory flowers.

The bride carried a bouquet of ivory roses, lilies and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Amanda Vigil, the daughter of the bride.

Bridal attendants were Victoria Arellano, the bride's daughter and Amanda Bullard, the groom's daughter. They wore sleeveless, knee length light blue colored dresses and carried bouquets of white roses with baby's breath tied together with a blush ribbon.

Best man was Marc Bullard, the groom's son.

Groomsmen were Ryan and Mathew Bullard, also sons of the groom.

Ruben Rios, nephew of the bride, was the usher. The flower girl was Clarysse Vigil, the bride's granddaughter and daughter of Brian and Amanda Vigil. Ring bearer was Mathew Bullard, son of the groom.

A reception and dance following the ceremony was held at the Radisson Inn in Amarillo.

Assisting with the reception were Carl and Nancy Hollingsworth.

The wedding cake was a white spiral three-tiered cake with greenery and white roses accents. The cake was topped with bride and groom figurines.

The couple will take a honeymoon this summer to Cancun.

The bride is currently a hair stylist at Shear Perfection and the groom is a line superintendent at Deaf Smith Electric Coop.

...celebrate 50th anniversary

Couple honored on golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Rumaldo Lucero were honored with a reception to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Nov. 6, 1999. The reception was held in Avenue Baptist Church in Hereford.

Gonzales were married Nov. 9, 1949, in Ordway, Colo.

Children of the couple are Helen Castillo of Amarillo, Dan Lucero of Granbury, Jimmy Lucero of Canyon and Andy Lucero of Florida. The couple also has four grandchildren.

Registrations open for local pageants

Registrations are now being accepted for those interested in competing in the Little Miss Hereford and the Miss Hereford pageants, according to a spokesperson for the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

This year's pageants will be held June 17 in conjunction with the Town and Country Jubilee.

Registration forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main.

Age divisions for the Little Miss Hereford pageant are Cutest Miss-preschool and kindergarten; Miss Petite-first, second and third graders; Little Princess-fourth, fifth and sixth graders; and Junior Miss-seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Young ladies ages 16-21 are eligible to compete in the Miss Hereford scholarship pageant. Contestants vie for scholarships and prizes as they compete in casual wear, formal wear, interview and talent categories.

"We hope that any girls interested in competing in either pageant will complete registration forms and turn them in as soon as possible. This will assist us in finalizing plans for the pageants," Girl Richardson, pageant co-chairman, said.

Completed forms should be returned to the Chamber office. Registration deadline is May 26.

For more information, contact Kim Leonard at 364-8760.

'Road to Recovery' drivers needed by cancer society

The Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Cancer Society is currently seeking drivers for its "Road to Recovery," which provides free transportation for local cancer patients.

Volunteers will receive some training and can be reimbursed for their mileage. Information for cancer patients needing transportation or anyone interested in volunteering is available by calling 364-7200.

YOUR EYES

Keeping The Red Out

You keep rubbing your eyes, but they won't stop itching. And then you look in the mirror, they are red and puffy. What's going on? You just may have a common problem called conjunctivitis, informally known as pink eye. Usually people get conjunctivitis in both eyes at the same time. It usually doesn't hurt, but the itching is bothersome. It feels like you have a speck of dust in your eye and can't get it out.

Conjunctivitis is very contagious. It's easy to get from touching the hand of someone who already has the ailment. It is very common in schools where the children have close contact. A doctor will prescribe eye drops or ointment to relieve the symptoms. In the meantime, gently cleaning the eyes with warm water and cotton balls will improve the situation. Wash your hands frequently to help prevent spreading the infection.

Ten Technology Myths-- Some E-Commerce Fiction

Part two of a three part series

The great enemy of the truth is very often not the lie -- deliberate, contrived and dishonest -- but the myth-- persistent, persuasive and unrealistic. - John F. Kennedy

Last week in part one I pointed out that not all we read about electronic commerce is true. Though this rapidly growing phenomenon is only a few years old there are already some well established myths floating around in various media. This week we'll debunk four more of these technology myths economy dead in its tracks.

More fiction

(Myth Number Three: Sales taxes would stop the growing Internet

This myth is a nearly-verbatim quote from an industry expert's testimony before a congressional committee seeking input on taxing Internet transactions. I don't believe collection of sales taxes on Internet sales will even cause a hiccup in E-commerce growth. Sales taxes are pass through taxes and consumers are already conditioned to pay them. They will pay, and I can assure you the various government entities involved will become aggressive in tapping this huge source of potential renewal.

I'll even stick my neck a little farther out on this one. Not only will E-commerce transactions be taxed, but E-commerce sites will have a nice little property tax levied against them as well. We must pay for the government's growing concern regarding security issues, you know. Just remember, you read it here.

(Myth Number Four: E-tailers give better service.

Well, it really depends on who you ask on this one. Most folks who are promoting the expansion and growth of the E-commerce industry are quick to quote how satisfied customers are with their online experiences.

If you dig a little deeper and visit with the consumers who are actually buying on the Internet, you will find that most people who shop online have mixed reactions about online service. Certainly, there are companies who excel in all areas of exceeding customer expectations. However, most consumers say they can't tell any difference between the service of online firms and traditional retailers. Even if there is a difference, there is certainly room for improvement.

(Myth Number Five: Online firms generate higher revenues.

A recent U.S. Government Agency report contained research that implied firms who are online get more sales than those who aren't online. This is like saying households with computers earn more per capita income. Statements like these demand the question "why?"

My take on this is that we're looking at the cause not the effect. Because some households have higher per capita income, they have discretionary funds with which they purchase computers. The income came before the computers.

In business, smaller, less-profitable firms have fewer resources to devote to creating an online presence. Larger, more profitable firms have profits to use and they choose to invest in technology and E-commerce. They are online because they are bigger and can afford to be. They were bigger and more successful before they were online.

(Myth Number Six: Internet sales are $40 billion a year.

Or maybe that was $4 billion last month. Or perhaps it was $400 billion annually. The truth is I don't think anyone knows what E-commerce sales really are.

Unlike large, publicly-held corporations who are required to provide annual reports that follow generally accepted accounting principles, the Internet is a myriad of small, medium and large businesses that have no central reporting authority. The Internal Revenue Service does not require firms to disclose online versus offline sales...yet.

So here is yet another opportunity for the federal government to step in and assume control. After all we don't want inaccurate information floating around out there, and big brother can help.

There's more, so don't miss part three of Ten Technology Myths. I'll see you next week.

SOME BOOKS WORTH READING

Between the Covers

By Martha Russell
Deaf Smith County Public Library

Inter-Library Loan is a network of all kinds of libraries which reaches virtually the whole civilized world. The concept is that every library has unique volumes and these can be shared successfully to benefit everyone. Deaf Smith County Library has a series of books that even Amarillo does not have. These include local history topics as well as special collections, and other miscellaneous books. No matter how small the library, it likely has some rare jewel that no else has. No one library could possibly have absolutely everything anyone would want, so the cooperation between the libraries serves all.

If a patron requests a book that we do not have, we can make a request for it through Inter-Library Loan, who then looks around for the closest copy. Often Amarillo Public Library will have that book. However, even a major resource center such as Amarillo Public doesn't have everything. Then the search must widen. If it's not in the Panhandle somewhere, ILL staff will look beyond. Patrons can use their Deaf Smith County Library card at almost any library in the Panhandle, but it is not always convenient to drive to Amarillo, or beyond, for a book.

It usually takes a couple of weeks to get the book here, and the patron must pay one-way postage for the book. This service will not help you if you have put off that report until the last minute, but if you can wait just a little while, we can get almost any book for you. Not only do we get books for our patrons, but we send out books everyday to libraries all over. Last month we received 16 books from other libraries for our patrons, but sent out 94 of our books to other libraries.

It's interesting to see where the books come from and where they go. We have had books go to Alaska, Maine, Calif., Fla., and New Zealand, to mention just a few. Most of the time books come and go to public libraries, but occasionally will go to a school or a correctional facility (yes, they have libraries, too). Some libraries are not willing to share their books with the world. You do take a risk when you let someone hundreds of miles away borrow one of your books, but the truth is, we have more trouble getting books back from locals than we do ILL. If a book is lost through ILL, we rarely have trouble getting reimbursed for the book. The libraries who borrow them know what its like to lose one, so they are prompt in paying for lost books. Unfortunately, local individuals are not always so accommodating.

Deaf Smith County Library can be your door to the world's libraries, and you don't even have to leave the country. With our collection of books, Inter-Library Loan, and the Internet, there is very little information you cannot access from your local library. This is your tax dollars at work, folks. At times we may feel a little isolated out here on the High Plains, but we don't have to be cut off from the world, as long as we have a library.

If you love to watch All Creatures Great and Small on PBS or if you have read James Herriot's books, you will enjoy getting to know The Real James Herriot (James Wight) from his son's (Jim Wight) point of view. This biography ventures beyond the trials and tribulations of his father's life as a veterinarian to reveal the man behind the stories - the private individual who refused to allow fame and wealth interfere with his practice or his family. With access to all of his father's papers, correspondence, manuscripts, and photographs - and intimate remembrances of the farmer, locals, and friends who populate the James Herriot books - only Jim Wight could write this definitive biography of the man who was not only his father but his best friend.

In 1966, in the Appalachian Mountains of Northeast Georgia, a group of teachers and their students founded a quarterly magazine named Foxfire, after a phosphorescent lichen. In 1972, several articles from the magazine were published in book form and the acclaimed Foxfire series was born. Almost 30 years later, the books continue to teach a philosophy of simplicity in living that is truly enduring in its appeal. Much more than "how to" books, the Foxfire series teaches creative self-sufficiency, the art of natural remedies, home crafts, and other country folkways, fascinating to everyone interested in rediscovering the virtues of simple life.

Foxfire 11 celebrates the rituals and recipes of the Appalachian homeplace, and includes a section on herbal remedies, planting and growing a garden, preserving and pickling, smoking and salting, honey making, beekeeping, and fishing, as well as a variety of the kind of spirited firsthand narrative accounts from Appalachian community members that exemplify the Foxfire style.

In Follow the Stars Home

by Luanne Rice, Tim McIntosh couldn't handle the news that their unborn child was less than perfect. He abruptly fled to a solitary existence on the sea, leaving his wife Dianne with a newborn - almost alone.

It was Tim's brother, Alan, the town pediatrician, who stood by Dianne and her exceptional daughter. Throughout years of waiting, and watching and caring, Alan hid his love for his brother's wife. But none of the many hard choices Dianne has made is to close her heart toward any man - especially one named McIntosh. It will take a very special 12-year-old to remind them all that love comes in many forms and can be received with as much grace as it is given.

Other new books this week: Tough Cookie by Diane Mott Davidson; Twice Dying by Neil McMahon; OceanSpace by Allen Steele; Crying Wolf by Peter Abrahams; and, The Cap: The Price of a Life by Roman Frister.

Taking advantage of a beautiful spring day — Last week, Jelly McGowen, left, and Shirley Garrison, right, hoed weeds, trimmed hedges and freshened up the landscape surrounding the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. They also provided entertainment for others. Spectators rested in the shade and watched the two men at work. Volunteers, such as McGowen and Garrison, were honored this past week during the Senior Citizen's Center's annual volunteer appreciation day, April 12. This year's theme was "Volunteers Give From the Heart."

Soil moisture conditions vary

Area fields show wide range of soil moisture

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Area farmers have recorded nearly twice the normal annual rainfall since Jan. 1, with many farms receiving as much as 4.83 inches. However, many farmers still need more moisture if they expect to be able to get a crop up.

An extremely wet fall boosted farmers' hopes of a strong spring planting season only to be followed by an excessive dry period between rains, which allowed much of the soil moisture to evaporate.

"We've got a lot of fields that — with last week's rains — are now close to field ca-capacity," Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Dennis Newton said. "But, we had some fields that were in need of 8 to 10 inches. If we don't start out with a good soil moisture profile, just the irrigation can kill us, because then we're trying to bring the soil up to a certain level, plus trying to provide enough water for the plants."

A long fall and longer-than-average growing season consumed a sizeable quantity of soil moisture adding to the problems caused by the extended dry spell, he explained.

Newton said the wheat, especially in the northwest parts of the county, have greened up, but if they're not in need of water yet, they soon will be, especially if the strong southwest winds prevail.

Current Plant Evapotranspiration rates (PET) indicate field soil moisture evaporation is rapidly approaching a quarter-inch per day.

"The ground has dried up considerably in the last few days, but it could probably take some more moisture by now," Newton said.

Many of the stalk fields or fields which have had little plowing are holding more water than what the farmers had expected.

Like always, a hard, pounding downpour does very little good, but slow, soaking rains allow absorption, which is needed to bring field capacity levels up.

Many of the stalk fields or fields which have had little plowing are holding more water than what the farmers had expected.

"Some of the farmers have gotten out to ready the fields, and found them to be a lot wetter than expected," Newton said.

Other areas have not fared nearly as well as the Panhandle. Many of the lakes and reservoirs in East Texas are reporting less than 40 percent capacity. Some have reached a 10-year low.

On line from El Paso, northeast to Del Rio and through San Angelo and Abilene is still considered to be extremely dry.

Even with the recent widespread rains locally and the scattered storms to the east, many weather watchers are saying the entire state remains at risk of at least mild drought conditions.

"It all boils down to the moisture," said Newton. "What crops are planted and the yield all boils down to the amount of moisture we get, when we need it."

Sugar giants wage war on small importer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Behind closed doors on Capitol Hill, the powerful sugar industry is waging a battle against a tiny 60-employee company that imports Canadian molasses syrup without paying the tariffs that prop up U.S. sugar prices.

It's a lobbying battle reminiscent of David and Goliath — except that the little guy has skipped the slingshot and armed himself with some of the favorite weapons of the industry giants.

Heartland By-Products of Taylor, Mich., has enlisted one of the city's most influential lobbyists and also hired a public relations firm whose former partner now works for Al Gore's presidential campaign.

The company already has scored one victory in court. Now the big sugar companies are turning to Congress, where their six-figure political donations have earned them plenty of friends.

The multibillion-dollar industry says Heartland is jeopardizing the price support system by bypassing the tariffs. The company, which does just $35 million a year in business, counters it will be forced to close if lawmakers act against it.

"It's morally incorrect for Congress to pick on a single company and pass a bill to put it out of business," declared Heartland's president, Gregory Kozak.

At issue is whether Heartland and its 60 employees can continue to import a sugar/molasses syrup from Canada without paying the higher duties levied against foreign sugars.

The tariffs are part of a government-imposed import quota system designed to prop up the price of U.S.-grown sugar.

The industry and its allies in Congress have fought hard to rub out any threat to the current system that might allow foreign sugar, which sells for a third of the U.S. price, to gain a bigger foothold in the United States.

They want to insert a provision that overturns a ruling last fall by the U.S. Court of International Trade that Heartland did not have to pay sugar tariffs on the imported Canadian molasses.

The company uses the syrup to produce a sugary product sold to manufacturers of cereal, hard candy and dairy products such as ice cream.

Scott Ranch named Conservationist 2000

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District named the Scott Farm and Ranch, operated by Jo Eddy Riley, Kay Lynne Pagett, and Jan Leslie Stanford, as the Outstanding Conservation Ranchers for the year 2000.

The owners of the Scott Farm and Ranch are the daughters of Tillie Scott and the late Ira Scott, for whom the ranch is named.

The sisters assumed the management and operational duties of the ranch in 1996 in an effort to restore it to a sustainable level of profitability.

The women, with the help of the water conservation district, addressed the most serious of problems first through a conservation plan regarding brush control, water development and grazing management.

Cropland was enrolled into the Conservation Reserve Program, which provided income to fund other ranch improvements and replace income lost from lighter stocking trade.

Scott Farm and Ranch owners, Jan Leslie Stanford, Kay Lynne Pagett and Jo Eddy Riley were honored this week.

Water development became the first priority as the three existing windmills production had petered to only three gallons per minute. Improved water production also led to an improved grazing distribution and higher ranch productivity.

New roads were constructed allowing access from south and west and a 16,000 yard

Herbicide Offers Consistent Grass Control Year After Year

Sometimes it is tempting to wait and treat weeds and grasses late in the season after others have emerged. That way, you could get them all in one shot, right? Wrong. The early ones are now too tall for effective treatment and your strategy has backfired. Plus, competition with weeds during the crop's crucial, early stages can rob yields before you realize there is a problem.

Early application of an effective post-emergence herbicide allows you to treat immature weeds, further protecting the yield and quality of your crop.

The ideal post-emergence herbicide should:

- provide excellent control of annual and perennial grass species
- allow growers to create their own weed control program with tankmix flexibility
- be rainfast within hours of application
- work in any and all tillage programs.

For years, FUSILADE® DX herbicide has been one of the most popular post-emergence treatments for controlling rhizome johnsongrass and other tough perennial and annual grasses in cotton and soybeans.

Fusilade DX controls grasses by translocating through surface tissues and traveling to the growing points in the stems and roots, where it stops growth within hours. To use Fusilade DX effectively, apply to johnsongrass before it reaches the top of your boots, or about 8 inches high. Target annuals when they're toe-high.

This herbicide's flexibility allows you to broadcast, band and direct or spot spray in any tillage system. Also, Fusilade DX easily tank mixes at a variety of rates with other herbicides for expanded control. In cotton, tank mix Fusilade DX with insecticides for timely, convenient insect control.

For the best control of grasses and weeds in cotton and soybeans year after year, count on Fusilade DX. Contact your local ag chem retailer for more information about Fusilade DX by Zeneca Ag Products.

cleanout of 1948 tank now provides a constant source of water.

The districts new Global Positioning System was used to Survey the ranch last year and will later be used to plan new fences and water locations. Due to the drought conditions in 1998, the sisters opted not to graze the land, instead did some brush control and wildlife plantings.

The sisters' goals are to return the ranch to a productive self-sustaining level so it can be preserved for their heirs.

The winners of this year's awards were honored at a banquet in their honor, at the Hereford Country Club.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs."
Then remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

SPACE WHERE YOU NEED IT MOST

Brick One-Story Home With Elegant Detailing

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.S.D.

The recessed entry to this charming home is only one of its striking features. A half bath is convenient to the formal foyer. Columns visually divide the oversized great room from the foyer and convenient gallery. The gallery protects flooring by diverting traffic to each area of the home.

The great room includes a fireplace, vaulted ceiling and rear sun deck access. Bordering the great room is an abundantly large formal dining room, which is also convenient to the spacious kitchen.

The kitchen breakfast room has two walls of windows to envelop its occupants in light, openness, and luxury. This kitchen is designed for convenience with a large island which also includes a convenient snack bar.

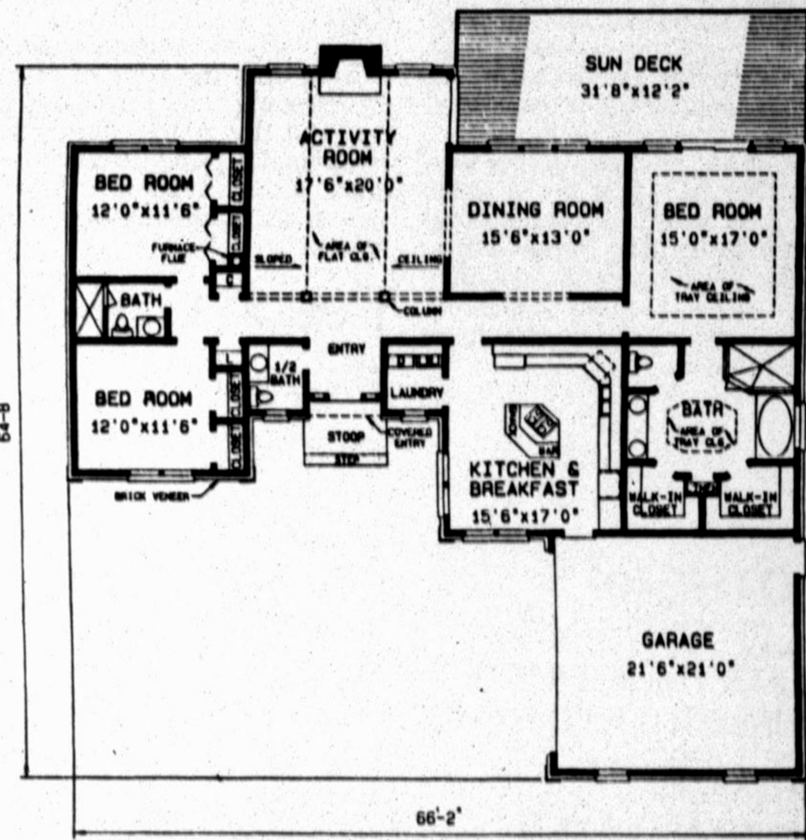

The isolated luxury master suite contains a wealth of essentials. The volume bed room includes a tray ceiling with windows and doors overlooking the rear sun deck. The garden bath is adorned with an octagonal tray ceiling, corner shower stall, sun lit spa tub, twin vanities and twin walk-in closets. The toilet is in a private compartment.

In a wing of their own, two generously sized bed rooms complete the home. Each has double closets and easily accesses a central shower bath.

This brick home is enhanced by corner quoins, hip and gable roof combinations and a variety of window styles. Plan number 2187 includes 2,165 square feet of heated space and is available with a crawl space foundation. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish.

To receive an information packet on plans, call W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc. at 1-800-225-7526 or 1-800-221-7526 in GA. You can write to request the information at P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145. Visit our website: www.wdfarmerplans.com.

Star-studded Copperfield an authentic Masterpiece

Oscar nominee Bob Hoskins (top) plays the colorful Mr. Micawber with newcomer Daniel Radcliffe as the young title character in a spectacular new Masterpiece Theatre adaptation of Charles Dickens' David Copperfield. It airs Sunday and Monday on PBS (check local listings).

In its nearly three decades on the air, Masterpiece Theatre occasionally has proven that "masterpiece" is a subjective and relative term.

Now and then, however, the award-winning series comes up with the real article, as it does in a stunning new David Copperfield airing Sunday and Monday, April 16 and 17, on PBS (check local listings).

This new adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic novel about a boy battling the vagaries of a fickle fate is deftly directed by Simon Curtis, who previously helmed the Robson Green romantic comedy hit The Prince of Hearts, and it stars a mother lode of great English actors.

Two-time Academy Award winner Maggie Smith gets the story off to a smashing start as her peppery character, Betsey Trotwood, arrives on the eve of David's birth, eagerly anticipating the arrival of a niece. When a nephew is born instead, Betsey storms off into the night, although she will return later as David's savior.

Smith was one of the first cast members to sign on, and Curtis says the actress provided leverage for attracting a number of other big names as well.

"She was very keen to do it, and she was the magnet," Curtis says. "Once she was part of the production, all discerning actors realized, 'Oh, I see; it's that production. I'd like to be a part of that.'"

While American projects featuring several A-list actors frequently suffer from "star bloat," this tony English cast totally immerses itself into the world of Dickens' characters. Thus, Bob Hoskins' colorful Mr. Micawber is very funny indeed, but there also is a real tenderness to his scenes with his devoted wife (Imelda Staunton, Peter's Friends).

Ian McKellen (Gods and Monsters) is chilling as Mr. Creakle, the sadistic headmaster at David's first school, as is Trevor Eve (Heat of the Sun) as Murdstone, David's abusive stepfather. The gifted Zoe Wanamaker is diamond-hard as Murdstone's icy sister, Jane, while Emilia Fox (Rebecca) is all fragile warmth as David's doomed mother, Clara.

Dawn French (The Vicar of Dibley) contributes a lusty cameo as the older David's landlady, Mrs. Crupp, and Nicholas Lyndhurst is unforgettable as the spookily unctuous Uriah Heep.

Rising Irish actor Ciaran McMenamin is well-cast as the older David, but newcomer Daniel Radcliffe is simply amazing as his younger incarnation, acting with a fresh and winning simplicity that is completely unmannered. He is a major find.

Curtis says he knew the young actor was right for the part as soon as he saw him.

"(Director) Richard Eyre was talking to me about casting children, and he just said go for someone you have a feeling for," he explains. "I just thought I would like to watch Daniel as David Copperfield. It was as simple as that."

Dickens himself once named Copperfield as his "favorite child," and scholars point out that its story and characters are drawn from events and people in the author's own life. After 150 years, the book still speaks to audiences, Curtis says.

"(This is) a story paying tribute to family ... and not only conventional families but ... many new definitions of families," Curtis says. "Dickens is saying that David is only ready to have a family at the end of his life ... and that is the journey Dickens takes David on."

IN FOCUS

Yul Brynner (The Magnificent Seven) plays Pharaoh Ramses, the Egyptian ruler who condemns firstborn Hebrew males to death, in the classic 1956 movie The Ten Commandments, airing Sunday, April 16, on ABC.

An infant is set adrift in a reed basket on the Nile to escape the pharaoh's edict. He grows up to be Moses (Charlton Heston, Planet of the Apes), who frees the Israelites from slavery and takes them to the Promised Land.

Directed by Cecil B. DeMille, the film also stars Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson and Yvonne De Carlo.

Stacie Hess, Camilla Belle and Brian Christopher Stark (from left) star in the TV movie Rip Girls, premiering Saturday, April 22, on the Disney Channel.

A 13-year-old (Belle) decides to visit the Hawaiian plantation she recently inherited. While in the tropical paradise, she makes new friends and takes a more adventurous approach to life.

As she learns to surf and gains confidence in the water, she discovers new strength and self-assurance in her abilities to run the property she now owns. Meleana White also stars.

TV PIPELINE

Cohen a Wolf in star's clothing, say readers

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Scott Cohen

Q: I loved Scott Cohen as Wolf in The 10th Kingdom. He looks familiar. Where have I seen him before? --Katie K., Perrysburg, Ohio.

A: Kingdom may have pulled in less-than-royal ratings, but I can't remember the last time a performer so electrified TV Pipeline readers, based on the number of letters and e-mails I have received about Cohen.

The 38-year-old actor is another one of those theater-trained performers who is just now making producers sit up and take notice of his prodigious talent. In addition to his tour-de-force performance as Wolf for NBC, February also saw him playing a detective in CBS' JonBenet Ramsey movie Perfect Murder, Perfect Town, as well as alcoholic cop Harry Denby on ABC's NYPD Blue. Prior to that busy month, he appeared in the movies Gia, Gotti and Private Parts, among others, and played Ray Martino on One Life to Live. He also made guest appearances on Law & Order, Oz and Feds.

Ironically, despite his many legitimate credits, he may be best known for the automobile commercial in which he wolfishly flirts with an attractive woman in the next car before being beaped by a stuffed toy thrown by his toddler in the back seat.

The Bronx-born actor, who is the son of jazz musician Jack Cohen, is married to playwright Anastasia Traina, with whom he has a son, Liam.

Q: What is Richard Boone doing these days? Where could I write to him? --Jo Ellison, Onslow, Iowa.

A: The star of Have Gun Will Travel and Hec Ramsey died of throat cancer in 1981. He was 63.

Q: What claimed the life of Jester Hairston, who played Rolly in Amen? --A fan in Phenix City, Ala.

A: Hairston's death on Jan. 18 was attributed to natural causes. He was 98 years old.

Q: Obituaries for the late actress Hedy Lamarr mentioned that she was granted a communications patent. Can you shed light on this? --Paul Gerbracht, Erie, Pa.

A: In the 1940s, Lamarr and her husband, George Antheil, filed patents for technology that eventually led to the invention of the cell phone. She received a belated award for it in 1997.

Q: I have never heard of Mare Winningham winning any type of award. Why is that? And is Will Ferrell of Saturday Night Live related to Mike Ferrell of Providence? --Michelle Lee, Chicago.

A: Winningham has won two Emmy Awards for her performances in Amber Waves and George Wallace and was nominated for an Oscar for her work in Georgia. Will Ferrell is not related to Mike Ferrell (note spelling) of Providence and *M*A*S*H*.

Art imitates life - and educates - on PC

Port Charles viewers get a chance to see medical technology at its best on Tuesday, April 18, when Mitch Longley (Dr. Matt Harmon), who has used a wheelchair since a car accident left him paralyzed, demonstrates the Parastep-1 therapeutic device.

The Parastep-1 enables paraplegics and quadriplegics to stand and walk short distances. Longley has been using the device to improve his cardiovascular endurance and increase muscle mass in his quadriceps.

"The fact that the Port Charles producers have decided to incorporate the Parastep system into my character's story line is another wonderful example of how daytime television addresses issues which are not only entertaining but educational," Longley says. "It's a reflection of a certain social responsibility I am proud to be a part of."

"We have all learned a great deal from Mitch about the importance of continued stimulation and rehabilitation for people with spinal cord injuries," says executive producer Julie Carruthers. "It is very exciting to bring such an innovative rehabilitation tool to the attention of our viewers."

The device is introduced during a conversation between Matt and Dr. Joe Scanlon (David Gail). They are disheartened when they can't get approval for the device because it is too expensive.

Matt is determined to find a way to have the equipment brought to the hospital and begin his own experimental treatment.

Dear Candace: I heard Stuart Damon (Alan Quartermaine, General Hospital) and his wife had a new baby. Is his wife a lot younger than he is? I know older couples are having children, not that I have anything against that. But I hadn't heard much about Damon becoming a new father. -Allison B. via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Damon and his wife, Deirdre, have adopted their grandchild Alexander. They became his legal guardians when their daughter Jennifer realized she wouldn't be able to raise the child on her own. The adoption proceedings were officially over on Feb. 24. Alexander is 5 years old.
